MOREHEAD COUNCIL ADOPTS 2 ORDINANCES AT REGULAR MEET TUESDAY NIGHT; OTHERS WAIT

To Move Jockey Ring Out Of City Limits; Discuss Street Repair

The regular meeting of the Morehead City Council, held at the city hall on Tuesday night of this week, was packed with discussion and action on at least two important ordinances and instructions for the drawing up of a third for passage at a later meeting.

Outside of the regular routine passage of a claim, the council voted to adopt an ordinance prohibiting the erection of signs extending across the street within the city limits advertising any business, or place of entertainments. They adopted an ordinance regulating the conduct of business houses in the City of Morehead.

Considerable complaint has been made from citizens of the city with regard to places of business which permit drinking and carousing contrary to law. The complaint alleges that these places disturbed the peace of the city and citizens and that they were operating in flagrant violation of the laws of decency as well as of the state and city. It was for the purpose of protecting the decency and morals of the citizens that the following ordinance was adopted:

An Ordinance Regulating the Conduct of Business Houses in the City of Morehead

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF MOREHEAD, KY.

Section 1. That it shall be unlawful for any person, persons, firms or corporations, to allow the gathering and mingling together of men, women or children of any age in any place of business in this city for the purpose of drinking intoxicating liquors or beer, dance or use boisterous or profane language or in any way disturb the peace or quietude of the city; and any individual, person, firm or corporation allowing such gathering of this class of person, shall be arrested for misdemeanor and shall be fined fifty ($50.00) dollars.

Sec. 2. This ordinance to take effect on and after its passage and publication.

The ordinance covering the erection of signs across the street follows:

Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Morehead,

Sec. 1. That it shall be unlawful for any person, persons, firms or corporations to erect or suspend business signs or advertisements across any of the streets of the city of Morehead except on permission of the Council. And anyone thus offending shall be fined not exceeding $10.00 and each day shall be deemed a separate offense.

Sec. 2. This ordinance shall take effect on and after its passage and publication.

Considerable discussion was evolved over the proposal to adopt an ordinance to prevent the holding of "Jockey Day" within the city limits of Morehead. One contention was that since it was a business it would react on the business men of the city if the jockey ring were removed from the city limits. One councillor offered a suggestion, that since it was a business the ring should be located either on Main Street from the A. and P. corner to Hargis Avenue or from the Cozy Corner to the Christian Church.

At present the jockey ring is held on Railroad street since its removal from around the court house. Residents of that section are as strongly opposed to its being held there as residents of any other section of the city. As a matter of fact, it was maintained that the horse owners could

Debaters Win 2nd In Atlantic Trials

Teams Score Wins In All But Three Of The Tournery Matches

A Morehead College debate team composed of Elijah Hogge, Earl Dean, Alton Payne, and Howard Eckles won second place in the South Atlantic States Debate Tournery held at Wake-Forest College for Women, Rock Hill, South Carolina, last week-end. Over thirty colleges participated in the tournament. The team from Wake-Forest College won first place.

The two teams, each composed of two men, participated in a total of twelve debates and lost only three, the winning team losing two decisions. If the Morehead teams had lost one less debate they would have earned the right to the met the winner in a contest for the title. The varsity team of Dean and Hogge lost two out of six debates, while the freshman team of Payne and Eckles won five out of six contests.

Due to the fact that the team had only twenty-four hours notice before they knew that they were to make the trip, Dr. A. Y. Lloyd was unable to arrange any debates for the trip down or back.

This is the most impressive showing ever made by a Morehead debate team. The team last year engaged in a tourney at Conway, Arkansas, but were eliminated before the final round. Several other debates will be contested in the near future, although Morehead teams have engaged in a total of forty-one debates already this season.

Ora. Cline Suffers Bad Injuries In Car Wreck

Ora Cline, son of Mr. and Mrs. Riley Cline of Haldeman is in the St. Josephs Hospital in Lexington, as the result of injuries sustained when the car in which he was riding was almost completely demolished as the result of a collision with a coal truck late Saturday night on the Midland Trail, about three miles east of Morehead. The car was driven by Chester Reider, also of Haldeman, who suffered severe cuts about the head and face.

The two young men accompanied by friends were returning home when the accident occurred. They had passed the front end of the truck when the bed struck the body of the car, completely demolishing the entire top and breaking every glass in it. Mr. Cline who was riding in the back seat on the side next the truck received the full benefit of the shower of glass, his face being literally cut to pieces and necessitating the jacking of twenty-five stitches. He was then rushed to Lexington, where the latest reports indicate it will be necessary to remove his eye, which was pierced by the flying glass.

