FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.-- Twenty-seven years after starting his career in higher education administration, Dr. C. Nelson Grote returned last week to the place where it began--Morehead State University.

Meeting with the news media at the close of his first day as MSU's 11th president, the 59-year-old educator said, "This is a special day in my life and I hope it proves to be a special day for this University."

The new president, with his wife of 38 years, Wilma, at his side, reiterated his joy at returning to Kentucky. "I think it is very true, we have come home," he said.

Dr. Grote first came to MSU in 1960 as an associate professor and chairman of the Division of Applied Arts. He later became dean of the now College of Applied Sciences and Technology, leaving MSU in 1971 to become president of Schoolcraft College in Livonia, Mich. Dr. Grote returned to MSU after six years as chief executive officer of the Community Colleges of Spokane.

Dr. Grote launched his first news conference with the naming of Steve Hamilton, MSU head baseball coach, as acting director of athletics and noted that a national search would be launched for a successor to G.E. (Sonny) Moran, who earlier was named special assistant to the president for athletics.

Noting that he would be extremely busy over the next few months while settling into his new job, Dr. Grote said he was "impressed by the caliber" of the University personnel he had met. "There are real fine quality programs and services at Morehead State," he said.

Dr. Grote, whose background includes teaching at the college level in addition to his administrative experience, said that MSU students consistently had received a quality education.

Pausing to pay tribute to his predecessor in the post, Dr. A.D. Albright, Dr. Grote called him "an extraordinary administrator and statesman."

Outlining some of his priorities for the future, Dr. Grote said one area which would receive a great deal of his attention was fund raising. "If we want to get into that margin of excellence, we will have to go out beyond ourselves," he said.

Dr. Grote said he planned to meet with his executive staff in the next few days and that setting specific goals for 1987-88 and beyond would be high on the agenda.

Dr. Grote also noted that he would be making some key appointments in the coming year, including a new vice president for academic affairs, an associate dean for the newly-created School of Education, a director of development, and the director of the Office of Regional Development Services.

Other areas targeted by Dr. Grote included exploring ways for the University to play a vital role in the region's economic development, working closely with Eastern Kentucky's public school officials, civic leaders and legislators, as well as student recruitment and programs for retention of students.

"You can enroll students and insure their failure or you can enroll students and prepare them for success," he said.

In his previous posts, Dr. Grote has taken an active leadership role in education consortia. Named Outstanding CEO of the Pacific Region by the Association of Community College Trustees in 1986, Dr. Grote chaired the Board of Directors of the Spokane Higher Education Consortium, composed of the presidents of five colleges and universities. He also was a voting member of the Spokane Joint Center Board for Higher Education.

Dr. Grote holds a doctor of education degree from the University of Illinois, a master's degree in education from the University of Missouri and a bachelor's degree in education from Eastern Illinois University.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--The premiere of a piece composed by Joseph Baber, composer-in-residence at the University of Kentucky will highlight the fourth annual Summer Chamber Music Celebration at Morehead State University, July 12-18.

The piece will be premiered at the chamber orchestra concert on Thursday, July 14. Manfred Blum of Earlham College in Indiana will be the conductor of the concert.

The Celebration, sponsored by MSU's Academy of Arts and College of Arts and Sciences, is a weeklong series of workshops and concerts. The program allows serious musicians to meet, rehearse and perform in informal, unstructured settings.

In previous years, active amateur chamber musicians as well as professional musicians from regional and metropolitan orchestras from across the United States have taken part in the Celebration.

In addition to daily orchestra and ensemble rehearsals, there will be three evening recitals and a "potpourri-potluck" noon concert on Friday, July 17.

A guest artist recital featuring the Renaissance City Woodwind Quintet of Pittsburgh will be held on Monday, July 13. On Wednesday, a participants recital will feature a variety of small chamber musicians.

Baber has been the conductor-in-residence at UK since 1972. He spent three years in Japan and has appeared with the Tokyo Philharmonic. National Public Radio devoted a three-hour special in 1979 to Baber's operatic work, Rumplestiltskin.

Blum, a native of Cologne, Germany, graduated at age 17 from the State Academy in Music in Cologne by special permission from the Ministry of Education in Berlin. He joined the faculty of Earlham College in 1954 as head of the instrumental music department, director of the chamber musicians and coach of instrumental ensembles. Blum received a special award from the National Endowment for the Humanities for a collection of early Haydn string quartets he edited.

WMKY, FM 90, public radio from MSU, will tape the three evening concerts to be aired at a later date.

