Eagle Hopes Soar As Skirmish With Murray Nears

Tebay Rose Is Only Varsity Man Definitely Out Of Important Struggle

SPRIT OF TEAM IS FINE, JOHNSON SAYS

Morehead Victory Would Place Blue and Gold Among Nation's Unbeaten

Even the most optimistic of Morehead College football fans doubt that the Eagles, victorious in 7 straight games and among the Nation's unbeaten and undefeated, can protect their perfect record against the Murray Throughbreds there Friday.

Although Morehead is undefeated and Murray dropped its first game, comparative scores indicate that Murray is a stronger team. The Throughbreds have lost only one game in beating Tennessee Polytech by 3 touchdowns while Morehead won over the same team 9 to 6.

However, Morehead was never in any real danger in the Tennessee game. The Eagles having possession of the ball most of the time. With 6 men on the bench because of injuries they lacked their old-time scoring punch and were stopped within the 10 yard line 4 times.

What really worries Morehead is the number of injured on the team. Fourteen men are injured in some respect and unless Ellis Johnson and Len Miller walk a Houdini in patching them up Morehead will play Friday with a lineup that is more than one-half substitutes.

The question among Morehead fans is whether Murray can penetrate Morehead's defense. It is studded with substitutes. That is something that no team has ever been able to do this year. The Eagles have been outplayed by Trany and Tech. Both of those touchdowns were on blocked kicks. The Eagles have been able to hold their opponents inside the 30 yard line.

Morehead can only depend on the Blue and Gold forward wall then the decision should go to the Throughbreds. The Blue and Gold have given the best Morehead backfield. The Eagle coaches aren't fooled, however. The real power in this unbeaten team is in the backfield and in their forward wall Morehead will base most of its chances for a perfect record.

Morehead - This Week

What is mystifying the losing Democratic candidates is who to believe and who not to believe. Already it has been persons have claimed those 18 straight Democratic ballots that were cast in Morehead (courthouse) precinct number 1.

The flashing red light that is a signal for caution on the east end of Main Street has mystified many drivers to no end. Finally, a driver flagged a motorist and wanted to know "When in the heck do the lights in this town change to green?" Was his face red when it was explained that this wasn't a stop light but merely a caution signal.

Speaking of Elliott County reminds us that the people there elected Ben Henson as County Judge for the first time. His majority was only 16 votes as a result of an order, according to latest reports from Sandy Hook.

In the counting room at the courthouse here scattering returns from other counties kept seeping in. Finally came the news that the two candidates were virtually tied with only one precinct to count in Elliott County and that Harold Adkins, incumbent, was on the Democratic ticket, was on the verge of defeat. "I'll bet twenty to one that Adkins is elected County Judge," challenged a by-stander. A half dozen were ready to call that bet until someone explained it had to be an Adkins since that was the name of both candidates.

Langley Adkins was the winner, unless the re-count decides differently. The two are no relation.

The tension of counting votes, especially when two or three are tied.

Harlan Deputy Is Sought By Guards

Charged with shooting National Guardsman Roadhouse Fray

State Highway Police at Harlan, Ky., are seeking Deputy Sheriff Frank White, 23, to serve a warrant issued at Pineville charging White with assault and battery with intent to kill, in connection with the beating of Lieutenant O. J. Wilson, National Guardsman, Saturday.

Two companies of National Guards have been stationed in Harlan County since the election last Tuesday.

The alleged attack occurred at a roadside fifteen miles from here, on the Pineville Highway, in Bell County, Wilson, who is principal of the high school at Balkan, Bell County, was driving to the hospital suffering from severe head injuries. He was removed to a hospital at Barbourville later.

Capt. Ben Herndon, Barbourville, head of Company C, 149th Inf., of which Wilson was a member, said his investigation showed that Wilson was sent from Harlan to the roadside to "round up" members of the company reported to be down there.

White was one of several deputy sheriffs arrested last Tuesday at his home on Berry Ave., Harlan, on charges of interfering with the election. Those arrested are under bond pending a hearing in Harlan County Court.

The warrant, which was taken out by Harry Mart, of Blackmont, Bell County, a member of Company C, was brought here and turned over to Sergt. Clyde Jones, (Continued on Page Four)

O. T. HALL BURNED AS STEAM HOSE BURSTS

O. T. Hall, Chesapeake and Ohio railroad operator, was severely burned at his home on Berry Ave. when a rubber steam line broke throwing boiling water over him.

Doctors said that the burns would not be fatal, but were serious. He was removed to the C. & O. Hospital for treatment.

School Decision Is Reversed By Court Of Appeals Monday

Held That County Attorney Had No Power To File Action In Court

The Kentucky Court of Appeals today reversed the decision of the Rowan Circuit Court in the case of W. E. Proctor versus the Rowan County Board of Education and dissolved the injunction granted by the Court prohibiting the Sheriff from collecting taxes for the benefit of the Morehead Consolidated School fund.

In its decision the Court of Appeals held that the County Attorney was without jurisdiction in bringing the action. When the case was brought up at the October term, Judge D. H. Caudill granted a temporary restraining order prohibiting the sheriff from turning over to the Board of Education this tax money. An appeal was taken and the Board of Education is now pending an appeal to the Court of Appeals upheld reversing the Rowan Court's decision.

THE FARM AND HOME

Poison should never be put unlabeled in the home medicine chest. It is a good thing to have any kind of poison in a special shaped bottle, known to all the family—triangular, for instance. To shellac a bottle and sprinkle sand on it also makes it easily known by touch.

It women's suits are bushed thoroughly every time they are worn, they will stay in good condition longer, says the home economics department of the Kentucky College of Agriculture. Occasional vigorous cleaning will not make up for day-to-day neglect. Plan the wardrobe by the year, rather than by the season or month, in order to make the money go far. A winter coat that goes with several colors is a good buy. Get dresses that will match or blend with coats, shoes and hats already on hand.

A pint of milk a day for every adult is still a good general rule. A complete food, milk builds health and in this way offers protection against disease. Children should have quart of milk daily.

A "quick" salad recipe: Chop half for a small head of cabbage into fine bits. Grate two or three carrots and mix. Pour in a tablespoonful or two of thick cream, add mayonnaise or salad dressing, and a pinch of salt.

A big russet apple is an acceptable addition to the school lunch. The growing boy or girl will also welcome hot cocoa or milk in a thermos bottle. Salads or puddings may be placed in small pans and carried conveniently.

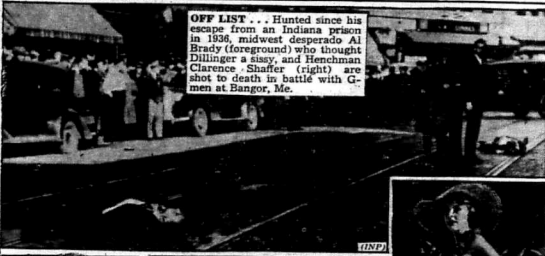

TULSA STREETS DATED

At least one of Tulsa, Okla., streets have been found "dated." While workmen were tearing up a stretch preparatory to repaving it, Traffic Officer Ned Flanning noticed a green spot in the asphalt. He dug it out with his pocket knife and found it was a 1919 nickel.

Street Superintendent John Boyd told the officer that was the year the paving was laid.

