He held various other posts with the State Headquarters, before being named adjutant general by former Gov. Julian M. Carroll in 1977. He was reappointed to the post by former Gov. John Y. Brown in 1979 and later served the governor as Justice Cabinet secretary and Kentucky State Police commissioner. He was reappointed as a adjutant general by Gov. Martha Layne Collins Dec. 13, 1983.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--The average performance score for Morehead State University students taking the 1986 National Teachers Examination exceeded the national norm in two areas and matched the norm in another.

The results released by MSU's Academic Assessment Center were validated recently by the Educational Testing Service which administers the NTE.

The results also show 60 percent or more of the 119 students, who took the NTE, scored higher than the state and national norms on the core exams and specialty areas, according to Dr. Stephen Taylor, director of MSU's Academic Assessment Center.

"Morehead State has always strived to provide the best quality teacher education program possible and these scores confirm that we have continued to meet our commitment," said Dr. Roberta Anderson, vice president for academic affairs.

In communication skills, 60 percent of MSU's students scored above the national average; 62 percent exceeded it in general knowledge, and 64 percent topped it in professional knowledge. In the specialty areas, 62 percent exceeded the national norm.

In the core areas, MSU student average performance scores equaled the 53 percentiles nationally in communication skills; exceeded the 56 percentiles nationally in general knowledge by one percentile, and significantly surpassed the 52 percentiles nationally in professional knowledge with a 58 percentile average performance.

Approximately 30,000 prospective teachers nationwide took the NTE. The total for Kentucky was nearly 1,000. A statewide comparison of composite scores shows MSU paralleling the other institutions' average performance scores in communication and general knowledge, while exceeding the state norm in professional knowledge.

"A great deal was made of the scores from the 1985 NTE which showed Morehead State and several of her sister regional institutions lagging behind in the nation," said Dr. Anderson. "At that time, we predicted a dramatic upswing in the 1986 scores," she added.

Dr. Anderson explained that new and more stringent requirements for entering teacher education programs at MSU were just now making their effect known. "The legislature mandated stricter standards statewide in 1983, but MSU earlier had begun tightening its own," she said.

The scores also reflect the result of a stronger curriculum in teacher education, according to Dr. Anderson.

Last year was the first time beginning teachers were required to pass the NTE in order to be certified to teach in Kentucky and State Department of Education officials have cited its usefulness in measuring the quality of university programs, faculties and students entering teacher preparation programs.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Fourteen teachers are retraining to become middle school science teachers this summer at Morehead State University.

According to Dr. John Philley, chair of the Department of Physical Sciences, Kentucky's Department of Education has added a third level of teacher certification. Previously, teachers were certified to teach elementary or secondary education. Certification is now divided into three grade levels: K-4, 5-8 and 9-12, he said.

Dr. Philley said the retraining program will "help meet the needs because of the change in certification."

Beginning Monday, June 9, the retraining program is four summer sessions at MSU allowing teachers to return to their present jobs during the academic school year. The program ends Sept. 1, 1987. Receiving $39,955 funding from the Council on Higher Education, MSU will provide free tuition, fees and books for the 14 teachers. Philley said the University also will try to provide an expense allowance or housing for the participants.

Although most of the teachers have been chosen, Philley said MSU may be able to take one or two more teachers provided arrangements are made.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--A documentary on a former Northeastern Kentucky railroad system is available at Morehead State University's Camden-Carroll Library.

The 23-minute documentary traces the beginnings of the Lexington subdivision of the CSX/Chessie System which stretched from Winchester to Ashland.

In the spring of 1985, the Interstate Commerce Commission granted permission for the line to be abandoned, and the last commercial traffic moved on the line June 28. Removal of the track from Winchester to Coalton began on Oct. 15. About 15 miles of track between Coalton and Ashland being left intact.

Describing the passenger service of the early trains, the documentary also follows train No. 391, which ran the route from Ashland to Winchester on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

The show was produced by Autumn Grubb-Swetnam, MSU Television Productions coordinator and Dennis LaBreche, Pikeville senior. Tammi Adkins, Sandy Hook graduate student, was narrator.

"The main purpose of this documentary was to show future generations how vital the railroads were to the area's economic growth," Grubb-Swetnam said.

The documentary, which was shown in May on MSU-TV Channel 12, is available for viewing during regular hours in the library's Learning Resource Center, according to Helen Williams, librarian in the Office of Library and Instructional Media.