All concerts are free and open to the public. The evening events will be at 8 o'clock in Duncan Recital Hall. The noon "potpourri" will be in Baird 117.

GROTES WELCOMED HOME: A Picture Story

Nearly 300 Morehead residents turned out Monday evening (July 6) to greet MSU President and Mrs. C. Nelson Grote on their return to the community after a 17-year absence. Held at the Holiday Inn, the "Welcome Home" reception was sponsored by the Morehead--Rowan County Chamber of Commerce. Dr. Grote became MSU's 11th president on July 1, returning to the campus where he began his career in higher education administration 27 years ago. The Grotes lived here from 1960 to 1971, while he held various administrative posts, including dean of the College of Applied Sciences and Technology. He left to become president of Schoolcraft College in Livonia, Mich., and for the past six years has been chief executive officer of The Community Colleges of Spokane.

Cutlines:

- 1--- The topic of conversation could not have been anything else but education as MSU's president and Dr. John Brock, Rowan County Schools Superintendent chatted.
- 2--- Among the numerous civic leaders who came to welcome Dr. and Mrs. Grote back to the community was this former Morehead mayor, Eldon Evans.
- 3--- Not all the guests were as bashful as young Megan Webster, whose father is head athletic trainer at the University. Megan decided to play shy as Dr. and Mrs. Grote tried to coax a smile from her.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Dr. Steve Taylor, acting vice president for academic affairs at Morehead State University, has been chosen to participate in a college management program at Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh this summer.

Twenty-eight senior administrative officials were selected nationwide for the program which runs July 11-Aug. 1.

The three-week course is designed to improve executive skills at major universities by focusing on special interests and abilities of senior college officers.

The program, sponsored by the School of Urban and Public Affairs at Carnegie-Mellon, is composed of intense workshops in executive leadership and strategic planning; faculty, curricula, and academic services; enrollment and student services, and institutional constituencies and the external environment.

Its purpose is to help the participants improve their grasp of modern college and university management concepts and techniques and to gain insight into political, economic, technical and demographic trends most likely to affect their institutions' policies and plans.

Dr. Taylor has been a member of the faculty and administrative staff at MSU since 1973. Before being named acting vice president for academic affairs, Dr. Taylor was the executive director of academic support systems for MSU. He has held various other posts at the University, including acting vice president for student development and director of academic assessment and evaluation.

Dr. Taylor, who holds the faculty rank of professor of education, received his B.A. degree from Glenville (W. Va.) State College, his M.A. degree from Stetson University in Florida and his doctorate from Florida State University.

He is a member of the Kentucky Council on Higher Education Task Force on Pre-College Curriculum and the Kentucky ACT Advisory Committee.

A native of Walton, W. Va., he is married to the former Carolyn Dotson of Pennsboro, W. Va. They have two children.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Registration is under way for four classes being offered in the fall by the Morehead State University job Training Center.

Funded by the TEN-CO Private Industry Council under the Job Training Partnership Act, the 18-week courses will be for training in such areas as laboratory secretary/clinical assistants, medical tri-aides, and banking clerks. A service occupations for seniors program is for eight weeks.

"The courses are geared for adults who are unemployed and are seeking to upgrade their skills," said Jacquelyn H. Scott, job training program coordinator.

In the laboratory secretary/clinical assistant program, participants will be taught to perform basic laboratory procedures as well as secretarial functions. The medical tri-aide course will train people for positions as physical therapy aides, central supply aides and clerical aides. In both of these programs, trainees will participate in on-site training at local hospitals and clinics.

The banking/clerical program will offer training in clerical and secretarial duties plus basic banking functions that would be marketable in a wide variety of situations.

The service occupation for seniors project is for older workers seeking employment in entry level positions in institutional maintenance, area restaurants, motels and retail stores. This program is provided in cooperation with MSU's Physical Plant and Food Services divisions.

Classes begin Aug. 17, except for the service occupations for seniors which begins in October. The programs are open to residents of Bath, Boyd, Bracken, Fleming, Greenup, Lewis, Montgomery, Mason, Robertson and Rowan Counties. There is no cost to eligible participants, and JTP will pay for child care and mileage, according to Scott.

Additional information including registration may be obtained from area Kentucky Department of Employment Services Offices or Scott, Office of Extended Campus Programs, MSU, Morehead, KY 40351. Telephone: (606) 783-2379.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--John Flavell, a Morehead State University spring graduate, has received an associate instructorship at the University of Indiana's School of Journalism.

Flavell, who received a B.A. degree in communications, will teach introductory photojournalism in IU's undergraduate program.