Mr. Reider suffered a cut over the nose, while the young ladies escaped with minor injuries.

LICKING VALLEY FISH AND GAME ASS'N ELECT OFFICERS, ADOPT NEW BY-LAWS

Getting away to an astonishingly good start, the Licking Valley Fish and Game Protective Association here Tuesday night by adopting a constitution and by-laws and by electing permanent officers. While no membership drive has been made, note by publicity and general invitation to attend the meetings and help perfect the organization, an enrollment of over seventy members has already been made. Considering the lack of an organized drive for membership, this number is a fair indication of the interest that is being stirred in Rowan County in the conservation program being sponsored by the fish and game club.

The organization selected the name Licking Valley Fish and Game Protective Association for the reason that they intend to make the club more than a local association. They plan on extending their sphere of activity to surrounding counties, including all those that are drained by the Licking River. They have already made a start in this direction by including members from Bath and Morgan as well as Rowan Counties.

The following officers were elected after being recommended by the nominating committee: President, W. C. Lappin; first vice president, W. D. Serogins; second vice president, C. B. McCullough; secretary-treasurer, C. W. Fletcher.

Rowan County To Get Big Sum From State

Out of the two million dollars appropriated by the recent session of the legislature to be distributed among the counties for road work, Rowan county will receive $12,845.99 according to figures just issued by State Inspector and Examiner, Nat B. Sevier. The distribution will be made under the same system of calculation and on the same basis as that used in distributing the county's share of the gross sales tax which was repealed in January.

The chief difference between the present distribution and that under the old sales tax law, is that money received from that source were reserved for the payment of road and bridge bonds, while money received by the counties under the present setup will be used for road construction and repair.

Other nearby counties will receive the following amounts: Bath, $12,859.18; Elliott, $11,849.58; Fleming, $14,244.96; Menifee, $10,187.84; Mason, $14,131.28; Morgan, $15,469.32; Montgomery, $11,313.74; Carter, $18,486.34.

A CORRECTION

In announcing the winners in the amateur contest last week, we were erroneously informed as to the names Willie Caudill was not the winner of the first prize, but his son, Stanley Caudill and Donald Stone won first prize. They are known as the Mountain Ramblers. Second prize was won by the Happy Sisters, Margaret Bays and Arrie Rayner. Third prize went to the Roving Ramblers, who are Edwin Muttters, Paul Black and Chester Stanley.

We are sorry to have made this mistake and glad to correct it.

CLEAN UP TIME AGAIN

And now comes the annual editorial on the "Spring Clean-Up Campaign." For, like the poor, it is always with us. And like the migratory birds the spirit of chasing dirt returns each spring.

According to an announcement by Harlan Blair, Mayor of the City, the annual spring clean-up campaign will soon officially open. However, contrary to other clean-up campaigns, the plan this year is to begin now and continue throughout the year.

Spring Clean-up is one of the healthy signs of progress in a city. It is in a way the shaking off of the last of the winter lethargy and a renewal of faith and hope and ambition. Morehead should be a clean town, physically as well as morally. Physical Cleanliness is typified in the outward appearance of the homes and lawns, the back yards and alleys, is merely an indication of moral cleanliness. For moral cleanliness cannot be found in filthy surroundings.

Morehead has perhaps more visitors than any other town its size. People drop in and give the city the "once-over" before they decide to send their children here to school. One of the first things that affect their decision is the appearance of the city, the thrift and the cleanliness, the well kept, well groomed city. First impressions are important. And the first impression we should aim to give our visitors is a well kept town with clean streets, pleasant homes and no unsightly garbage piles. Morehead should be one of the cleanest, and therefore one of the healthiest cities in Kentucky, because Morehead has on its shoulders the responsibility of the care, not only of its own citizens, but of the citizens of other cities and towns as well.

There is ample room for a clean-up. Every loyal citizen should give heed to the proclamation of Mayor Blair, and cooperate with the City Council in bringing about the ideal of a clean, healthful city, that will be a credit to all of us.

WHAT MAKES A TOWN GREAT?

Why do some towns grow while others stand still or recede? Why is one town known as a "live burg" and another as a "dead one"? How many times those questions have been asked and answered!

Soil and climate, railroad facilities and roads, geographical location and capital—all of these help, but after all, it is men that make or break a town. Given every advantage conceivable, no town without men of courage and vision ever goes forward.

