

The death of the venerable sage of Quincy is no longer a matter of doubt. He expired at Washington on the 23d instant, having remained speechless from the time of his attack, which occurred on the 22d instant, while the House was in session, and the venerable statesman in discharge of his duties as a public servant, which he has been for almost the entire period of his long and eventful life.

Mr. Adams has possessed for many years, the undiminished confidence and esteem, of the wise and good throughout the nation, and his public virtue and private excellence, have continued since the Revolutionary Era, to exercise an acknowledged influence on the public men and public measures of his country.

Mr. Adams was born in Boston, on the 11th day of July, 1737.

In 1781 he was selected by Mr. Francis Dana, of Massachusetts, as his Private Secretary at the Court of St. Petersburg, being then in his fifty-third year. He remained in this position until the winter of 1782-3, at which time he repaired to Holland, where his father had shortly before been received as United States Minister. He continued with his father in England, Holland, and France, until May, '85, at which time he returned to his native Massachusetts, became a member of Harvard College (at Cambridge, Mass.) where he graduated in '87.

He then studied law with Theophilus Parsons an eminent Jurist, afterwards Chief Justice of Massachusetts, settled in Boston with a view to practice law, and first distinguished himself as a politician, by a series of essays in favor of the neutrality of the United States in the war between France and England in '93.

He was in consequence of these early efforts, introduced by Mr. Jefferson to the favorable notice of Gen. Washington, and in May, '97, was appointed Minister to the Netherlands, being only 37 years old. Two years after he was appointed by Gen. W. Minister to Portugal. Before he had reached Lisbon, however, he was, at the instigation of Gen. Washington—then retired from office—transferred to Berlin, who remarked in a letter which he addressed to John Adams, then President of the United States, on this subject, that he considered his son—the most valuable public character we have abroad."

Mr. Adams continued to grow in the esteem and confidence of his fellow-citizens, until, by the voice of his countrymen, he sat in the chair, whose honored incumbents of the Revolutionary era had again and again bestowed on him the most signal marks of their confidence and esteem. He retired from the Presidency in 1809, after having served the time for which he was elected with credit to himself and benefit to the nation. His neighbors, however, would not permit him to remain in retirement, and accordingly we find him taking his seat in the Lower House of Congress in December, 1813, which position he continued to occupy until the hour of his death, which occurred we might almost say, in the Hall of the National Legislature itself, in the 83d year of his life.

He was the last link in the chain, connecting the past or Revolutionary era, with the men and affairs of a more modern age. Mr. Adams's learning and purity, were his most striking characteristics—a discriminating patriotism being their legitimate fruit—the respect and admiration of his countrymen for ages yet to come, their merited reward.

A meeting of the friends of General Scott assembled in Pittsburgh on Tuesday night last and nominated him as a candidate for the Presidency. The meeting is represented by the Pittsburgh papers, to have been largely an enthusiastic one. The Gazette, however, complains that some of the speakers on the occasion, used language and expressed sentiments, unbecomingly in the opinion of the speakers, and disrespectful to other distinguished Whigs spoken of in connection with the Presidency.

Anti-Remian is again rearing its hateful form in Columbus county, New York. Several arrests have already been made, and much excitement excited.

A magnificent Ball was intended at Washington City, in commemoration of the birth of the father of his country. It was postponed in consequence of the illness of Mr. Adams. The receipts after paying expenses are to be appropriated in aid of the Washington monument (nd.

We acknowledge our indebtedness to the obliging and gentlemanly officers of the steamboat Circassian for last New Orleans papers.

The 94 Regiment Kentucky Troops.

We had the pleasure of meeting Lieutenant Walker and Heddison, of Captain Cox's company of Fencing Volunteers, on their return to their homes on Saturday last. We are indebted to the former for the following intelligences of news, as well as for several Mexican papers, from which however we learned nothing of special interest to our readers. Second Lieutenant Heddison has resigned and has been succeeded by W. J. Law. Second Lieutenant Herndon, of the Both company, has also resigned. First Lieutenant Walker, and Captain Metcalfe, of Nicholas, have returned on recruiting service. It will be gratifying to the friends of Capt. Cox to learn that his health is steadily improving. Lieut. Owens, of Capt. Squires' company of the 4th Regiment has also returned on recruiting service.

The Kentucky Regiment had suffered greatly from disease, but we are happy to learn from Lieut. Walker, and snippets from other sources, that the invalids are now improving.