Grubb-Swetnam said copies of the documentary may be purchased from MSU's TV Productions on VHS, BETA or three-quarter inch tape. Additional information is available from Grubb-Swetnam at (606) 783-2082.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--A journalism scholarship honoring W. David Brown Sr., coordinator of Morehead State University's journalism program, has been established by an MSU journalism graduate and will be awarded by the University next fall.

According to William Redwine, director of the Office of Development, the scholarship is an annual award of $300 to a junior or senior journalism major who has a 3.5 grade point average.

The scholarship is sponsored by Mary Westheimer, a 1982 MSU graduate, through the MSU Foundation. Westheimer was a journalism student and advisee of Brown's during her career at MSU. She currently is a freelance writer in Phoenix, Ariz.

"Mr. Brown is very modest about all he does...he doesn't make a big deal of his achievements. He really cares about students, and when I was a student I always knew I could go to Mr. Brown because he is honest and treats students like adults," Westheimer said.

Brown was hired by the University in 1966 to develop a minor in journalism through the English Department. At that time he was the only faculty teaching journalism.

Brown not only developed a minor in journalism, but by 1975, he had added an entire major which includes sequences such as advertising, news-editorial, photojournalism and public relations. The journalism faculty has also continued to grow and presently consists of three full-time and two part-time members.
He set up a journalism library consisting of magazines, newspapers, books and journalism related materials for students' use in Allie Young Hall. Brown also served as adviser to the University's student newspaper, The Trail Blazer, for 15 years.

Prior to coming to MSU, he worked for three Pulitzer Prize winning newspapers. His jobs included being a copy editor for two years for The Louisville Times; editor of The Chronicle, a daily newspaper in Mississippi; and held several positions including associate editor of another Mississippi newspaper, The Delta Democrat-Times. During his 10-year stay in Mississippi, he was also the only state correspondent for Time, Inc. magazines.

"We in the Department of Communications are extremely grateful to Mary Westheimer and her family for establishing this scholarship in honor of Professor Brown whose long career in journalism at MSU has touched the lives of so many of our students," said Dr. Richard J. Dandeneau, chair of the Department of Communications.

"The establishment of this scholarship in his name testifies to the high regard in which his students hold him, and I know he is as pleased as the department is to have this opportunity to help the journalism students in their education," Dr. Dandeneau said.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.--A Morehead State University student has been elected president of MSU's chapter and Kentucky's Council for Exceptional Children for next year.

Robin Werner, a music education major from Portsmouth, Ohio, is the first MSU student to be president of both the local and the state organizations, according to Dr. Barbara Russell, acting dean of MSU's College of Professional Studies.

Dr. Russell will serve as adviser to the state group next year. This appointment is also a first for MSU.

"The SCEC is primarily a service organization," Dr. Russell said. "The local chapter plans monthly leisure activities for the handicapped in the area and last year held a "Handicapped Awareness Day" to help make those without handicaps aware of problems those with handicaps encounter."

Werner said her biggest concern at her local chapter is to get more students involved in SCEC. She said, "Many students don't realize that all students are encouraged to participate in SCEC--not just special education majors."

As state president, she will attend monthly meetings in Frankfort and coordinate activities for the state's six SCEC chapters.

She will also participate in the national organization, Council for Exceptional Children.

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Werner, and she is also a member of the University Chorus and MSU's Show Choir.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--"Freedom...although often taken for granted, America has never been without it...for nearly 210 years," said Maj. Gen. Billy G. Wellman, Kentucky National Guard adjutant general.

Wellman spoke on the importance of America's freedom at Morehead State University on Sunday during the second general meeting of the 46th session of Kentucky Boys' State, sponsored by the American Legion.

Stressing their importance as future leaders of America, Wellman challenged the more than 300 young men from across the state to love America and continue to keep it safe for their children and grandchildren.

"Although generations change, and we now live in the age of technology, Americans' value of freedom must continue and must be respected," said Wellman.

Although America has won nine major wars and conflicts, we have lost more than one million people who gave their lives to win, he said. To avoid another war, America must keep her defense strong and continue to uphold and share the value of freedom with future generations, he continued.

Earlier yesterday during their first meeting the delegates were welcomed to campus and Boys' State by Morehead State President Herb. F. Reinhard who challenged the group to make a favorable impression on their surroundings wherever they were, so the world would be a better place to live.

"Choose your values and character well, so you can look in the mirror and say to yourself, 'I have done my best,'" Dr. Reinhard said. Larry Boos, department commander of the American Legion and president of Boys' State, also welcomed the group.