Million Spent In State By Red Cross

3,350 cases. Membership in the Junior Red Cross, one of the greatest youth movements in the world today, increased from 78,334 to 88,303 during the year. Red Cross volunteers in Chapters throughout the state transcribed more than 500 pages of Braille; Chapter accident prevention committees sponsored campaigns to reduce the appalling number of accidents in homes and on farms, and on the highways of the state 16 emergency first aid stations were set up in an effort to curb the tremendous number of deaths and injuries from automobile accidents. "These accomplishments show a marked increase over the previous year," Mrs. Wells added. "However, we have still to be met all of the needs with which we are confronted. What under this Red Cross campaign more members to share in the work we are doing. So remember the Red Cross on November 11 and greet the Red Cross worker who comes to see you with a smile—and with your membership fee."

MOREHEAD This Week . . .

(Continued from Page 1) three candidates are running almost neck and neck, is often relieved by a general laugh by the method in which some voter cast his ballot. Denver Hall, school teacher, whose name didn't even appear on the ballot was apparently elected commissioner of precinct 4, where there was neither a Democrat nor a Republican nominee, as two persons in Brushy No. 6 precinct wrote his name in. Hall declined the position but thanked the people for the nice majority that they gave him.

In the rural precincts there is a system used by voters when they hit the wrong square or circle that is unique. Instead of calling for a new ballot they generally put the stencil mark out with a pocket-knife and then vote as they originally intended. The ballot is valid.

Buddy Keaton received two votes for Representative when his name was written in. Bill Layne had a like number. Although practically all Democrats and Republicans alike voted for him in his home precinct at Pine Grove, Bunk Evans, Democratic nominee for Magistrate, could not hold up under the decided Republican trend elsewhere and lost to E. F. Reed by 12 votes.

Alby Hardin had almost conceded defeat when he was 94 votes behind and only one precinct (Morehead 19) to count. He carried that ward by 121 votes. Marvin Adkins his opponent, was the first to tell Hardin that he was the winner and congratulated him. Adkins proved to be one of the best losers of all, although Hardin's majority was only 27 votes.

In precinct 18 one man slipped the ink pad, instead of the stencil, on the rooster. After some deliberation the commissioners counted it as a straight Democratic ballot.

Reports to the contrary the CCC camp located at Rodburn is apparently here to stay. People of Rowan County should feel thankful for this since the camp not only brings local business but is, in itself, a protection against forest fires, which for many years destroyed our timber.

Tenants Ask Loans To Purchase Farms

(Continued from Page 1) has recommended counties where the tenant purchase loans will be made this year. Meanwhile there are sufficient funds to meet all immediate needs in the county in the way of rehabilitation loans to qualified farm families without adequate commercial credit for necessary livestock, feed, seed and farm equipment. Simple service loans to small groups are also available where group purchase of such items as pure bred sires or heavy equipment will economically serve as an aid to improved farm practices. The services of voluntary farm debt adjustment committees are available to all farmers in the county, Mr. Cobb said.

Harlan Deputy Is Sought By Guards

White's name figured prominently in the LaFollette Senate Civil Liberties committee investigations in Washington last spring. Hugh Taylor, 4 former deputy, testified before that body that White and another deputy had shot him and left him for dead because he knew too much."

APPLE GROWERS PLAN ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN

The apple growers of British Columbia, who for the past few years have been making a concerted effort to create a demand for their product in the Prairie Provinces, and especially in Manitoba, have perfect plans for conducting an advertising campaign. The expenses of the campaign, which will extend for a period of three months, will be $10,000, which will include newspaper advertising, radio and posters. A dietitian will be employed to give recipes for attractive ways to utilize apples. In addition to the $10,000 furnished by the growers, shippers, and lobbers, an additional $2,500 has been appropriated by two large retail chain grocery stores in western Canada.

THE STORE SALES SHOW BIG GAIN

Daily average sales of variety stores for September were about 10 per cent above September 1936 and higher for any like month since 1929. As compared with August of this year sales for September increased 10 per cent or more than the usual seasonal amount. The total value of sales to the first nine months of the year was about five per cent above that for the corresponding period of 1936.

APPLESAUCE AND PORK

Cook six apples, cored, pared and quartered. Add a cup of sweet cider, one slice of lemon, a little salt, one-half teaspoon of maple-sine, a little butter and a little nutmeg. When the apples are tender pass through a sieve. Scoop out a thick piece from the stem of six red ripe apples after the pulp and fill the cups with the apple sauce, replacing the covers. Serve with roast pork that has been baked at least two hours in a moderate oven.

SOVIET REPUBLIC BUYS $21,568,000 FROM U. S.

Soviet trade with the United States during the first six months of this year amounted to approximately $23,034,400, of which imports from the United States amounted to approximately $21,568,000, or about $110,000 more than exports to this country.

THE FARM AND HOME

Dry mash mixture for laying hens, recommended by the Kentucky College of Agriculture, consists of ground wheat feed, 300 pounds; ground corn, 100 pounds; meat scrap or tankage, 100 pounds; salt, 5 pounds. Rice cooked in milk, or in a mixture of half milk and half water, has a creamy consistency, a pleasing, delicate flavor and a higher food value than when cooked in water alone. Combined with fruits, spices or chopped nuts, it makes a good dessert. Storage places for vegetables require ventilation. It is especially important for "cool" vegetables in the fall, and to prevent sweating of "warm" vegetables. Vegetables tend to rot following sweating. A pocket knife or pruning shears are used by most farmers to trim the feet of sheep. Feet should be examined three or four times a year. This can be done best when the sheep are corralled for shearing, drenching or culling. Next to falls, burns cause most accidents in the home. Outstanding sources of burns include starting fires with kerosene or gasoline, carelessness in handling boiling water, and the use of irons.

INCREASE IN AUGUST

Sales of confectionery and chocolate products in August were valued at $16,202,746 as compared with $15,352,345 in the corresponding month of 1936, an increase of 5.5 per cent. Sales during the May-August summer season were valued at $61,796,981 compared with $56,129,456 in the corresponding four-month period of 1936, an increase of 10.1 per cent.

Kentucky's Democratic Party did right well for itself in the November 2 election. Several Republican Strongholds, which had in the past, withstood all invasions since the party's inception, are now flying the Democratic Banner for the first time in history. It sums up simply to this that when the Democratic Assembly convenes at the State House in Frankfort early in January 1938, to ponder over statutes and such, there will be 75 Democrats and 25 Republicans. Last year the Democrats numbered 66 in the House and 23 in the Senate. The question now is "How many members in the new General Assembly will be Democrats?" That's another easy question. There are enough that the Administration need not fear. There will be no less than 60 members of the House and 24 Senate members on the side of the Governor. And for the first time in a quarter century the Governor of this Commonwealth can say that his side controlled both sessions of Legislature during his tenure of office. Hubert Meredith did the fanciest piece of running that has ever been done in the state, to win the Attorney Generalship. His margin of victory, was over 100,000 over his Republican opponent. It was an all time high. . . . even better than the high margin established by Governor Chandler in 1935. . . . This mark is more remarkable in that fewer voters went to the polls in this general election than did in 1935. . . .

Another toll bridge was added to the Highway Department's collection during the week. . . . The Milton-Madison span over the Ohio River 12 miles below Carrollton has been purchased for approximately $915,000. . . . This was a bargain considering that the bridge cost $1,750,000. . . . The bridge is less than 8 years old and is in good condition. . . . Upon announcing purchase of the bridge Robert Humphreys, Highway Commissioner said that under the present set-up it would pay for itself in 7 1/2 years and would be freed. . . . This is the only bridge over the Ohio between Cincinnati and Louisville.