Some of the things that make a town great are listed in the following:

- A little more praise and a little less blame
A little more virtue and a little less shame
A little more thought for the other man's rights
A little less self in our chase for delights
A little more loving, a little less hate
Are all that is needed to make the town great.

- A little more boosting, a little less peering
A little more trusting, a little less fearing
A little more patience in trouble and pain
A little more kindness worked into strife
Are all that is needed to glorify life.

- A little more kindness, a little less greed
A little more smile, a little less frown
A little less kicking a man when he's down
A little more laugh, and a little less cry
A little more flowers on the pathway of life
A fewer on graves at the end of strife.

- A little more courage when the pathway's rough
A little more honor, a little less greed
A little more action, a little less bluff
A little more kindness by you and by me
And oh, what a wonderful town this would be!

Possibly more towns are restricted in their possible growth from individual selfishness than other faults. Too few men realize that in working for the whole they are working for themselves. Too often when called on for service we are too busy, and yet, if we all would pull and shove, our individual business would reap greater progress.

Those towns which are forging rapidly to the front are the ones where there are men of vision and courage and willingness to do one's share—and a bit more—in community effort.

One man can pull only so much, but a hundred men all pulling on the same rope, will move a load one hundred times greater.

That's community effort and that alone builds cities from towns and villages.

JAP MARINES MASS AS NEW OUBURST BREW

Tokio, — Giving rise to reports that the government fears a new outbreak, several hundred Marines from the Yokosuka Naval Base trooped into the center of Tokio to replace the present guard around the Navy Ministry.

With Premier Koki Hirota balking in his efforts to form a strong cabinet by the opposition of young military radicals, introduction of more Marines into the city was regarded as a forbodingly significant.

It was recalled that a guard of Marines was thrown around the Naval Ministry last week before the armistiny broke out, leading to the belief that the government had forewarned of the rebellion.

From The State Capital

(From The Courier-Journal) (By Howard Henderson)

Frankfort, Ky., — The principal safeguard against "chain voting" in Kentucky elections, the secondary stub on election ballots, was removed by the General Assembly at the 1936 regular session, and approved by Gov. A. B. Chandler.

No barrier to "chain voting" remains. The secondary stub in the ballot was the principal and sole safeguard. It was removed by the Senate bill, sponsored by Senator Lee King, Henderson.

Election officers, forbidden by the statute from being closer than fifteen feet to the booth in which the voter marks the ballot, are completely cut off from any effective means of guarding against "chain voting."

"Chain voting," to the uninitiated is a widely-practiced form of election corruption. It affords election crooks with machinery through which they can exact absolute compliance from electors who sell their votes. The secondary stub was a device by which election officers could make sure that "chain voting" was not being practiced.

"Chain voting," is accomplished by election crooks obtaining in some manner one unmarked ballot, usually brought outside the polling place early on election morning. The election crook marks the ballot as he desires it voted, buys a vote and hands the ballot to the purchaser. The voter goes into the voting place, gives his name and obtains a ballot. He goes into the voting booth with the marked ballot in his pocket, holding in his hand the valid ballot just obtained from the election clerk.

In the booth the vote seller pulls from his pocket the marked ballot, putting the unmarked ballot in his pocket. He remains long enough to give an appearance of having voted, walks out and deposits in the ballot box the marked ballot which he brought into the room. He then walks out with the unmarked ballot, which he delivers to the vote buyer outside.

The vote buyer marks the new ballot, gives it to a new voter whose vote has been bought. The new voter repeats the procedure. The process is repeated by a third voter who sell his vote. It goes on all day, if the money and the vote sellers hold out. Or, actually it went on unless some art election officer, knowing what might be practiced, caught up with it through the secondary stub.

That is what the secondary stub is for, to protect against chain voting. An election ballot has, in addition to the ballot which the voter deposits in the ballot box, two stubs, the principal and the secondary stub.

The principal stub is at the top of the ballot. The secondary stub is at the bottom of the ballot. Both stubs carry the number of the ballot, and places for the name and address of the voter. The clerk fills in both sides, tears out the ballot and secondary stub together, leaving the principal stub in the ballot box.

The voter takes the ballot with the secondary stub still attached to the voting booth, votes, and returns to the ballot box. There he detaches the secondary stub, gives it to one of the election officers and deposits the ballot in the box.

