MOREHEAD, Ky.--A Morehead State University sophomore was awarded the United States Department of the Army's Achievement Medal in ceremonies on MSU's campus recently.

Anthony Dotson was recognized for his service in the recovery and identification of remains following the aircraft mishap in Gander, Newfoundland, which claimed the lives of 248 members of the 101st Airborne Division and eight crew members on Dec. 12, 1985.

At that time, Dotson an Army sergeant, volunteered to go to Dover Air Force Base in Delaware to assist in the identification and administrative processing. A computer operator, he spent 30 days, working 12 to 14 hours each day, updating data bases as the information became available and generating reports as needed.

Lt. Col. Alan Baldwin, MSU's Department of Military Science chair, presented Dotson with the commendation from the Secretary of the Army in recognition of his "exceptional contributions to Task Force at Gander in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service, reflecting great credit on him and the Department of Defense."

The son of Ernie Glen Dotson of Cleveland, Va., he was released from active duty last August. During his four years in the military, he was stationed in South Carolina, Indiana, and his last assignment was Ft. Myers, Va., where he worked at the Pentagon.

Dotson, now attending MSU on an ROTC scholarship, first visited the campus on recommendation of an army friend, alumnus Rick Hudnall (76). Majoring in business administration with a data processing option, he hopes to receive an active duty commission upon graduation.

According to Dotson, the hardest part of military life is making and losing friends but the best part is you have friends all over the world.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.--"Knowledge is Kentucky's greatest resource."

According to Dr. Gary S. Cox, executive director of the Kentucky Council on Higher Education, Kentucky must achieve two goals to be successful in the future.

"If we are to be competitive in the national and international economy, we must have educated citizens and we must develop leaders," he said.

Dr. Cox spoke at the "Celebration of Academic Excellence" banquet of Phi Kappa Phi-Pi Gamma Mu on Morehead State University's campus recently.

A 1966 graduate of MSU, Dr. Cox was initiated into Phi Kappa Phi as a distinguished alumnus. Initiates included four faculty members and 72 students also.

To an audience of nearly 200 students, parents and faculty members, he cited reasons why today's young people should consider higher education in their future.

"High school education, and even postsecondary education is not an 'economic value' any more," he said. "It is a necessity for survival."

Citing statistics from a recent study for the Joint Economic Commission of Congress, Dr. Cox noted that the employment jobs created during the 1973-84 study period paid less than the median wage of 1973. While there were noteworthy changes in high tech and services, college graduates fared much better than the other categories.

According to Dr. Cox, these changes mean the economic gap is widening on the basis of educational levels. Low-paying jobs are replacing high paying ones even in sophisticated fields. "Without an education, a lot of young men and women today will have a much lower standard of living and far fewer opportunities for a meaningful life than their parents and older brothers and sisters have had," he said.

According to a study by Battelle Institute on Kentucky's economic future, predictions are that the state will need to create some 350,000 new jobs by the year 2000, with 80 percent of those jobs requiring workers with at least two years of postsecondary education.

2-2-2-2-2-2

"The time is upon us now," said Dr. Cox. "We don't have 15 years. We have to convince the people of Kentucky now, not that there will be no jobs in the future for those without a solid educational background, but that there are no opportunities now."

Dr. Cox called for a massive retraining effort for a large part of our present workforce to begin at once.

Challenging the students in the audience to be Kentucky's next generation of leaders, Dr. Cox emphasized the need to change and accept new responsibilities.