The Kentucky Gazette thinks the recent Convention does may force the Democrats to go to Mexico for a candidate for Governor. With Butler and Hise, he says, "we might hope for success, even when contending against the great popularity of Henry Clay and the eloquence of J. J. Crittenden."

With such cheering reflections, Democratic stock, which has certainly fallen quite low within a few days, under the influence of the Crittenden panic, may again come up. The Editor of the Freeman's Journal, printed at Covington, offers the suggestion, that the great popularity and eloquence of Mr. C. will have the effect to chloroform the Democratic party, and that they will be beaten without pain at least. He is more considerate than the Gazette man, and we commend him for the ingenuity of his suggestion, though we greatly doubt the sincerity of his sympathy.

A Mrs. Simmons, of Cincinnati, being desirous of having some decayed teeth extracted, inhaled Chloroform to produce insensibility to the pain, consequent upon the operation. The Cincinnati papers generally report her as having died in a few minutes after the inhalation. The Commercial of Friday, however, says that although insensibility was suspended, she continued warm, and efforts were being made to restore her. She has since been subjected to a post mortem examination, in which nothing was discovered calculated to elucidate the causes of her sudden death.

The FREEMAN'S JOURNAL.—We have received No. 3, of this valuable and interesting paper, published at Covington, Ky., and Edited by Wm. Banton, Esq.

We hail the Journal as a valuable co-laborer in the diffusion of Whig principles in the coming canvass, and wish the Editor entire success in his enterprise.

The Louisville Journal of Saturday last announces the completion of Kendall & Smith's Telegraph line from Louisville to Frankfort. It works admirably.

The news of a treaty of Peace with Mexico has greatly affected the stock market. Treasury Notes have advanced 25 per cent. They had previously been selling at par.

The breaking away of the embankment around a large reservoir of water at Massillon, Ohio, which was situated some 80 feet above the level of the town, did much damage. One brick warehouse was destroyed, and several other houses greatly injured.

The death of the venerable and venerated sage and patriot, John Q. Adams, seems to have produced a profound sensation throughout the Union. Neither House of Congress transacted any business on the 23d instant.

We have received another long and interesting letter from our friend, L. M. C., dated at the city of Mexico. We regret our inability to give it in to-day's Herald. It shall appear in our next.

Brough of the Cincinnati Enquiry says that he was called on to speak at the Taylor meeting in that city; but that he has no time to spare for such a purpose. He is right enough. The distress of his own political parish demands all his tears—even if he has a bucket full of 'Lous.'/
The EXPECTED DUEL.—S. P. Renties, Esq., and Mr. Henry E. Irwin, as we learn from an authentic source, were to fight on Saturday last, the 19th inst. Miss. on Saturday last, the 19th inst. We shall probably ascertain the result in three or four days.—Lous. Journal.

From the Frankfort Commonwealth.

The State Convention met at the Capitol, in Frankfort, Kentucky, on Tuesday, the 23d day of January, 1848, for the temporary appointment of the Hon. RICHARD HAWES, of Bourbon, President, and WALTER N. HALDEMAN, of Louisville, and A. R. McKEE, of Garrard, Secretaries. Upon a call of the members, a quorum numbering from one to fifty from the following counties, answered to their names, viz:

[We omit the names of the counties represented, as unimportant, compared to other matters now pressing upon our attention.]

Sundry resolutions were offered by Mr. Anderson, supported by Messrs. Chambers, McClung, Calhoun, Buckner, S. Turner and Hawes, who composed a committee for that purpose, appointed by primary meeting; and Mr. Walter of Mason, Mr. Hays, of Hardin, G. M. Clay, of Madison; O. W. Williams, of Bourbon, were referred to a committee of ten, who were ordered to report thereon, at the next sitting of the convention.

The committee appointed, consisted of Messrs. G. W. Williams, of Bourbon; J. F. Backer, of Christian; J. A. McClung, of Mason; Maj. S. Turner, of Madison; O. G. Gates, of Franklin; A. Jackson, of Estill; Gwyn Page, of Louisville city; John P. Devereaux, of Daviess; Robert Mallory, of Gallatin; Dr. S. F. Miller, of Knox. The convention thereupon adjourned until to-morrow.

Wednesday, Feb. 23, 1848. The convention met pursuant to adjournment, and was called to order by the President.

The committee to whom was referred the various resolutions proposed yesterday, were unanimously adopted.

Resolved, That in the opinion of this convention, GENERAL ZACHARY TAYLOR has the entire confidence of the people of Kentucky, and we recommend him to the consideration of the Whig Convention, and to the people of the United States, as a candidate for the Presidency.

