

Department Of Commerce and Business Is Addition To Curriculum at Morehead TC

Enrollment Jump Expected To Come From New Course

That the Morehead State Teachers College will add a fully equipped business and commerce department to its curriculum for the second semester which opens next month was assured today with a definite announcement to that effect from President H. A. Babb.

The entire basement of the Administration Building is being remodeled and renovated to fit the needs of the new department, Mr. Babb stated. In addition most of the equipment has been purchased.

The head of the department and his assistants have not been selected. Announcements which will be mailed out from the college this week stated that "a four year course in commerce and business will be offered leading to a bachelor of arts degree.

Morehead - This Week

You don't know what you're getting yourself in for? Charles E. Jennings said as he relinquished the office of County Judge to E. L. Peitrey Monday morning.

In that statement Judge Jennings said a great big mouth full. It has been our observation that of all county officials the most thankful one is that of County Judge who must be a good Samaritan, an honest man, an arbitrator, a man with plenty of judgement, an individual that judges practically all family troubles... and even if he possesses all of these qualities and innumerable other good points he will still be criticized.

Ally Hardin made a pledge to the voters that if he were elected he would clean-up the courthouse, meaning, of course, that he would clean up a lot of dirt and filth. On his first day in office Hardin started his clean-up drive.

"My biggest trouble will be in securing enough appropriation to fumigate the entire works," says Hardin. "A half-ton wouldn't be too much."

SERVED ON POLICE FORCE SINCE 1931

JOHN H. ADAMS County Judge. John H. Adams, who was released from the police department Monday evening by the new City Council, became head of the Morehead Police Department on November 20, 1931.

"I wish to thank the people that have stood by me during the years that I have served as chief of your Police Department and have always done my very best to protect the best interests of Morehead. I am sorry to not be able to serve you longer and desire to be thanked for their kindness and support," Mr. Adams declared.

County Officials In Rowan Assume New Duties Last Monday

Reported Oppositions To R. M. Clay Being County Attorney Does Not Develop

Reported opposition to R. M. "Dick" Clay assuming the County Attorney's place here Monday because of alleged ineligibilities failed to develop in November. He assumed their duties harmoniously. It was rumored since the election that Attorney Clay would be faced with an injunction seeking to declare him ineligible, at least for the time being, on the grounds that he had not been a practicing attorney for two years, as required in Kentucky of County Attorneys.

The new officials: County Judge: I. E. Peitrey, farmer, of Elliottville, Republican. A life-long resident of Rowan County. Besides farming he has been associated in several business enterprises.

94,000 Acres Lying In Forest Surveyed

About One-Fourth In Cumberland Area Has Been Gone Over This Year

The surveying of timber on Cumberland National Forest is now approximately one-quarter finished with 94,000 acres having been covered since July 1936 by crews operating in Laurel, White, and McClure counties.

At the present time four 8-man field crews and an office crew of seven technical men are working on the inventory of timber on Government-owned land.

The information being gathered includes the quantity of timber, quality of timber, rate of growth necessary to improve the stand, of timber and maps showing location and types of timber now standing. The data will be worked up to make Management Plans for the entire forest which when operative will produce a continuous yield of wood products. Stabilization of employment, timber association work in the area will be a highly important benefit to local people.

Smallpox Results In Closing Of School At Haldeman

The Haldeman Consolidated School and the Pine Grove rural school were closed Tuesday morning by the order of County Superintendent Roy Corrette, acting on advice of health officials.

Four cases of small pox in the consolidated district portion of the Haldeman school have been reported and the patients are being treated. It is also apparent that there are cases in the outlying sections that attract students from the county school department, Mr. Corrette stated.

Health officials advised the closing of the schools for a period of two weeks to guard against a possible outbreak of small pox. Little danger of the plague spreading to other parts of the county on a general scale is held by health officials.

The insurance schedule was approved for 1938, marking the third year that all buildings in the school system have been covered.

Breck Wins Over Olive Hill 21-14

Morehead Team Has Easy Time Subduing Comet Quintette

Bobby Laughlin's Breck Eagles topped the Olive Hill Comes in a fast, rough game last Tuesday night by defeating 21 to 14.

The Breck players were far superior to their opponents in the first, second, and fourth periods. It seemed as if Olive Hill would be the team in the third but the threat was speedily removed.

The Breck boys played good ball throughout and the Olive Hill quintet was unable to do very much with Breck's second five. Carr was high mark with Breck with 7 points followed by Tatum with 6. Malcolm Johnson led Olive Hill's scorers with 6 points and was seconded by Rose with 2.