In addition to being admitted to the University's prestigious graduate program in journalism, Flavell has received a fee scholarship worth $8,952, according to an IU spokesman.

Of the approximately 25 graduate students admitted to the program, only two or three are photojournalists.

In order to be accepted, an applicant must submit an essay, have done field work and have recommendations from faculty members.

Flavell, who is originally from El Paso, Texas, has done freelance work for the Courier-Journal for the past three years, as well as for the Daily Independent in Ashland, Trail Blazer, Raconteur and MSU photo services.

Flavell, said that he became interested in the graduate program at IU after attending several of the school's photojournalism seminars.

"The faculty is excellent," Flavell said.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--R. James Whipple and William Bruce Curlette will be the featured soloists for the Summer Chamber Music Celebration chamber orchestra concert at Morehead State University, Thursday, July 16.

Whipple and Curlette are both members of the Renaissance City Woodwind Quintet of Pittsburgh, which is scheduled to present a guest recital Monday, July 13.

Whipple is an original member of the quintet, which was formed in 1975, and has been the group's artistic director since 1977. A composer and arranger, he studied under Arthur Kubey, the retired principal bassoonist of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra. First bassoonist with the Pittsburgh Ballet Orchestra, Whipple also has performed with the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra and Pittsburgh Opera Orchestra.

Curlette, a native of Atlanta, studied clarinet at Jacksonville (Ala.) State University and the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y. He has performed with the Atlanta Chamber Players and toured with the Montovani Orchestra as a solo clarinetist.

The Celebration, sponsored by MSU's Academy of Arts and College of Arts and Sciences, is a weeklong series of workshops and concerts. The program allows serious musicians to meet, rehearse and perform in informal, unstructured settings.

In previous years, active amateur chamber musicians as well as professional musicians from regional and metropolitan orchestras from across the United States have taken part in the Celebration.

In addition to the chamber orchestra concert, there will be a participants recital featuring a variety of small chamber musicians performances on Wednesday evening. A "potpourri-potluck" noon concert is scheduled for Friday, July 17.

WMKY, FM 90, public radio from MSU, will tape the evening concerts to be aired at a later date.

All concerts are free and open to the public. The evening events will be at 8 o'clock in Duncan Recital Hall. The noon "potpourri" will be in Baird 117.

SUMMER CHAMBER MUSIC CELEBRATION: A Picture Story

More than 80 musicians from across the country participated in the fourth annual Summer Chamber Music Celebration last week at Morehead State University. Sponsored by MSU's College of Arts and Sciences and the Academy of Arts, the Celebration allows serious musicians to meet, rehearse and perform in informal, unstructured settings. The highlight of the Celebration was Thursday night's chamber orchestra concert featuring a world premiere of University of Kentucky composer-in-residence Joseph Baber's Symphony No. 2 in D. Baber's work was commissioned by the Academy of Arts for the Celebration. Approximately 20 participants of the Celebration were members of an Elderhostel program. This is the first time that the National Elderhostel has placed a skill requirement on any of its programs.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University will be one of eight host sites for the state's first economic development video teleconference scheduled Wednesday, July 29.

Sponsored by the Kentucky Commerce Cabinet, the event will feature five presentations by two noted economic analysts via satellite from Washington, D.C.

The speakers will be Robert E. Friedman, founder and president of Corporation for Enterprise Development, and Pat Choate, director, Office of Policy Analysis for TRW, Inc.

Members of the Kentucky Economic Development Task Force have been invited to view the presentation at their nearest host site, according to Carroll Knicely, secretary of commerce. The task force is composed of businessmen, public elected officials, civic leaders, bankers, educators and representatives of economic development agencies.

The sessions, which are open to the public as well, will begin with registration at 9:30 a.m. In addition to the guest speakers, the teleconference will include workshops for developing local and regional action plans.

"This teleconference is another in a series of activities sponsored by the Commerce Cabinet to present new insights for community leaders to use in evaluating and enhancing their business climates," said Knicely.

"Through the use of modern technology, we are bringing to eight convenient locations two of the nation's top economic analysts and making it possible for participants not only to hear their views but also to ask them questions," he added.

Friedman is a nationally-recognized authority on new enterprise development, job creation and programs to encourage self-sufficiency among communities. His corporation, which published the "Development Report Card for the United States," uses various economic indicators to evaluate business climates within states.

Choate is a policy entrepreneur who looks at "competitiveness strategies" as ways to improve productivity and renew the economy. He is the co-author of "High Flex Society" and "Being Number One" Rebuilding the American Economy."