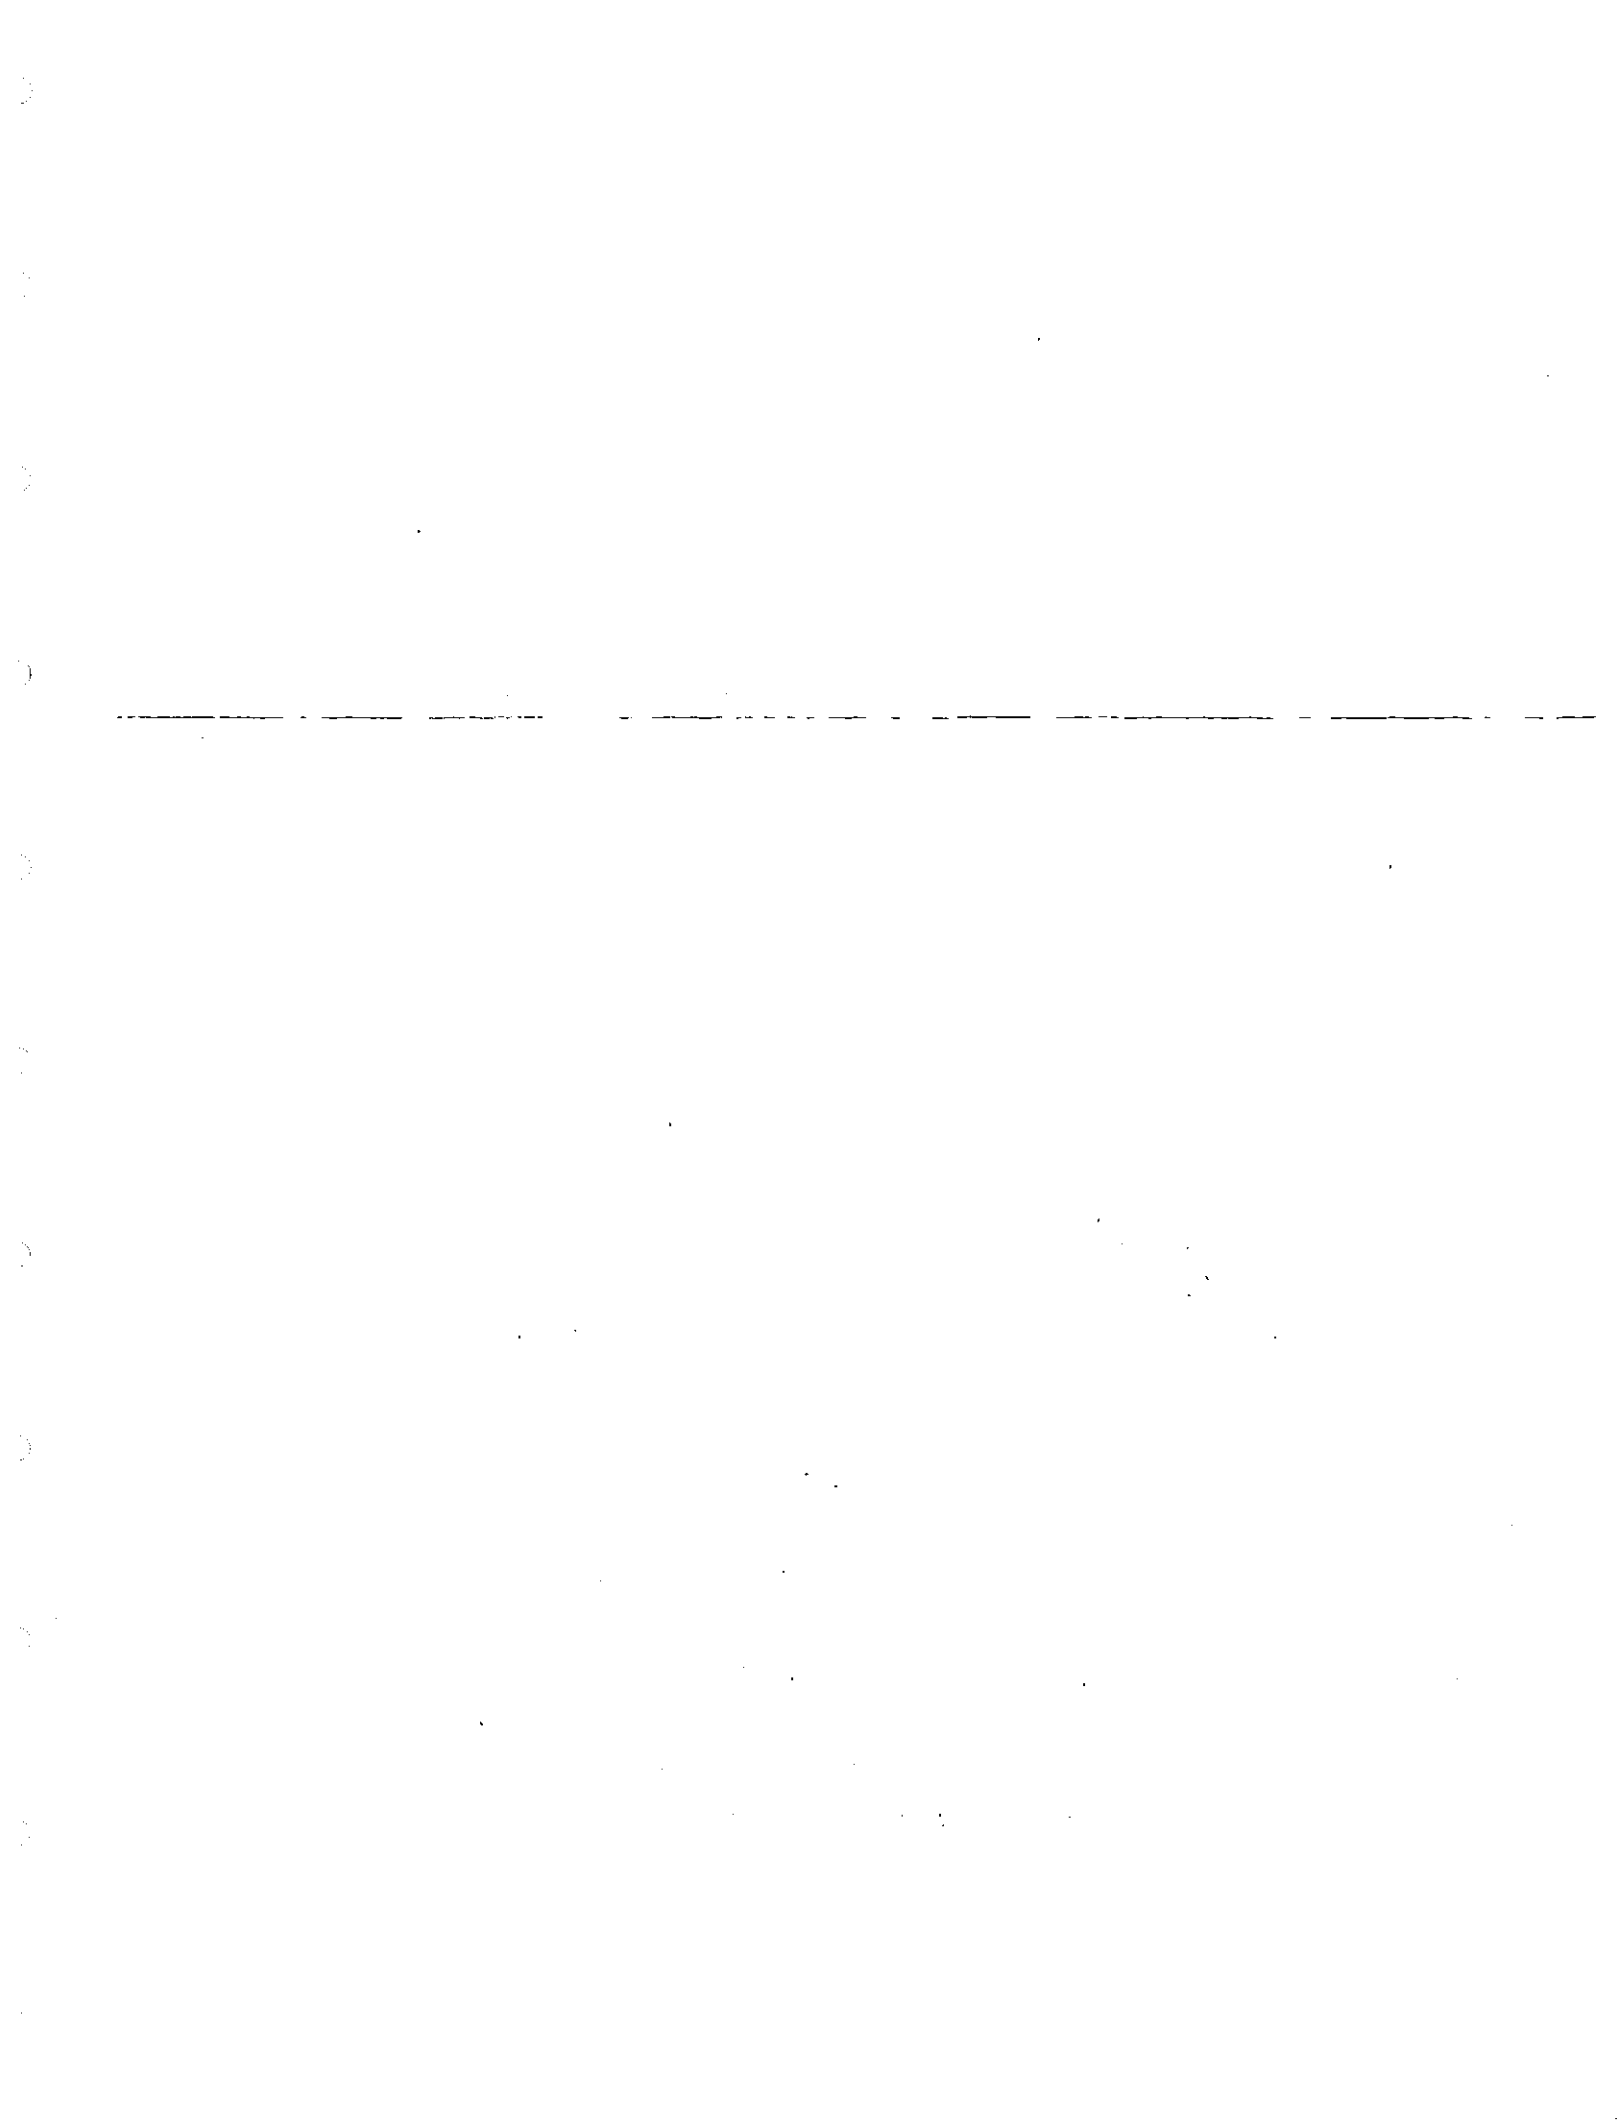

"Be willing to say: yes, we must support and pay for improvements in education. ~~We must graduate our high school students. We must get them into college. We must~~ move Kentucky forward," he said.

Dr. Cox told the audience that the future lies in the hands of our youth. "You have two choices: prepare yourselves to lead this state to recognize the value of our greatest natural resource--an educated citizenry--or watch Kentucky decline further. There really is only one choice for a brighter future."

NOTE: Dr. Blumberg, the Nobel Prize-winning scientist, will be available to the media for interviews at 9:30 a.m. Monday, April 13, in the Riggle Room, Adron Doran University Center. Please contact the Office of Public Information if you plan to be present.