The lineup: Breck: (23) (12) Olive Hill: B. Fraley F 2 Howerton Carr F 2 F Johnson Tatum G 6 M Johnson Jud 2 C 3 Rose Prichard I G 1 Mobley

Council Effects Shake-up In Municipal Government By Changing Two Departments

Chandler Choices Win Major Places In State Assembly

Governor Clearly Has Control Over Legislative Body; Session To Be Short

A biennial budget bill calling for the expenditure of approximately $24,500,000 for general operations of the State government for each of the next two years ranked as the number one subject for consideration as members of the Kentucky General Assembly gathered at Frankfort as the regular session opened Tuesday.

The session is the 102nd regular one since Kentucky legislatures began meeting, and will be the 14th, counting special sessions.

The usual pre-session bustle and activity was lacking, and most of the incoming Senators and Representatives busied themselves finding housing accommodations rather than huddling over approaching legislation and organization.

Normally the session should last sixty week-days, exclusive of holidays, but Governor A. B. Chandler has announced he wants it to end by March 1 so a special session may be held to consider financial worries of the State's 120 counties. Since the Governor apparently has control of both legislative branches, observers generally agreed the session would last just as long as he wanted it to last, and would do just as he wanted it to do.

Proposals were it would be the least controversial session in recent years. Only a few subjects appeared likely to precipitate proposals to merge the Paducah Negro Normal School with the Frankfort Negro School, change the State-wide liquor and beer control act and to increase old-age pension grants.

Georgor Chandler has announced he wants the budget bill passed early in the session and without any changes. He also has declared his opposition to any existing tax laws and against the imposition of new taxes to retire the State's indebtedness by the end of 1939.

"State making" was the main legislative business under way today at the session. The House and the Senate was virtually assured of approval of Democratic caucuses.

Relief Burden Must Be Shared, Ruling

State Must Co-operate Financially, Is Plan Of Administration

The unemployment census figures showing that between 7,822,912 and 10,870,000 persons were unemployed in November gave fresh ammunition today to Congressional advocates of increased relief and public works expenditures.

Senator La Follette, Wisconsin, Progressive, said last night in a radio address that unemployment is "the one question" which should be answered at the session of Congress beginning today.

It is not economic, it is not humane, it is not intelligent to allow this problem to linger unresolved as a menace over the lives of all of us," he asserted.

La Follette advocated a large-scale public works program, financed by increased taxation based on ability to pay.

"Asserting public works construction cost the Federal Government only 30 to 45 cents per hour of employment provided each worker, he added.

"Despite this essential economy to the public works and progress program business necessarily insisted that the budget be balanced. Time and again it asserted that if the Government would stop spending, private business would carry on. The Government made a tragic mistake in that it yielded to this demand, for it made this new depression inevitable."

Morehead Eagles Meet Louisville At College Gym Tonight

All Morehead Teams Swing Into Action Following Holiday Rest

SCHEDULE OF MOREHEAD BASKETBALL TEAMS WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 5 University of Louisville vs. Morehead High School at College Gymnasium, 7:30 p. m.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 11 Wesleyan College vs. Morehead College at College Gymnasium, 7:30 p. m.

Holidays for Morehead basketball aggregations will close this week as all teams swing into action Breckinridge Training School opened the festivities with a game at Olive Hill Tuesday evening.

Feature of the next seven days card is the meeting of the University of Louisville and the Morehead College College Eagles in the College Gymnasium this evening (Wednesday).

Morehead boasts an unbroken record but the general consensus is that the Eagles will drop plenty of court tills this year. Only in the history of this game with Transylvania did Morehead look like last year's crack aggregation. However, Elms Johnson and Len Miller have turned many unexpected tricks for Morehead this one can never tell.

The best local high school attraction here so far this year will be the appearance of the Ashland High Tomcats, once a feared name in the world of sports, against the Laughlin's Breckinridge club. Although Breck's showing against Mr. Sterling was exceptionally mediocre, they will meet Saturday.

Morehead High will not play here but will meet Saturday Hook there this evening and go to Wurland Saturday. The latter game was originally scheduled to be played in the High School gymnasium, but Coach Roy Holbrook graciously changed it to Wurland in order to avoid a conflict with the Breck-Ashland match.

The Vikings appear good enough to take the two. There seems little question but that the men of Holbrook have been improving.