This week the delegates will participate in mock government sessions for practical lessons in state and city government. They will develop a two-party political system and serve as legislators introducing, debating and passing bills as in the Kentucky General Assembly. Girls' State also is meeting this week at MSU.

On Friday morning the elected state officials for Boys' and Girls' State will travel to Frankfort to meet their state counterparts. Friday evening, a banquet and graduation exercises will be held honoring Boys' State delegates. U.S. Sen. Wendell Ford is the featured speaker for the evening.

"I think being governor will be a lot of fun," he said, "However, I'm mainly concerned with getting my platform approved."

Other items on his platform include organizing a state lottery for education and limiting liability insurance claims.

Durbin also is chairman of the Nationalist Party at Boys' State. His high school activities include playing baseball and football.

Other elected officers include: Eric Ezell, Cadiz delegate, has been elected lt. governor. He is the son of Dale and Mildred Ezell and is a senior at Trigg County High School.

KENTUCKY GIRLS' STATE: A Picture Story

With political slogans ringing out, party caucuses, rallies and appearances by state and local political figures, the 40th Kentucky Girls' State convention is in full swing on Morehead State University's campus this week. Sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, Girls' State is a practical experience in government for the more than 300 high school students from across the state who are learning by doing--electing city and state officials, organizing a state legislature, writing bills and enacting them. Today the newly-elected state officials are in Frankfort and are scheduled to meet with their real-life counterparts, including Gov. Martha Layne Collins. Tonight they will join with the delegates to Boys' State, which is also being held this week on campus, for a banquet in the University Center. U.S. Sen. Wendell Ford will be the speaker. Saturday morning at the final session, delegates to Girls' Nation will be announced.

Cutlines:

MOREHEAD, Ky.--"There are few shortcuts or easy solutions to drinking problems."

This is the message of a recent book written by Dr. David R. Rudy, chair of the Department of Sociology, Social Work and Corrections at Morehead State University. The book, entitled "Becoming Alcoholic: Alcoholics Anonymous and the Reality of Alcoholism," was published by Southern Illinois University Press.

"Drinkers who commit themselves to Alcoholics Anonymous (AA) embrace the radically different life-style, the altered world view of the convert," according to the professor of sociology.

Released in April, the book describes the history and structure of AA and examines the organization's relationship to dominant sociological models, theories, and definitions of alcoholism.

"Becoming Alcoholic" is the result of 16 months of participating and observing AA groups in various settings. Dr. Rudy attended regular meetings and solicited life-history interviews with several AA members.

Dr. Rudy received his B.A. degree from Gannon College, the M.A. degree from Akron University and the Ph.D. degree from Syracuse University. He was an assistant professor of Alfred University prior to joining MSU's faculty in 1980.

A Pennsylvania native, Dr. Rudy is married to the former Mary Fowler. They have two children, Maura and Micheal.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University's Department of Art is introducing a local folk artist in his first public exhibition.

The paintings and sculptures of Magoffin County resident, Hugo Sperger, are on display in the gallery of Claypool-Young Art Building now through Aug. 10.

As part of the Appalachian Celebration, a reception in his honor will be held on Sunday, June 22, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Working in folk art tradition, Sperger's paintings are derived from personal experiences and places he has visited. He also finds inspiration in Biblical themes and stories of saints, nature, things he sees and reads about and his own imagination.

During the last two years, he has been creating sculptures from stones and tree roots. Several of the unique toys he made for his grandchildren are included in the exhibit.

Born in Italy of German parents, Sperger immigrated to the United States when he was seven. He spent his early years traveling around the eastern part of the country before moving to Salyersville in 1948, where he and his wife Faye presently reside.

He began painting in the early 1970s when his wife bought him a set of oil paints to pass the time while recovering from an illness. He credits her for introducing him to the art world and has included her crocheted afghans in his exhibit. A former house painter, he has no formal art training.

The gallery is open weekdays, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Additional information is available from MSU's Department of Art, (606) 783-2766.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Traveling throughout Eastern Kentucky to meet with school superintendents, principals, other officials and civic leaders to learn what they need from Morehead State University will be a priority for MSU's newly-appointed interim president.

Dr. A. D. Albright, retired president of Northern Kentucky University, was officially appointed president of MSU effective July 1 by the University's Board of Regents at its June 13 meeting.

