Bill Eubank Slain Tuesday Morning In Mount Sterling

Former Morehead Man Slain In All-Night Restaurant There

William Eubank, aged 42, was shot to death by Carl Stockdale, 24, at Miller's, Fire Station and Lunch Room, across the street from the Ledford Hotel, in Mt. Sterling, at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Eubank was shot three times with a 38 Smith and Wesson revolver, one bullet going through the head just above the left eye, another entering the abdomen and a third entering the back of the head and coming out through the top of his neck. Any one of the three shots would have probably proved fatal. Immediately following the shooting an ambulance was called and Mr. Eubank was rushed to the Mary Childs Hospital. Dr. Russell Henry pronounced him dead shortly after he arrived. Mr. Eubank expired just as he was being placed in the operating table.

Mr. Eubank is a resident of Mt. Sterling, but formerly lived in Morehead and is well known here at the time of the killing. Billy Berryman and Gatewood Sorrel were on duty at the Miller place place when Eubank entered. Policeman Virgil Brunning was in the place at the time, but in a short time he was engaged Mr. Eubank in conversation. Mr. Eubank then walked over to Stockdale and told him he would take him home, but, according to witnesses, Stockdale replied: "You won't take me anywhere and without another word, pulled his gun and opened fire.

After the shooting Stockdale is said to have run to the Sterling Tavern on the Owingsville road, where he was employed and held up the place of $8 41, telling them he was on his way to Mexico and he had just killed a man, and would just as soon kill them as he would. Officers hot on his trail, but as soon as they jumped over a fence. Several shots were fired by the officers, but he managed to make good his escape, but not until after he had dropped his pistol. Officers were unable to contain three unemptied cartridges.

Stockdale has a bad record and has been in trouble practically all his life. He was sent to the reform school in 1929 for stealing chickens. There he became a friend until he was 21. He was later paroled but was returned to the reform school after being indicted in Morehead. In 1934 he was sentenced to two years in the State penitentiary for storehouse breaking.

Stockdale was taken into custody about 8 o'clock Tuesday by Police Officers Tipton and Deputy Sheriff William McCormick at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Freeman at the Mill Shop. He was asleep at the time and was captured without resistance. The officer in the neighborhood of Mr. Mason, of Stockdale's whereabouts and immediately after he was rushed to the Winchester hospital.

Mr. Eubank is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Eubank, Sr., of the Grassy Lick neighborhood near Mt. Sterling. He was a widely known and prominent farmer in Montgomery County.

Cumberland Forest Has 3rd New Bridge

More Tourists Are Expected To Visit Scenic Area This Year

Construction of the third major bridge on the Cumberland National Forest has been started, was the announcement received Tuesday from the Forest Service. Office in Winchester. The bridge will span the Red River in Wolfe County and replace a temporary wooden structure now in use.

The new bridge will be built on masonry abutments and piers and will consist of two 60-foot spans and one 120-foot span. The steel has been delivered to the site, which is near the mouth of the Swift Camp Creek and "Sky Bridge". The work of building the bridge will be done by the veterans from the CCC camp located at Bowen.

Wildcat Land Worries Supervisors

Tax Board Attempts To Eradicate Real Estate From Books That Does Not, Nor Ever Did Exist In Rowan County

Wildcat land that is the chief cause of worry and contention with the Rowan County Board of Tax Supervisors now in session at the courthouse. Tax books show that huge blocks of land, which doesn't exist and never did exist in Rowan County, have been issued over a period of many years against people, most of whom live in the east or some other section of the United States.

A member of the Board of Supervisors stated today that their investigation showed that the land was recorded for this land many years ago. Schemers and lawyers sold the land to victims and in many cases the purchasers had paid taxes on the land, until it happened to come to Rowan County to discover that in reality the five or ten thousand acres he believed he owned in reality did not exist.

More than thirty thousand acres of this land has already been stricken from the tax books by the Board of Supervisors. Much more is expected to go. The fact that this large acreage has been assessed in the past has given Rowan County a poor record so far as percentage of tax collectors is concerned. It likewise has cluttered up the tax books. Shysters who sold the land, many years ago and lawyers who have been employed by the "suckers" to gather information regarding the non-existent tracts are about the only ones that have ever profited from the nefarious deals in which former county officials reportedly had a hand.