April 4, 1987

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Dr. Baruch Samuel Blumberg, winner of the 1976 Nobel Prize in Medicine, will present a special seminar at Morehead State University on Monday, April 13.

Dr. Blumberg will discuss the "Biology of Liver Cancer" with MSU science students, faculty and members of the medical community at 10:20 a.m. in the Riggle Room, Adron Doran University Center.

His campus appearance was arranged by Dr. David Magrane, MSU professor of biology, with the cooperation of the McDowell Cancer Network.

Dr. Blumberg, a 61-year-old New York native, won the Nobel Prize for the work he and his colleagues did at Fox Chase Cancer Center in Philadelphia in identifying the hepatitis B virus. In the years that followed, additional research showed the causal connection of hepatitis B and liver cancer.

Dr. Blumberg's discoveries resulted from his work in exploring ethnic and geographic differences in blood proteins which could be used as clues to inherited differences in susceptible people.

Dr. Blumberg currently is the Ashland Oil Foundation Visiting Professor at the University of Kentucky. He earned his Doctor of Medicine degree from Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons and holds a Ph.D. degree in biochemistry from Oxford University, England.

A senior member and associate director for clinical research at Fox Chase, Dr. Blumberg also holds faculty appointments in medicine and anthropology at the University of Pennsylvania.

In addition to the Nobel Prize, he has received numerous other awards for his work in medicine as well as 15 honorary degrees. He is a member of 16 professional societies, including the National Academy of Sciences. In 1984, he was named a fellow in the Royal College of Physicians.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Al Smith, editor and publisher of the London Sentinel-Echo, will speak at Morehead State University at 10:20 a.m. on Thursday, April 16, in Button Auditorium.

The general manager and vice president of Park Newspapers of Kentucky, Smith will discuss "Educational Reform and Economic Developments in Kentucky" as a lecturer on the Arts in Morehead (AIM) 1986-87 Concert and Lecture Series.

Admission will be by season membership in the series or by general admission tickets which may be purchased at the door. The cost is $5 for adults and $3 for youth age 8 and under. MSU students with valid I.D. cards will be admitted free.

Although he has edited and published newspapers in Kentucky for nearly 30 years, Smith is widely known to Kentuckians as moderator and producer of "Comment on Kentucky," a weekly program on government and politics which he started for Kentucky Educational Television in 1974. He has moderated KET's political debates, including all of the Governor's races, since 1975.

As a journalist and civic activist he has been interested in education, health care, the arts, industrial development, and professional training for journalists.

He is a past president of Kentucky Press Association and was elected to the University of Kentucky School of Journalism Hall of Fame when this program was started in 1981. He has lectured on weekly newspapers at various seminars of the American Press Institute at Reston, Va.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--A sense that Morehead State University is on the threshold of an "era of real progress"--one that he wanted to be part of--prompted MSU's new faculty regent to seek the post.

Dr. Alban L. Wheeler, professor of sociology, defeated three candidates to become the fifth MSU faculty member to serve on the board since the General Assembly created the faculty representative position in 1968.

He succeeds Dr. John R. Duncan, professor of education, who served two consecutive terms and declined to seek a third one. The new regent will assume his seat for a three-year term at the board's next meeting.

"I sense that the faculty wants to play a very active role in the direction that this University takes over the next few years," said Dr. Wheeler, who came to MSU in 1972 and has served in various roles from faculty member to administrator.

"We have a strong and able president coming to assume the leadership of the University and an outstanding Board of Regents. I see this as an exciting challenge, working with people of that stature on behalf of the faculty--the key to this institution's future," Dr. Wheeler said.

Pledging accessibility to his colleagues, Dr. Wheeler said he viewed the faculty regent's role as "one of several voices from the faculty to the administration and board."

Noting that he intended to use his "knowledge, skills and energies" to represent the faculty interests, he urged faculty members to make their concerns known and said he would always be willing to listen. "One thing I learned in this campaign was that the faculty wants its regent to be accessible," he said.

"I sincerely believe Morehead State is entering an era of growth and increased faculty participation in University governance. I think this faculty will accept Dr. (C. Nelson) Grote's challenge when he said, 'Together we can.' In this kind of partnership we can move the University toward a much higher level of excellence and service to its region," Dr. Wheeler said.

Wheeler

His main objective at the moment, according to Dr. Wheeler, is to continue the "healing process" seen this past year under the leadership of MSU President A.D. Albright.

"John Duncan has left some very large shoes to fill. He served with honor, dignity and courage during a period of turmoil," he said in praise of his predecessor.

"All of us want the same thing," Dr. Wheeler continued. "We want MSU to be a great University. The challenge is to bring the various segments of the institution together in a mutual effort to do just that."

The new regent earned his bachelor's and master's degrees from Mississippi College and his Ph.D. degree from Mississippi State University. Prior to coming to MSU, he was a faculty member and acting dean of students at Wayland College, Plainview, Texas.

A former dean of social sciences at MSU, Dr. Wheeler currently is teaching and this past year headed up the University's new Office of Undergraduate Regional Programs. The author of several articles for various publications, he is a member of numerous professional organizations, including the Southern Sociological Society and the Kentucky Academy of Science. He also is president-elect of the MSU Chapter, Phi Kappa Phi national honor society.

He and his wife, the former Sharon Louise Pepper, are the parents of a son, Darrell L. Wheeler.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Robert Pritchard, assistant professor of music at Morehead State University, has been appointed to the faculty of the first Governor's School for the Arts to be held in Louisville this summer.

Pritchard has taught flute and music theory at MSU since 1972 and has played principal flute with the Lexington Philharmonic since 1980. He holds a bachelor's degree from Florida State University and a master's degree from Duquesne University where he was an administrative assistant for the School of Music.

"His selection to this elite faculty of visual, performing and creative artists is a mark of distinction not only for Bob Pritchard, but for the Department of Music and University itself as well," said Dr. Roberta Anderson, MSU vice president for academic affairs.

"MSU's music program has earned a national reputation as one of quality because of the talents and dedication of faculty members like Bob Pritchard," she added.

Pritchard will join 11 other artists drawn from Kentucky, New York and Connecticut and David Thurmond, school director, for the three-week residential program at Bellarmine College July 5-26.

The school, founded by Gov. Martha Layne Collins and the General Assembly in 1986, offers participants an intensive program of study in the various arts at no cost other than transportation.

It was conceived to develop the artistic and creative skills of Kentucky's youth. Approximately 120 artistically-gifted high school sophomores and juniors, selected by auditions, will participate this year.

The Kentucky Department of the Arts and Kentucky Center for the Arts jointly administer the program.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University's Black Gospel Ensemble will observe its 19th annual Founders Day April 24-26 with a Gospel Music Workshop led by Wesley Boyd of Washington, D.C.

The workshop, part of MSU's Black Awareness Week programming, is expected to draw 50 students from colleges and universities in Kentucky and West Virginia, according to Roscoe Linton, Bardstown senior and president of the Black Gospel Ensemble.

The workshop begins with registration from 5 to 8 p.m. on April 24 in Waterfield Hall. The Office of Minority Student Affairs will sponsor a showing of the movie, "The Color Purple," at 10 p.m. in Breck Auditorium.

The participants will be greeted by MSU officials at a general session at 9 a.m. Saturday, April 25, in Breck, followed by a full day of workshop rehearsals. A Greek stepshow and dance is scheduled that evening at ADUC.

Capping the weekend will be a free, public concert by workshop participants at 3 p.m. Sunday, April 26, in Duncan Recital Hall.