Last week the voters went to the polls and showed great disapproval of two Constitutional amendments. . . . They didn't want them. . . . At the same time the original constitution of the State was being sent back to the Commonwealth's archives where it is hoped that it will forever rest. . . . The State's original Constitution has been romping around under chaperage other than that of Kentucky since, nobody knows when. . . . It is said to have disappeared early in this century, maybe about 1909. . . . Just exactly where it went or what the circumstances of its disappearance is still a mystery. . . . Some say that it was lost during the moving of documents from the "Old State House in North Frankfort to the New Capitol in South Frankfort. . . . It apparently turned up at the University of Chicago and was brought back from there. . . .

Mr. James W. Martin, Commissioner of Revenue has announced a thorough reorganization of the Revenue Department. . . . He has been working for almost a year on plans for the reorganization and has so worked them out that the functions of the department has co-ordinated that none overlap. . . . Revenue Collections from all sources formerly handled by different ones in various sections of the Capitol building have been fixed so that all receipts will be delivered to the same department. (Continued on Page Five)

To My Friends I wish to thank you for your confidence and vote in the general election. Although honestly and fairly beaten, I shall not forget your help. To Mr. B. F. McBrayer I want to extend congratulations and best wishes for his success as your Sheriff. Respectfully, DAN PARKER

Red Cross Observes Nursing Anniversary

1937 Marks 25th Year of Public Health Nursing in Rural Areas

"Prior to inauguration of the Red Cross Town and Country nursing service in 1912, no national effort was made to bring nursing to the rural school," James L. Flemer, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations for the American Red Cross, said today in commenting on the silver anniversary of Red Cross public health nursing. . . In a plea for an increased membership during the coming Red Cross annual Roll Call held from November 11th to the 15th, Mr. Flemer pointed out that Red Cross rural nursing rounds out 25 years of continuous service to this day. "It is essential activities such as this which the American people support through membership," he said. . . In 1912, Jacob Schiff, banker and head resident of the Henry Street Settlement in New York City, proposed that the American Red Cross join in the field of rural nursing. Public health nurses were active in urban districts but no similar provision had been made to guard the health of the rural dweller. Miss Wald felt that the Red Cross was best qualified for the undertaking through its long experience in converting humanitarian ideals into practical accomplishments. . . Two years later the first Red Cross rural nurse set forth upon her rounds in a country in Massachusetts. Jacob Schiff, member of the Red Cross Board of Incorporators, and Mrs. Whitlaw Reid each contributed funds to start the project. Special courses of training for nurses resulted in young women who thoroughly knew the mechanics of this new job. . . By 1918 there were 100 rural nursing services conducted by Red Cross chapters. In 15 months later the number of services had skyrocketed to 4,000, as the signing of the Armistice released a flood of War nurses for peacetime duty. "Reorganization and consolidation eventually cut the number of public health nurses serving under the Red Cross flag," Mr. Flemer stated. "But as a group their efficiency increased." Mr. Flemer called attention to a study of Red Cross public health nursing accomplishments since the service was begun. "Statistics show that in all nearly 3,000 services were established by the Red Cross," he said. "During the past 15 years 5,000 public health nurses were assigned to chapters, and a total of 15,000,000 visits were made to or in behalf of patients." "Each year during the past 11, more than 440,000 rural school children have been found to have physical defects. Each year 185,000 of these children were helped through treatment." At the present time there are 696 Red Cross public health nurses engaged in health work in rural communities, and last year more than 1,000,000 visits were made on behalf of the sick. "It has been our purpose from the first," Mr. Flemer emphasized, "to demonstrate that rural nursing was a service to the community, not an authority. When this was done, we turned our effort toward opening up additional virgin territory. . . Under Red Cross services supported by Roll Call memberships are life-saving, first aid, disaster relief and the kind of organized Red Cross volunteers. . . Labor's advocacy of the Red Cross program is evidenced by recent statements from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America. "Red Cross aims and purposes are highly commendable and deserving of the support of all classes of people," said Mr. Green. "The service of the American Red Cross satisfies a great need of the people, and I strongly urge that it receive the enthusiastic support of all during its annual Roll Call for members," Mr. Lewis said.

In a report to Commissioner Frederick A. Wallis, State Department of Welfare, Dr. J. M. Waters, Director of the Division of Corrections, who has just returned from a tour of the session attended the Sixty-seventh Annual Congress of the American Prison Association, stated that the Kentucky program for rehabilitation of state institutions was the subject of favorable comment on several occasions during the session. Reference was made by speakers, who addressed the congress, and in discussions to the modernized attitude of this State toward correctional measures tending to a progressive rehabilitation, he said. According to Dr. Waters, the association advocated as necessary to best results in prison supervision: the classification of prisoners through the use of psychology and psychiatry, the segregation of inmates by institutions, the rehabilitation of prisoners through re-education, medical and psychiatric treatment, and a closely supervised parole and probation system. Dr. Waters and H. B. Bastin, superintendent of the Jefferson County Children's Home, were elected as members of the board of directors of the association.

The Business Outlook Notwithstanding reports of "spotty" business in some segments of the country consistent gains over the same period of a year ago have been shown in the Louisville trading area—the Kentucky territory—reports to its Louisville District Office made weekly to the Department of Commerce at Washington. For almost a year each week has recorded average retail and wholesale gains over comparable weeks of 1936, and only once or twice in that period have bank clearings failed to register increases. The closing days of October and the first few days of November brought a mixed trend in retail trade for the first time in several weeks, according to reports to the Department from 37 key cities. In some 15 important cities business slumped compared with the same time last year, while an equal number reported a good week and substantial increases over the comparable 1936 period. Wholesale trade, under the influence of the generally cautious buying demand which has been evident recently, was somewhat better. The general situation was well optimized in the report from New York which said: "It must be borne in mind that comparisons are now directed against a period of last year when business was abnormally high due to the double fear of rapidly rising prices and shortage of goods. Business in many lines is still more than good, but the majority reflected nervousness that is hard to isolate. . . The confidence, which was hard hit by the stock market decline and the subsequent easing in steel and other heavy industrial lines has yet to return in any great volume. Meanwhile, merchants are concentrating more on getting stocks within more manageable limits than on pressing for new business through a variety of merchandise." Louisville reported retail sales, although moderate, showed again of 4 to 12 per cent over the same period last year. Wholesale trade, though slowed down, was 8 to 15 per cent above same time a year ago. Bank clearing were 11.7 per cent over same week last year.

PARNELL

SYNOPSIS: The night that Gladstone had a dream is called Charles Stewart Parnell that he would announce his sponsorship of a Home Rule Bill for Ireland. Captain Willie O'Shea sees for divorce from his estranged wife, Katie, whom he had induced to receive and entertain Parnell for his political ambitions, naming Parnell as co-respondent. Katie asks her husband to withdraw the suit; she will pay the price of remaining his wife. Her Aunt Ben offers to settle 20,000 pounds on Willie, but the matter is out of his hands; it has become a political weapon against Parnell. The latter refuses to fight the divorce suit or let Katie fight it.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

A DISCREDITED LEADER
On the morning following the Court's granting of a divorce to Captain Willie O'Shea, his former wife, Katie, sat at the breakfast table, staring miserably at the newspaper in her hand.
"Aunt Ben," she appealed to Mrs. Wood as she entered the breakfast room, "the papers—do you have you seen them? Listen to what Mr. Gladstone says. The conclusion at which I have arrived is that, notwithstanding the splendid services rendered by Mr. Parnell to his country, his continuance in the leadership would be productive of consequences as disastrous in the highest degree to the cause of Ireland. Aunt Ben, that's what he's been holding up his sleeve—the word like this, Charles must have known that it was coming. That is why he stayed in town last night."
"I'm going to town. I've got to know what is happening to him. After you've stayed away from this while from London." From the House of Commons, the public gaze.
"But they're trying to depose him. . . I'll go by train. It's quicker."
In the parlor of the Irish Party's committee room she found Michael Davitt and Parnell's sec-

"Then we are ready for discussion on what steps must be taken to insure a safe majority for the Home Rule Bill."
"There are other matters to come up before that," interrupted an excited voice.