Other host sites where the teleconference will be transmitted are Paducah Community College, Western Kentucky University, University of Louisville, University of Kentucky, Northern Kentucky University, Somerset Community College and Hazard Community College.

The teleconference is free to participants, but pre-registration is encouraged. Information on the MSU site may be obtained by calling MSU's School of Business and Economics: (606) 783-2174.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Size...Increased visibility for both academic programs and outreach services...Accreditation...

These were several of the determining factors which resulted in establishment of a School of Business and Economics within Morehead State University's College of Professional Studies.

The reorganization, approved by MSU's Board of Regents at its May 22 meeting, took effect on July 1.

"The restructuring of the program makes sense from a logistical standpoint," said Dr. William M. Whitaker III, who will serve as associate dean for business and economics.

"We have more than 1,000 students enrolled in business and economics," Dr. Whitaker said. The school offers 10 different four-year programs and five at the associate degree level.

"We not only teach classes on the main campus, but also at Maysville, Ashland, Prestonsburg and Pikeville," Dr. Whitaker noted. The faculty includes 37 full-time members and more than a dozen lecturers.

"School status also means recognition of the quality of our programs, especially in the eyes of potential students," Dr. Whitaker said. "The new structure also places us in a stronger position in our economic development efforts within MSU's service region."

Among the various outreach services provided by the new school are the East Kentucky Small Business Development Center (EKSBDC) which offers technical assistance to the region's small businesses and the American Institute of Banking program.

(MORF)

The school is composed of six distinct units: three academic program areas and three support areas. The academic areas include Accounting and Economics with Dr. Green Miller as coordinator; Information Sciences with Dr. Sue Y. Luckey as coordinator and Management and Marketing with Dr. Rodger Carlson as coordinator.

Heading up the support areas will be Wilson Grier, director for the EKSBC; Dr. Ray Bernardi, coordinator for Graduate and Extended Courses, and Dr. Bernard Davis, coordinator for the Business Resource Center.

"The formal structure of a School of Business and Economics also will strengthen our efforts toward accreditation from the American Assenbly of Collegiate Schools of Business," Dr. Whitaker said.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University's Center for Economic Education has received two grants totaling $15,317.44 to fund its 1987 economic education programs.

The grants from the Kentucky Council on Economic Education (KCEE) and the Ashland Oil Foundation enable MSU to teach graduate courses in economic education at off-campus locations, according to Dr. Green Miller, coordinator of accounting and economics and director of the Center.

MSU is one of 10 colleges and universities in Kentucky affiliated with KCEE, whose goal is to increase economic understanding and competency in the state.

As part of the program, Dr. Miller, an associate professor of economics, taught a history of economic thought class at Alice Lloyd College this past year.

In addition, he and another colleague, have taught an economic education class for elementary and secondary teachers at Alice Lloyd, Ashland Community College and Maysville Community College. Dr. Miller is currently teaching the course during MSU's Summer II. The course is designed to give educators with very little or no background in economics a basic understanding of it.

"We want them to know enough to be able to explain basic economic topics in the classroom," Dr. Miller said.

This year 73 teachers have taken the course.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University's KET-GED program has received funding for this fiscal year from Kentucky Educational Television.

The $127,682 grant will provide support services for students in the KET-GED on TV project, according to Sharon Jackson, project director.

During the past two years, the state-wide program, housed at MSU, has helped more than 1,600 people from across Kentucky earn their high school equivalency certificate.

The program provides books, counseling services and pre-testing and post-testing for the approximately 2,500 adults who prepare for the exam with the KET-GED on TV project each year.

Jackson said that a staff of five people also interview and screen prospective students for the three programs offered each year. She estimated that more than 10,000 Kentucky adults called her office for registration information last year.

Morehead, Ky.--Two Morehead State University security officers recently completed a special training program, with one graduating as class valedictorian.

They were Mike Adams of Morehead, whose first place finish in academic and physical agility areas of the program earned him valedictorian honors, and David J. Jointer of Mt. Sterling.

The 400-hour police basic training program was conducted by the Kentucky Justice Cabinet of the Department of Criminal Justice Training.

The 10-week course consisted of the study of criminal and traffic law, first aid and other areas related to the work of police and security officers, according to Gary Messer, director of MSU's Office of Safety and Security.

The program is not just for security officers but also for officers with various police agencies from across the state, Messer said.

"It's a very stringent program," Adams said. "We started out with 45 people and 38 completed the program. I feel honored to have graduated at the top of the class," he added.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--With less than a month on the job, Morehead State University's new president, Dr. C. Nelson Grote, is facing some challenges he describes as "exciting."

