Judge Vinson Being Congratulated While Successor Pondered

Eighth District Congressman Has One Of Best Records Of Any Legislator Kentucky Has Ever Sent To Washington

Leaders of official Washington, and on Capitol Hill joined this week in expressing hearty congratulations to Congressman Fred M. Vinson, of Kentucky, upon learning of his recent appointment by President Roosevelt as associate justice of the United States court of appeals for the District of Columbia. First to express his felicitations was Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, who originally sent Congressman Vinson's name to the chief executive for consideration. "When reached at his office in the department of justice here today Attorney General Cummings stated: "Sincere best wishes and hearty congratulations to Congressman Vinson upon his presidential appointment to the judiciary."

Senator Alben Williams Barkley was another to extend congratulations to Congressman Vinson as news of his appointment by the president was announced. "I am more than happy to extend my most hearty congratulations to Congressman Fred M. Vinson upon learning of his recent appointment to the District of Columbia Appeals. President Roosevelt has made a fine choice and I am sure that Congressman Vinson will be proud of such a well deserved honor. President Roosevelt could not have made a better choice. I am happy to join in extending my hearty congratulations and best wishes."

President Roosevelt broke up a tax trivium in the House of Representatives when he appointed slender, energetic Representative Fred M. Vinson of Kentucky to the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. The 47-year-old Kentuckian, Representative Doughton of North Carolina and Cooper of Tennessee are credited with wielding great influence on the Ways and Means Committee.

Vinson has made a hobby of taxes since he was first appointed to the Ways and Means Committee in 1926. As chairman of the subcommittee now studying tax revision, he probably has worked longer hours this fall than any other congressman. "It's not drudgery, however, he said today. "I'm actually enjoying myself."

James Stinson, 66 Dies At Haldeman
Well Known Rowan County Man Has Eight Surviving Sons
James Stinson, 66 year old resident of Haldeman and one of the county's most widely known citizens died last Friday at his home following a lingering illness due to complications. Mr. Stinson, a former employe of the Kentucky Firebrick Company at Haldeman had been ailing for the past few years, following a severe attack of influenza.

Funeral rites were held at Bowen Chapel near Haldeman Sunday afternoon with burial at that place. Mr. Stinson is survived by his wife, the former Miss Della Williams of Salt Lick, to whom he was wed December 25, 1892; eight sons, Chester, Luther, Jesse, Chas. Arthur and David; Stinsons all of Haldeman, L. C. Stinson, of New Castle, Ind., and William Stinson, Logan, W. Va.; two daughters, Miss Evalyn at home and Mrs. Robert Blackburn; two sisters, Mrs. Ella Strell of Preston and Mrs. Frances Adams, and a brother, Thomas Stinson, of New Castle.

Also surviving are sixteen grand children.
Mr. Stinson came to Rowan County in 1904 and during most of his life was an employe at the Haldeman brick plant. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge, the I. O. O. F., the J. O. U. A. M. and the Eagle Lodge, and was a member of the Baptist church.

MARSHALL MATCH SOUGHT
Morehead College may meet Marshall College at Ashland in basketball this season.

LIKELY SUCCESSOR TO VINSON

The likely and logical successor to Congressman Fred M. Vinson in the Eighth District is Joe Bates, of Greenup, incumbent Clerk of Greenup County. Mr. Bates has been a life-long friend of Congressman Vinson and one of his key-men in the district.

Mr. Bates, the seventh son of a family of thirteen children, was born in Beaver Creek, Kentucky, October 29, 1893. He received his education in the common schools at the Eastern State Teachers College, Richmond, Ky. He was married February 16, 1916, to Miss Virginia Rice. The Bates' have two children, Joe Rice Bates, student at the University of Kentucky and Becky Bates, who is attending Ward-Belmont College at Nashville, Tenn.

Mr. Bates, who has been Clerk of Greenup County for the last sixteen years is a member of the Presbyterian Church, a Mason, Elk and J. O. U. A. M. Prior to his election as Clerk he was for nine years a teacher and high school principal.

Long recognized as one of Eastern Kentucky's foremost politicians, Mr. Bates enjoys the confidence of Federal officials of the local church. He is all probability he will receive the support of both in the Congressional election.

Reliable surveys made in the 20 counties comprising the Eighth District indicate that he is almost certain of receiving the endorsement of 18 of the 20 county chairmen with a strong possibility of unanimous support from them when they name a Democratic nominee to succeed Congressman Vinson.

Agreement Being Ten Counties In Drafted Here For Path Of Tornado; Rural Road Work Bath, Fleming Hit

State And Fiscal Court May Come To Terms On Expenditure
It was learned this week that an agreement between the Rowan Fiscal Court and the Department of Rural Highways, regarding the expenditure of $11,900 for construction and maintenance of secondary roads in this county is being worked out and there is a possibility that actual work may get under way before the turn of the year.

This money has been held up for almost a year, due to a controversy over the patronage. The court held that the State wanted to place most of the jobs in the hands of Democrats and refused to approve the set-up.
The principal damage in central Kentucky was to hickory and hickory which were ready, or were being prepared for market. No fatalities were reported.

The path of the tornado in Clark County was almost identical to that of the storm last March that took five lives and rendered 100 homeless near Winchester. The ten counties struck by tornadoes are Clark, Bourbon, Bath, Fleming, Montgomery, Mason, Scott, Pendleton, Harrison and Nicholas.

Dr. Van Antwerp Gives Address At State Hort Meet

Apples From His Orchard At Farmers Take High Award
Dr. H. Van Antwerp, of Farmers, long recognized as one of the State's leading Horticulturalists was a speaker on the Wednesday program of the Kentucky Horticultural Society.

The undergraduate Hort Club of the University of Kentucky countered with an apple pie contest with the "Big Apple" dance as the theme. Miss Roberts, of Elizabethtown, was crowned Queen of the Apple Show.

Dr. Van Antwerp won the grand championship in that part of the show for commercial growers. His four trays of Red Delicious were placed at the top of the 300 trays exhibition. The judge was Dr. R. S. Marsh, horticulturist of the University of West Virginia.

Dr. Van Antwerp received the New Phoenix Company's silver trophy. Winners in the commercial exhibit were: First, Dr. H. Van Antwerp; second, M. Y. Van Sturgis; third, J. W. Fagenbush, Buchanan, Tenn.; Ben E. Niles, Henderson; fifth, Wallace Baldwin, Henderson; sixth, J. W. Keeling, Hopkinsville; and seventh, Tony Hall, Henderson.

Kazee To Accept Pastor's Position At Mayslick, Ky.

Local Minister Will Resign Here Before First Of Year
The Rev. B. H. Kazee, pastor of the Mayslick Baptist Church this week accepted a position as Pastor of the Mayslick, Ky., Baptist Church. He has learned that he will resign on January 1 to accept the new place.

Coming from Harlan in 1929 the Rev. Kazee accepted the Pastorate of the local church. He is a talented musician and singer and has composed several songs. His services have been in demand during much of the year at large revivals, especially in the south where he led the singing services and often did much of the preaching.