Election officers, under the law of many years, had a check on the validity of the ballot the voter was about to deposit in the ballot box. If any of the election officers were suspicious that the voter was depositing a ballot other than the one given him, the secondary stub would tell the tale.

With the secondary stub eliminated the election machinery will be completely at the mercy of the election manipulators. There will be no test by which the officers could tell whether the ballot a voter brings from the voting booth is the ballot given him by the clerk.

Governor Chandler said he approved the King bill to do away with the secondary stub in the belief the secondary stub was unnecessary. The bill granted support in the legislative bodies, because under operation of the Brock-Gilbert, honest election law many citizens had lost their votes through failure to remove the secondary stub before depositing the ballot in the box.

Previous to the passage of the Brock-Gilbert honest election law, precinct election officers usually counted the ballots that had the secondary stub still attached when the boxes were opened for counting. But with the new laws, counters at the county seats questioned all ballots that still had attached the secondary stubs.

This resulted, in many counties, in several citizens being disfranchised because of their carelessness. In some counties of average population (Continued on Page Seven.)

Experment Group Make Corn Tests

Tests made at the Agriculture Experiment Station at Lexington point to the need of testing seed corn this spring. Samples received from a large number of counties showed much poor germinating corn. The Garden

EARLY POTATOES

Important as are good land and proper soil management, correct fertilization and adequate pest control, in the production of satisfactory early potatoes, these count little unless good seedstock is used. Foremost, is choosing an early variety, one that can "make itself" before the spring rains cease and the soil becomes warm.

Seed potatoes should be in seed condition, firm and unspouted. This requirement at once eliminates for use as seed the Cobblers or Triumph raised as last year's spring crop, the "home-saved seed" on which so many gardeners so hopefully depend.

conditions, such potatoes will be so far past their prime when planting comes the crop that will result bids fair to be disappointing.

Seed potatoes, furthermore, should be healthy, free of the "running-out" diseases that kill the tops before their time, and, in the same ratio, the yields of tubers under them.

There is only one way to make sure of good seed potatoes, namely, to use those other than certified seed. First of all, the certified seed is at least 99 per cent true to name.

Next, certified seed is at least 90 per cent free of the "running-out" diseases. This is so because the growers, schooled by trained technicians, pull out and carry from the fields all plants that show any symptoms of these diseases.

These specifications, by the way, are those of the State College of Agriculture, State Departments of Agriculture or State Seed Commissions of their respective states, and the names appear on the tags attached to the seed potato bags.

Certified seed potatoes may carry a small number of scab spots, but no deep scab pits. There may be also a small amount of black scurf, the germs of which give potatoes a fly specked appearance.

As to varieties, there is only one Irish Cobbler, though if it is the wish of the grower to lengthen the time he uses his own potatoes, he may plant Cobblers and Burbanks, half and half.

Despite their flavor, sweet potatoes are improved by the addition of brown sugar, sirup, raisins or marshmallows. They also may be scalloped with other materials. Peel and slice boiled sweet potatoes, and put in a baking dish with alternate layers of sliced apple, crushed pineapple or raisins.

The brooder temperature should be 90 to 95 degrees at the start and gradually decreased each week, run-

White, ivory, tan or yellow walls and woodwork reflect light and help to improve kitchen lighting. Avoid such colors as drab grays and browns, dingy greens and blues. Good light and ventilation are necessary in the kitchen for good work.

It is best to shear sheep after most of the cold weather is gone and there have been a few days so warm as to make them uncomfortable.

Careless cleaning does more damage to linoleum than long wear. Clean it with a damp cloth wrung out of suds made with a mild soap. Alkali washing powder, strong soap and too much water will damage even the highest quality linoleum.

To dust stuffed dates or dried fruit evenly with sugar, put the sugar, either powdered or granulated, in a paper bag, drop in bits of fruit and shake the bag. This works for doughnuts, too.

Far above other low priced cars in all but cost!

TERRAPLANE

Yes, different from other low priced cars—and far ahead of the rest—in style and everything else that counts! Can we prove this? Just look at a few facts about Terraplane.

Wheelbase, over-all length, inside leg room, head room, shoulder room—unmatched by any low priced car. Untouched by some costing $125 and $145 more.

Of all low priced cars only Terraplane gives you—as extra cost—a rear opening baggage compartment with more room than the average trunk model, with spare tire lying flat inside.

Power—the same story. Terraplane is ahead of other cars in its price class by as much as 18 horsepower. And no vibration at any speed! Terraplanes with 125,000, 150,000 miles and more to their credit show you what this smoothness means in long life.