The Board of Supervisors this year is composed of J. H. Powers of Morehead, Peyton King, Pine Bluff, H. C. Elliott, White Sulphur Springs, and J. D. Johnson, Bangor, who opposed it.

So long was the discussion of the bill that the committee for a night meeting to dispose of routine bills sent over from the House. The House, meanwhile, approved a group of Senate bills, including one to outlaw the use of traps that do not kill and an amendment to capture them alive and unharmed.

Governor Chandler spent most of the day listening to and engaging in the Senate, but postponed until yesterday his formal announcement of subjects to be included in his call for a special legislative session starting today (Wednesday).

Subjects tentatively agreed upon for inclusion in the call, the governor said, relate to a state plan for group refinancing of county indebtedness and a plan for retirement of public school teachers, effective probably in 1940. From a relative source it was learned the governor also may include in his call enactment of a new public service commission law to strengthen and to plan to broaden the powers of the Public Service Commission, especially with respect to jurisdiction over wholesale utility rates.

Purgation Law Is Passed Easily By Members Of House

Bill Aimed At Changing Method Of Registration In Louisville

After more than a week of discussion and public discussion, the Senate Monday night passed Governor Chandler's registration and purgation bill and sent it to the House of Representatives for concurrence in amendments.

Because of the administration's overwhelming strength in the House, concurrence was expected to be a mere formality when the House reconvenes Tuesday. The House previously had approved an administration and purgation bill, but the Senate amended the House proposal by adopting an entire new bill as an amendment.

The vote was 29 to 8. Twenty-five Democrats and three Republicans supported the bill. The bill was introduced by Rep. Lewis Elliott, White Sulphur Springs, and three Democrats opposed it.

So long was the discussion of the bill that the committee for a night meeting to dispose of routine bills sent over from the House. The House, meanwhile, approved a group of Senate bills, including one to outlaw the use of traps that do not kill and an amendment to capture them alive and unharmed.

Music for the parade of the Bathing Beauties was furnished by J. N. Minish and Maynard. Mrs. Chubb presided as master of ceremonies.

Morehead Loses In Semi-Final Battle

For the sixth consecutive year the Western Hilltoppers of Bowling Green won the Kentucky Interscholastic Athletic Association's basketball tournament held at Richmond last week by eliminating the Murray Throughbreds 35-23 in the first match.

Morehead won its first round game over Centre 36 to 35 but suffered a crushing defeat at 45 in the semi-final. It was the fourth time in six years that Western has eliminated the Eagles.

Road To Fame Not Ended

President Of Huntington Broadcasting Station Invites Morehead Girls To Return For A Full 15-Minute Program

The road to fame, that Angelina Francis, 11, and Virginia Beattie, 12, talented young Morehead artists, thought was only 75 miles long, could be covered quickly. Angelina was offered a $150, may not go unharmed after all.

Some weeks ago the young ladies, Angelina with dark bobbed hair and brown eyes and Virginia, blue-eyed and blond, packed their party dresses and with $10 that Angelina had saved, started for Huntington for an audition over radio WSAZ with a idea that this would be only a ten-day stop-over on their road to Hollywood. Both neglected to tell their parents they were going and the road to fame ended when they were taken off the bus at Huntington by a kindly police sergeant and entertained all night in the city of Huntington. Arrived to return to Morehead.

JUDGE GIVES HEAVY PENALTY TO DRUNKS

A hundred dollar fine and thirty days in jail is the ultimate of Rowan County Judge P. H. Lewis. He sentenced a man convicted on the second offense before him for drunkenness.

Harry Davis, of Morehead, was the first to receive the effects of the drastic punishment. He was sentenced to 30 days in jail for drunkenness. He received this sentence yesterday on his second conviction for drunkenness.

The thirty days in jail will carry a work sentence, Judge Peltzer stated. First offenders will be treated more mildly, getting a $5 and cost fine.