The need for more student housing, extra classroom space and additional faculty are among the concerns as the University prepares for the opening of its fall semester.

"These are the kind of problems that administrators relish dealing with," said Dr. Grote. "It's a pleasure to be faced with the prospect of stretching our resources to meet the increased demand."

While Dr. Grote and other MSU officials stress that projecting enrollment increases is risky, the signs for fall are more than encouraging.

With student housing applications up 80 percent over last year at this time, the University has reopened two residence halls that were closed last year and may open a third to meet the demand for on-campus housing.

As of mid-July, 2,283 new students had been admitted for a 44 percent increase in admissions over the same period last year.

In three Summer Orientation and Registration (SOAR) programs, the University already has registered more students (1,087) than it did in five sessions last year. Last year only 910 students participated in the SOAR programs.

"The deans and department chairs already have begun adding additional sections for some of the general required courses." Dr. Grote said. "That also means finding classrooms and, in many cases, locating faculty members to teach the additional classes," he added.

Another area that MSU administrators are watching closely is financial aid applications, which are up 34 percent from this time last year.

"It is apparent that Morehead State will be a very exciting place to be this fall, whether student, faculty or staff member," Dr. Grote predicted.

As for the expected crunch in new students, Dr. Grote stated emphatically that no qualified applicant will be turned away.

"We plan to maintain and strengthen our tradition of being an institution of opportunity," the president said.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--David J. Michaels has been named director of food services at Morehead State University.

An MSU graduate, Michaels will be in charge of the operation of all food, vending and concession facilities and activities on campus, according to Porter Dailey, vice president for administrative and fiscal services, who announced the appointment.

This includes both cafeterias and grills in the Adron Doran University Center and Alumni Tower, all vending machines, concession stands at sporting events, catering and any other special events.

"Because of his vast experience in food services, at both a collegiate and commercial level, David Michaels will be an asset to the University in his role as director of food services," Dailey said.

Michaels has been employed by Lebanon Valley College in Anneville, Pa., Mercy College of Detroit, Stouffer's and Professional Event Planners of Washington, D.C., as a regional director. As regional director, Michaels planned activities for such groups as IBM, Sunoco, and the Pennsylvania Medical Society.

A native of Johnstown, Pa., Michaels is married to the former Krisand Kunst of Springfield, Ohio. They have one son. Michaels is the son of J.D. and Sylvia Michaels of Maumee, Ohio, formerly of Portage, Pa.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--The Kentucky Department of Education has awarded Morehead State University's Department of English, Foreign Languages and Philosophy a $20,000 grant for teaching of writing in public schools.

The grant, which is to be matched by MSU, will establish a summer workshop at MSU and an in-service program for 18 eastern Kentucky teachers during the 1987-88 academic year.

Dr. Gene Young, associate professor of English and Joy Gooding of Fleming County High School will conduct MSU's program for teachers in elementary and secondary schools as part of a state-wide effort.

According to Dr. Young, the new MSU program is affiliated with a national writing project that has been successful since the 1970s. The program's goal is to have teachers--not necessarily language arts teachers--look for content in addition to grammar and punctuation when grading writing assignments.

"An overemphasis on grammar and punctuation in the early stages tends to stifle young writers," Dr. Young said.

Similar four-week summer workshops also will be conducted at all other regional universities, the University of Kentucky and the University of Louisville.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University's Adult Learning Center has received a $20,580 grant to fund a satellite adult learning program in Morgan County.

The grant from the Kentucky Department of Education's Division of Adult Education will enable the University to employ a teacher for the West Liberty area.

According to Dr. Harold Rose, professor of education and project director, this is one of several efforts the University will be making in the county to prepare the residents for employment opportunities at the new state prison to be built there.

The 500-inmate prison will have a staff of approximately 300 people. All applicants for staff positions must have a high school diploma or its equivalent. According to Dr. Rose, only 35 percent of the adult population in Morgan County have a high school diploma.

Dr. Rose said that he hopes the program will enable 100 people to earn their GED during 1987-88.

Without the program, Dr. Rose believes that many people will be unqualified for the jobs because they don't meet the minimum education requirement.

"It's like having an opportunity and not being able to take advantage of it," Dr. Rose said.

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions and activities. It emphasizes that proper record-keeping is essential for transparency and accountability, particularly in the context of public administration or financial reporting. The text suggests that clear documentation helps in identifying trends, detecting anomalies, and ensuring compliance with relevant regulations and standards.

2. The second part of the document outlines the various methods and tools used to collect and analyze data. It highlights the significance of using reliable sources and employing advanced analytical techniques to derive meaningful insights from the collected information. The author notes that data analysis is a critical step in understanding complex systems and making informed decisions based on evidence.