He will serve at an annual salary of $66,000 until a successor can be named to MSU President Herb. F. Reinhard, who has resigned. Dr. Reinhard will become president of Frostburg (Md.) State College on July 1.

The board also approved employing Dr. Albright as a consultant on a per diem basis of $274 plus expenses during the presidential transition period.

Dr. Albright told the board he was mindful of MSU's many contributions to Eastern Kentucky over the years, but he also believed that the University could do more.

"I know the people here, the region and the capabilities that we have here to draw upon," he told the board and the more than 100 people attending the meeting.

When Dr. Albright was interviewed earlier this spring by the Interim Presidential Search Committee, he outlined goals for the interim president, citing a need for a good working relationship between MSU and secondary school administrators in Eastern Kentucky. Shrinking enrollment and projected budget shortfalls are also two areas of concern for an interim president.

At Friday's meeting, former Gov. Louie B. Nunn, chairman of the board, exhorted Dr. Albright "to go at it. Forget about personalities and do what needs to be done, so that when you leave we can say that Morehead State is better for your being here," Gov. Nunn added.

Dr. Albright told the board that he hoped to return with "a prospectus for where we can go and how we can get there. I'm excited and I hope that others will catch this enthusiasm," he added.

The regents request Dr. Albright provide them his evaluation of the University at a board meeting scheduled for July 18.

Dr. Albright, 73, currently serves as education consultant to the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government. Prior to his tenure as NKU president from 1976 to 1983 he was executive director of the state Council on Public Higher Education and had held numerous top-level administrative posts at the University of Kentucky, including vice president for institutional planning. During those 16 years at UK he also served as interim president.

Dr. Albright earned his A.B. degree from Milligan College, the M.S. degree from the University of Tennessee, and his Ph.D. degree form New York University. He holds honorary degrees from Berea College, NKU, Eastern Kentucky University, and Thomas More College.

He has been a member of the Carnegie Foundation National Advisory Panel, chairman of the Commonwealth of Kentucky Committee of Presidents, and served as an education consultant for state, national, and international governmental and professional bodies.

He and his wife, Grace, are the parents of two children.

Earlier in the day, the board's nine-member Presidential Screening Committee held an organizational meeting and elected Jerry Howell Sr. of Jackson as chairman. Howell, a former board chairman, served as MSU regent from 1968 to 1984.

The screening panel plans to submit "as few names as possible, but at least five names" of presidential candidates to the regent's Presidential Search Committee by Sept. 1.

In other actions, the MSU Board of Regents approved a $40.4 million budget for 1986-87, an increase of 3.1 percent from last year. The new budget includes a five percent across the board salary increase for all University personnel, plus additional funds to address retention of faculty and staff.

The new operating budget also provides for the establishment of an Institute for Public Service and Appalachian Development (IPS&AD) to broaden the University's service mission to Eastern Kentucky.

The regents also adopted a resolution commending MSU President Herb. F. Reinhard for his service and dedication during his two-year tenure as president of the institution. Dr. Reinhard will assume the presidency of Frostburg (Md.) State College on July 1.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.--On July 1, Morehead State University will unveil a new outreach unit, the Institute for Public Service and Appalachian Development (IPS&AD).

"The Institute was developed to streamline and strengthen MSU's mission of service to Eastern Kentucky," explained Dr. Roberta T. Anderson, MSU vice president for academic affairs.

"We took an old friend, the Appalachian Development Center, restructured it and enhanced its scope, so that we could more effectively and more efficiently meet our outreach commitment," Dr. Anderson said.

IPS&AD will be housed in the Division of Academic Affairs under the Office of Graduate and Special Academic Programs. Institute staff will include a director, a coordinator of special projects and a secretary.

"By coordinating our outreach efforts within the University's academic structure, we believe we can better utilize our financial resources and the expertise of our personnel to better serve the people of this region," she said.

"Of course we are not limiting ourselves to faculty expertise but will be able to draw upon the talents within our very capable administrative and support staff," she added.

According to Dr. Anderson, IPS&AD is charged with becoming more aggressive in providing services. "We will be working with various community agencies, public officials and school officials to determine what the needs are--economic, educational and cultural--in the region and what MSU can do to help meet those needs," she said.
None of ADC's functions have been lost, according to the vice president. "In fact, we are using Appalachian Development as part of the Institute's name just to maintain ADC's identity, because it has been such a vital part of the region," she said.