Resolved, That we nominate to the people of Kentucky, the following named persons as candidates for Elector at President and Vice-President of the United States. [The Electors are the same, selected by the gubernatorial election.]

Mr. G. W. Williams, of Bourbon, then offered a dissenting view. Resolved, That Orlando Brown, O. G. Cates, G. W. Craddock, Thos. N. Lindsey and James R. Turner, be appointed a corresponding committee, with any vacancy that may occur in the electoral ticket nominated to the people of Kentucky, by this convention.

It was, upon motion, Resolved, That the editors of newspapers in Kentucky, be requested to publish the proceedings of this convention. The convention then adjourned.

R. HAWES, Pres't. WALTER N. HALDEMAN, Sec'taries. ALEX. R. McKEE.

A correspondent of the National Intelligencer says: "Notwithstanding the rhetorical flourishes on this side the water on free trade in Great Britain, it is a well established fact that American Tobacco contributes an annual sum to the coffers of that country of upwards of fifteen millions of dollars. The duty is three shillings sterling per pound, or about eight hundred dollars per hundred lbs. of stock of Tobacco in Great Britain on the 1st of January last was fifty-five thousand five hundred hogsheads, which, when taken out of bond for consumption, will pay a duty of forty-four millions four hundred thousand dollars.

Philadelphia, February 5. The following is a brief but satisfactory abstract of the correspondence between Gen. Scott and Worth, which resulted in the Court of Inquiry. It is from the Cincinnati Atlas of Friday.

The Peyton has arrived from New Orleans bringing dates of the 17th inst. The Delta contains the correspondence of Gen. Scott and Worth relative to the late difficulties in Mexico, and the public opinion of the Army officers concurring severely the authors of certain letters written to the United States.

Gen. Scott, in a letter to Gen. Scott, stating that he learned with astonishment that it was the opinion of the army that the impetuous conduct mentioned in the general order referred to him, and asking if such was the opinion of the commander-in-chief.

General Scott replied that the order clearly expressed that he meant to apply the impatience to the author of the letter signed "Leonidas." Gen. Worth rejoined, and said he did not consider the answer satisfactory.

Gen. Scott replied that he could be no more explicit than he had to do with the suggestion of the order, and if he had valid information of the authorship he would prosecute the parties before a Court-Martial.

Gen. Worth replied that he supposed the commander regarded him as not deserving a satisfactory answer, and he had accordingly applied an appeal to the President. He concluded by assuring Scott of acting in a manner unbecoming an officer and a gentleman.

Gen. Scott then ordered Worth under arrest for having with contempt and disrespect towards the commander-in-chief. There is an unanimity of sentiment in Kentucky in favor of the nomination of Gen. Taylor for next Presidency, that is truly gratifying and cheering. During our recent visit to the State Convention, and the delegates of the two conventions, and we are certain that ninety-nine out of every hundred of them were in favor of the nomination of Gen. Taylor. A portion of the Northern press, which for some time has been pre-occupied with misrepresenting the sentiment of Kentucky, should look out and remember, these facts.—Lous. Courier.

BY TELEGRAPH.

From the Louisville Courier. Mr. Crittenden's acceptance. WASHINGTON CITY, Feb. 24. The officers yield to the wishes of his friends, and accept the nomination for the office of Governor, which the Convention has honored him.

WASHINGTON CITY, Feb. 24, 1848. Mr. Crittenden accepts the nomination of the Convention as the candidate for the office of Governor of Kentucky, but they do not intend to support him, and his resignation to take effect, because the posture of public affairs here at this day is such that they cannot tell how long his services may be indispensable in the Senate.

R. UNDERWOOD, C. S. MOREHEAD, J. B. THOMPSON, JOHN P. GAINES, WYLLIE BUCKNER, GREEN ADAMS.

To Messrs. L. COMBS, R. APPERSON, JOSEPH BELL, Esq., Frankfort. Mr. G. Duncan is not in the city.

Congressional. WASHINGTON, Feb. 24, P. M. SENATE.—Mr. BUCKNER gave notice on to-morrow he would ask leave to bring in a bill to establish a Territory of Nebraska.

Mr. Allen moved to take up the resolution which he had previously offered, calling on the President for information whether an armistice exists with Mexico, and on what terms? The motion was agreed to, and the resolution after a short debate passed; yeas 41, nays 8.