Salyersville Cop Slain

The slaying of Police Chief Lewis Marshall at Salyersville as he attempted to place a prisoner in the county jail resulted this week in the assignment of State police to this small Eastern Kentucky town at the request of Commonwealth's Attorney Earl R. Cooper.
A detachment of five headed by Lieut. J. S. Harrison took Cooper along with enforcement after the resignation of the late Chief in Frankfort the town was "getting out of hand."
Cooper was joined in the plea by Mayor Wallace Bailey and Police Judge Lacy Marshall after the resignation of Patrolman Obe Bailey, young son of the Mayor, left Salyersville without a police force. Bailey's resignation was not explained.

GERMAN IMPORTS OF U. S. TOBACCO DECLINE

American tobacco arrivals into Bremen during the first eight months of 1937 amounting to 4,315,000 pounds registered a 33 per cent decline as against 10,356,360.
It was pointed out, however, that the imports of American tobacco were abnormally high due to the efforts of the Bremen importers to secure as much American tobacco as possible in anticipation of new barter regulations by the German Government.
Transactions in the Virginia type of Japanese tobacco on the Bremen markets in August continued the increase shown in the preceding months, as a result of the inability of Bremen importers to obtain the American product by barter.

GREEKS TRAINED TO TREAT TOURISTS BETTER

The Greek Government recently opened a Tourist Training School to teach hotel management and educate generally the employees of private tourist bureaus and of the government departments dealing with tourists.
The Prime Minister, who spoke at the opening of the school, pointed out that there is no better way for a nation to gain sympathy and understanding abroad than through the treatment accorded foreign tourists, that Greece must build up a hotel tradition similar to that of other nations.
"State police were not requested because of anticipated trouble," said Commonwealth's Attorney Cooper, "but merely because they were without a police department."
After the chief was shot the Sheriff said Salyer dodged inside the door on the jail's second floor. There were no other prisoners on the floor and Sheriff Cooper locked the door to allow the still-armed farmer to "cool off."
It was not for several hours that officers discovered he had been wounded. They found him unconscious on the floor.
Chief Marshall, 50, was married and had two married daughters.

World-consumption of cork is apparently exceeding production. All the world's supply of cork (approximately 250,000 tons annually) is grown in the 5,000,000 acres of cork oak forests bordering the Mediterranean Sea with Portugal supplying almost half of the total production. The United Kingdom, The United States, and France are listed as the leading importers of cork and cork products accounting for over half of the $25,000,000 annual foreign trade.
Since the cork oak is not grown in the United States in commercial quantities it imports 90,000 tons of cork bark, wood, waste, refuse and shavings each year, chiefly from Portugal, Spain, Algeria, and Tunisia. During 1936 imports were valued at $4,570,000.

"But they're trying to depose him. . . I'll go by train. It's quicker."
In the parlor of the Irish Party's committee room she found Michael Davitt and Parnell's secretary, and Katie went swiftly to him.
"Darling, forgive me, but I had to come. He drew her to his office and shut the door. "Charles," she began, "do you hate me terribly for doing this to you?"
"Hate you? From the first moment I saw you, I knew I loved you. In that moment my destiny was sealed. No matter what happens, I know that we must be together always, in this world or any world to come. That's my destiny beyond all other-ours!"
"You can still say that!" Tears threatened to fall.
He kissed her. "I shall always say it. But now you must go. The Party's gathering for a meeting."
"I'll wait for you at home, Charles."
"I may be late."
"However late, please come—to-night."
He promised, and then entered the committee room from which the sound of loud, raging voices burst again through the opened door.
"Would you trust your country to a man whom you wouldn't trust your wife?" shouted an angry voice.
"We're fighting a political war," cried another. "A soldier doesn't stop in the middle of a battle to ask if the General has broken any of the ten commandments."
"A political leader has no private life," answered another. "He dreamt still mocks us. Who lost it for us?"
"No, Parnell," another replied. "Gladstone," another replied.
"Parnell will not resign on Mr. Gladstone's say so."
Their leader advanced among them. After hiding them good evening he called upon Redmond and Healy to report on the intervention with Gladstone. Redmond reported they had seen the Liberal chief.

By two and three, more than half the men left the room.

LIVESTOCK TO AID TOBACCO FARMERS
Farmers from 14 counties, attending a planning conference at Elkton, Todd county, decided to supplement tobacco growing with more livestock. Tobacco will be continued as the principal cash crop, with emphasis on better quality, but with no increase in production.
With more land in hay and pasture, as a result of the agricultural conservation program, the farmers thought they should have more cattle and sheep. There will be no increase in hogs or dairy cattle, since it was deemed unwise to produce more corn and other feed grains.

Practice Of Collecting Toll On State Owned Bridges Scored By Retail Merchants Group

Members of the Kentucky Merchants Association, at their annual meeting Tuesday at the Brown Hotel, elected James W. Smith, Campbellville, president.

Directors named for the 8th Congressional District are: C. H. Parsons, Ashland, Vice-president; H. H. Wheeler, Ashland; E. H. Scott, Ashland; U. McCall Richey, Augusta; H. H. Cooksey, Grayson; V. T. Cunningham, Jackson; Martha T. Manning, Maysville; O. F. Botts, Owensville; Ben Scott, Mt. Sterling; J. J. Walsh, Mt. Sterling; H. G. Bustin, Cyrtusiana; Roscoe Brong, West Liberty.

Following a talk by Henry Ward, Paducah, who urged that toll bridges in Kentucky be freed as soon as possible, the merchants adopted the following resolution: Whereas it has been demonstrated that the building and maintaining of highways is a public function that should be exercised by governmental agencies and that the old system of toll-gates on highways violated a principle that has now been firmly established as just, right, and

Whereas we believe that a bridge which spans a river or smaller stream is by much a part of the highway system, a culvert or a cut through a hill or mountain should be treated as such, and

Whereas the existence of numerous toll bridges within the State of Kentucky and across the Ohio River have served to prevent this state from progressing and developing as rapidly as it should by acting as barriers that prevent normal trade and commerce, and the duties of employers under the Social Security Act. The office of the Social Security Board in the State Building, Louisville, are at the disposal of anyone seeking information regarding the Act.

Mr. R. J. McKim, a Director of the Association, who has just returned from a trip to Europe, discussed European methods of merchandising as compared with the American system.

Many of the merchants present complained that due to tardiness on the part of the State Highway Commission in paying employees of the Commission, the merchants were being forced to engage in unprofitable and undesirable credit extensions, and the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Whereas employees of the State Highway Department are suffering great hardship and inconvenience on account of delay in receiving their pay checks, and

Whereas this tardiness on the part of the State Highway Department makes it necessary in many instances for the merchants of the State to engage in unprofitable and undesirable credit extensions,

Therefore be it resolved that we, the Kentucky Merchants Association, request the State Highway Department to pay their employees promptly at the end of each release period.

Be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be addressed to the Hon. Robert Hume, Chairman of the State Highway Commission, and that a copy be given the press of the State for publication.

Whereas it was well attended by merchants from every section of Kentucky.