143,000 Are Idle In Kentucky, Survey At Capitol Reveals

Congress Studies Figures Of Census Taken Over United States

The burden of caring for the Nation's unemployed would be shouldered jointly by the State and Federal Governments under a new program drafted by leaders of the National Association for the Unemployed.

Described as a humane yet radical plan for the winter and the first of the year, the proposal was announced in New York yesterday by the National Association for Human Needs.

It will be outlined to the Senate Committee on unemployment and labor at hearings in Washington, January 12, by Chairman Charles P. Taft of the organization and associates who spent two months framing the plan.

Foremost among the recommendations are provisions for Federal aid in the appointment of State and local welfare officials, and granted only on condition that the States put up part of the money and meet certain standards.

Besides these suggestions for meeting immediate needs, Taft and his collaborators representing more than 8,500 local and national social and health agencies, will also be making a national commission to study relief and welfare on a long term basis.

BUSINESS RECESSION IS TEMPORARY

Every business barometer indicates that the present business recession is temporary, as its name implies. Every prognosticator, Democrat and Republican alike, from bankers to college professors predict that business will start an upward trend this month with the likelihood that 1938 will be the best year since the boom days of 1929.

One of the brightest spots on the horizon is the Vinson tax bill, which will shortly come out of the committee room on the floors of Congress. It seems from all that is being written about this bill that the measure is the most adequate and fairest compromise that has even been reached on the Federal tax program. Harmony may prevail between opposed political factions on this important measure, something that has rarely happened before.

President Roosevelt is holding Judge Fred Vinson in Congress by request, until this bill is passed. Following that Vinson will step on the bench, and there seems little question but that Joe Buser will replace him. The President and the Nation needs Fred Vinson at this time. This vital piece of legislation will affect every American every day in the year. It can mean balanced budgets, less tax friction and a distinct achievement for the Roosevelt administration.

The Vinson tax bill is but another notable achievement of this distinguished Eighth District Congressman who has been justly and signally honored by appointment to the Federal bench as Circuit Judge of the Court of Appeals in the District of Columbia. When Fred Vinson dons the robe of judgeship the United States has lost a great statesman and a friend of the people.

SURFACE THE SANDY HOOK HIGHWAY

The work of the session of the legislature which convened at Frankfort Monday will determine, to a great extent, the amount of money that will be expended on roads in Kentucky during the next two years.

This brings to mind that Rowan County has had no road building, to speak of, within the last four years. There is a number of highways and secondary roads in this county that need attention. Foremost of these is the Morehead-Sandy Hook road, which some day will be the principal artery of travel between the Big Sandy region and Central Kentucky.

We ask our Representative and Senator to work for as many appropriations as possible, but stress the fact that the Sandy Hook road should be surfaced. It is about the only route for entire Elliott County. Some of the best farming land in Rowan County lies along this road.

If Rowan County receives its just measure at the hands of the legislature and the State Highway Commission the Sandy Hook road will be hard-surfaced. Any manner of survey on the amount of travel and need of hard surfacing on this road should clearly show that it would be a project benefiting thousands of people.

The Representative from Elliott and Lawrence Counties and from Big Sandy would do well to co-operate in any movement that would bring appropriation for the hard-surfacing of the Sandy Hook highway.

DOG'S BEST FRIEND

Buster is back. The dog that gave people in an Ontario mining camp an anxious time of it during the six days he was marooned on the side of a 300-foot cliff is safe.

It is a tale that reverses the traditional role of the dog. Ordinarily one pictures those somber-eyed, deep-jawed fellows getting somebody out of trouble rather than getting into trouble themselves. But an outbreak of ecstatic foolishness, not uncommon to his strapping kind, impelled this 120-pound specimen of perennial puppyhood to pursue his own tail. This amiss prank landed Buster on a narrow ledge high up on the face of a cliff near his master's camp.

How he got out of that fix is a tale best told by those anxious Ontario miners who listened to the dog's whines several days before he was located. The dog was dropped on the edge. Much of it got nuzzled over the brink and fell into the lake far below, but the dog retrieved enough to keep him quiet while the community planned the rescue. Five feet and lowered over the cliff. The rescuers then manned the rope, each miner crooking an arm into one of the loops. Buster was bundled into a canvas sling. Willing hands hauled the living chain aloft. And if a wag of the tail and an appealing gaze mean what we like to think they mean, then dogs do realize that even men can sometimes show as much devotion as a dog.

NEWSPAPERS AND THE DRUNKEN DRIVING PROBLEM

"Newspapers must public opinion faster than any other agency and should be enlisted in the campaign. Honolulu police chief, in a paper read at the recent National Safety Congress.