The eight years that the Rev. Kazee has been in Morehead have been marked by active leadership in many community and civic enterprises. The Rowan County School and Agricultural Fair Association has voted him a note of thanks almost every year for his work as Secretary of the Fair, perhaps the most important position in the Association.

Driver, Blinded By Truck Lights, Crashes Into Simmie Johnson, 45, at Hilda; Held In Court Here On Bond

Was Brother Of Mrs. Allie Y. Mannin Of Morehead
A broken neck and other injuries received in an automobile accident Thanksgiving night cost the life of Murvel "Kaye" Hogge, 21, son of Arthur Hogge, twice County Judge of Rowan County and Mrs. Hogge, of Second Street.

The accident occurred on the Midland Trail Highway about 15 miles east of Ashland. The car, driven by Murvel attempting to round a curve went into a double skid, crashed over an embankment and turned several times, seven other occupants of the car, including Mr. Hogge's wife were not injured seriously.

Surviving are his father, Jasper Johnson, of Hilda; four children, Shelby Johnson and Mrs. Thelma Lewis, of Elizabethtown, Lowell Johnson and Harold Johnson, of Wrigley; a brother, Clifton Johnson, of Hilda; and three sisters, Mrs. Alta Reynolds, of Aberdeen, Ohio; Mrs. Jason Payne, of Hillsboro, Ky.; and Mrs. Allie Mannin, of Morehead.

MAY RESIGN AS LOCAL PASTOR

While returning from Ashland where he had been at the bedside of Murvel Hogge, who was killed in an automobile accident, Mrs. Arthur Hogge's mother, was injured slightly in a car driven by Attorney Lester Hogge, uncle of Murvel, wrecked.

Kazee, officiating Interment was in the Lee Cemetery.
Mr. Hogge was a graduate of Morehead High School where he excelled in several sports. He was born in Morehead September 10, 1917.

On October 4, 1936, he was married to Miss Lillian Hammond, of Olive Hill. He has a four-months old child, Gary Alden. Also surviving are his mother and mother, a brother, Carl Hogge of Oklahoma City, Okla.; and two sisters, Mrs. Sadie Fielding and Mrs. G. O. Warren of Winchester.

Active bearers at the funeral were Joe Tolliver, Jack Smith, Arthur H. Kinsley, Johnson, Bill Ramsey and Theophrastus. Honorary bearers were: Jack Carter, Wilson Hogge, Elwood Dilworth, Arthur T. H. Hogge, Crosthwaite, Frenchy Hammonds, Raymond Allen, Willard Keeton, J. Warren Blair, Allen Robinson, Arthur T. H. Hogge, M. C. Crooley, Milton Davis, Murvel Cauldin, Eugene Calvert, Franklin Blair and John Harvey Fitch.

KENTUCKY WILL LOSE ONE OF ITS FOREMOST LEGISLATORS

Saturday press releases from Washington, D. C. brought news of the death of Hon. Fred M. Vinson, Eighth District Congressman, as the choice of President Roosevelt as an Associate Justice of the Circuit Court of Appeals in the District of Columbia.

Kentuckians viewed the appointment from two cross-sections. The people of this state agree that Fred Vinson is deserving of the appointment. In fact, the position, which is for life, is little enough remuneration for the comprehensive record that he has made in Congress and the great work he has accomplished for the people of his district and for the State as a whole.

However, there are thousands of Fred Vinson's friends, who join in congratulations, but at the same time feel some pangs of regret by losing Congressman Vinson. Kentucky's loss is Washington's gain. When Fred Vinson leaves Congress this State has lost its wisest head. It has lost a member of the important Ways and Means Committee—a man who has served on that committee longer than any other Kentuckian.

Kentucky regrets to lose the energy, the wisdom and the prestige in Congress that Fred Vinson gave this Commonwealth. In Fred Vinson and Alben Barkley Kentucky had two men in Washington that wielded as much influence as any legislators on Capitol Hill.

Perhaps no man enjoyed the confidence of Kentuckians as a whole as did Fred Vinson. When the election of Congressman was from state-at-large, he led the ticket. Many men in Washington on him to seek the Governorship and a place as United States Senator, races which he refused to make.

We are sorry to see Fred Vinson leave the realm of politics in which he was a conscientious and honest master. His popularity, as attested by the overwhelming vote he always received, was not so much by virtue of intelligent political moves as it was through the fact that the public knew of the great work that this man was doing and flocked to the polls to give him their vote of endorsement. All Fred Vinson's majorities each time could make an honest voter and citizen acutely conscious of the fact that this is a government of the people.

We are satisfied that Fred Vinson will want Joe Bates, of Greenup, who has been his right-hand man for many years, to succeed him in Congress. Bates has been for several years a factor in all state-wide races. He enjoys the confidence and will probably receive the support of Governor Chandler. With this support, plus the thousands of votes that will naturally fall to him from the friends and supporters of Fred Vinson, his election seems assured.

There is the probability, despite reports to the contrary, that Joe Bates may be elected without opposition. Certainly, if present indications are a harbinger, a landslide victory is likely for the Greenup Candidate if he does incur no opposition. The people of this district would do well to give Joe Bates the position for his presence in Congress will mean a continuance of Fred Vinson's policies.

MAKING WAR SHORTER—AND LESS BLOODY

It took old Nathan Bedford Forrest, the uncouth genius of the Confederate cavalry, to win the essence of the science of strategy in one ungrammatical line—"Git 'em fast with the most men." Acting on his own maxims, Forrest was a terror to federal generals throughout the war. And even since then, military men have agreed that his terse slogan was all of the law and most of the prophes, as far as the art of making war is concerned.

It is interesting, therefore, to see that the United States Army is spending a good deal of money to make sure that in any future war it will be able to do what General Forrest advised. A few days ago the army's new "streamlined" infantry division completed important test maneuvers in Texas. This division is a far cry from the cumbersome formations of World War days. It has some 13,000 men, against the World War strength of 22,000. Instead of World War divisions complemented of 6,700 horses and mules, it has slightly more than 1,500 automobiles.

To see what it could do, this motorized division pretended that an invading army was established 300 miles away, near Milers, Texas. The division hopped in its trucks, got to the scene of the "war" in one day, spent the next day in outmaneuvering and defeating its unmotorized opponent and got back to its base on the third day—having completed a stunt utterly beyond the possibilities for any pre-gasoline age army.

You may be sure that this demonstration will be prayerfully studied by army authorities, both here and abroad. It is a broad hint that the old attributes of fluidity and quick movement may be restored to armies—things that were conspicuous by their absence in the World War.

And this has a meaning for civilians as well as for soldiers. For there is a chance that motorized armies will make future wars a little less frightful and destructive, simply by making them shorter and using fewer men to fight them.

The World War was colossally and unbelievably destructive of life and treasure largely because armies moved at a snail's pace. No general would hope to "git 'em fast with the most men" because it took a week to put his army in motion, and because numbers on both sides were almost unlimited.