Goodman Reviews Record Of W. P. A. Accomplishments Since He Took Office Are Pointed Out In Report

Reviewing his administration of the Works Progress Administration in Kentucky since its beginning in July 1935, George H. Goodman, in a report submitted to the State, shows an expenditure of $43,653,087.71, the bulk of which has gone for cumulative payments to the State. Of the total amount expended, the report shows, $20,323,011.05 was contributed by local sponsors or projects and the remainder by the Federal Government.

The peak load of the Works Progress Administration in Kentucky occurred in February 1936, when 57,175 workers were employed. Exceeding for drought relief in the summer of 1936 and for flood relief, according to the report, has been downward and back into the normal channels of industry.

The entire cost of administering the Works Progress Administration's program has been $1,871,922.71, or 4.3 per cent of the total expenditures. This percentage the report indicates, includes personal services and all other expenses except those of the Federal Government and is based on both Federal and State expenditures.

In answer to a question as to "just what the people of Kentucky have gotten for the expenditure of $43,653,087.71," Mr. Goodman pointed to a table in his report which shows that $24,140,157 went for highways, roads and streets, Public Buildings, account for $5,849,514; parks and other recreational facilities, $916,715; conservation, $395,172; sewer systems and other utilities, $2,444,573; airports and other transportation, $150,959; while collar workers, $4,378,002; similar endeavors, $2,357,267; goods, used in sewing rooms in each county, $4,378,002; sanitation and health, $1,091,327; miscellaneous, including a greater portion of flood expenditures, $2,139,011.

Still another tabulation in the report throws additional light upon the benefits of the State as derived from the Works Progress Administration. A total of 29,583 workers were employed on highways, roads and streets, representing 62.4 of the total workers. Public buildings accounted for 5.12, or 10.8 per cent; parks and other recreational facilities 502, or 1.1 percent; conservation 152, or 4 per cent; sewer systems and other utilities 2,450, or 5.1 per cent; airports and other transportation 35, or 1.1 percent; while collar projects 2,059, or 4.4 per cent; goods, 5,785, or 12.2 per cent; sanitation 152, or 1.1 per cent; and miscellaneous, including food, 923 or 1.9 per cent.

While the purpose of the Works Progress Administration has been one of relief, Mr. Goodman said, it has left behind a clear trail of permanent and valuable improvements and has sent the State forward many years over a very short period of time. Of the $36,847,786.22 expended by the Federal Government, exclusive of sponsors contributions of $7,305,321.95, the report shows that actually 67.3 per cent went into the pockets of needy wage earners and thence immediately into trade channels in the State. Non-relief labor accounted for only 10.7 per cent while other expenses (materials, supplies, etc., was 22 per cent).

The report verifies the fact that there has been a steady exodus from relief lists and that a steady employment since February 1936 when the Works Progress Administration had a payroll covering 67,175 workers. By June 1, 1937 that number had been reduced to 47,364. On September 1, 1937, 37,499 persons certified for relief were employed on WPA projects in Kentucky.

When Kentucky faced the flood emergency early this year, the report shows, the Works Progress Administration threw its entire force into the relief work. The effectiveness of a smoothly operating organization was apparent in every phase of flood relief work. Mr. Goodman said that seven counties in the State, the report shows, saw Works Progress Administration workers at one end and endeavor and spend $2,197,445.70 until the emergency was at an end.

Wildlife In Kentucky

By Lucy Furman In the preceding article, we took up the Rodent Destroyers, principal ones of which we saw, red fox, mink, opossum, and mousing hawks, and skunk destroyers. The foremost natural destroyers of insects are the birds. "The digestion of birds," says Dr. Franklouser, "is so rapid that they can eat almost constantly. The number of insect pests fed to young birds is almost unbelievable, and the adults are voracious eaters in the stomach of a raincrow were found over 200 caterpillars; in that of a cedar waxwing, 100 caterpillars; of a chickadee, nearly 500 plant lice; of a nighthawk or bullbat, 40 grasshoppers; of a flicker, 1,000 chinch bugs; a scarlet tanager was seen to eat 630 gypsy-moth caterpillars in 18 minutes, a yellow-throat, 3,500 plant lice in 30 minutes. The army worm has 43 different bird enemies, the chinch-bug 24, codling moth, 36, bill-bugs 27, cutworms 28, potato-bug 28, white grub 67, and so on."

Every common bird—robin, catbird, thrasher, mocker, cardinal, bluebird, phoebe, swallow, wren, meadow-lark, quail, dove, is available to some extent, working all day long for the farmer, destroying his enemies. But what is his response? He first cuts away all their favored cover, such as every tree, bush, briar, vine, and weed, and his fence-rocks, coal-creeper, and other obstructions and when the birds seek refuge in his orchard and nearby home, he permits every nearby small boy and roving polliwog, to shoot at them at all times, and worst of all, turns loose upon them a family of cats, to climb the trees nights and eat up all the young, and watch for busy adults during the day (each house cat is reported to eat at least 50 birds during a year, and each stray cat many more). Is it any wonder, then, with this criminal indifference, the birds of the United States have now decreased to two to the acre, and that, in Kentucky, 50 per cent of our birds have disappeared in the past 20 years.

The other great insect destroyer is the skunk, wonderfully fitted by nature to hear and smell, many inches down in the ground, the harmful grubs that the birds cannot reach, and to dig them out before they can come up and multiply, as well as to catch the perfected insects after they emerge. The Skunk has been the object of much prejudice because the first settlers in America, solely on account of its bad odor. Mistake! named it after the European polecat, who, nevertheless, a vicious little beast that lives upon poultry and birds. In vain biologists have long told us that the skunk is nothing like the polecat—that it is gentle, friendly, slow, never throws its scent unless attacked, and is so heavy and clumsy that it cannot climb a wall, but must get all its food from the ground; that it seldom or never kills poultry, or robs game-bird nests.

The recent Michigan researches have not proved all this. In all barnyard skunk stomachs, not one trace of a game-bird egg was found, and the entire percentage of birds and poultry was only 2 per cent of its ration, and, as it loves carrion, might well have been thrown-away parts of fowls in the barnyard if it frequents. The skunk is the best single enemy of the army worm, locust grasshopper, cutworm, tomato worm, hopworm, white grub, tobacco, grasshopper, cricket, sphynx-moth, many caterpillars. It is the only destroyer of the tobacco worm except the turkey, not only digging the grub, but picking the worm off the plants as high up as it can eat. The hop growers of New York have had it protected by law there for some time in their fields. It should be protected everywhere—taken off the list of pests and put on the farm protective list along with the song-birds.

The other valuable insect destroyer is the shrike, which has been used by millions of American women who want young-looking hair. NEW LIME AND MARL RECORD MAY BE SET Reports received at the College of Agriculture at Lexington indicate that all records in the applications of limestone and marl may be broken by Kentucky farmers this year. Last year approximately a million tons of lime materials were used in the state, and more spread per crop than in any other state.

A large amount of marl will be used this year, according to county agents. Two thousand farms in 32 counties spread 75,000 tons of marl last year. In Henderson county 8,000 tons were used.

According to S. C. Jones of the college, marl beds loose up like deposits of rich ore on thousands of Kentucky farms, providing ready supplies of liming material. He says that marl is available to at least 50,000 farms in this state. In many counties farmers are spreading marl themselves, at no cash outlay. Allowances in the agricultural conservation program are $2.50 an acre where three tons of marl are spread. In addition, the farmer who spreads marl or limestone prepares his land for increased crop yields.

In tests which the Agricultural Experiment Station made over the state, applications of lime, when made in connection with phosphate, increased crop returns as much as $7 an acre the first year, and larger production will continue for years as a result of the soil treatment.