It is reliably estimated that drunken driving has at least doubled since the repeal of prohibition. Today is one of the principal causes of motor accidents. Survivors carried on in the busy streets indicate that liquor is a factor in 10 to 20 per cent of all accidents involving a fatality or a major injury. In the words of the Chief of the California State Highway Control, the drunken driving evil "continues to grow unabated. Intoxicating liquor is playing too great a part in the present mounting death toll."

The "alcohol-mixed-with-gasoline" problem must be attacked from a number of angles. In many communities, police and prosecuting authorities are more or less indifferent to it, and are prone to let the use of a little "pull" reduce a serious drunken driving charge. While proven scientific methods for establishing whether or not a person is legally intoxicated are known, they have not been widely adopted, with the result that many cases are taken to court without sufficient evidence to justify a conviction. Worst of all, perhaps, a large part of the public tacitly condones drunken driving by refusing to demand rigorous and impartial laws and methods to detect and punish it.

Newspapers can perform a great public service by emphasizing the evil, showing how all of us are potential victims of a drunken motorist, and by enforcing it as a campaign for betterment in local law and order. Americans each year—and injures tens of thousands. It must be stopped.

FIRE INSURANCE BROADENS ITS SERVICE

As the President of the National Board of Fire Underwriters pointed out some time ago, it is now clear that in the future the function of state fire insurance companies will not be preponderantly that of providing fire insurance only. Each year a wider and wider variety of risks that may be called distinctly in the direction of what may be called coordinated general coverage affording protection against hazards that are not closely related. This broadening the service of fire insurance companies, problems of grave moment automatically arise. There must be nothing loose or speculative about any of the various kinds of insurance written, risks of all kinds must be accurately measured—not accumulated. Adequate profits must assure the accumulator of the capital resources that are the backbone of the protection, and which make certain that every just claim will be paid promptly.

It is here that the failure of uninformed moves to arbitrarily regulate the fire insurance business, or to practice and current operating conditions, becomes apparent. The solvency of no industry is so important to American industry, and to American individuals. The province of the law in its relation to insurance should be to protect the public against fraud, to examine companies in the light of their financial integrity, etc. Laws which would impair the ability of the industry to earn a reasonable return, and would thus impair, in effect, the soundness of every policy outstanding, would eventually produce the worst possible consequences.

THE DANGEROUS WALKER

"Dangerous walking" is inseparable from the auto-accident situation.

Authentic information indicates that 55 per cent of all pedestrian deaths are due in some measure to the fault of the pedestrian. In these cases, the walker isn't the innocent victim he is usually pictured, but definitely contributes to his own doom.

The National Safety Council suggests five simple and practical things the pedestrian can do to keep the Dark Angel at a safe distance.

First, obey traffic signals the same as good drivers do.

Second, learn the laws and ordinances in effect in state and city to regulate traffic from the pedestrian's point of view—his rights and his duties. Third, having done this, the pedestrian is in a position to demand a better acceptance of their obligations by drivers.

Fourth, take a greater interest in traffic problems, and especially in the placement and operation of traffic signals and pedestrian islands.

Fifth, it will be found through these studies that reductions in the number and severity of accidents to pedestrians can be easily achieved.

The man on foot must contribute his share to the cause of safety, as well as the man at the wheel. Many pedestrians believe they should be allowed to commit almost any traffic error. The sad results of that notion are found in the daily accident figures.

DOING SOMETHING ABOUT IT

The dairy farmers of the country face trouble—and plenty of it. In most of the big markets, conditions are disrupted for one reason or another. The actions of "chousers"—private troubles—difficulties of reconciling opposed points of view of different factions involved in producing and distributing milk. These are but a few of the problems the farmer faces. But these farmers aren't sitting down and letting nature take its course. They are doing something about their troubles—and doing it through co-operative marketing organizations. What they are doing was detailed in many speeches made at the recent annual meeting of the National Cooperative Milk Producers' Federation.

A modern agricultural cooperative isn't just a machine, operated under a stiff routine system, for gathering together the products of its members, and disposing of them in some profitable market. It has to practice diplomacy. It has to consider and weigh any number of problems, social and economic. And it is the best and soundest instrument the farmer possesses for working out his difficulties.