3. The final part of the document concludes by reiterating the need for continuous improvement and regular audits. It states that periodic reviews of records and processes are necessary to ensure that the system remains effective and up-to-date. The document also mentions that maintaining high standards of accuracy and integrity is crucial for the long-term success and credibility of the organization or institution.

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions and activities. It emphasizes that proper record-keeping is essential for transparency and accountability, particularly in the context of public administration or corporate governance. This section outlines the various methods and tools used to collect and store data, ensuring that information is readily accessible and reliable.

2. The second part of the document focuses on the analysis and interpretation of the collected data. It describes how statistical techniques and data visualization tools are employed to identify trends, patterns, and anomalies. This analysis is crucial for understanding the underlying causes of various issues and for making informed decisions based on the evidence. The document provides examples of how data analysis has been used to solve complex problems and improve organizational performance.

3. The third part of the document discusses the implications of the findings and the steps that should be taken to address any identified issues. It highlights the need for a proactive approach to problem-solving and the importance of involving all relevant stakeholders in the process. This section also addresses the challenges of implementing changes and the need for ongoing monitoring and evaluation to ensure that the desired outcomes are achieved. The document concludes by emphasizing the value of a data-driven approach to decision-making and the potential for continuous improvement through the use of data.

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions and activities. It emphasizes that proper record-keeping is essential for transparency and accountability, particularly in the context of public administration and financial management. The text highlights the need for clear documentation to prevent misunderstandings and ensure that all stakeholders have access to the same information.

2. The second part of the document focuses on the role of technology in improving efficiency and reducing costs. It explores various digital tools and platforms that can be used to streamline processes, automate repetitive tasks, and enhance communication. The author argues that embracing technology is not just a matter of convenience but a strategic imperative for organizations looking to stay competitive in a rapidly changing market.

3. The third part of the document addresses the challenges of change management and organizational culture. It discusses how to effectively communicate and implement new initiatives, while also fostering a culture of innovation and continuous improvement. The text provides practical advice on how to overcome resistance to change and ensure that all team members are aligned with the organization's vision and goals.

4. The final part of the document concludes with a call to action, urging leaders to take a holistic approach to organizational success. It stresses the importance of balancing financial performance with social and environmental responsibilities, and encourages a focus on long-term sustainability rather than short-term gains. The author ends by expressing confidence in the future of the organization and its ability to overcome any challenges that may arise.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University will hold its 1987 Summer Commencement at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 1, in Button Auditorium.

Approximately 322 graduate and undergraduate students are candidates for degrees to be conferred by MSU President C. Nelson Grote. This will mark Dr. Grote's first commencement as president of the institution.

Commencement speakers will include MSU Board of Regents Chairman Louie B. Nunn; Dr. Grote and graduating senior David L. Mitchell of Woodbine.

Mitchell, a candidate for the B.S. degree, will enter the University of Louisville School of Medicine this fall. Graduating with honors, Mitchell majored in biology and has a minor in chemistry.

In addition to his academic studies, Mitchell played clarinet with MSU's Marching, Symphony and Concert bands and was a member of Blue Key national honor fraternity and Gamma Beta Phi honor society.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. David Mitchell, he graduated from Whitley County High School.

Following the conferring of degrees by Dr. Grote, the new graduates will be welcomed into the MSU Alumni Association by Lisa Browning of Owingsville, first vice president of the Alumni Association.

Dr. Earle L. Louder, professor of music and MSU's 1987 Distinguished Faculty Award recipient, will serve as grand marshal with Alex Conyers, associate professor of finance, and Dr. Gerald DeMoss, chair of the Department of Biological and Environmental Sciences, assisting as faculty marshals.

BACK TO SCHOOL SPECIAL

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Those "lazy, crazy, hazy days of summer" will soon come to a close for thousands of college students throughout the state as August brings the start of another school year.

Morehead State University's fall semester will begin on Monday, Aug. 17 with registration from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. in Wetherby Gymnasium.

Registration will continue on Tuesday, with classes beginning on Wednesday, Aug. 19 at 8 a.m. Night classes will not begin until the following Monday.

College life is more than classes, though. During the first weeks of the fall semester, various activities are planned to introduce new students to campus life and the many organizations that MSU offers.

Welcome Week (Aug. 16-24) is full of activities to help acquaint the new student with MSU. To kick off the semester, President and Mrs. C. Nelson Grote will host an ice cream social and street dance in front of their home on University Boulevard on Sunday, Aug. 16.