NEW AUTO SALES SHOW BIG GAIN FOR AUGUST

Retail sales of new passenger automobiles showed a very marked increase from July to August, according to a recent commerce report. Sales in August were 20 per cent above August 1936, and 39 per cent greater than in August 1935.

The aggregate value for the first eight months of this year was about 10 per cent above that for the corresponding period of last year and about 37 per cent higher than the first eight months of 1935.

SYNOPSIS: The night the Gladstone had promised Charles Stewart Parnell that he would assume his sponsorship of a Home Rule Bill for Ireland, Captain Willie O'Shea sues for divorce from his estranged wife, Katie, whom he had induced to receive and entertain Parnell for his political ambitions, naming Parnell as co-respondent. Katie asks her husband to withdraw the suit: she will pay the price of remaining his wife. Her Aunt Ben offers to settle 30,000 pounds on Willie, but the matter is out of his hands; it has become a political weapon against Parnell. The latter refuses to fight the divorce suit or let Katie fight it.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

A DISCRETIONARY LEADER

On the morning following the Court's granting of a divorce to Captain Willie O'Shea, his former wife, Katie, sat at the breakfast table, staring morosely at the newspaper in her hand.

"Aunt Ben," she appealed to Mrs. Wood as she entered the breakfast room, "do you think you have seen them? Listen to what Mr. Gladstone says. The commission at which I have arrived is that, notwithstanding the splendid services rendered by Mr. Parnell to his country, his continuance in the leadership would be productive of consequences disastrous in the highest degree to the cause of Ireland. Aunt Ben, that's what he's been holding up his sleeve—the bombshell, published to the world like this. Charles must have known that it was coming. That is why he stayed in town last night. . . . I'm going to town. I've got to know what is happening to him."

"After you've stayed away all this while from London? From the House of Commons, the public gaze. . . ."

"But they're trying to deposit him! . . . I'll go by train. It's quicker. . . ."

In the anteroom of the Irish Party's committee room she found Michael Davitt and Parnell's sec-

"Then we are ready for discussion of what steps must be taken to insure a safe majority for the Home Rule Bill."

"There are other matters to come up before that," interrupted an excited voice.

"That remark is out of order. . . ."

"I conceived the idea of an Irish Party welded into one complete whole—all the different factions of Ireland fighting together for Ireland's freedom. Our party oath is to 'sit together, vote together, and stand together'—a common front to all opposition and we have for victory. You elected me leader of that party—have given me absolute loyalty and obedience. We showed the Liberals our importance and in return Mr. Gladstone promised us Home Rule. Now for personal reasons, which I will not discuss here. . . ."

"That's what we're here to discuss," a voice interrupted. "Personal reasons?"

"Mr. Parnell," spoke up a timid voice, "if you, as leader of the party, are the stumbling block to Home Rule, don't you think, for the sake of the Party you should resign?"

"Amal cries of encouragement and counter cries of 'Shame!' and 'Never!' Parnell's calm voice made itself heard.

"It is in entire agreement with you, Mr. Gladstone demands my resignation. Through Mr. Redmond and Mr. Healy I have received that he will give us his assurance that he will continue to support Home Rule. Mr. Healy will tell us the real of your resignation."

"Mr. Gladstone," responded Healy, "assures us of his hearty desire that Ireland should have Home Rule."

"Will he support it? Did he promise it?" demanded Davitt.

"He told us our first business was to choose a leader. . . ."

"If I resign, will you support it?" demanded Davitt.

"He did not. How could he? How can he traffic with a Party whose leader has disgraced them and their country? What favors can we expect?"

"We're just we're asking, and you're crying out Davitt, are going to resign?" cried Davitt.

"A fine thing you put up Tim Healy," said an admulatory member. "You and Gladstone run all around you."

"Home Rule—that's what we'll get," shouted Healy.

"Do you really think that?" asked Parnell. "Do you think that Mr. Gladstone or the Liberal Party burning with desire to see Ireland? I remember the long struggle to get the alliance we have today."

"There's no alliance any more. It perished in the stench of the divorce court," said Healy.

"The remark that followed his words was quieted by Parnell. 'Gentlemen, this disturbance is not the issue which should be clouded by personal hate or loyalty, nor by moral scruples. Ireland's welfare must be your sole consideration.'

"And it is," interrupted Michael Davitt forcefully.

"It is the weapon you'll need now more than ever," continued their leader. "If you think you can fight Mr. Gladstone without me, that is for you to decide. But don't sell me for nothing. If you surrender me, it is your bounden duty to get me for me. I give you my word that I will get it for you if you'll let me."

"And if you don't meet another Katie O'Shea!" cried a red-faced member. Amid the tangle, this raised, Parnell sprang at the man and knocked him down with a terrific blow to his chin. That exertion did something to Parnell's body; he staggered back, his hand pressed against his side.

"Parnell will never get Home Rule," cried Healy. "All he can get is a byword and always will be. The Irish people shall know the issues in this matter, and I'll not shrink the telling!"

"Go to the people, as I shall do," responded Parnell. "The people of Ireland have never failed me. On their answer I'll stand or fall."

"I take the challenge," said Healy. "From tonight there's a new Irish Party. Those who are with me, who have the honor of Ireland at heart, who'd have a new party and a new leader, follow me."

By twos and threes, more than half the men left the room.

 TOBACCO FARMERS

Farmers from 14 counties, attending a planning conference at Elkton, Todd county, decided to supplement tobacco growing with more livestock. Those who will be content as the principal cash crop, with emphasis on better quality, but with no increase in production.

With more land in hay and pasture, as a result of the agricultural conservation program, the farmers thought they should have more cattle and sheep. There will be no increase in hogs or dairy cattle, since it was deemed unwise to produce more corn and other feed grains.

Salyersville Cop Slain

The slaying of Police Chief Lewis Marshall at Salyersville as he attempted to place a prisoner in the county jail resulted this week in the assignment of State police to this small Eastern Kentucky town at the request of Commonwealth's Attorney Earl R. Cooper.

A detachment of five headed by Lieut. J. S. Harbison took charge of law enforcement after Cooper told Ad. General Lee McClain in Frankfort the town was "getting out of hand."

Mayor Wallace Bailey and Police Judge Lacy Marshall after the resignation of Patrolman Otis Bailey, young son of the Mayor, left Salyersville without a police force.

Bailey's resignation was not explained.

Another development was the revelation that Waley Salyers, about 50, the man Chief Marshall had arrested on a complaint he was drunk and disorderly, also was wounded when Marshall was shot to death.

He is in a Paintsville Hospital and attaches said he was not expected to live. He suffered a gunshot wound in the abdomen. No effort was made to question him.

"State police were not requested because of anticipated trouble," said Commonwealth's Attorney Cooper, "but merely because we are without a police department."

After the chief was shot the Sheriff said Salyer dodged inside the door on the jail's second floor. There were no other prisoners on the floor and Sheriff Cooper locked the door to allow the still-armed farmer to "cool off."

It was not for several hours that officers discovered he had been wounded. They found him unconscious on the floor.

Chief Marshall, 50, was married and had two married daughters.

GERMAN IMPORTS OF U. S. TOBACCO'S DECLINE

American tobacco arrivals into Bremen during the first eight months of 1937 amounting to 4,854,130 pounds registered a 33 per cent decline as against 10,356,360.

It was pointed out, however, that the imports of American tobacco were abnormally high due to the efforts of the Bremen importers to secure as much American tobacco as possible in anticipation of new barter regulations by the German Government.