Armies that depend on quick movement and mechanized hitting power rather than on slow-moving numbers of change that sort of thing. The war of attrition is the most costly and terrible of all wars, as we all have tragic reason to know. If military science is at last finding a way to restore the lost art of strategy, the dreadful record of the World War may never be repeated.

LAWS AGAINST WOMEN

A formal request was made to the League of Nations recently that the fifteen member countries grant equality to women. Citizens of the United States may feel that this right already has been granted to the residents of this country, but there still exist many inequalities. There are said to be now more than a thousand laws that give to men preferences. On the other hand, there are many laws that work the other way.

A summary in the New York Times magazine of recent date by Catherine MacKenzie points out that in Kentucky "cruel and inhuman treatment" may be grounds for a woman seeking a divorce but not for a man.

By the way, soon after adoption of the woman suffrage amendment an amendment was submitted to the voters of Kentucky providing for full equality for women in property rights and all else. Like all other amendments, it was defeated.

The amendment proposed to congress and re-submitted at every session since 1921 reads: "Men and women shall have equal rights throughout the United States and every place subject to its jurisdiction.

"Congress shall have the power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation."

In many countries the votes of women are limited and even where the vote is granted equal rights do not exist. In this country, of course, the inequalities are few, yet the few barriers that do remain should be removed.

READING WITH PURPOSE

We must change our way of reading newspapers. Instead of looking upon it as an opportunity for rest and passive receptivity, we should take up the newspapers in an attitude of mental alertness, of careful discrimination and sympathetic understanding.

We should resist the temptation to read from idle curiosity, to dwell on lengthy descriptions and futile discussions, on the reports of trivial happenings. We should resist all suggestions from the currents of prevailing ideas and collective passions, and avoid the ordinary personal way of regarding and reacting to events.

We should observe all the confusion and perturbation of this picture of human life from a higher standpoint and with a serene mind, seeking to discover the hidden order in it, its significance and its guiding principles, and the laws by which its course is regulated.

Through all the sad and sordid facts which throw dark shadows of warning on the glittering surface of our civilization, we should realize how great is the sum of human suffering, and feel in the depths of our being the noble impulse that steadily urges us to give all our efforts and dedicate ourselves to the work of lessening the ocean of misery.—World Observer.

HUNTING DON'TS

Here are some timely and sensible don'ts for Rowan County hunters who may be inclined to grow careless with firearms along about this time of year — learn them by heart or paste them in your hat.

Don't pull a gun carelessly through a fence, run from an auto. Remove the shells before crawling through a fence. Do not use your gun to club game from the brush. Don't carry it cocked—it is always closer to you than it is to the game. Never point a weapon at anyone in fun. Don't walk ahead of an inexperienced hunter—let him go first. Don't leave a gun where children can reach it; all weapons are puppets to them. Do not leave a loaded gun in the house; bears are not coming into the living room this year. Never allow your gun muzzle to clog with mud or snow.

Hunting accidents cost 2,000 lives in 1936. If everyone obeys the above rules closely there won't be any around here in 1937.

COOPERATION ESSENTIAL

F. W. Peck, of the University of Minnesota, said recently, "I think of the cooperative movement as one way of approaching a theoretical ideal through the application of business practices to human services and activities. It is a way of obtaining bargaining power for individual through group strength. It is a way of seeking advantages that may be obtained by individual efforts alone. It is a way of sharing the losses as well as the profits."

Marketing cooperation, especially as exemplified in the agricultural field, is the same in principle as the theories which have resulted in the developing and progress of American industries. Co-operative action is essential to an advanced civilization.

Sunday School Lesson LESSON FOR DECEMBER 5

CHRISTIAN REST LESSON TEXT—Matthew 11: 28-30, Hebrews 4:1-11.

GOLDEN TEXT — Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.—Matthew 11:28.

PRIMARY TOPIC — When We Are Tired.

JUNIOR TOPIC — God's Great Invitation.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC — How Christ Gives Us Rest.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christian Rest.

"Time, like an ever-rolling stream, bears all its sons away; so sang Isaac Watts in 1719. One wonders what he might say today. The mad rush of modern life—its relentless drawing of us all into its terrific tempo—leaves us distraught, nervous, over-anxious. Nervous disorders are on a rapid increase, even among children. The condition prevails in the country as well as in the city, although it is aggravated in metropolitan centers.

Let us lay down the burdens of the universe for a bit of counsel quietly about that almost forgotten Christian virtue of "rest." Nowhere has the troubled spirit find calm of soul so surely and as quickly as in God's word—and in the One revealed there, for true rest is found not in a theory, but in a Person.

I. Found in God (Matt. 11:28-30).

Rest for our souls is found not in the cessation of activity, but rather in joining with Christ as our yoke-fellow and in going on with him in meekness and lowliness of heart. Most of life's restlessness is the result of our driving ambition to be somebody or to attain something. True humility removes all such disturbing factors.

But we do have a yoke and a burden to bear. Yes, it is true that not all is easy in the Christian life. But as someone has suggested, the burdens are like the burden of feathers on a bird. They seem to be too heavy for his little body, but as a matter of fact they are the thing he flies on. Such are the "burdens" of Christ.

II. Received by Faith (Heb. 4:3). Those who believe enter into rest. Faith in Christ brings a man into the place that the storms of life may beat upon but can never shake. Jesus who fell into a frenzy of fear and worry when sorrow comes upon them need not learn to walk by faith. He did not dismay what'er betide, God will take care of you; it is more than the expression of a hymn writer; it is a statement of fact.

III. Relieved by Unbelief (Heb. 4:1, 6-11).

The "rest" thing in the world is unbelief—because it effectually closes the door to God's blessing. Jesus could not be "mighty works" in his home town of Nazareth "because of their unbelief." (Matt. 13:58). Unbelief will keep us from the help that God has prepared for his people, for it not only hinders men from coming to the Saviour, but keeps them from resting in him after they are saved.

IV. Necessary to Useful Living (v. 11). Only when the follower of Christ appropriates that rest of soul which results from turning down his own efforts and trusting himself fully to Christ will there be that absolute surrender of every detail and problem of a life which will bring out in daily living the glorious beauty and power of life at rest with God.

A poem by Fay Inchausti which has blessed the writer's soul is here passed on with the prayer that it may help you who read these notes:

"Well, I am done. My nerves were on the rack, I've laid them down today; It was the last straw that broke me down, the camel's back. I've laid that down today. No, I'll not fume, nor fuss, nor fight. I'll walk by faith a bit and not by sight.

I think the universe will work all right. I've laid it down today. So, here and now, the overweight, the warty, I'll lay it down today; The all-too-anxious heart: the tearing hurry; I'll lay these down today. O eager hands, O feet so prone to run.

I think the things you've had to endure, Do lay them down today."

How true it is that we are prone to bear all the burdens of the universe when God's Word has told us to cast all our care upon Him, for He careth for us (Ps. 57). It is a powerful testimony for God's Word—distraught and worry ridden non-Christians see God's children walking steadily and true in the midst of disappointments, trials, and sorrows. And the opposite is also true, that failure to trust God is a practical denial of our professed faith.