23.95 Miles per Gallon Interested in economy? Here is Terraplane's latest—23.95 officially certified miles per gallon over 100 miles.

Christian Church Continues Drive

Last Sunday was another big day at the Christian church. Large audiences were in attendance at all the services. The Bible school is increasing in attendance and offering Sunday after Sunday. The night service led by the young people and beginning at 6:30 was largely attended. The campaign now on reached higher proportions last Sunday which marked the second week. The five divisions reported at the period, between the Bible school hour and the morning church service, Division No. 1, Mrs. Calvert leader, turned in $20.50; division No. 2, Mrs. Peratt leader turned in $17.06; division No. 3, Mrs. Lappin leader turned in $22; division No. 4, Mrs. Ernest Jayne, leader turned in $22.42; and division No. 5, Mr. Battison leader took the lead by turning in $28.90. Thus in two weeks the workers have turned in the sum of $209.18. The period of making reports is an exciting time for every one. Many visitors were present to enjoy the occasion. At a meeting of the division leaders last week it was decided to turn the campaign to a close on Mother's Day, the second Sunday in May. It was also decided to make the campaign a real race. The three losing divisions will get a party and a big social and get-together time at the church for the two winning divisions the week following Mother's Day. It is planned to make Mother's Day the greatest day in the history of the church in attendance, final offerings to the campaign, and as a memorial of this great event a photographer will be present to take a picture of the attendance. This picture will serve as a souvenir of the outstanding occasion.

Next Sunday is to be another big day. The Bible School opens at 9:45. Not only the members of the church but friends of the church and many who are not members but who prefer the Christian church are engaged in and enjoying the many social occasions attendant upon this campaign.

James Salyers, supervisor of the emergency education for this district was in Rowan county on an inspection tour Monday and Tuesday.

Jim Clay ad Roy Cornette were in Cateletsburg Friday to confer with attorneys concerning the refunding bond suit which has been filed against the Rowan County Board of Education.

CHICKEN RAISING

Several farmers in Rowan County are producing chickens for the broiler market. These chickens were started as day old chicks early in January and are now being sold. S. J. Litton of Hilda community produced 300 head, about twenty-five per cent of which have been sold and have averaged a little over two pounds each. David Epphardt of the same section has 500 White Wyndotters that will be ready to market later this month. John D. Candill and Mr. Lechler of Sharkey also have a nice lot that are about ready to market. P. L. Alderman of Hilda has 200 White Rocks that are about large enough to market. Some of these chickens will be sold locally and others will be shipped to the Cincinnati market.

These chicks were brooded around brick brooders. Despite the extreme weather conditions that continue throughout January and February they have grown rapidly with very small losses. The losses in all the flocks have not exceeded five per cent. Some have lost less than one per cent and this loss was due to accident and to health or weak chicks.

New FISH Favorite

NOTHING succeeds like success. A large number of people have been enjoying for a long time that delicious sea food—canned mackerel. Now the news of the pleasure they have experienced has been noised abroad, and the consumption of canned mackerel is increasing by leaps and bounds. Try some of these recipes.

Mackerel Maitre d'Hotel: Open a one-pound can mackerel (a large oval can being careful not to break the fish. Remove contents to the shallow, greased baking dish from which it is to be served. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and minced parsley, and heat in oven or under broiler. Make Maitre d'Hotel butter by thoroughly creaming one-third cup butter and one tablespoon chopped parsley, adding one tablespoon lemon juice slowly and seasoning with salt and pepper. Just before serving the fish, spread this butter over the top. Serves six.

For Breakfast or Lunch
Breakfast Mackerel: Remove the contents of a 14-ounce can fresh mackerel in large pieces and lay in a shallow pan. Dust with paprika and cover with four strips of bacon. Bake in a hot oven until the bacon is crisp. Serve with wedges of lemon. Serves four.

Mackerel Shepherd Pie: Drain a cup of canned diced carrots and half a cup of canned peas, and add to two cups white sauce. Flake the contents of a one-pound can fresh mackerel and fork very carefully into the sauce, so that it remains in fairly large flakes. Pour into buttered baking dish and pile fluffy, seasoned mashed potatoes on top. Brush with melted butter and bake in a moderate oven until very hot and the potatoes golden brown. Serves eight.