Under IPS&AD, the Eastern Kentucky Small Business Development Center will be housed within the Department of Business and Economics. The Sheep Industry Development Project will be administered by the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources, which previously shared responsibility for the program. Human Services, which includes the Job Training Program, will be part of the Office of Extended Campus Programs.

"We have already begun a search for an IPS&AD director who understands Appalachia its people and its needs, someone who has a strong sense of regional service and a university's role in regional service," Dr. Anderson said.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--"Set your goals high and start trying to meet them today... don't wait until tomorrow," said Dr. Walter Blevins Jr., state representative for the 71st district.

Dr. Blevins was the featured speaker for a joint banquet of Boys' State and Girls' State. Graduation exercises for the 46th session of Kentucky Boys' State, sponsored by the American Legion and hosted by Morehead State University, followed the dinner.

"There's nothing any greater than the opportunity to be an American," Blevins said, stressing Americans' right to govern themselves. He challenged the more than 600 youth from across the state to help protect this right.

"I fear that we're losing that freedom," he added, referring to the low voter turnout for the recent election of state representatives.

Stressing the need for individuals to vote, Blevins said with about 80 percent of the people not voting in the recent state election, everyone is not being heard. He said, "Those who don't speak up; those who do not participate have no right to complain.

Dentistry is the most difficult job in Russia because "it's hard to work on people's mouths, when they don't open their mouths," quipped Blevins, himself a dentist.

Blevins helped organize the House of Representatives for Boys' State.

Boys' State, held June 8-12, is a practical experience in state and local government. The delegates spent the week campaigning for political offices, organizing city budgets and passing bills in the general assembly.

William Donaldson of Mt. Sterling and William Gamblin of Madisonville were chosen to represent Kentucky at Boys' Nation in Washington D.C. July 18-26.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Nearly 300 high school seniors from across the state recently were given a chance to experiment with government and politics during the 46th session of Kentucky Boys' State, sponsored by the American Legion.

Although most of the delegates were not old enough to vote in an actual election, age was not important in the bipartisan Democratic government established at Morehead State University last week.

Each delegate was a participant in one of two political parties--the Nationalist Party and the Federalist Party.

The chairman of each party helped organize ideals and aims of his party. He also led discussions on possible issues, helped draft a platform for his party and nominated candidates for office.

Dean Durbin, Elizabethtown High School senior and son of Hade and Pat Durbin of Elizabethtown, was chairman of the Nationalist Party. Durbin also was elected governor of Boys' State.

Reginald Thomas, Trigg County High School senior and son of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Thomas of Cadiz, was chairman of the Federalist Party.

Each party also selected a secretary to record party actions.

Thad Davis, Tates Creek senior and son of D. L. Davis of Lexington, was secretary of the Nationalist Party.

William Patrick Lay, Estill County High School senior and son of W. B. Lay of Irvine, was secretary of the Federalist Party.

Boys' State is a practical experience in state and local government.

MOREHEAD, Ky.—WMKY FM 90, public radio from Morehead State University, will air a live concert of bluegrass and folk bands in conjunction with the 10th annual Appalachian Celebration on Saturday, June 28.

WMKY radio personality Lisa Lally, who organized the event, will be the host. Lally is the host of WMKY's "Bluegrass Diversion" on Saturday mornings.

The concert will take place from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the lawn of the Laughlin Health Building on MSU's campus. In case of rain, the concert will be held inside Laughlin.

WMKY will air a portion of the concert from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. on a special edition of "Bluegrass Diversion," featuring the True Grass Band, White Horse String Band, Pat Cleary, and Bill Worrell and Mark Sparkman.

Gail Wilson, acting programming director, said WMKY always supports the Appalachian Celebration. As in past years, WMKY will record concerts performed during the celebration for airing later on "Bluegrass Diversion." WMKY's "Focus On the Region" (Fridays at 4 p.m.) will have features on workshops and lectures held during the celebration. WMKY also may air some of the noon concerts live during the week.

Lisa Lally, who came to WMKY in fall of 1983, started "Bluegrass Diversion" in January 1984. She describes the program as a combination of bluegrass, folk and mountain music, often featuring the talents of regional artists.

Lally's experience with bluegrass music started with singing bluegrass gospel on the radio with her family. Through her work at WMKY, she has covered the Kentucky Fried Chicken Bluegrass Festival in Louisville, the McClain Festival, the Ralph Stanley Festival, and the Festival of the Bluegrass in Lexington. Bill Monroe, the "father of Bluegrass," Ralph Stanley, and the members of Trapezoid are among the many stars of bluegrass and traditional music she has interviewed.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--"I'm proud and excited," Mark Manis of Greenup said when he was offered Morehead State University's most prestigious scholarship, the Distinguished Scholar Award.