Colleges Have No 'Red' Menace, Says Methodist Prexy

Few Communist 'Campus Orators' Seeking To Attract Attention. There isn't any real 'red menace' in American colleges. The few Communist doctrines are merely doing it to attract attention.

These were the assertions recently of Dr. James L. McConnaughy, president of Wesleyan University, when he defended American students at a regional conference of the American Association of Colleges.

Dr. McConoughy pleaded for more aggressive action in educational institutions for the preservation of American traditions.

"The young people of our colleges today are good citizens," he said. "They are patriotic and they would have no part of Communism."

"But I want to warn you against stifling freedom of speech. This fundamental right of every American citizen is in jeopardy. Freedom of speech must be safeguarded and it is up to the educators of America to carry the torch."

CHAPTER ONE.

THE ENCOUNTER

"Dogs! ... Swine!"

The young captain of the Polish Lancers hurled invectives at the fleeing Cossacks. He motioned to his bugler to sound a halt as his men pounded up to the old manor from which the Cossacks had recently fled. He dismounted, knocking sharply at the heavy door.

The door opened a crack to reveal the white, scared face of an elderly serving man. He peered at the new arrival briefly, then his eyes filled with tears of joy. "Master Paul! Heaven be praised!" "Stephen!" he cried warmly, and grasped the servant's hand warmly. He brushed past him into the hallway where a young and beautiful woman was attending the wounded cheek of an aged man. She raised her head in fright at the newcomer, then laughed and cried in hysterical relief.

"The Cossacks?" he asked bitterly.

The other nodded.

"They fled at the sound of your horses," explained Marie. "We feared you were more Cossacks come to complete the damage."

Paul shook his head in pity and rage.

"I beg of you, my dear Paul, do not let this spoil your homecoming," said Walewski. He pointed to the debris on all sides.

"Our visitors rearranged the room to conform with the Russian taste."

"But hot for long," flared Paul. "Napoleon here!" cried Marie. "Now—now—NOW we are free!"

"Not quite, my dear," sighed her husband.

"But the occupation has begun," said Paul. "Napoleon is within two days of Warsaw."

"Will Warsaw change him?" asked Walewski, moodily. "Will it make him love freedom better than power. Will he guarantee our independence?"

"He will," Paul spoke with the assurance of youth.

"I hope so," answered Walewski skeptically.

Paul and Marie exchanged glances. How could anyone doubt Napoleon here? they exclaimed.

"He will," Paul spoke with the assurance of youth.

"I hope so," answered Walewski skeptically.

"But Marie," protested Paul. "I can stop. I must take my detachment on to Yarnoff. It's just luck that I'm here at all, even for this moment. But—couldn't pass through without stopping at Walewski to see you again."

Walewski motioned to Stephan to give him a hand. "Since your time is short, Paul, you must give it all to Marie," said he kindly. "And so, if you will excuse me, I'll retire."

They pressed him to stay, but with an indulgent smile, he took Stephen's arm and made for his room. When he had gone, brother and sister turned to each other eagerly. Paul looked her over from head to foot. "You're grown up Marie—you're a great lady."

"I'm a countess," she answered with winning vanity.

"Do you still scratch 'N's' on the ice of the window panes?" he teased.

"And we are going to run away and join Napoleon's army," she reminded him. "Boys have all luck! Do you see Napoleon often?"

"Almost never," he admitted, "and always from a distance."

"It seems strange to live in the same world with him and not to have seen him," she sighed pensively.

"Perhaps you will see him. He receives the great wherever he goes. Your husband is one of the great men of Poland—and now that the Emperor is due in Warsaw—as a matter of fact he's due in Bronie tonight. If only I didn't have to go to Yarnoff!"

"Due in Bronie, tonight?" she exclaimed.

"Yes—he changes horses at Bronie in about an hour—"

"Paul," she cried. "Couldn't you stay the night so that we could both go to Bronie—just to see him, Paul. We've wanted to see him all our lives—Bronie is so near."

He took both his hands in his and kissed her fondly. "If we only could. But orders are orders, Marinka. I've tarried overly-long as it is."

He put his arm about her and they walked to the door. "Boots and Saddles!" he called to an orderly waiting in the court. The bugler sounded the call. Paul kissed her again. "Marie," he said soberly. "I want everything in the world for you."

"I have everything," she answered. "I only want to be with you."

"Who are you?" demanded Napoleon.

land free!" She embraced him affectionately, then waited as he mounted his horse and headed his column of men. She stood in the doorway watching them ride off, an air of tense excitement enveloping her. Suddenly her mood changing to one of intense absorption.

Stephan approached with a fur cloak which she absently drew about her. She seemed unaware of him, and when she spoke at last, it was as if out of a deep enchantment. "Stephan, get the sleigh and horses. We're driving to Bronie."

"To Bronie?" he queried in amazement. "But Madame, that's three miles and the roads are full of soldiers and—why are you going to Bronie at this hour. Your Excellency?"

"I don't know why," she answered quietly. "Only I must go to Bronie—I must—"

Soon she was wrapped in furs driving towards Bronie. As they reached the gates of the town, she called to Stephan to stop the horses near an old shrine. She threw aside her robes and alighted; she hurried to the shrine and hid in its shadow. Within a short space of time a coach drove toward the Inn within the gates. Napoleon stepped out, followed by his Marshal, Duroc, and his aide-de-camp, D'Ornano.

Marie stared wide-eyed, her heart pounding with excitement. Napoleon pointed to the gates. "Let's stretch our legs," he suggested and started briskly down the road toward the shrine. Four grenadiers took their place so that he walked in the center of a hollow square. D'Ornano and Duroc following a few paces behind. As they passed the shrine, D'Ornano spied Marie. He whistled sharply and drew his pistol. "Come out of there!"

She emerged slowly from the shadow.

"Keep your hands up—under that light," he commanded.

She came out and stood in the full light so that she could be clearly seen. There was a moment's silence as the eyes of the men fell on the beautiful, pale face. Napoleon seized a torch, a grenadier advanced toward Marie, examining her intently.

"Who are you?" he demanded.

"Marie"—her emotion at being addressed by him overcame her and her voice faltered.

"Marie?" he questioned. "That's a good beginning, but you're too pretty to be just Marie. You're not frightened."

"No, your Majesty," she murmured.

"Your Majesty?" he exclaimed. "Then you know who I am?"

"Yes, Your Majesty. I knew it at once. You were like—"

"Like what?" he asked.

He laughed toward D'Ornano. "This is an interesting country, eh D'Ornano?" He turned again to Marie. "Don't be afraid. A pretty woman has no reason to be afraid of Napoleon, Marie. Marie—Marie what?"

"Walewski, Sir."

"Make a note, D'Ornano. Marie Walewski. What are you doing here, Marie?"

"I—had to come, Sir," her voice was barely audible.

"Had to?" he asked quickly. "You were sent." He frowned. "By whom?"