Boyd, who will conduct the workshop sessions, is a graduate of Howard University, where he co-founded the University's Gospel Choir and established "The Celestial Sound," the first recognized gospel group on the campus.

He serves as business manager for the Richard Smallwood Singers and is on the board of trustees of the Edward Hawkins Music & Arts Seminar.

He is musical director of the New Theatre School and in 1979 established the Wesley Boyd Workshop Choir, composed of individuals from churches in Washington, D.C.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--The Young Kentucky Authors Workshop will be held Friday, April 24, from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at Morehead State University.

Two hundred and fifty Rowan County fifth graders are expected to participate in the workshop which will include presentations by Martha Stiles of Paris and George Ella Lyon of Lexington, who have written several works for children. Also, there will be a performance by professional storyteller Micki Stevens-Kaestner of Louisville. Finally, the students will share their own works, learn how to improve them and learn how to tell a story.

Dr. Ron Dabler, chair of the Department of English; Dr. Gene Young, assistant professor of English, and Connie McGee, a local storyteller, will help with the learning sessions.

"The purpose of the workshop is to encourage young writers, help them to improve their writing skills and to get them to use their imagination," said Shirley Blair, coordinator of clinical and field experiences for elementary education at MSU.

Sponsoring the workshop are the Kentucky Arts Council, Phi Delta Kappa honorary fraternity for educators, Morehead State University and the Rowan County School system.

In conjunction with the workshop, there will be a banquet at 6:30 p.m. in Adron Doran University Center with Lyon as guest speaker. The $6.50 per plate dinner is open to the public, but reservations are required. Prior to the banquet, from 6 to 6:30 p.m., there will be an autographing session. Additional information and reservations are available from Blair at 783-2256.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University will offer a three-day shortcourse on Bovine Artificial Insemination and AI Management at the Derrickson Agricultural Complex on May 18-20.

The classes will be taught by Fischer Harned, a Kentucky Artificial Breeders Association (KABA) field supervisor since 1969, and Dr. Andy Boston, MSU professor of agriculture. Sponsored by the University's Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources in cooperation with KABA, an affiliate of Select Sires, the AI shortcourse is open to any interested beef or dairy cattle producer as well as both college and high school students.

"Registration for the program is under way now and will continue through May 11," Dr. Boston said. A $25 deposit fee is due by the close of registration and checks should be made payable to KABA. The remainder, $50 for students and $125 for producers, is due on May 18.

The three days of coursework and "hands-on" practice provides participants with a practical knowledge of AI techniques. Study topics include the estrus cycle and breeding time; effects of feeds, minerals and vitamins on breeding efficiency; principles of genetics and pedigrees; and sire selection, as well as practice in insemination.

"All students successfully completing the training course, including passing a final examination, will receive certification as AI Technicians," Dr. Boston said. MSU students also may earn one college credit hour by enrolling in AGR 399(001) as listed in the Summer I class schedule.

Additional information may be obtained by calling Dr. Boston at (606) 783-2666.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Several students from Rowan County High School were award winners at the recent Eastern Kentucky Regional Foreign Language Festival held on Morehead State University's campus.

Students who achieved first place wins in French or Spanish competitions earned the right to compete at the state festival in May at the University of Kentucky. Students ranking first through third places in other languages also advance to the state competition, according to Mary Jo Netherton, MSU associate professor of French and coordinator for the regional event.

RCHS students winning first place awards in the various French categories included:

Kim Holt, written proficiency, senior level 1; Ingrid Quisgard, written proficiency, senior level 3; Glen Sibadogil, oral proficiency, senior level 3, and Deidre Glasser, oral proficiency, senior level 2, and the individual realia, senior level.

A group composed of Mary Sprague, Kathryn Huie and David Brewster won the French drama group, senior level. A RCHS choral group also took first place in the senior level chorus.

David White, who won the frameable art in Spanish at the senior level, also will go to the state competition as will Dori Williams, who took second place at the senior level in Russian written proficiency.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University's Camden-Carroll Library has received a rare collection of Civil War, local history and genealogy materials valued at more than $6,000.

The Pearl Bach--Hallie Day Blackburn Collection will be presented formally to the University on Tuesday, April 21, at 2 p.m., on the fifth floor of the library.

A reception, beginning at 1:30 p.m., will be held to honor the donor, Mrs. Hallie Day Blackburn of Dry Ridge, who served as senior extension librarian for the state Department of Libraries and Archives from 1954 to 1977.

Blackburn presented the collection to the library through the Morehead State University Foundation in memory of her mother, Mrs. Pearl Day Bach, a noted Eastern Kentucky genealogist.

The collection includes several Civil War period volumes, 32 file drawers of correspondence and other manuscripts on Eastern Kentucky genealogy and local history, and copies of a 19-volume diary kept from 1882 to 1930 by an Eastern Kentucky circuit preacher, the Rev. John J. Dicke.

MSU's library was chosen as the repository for this collection as a result of the efforts of former state librarian Charles F. Hinds who was aware of the extensive work in the genealogy of the region's families done by Dr. Stuart S. Sprague, MSU professor of history and noted Appalachian genealogist, according to Larry X. Besant, MSU libraries director.

"We are excited to receive this unique collection which has such special importance to this region," Besant said. "It will be a valuable tool for historical and social research."

The wife of William O. Blackburn, she was born in Cannel City and received her A.B. degree in education from the University of Kentucky in 1928. Continuing her studies at Pratt Institute, she earned the B.S. degree in library science in 1929.

Prior to joining the state library staff, she had been an assistant librarian at the then-Eastern Kentucky State College, librarian for Lexington's Henry Clay High School, assistant cataloger at the University of Kentucky Library, and librarian for Grant County Library in Williamstown.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University's Department of Nursing and Allied Health Sciences has received word that all of its December 1986 two-year nursing program graduates passed the national licensure examination.

The 20 December graduates were the second MSU nursing class to achieve this distinction, according to Dr. Betty Porter, department chair. "Last spring's class was the first one to have a 100 percent passage rate and now this group has repeated this achievement," she said.

The National Council Licensure Examination for Registered Nurses is a comprehensive two-day test covering what nursing professionals consider essential knowledge and skills necessary to be a good and safe practitioner, Dr. Porter explained.

"This accomplishment speaks to the quality of our students as well as to the outstanding instructional skills of the nursing program faculty," said MSU President A.D. Albright. "All of those involved should be proud of their efforts," he added.

"These results lend great credibility to the excellence of our nursing program," said Dr. Charles Derrickson, dean of MSU's College of Applied Sciences and Technology. "The exam tests the metal of both the faculty and students," he said and commended the department faculty and staff for their dedication.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Two noted Kentucky authors of children's works and a well-known storyteller will be featured at the Young Kentucky Authors Workshop on Friday, April 24, at Morehead State University.

They are: George Ella Lyon of Lexington, author of numerous books, poems and plays for children; Martha Bennett Stiles of Bourbon County, who has published eight children's books, and Micki Stevens-Kaestner of Louisville, who has appeared four times at the Corn Island Storytelling Festival.

Approximately 250 fifth graders from Rowan County are expected to participate in the workshop which is sponsored by the Kentucky Arts Council, Phi Delta Kappa honorary fraternity for educators, MSU and the Rowan County School system.

Slated to begin at 9 a.m. on Friday, sessions for the students will be held concurrently in Button Auditorium and Breckinridge Auditorium.

"The purpose of the workshop is to encourage children to write, illustrate and share their literary talents by exposing them to professionals in the craft," said Shirley Blair, MSU coordinator of clinical and field experiences and workshop director.