On Monday night, Student Government Association will sponsor an outdoor concert and dance featuring Chase. The dance will be in Alumni Tower's parking lot.

Tuesday, new students will have the opportunity to meet with the presidents of various campus organizations in the Crager Room of the Adron Doran University Center. Following that will be a video dance featuring videos from National College Television (NCTV).

The rest of the week's events will include a Wheel of Fortune spoof with a Vanna White look-a-like contest and moonlight bowling.

On Thursday, Aug. 20, students may experience a last bit of summer at Under the Boardwalk night on the Camden-Carroll Library lawn. There will be seafood, music and more.

Welcome Week will end on Monday, Aug. 24, with the annual Campus Madness on the library lawn. Student organization representatives will be available at tables to introduce students to the many special interest clubs and social fraternities and sororities.

The Interfraternity Council will begin selling rush cards at registration for all men interested in one of MSU's 13 fraternities. Fraternity rush will end on October 15.

Panhellenic Council will begin formal rush sign-ups at registration and continue until Aug. 26. Formal rush for all women interested in sorority life will be Sept. 17-20. There are six sororities at MSU.

The Program Council (PC) and SGA sponsor events throughout the semester.

On Sept. 8, PC will sponsor comedian Rondell Sheridan. As part of Parents Weekend, Sept. 11-13, SGA will present comedian Andy Andrews. A computer that tells about world events on a given date will be the attraction at PC's "Birthday Chronicles" on Tuesday, Sept. 29.

Lee Greenwood and Keith Whitley are scheduled to appear at the annual Homecoming concert on Wednesday, Oct. 14. The concert is free to all MSU students. Active alumni and MSU faculty and staff will be admitted for $8. General admission to the 8 p.m. concert in the Academic-Athletic Center is $10.

Besides organized activities, students at MSU find that there are many other opportunities for fun at the University.

Students may participate in athletics, both as a spectator at Eagle inter-collegiate games and as a participant in one of MSU's intramural sports. According to Mickey Wells, intramural director, most students participated in at least one intramural event last year.

Other students may have been involved in marching band in high school and wish to continue playing in the University band. More than 60 percent of the members of MSU's marching band are not music majors or minors, according to Richard Miles, director of bands. Miles expects to field a band of 200 members this fall.

Not only do you not have to be a scholarship athlete or a music major to participate in sports or band, but you don't have to be a theatre major to have a role in one of MSU's theatre productions.

This fall, MSU will present Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew" on Homecoming weekend, Oct. 15-17 and "Agnes of God," Nov. 17-21.

Students considering attending MSU are encouraged to call University Enrollment Services toll free in Kentucky: 1-800-262-7474.

AN INTRODUCTION TO CAMPUS LIFE

One of the many activities to help students learn about campus life at Morehead State University during Welcome Week is "Campus Madness," which features outdoor displays and exhibits staffed by representatives of the various special interest clubs, sororities and fraternities. Students last year found the event to be a great time for making friends as well.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--The Eastern Kentucky Arts Consortium sponsored by Morehead State University, has received a $3,500 grant from the Kentucky Arts Council for fiscal year 1987-88.

The grant, to be matched by MSU, will establish a consortium composed of regional community arts groups.

According to Adrian Swain, project director, the purpose of the consortium is to provide low cost arts programming to five area communities.

The specific communities have not been chosen yet.

Swain said he hopes that the consortium "will be a seed from which the communities may grow their own arts programming."

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Dr. Ronald Tucker, Morehead State University professor of industrial education, has been elected to serve on the board of directors of the Kentucky Safety and Health Network.

Former Secretary of Labor John Calhoun Wells appointed Dr. Tucker to the board when the network was formed in 1986. This year, Dr. Tucker was elected to the 33-member board by the 362-member network.

The network, composed of personnel directors, safety directors, medical insurance personnel and others interested in industrial fields, works directly with state officials to promote occupational safety and health in Kentucky.

A native of Morehead, Dr. Tucker earned both his B.S. and M.S. degrees from MSU. He received a doctorate of education degree from Oklahoma State University.

Before joining the faculty of MSU in 1968, Dr. Tucker taught high school industrial arts in Ohio. He was also a safety engineer for Gates McDonald and Company of Columbus, Ohio.

He is a member of Phi Delta Kappa education honor fraternity, the American Vocational Association and the American Association of University Professors.

PAINTSVILLE HIGH SCHOOL BAND PREPARES FOR FALL: A Picture Story

For 45 members of the Paintsville High School marching band, Morehead State University was the setting for a week of playing, twirling and marching. The band recently attended one of three band camps held this summer at MSU. Members spent the week preparing for the upcoming football and competition season.