"No one, Sir."

"You were sent by whom?" he repeated.

"By no one, Sir. You were in Poland—my country—at last!"

Voice trembling she continued. "The hour I had dreamed about since I was a little girl—she stopped, alarmed by her own impetuosity."

"A patriot!" Napoleon laughed. "And with a face like that! I must get to know the Poles better."

"The coach is ready, Sir," D'Ornano broke in.

"You've made a note of the name?" asked Napoleon.

"Yes, Sir."

Napoleon put out his hand and touched Marie's cheek. "Real," he murmured. "She's real." Sending his hand, he kissed her swiftly.

"Extraordinary," he said under his breath. "He turned and made for his coach and a moment later was gone into the night."

Marie stood there dazed. Stephan came up behind her hesitatingly. "You'll take cold, Your Excellency," he ventured.

She looked at him with unseeing, stony eyes, her hand caressing her lips where Napoleon had planted his kiss.

"That was Napoleon!" she whispered exultantly.

FORD offers two new cars for 1938—the Standard Ford V-8 and the De Luxe Ford V-8. They are different in appearance—but built to the same high standard of mechanical excellence—on the same chassis.

Because people liked our 1937 car so well, they bought more than of any other make. They liked its looks, its smooth performance, and the way it handled. We have improved on that car in the newly styled Standard Ford V-8.

But some folks wanted still more size and style, with the same Ford advantages. For them, we designed a new De Luxe line.

The De Luxe Ford V-8 Sedans are longer with more room, larger luggage space, and finer appointments all around.

De Luxe cars are equipped with the 85-horsepower engine only.

The Standard is even lower priced than the De Luxe. It has graceful new lines and well-tailored interiors—with a choice of engine sizes—85 or 60 horsepower.

Before Ford made V-type 8-cylinder engines available to every one, they were used only in expensive cars. Since then, four million Ford owners have learned the genuine enjoyment of driving an eight-cylinder car with all-around economy.

The thrifty '60" engine, especially, makes possible in Standard models a very low first cost and equally low operating cost.

With two distinct designs, two engine sizes and two price ranges, you'll find a 1938 Ford car to fit your needs exactly.

PRICES FOR CARS DELIVERED IN DETROIT—TAXES EXTRA.

Standard Ford V-8 (60 hp.)—Coupe, $599; Tudor, $644; Forder, $689. Standard Ford V-8 (85 hp.)—Coupe, $629; Tudor, $669; Forder, $714. De Luxe Ford V-8 (85 hp. only)—Coupe, $689; Tudor, $729; Forder, $774; Convertible Coupe, $774; Club Coupe, $749; Convertible Sedan, $904.

Standard and De Luxe cars equipped with bumpers, bumper guards, spare wheel, tire, tube, tire lock and band, cigar lighter, twin horns, and headlight beam indicator on instrument panel, at no extra charge.

In addition, De Luxe cars are equipped with extra tail light, windshield wiper, sun visor; also de Luxe steering wheel, glove compartment lock, clock, and chrome wheel bands, at no extra charge.

Mountain Scorcher Gives Graphic Story Of 1927 Flood; Morehead Streets Flooded

High Waters Came Fast And Receded Swiftly, Paper Says

NOTE: This is one of a series of articles appearing in the Mountain Scorcher which will be produced each week. The Scorcher was edited by S. S. Cassidy until his death. It was then taken over by Mrs. Cassidy who operated the popular publication until she died a short time afterwards. The following article appeared under the date of January 4 and depicts the date of 1927 under the headline:

IN PLANNING A BUILDING, BRIDGE OR BOUDOIN You've GOT TO KNOW YOUR STUFF

Every great project is the result of a plan. The Glenmore formula is a plan—never changed since 1901. Result—full-flavored Bourbon—Kentucky Straight Bourbon—the whiskey of a lifetime.

Glenmore
KENTUCKY STRAIGHT BOURBON WHISKEY

"Largest Flood in History of Rowan County."

"Sunday morning about 9 o'clock the clouds began to gather, lightning began to flash, and soon there was a down pour of rain such as never before had been seen in Morehead. The little creek of Triplet soon became a raging river and by one o'clock some people who lived in the lowlands began to realize they must leave their homes for higher ground. By three o'clock in the morning the water was up to Main street covering the entire streets of Railroad street and Fairbanks street. Carey Avenue and Mill Street. Such a time was never seen in Morehead by the oldest citizens and let it be hoped there will never be another time like it.

"We could not begin to tell of the terrible scene of seeing our own dear people run from their homes, some clad only in night clothing, no hope of returning home; all they had washed away. The home of Mrs. Cash Conn was washed several hundred feet down stream, destroying it and almost all the furniture.

"Alfred Jones' home in the Caudill and Maggard addition was washed down stream and lodged against a large tree.

"The Jones home, it is said, is beyond repair. The six-room cottage belonging to Miss Jewel Toliver and occupied by James Layne and family was washed several yards below and damaged considerably. The furniture of Mrs. Toliver and Mrs. Layne was almost destroyed. There were some gold fish in the living room and next day they were found in the room all covered with mud. They were 'fished' out given a bath and don't seem to be any the worse for their experience.

"The home of Mr. and Mrs. John Nickell was surrounded by water before the family woke up and they were unable to get out of the house for several hours. They stood on beds and tables until rescued.

"The hope of Custer Ramey was considerably damaged, the furniture, which included a new piano, was almost entirely destroyed.

"The Commercial Cottage Hotel was considerably damaged by water and mud. Mrs. M. E. Boggs was also a heavy loser, being almost a total loss. Besides the damage to the house, considerable damage was done to the home of Linn Martin, the furniture on the first floor being damaged a great deal, besides the damage to the house. The garage and barn washed some distance destroying two cars, one for Mr. Martin and one for Charley Jones.

"It is thought that the Morehead Coal and Lumber Company and the Caudill-Blair Grocery Co. were the heaviest losers. The Lumber Company estimated their loss at some where between twelve thousand and fifteen thousand dollars, while it is said the grocery company's loss will be something like twelve thousand dollars. V. Hunt and Company's loss is between three and four thousand dollars. Sam Allen's grocery was damaged to the extent of one hundred and fifty dollars, as was also the McKinney Bros' shoe shop. In fact, all who do any business on Railroad street were damaged to a great extent.

The loss to the Home Bakery in supplies, etc., was more than five hundred dollars. Mr. Horseman's undertaking establishment suffered quite a loss, several caskets being ruined. John Allen's Meat Market was damaged from six to eight hundred dollars. The Cash Grocery store, and the Reynold's Feed store's losses were very heavy. The home of J. A. Ambury and G. W. Bezzard, Henderson Adams, Prof. W. L. Jayne and Boyd McCullough, on Fairbanks street were all flooded and damaged by water and mud. The families who live on Mill street had to all vacate. The homes of A. L. Miller, John Will Holtbrook, J. A. Anglin, and Carl Elam were all flooded with water and the furniture badly damaged as well as some of the buildings. The towns of Clearfield, Blue Stone, Rockville, and Farmers for awhile, very little damage was done at Farmers, but at Rockville the school house was washed down on the Midland Trail, and homes were damaged by water and mud.