Transactions in the Virginia type of Japanese tobacco on the Bremen markets in August continued the increase shown in the preceding months as a result of the inability of Bremen importers to obtain the American product by barter.

GREEKS TRAINED TO TREAT TOURISTS BETTER

The Greek Government recently opened a Tourist Trade Training School to teach hotel management and educate generally the employees of private tourist bureaus and of the government departments dealing with tourists.

The Prime Minister, who spoke at the opening of the school, pointed out that there is no better way for a nation to gain sympathy and understanding abroad than through the treatment accorded foreign tourists.

Greece must build up a hotel tradition similar to that of other nations.

THE PRICE OF FUR COATS?

The Alaska fur-sel herd which in 1910 contained only 130,000 animals is rapidly reaching a state of complete restoration, according to a Department of Commerce report from the Fisheries Bureau.

The annual computation of the herd showed that a total of 1,231,119 animals on August 10, 1937, as compared with 1,689,786 for the preceding year, an increase of 8.84 per cent.

During this period of restoration 766,792 fur-sel skins have been taken from surplus male animals and sold for the account of the Government. The total take of such skins in the current year was $5,180, an increase of 5 per cent over 1936.

U. S. IMPORTS A LOT OF CORK EVERY YEAR

World consumption of cork is apparently exceeding production. All the world's supply of cork (approximately 250,000 tons annually) is grown in the 5,000,000 acres of cork oak forests bordering the Mediterranean Sea with Portugal supplying almost half of the total production. The United Kingdom, the United States and France are listed as the leading importers of cork and cork products accounting for over half of the $25,000,000 annual foreign trade.

Since the cork oak is not grown in the United States in commercial quantities it imports 90,000 tons of cork bark, wood, waste, refuse and shavings each year, chiefly from Portugal, Spain, Algeria, and Tunisia. During 1936 imports were valued at $4,570,000.

Practice Of Collecting Toll On State Owned Bridges Scored By Retail Merchants Group

Directors named for the 18th Congressional District are: C. H. Parsons, Ashland, Vice-president; H. H. Wheelock, Ashland; E. H. Scott, Ashland; U. McCall Richey, Augusta; H. H. Cooksey, Grayson; T. Cunningham, Jackson; Martha Manning, Maysville; O. F. Botts, Owingsville; Ben Scott, Mt. Sterling; J. J. Walsh, Mt. Sterling; G. B. Bastin, Cincinnati; Roscoe Brong, West Liberty.

Following a talk by Henry W. Paduch, who urged that toll bridges in Kentucky be freed as soon as possible, the merchants adopted the following resolution: Whereas it has been demonstrated that the building and maintaining of highways is a public function that should be exercised by governmental agencies and that the old system of toll-gates on highways is violative of a principle that has now been fully established as just, and

Whereas we believe that a bridge which spans a river or smaller stream is as much a part of the highway as a full, complete or a cut through a hill or mountain and should be treated as such, and

Whereas the existence of numerous toll bridges within the State of Kentucky across the Ohio River have served to prevent this state from progressing and developing as rapidly as it should by acting as barriers that prevent normal trade and commerce, and

Whereas these bridges antagonize the duties of employers under the Social Security Act. The office of the Social Security Board at the State Building, Louisville, are at the disposal of anyone seeking information regarding the Act, Mr. Duffy said.

Mr. R. J. McKim, a Director of the Association, who has just returned from a trip to Europe, discussed European methods of merchandising as compared with the American system.

Whereas this group of European merchants present complained that due to tardiness on the part of the State Highway Commission in paying employees of the Commission, the merchants were being forced to engage in unprofitable and undesirable credit extensions, and the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Whereas employees of the State Highway Department are suffering great hardship and inconvenience on account of delay in receiving their pay checks, and

Whereas this group of European merchants present complained that due to tardiness on the part of the State Road Department makes it necessary in many instances for the merchants of the State to engage in unprofitable and undesirable credit extensions,

"Therefore be it resolved that there has been a steady course of relief rolls into normal and steady employment since February 1936 when the Works Progress Administration was organized, 27,374,000 persons certified for relief were employed on WPA projects while the unemployment rate was 14.7 per cent.

"The meeting was well attended by merchants from every section of Kentucky.

Goodman Reviews Record Of W. P. A.

Accomplishments Since He Took Office Are Pointed Out In Report

Reviewing his administration of the Works Progress Administration in Kentucky since its beginning in July 1935, George H. Goodman today released a report extending until June 1, 1937, which shows an expenditure of $43,653,987.71, the bulk of which has gone for permanent improvements to the State. Of the total expended, the report shows, $7,305,331.05 was contributed by local sponsors of projects and the remainder by the Federal Government.

The peak load of the Works Progress Administration in Kentucky occurred in February 1936, when 97,175 workers were employed. Excepting for drought relief in 1937, the general trend according to the report, has been downward and back into the normal range of industry.

The entire cost of administering the Works Progress Administration has been $1,471,962.71 or 4.3 per cent of the total expenditures. This percentage the report indicates, includes personal service and all other expenses and is based on both Federal and Sponsors expenditures. In December 1935 administrative employees throughout the State numbered 861. Since that time the number has been constantly reduced and by June 1, 1937 the number was 521. July 1 of the current year the State was re-districted, bringing a reduction.

In answer to a question as to "just what the people of Kentucky have gotten for the expenditure of $43,653,987.71," Goodman pointed to a table in his report which shows that $24,140,157 went for highways, roads and streets. Public buildings accounted for $9,849,514; parks and other recreational facilities, $9,167,115; conservation, $305,572; health, $2,444,573; airports and other transportation, $130,859; white collar workers, which include traffic surveys and similar endeavors, $2,357,287; goods, used in sewing rooms in each county, $4,278,002; sanitation and health, $1,091,527; miscellaneous, including a greater portion of flood expenditures, $2,000,001. Still another tabulation in the report throws additional light upon the benefits of the State as derived from the Works Progress Administration. A total of 29,563 workers were employed on highways, roads and streets, representing 82.8 per cent of the total. Public buildings accounted for 10.8 per cent; parks and other recreational facilities 502, or 1.1 per cent; conservation 123, or .4 per cent; sewer systems and other utilities 2,450, or 5.1 per cent; airports and other transportation 130, or .1 per cent; white collar projects 2,059, or 4.4 per cent; goods and health 735, or 1.6 per cent; miscellaneous, including flood, 923 or 1.9 per cent.

Write the purpose of the Works Progress Administration always has been one of relief. Mr. Goodman said, it has left behind a clear trail of permanent and valuable improvements and has sent the State forward many years over a very short period of time. Of the $36,347,756.82 expended by the Federal Government, exclusive of sponsors contributions of $7,305,331.05, the report shows that actually 67.3 per cent went into the pockets of needy wage earners and thence immediately into trade channels in the State. Non-relief labor accounted for only 10.7 per cent, while the remainder (materials, supplies, etc., was 22 per cent).

The report verifies the fact that there has been a steady course of relief rolls into normal and steady employment since February 1936 when the Works Progress Administration was organized, 27,374,000 persons certified for relief were employed on WPA projects while the unemployment rate was 14.7 per cent.

When Kentucky faced the food emergency early this year, the report shows, the Works Progress Administration was the entire force into the teeth of disaster. The effectiveness of a smoothly operating organization was apparent in every phase of the emergency. Mr. Goodman said. Eighty-seven counties in the State, the report shows, were visited by Works Progress Administration workers cast aside all other endeavor and spent $2,187,416.70 until the emergency was at an end.