"Our young people live in one of the richest areas for storytelling and folklore--Appalachia--and these guests artists will help them to develop their own talents," Blair added.

With more than 100 poems appearing in various journals and anthologies, Lyon often draws on her Appalachian heritage for her works. She is the author of such books as "A Regular Rolling Noah" and "Father Time and the Day Boxes." Her play, "Braids," was produced at Transylvania University, selected for the Kentucky Foundation for Women's playwriting workshop and for a reader's theatre production during a University of Kentucky summer institute in 1986.

In addition to the workshop sessions, Lyon will be guest speaker at a banquet that evening in Adron Doran University Center. Reservations for the $6.50 per plate dinner may be made by calling Blair at 783-2256. The banquet will be preceded by an autograph session at 6 p.m.

Stiles has published stories for young people in Humpty Dumpty's Magazine, Ingenue, Seventeen and Co-Ed. She also has written for the New York Times. Her most recent book, published by Mcmillan, is "Sarah the Dragon Lady." Two of her historical novels, "One Among the Indians" and "The Strange House at Newburyport," have been republished in German and a third, "Darkness Over the Land," in French.

She is the winner of the Frankfort Arts Foundation 1984 Short Fiction Contest and the co-winner of the 1986 competition. She has taught adult education classes in creative writing at Ann Arbor, Detroit, and the University of Kentucky/Council on Aging's Carnahan House.

Regional storyteller Kaestner was the first Kentuckian ever to be selected for the New Storytellers part of the Corn Island Festival. Combining dramatics with rhythms, gestures and voice, she has continued the oral tradition of storytelling before live audiences, on radio and television.

She has performed at the Kentucky Center for the Arts, Kentucky Music Weekend, KET's production of "Storytelling: A Kentucky Tradition," the Greenbo Festival, the Jesse Stuart Festival, Carter Caves Writer's Workshop and the Girl Scouts Arts Festivals.

Also assisting with the workshop will be Dr. Ron Dobler, MSU's Department of English, Foreign Languages and Philosophy chair; Dr. Gene Young, assistant professor of English and local storyteller Connie McGee, who will share their storytelling techniques with the students.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--The Morehead State University Chapter of Alpha Epsilon Rho, the National Broadcasting Society, will present Kentucky Country in a benefit concert Wednesday, April 29, at 7:30 p.m. in Breckinridge Auditorium.

"Fiddling" its way into the hearts of country music fans across the country, Kentucky Country is composed of nine-year-old Nathan Ratcliff, his five-year-old sister Elizabeth and their seven-year-old cousin Sara Horton. Nathan and Sara originally appeared together as members of the Ratcliff Family Band.

The trio of traditional fiddlers/singers has performed before audiences nationwide from Kentucky's own Renfro Valley Barn Dance to Dollywood in Pigeon Forge, Tenn., and the Florida State Fair.

The youngsters have also appeared on Nashville Now, a nightly entertainment show on the Nashville Network, and the nationally syndicated country music television program Hee Haw.

Following this concert, Kentucky Country is scheduled to perform in Las Vegas, Nev.

General admissions tickets will be available at the door on the night of the concert at 50 cents per person. Proceeds from the concert will benefit the Alpha Epsilon Rho Scholarship Fund at MSU.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Betty M. Moran, a member of Morehead State University's academic affairs administrative staff, has been installed as vice president of the eight-state Southeastern Association of Educational Opportunity Programs Personnel (SAEOPP).

Moran, who has been at MSU since 1974, is director of the University's Academic Services Center. She previously served as special services coordinator and as a special service counselor.

SAEOPP is composed of more than 400 professionals involved in the Trio Programs of Upward Bound, Special Services and Talent Search and in Educational Opportunity Center, working to encourage high-risk secondary and postsecondary students to meet educational goals.

As vice president, Moran also will serve on the National Council of Educational Opportunity Association. She also is a member of its Governmental Relations Committee.

She is a former president of the Kentucky Association of Educational Opportunity Programs (KAEOPP) and in 1984 received KAEOPP's highest award, the Paul Luxmore Award for professional excellence. She is immediate past secretary of the Southeastern Association.

She earned her undergraduate degree from the University of Charleston (W.Va.) and her graduate degree from West Virginia University.

She is a member of Phi Delta Kappa and is active in the Morehead Woman's Club and the Morehead United Methodist Church. She and her husband, G.E. Moran Jr., have two children.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--After 15 years as director of alumni relations at Morehead State University, Don B. Young is leaving the post to return to the classroom.

Young has resigned, effective June 30, to rejoin MSU's faculty as an assistant professor of art, according to a joint announcement by MSU President A.D. Albright and Alumni Association President William L. (Bill) Phelps of Versailles.

"Leaving a job you really enjoy is never easy and I know I will miss alumni work," Young said, "but the University and the Alumni Association are going strong and the timing is right for new staff leadership in the alumni office. I will continue to serve the University's alumni, whenever appropriate, as a volunteer."

He added:

"I am looking forward to resuming my career as a teacher and to becoming a member of the Department of Art which is involved in several exciting projects."

Dr. Albright and Mr. Phelps said that a new director of alumni relations would be appointed as soon as possible and that Keith Kappes, MSU's director of university relations, would serve as acting director during the interim. Kappes, a member of Dr. Albright's staff, supervises the alumni, development and public information offices.

Phelps announced that Young's service to the Alumni Association would be perpetually recognized through the annual presentation of the "Don B. Young Award for Alumni Service" to the alumni volunteer of the year.

"Don Young has served the University and his fellow alumni with dignity and dedication for the past 15 years and we are deeply indebted to him," Phelps said. "We hope that the naming of this award will reflect the respect and admiration that he has earned during this period."