Farm Prices Will Remain at Present Level, Says Bulletin

No Marked Increase In Demand Is Seen For This Year

Although the Bureau of Agricultural Economics finds indications of "some irregular improvement from present level," the Bureau announced "it is unlikely that the demand for farm products will be markedly increased in the domestic demand for farm products in the remainder of this year."

The demand for demand for American farm products, the Bureau said in its February "Demand and Price Situation" bulletin. The decline in agricultural exports was the highest in more than two years. But the decline in exports was not accompanied by increased takings from the United States, there may be a substantial rise in wheat prices.

"Prices of all feed grains are expected to continue near present levels for at least another month or two. Large supplies per animal will tend to limit any increases—in corn prices—and the corn loan will tend to limit increases in wheat prices.

Light Docket On Schedule At March Session Of Court

Neither Felony Nor Misdemeanor Docket Is Heavy

One of the lightest dockets that have ever been scheduled for a March term of Circuit Court in Rowan County is set for trial at the term which opens Monday morning, Circuit Clerk Joe McKinney stated today.

Both the felony and misdemeanor dockets are light. Mr. McKinney said. The session is scheduled to last about a week.

Among the felonies on the docket are: Jack Smith, striking and wounding, second day; Eleanor Matthews, child desertion, third day; Fred Starnes, Dock Eldridge, Jr., and Coleman Gearhart, stealing chickens, third day; Ted Gregory, child desertion, third day; Orville Skaggs, breaking into storehouse, third day.

The more important misdemeanors are: George Baldrige and D. Mays, maintaining common nuisance, first day; Oscar Debar, obstructing justice, second day; William Henderson, giving cold blooded weapon, first day; Flora Hicks, maintaining common nuisance, first day; Norman Lewis and John Curtis, obstructing automobile while drunk, first day; Woodrow Hall, carrying concealed weapon, first day; Reuben Comest, maintaining a common nuisance, first day; George Brooks and Lizzie Brooks, giving peace, first day.

Committee To Have Charge Of Ag Act

New Federal Law Makes Changes In Agricultural Set-Up

The Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 became a law on February 18, 1938 when it was approved after being passed by Congress. Effort is being made to put such parts as apply to local conditions into immediate effect.

The local administration of the act will be in the hands of the local Agricultural Conservation Committees. The county committee, county agent and office assistants attended a meeting on Friday at Morehead where the new law was explained by representatives of the State office.

Clark Lane Named Tournay Manager

Sixteenth Regional Will Be Held At College Next Week

Clark B. Lane was chosen this week as manager of the 16th Regional basketball tournament to be held in the gymnasium of the Morehead State Teachers College on Friday and Saturday of next week.

Although the schedule for playing of games has not been decided, a High School basketball tournament will probably be used. Two first round games will probably be played after afternoon two Friday evening the semi-finals Saturday afternoon and the finals Saturday evening.

Bill Has Provision For Reorganization

Would Give President Power To Shake-Up The Bureaus

Supporters and opponents of legislation to reorganize government agencies predicted today a sharp division cutting across party lines when the proposal is taken up in the Senate.

Senator Byrnes, Democrat, S. C., chairman of the special committee which drafted the bill to give the President power to reorganize the 135 governmental boards and bureaus predicted final passage of the measure with its "important features" preserved.

Senator McNary, Republican, Ore., the minority leader, said he would oppose the bill, but saw little chance of defeating it. He predicted a strong fight would be waged.

JAPAN'S POLITICAL CROSS-CURRENTS

News from Tokyo is often bewildering, even contradictory. The Japanese Government issues statements which speak in one breath of intensified war and of prospects for peace.

The chronic difference of opinion between Japan military and naval extremists and its civilian moderates has not been ended by the undeclared war with China.

Japan's extremists and moderates are agreed on one thing: the desirability of a speedy ending of the war.

The moderates, on the other hand, cling to the hope that peace, of course on Japan's terms, may be concluded with some Chinese regime that is not too obviously a Japanese puppet.

A further element of divided counsel is introduced by the contracted professional objectives of the Army and the Navy.

Only by keeping in mind these cross-currents of opinion in the Japanese ruling class can one hope to gain some understanding of the background of a policy that, for all its hard-boiled militarism, shows at times curious instances of vacillation and irresolution.