The Distinguished Scholar Award was established at MSU in the fall of 1985 to recruit top students in academics. The award is earmarked for National Merit Finalists and Semifinalists. Last year seven students received this award, according to Bruce Heasley, acting director of MSU's Office of Admissions.

"I was pretty shocked...then excited," said Manis, a spring graduate of Greenup County High School and son of Barbara and Donald Manis. "Many people think all the smart people live in the western or central part of Kentucky, but we have just as many bright people on our end of the state," he added. "I hope more Eastern Kentucky students will be recognized through similar awards."

Twenty students already have accepted MSU's invitation to participate in this scholarship program which offers a four-year fully-funded college education if a 3.0 grade point average (GPA) is maintained during the freshman year. A 3.25 GPA is required after the first year, Heasley said.

According to Manis, location is one of the reasons he chose to continue his education at MSU.

He said because Morehead is relatively close to his home in Greenup County, several of his friends are attending MSU. "I've heard much praise and many recommendations from my friends who are or have attended Morehead State," he said.

After a summer of "just taking it easy," he said he'll attend MSU in August and pursue a major in history, simply because he's always been interested in history---his favorite subject.

Particularly interested in American history, he hopes to complete his teaching certificate at MSU and teach in Kentucky.

Besides being a National Merit Semifinalist, Manis was a member of the Latin Club for four years and the Hi-Q Team for three years. He was also a member of Who's Who Among American High School Students.

This spring, he placed first in the Management Essay area of Marshall University's Academic Festival.

Although he recently received his black belt in Karate, he said his favorite pastime is computers, especially playing the computer game, "Dungeons and Dragons."

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky. -- "Kentucky Boys' State is a good program and an excellent experience for our kids."

Anyone involved with Boys' State might make that statement, but for Bill Melton and Kent Mann, assistant principals at the Kentucky School for the Deaf in Danville, it has a special meaning.

Melton and Mann served as volunteer counselors for Boys' State as well as sign language interpreters for two KSD students, who were delegates to the 46th session of Boys' State held recently at Morehead State University.

Sponsored by American Legion Post 46 in Danville, Pat Howell of Philpot and Denny Brown of Brodhead attended the American Legion's week-long program in state and local government. They joined with nearly 300 other Kentucky high school seniors to organize cities, develop budgets and create legislation to be introduced into the Boys' State General Assembly.

"Pat and Denny are two campus leaders at KSD and they continued to demonstrate their leadership abilities at Boys' State," said Melton.

Denny was elected state treasurer and spent much of the week working with the other eight elected state officials. He also traveled to Frankfort to visit the state Capitol and the Governor's Mansion.

Pat served as a senator and worked to get legislation passed to help deaf people in public facilities. One bill requiring public facilities such as airports to have communication devices for the deaf was passed by Boys' State and will be sent to the Legislative Research Commission in Frankfort for review.

"Boys' State could have hired an interpreter for Pat and Denny to come in every morning and stay to 4:30 p.m.,” Kent said. “Instead, they (the boys) got to be with people they knew, and we were available to them 24 hours each day.

According to Emerson O. Mann (no relation to Kent Mann), Boys' State public relations officer, Kentucky is the only Boys' State in the nation with provisions for the deaf.

KSD assistant principal Mann, a native of Corbin and a former Boys' Stater, has brought KSD delegates to Boys' State for the past three years. He said after the first year, he knew he needed a second interpreter to help provide both delegates with as many opportunities as possible. The next year Melton attended Boys' State with Mann and the two delegates.

"With two interpreters, each delegate can work with whichever part of government he chooses," Melton said. "Otherwise, both KSD delegates would have to attend the same sessions or one of them would always be left out."

Mann and Melton spent much of the week, except during the delegates' free time and recreation periods, with Pat and Denny. Melton said, "We want to give the boys a chance to make new friends and have some time to interact and communicate with the other delegates." He said many of the other delegates experimented with sign language so they could communicate better with the two KSD delegates.

"Boys' State is a positive atmosphere because it puts our students in contact with their peers," Mann said. "All of our delegates have gone on to college, because they were told every day at Boys' State that they were the 'cream of the crop' and this challenged them."

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Dr. Richard J. Dandeneau, professor of journalism, has been named chair of Morehead State University's Department of Communications.