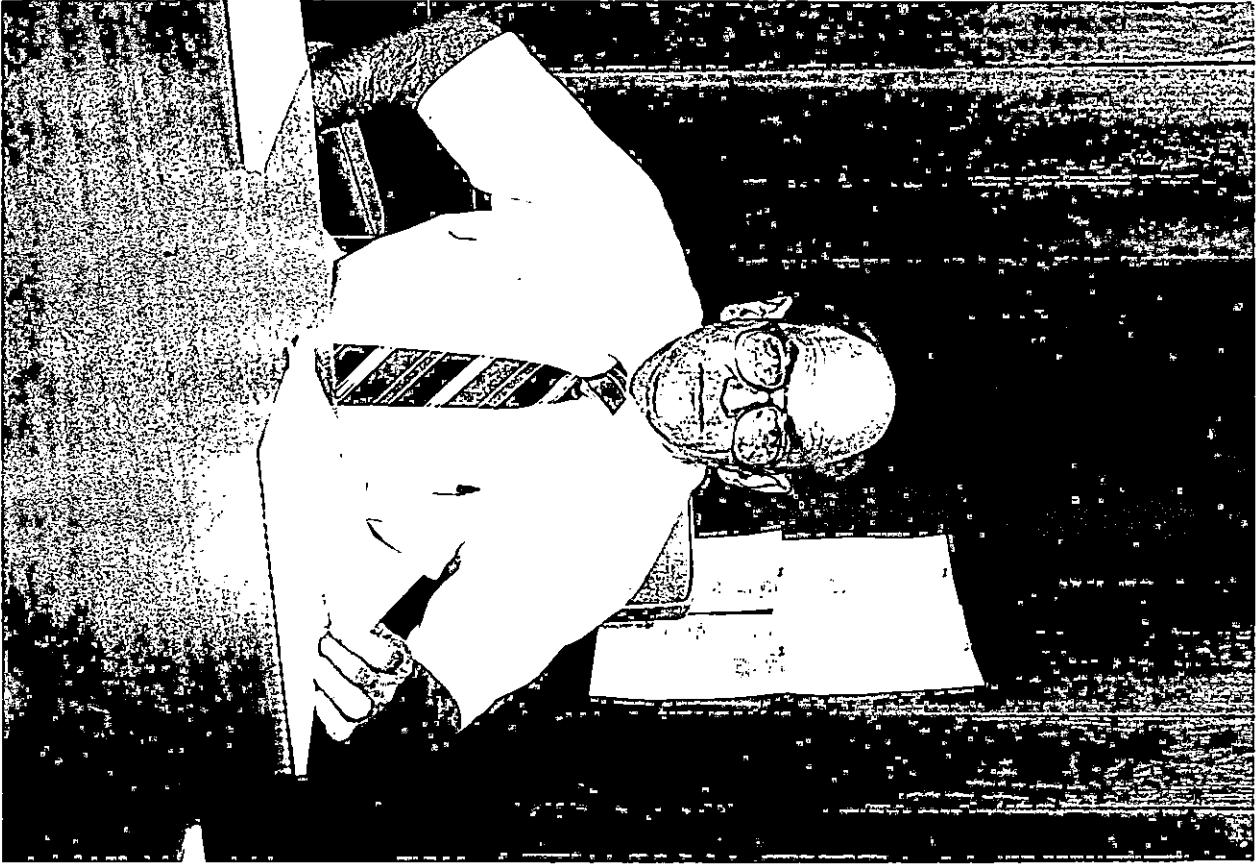

President Albright described Young as "a true professional in every sense of the word and a devoted graduate who has served the University with distinction."

He continued:

"From the opening of the Alumni Center in 1974 to the recent installation of a state-of-the-art computer system for alumni records, as well as many other improvements, Don Young has built a solid foundation in alumni relations which can be the starting point for even greater achievements in the future. We wish him well as he returns to the most important calling we have, that of teaching."

As alumni director, Young also served as executive vice president of the Alumni Association.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--A Morehead State University professor has had his second textbook published in less than six months.

Dennis Karwatka, associate professor of industrial education, is the senior author of "Energy, Power, and Transportation" published by Harcourt Brace Jovanovich Publishers earlier this year.

The illustrated, 352 page textbook is geared toward junior and senior high school students. It is designed to give comprehensive coverage of energy sources and systems we use to convert energy into power, according to Karwatka.

Sharing authorship with Michael Kozak, associate professor in the Department of Industrial Technology at North Texas State University, Karwatka was responsible for more than 60 percent of the textbook.

Karwatka's first book, "Introductory Auto Mechanics," was published by EMC Publishers last September and explained how all parts of the automobile work.

A Chicago native, Karwatka joined MSU's faculty in 1970. He received his B.S. degree from Rose Hulman Institute of Technology and the M.S. degree from Indiana State University.

He and his wife Carole have two children, Alex and Jill.

The MSU students present cancer information programs to 16 high schools in 10 eastern Kentucky counties. Entitled "Cancer: The Disease, Diagnosis and Treatment, Causes and Prevention," the program is targeted at high school biology classes and includes information on immunology, viruses, heredity, smoking and smokeless tobacco, and local county data on cancer.

"These programs have proven to be a very effective means of disseminating cancer education," said Dr. Magrane. A pre-test and post-test is given to all high school students who participate and results have proven significant gains in cancer knowledge, he added.

"One of the greatest satisfactions I gain from this course is taking these students into a high school, especially to their former school, and watching them confidently give an informative presentation," Dr. Magrane noted.

Student selection for the course is based on excellent grades, career goals (professional and/or research interests) and ability to communicate, according Dr. Magrane. Of the 21 students enrolled in the course during the last three years, 13 are currently attending medical school and three are in doctoral programs.

Student preparation includes reading and discussion of research articles, attending seminars and visitations to labs at the Markey Cancer Center in Lexington and the James Graham Brown Cancer Center in Louisville. Professionals at these centers give insights into the "cutting edge" of cancer research, said Dr. Magrane.

The course is supported by the Gateway Cancer District Council. Geri Hall, regional coordinator of the McDowell Cancer Network, assists Dr. Magrane with the high school programs while actual presentations are done by MSU students.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--"Music is an outlet for emotions and feelings," said Travis Miller of Leitchfield. "It's one thing I can do and feel satisfied."

A sophomore at Morehead State University, Miller is a music theory and composition major. He credits his parents, LaMont and Betty Miller, for getting him interested in this field.

"I have always been exposed to music from a very early age," he said. "I began taking music classes while in elementary school."

While he likes to visit with friends, he has a genuine love of music and spends a lot of time in music composition. One piece of his music was performed at a student recital and he frequently enters composition contests.

Each week he practices for several hours on the clarinet and has given a student recital on this musical instrument. He is a member of the Concert Symphony Band and the MSU Marching Band. Last spring, he was assistant coordinator with assistant professor Gene Norden for the Kentucky Music Educational Association Conference. He now is playing bass clarinet for the Kentucky All-Collegiate Band.

"He is a conscientious student," said Dr. William Bigham, professor of music and Miller's clarinet instructor. "He has been a faithful member of the Clarinet Choir."

Miller recently was cast in MSU's theatre production of Thieves Carnival. In his theatrical debut, he will portray the musician in the play which runs April 23-25.

He is a member of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia music fraternity and the MSU Players. He has served as treasurer of the Collegiate Music Educators National Conference.

What are his plans for the future? After completing a bachelor's degree, he plans to pursue a master's degree. "I want to teach at the university level sometime in the future," he said.

While he attributes the reputation of the Department of Music as the deciding factor in attending MSU, Miller relates to the community as well. "Morehead reminds me of my home town. It's a small town just like Leitchfield."

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University's Camden-Carroll Library has received a rare collection of Civil War, local history and genealogy material valued at more than $6,000.

The Pearl Bach--Hallie Day Blackburn Collection was presented formally to the University recently by the donor, Mrs. Hallie Day Blackburn of Dry Ridge, who served as senior extension librarian for the state Department of Libraries and Archives from 1954 to 1977.

Blackburn presented the collection to the library through the Morehead State University Foundation in memory of her mother, Mrs. Pearl Day Bach, a noted Eastern Kentucky genealogist.

The collection includes several Civil War period volumes, 32 file drawers of correspondence and other manuscripts on Eastern Kentucky genealogy and local history, and copies of a 19-volume diary kept from 1882 to 1930 by an Eastern Kentucky circuit preacher, the Rev. John J. Dicke.

MSU's library was chosen as the repository for this collection as a result of the efforts of former state librarian Charles F. Hinds who was aware of the extensive work in the genealogy of the region's families done by Dr. Stuart S. Sprague, MSU professor of history and noted Appalachian genealogist, according to Larry X. Besant, MSU libraries director.

"We are excited to receive this unique collection which has such special importance to this region," Besant said. "It will be a valuable tool for historical and social research."

The wife of William O. Blackburn, she was born in Cannel City and received her A.B. degree in education from the University of Kentucky in 1928. Continuing her studies at Pratt Institute, she earned the B.S. degree in library science in 1929.

Prior to joining the state library staff, she had been an assistant librarian at the then-Eastern Kentucky State College, librarian for Lexington's Henry Clay High School, assistant cataloger at the University of Kentucky Library, and librarian for Grant County Library in Williamstown.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--A Morehead State University theatre major has been selected for the National Shakespeare Conservatory's summer program.