Sunday School Lesson

LESSON FOR JANUARY 9 PREPARING FOR A LIFE OF SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 1:1-13. GOLDEN TEXT—Prepare ye the way of the Lord.—Mark 1:3. PRIMARY TOPIC—When Jesus Was Baptized. JUNIOR TOPIC—When Jesus Was Baptized. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Getting Ready to Serve YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Dedicating Our Lives to Service.

"The beginning of the Gospel of Jesus Christ"—what an interesting expression! Did it not bring back before the foundation of the world? Yes, for the death of Christ was no mere afterthought in God's plan. But now we have the coming into the world of the One who was the Lamb slain from before the world's founding. Jesus Christ is about to appear to begin his ministry which was to culminate at Calvary's cross.

Before Jesus comes the Xene spirit to proclaim his appearing, to herald the coming of the Servant of God. Mark begins his account with the ministry of John the Baptist and makes no reference to the birth and genealogy of Jesus. How appropriate that, for after all the impregnation of a servant is not that he came from a certain family or was born in a particular place. The point is that he is here now and able and ready to do his work.

I. The Herald of Christ—vv. 1-8. The prophets had pointed forward to the coming of Christ. John the Baptist, of whom our Lord said that there was not a greater among the prophets, now appears to proclaim his presence and prepare the way for him. Of him Joseph Parker beautifully says that he "was all but a transparent veil. They could almost see the coming of God through him. If he stood aside for a moment there was the One who was to come."

John was a unique personality, admirably fitted to proclaim the message of repentance to a decadent age. He was not paid or ridiculed, strangely clad and unusual folk who have a word for us from God.

"Repent"—that was his message from the Lord. America needs that message today. The Christian doctrine of repentance has been set aside by some because they dislike its convicting power, and by others through theological readjustment. It needs re-affirmation. John's greatest message, however, was the coming of the One who was to baptize not with water but with the Holy Ghost. Like every true witness he humbles himself and points to the Saviour. We need the message, "repent," but we need even more to recall our preaching and our churches the Holy Ghost power of the Son of God.

II. The Baptism of Christ—vv. 9-11. The account in Mark is brief but it brings before us the fact that the sinless Son of God thus identified his holy self with sinful humanity which he had come to save. What infinite love and condescension! God the Father gives his approval. "Thou art my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."—vv. 11.

Let us learn the lesson that obedience to the divine will, willingness to humble ourselves to do the work whereunto God has sent us, are prerequisites to the filling of the Holy Spirit with power and grace for life.

III. The Temptation of Christ—vv. 12, 13. As a final preparation for and an intimation of what would be met in his ministry the Holy Spirit led our Lord into the wilderness to be tempted by Satan. Around him, were the wild beasts, before him was Satan, and in all "the angels ministered unto him."

We recall as we consider the temptation of Jesus, that he was without sin, that there was no fallen nature in him to which Satan could appeal. The temptation or testing of Jesus was therefore, along Messianic lines, but the principles both of temptation and victory are similar to those of our own experience. Consider the parallel passages in Matthew 4 and Luke 4.

The Devil has only three real temptations to present, "the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life."—I John 2:16. These he used with Jesus as he tempted him to make food for his hungry body, to look at the kingdoms of this earth and to presume on God's grace by throwing himself from the pinnacle of the temple. He uses the same three types of temptation with us varying the "desires" in which he presents them. Let us be on our guard.

Victory came through the use of God's word. We need not lose that lesson and not attempt to defeat Satan with any man-made weapons of will-power, logic, or culture. He is our victory. Learn to know him as Saviour and Lord. Study God's Word and learn how to use it in spiritual conflict, yield to the Holy Spirit. Victory lies that way, and nowhere else.

Capitol Comments

This session of Kentucky's General Assembly will be far more strenuous than was first suspected. When the Administration took stock after the last general election in November and found that 77 elected members of the House of Representatives and 28 Senators, some newly elected and some hold-overs, were sympathetic with the feeling of the Governor, it was generally believed that this session would be a matter of mere routine. They forgot, however, that many of the new members ran on platforms which made promises to do certain things and make certain moves when they took their seats at Frankfort. Those are going to keep those promises and in some instances it puts both them and the Administration in an awkward predicament.

For instance there were some that told the home folk back in July when they were campaigning in the primaries and again in the general election, that if elected they would come here and introduce a bill to increase Old Age Assistance from a $15 to a $30 a month maximum. Some prominent road legislation and some other promises and the legislator is put in a bad light with his constituents. What I worked hard and long preparing a program for this session and if it could be carried out the session would move along without a hitch because some of these legislators, promises to the folk back home are not included in the Council's program and these legislators are going to have their say and nobody can stop them. The farmers and those who live in rural communities will be happy with pleasure. There is movement to expand the activities of the Rural Highway Department. This department will have more money to spend next year. That money will have to come from the State Highway Department. Cutting down on the State Highway Department was another piece of legislation promised by candidates in certain sections and before this session is over that legislation is certain to come to pass.