His promotion to the administrative ranks, effective July 1, was announced by Dr. Robert L. Burns, dean of MSU's College of Arts and Sciences.

Dr. Dandeneau, who has been on the faculty since 1981, was appointed acting chair last October.

"We are most fortunate to have Dr. Dandeneau's excellent administrative skills to draw upon," Dr. Burns said. "His professional background encompasses both the academic world and the business world. With more than three decades in college/university teaching, Dr. Dandeneau also has spent several years as a journalist and in public relations and advertising," Dr. Burns added.

"I am pleased that he also will continue as Morehead State's liaison with the Kentucky Weekly Newspaper Association, whose state headquarters are housed on campus," the dean said.

Prior to coming to MSU, Dr. Dandeneau operated his own graphic design and public relations firm in California. In addition to teaching at the University of Redlands in California, where he was in charge of the communications program, he taught and served in various administrative capacities--including as associate dean of the College of Arts and Sciences--at the University of Miami, Coral Gables, Fla., for 13 years.

Dr. Dandeneau also was on the faculty at the University of Illinois and Southern Illinois University. MOREHEAD, Ky.—A Morehead State University veterinary technology program graduate is tops in the nation based on the results of 1986 National Board Examination for Animal Technicians.

JoAnn Jansing, an Louisville native, had 170 correct answers out of a possible 200 giving her the highest score on the exam in the United States this year.

A requirement for certification as a veterinary technician, the exam tested the candidates in three areas: basic science, animal care and management and clinic science.

All 14 Morehead State candidates passed the test and the average of their scores was 5.46 percentage points higher than the average for the 65 candidates taking the exam nationwide. MSU's candidates also achieved higher scores in each of the three areas as well as on the entire exam, according to Diane Popp, executive secretary for the Kentucky Board of Veterinary Examiners.

"This achievement indeed speaks well for the Veterinary Technology Program and Morehead State University," Popp said.

"MSU's program allowed me to make a career out of something I loved to do—work with animals," said the 22-year-old Jansing. She is employed by Farmers Veterinary Clinic in Flemingsburg as an animal health technician.

"I got a lot of practical experience with all types of animals at MSU. Before I started school at Morehead, the closest I'd ever been to a cow was in the grocery store," she said. Even as a small child she knew she wanted to spend her life caring for animals, she added. "I always cared for and doctored our pets which included snakes, gerbils and an alligator," she added.

"Although I grew up in a Louisville suburb, we always had animals around our house," Jansing said. "We had at least 10 dogs and cats at our house at any given time." She is the daughter of William E. Jansing Sr. and Jean Jansing.

Jansing assists the two veterinarians at the privately-owned clinic in Flemingsburg by giving shots, grooming, doing lab work and caring for animals after they have been diagnosed. She said the animals must always come first no matter what time of day they need help. "Anyone in this business has to have genuine concern for animals and not worry about getting home by 5 p.m. each day," she said.

"Obviously one of the outstanding students in our program, JoAnn has shown that she has excellent academic credentials as well as professional skills," said Dr. Donald Applegate, coordinator of MSU's Veterinary Technology Program.

"We think her achievement and that of our other spring graduates demonstrates the quality of MSU's Veterinary Technology Program," he said.

The other 13 candidates from MSU who were certified as veterinary technicians and their employers are:

- Melissa Ebert, Dayto, Grant Lick Animal Hospital; Diane E. Gausman, Tipp City, Ohio, Tipp City Animal Hospital; Melissa Hammonds, Oliver Springs, Tenn.; McArthur Animal Hospital in Oak Ridge, Tenn.; Stacy Inman, Vandalia, Ohio, The Animal Clinic in Lawrenceburg; Stacey L. Jackson, Conley, ElDorado Animal Hospital in San Antonio, Texas; Sherri A. Kaser, Mt. Sterling, Quintard Veterinary Hospital in Anniston, Ala.
- John E. Krueger, Morehead, Cherokee Hospital for Animals in Erwin, Tenn.;
- Alissa J. Liebing, Cincinnati, Ohio, Mt. Healthy Animal Hospital in Ohio; Doreen Medico, Florence, Dr. Rodney Gross in Grayson; William S. Melton, Wurtland, Colonial Animal Clinic in Flatwoods; Julie Morris, Hopkinsville, Dr. John Johnston in Springfield, Tenn.; Karen Schmook, Ashland, Great Falls Animal Hospital in Virginia; Marchia Schneider, Charlotte, N.C., Dr. J. K. Boutcher in Lexington, and Donna Wescott, Morehead, Dr. Roland Ratliff in Mt. Sterling.