Octavia Biggs of Lebanon Junction, who will receive her baccalaureate degree from MSU on May 16, is one of 40 students who were accepted into the prestigious New York based-school following nationwide auditions.

Internationally-recognized, the conservatory offers an eight-week summer program, a two-year program in New York City and another course of study in England. Among those serving on the school's faculty is the distinguished director Albert Shoemann.

The intensive program calls for students to be in classes from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. six days a week with rehearsals beginning at 6:30 p.m.

"Tavia is very talented and I would rank her as one of the best students I've ever had," said Dr. Travis Lockhart, MSU's theatre program coordinator.

Biggs, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dana Biggs, has appeared in 10 MSU productions and has either directed or been stage manager for several others.

Among her MSU credits are "Brigadoon," "Greater Tuna," "Elephant Man," and "Equus." She also has appeared in summer stock productions in Ohio and North Carolina.

Biggs, who began her career at MSU as a music major, had appeared in various high school and 4-H talent shows, but got her first real taste of acting as an MSU sophomore in a one-act "condensed" version of "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," playing Maggie.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Steve Strathmann, a senior from Williamsburg, Ohio, has been elected president of the Student Government Association at Morehead State University.

A radio-television major, Strathmann is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Strathmann. He won the presidency for 1987-88 with 55 percent of the student votes cast.

Also elected as members of the SGA Executive Board were:

Greg Ramey, a senior majoring in government and the son of the late Harold Ramey and Patricia Ramey Buskirk of Inez, vice president.

Marilyn Jones, a junior majoring in elementary education and daughter of Mrs. Wanda Lee Jones of Sharpsburg, secretary.

Glenn Meade, a junior majoring in government and son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Meade of Feds Creek, treasurer.

Keith Flora, a junior majoring in math and son of Dr. and Mrs. Ben Flora Jr. of Morehead, public relations director.

Jim Tom Trent, a freshman majoring in government and son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Trent of Morehead, programs director.

The new president, whose term begins officially in the fall, told the student newspaper, The Trail Blazer, that he envisions the SGA taking an active role in fund raising not only for campus organizations, but also for the needy. Strathmann also said that he placed a high priority on student involvement in activities campus-wide, including support of the university's athletic program.

"With an executive board of this caliber, there is no limit to what the SGA can accomplish, but it can only happen if the students join us in our efforts," Strathmann said.

ORLANDO, Fla.--Nine Morehead State University students are participating in Walt Disney World's College Program, a cooperative education experience in leisure business management.

While the Magic Kingdom and Epcot Center attract millions of vacationing visitors each year, for the MSU students Walt Disney World is really a lesson in management and human relations as they earn and learn during their three-month stay here.

Launched six years ago with 200 college students from 40 U.S. schools, the program now attracts 1,200 students from 120 schools here and abroad, according to Rick Neely, assistant representative for college/international relations.

"It's an exciting program," Neely said. "The students gain on-the-job experience--hopefully in areas related to their majors--and learn how a major corporation works. They must attend a series of 10 three-hour seminars dealing with different aspects of WDW business, ranging from finance to marketing and merchandising," he explained.

The students earn $4.25 an hour, working a minimum of 30 hours each week. The number of college credits earned is determined by the student's institution. WDW provides housing at $40 a week and recreational activities to round out the program.

Four MSU students are working as fast foods hosts/hostesses: Stephen Meadows, Maysville junior; Lee Royse, Walton graduate student; Beverly Brickey, Morehead freshman, and David Carnes, Lexington senior.

Meadows, a food service administration major who wants to manage a hotel restaurant or work with a large restaurant food supply company, is getting ground level experience at Epcot's Stargate Restaurant.

"The seminars teach us about the corporation, but we're also learning how to get along with people," he said. "Thousands of people of different cultures and backgrounds come through here every day and we get asked a lot of questions," Meadows said. "My MSU classes have really been helpful to me in my work here, especially those dealing with sanitation," he noted.

A sociology major, Royse sees a definite link between his experiences at Epcot's Odyssey Restaurant, where he fills orders, works the cash register and even does kitchen duty. "Sociology deals with people and at Disney World you meet so many different people and are constantly relating to them," he said.

"There's nothing quite like working at Disney World. It's been everything I expected and more. There's a lot of work involved, but I'm having fun," said Royse, whose career plans include teaching or sales and marketing.

Switching from kitchen to counter to cash register relieves any monotony, according to Carnes, who is majoring in management and political science. "I've learned a lot about how a corporation works from the seminars," said Carnes, who also admitted to having "the best time I've had in my life."

The WDW College Program has meant a "realization of how hard you have to work at your job" for Brickey, who's eyeing a career in fashion merchandising or vocational home economics. "A lot of people don't find this out until they are seniors. It's made me realize that I have a lot to work for in preparing for a career," she said.

She also views her experience at the Magic Kingdom's Tomorrowland Terrace as a good way to get her foot in the door at other places. "Disney World is known as a good company to work for," she noted.

What's the best part of her experience? "I enjoy working with people and talking with them," she said, adding that her high school Spanish had been helpful. In her free time, Brickey said that she and her friends enjoy going around Disney World to find out just where specific attractions are located "so we can help guests with their questions."

Anchorage senior Jennifer Tagliarino, a culinary assistant at the Magic Kingdom's Town Square Cafe, prepares plates and garnishes them before they are served. Praising WDW's management style for the way it deals with people one-on-one, she said she also has learned how to bring together a full corporation --something important to her career goal of catering.

WDW's team approach also impresses her. "Places I've worked before have been unorganized, leading to chaos. Working as a team makes it work a lot easier and faster," she said. Tagliarino, who graduates in May, said she was much better prepared by her classes than some of her co-workers from other schools.

Working attractions at Tomorrowland, Susan Thompson of Hillsboro, Ohio, operates rides and ushers Magic Kingdom guests into the CircleVision Theatre she also gives narrations about the attractions. The sophomore elementary education major considers the latter to be a form of teaching. "I'm also gaining confidence in doing large group presentations and learning how to handle people of all ages as well," Thompson noted.

(MORE)

"It's absolutely marvelous. We get credit for this. We get paid for this. You couldn't ask for much more," exclaimed Hazard sophomore Dwight Turner, one of two MSU students assigned to the Magic Kingdom's popular attraction--the Jungle Cruise in Adventureland. Jerry Smith, Ashland sophomore and physical education major, also works there.

Garbed in khaki safari outfits, they help passengers on and off the boat, captain the boat while delivering a memorized narrative and control crowds.

Turner, a radio/television major, noted that from his experiences this spring he's more at ease at meeting new people and in just starting up a conversation. "As a radio/television person, you have to be able to talk and not be afraid," he said.

Turner also said his WDW experience has taught him about responsibility. "I know what it is like to go to work each day because you have responsibilities you have to take care of. I think school will be different for me now. It will be more serious," he said.

Smith, who is known by his co-workers as "Jungle Jerry," said he's gained an education in dealing with people. "You're constantly relating to people and their different moods," he said. "I'm gaining some invaluable experience which also will look good on my resume," he added. "It's a great work experience."

Urged to interview for a slot in the program by one of her teachers, Kristi Allen, Wilmington, Ohio, freshman, wouldn't trade her WDW experience for anything. A clothing textiles major, she's stocking shelves at Epcot's Future World Merchandise Centorium. "I'm not just getting experience in working with people, but also in merchandising, which ties into my major," she said. "Between the work and the seminars, you really get to see how a business is run."