Wildlife In Kentucky

By Lucy Furman

In a preceding article, we took up the Sooty Woodpecker, principal one of the birds we saw to be the weasel, red fox, mink, opossum and mourning hawk, owls and snakes.

The foremost natural destroyers of insects are the birds. "The digestion of birds," says Dr. Silliman, "is very rapid. They can eat almost constantly." The number of insects pestiferous to young crops is almost unbelievable, and the adults are voracious eaters. In the stomach of a raincrow were found over 200 caterpillars; in that of a cedar waxwing, 100 caterpillars; of a chickadee, nearly 500 caterpillars; of a night hawk or bull-bug, 60 grasshoppers; of a flicker, 1,000 chinch bugs. A scarlet tanager was seen to eat 630 gypsy-moth caterpillars in 18 minutes. The yellow-throat 3,500 plant lice in 30 minutes. The army worm has 43 different bird enemies, the chinch-bug 24, cooling moth, 36, bull-bugs 67, cutworms 88, potato bug 28, white grub 67, and so on.

Every common bird—robin, catbird, thrasher, mocker, cardinal, bluebird, phoebe, swallow, wren, meadow-lark, quail, dove, is an invaluable bird, working night and day for the farmer, destroying his enemies. But what is his response? He finds cuts away all their forest cover, and next every tree, bush, briar, vine, and weed of the fence-row, pool-side, creek banks and hillsides when the birds seek a refuge in his orchard and around his home, he permits every nearby small boy and roving pothunter, to shoot at them at all times, and, worst of all, turns loose upon them a family of cats, to climb the trees nights and eat up all their young, and watch for busy portions during the day. Each house cat is estimated to eat at least 50 birds during a year, and each stray cat many more. Is it any wonder than, with this criminal indifference, the birds to the United States have now decreased to fewer than the acre, and that, in Kentucky, 50 per cent of our birds have disappeared in the past 20 years?

The other great insect destroyer is the skunk, wonderfully fitted by nature to hear and smell, many inches down in the ground, the harmful grubs that the birds cannot reach, and to dig them out before they can come up and breed and multiply, as well as to catch the perfected insects after they emerge. The Skunk has been the object of much prejudice because the first settlers in America, solely on account of its bad odor, Mistake, named it after the European polecat or fitcheweasel, a vicious little beast that lives upon poultry and birds.

The skunk is nothing like the polecat—that is gentle, friendly, slow, never throws its tail around, and is so heavy and clumsy that it cannot climb a tree. It must get all its food from the ground; that is seldom or never kills poultry, or robs gamebird nests.

The recent Michigan researchers have now proved all this. In all the 1,700 skunk stomachs, not one trace of a game-bird egg was found, and the entire percentage of birds and poultry was only 2 per cent of its ration, and, as it loves carrion, might well have been thrown-away parts of fowls in the garbage pails it frequents. The skunk is the best single enemy of the army worm, tobacco worm, cutworm, tomato worm, hopworm, white grub, locust, grasshopper, terpillars. It is the only destroyer of the tobacco worm except the turkey, not only digging the grub, but picking the worm off the plants as high up as it can reach. The hop growers of New York have had it protected by law there for similar labor in the fields. It should be protected everywhere—taken off the fur list and put on the farm protective list along with the song-birds.

The other valuable insect destroyer are the small grass, garden and garter snakes, which should never be killed.

NEW LINE AND MARL RECORD MAY BE SET

Reports received at the College of Agriculture at Lexington indicate that all records in the application of limestones and marls may be broken by Kentucky farmers this year. Last year approximately a million tons of lime materials were used in the state, and more spread per crop than in any other state.

A large amount of marl will be used this year, according to county agents. Two thousand farmers in 32 counties spread 75,000 tons of marl last year. In Henderson county, 8,000 tons were used.

According to S. C. Jones of the college, marl beds loom up like deposits of rich ore on the thousands of Kentucky farms, providing ready supplies of liming material. In many counties farmers are spreading marl themselves, at no cash outlay. Allowances in the agricultural conservation program are $2.80 an acre where three tons of marl are spread. In addition, the farmer who spreads marl or limestone prepares his land for increased crop yields.

In tests which the Agricultural Experiment Station made over the past year, applications of lime, when made in connection with phosphate, increased crop returns as much as $7 an acre the first year, and larger production will continue for years as a result of the soil treatment.

NEW AUTO SALES SHOW BIG GAIN FOR AUGUST

Retail sales of new passenger automobiles showed a very marked increase from July to August, according to a recent commerce report.

Sales in August were 20 per cent above August 1936, and 59 per cent greater than in August 1935.

The aggregate value for the first eight months of this year was about 10 per cent above that for the corresponding period of last year and about 37 per cent higher than the first eight months of 1935.

Monday at the White House President Roosevelt authorized the use of his next budget for fighting infantile paralysis. The President also stated that he has given his birthday to the new National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, the formation of which he announced to the country on September 27, 1936.

In view of the fact that it will take some time for the Trustees of the new Foundation to meet, organize and draft their plans for a nationwide attack on the disease on all fronts, the President stated that he had authorized the Treasurer of Georgia Warm Springs Foundation to define and carry out plans for the celebration of his birthday in 1938.

The President's Letter Basil O'Connor, Esq., Treasurer, Georgia Warm Springs Foundation, Inc., 120 Broadway, New York, N. Y. Dear Mr. O'Connor: I have your letter of the 15th with respect to using again my birthday in 1938 in the cause of infantile paralysis.

As you know, I am very much interested in the steps that are being taken to perfect the organization of the new National Foundation for infantile paralysis which I made a public announcement on September 23 of this year.

As I said in that statement, it is the desire of everyone interested in this cause that the work of the new Foundation be carried forward as expeditiously as possible. Nevertheless we all realize that plans of such importance and magnitude must at the same time be worked out carefully and soundly, and that undue haste may be as fatal to the cause as delay.

Against this is the fact, as I stated on September 23, that it is my opinion that all fund raising should be under the control and supervision of the new Foundation, including the activity for raising money in connection with the celebration of my birthday in January, 1938. Heretofore, we have for one reason or another, over which no one has control, always been crowded for time in which to make arrangements for properly permitting the public to participate on those occasions for the benefit of the cause of infantile paralysis.

Mr. Arthur Ray Tatam spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Pritchard, Jr., at Ashland. Miss Mary Hogge left Tuesday for Lexington to spend a few days with her brother, Mr. Walter Hogge.

Miss Mary Hogge left Tuesday for Lexington to spend a few days with her brother, Mr. Walter Hogge. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hogge and children, Virginia Fay and Walter Allen, of Lexington, visited Mr. and Mrs. E. Hogge Sunday.

Miss Marie O. Bauernschmidt, secretary of the Baltimore Public School Association, stated in a recent address before a Parent-Teacher Association chapter in the District of Columbia that many mothers are to blame for much of the crime prevalent in the United States today. Too many wives and mothers are having their breakfasts in bed, she declared, instead of eating with their husbands and children, and helping them to get off to work and to school.

COMPARATIVELY LITTLE LIVESTOCK IN JAPAN

There were 61,040 head of sheep in Japan at the end of 1936. This was an increase of 12,737 head, or 29 per cent compared with 1935. These sheep were in the hands of 21,044 families, of which 71 per cent, or 15,000 families, owned only one or two sheep while only 9 per cent of the families owned five or more.

Imports of sheep into Japan totaled only 2,800 head in the first half of 1937, which were the result of two shipments received by that country in June from Australia. It has been reported that a company will be organized in Manchuria which