The ending of this pillar has been attended the sessions of the legislative council during the last days before the convening of the General Assembly. He has watched the proceedings with interest and has made an effort to find just which would be the most important and the most talked of legislation that is to come. In a talk with Dr. B. F. Shields, a member of the Board of Council, and Senator Leo King, Henderson, it was found that the liquor control question would be the high light of the meeting. The Council has written, revised, and generally smoothed out a 48-page bill which it predicts will settle the liquor situation. One thing is certain, the activities of the roadhouses will be greatly curtailed. In the bill there is included a section dealing with the operation of roadhouses where police supervision is conspicuously in its absence. These places must go. However, before that bill is passed the legislators are going to run into such things as this. The owners of one of these roadhouse spots will want the right to pay the salary of a regularly deputized deputy sheriff to stay around his place to promote law and order. This already is being done in some counties which already have a certain amount of liquor control. This would be O. K. but for the fact that in this session there is certain to be some legislation about privately paid deputy sheriffs. This growing out of the activities of the deputies in Harlan County coal wars in recent years.

Hardin county farmers set a new limestone record of 42,094 tons in 1937, according to the annual report of County Agent A. J. Thaxton.

DON'T FORGET THE TIME AND PLACE
JIMMY WILSON

Constant his servant entered. "The Duc de Talleyrand," said he, "offers his most humble compliments to Madame the Countess Walewka and begs his Majesty's permission to present certain documents for signature."

"Now? This minute?" she teased. "I see only your lovely face," he answered. "I hear only the sound of your voice."

"What do you hear what I say, too?" she smiled.

"For instance—"

"I love you," she whispered. "Clearly," he replied.

"You stop loving me one day," she sighed.

"You spoke?" he queried. She nodded. "I did not hear you."

She laughed happily. "You are too fast," she cautioned tenderly.

"My mother said the same thing," he answered.

"What did your mother call you?"

"Napoleone," he replied. "She still calls me Napoleone."

"Napoleone," Marie breathed the name softly under her breath.

"Napoleone," she looked deep into his eyes. "Are we really sitting across from each other at this table, in this room? Perhaps you will pass on into the night—and I shall be nothing."

He placed his cheek next to hers. "No. You are not snow, my dear," he murmured. "And I have never been more real. For I am a man in love—profoundly in love. Yes, Napoleone?"

"I am very happy. Are you?"

"I could give you a word of you, she purred.

A sudden knock at the door warned, entered to bustle the Duc de Talleyrand, Napoleon's foreign minister, had arrived and was awaiting word with his Majesty.

Napoleon rose regretfully from the table. "Hurry back or I'll harry you with notes," she warned. He embraced her swiftly and left.

As he entered the reception room, the men gathered there rose to their feet. "Good morning, Gentlemen," he greeted; he turned to Talleyrand. "Have you had a pleasant journey?" he inquired.

Talleyrand bowed and smiled, writing inwardly in remembrance of the miles of soft mud and order to re-ach Caskey Finckenstein. Why had the Emperor chosen this quarters? What had he hidden here of such import? For certain, no one would winter in Finckenstein except for the purpose of concealing something—but what? No matter; he'd discover it before he left the castle. His winter was passed, had no evidence of the trend his thoughts were taking.

"I was aware of nothing but the pleasure of serving your Majesty," he smiled. "Charming places—Finckenstein."

"You think so?" Napoleon queried provocatively. "I don't like it." And, in an instant, he became completely the Emperor, ambassador, and the sundry other dignitaries, in their place.

A servant broke in upon the conference with a note. Napoleon interrupted a speech to read it. Talleyrand watched him from under lowered lids, avid with curiosity. Napoleon flashed him a quick glance of malicious satisfaction. The note was from Marie—and he knew what Talleyrand would give to discover the writer and contents. He rose from his chair, cutting short the conference. "I leave now on a matter of utmost urgency," he said suavely. "My foreign minister, Prince Talleyrand will discuss our various matters with you." Back in the room he found Marie at the table writing him another note. The message uproariously at his sudden return. He took her in his arms and kissed her.

A knock at the door interrupted them. Napoleon turned impatiently. "Come in," he roared.