Puts Beer Where It Belongs

SCIENTIFIC inventions sometimes have far reaching moral effects. A case in point is the perfecting, after years of scientific research, of a can instead of a bottle for beer. Cans belong on the kitchen shelf, including those containing this mild beverage, undoubtedly a more moral beverage consumed in the home among the members of one's family than the First Lady of our land stated only recently that she is going to have beer served in the White House. If any guest there asks for beer, Mrs. Roosevelt said, he may have it. No "hard" liquors are served in the White House, but two light American wines are served with state dinners.

What Goes With Beer
 No hostess, of course, would serve beer with a formal dinner, but it is interesting, now that beer is being put in its proper place, to make a new study of what goes with it best. Crackers and cheese come to mind, of course, immediately. Then there are pig's feet, potted meats, and pretzels. And sausage, kasha, sausages and sardines. It's really amazing, when you come to think of it, how many old friends have has among simple foods.

But how about the made dishes of which beer is an ingredient? Welsh Rabbit is the best known, but since the repeal of prohibition many new recipes containing beer have been devised. Here are three of these

A Canned Beer Entrée
Asparagus Cheese Entrée: Lay six rounds toast in six wide shallow earthen bakers. Beat the contents of a No. 2 can all-green asparagus in their own liquor, and remove stalks to the toast. Melt two tablespoons butter and two cups finely cut cheese over a low fire, adding one-fourth smooth and creamy. Add one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon mustard and a few grains cayenne. Pour over asparagus and place bakers under broiler flame until sizzling hot and slightly brown. Remove and top with six slices of crisp hot bacon. Makes six servings.

Hot Chee: Saute three tablespoons chopped green pepper gently in two tablespoons butter for a few minutes, add two cups

Although both the Morehead teams were eliminated in the district tourney at Olive Hill, Breck losing to Soldier 23 to 17 and Morehead to Grayson by 20 to 17, they did get some honor out of their participation. Dorsey Long of the Training School was named on the All-Tournament team and Murrell Caudill of the High School was voted the most valuable player on any team. Both the local teams were defeated by a narrow margin and if they had not been eliminated in the first round, should have had a good chance of getting through to the finals.

Delicious Dishes Made With PEAS

PEAS may be green, but they need no one to defend them when it comes to the question of making up-to-date dishes. They have myriads of friends, and the only question that remains is in what course to serve them at as many meals as possible. Salad courses are served at both lunch and dinner, so here are some salad recipes to help you serve peas at one or both of these meals. Pea and Lettuce Salad: Drain one cup of canned peas and marinate in two tablespoons French dressing for at least one hour. Add one-fourth cup crisp shredded lettuce and one-fourth cup mayonnaise, and mix lightly together. This salad costs about a quarter and serves four. Pea and Cabbage Salad: Let one cup finely shredded cabbage, one cup sliced cucumbers and four sliced radishes crisp in ice water for about an hour. Drain and dry thoroughly in a towel. Add four tablespoons French dressing. Then add one cup canned peas, one-third cup chopped walnuts and mayonnaise to just moisten. Serve on lettuce. Serves six to eight. These Serve Eight Peas and Pea Salad: Marinate the contents of a No. 2 can peas and two cups diced boiled potatoes in French dressing for at least one hour. Add four cup diced pickled beets and one tablespoon chopped onion, and moisten with mayonnaise. Serve in lettuce nests. Serves eight. Pea and Apple Salad: Marinate one cup canned peas and one cup diced celery in French dressing for an hour. Add one-half cup chopped nuts and two large apples, diced, and mix with mayonnaise. Serves eight.

Soldier Beats Breck 22 To 17 In Tourney

Breck Rallies In Last Half But Can Not Catch Soldier.

Alie Holbrook's Soldiers proved too good for Bob Laughlin's Training School aggregation. Thursday night and eliminated them from the district tourney by a 22 to 17 count. The Soldier team had a 12 to 5 lead at the half.

The game started slowly and the score was 2 all at the conclusion of the first quarter. Soldier forged ahead in the next canto and led 12 to 5 at the half. The Breck defense tightened in the third quarter and they held the Soldier team to two points while they were making seven, the count at the end of the third period being 14 to 12 in favor of Soldier. A desperate rally in the last quarter failed to catch the flying Soldiers.

Three men were ejected from the game for four personal fouls, Breck losing Long, and Soldier, Cundiff and Barker. The Soldier team will meet Haldeman in their next game.

Athletic Directors Announce Plans For Spring Term

An extensive program of athletics is planned for the spring semester at the College. President Harvey A. Babb and Athletic Director Dewey Downing talked it over with the men of Thompson Hall at a meeting Saturday afternoon.