THE P. T. A. AND THE 3 R's

Modern education for modern children. The little red school-house, symbol of pioneer days, has gone the way of the old McGuffey reader in the educational system of our nation.

A driving force in this modernization movement has been the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, which this year celebrated its fortieth birthday.

There was with an eye for the past may mourn the loss of the old school, but when it comes to the new stone—symbols of the "spare the rod and spoil the child" system. Certainly the McGuffey era had its merits. It taught good morals and good thinking—and gave the world an Abe Lincoln.

the parade. Through its activities the parents and teachers of the younger generation have helped to ease the growing pains of millions of youngsters.

TWENTY MEN IN TWO SCENES

Two recent scenes reveal man's progress in the conquest of the air. Scene One: Over the swirling waters of the Pacific Ocean a sea queen Navy "Flying Fortress," their motors cutting swiftly through the darkness of a stormy night.

Scene Two: On a snowy mountain slope a score of men struggle to separate the wreckage of a great plane from the mass of rocks in which it has buried itself.

Two acts in the drama: "Conquest of the Air!" From the second act, Department of Commerce agents recently learned a lesson. The bits of metal revealed a story of sheared pins separating under terrific pressure and a destructive "flutter."

The other scene also featured the death of ten brave men. What has been learned from their sacrifice? Experts assure they were sent out in a "zero" weather to "practice" against a non-existent foe.

Ten men died—and from them we have learned better how to fly. Ten men died—from them we learn only that human judgment erred in making war-games so realistic that the price of war was paid in times of peace.

REMEMBER THE MAINE!

With a roar heard round the world, the Battleship Maine sank to the floor of Havana harbor forty years ago today. That rushing thunderbolt rip in her blasted hull was soon quiet, but the tide of Hispano-American affairs, roused by the blast, tossed for months in a torment of bloody strife.

The trouble with giving knives to a bunch of boys is that when they get mad at each other they have something more dangerous than their fists to fight with.

Few would deny Uncle Sam's need for an adequate fleet and air force. As our sea power becomes greater, however, America must constantly guard that the will to fight never grows with her.

"Remember The Maine!" was once a call to war. As America again sends her fleet out into the world's nations joycey for positions in that feature event of the 1938 Olympics—the International Armament Race.

MOTORISTS AS SANDWICHMEN

When the marines land they usually have the situation well in hand; but in New York a former marine has landed in court for refusing to advertise the New York World's Fair, and until the court gives the opinion there will be uncertainty as to whether the state registrar of motor vehicles has the upper hand.

Declaring the World's Fair was merely a corporate enterprise for private profit, Martin McBohin, the defendant, stuck a strip of adhesive tape over the line "New York's World's Fair 1939" across the bottom of his 1938 automobile registration plate.

Such issues are now confined to New York State, for at least five other states have some extraneous matter on their 1938 plates. South Carolina motorists a few short years ago with "Kentucky for Progress State." [Kentucky motorists advertised their state a few short years ago with "Kentucky for Progress State" printed on an enlarged tag.]

If a world's fair can commandeer such traveling billboards, why not a state fair or county fair? Is Massachusetts codfish, Montana beef or Florida oranges, why not a host of other commodities?

When you "switch" a life insurance policy—that is, drop one you have been carrying for a length of time in order to purchase a new one—you will lose ninety-nine times out of a hundred.

Capitol Comments

Governor Chandler's chances of going to the United States Senate on or about January 1, 1939, to replace Alben W. Barkley, the senator from Kentucky in the high house, were considerably enhanced when he, in making a pre-announcement speech and again in his speech, was so definitely declared himself a candidate for the nomination, said that he was not fighting President Roosevelt nor the New Deal.

Senator Barkley will start shooting the big guns of his campaign earlier than Chandler. The senator plans to open his headquarters in the Seebach Hotel in Louisville almost immediately and even as you read this article, he probably has spoken his first piece in the campaign.

The Registration Bill which has caused such a furor in its political circles, is now in the law where it is supporting wild rumors.