"Senator S. M. Bradley was also a heavy loser in lumber, ties, etc."

"At the bustling town of Haldeman, there was some damage done to the property in the valley, it being under water for several hours. The people who lived some distance from the creek were not hurt any."

"The Morehead and North Fork R. R. was considerable loser, wires were down and they could not get into communication with the agents along the road to see just what damage was done to them."

"The home of Lionel Fannin, near the depot, was washed down stream for some distance and badly damaged. Mr. Fannin is having it moved back to the lot where it washed from.

"The Rowan County News office, A. B. McKinney's grocery store and the meat market of Daniels and Havens were all flooded and each suffered some loss. The Morehead State Bank and the City Drug store as well as all the buildings close by were flooded. "Morehead always comes to the front when its people are in distress. Homes were thrown open to the victims of the flood and they were given relief and cared for until the local Red Cross took charge and things have been made as comfortable as it is possible. The Morehead Women's Clubs each helped with the caring for our unfortunate neighbors and friends."

"Reports from over the most part of the county, in the storm which was general in Elliott county it is reported that there were some deaths from the storm, however, we could not get any authentic report from there."

"The water soon left Bishop avenue, Fairbanks street, Mill street and Carey avenue, and people who lived on these streets were soon back in their homes. Most all of them have moved into their homes again except the ones whose homes must be repaired."

"We are glad it was no worse and we are proud that when disaster of any kind comes to Morehead that the citizens are always ready and willing to come to the rescue."

"Much livestock was killed and crops damaged."

Governor Chandler, 7 Others Are Sued

Action Is Outgrowth Of Election County

Governor A. B. Chandler and seven other persons were named defendants in three damage suits.

"We are glad it was no worse and we are proud that when disaster of any kind comes to Morehead that the citizens are always ready and willing to come to the rescue."

"Much livestock was killed and crops damaged."

"The weather since Thursday has been ideal for the handling of tobacco and millions of pounds have been bulked down throughout the burley belt since Thanksgiving. Lights in which growers are taking full advantage of the soft weather to get their crops down so stripping and hauling can be pushed as rapidly as possible."

A large quantity of the 1937 burley crop already has been

Deputy Sheriff Ben Unthank. They charge the defendants with conspiracy and causing their false arrest and imprisonment. The plaintiffs were among the 41 deputy sheriffs and precinct election officials who were arrested on assorted charges and jailed incommunicado for several hours election day. Subsequent charges either were dismissed or the defendants acquitted.

The latest actions bring to 14 the number of suits that have arisen from the election day troubles. The governor was named among others in six previous suits.

Lexington Tobacco Floors May Not Be Full For Opening

Possibility That Capacity Of Warehouses May Not Be Used For Initial Sale

FARMERS ANTICIPATE PROFITABLE PRICES

Most Of State Weed Crop Is Reported To Be In Good Condition

A possibility that the Lexington tobacco market may not be full for its opening sale Monday loomed yesterday despite the two days of excellent weather for the handling of the tobacco on the farms.

Early reports this week were that the 24 warehouses in Lexington had on their floors approximately 3,000,000 pounds of leaf, but with an additional ten million pounds necessary to fill the incunable capacity floors for the opening sale of the auctioneer.

Representative breaks for next Monday are assured, however. Tobacco was moving to the market in a rather heavy volume this week and much heavier receipts are anticipated throughout the week.

The weather since Thursday has been ideal for the handling of tobacco and millions of pounds have been bulked down throughout the burley belt since Thanksgiving. Lights in which growers are taking full advantage of the soft weather to get their crops down so stripping and hauling can be pushed as rapidly as possible."

A large quantity of the 1937 burley crop already has been stripped out but until late last week was too hard to be handled and brought to Market. Much of this leaf is expected to find its way to the sales floor later in the week.

Oscar Penn, oldest of the three Penn Brothers, who hold the distinction of being the largest growers in the burley belt, said Saturday that he had finished stripping of between 75,000 and 80,000 pounds from his 250,000-pound 1937 crop, produced on the Newtown pike about six miles from Lexington.

Warehousemen on the Lexington market will meet Saturday of this week to draw for positions in the sales circuit; the results of this drawing will determine at what five of Lexington's 24 warehouses opening sales will be conducted next Monday.

Sales Supervisor Ben Roworth has just about completed his work of remarking all of the Lexington warehouse floors to limit their aggregate capacity to 35,400 baskets, just the number that Lexington's five acts of buyers can strip in six days, assuring complete clearance of the market in that time.

WORLD-WIDE TOBACCO AND COMMERCE NEWS

Arrivals of American leaf tobacco into Poland in the second half of 1937 reflected 42 per cent in volume and 37 per cent in value.

On March 31, 1937, there were 6,834 tobacco factories in operation in Germany, employing 167,764 people, embracing 3,689 cigar factories, with 87,741 employees, 122 cigarette factories, with 14,328 employees, 2,242 combination factories, pipe and chewing tobacco factories, with 46,151 employees and 331 factories manufacturing other tobacco products, 18,546 workers.

Japanese exports of canned tuna and mackerel declined more than 96 per cent during July of this year compared with the previous month of June and 36 per cent compared with the corresponding period of last year.

Due to the fact that Istanbul, with a population of more than 750,000 has no proper sewage disposal facilities, the Turkish Government is being strongly urged to supply the need for modern sewerage plants.

Recent purchases of new tonnage which will add about 300,000 tons of steamers to the Greek Merchant Marine will materially assist the rejuvenation of the country's shipping.

The transit railway freight traffic across Polish territory during the first half of 1937 reflected an increase of about 70 per cent compared with the corresponding period of last year.

In the third quarter of 1937, exports of iron and steel produced from the United States aggregated 1,155,983 gross tons valued at $49,880,468 in mounting to the highest quarterly level since 1920.

The vast majority of mandarin oranges exported from Japan are sent to Great Britain, where they are very popular, and during 1936 826,475 cases or almost 82 per cent of the entire amount exported was consigned to the British Isles. Shipments to the United States were valued at $2,681,000, occupied second place with 2.2 per cent in 1936, which was 8.2 per cent of the exports.

Sales of American cotton piece goods in South Africa increased from a quarter of a million to nearly a million yards during the first half of this year compared with the corresponding period of 1936.

A census of several Chinese and foreign importers and the larger Chinese dispensaries at Shanghai, in late September, revealed that stocks on some important medicinal chemicals and supplies were either exhausted or running low.

During September, exports of beef from New Zealand ports to New York amounted to 829 tons, or beef quarters and 1,640 bags of boneless beef.

Exports of aeronautical equipment from the United States in September of this year were valued at $3,187,109 compared with $1,934,456 for the corresponding month of 1936.

TROUT CAUGHT FASTER THAN THEY ARE PLANTED

Just pouring a few cans full of trout into a stream and leaving them to the anglers isn't enough according to advisers to the Commerce Department's Louisville District Office from the Bureau of Fisheries.