Mr. Allen moved to take up the resolution which he offered yesterday, instructing the Committee to report whether the act of '90 require an amendment, which motion was also agreed to, and the resolution adopted.

Mr. Baldwin's resolution relative to the Wilmot Proviso was next taken up, and several Senators participated in the debate which sprang up.

Mr. Allen moved to lay the resolution on the table, and Mr. Crittenden gave notice of a message received from the House, requesting a resolution of the House to attend the funeral of Mr. Adams, and inviting the Senate to participate in the ceremonies.

Mr. Davis moved, and asked a resolution to accept the invitation of the House, which was unanimously adopted, and the Senate adjourned.

At an early hour the House was crowded to its utmost capacity, he heard the eulogy of Mr. Adams, which was pronounced in a most elegant manner, by the Speaker, Mr. W. M. Gales.

Mr. Hudson then gave a brief biography of Mr. Adams.

Mr. Holmes followed in an eloquent address.

Mr. Vinton next took the floor, and after a few appropriate remarks he took his seat, very much affected.

Mr. McDowell followed, and paid a beautiful eulogy on the late deceased, and after which the resolutions of condolence and mourning were adopted, and the House, having resolved to attend the funeral, adjourned until Saturday.

The following is the substance of the Treaty negotiated by Ex-Commissioner T. East and sent home for the approval of his Government. We quote from the National Intelligencer.

First, Peace between the United States and Mexico, and an Armistice between the Military Commanders of the two countries during such a time as the Treaty shall be in suspense.

Secondly, Mexico agrees in consideration, that the boundary between the United States and Mexico shall hereafter be from the sea up the middle of the Rio Grande to the boundary of New Mexico, and thence in a line (which with some digression) is the Gulf of Mexico, and thence to the Pacific Ocean, and strike a point south of the port of San Diego.

Thirdly, In consideration of this large territory hereby the United States are to pay to Mexico the sum of fifteen millions of dollars, and to satisfy all the just claims of citizens of the United States against the Government of Mexico.

The money to be so expended to contain many provisions of detail, but does not, as we hear, include any provision, as has been reported, for the maintenance of a military corps by the United States for a certain time in Mexico.

The following from the Telegraphic Department of the Pittsburgh Commercial Journal of Friday, is a fuller account of the funeral of Mr. Adams than we have before seen.

We infer from the following that he died in the Speaker's room, to which he had been removed from the Hall of the House of Representatives:

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—9 P. M. The funeral ceremony of the late John Quincy Adams took place in his room. Nothing happened to mar the impressive solemnities of the occasion. The whole city was in attendance. The coffin was enclosed with an American flag, and the Hearse was drawn by four black horses, followed by his own riding horse, in the rear.

His remains have been temporarily deposited in St. Stephen's Church, from whence they will be removed to their final resting place, in his native State.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—5 P. M. The Senate was not in session to-day.—Crowds gathered in the Speakers Room of the House to take a last early farewell of the remains of the late Hon. John Quincy Adams.

His body is enclosed in an elegant coffin, and still remains in the Capitol. All the public buildings and departments of State are clothed in the habiliments of mourning. All business is suspended, a deep gloom seems to pervade all classes. The day is cold, cloudy, and disagreeable. All things taken together, form the most solemn, dreary, desolate, tomblike day I ever witnessed.

The following are the remarks of Mr. Benton made in the Senate, in announcing the illness of Mr. Adams: Mr. Benton rose to make a painful announcement to the Senate. He had just been informed that the House of Representatives had adjourned under the most affecting circumstances—a calamitous visitation of the oldest and ablest member of the one who had been President of the United States, and whose character inspired universal respect and esteem. He spoke of Mr. Adams, who had just sunk down in the chair, and had fallen into an adjoining room, and might at this moment be passing from this world under the very roof which covers us, and almost in our presence. Under such circumstances, the whole Senate and the Court, felt, and firmly uttered, a resolution to do any business. He therefore moved an adjournment of the Senate.

This motion was unanimously agreed to, and the Senate adjourned.

A NEW INVENTION IN PRINTING.—We have been advised, the plan of a new roller invented by Col. Herron Foster, of the Dispatch. No printer can fail to see the advantage of this invention, as it rolls any kind of paper, and an always ready service: thus at one impression printing a bill in which different colors are given both to type and border. Colonel F. has taken the necessary steps to secure a patent, and as soon as the bill shall be carried into a law, a model can be constructed, we will direct to our readers, as we consider it one of the most valuable inventions in our art, since the introduction of composition rollers.—Com.