MAN GETS PRISON TERM FOR ELECTRICITY THEFT

Gust Menegas, a restaurant operator in Chicago, recently was found guilty and sentenced to from one to ten years in state prison for the theft of electricity. He was accused of diverting current during a four-year period by attaching a "jumper" around his house meter.

Miss Elizabeth Nickell, local manager for the Kentucky Power and Light Company, says that organization keeps a constant watch to detect electricity thieves. Current tests and instruments eventually reveal every case.

When an offender is caught, he either pays in full for what he has stolen or is exposed and prosecuted to the full extent of the law. As punishment may be severe, offenders always pay up and usually give no further cause for complaint.

He is William E. Ringgold, for 37 years the blacksmith at Chesnutown Md., on the Eastern Shore section. An assistant will carry on.

Mr. Ringgold estimated he shed 114,000 haws. His records show a yearly average of 2,000 and his best daily record was 28.

WALKING SAFETY SIGNS

Pennsylvania highway workers will wear red reflectors to guard them from motorists at night. Samuel W. Marshall, Chief Engineer of the Highway Department, ordered 750 men fitted out with belts and shoulder straps studded with bit of red glass to blink back at approaching automobile headlights.

If the experiment works, Mr. Marshall said, 5,000 of the belts will be purchased.

ROWAN COUNTY SCHOOL NEWS

ELLIOTTVILLE Each room in the Elliottville school has bought new playground equipment. Supervised play will soon be in full swing again.

For the lower grades, Mrs. Layne and Miss Lewis made the wise selection of new balls, five or six swings, out-door sand boxes, and the thing which the children are going to enjoy most, the modernized Jungle Gym.

In the middle and upper grades, two basketballs, a volley ball, net, and a soft ball were very purchased. Mr. Carter will have charge of the soft ball games. Miss Hackney will supervise the girls' volleyball teams while Miss Allen coaches the boys in basketball.

The pupils of Elliottville who have an average of "B" have been given a special privilege. During study period, they may go to a reading table, which has been provided and choose their reading material from books and magazines.

Washington's birthday was celebrated by the lower grades. The children carried out the red, white and blue color scheme by making flags, hats, etc. After the program the children served refreshments.

On special days, the seventh grade Book Club, has charge of the English class period.

HALEDEMAN The boys and girls of the third grade have been working on a unit on Holland and they are planning to give a Dutch Program for the P-T. A. in March. They have dramatized "The Leak in the Dike" and made a picture show of a windmill, and a Dutch Sand exhibit of all their work during their study of Holland.

The primary pupils have just completed the study of a unit on Eskimos. A very attractive sand table project has been worked out in connection with the study. The room was decorated in a manner to portray Eskimo scenery. Many imaginative trips were taken into the Northland.

The primary pupils are now beginning a study of the circus.

The P-T. A. was entertained with a very interesting program given by the fourth grade.

The School Library received a quantity of book bindings, cards and other equipment, which is to be used to repair old books.

The Library has been kept very busy for the past week, as all the children are trying to read the new books. There were fifty-five new books in all.

Gladys Stamper of the fifth grade was the only child in Kentucky to win in the National Contest held by the Union Supply Company. The prize was given for the best slogan "Why I like to trade at your store."

Gladys won an electrically lighted doll house in the local contest. Her house in the local contest. Her house was sent to Pittsburgh, Penn., and she won a pair of skates in the National contest.

FARMERS The Farmers P-T. A. met at the Farmers School house February 11, for their regular meeting. About thirty parents were present.

Mr. McClain had charge of the musical part of the program. Mrs. Mabel Alfrey talked to the parents concerning the attendance of their children. After the main part of the program, valentines were exchanged and a full course dinner was served.

Miss Christine Hall reports one absence during the first three weeks on the sixth month of school. She had hoped to have a hundred per cent in her room this month but due to the absence of Keith May, the attendance cannot be perfect.

Keith was suffering from sorethroat and a cold. The new school building at Farmers is making rapid improvement. It is hoped the building will be ready for the teachers within the next few months.

Behind The Scenes In Business . . .

By Orion E. Motter BUSINESS — Rays of sunshine pierced the recession-shaded business skies this week and revived hope for a spring recovery.