The President said that he was absolutely in favor of a full program of athletics and that he would give his support to any program outlined by the athletic committee which is headed by Romie D. Judd, acting head of the department of education. Spring football practice will be held in the near future. The committee deciding to wait until the regional and county basketball tournaments are completed. Several candidates for the squad are practicing daily and should be in good shape when the tournament proper gets underway.

Baseball will be another activity of the College if enough games can be scheduled with other teams of this vicinity. In the past baseball has been one of the major sports of the school but many colleges in this territory have abandoned it in the last few years and their has been some trouble in securing a full schedule.

Prospects for a team this year are good and if a schedule can be arranged the College will have a team. A tennis team will be organized for the first time in the history of the College, that is if meets can be scheduled with other teams. The team will be coached by Earl King Senff, captain of the University of Kentucky netters when he was a student at that school. Work on the courts started Monday morning and they should be in fine shape if the weather continues fair.

A softball league will also be on the calendar of intramural sports. The league proved very popular last year and prospects for strong teams this year are good. The annual county basketball tournament is scheduled to get underway next week. Swimming, track, and boxing will also be included in the program of sports for the spring.

TALE OF TWO CITIES

Adapted by LESSEUS MITCHELL from the Famous Dickens Novel

CHAPTER ONE

As the lumbering coach drew up in front of Ernest Defarge's wine shop in the Rue Antoine, in the early stages of the French Revolution the occupants saw ragged, half-starved Parisians swarming about a burst wine cask that had fallen from a dray. They collected the still running beverage in cups or in their hands and gulped it greedily.

An elderly man climbed out of the coach, and helped a handsome, olive-skinned girl of about eighteen to alight. She was followed by a middle-aged serving woman all of a red color, from her hair and face to the extraordinary, tight-fitting costume she wore. M. Defarge, seeing them approach, went hastily inside the shop where several of the "Jacques," as that early revolutionary organization of the oppressed common people was called, were talking with his wife.

Strangers coming—the rose he cried to Mme. Defarge. She struck a red rose in her hair, and the various "Jacques" in the shop scattered and appeared to be immersed in different occupations.

The three strangers entered the shop and the young girl went directly to Mme. Defarge. "You are Mme. Defarge?" she asked. Receiving an affirmative reply, she said: "Recalled to life." The three words evidently held a meaning for Mme. Defarge for she replied:

"Yes, yes, we have some fine old wine upstairs Defarge will show you. When they had followed the wine-keeper up rickety stairs, Defarge dropped to his knees and kissed the girl's hand. "You were too young to remember me. I was his servant."

"Where is he? Is he greatly changed?" she asked.

"Changed!" exclaimed Defarge. "He was imprisoned for eighteen years in the Bastille!" He inserted a key in the rusty lock of a door. At their astonishment he explained: "It lived so long locked in a cell that an open door would terrify him."

"Is it possible?" exclaimed the elderly Englishman who accompanied the young girl.

"All things are possible in France," cried Defarge furiously. "Just as all things will be possible later." He warned the girl to wait at the door and approached a haggard, white-haired, stoop-shouldered man who sat by a window making a pair of shoes. He spoke quietly to him: "You have a visitor, Dr. Manette. Show him your work."

Obviously the old man displayed his handiwork.

"What is the maker's name?" asked Mr. Lorry.

"You ask my name? 105 North Tower."

He looked up, his eyes bright, a ruffled frown on his brow. And then the young girl went swiftly to him, knelt by his chair.

"Who are you?"

"Your daughter, Father."

"You are coming back to London with me and Mr. Lorry."

Dr. Manette broke from her grasp went to the wall and began feeling of the bricks. "But where is the place?—the brick was here. I can't find the place. It's gone!"

"Something he wrote while in the Bastille," explained Defarge in a low voice. "He is always talking about it."

Upon Lucie's promising her father that they would find what he was seeking, Dr. Manette allowed himself to be led from the room. As the coach carried them away from the wine shop, a splendid carriage with the crest of the Marquis of Evremont on the door came galloping through the street. At a cry of horror from the bystanders the coach came to a halt. Men picked up a small boy from beneath the wheels. A trembling footman cried to his master, the periwigged, fashionably clad rider in the coach: "The child is dead!"

The Marquis of Evremont addressed the crowd: "It is extraordinary to me that you people cannot take care of your own and your children. How do you know what injury you might do to my horses? Drive on—faster, Jean."

"The Marquis of Evremont drives fast," said Defarge ominously.