Unless that method is improved upon, there will be more and more disappointed fishermen, the Bureau believes. In Furnace Brook, Vermont, where the Bureau has caught a check on anglers and their catches for three years, the catch has been declining steadily since 1935. In that year the total catch was 8,589 trout, in 1936 it dropped to 6,995; and in 1937 it was only 6,385.

This decline took place, moreover, in spite of heavy stocking. An especially surprising feature of the decline is the fact that it has been confined almost entirely to brook trout, which the Bureau has stocked; while rainbows, which have not been stocked, have held their own fairly well.

Operation of the test streams has convinced the Bureau's fishery experts that planting must be supplemented by a scientific plan of stream management if adequate stocks of trout are to be maintained in fishing waters from year to year.

Recent purchases of new tonnage which will add about 300,000 tons of steamers to the Greek Merchant Marine will materially assist the rejuvenation of the country's shipping.

Exports of aeronautical equipment from the United States in September of this year were valued at $3,187,109 compared with $1,934,456 for the corresponding month of 1936.

MEXICO PUSHES BIG ROAD BUILDING PROGRAM

Encouraged by the obvious results to national economy resulting from the profitable flow of tourist traffic over the Laredo-Mexico City highway, Mexico is devoting increased appropriations and activities toward extending the highway system of the country.

Outstanding in the program will be the construction of a highway which will link Mexico City with Nogales, Arizona via Guadaluajara, a total distance of 1,553 miles.

It is hoped that the highway will be completed by November, 1938. Another project in extension of the Pan American highway from Mexico City to Sclachate, a Guatemalan border town, distance of 901 miles from Mexico City.

BUSINESS IN SMALL TOWNS SHOW 'GAINS'

Daily average sales of general merchandise in small towns and rural areas for October were about 3 1/2 per cent above October of last year, and, with the exception of December, 1936 and December, 1937 were higher than for any month during the past nine years.

Total sales for the first ten months of 1937 showed an increase of about 8 1/2 per cent compared with the corresponding period of 1936.

Rooms of glass are planned for the new building at San Francisco's 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition.

TEST EVAPORATION IN CURING TOBACCO

In tests in fire-curing dark tobacco at the Western Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station at Princeton, the average loss of water was found to average 890 gallons to the acre, by the time curing was complete.

For each 100 pounds freshly cut and hung on sticks, 25 pounds remained when wilted, 32 pounds when yellowed, 25 pounds when colored and 18 pounds when the leaf and stems were dry but the stalks still green. Or, for a single stick of tobacco weighing 30 pounds when cut, 22 1/2 pounds remained when wilted, 18 when yellowed, 7 1/2 when colored and 5 1/2 when the leaves and midribs were dry. Approximately two-thirds of the original weight was lost by evaporation of water during the first 10 days the tobacco was in the sun.

NEW CANCER TREATMENT

Cancer kills about 150,000 persons in this country each year. Scientists have long sought a way to fight this dread disease. So far, radium and X-rays have been most successful. But they were too costly for many patients.

Now a new, cheaper treatment has been found. It was discussed at a recent convention of the American College of Surgeons.

The new treatment consists of chilling the cancer cells. This keeps them from growing rapidly and spreading to other parts of the body. It helps to end pain.

10c STORE SALES ARE BETTER THIS YEAR

Daily average sales of variety stores for October were about one per cent above October, 1936, according to preliminary estimates just received by the Louisville District Office of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

The increase from September to October of this year was considerably less than the usual seasonal amount. The total value of sales for the first ten months of the year was about 4 per cent above that for the corresponding period of 1936.

WE BUY LESS FRENCH CIGARETTE PAPER

During the first three-quarters of this year exports of cigarette paper from the Nantes, France, Consular District to the United States amounted to 3,683,000 pounds, valued at $83,774, compared with 4,647,677 pounds valued at $2,629,449, exported during the corresponding time last year.

The heavy decrease in exports was attributed to the smaller demand in the United States, as well as to the removal of the larger paper.

Washington Leads In College Sports Says Commentator

University of Washington leads the field in college sports, according to John R. Tunis, famed commentator. Tunis refuses to be bowled by the Big Shols of the Pittsburgh, whose pigskin record is admittedly top.

"Football may be the most glamorous of sports," writes Tunis, in the current College Humor, "but other activities must also be considered when determining the athletic standing of a college or university." "Superior to the world over on the water with its crew, up front in football, basketball and minor sports like swimming and skiing, Washington clearly takes the blue ribbon."

EGYPT'S CIGARETTE MAKERS ASK HELP

Manufacturers of cigarettes in Egypt are appealing to the government for assistance in an endeavor to restore the cigarette export trade of that country to its former position of importance.

Producers of cigarettes are particularly active in pressing for an additional drawback on exports and are also endeavoring to have the government establish a free zone in Egypt for the manufacture of cigarettes.

In support of their claims for assistance to improve existing conditions in the trade, the manufacturers have cited to the government instances in which a local concern has established a branch factory in a foreign country in order to obtain the benefits of more favorable trading conditions.

Capitol Comments

Unless there is some uncharted trouble lurking in the office, legislature will convene January 4 (without the customary winter day and night of caucusing and organizing which usually precedes the launching of a session of the Kentucky General Assembly. . . . In past years Senators and Representatives milled and milled from dawn the day preceding the opening until dawn the day of the opening day, laying plans selecting leaders, asking and bestowing favors. . . . The present administration's plans are so well-laid that there will be little left for the Senators and Representatives to do, other than ride over to Frankfort, get their name in the pot and stick strictly to business.

With the exception of selecting a representative to be floor leader in the House, virtually all posts are filled or rather the man has been selected to fill the post and all that is now necessary has been gone thru the routine of selecting him by vote. . . . The Senate will be much the same in last session, with the exception of President Pro Tem. . . . by virtue of his office as Lieutenant Governor, Keen Johnson will be President of the Senate. . . . Senator Edwin C. Dawson, of New Haven, is listed for the President Pro Tem job. . . . Ralph Gilbert is billed to succeed himself as majority floor leader. . . . In the House John Kinley will again occupy the Speaker's seat. . . . The majority floor leader has not been mentioned. . . . John H. Hession, Louisville is seeking the post. . . .

The state's income tax yield for the first year of its existence exceeded expectations by more than two million dollars and it was well that it did. . . . The bulk of the last installment of the tax already in the cash register there were $4,639,227.55 accounted for. . . . All taken in within the compass of a year. . . . That amount represents $2,439,337.55 more than was anticipated. . . . This offset the shortage from receipts from Whiskey tax. . . . When anticipating the whiskey tax for the year the anticipators apparently failed to take several things into consideration, any one of which might cut into the production of liquor. . . . One was the filling of warehouses. . . . another was the making of more liquor than was demanded on the market and another was the high price of grain which caused several plants to either halt activities or curtail production.