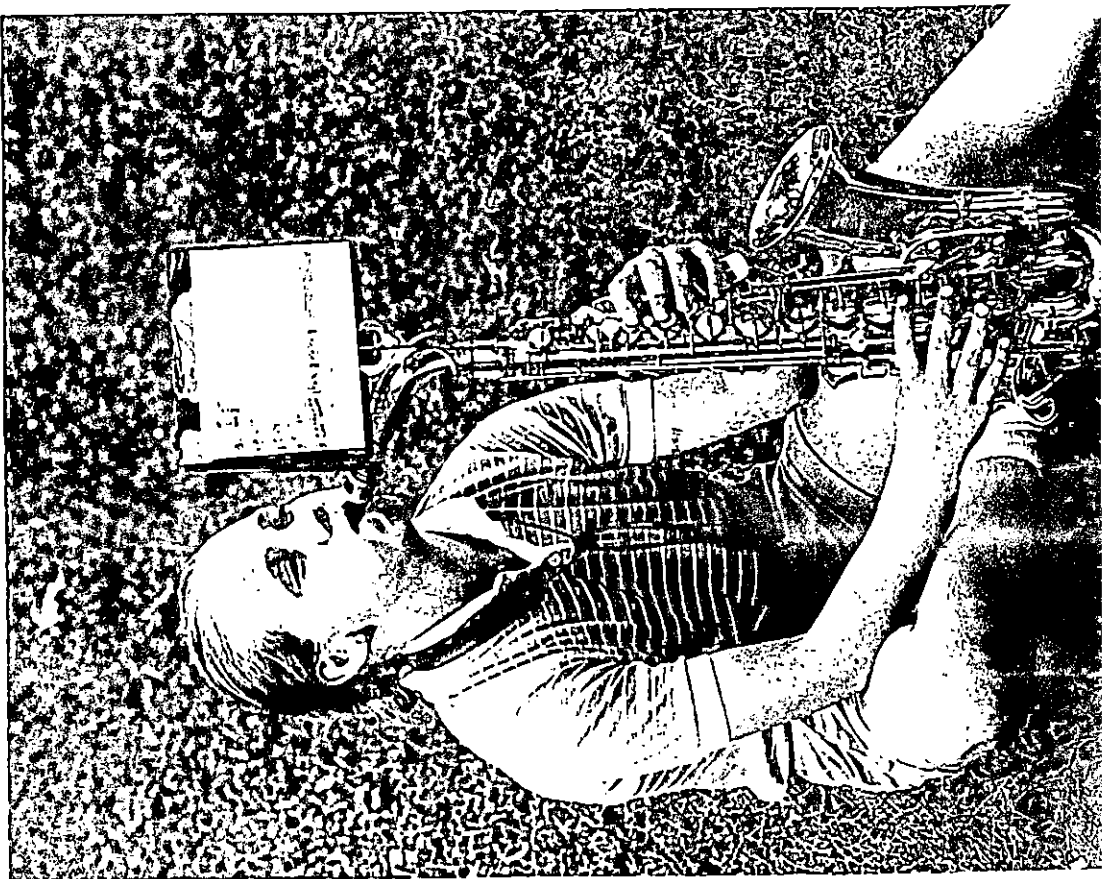

Cutlines:

- 1--Several members of the band take a much needed break after spending most of the day going over marching formations and drills.
- 2--Terri Blair of Paintsville seeks a soft, solitary spot for some soothing practice on her saxophone.
- 3--Band members line up for formation work ready to strut their stuff in preparation for the upcoming season of competition.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University's Office of Extended Campus Programs has received two grants for the VISTA Volunteer literacy program.

The first grant is from ACTION, the federal agency that sponsors the VISTA program. The $6,000 grant is for the travel expenses of the eight VISTA Volunteers.

An additional $600 grant from the Kentucky Department of Education will provide books and supplies for the volunteers.

The volunteers, serving Elliott, Morgan, Bath and Rowan counties, will train 20 reading tutors each in their area. Each tutor, in turn, will work with three students who wish to improve their reading skills or prepare for the GED test.

VISTA is in the first phase of a three-year plan to improve literacy skills in 12 eastern Kentucky counties.

Shirley Hamilton, extended campus programs training coordinator, said that she hopes the program will result in 480 new readers.

Additional information on becoming a tutor or student may be obtained from Hamilton at (606) 783-2077, or Bonnie Burrell, coordinator of MSU's Appalachian Adult Learning Center, at (606) 783-2871.