Bridging the gap between the classroom and the world through their experience this spring, the MSU students agree it's been an education they wouldn't have missed for the world.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Recognition of scholastic excellence will be the focus of Morehead State University's third annual Academic Excellence Week, scheduled May 4-8.

Awards for outstanding achievement by students, faculty and staff will be presented during the week-long tribute to academic scholarship, according to Dr. Roberta Anderson, MSU's vice president for academic affairs.

Highlighting the celebration will be a formal Academic Awards convocation at 7 p.m. Monday, May 4, in Button Auditorium at which time the University's most prestigious faculty awards will be presented--MSU's Distinguished Faculty Award and the Distinguished Researcher Award.

"Too often, the achievements of our faculty members go unnoticed and these awards provide us the means to recognize their commitment to academic excellence," said MSU President A.D. Albright. "Without a faculty dedicated to academic excellence, this institution could not fulfill its educational mission to the people of Eastern Kentucky."

The Distinguished Faculty Award will be presented by MSU Alumni Association President William L. Phelps and Dr. Anderson will present the Distinguished Researcher Award, which was established in 1979 by MSU's Research and Patent Committee. Given annually since 1964, the Distinguished Faculty Award was created by the Alumni Association.

In addition, awards will be presented to the outstanding graduate and undergraduate students in each department by Dr. James E. Gotsick, director of Graduate and Special Academic Programs, Recognition also will go to students with 4.00 grade point averages, Honors Program graduates and the recipient of the Veteran of the Year Award.

Joyce J. Seagraves, Grayson senior majoring in education, will be the Awards Convocation speaker. A 4.00 student, she is a member of MSU's Honors Program and past president of Gamma Beta Phi.

Dr. John E. Kleber, Honors Program director and professor of history, will preside. President Albright will offer congratulations to the honorees and the Black Gospel Ensemble, directed by Phillip Gray, Lexington junior, will provide music. A reception will follow the convocation in the Red Room Adron Doran University Center.

Throughout the week, the colleges and various departments will recognize outstanding achievements of their students. Also scheduled is a special "Scholars Luncheon," sponsored by the MSU Research and Patents Committee, on Monday, May 4, at noon, in ADUC.

The College of Arts and Sciences will honor its students at an awards luncheon on Tuesday, May 5, at 11:30 a.m. in the Eagle Room, ADUC. Students in the College of Professional Studies will be recognized at a 7 a.m. breakfast in the Red Room, ADUC. ## YOUNG KENTUCKY AUTHORS WORKSHOP: A Picture Story

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Nearly 250 Rowan County fifth graders and 50 Morehead State University students learned trade secrets from master storytellers and explored their own creative talents at the recent Young Kentucky Authors Workshop. Sponsored by the Kentucky Arts Council, Phi Delta Kappa and MSU, the workshop was designed to help keep the art of storytelling alive in Appalachia, one of the most fertile fields for folklore, according to workshop director Shirley Blair, MSU clinical and field experiences coordinator. Two of Kentucky's most distinguished authors of children's books, George Ella Lyon of Lexington and Martha B. Stiles of Bourbon County, and noted storyteller Micki Stevens-Kaestner of Louisville were featured along with some of MSU's faculty. Elementary schools participating included: Morehead Grade, Clearfield, Farmers, Tildon-Hogge, Haldeman and Elliottsville.

Cutlines:

- 1--Sharing a few of her writing "secrets" with her young audience is Martha B. Stiles, who has eight children's books and numerous magazine stories to her publishing credits.
- 2--Combining a sense of drama with rhythm, gesture and inflection, Micki Stevens-Kaestner keeps the oral tradition of storytelling alive.
- 3--Tommy Lytle of Elliottsville Elementary isn't going to miss a word.
- 4--Local storyteller Connie McGee enchants her audience with a tale of Appalachia.
- 5--While his young friends listen, Dr. Ronald Dobler, chair of MSU's Department of English, Foreign Language and Philosophy, weaves a tale.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University's Department of Music will present the C.W. White Quintet in concert on Friday, May 1, at 8 p.m. in Duncan Recital Hall.

Pieces to be performed include the "Quintet" op. 91, no. 3 by Reicha; the "Quintet" op. 24, no. 2 by Hindemith and a premier performance of the "Woodwind Trio for Flute, Clarinet and Bassoon" by Rachel Wann, freshman composition major from Carmel, Ind.

The group was organized during the fall semester of 1985 by Dr. Chester Wurt White, a physician who enrolled in MSU's graduate music program as a bassoon student to pursue a lifelong dream - to work toward a Master of Music degree. Dr. White died during that same semester on Oct. 15.

The concert therefore is dedicated to this man who, in pursuing his quest, touched all the lives of students, teachers and staff of the music department, according to Dr. Christopher Gallaher, MSU Department of music chair.

The Quintet is now under the direction of Dr. Fredrick A. Mueller, MSU professor of music, and is composed of the following students and faculty:

Jeannine Breadon, flute, Ft. Wright senior.

Etsuyo Tsuchiya, oboe, Hammamatsu, Japan, junior.

Christine Affinito, clarinet, Dresden, Ohio, junior.

Patrick Hunt, horn, Greenup senior.

April 29, 1987

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Starting this fall, the Morehead State University Alumni Association will be recognizing outstanding athletes in order to help other students.

Alumni President Bill Phelps of Versailles has announced that the "MVP Scholarship Program" will salute MSU's outstanding football and men's and women's basketball players each week during their respective seasons. At the same time, the Alumni Association will be donating $100 in the name of each week's MVP to a special scholarship fund.

Phelps said the Alumni Association hopes to award as many as three $1,000 scholarships next spring to juniors and seniors outside athletics who could not return the following year without additional financial aid.

"We see the MVP Scholarship Program as a double-barreled effort to promote athletics and, at the same time, to help deserving students who are faced with the sad decision to leave school because of financial problems," Phelps said. "We have contributed $500 to the fund in the name of Phil Simms and that is a good beginning."

Sportswriters and broadcasters who cover Eagle football and basketball will select each week's MVP. Each honoree will be saluted in campus displays, press releases and game programs and will receive a personal memento, as well.

LRC INTERNS FOR 1988

Three Morehead State University students have been selected to serve as interns for the Legislative Research Commission during the 1988 session of the Kentucky General Assembly. Meeting with Dr. Jack E. Bizzel, MSU professor of government and campus coordinator of the program, left, are Sharon Carroll, Mt. Sterling junior; Sheridan Martin, Drift sophomore, and Donnie Kidd, Grethel sophomore. The interns will work with legislative committees, attend meetings, arrange hearings and do research during the session, according to Dr. Bizzel. After the session, they will participate in seminars that examine the legislative process and problems of state government.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--A Pendleton County student has been initiated into Morehead State University's Chapter of Phi Kappa Phi, an interdisciplinary honor society.

Inducted into the society was Kimberly Courtney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Courtney, Jr., of Falmouth. A senior English and mathematics major, she is a member of Cardinal Key National Honor Society, Gamma Beta Phi and the Honors Program. A member of the Residence Hall Association, she has been a resident advisor for two years.

Phi Kappa Phi initiates are juniors, seniors, alumni or faculty. To be eligible for membership, juniors must have a grade-point average of 3.7 or higher and seniors must have a 3.6 g.p.a. or higher. Alumni must have graduated cum laude or higher and faculty must be distinguished in their career, according to Margaret Patton, sponsor of PKP.

MSU's Chapter of Phi Kappa Phi was founded in 1972 by Patton, associate professor of sociology.