"We'll divide him faster—to his tomb," responded his wife.

On the boat from Calais to Dover, Lucie Manette and her father received the respectful attention of a young French aristocrat, Charles Darnay.

His courtesy, good looks and desire to be helpful awakened an answering interest in Lucie's heart, and she was greatly agitated when Darnay, upon disembarking at Dover, was arrested, charged with treason against the English government. She besought Mr. Lorry's intervention in the young Frenchman's behalf, with the result that the following day a prominent English advocate of London, Mr. Stryver by name was engaged by the bank of Tellson & Co. to defend Darnay in court.

In Mr. Stryver's office was a man in his late twenties upon whom Stryver placed much reliance despite his associate's habits of slothfulness and intemperance. Stryver was a brilliant mind and had an abundant knowledge of the law; in fact, much of Stryver's own success in his profession was due to Carton's ability. He asked Carton to look into Darnay's case. Returning to his office the following day, Stryver was pained to find Carton sitting at a desk covered with bottles of wines and spirits, a towel wrapped about his head, and mauling with drink.

"Not working yet? Really, Carton, you must put your mind on this case, Darnay is up for treason and Mr. Lorry asked our special consideration."

fulfilled in that manner. The Kirk bill was designed to correct that development.

The Brock-Gilbert law was amended also to provide for an immediate beginning of the count of the ballots after the polls close. The delayed count, beginning at 10 o'clock the morning after the election, was the cause of much unfavorable comment, more persistent volume the state than within.

Citizens were naturally interested to know the outcome of the election. The delayed count had for its purpose a more orderly proceeding with the count, with closer observation by persons whose interests were affected.

With the advent of the Brock-Gilbert law the opportunity for fraud was reduced. All ballots were placed at one central place in each county.

The counting started, at least, in broad daylight. There were few reports of effort to tamper with the ballot boxes between the time voting ceased and delivery to the Court House, where the boxes were placed under guard. The reason was obvious, because not knowing whether skullduggery was needed it was essential to have the boxes there.

The Widows Mite

The Capitol of the United States does not stand on the historical "The Widow's Mite."

There was a Widow's Mite, however—possibly there were two parcels of Washington land which bore that queer designation. One may have existed in fancy only.

The Legend of the Widow's Mite has been discovered by writers of the American Guide, the Government's forthcoming 5-volume travel handbook, while preparing articles on the scenic, historic, and other features of the District of Columbia.

Among the white captives of Chief Mannaacset, of the Anacostia tribe—the tribe which gave its name to the river flowing through the eastern edge of what is now the District of Columbia—was a young mother who bore in her arms her little daughter, Gwawa. The chief fell in love with her, but she found no place in her heart for the red man. Spurned in his plea that the English woman become his squaw, the chief determined that no other man should have her.

In the territory over which he ruled, grew an oak tree of great size which was a land-mark known far and wide. Mannaacset decreed that she should occupy a hut under this tree and that she must not stray beyond the shade of its spreading limbs on pain of death.

For many years, she occupied this hut with her daughter and, when Chief Mannaacset went to the "Happy Hunting Ground," the widow had become so much attached to her prison home that she refused to abandon it. It is told that the Maryland Legislature gave the widow a tract of 17 1/2 acres around her oak in appreciation of her suffering.

The widow is supposed to have will ed her Mite to Gwawa with a special admonition that she care for the splendid oak tree in memory of the protection which it had afforded her and her child. The legend declares that the United States Government sought to purchase the property as the site of the Capitol, and that its overtures were rejected by the widow's faithful descendants.

Just where the oak stood—if it stood anywhere—is a matter of conjecture, but a 600-acre tract, officially known as "The Widow's Mite," begins at Twenty-fourth and E streets, N. W., north of the Naval Hospital, and extends through Washington to Rock Creek, the stream which gave its name to the famous Rock Creek Park.

That the "widow's oak" was popular with the forefathers is evident by another story which uses its shade as protection for the negotiations supposed to have been carried on by George Washington with the Indians in 1791 for the purchase of the land now occupied by the District of Columbia. However, Washington made no treaty with the Indians for this purchase. The negotiations were with white land owners and the agreement was arrived at—not out of doors under an oak—but after a discussion around the hospital board of Suter's Tavern in Georgetown.

Mr. Bill Hayes, Mrs. Sherman Shumate and Miss Elsie Tolliver spent Sunday at the home of the latter's sister, Mrs. O. L. Jackson.