Katherine Velat, Cynthiana, is working on a Bachelor of Science degree in Animal Science at Morehead State University.

MSU's Veterinary Technology Program students spend their first year of the two-year program learning basic fundamentals in areas such as radiology, hematology, and animal anatomy, Dr. Applegate explained.

In the second year, students work at MSU's Veterinary Technology Teaching Hospital at the University farm. At the hospital, the students assist two veterinarians in farm animal handling, care and medical surgery. In addition, the students also help take care of the MSU farm animals including cattle, swine, sheep and horses.

Students spend their final semester working as interns in a private veterinary practice. Graduates of the program receive an Associate of Applied Science degree qualifying them to take the National Board Examination.
JoAnn Jansing, a Morehead State University Veterinary Technology Program graduate, recently obtained the highest score on the 1986 National Board Examination for Animal Technicians. Jansing, a Louisville native, is employed by Farmers Veterinary Clinic in Flemingsburg. She is shown bandaging the leg of a calf which severely damaged its leg trying to jump over a fence.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--At the top of all fine fashions, you'll find a hat.

And behind the hat, you'll find the milliner whose designs and creations add the finishing touch to the well dressed lady.

The millinery creations of a former Morehead resident, Deane Tant, are part of an Arts and Crafts exhibit on display now during Morehead State University's 10th anniversary of its Appalachian Celebration.

The exhibit, in the Drill Room of Button Auditorium, is open for viewing from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily, through June 28.

The display includes approximately 75 hats made by Mrs. Tant and the sewing machine on which they were made, according to Shirley Hamilton, coordinator of exhibits and demonstrations for the Celebration.

"Everyone in town has worn one of her hats at one time or another, including me," said Mrs. Hamilton.

The hat, very popular in the 50s and 60s, was considered a "must" for a complete outfit. These are the original hats worn by some of the city's best dressed ladies. The designs vary and include many different styles and colors. A most unusual hat in the display is covered with coins, a loan from Sara Carr Dull.

Other Morehead residents, besides Mrs. Dull, who have contributed to the collection are Troy Burgess, Chloe Calvert, Billie Jean Clayton, Edith Crosley, Margaret Jayne, Helen Patrick, Virginia Rice and Dorothy Walter.

Mrs. Tant's love of hats started from her interest in sewing and designing clothes. In 1949, she and a friend took a course in millinery in Nashville, Tenn. When she moved to Morehead in 1952, her hats were instantly in demand. She and her husband built a new home on Wilson Avenue in 1954 and included a special room for her hat designing.

In 1956, she moved her business to 212 East Main Street in Morehead. She continued making hats through the winter season of 1967, when she turned her talents to jewelry until she sold the business in the late 1970s.

She and her husband Norman, a former faculty member at MSU, now reside in Ponce Inlet, Fla.

"We want to encourage the public to visit the Arts and Crafts exhibits that are part of the Appalachian Celebration," said Mrs. Hamilton. Additional information is available by calling the Appalachian Development Center, (606) 783-2077.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University will launch its eighth annual NCAA Youth Sports Camp on Monday, June 30.

Free to youth ages 10 to 16, the five-week camp will continue through Aug. 1 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily.

"The camp includes competition and expert instruction in swimming, football, soccer, tennis and many other sports," said Dr. Earl Bentley, chair of MSU's Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

Sponsored by the federal government and the Rowan County school system, the camp also offers an enrichment program with information on drug and alcohol abuse, nutrition and careers. Free lunches and snacks also will be provided.

"MSU's National Youth Sports Camp was the first of more than 150 camps of its kind to be held in rural areas and has been rated among the top three camps in this NCAA program," Bentley said.

Rowan County school officials also are very supportive of the camp.

"Since we provide transportation for the participants from rural areas, the camp offers more youth the opportunity to participate, making it unique," said John Brock, Rowan County Schools superintendent. "Dr. Bentley and his staff at MSU do a tremendous job with the camp. It is well organized and well run," he said.

County school buses will make runs throughout the county following the same routes as last year---specifically to each of the county schools. Parents bringing their children to MSU's Laughlin Health Building after 8:45 a.m. must pick them up by 3 p.m.

Additional information about the camp is available from Dr. Bentley by calling (606) 783-2180.