The largest building program ever attempted by any chief executive of the state, added another project to his list this week. . . . A new prison for women. . . . This new institution will be located in Shelby County some fifteen miles from the new penitentiary in Oldham County. . . . This plant is located in the Pine Bluff Community on a 220 acre farm donated to the state by the Federation of Women's Clubs of Kentucky. . . . This farm was obtained by this organization during the World War for the purpose of making a home for unmarried mothers. . . . This plan was never carried out. . . . Plans for the new women's prison have been completed. . . . They call for $130,000 cottage type prison. . . . At present there are about 100 women prisoners in the state. . . . They are confined in an old school building in Frankfort. . . .

Last week this writer made a few passing remarks about the State's Tobacco situation. . . . Since that time and as the time for the market to open draws closer, the assurance that this will be a banner year on the breaks, so far as points are concerned, is verified by reports from all sections. . . . The latest figures obtainable show that there will be no less than 343 million pounds of Kentucky Grown tobacco to go to the market between December 6 and the end of the sales season. . . . That this will be a top year is shown by the houses preparation. . . . Most of the leaf plants are planning on having extra personnel. . . . Governmental unemployment agencies are furnishing a lot of the labor that will be used. . . .

TOBACCO SALES IN ARGENTINA GAIN
Imports of leaf tobacco into Argentina in the first nine months of 1937 were recorded at 14,370,596 pounds compared with 12,608,300 pounds imported in the corresponding period of 1936. . . . Purchases from the United States in this period totaled 3,475,438 pounds compared with 2,159,542 pounds in the same period of last year, an increase of 61 per cent.

LIME, PHOSPHATE NOT ENOUGH TO IMPROVE SOIL

Too often farmers think that when they have limed and fertilized their land with phosphate so that legumes can be grown, the continued use of this treatment is all that is necessary to keep their land productive after growing a good legume crop the yield of corn or tobacco may be so much better than previously that it would appear that they are justified in their belief. However, when something is added to the soil to make it produce more, ob-

Logan To Remain In Senate—Report

Would Refute Rumors That Juneteenth Would Seek Juggiehip

The appointment of Fred M. Vinson, of Ashland, as a federal judge of the Court of Appeals of District of Columbia honors the dean of the Kentucky delegation in the lower house of Congress, second in point of service only to Democratic floor leader, Senator Alben W. Barkley, says Tom Underwood in the Lexington Herald.

Mr. Underwood continued: "Mr. Vinson's appointment removes him as a factor in state political activities, for the appointment of the congressman had been mentioned from time to time as a prospective aspirant for future nominations for governor or senator."

"Judge Vinson followed former Governor William Jason Fields to Congress. A special congressional election will be called in the district and the committee composed of county chairmen will be called together to make a nomination with Joe Bates, county clerk of Greenup, slated for the honor."

The appointment of Mr. Vinson to an office for which Senator M. M. Logan, of Bowling Green, had been mentioned means that Senator Logan will give out his term, thus setting to rest rumors that he might resign.

"Senator Logan meanwhile is busy with a new three-district federal court plan introduced by him. However, it is believed that this plan was drafted by the Department of Justice without much advice from any of the senators and congressmen in Washington and with few suggestions from the judges Elwood Hamilton, of the western district, H. Church Ford, of this district, and Mac Swinford of the state-at-large."

"The measure probably will not be passed at this special session of Congress. It gives an indication, however, of what may be offered at the next session."

Forty-five per cent of the visitors to the 1936 Golden Gate International Exposition will journey to California from the Western states.

HOMEMAKERS STAGE PROGRAM FOR PEACE

Dressed in native costumes of 10 countries, members of homemakers' clubs in Hart county staged a peace program at Muncie before an audience of 400 people. The hired band furnished music, and leading parts were taken by M. Botto, teacher of vocational agriculture, Miss Elizabeth Word, county home demonstration agent, and leaders and members of 10 clubs.

Following music by the band, women representing the different countries, and carrying the flags of those countries, marched, drilled and joined in folk games. A representative of each nation also spoke in the interests of world-wide peace.

viously the larger yields draw more heavily upon all the plant nutrients in the soil and exhaust those not added much more rapidly. For example, if the yield of crops is doubled, as is often the case when lime and phosphate are used, the draft on potash is twice as great, and unless provision is made for returning potash to the soil a time will come when crops will not get enough and yields will be seriously reduced. Potash starvation shows up quicker on tobacco and alfalfa than on other crops, but even corn will sooner or later be affected.

Fortunately, most of the potash used by grain crops is in the stalks and straw, and much of that used by tobacco is in the stalk. Also, about nine tenths of the potash in feed consumed by animals is excreted in the manure, but about two thirds of it is in the liquid manure. If manure is carefully saved and used for bedding or returned to the soil, then the potash supply will be maintained on most Kentucky soils for most crops. However, it will usually be profitable to use some potash in the fertilizer for tobacco, unless manured very liberally, and alfalls grown long on the same land will almost certainly suffer from a potash shortage unless the ground is manured or potash fertilizers are used along with other needed fertilizers. . . . Although good legume crops may be grown in a rotation, they will not keep a sufficient nitrogen supply for other crops if they are removed and no manure is returned. Fortunately, about three fourths of the nitrogen in the feed of animals is recovered in the manure, but much of it is in the urine and can be saved only by using sufficient bedding.

YOUNG MUSICIAN

Expectant stillness hung on the great hall. Voices were silent, eyes were focused on a young lad, sitting there with folded arms. Before the long expanse of ivory keys, listening intently for his well-known cue.

How many hours of patient effort lay back of that high, rich moment of delight? So the young Mozart might have sat and played.

Forgetting self, lost in the orchestra's exquisite tones. Thundering along the keys with brilliant speed.

Or joining the deep throbs of tender passages, sublimely sweet. Silence—and then the pianist turned from the instrument.

A little led once more; Awed by the sudden thunder of applause. Awkward and shy and eager to be off.

Wondering, perhaps, that people thought it strange. That he should play with such surprising skill. Did they not understand that he must play.

Must study, practice, work for his great dream? That which was strange and wonderful to them. Was but the surging and familiar part.

Of the great symphonies that ever sang. Their soaring music in his youthful heart. —Eleanor G. R. Young

The Awful Truth Is College Feature Comedy Film With Plenty Of Laughs On Screen At Local Theatre

"The Awful Truth" is the only thing awful about it is that it is so funny. Entertaining, it is a comedy with short winks and weak stomachs. You can't laugh up-tilting your head for several minutes without being able to take it.

Mainly responsible for this situation is the beautiful Irene Dunn whose deft clowning as Lucy Warner tops her Theodora for laughs.

Coming to the screen from the witty pen of Vina Delmar, author of "Bad Girl," "The Awful Truth" depicts the marital misadventures of the Warners, played by Miss Dunn and Cary Grant.

At this point in the story Mr. Smith makes his entrance. Mr. Smith is their wire-haired terrier, played by Skippy, seen as Asta.

"The Awful Truth" belongs on anyone's "must" list. It is brilliant high comedy, played with distinction and restraint, and never veers from its hilarious course.