Swift moving international events, including Hitler's move to Austria, Foreign Minister Eden's resignation and Great Britain's new policy of cooperation with the dictator nations, helped to clarify the European political atmosphere and lessen the fear of war.

Merchants and business men all over the world looked up these events with optimism. Commodity prices rose. Cotton was up in Bombay and Liverpool, wool rose in Australia, rubber, tin, lead and grains rose in other markets.

Rising prices for raw materials mean that the forces of inflation have set in again.

DIPLOMACY — A clever Englishwoman with zeal for diplomacy is playing an important part in world affairs. She is Lady Chamberlain, wife of the late Sir Austen Chamberlain, who for the past six weeks has been "behind the scenes" in Rome actively promoting Anglo-Italian friendship.

Actually it was Lady Chamberlain, who convinced her brother-in-law, Britain's prime minister, Neville Chamberlain, that Mussolini was sincere in his desire for a better understanding with England. Lady Chamberlain will be remembered as the woman who helped to engineer the four power pact at Locarno many years ago when she took the delegates from Britain, France, Germany and England off on a picnic and urged them to get together.

RETAIL TRADE — Observers believe that an upturn in retail trade will take place within the next six weeks. They point out that in every past depression, the so-called consumer goods industries such as clothing, foodstuffs, furniture and etc. have been the first to stage a comeback. Wholesalers have been reporting better business in these lines for several weeks past and it is logical to assume that when the new merchandise gets into retail stores the public's appetite will be whetted and its purse strings opened as the Easter season approaches.

INFLATION — In the past five years, according to Moody's index the cost of living has risen 24 per cent and the general price level 32 per cent. Farm products have climbed 118 per cent and wholesale prices 45 per cent. This is really, in inflation. Few persons realize it but since February, 1935, eggs have jumped up 75 per cent and flour has gone up 68 per cent. Many economists believe that commodity prices will rise 50 to 80 per cent more and the cost of living will double within the next few years.

I'VE BEEN FOUL that the breeding and sale of equipment for dogs is a $75,000,000 industry in America. There are approximately 22,000,000 unorganized workers in the United States and 7,000,000 organized.

The Daily Worker, leading communist paper, has a circulation of 40,000 and uses old presses once owned by The Wall Street Journal, a leading financial paper. Glass lined tanks for storing beer, 11 feet wide and 40 feet long, hold 540,000 glasses of beer or enough for a glass for all the people in Milwaukee. The Empire State Building is frequently struck by lightning. 425,000,000 yards of cotton cloth were Sanforized by one firm last year.

REDUCING TIRE COSTS—Car owners of America would find their annual tire bill reduced $110,000,000 if complete use were made of the latest technical advances in tire design. That estimate was made last week by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory, independent research organization conducting tests for scores of industries. Engineers of the Laboratory have found a new scientific development serving the double purpose of conquering the skidding menace and increasing mileage by an average of about 20 per cent.

HEADLINES—New York Telephone Company paid $12 in taxes last year for every telephone in its system. General Motors cuts salaries of employees not under union contract 10 to 30 per cent; will mean an indicated steel reduction of $162,383 a year for Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., Board Chairman. Freeport Sulphur Company focuses attention on increasing use of sulphur in past quarter report to stockholders. Chrysler omits dividend on common stock, planning undistributed profits tax. World production of crude oil last year was 2,109,820,000 barrels of which Russia's consumption was second to America. United States debt reaches all time high of $37,614,805,571 or nearly $290 for each of the 130,600,000 persons in the country. National Bituminous Coal Commission revokes its entire minimum price schedule, pending new hearings for protecting consumers. . . .

A SWEET LITTLE HOUSE

A house made of sugar has been built at San Jose, Calif., by Robert W. Stevens after five months of spare-time work. Over 5,000 sugar cubes were used in the construction of the house. The cubes represent adobe bricks and are glued together and painted so that they are practically unbreakable and waterproof. Each sugar cube is sandpapered and cut with a pen knife, and then cemented together with linseed cement and sand.

The little house is of the modern California type, including electrical fixtures, and has windows of glass with steel casements. Mr. Stevens, who is a graduate of the San Jose High School, is planning to take a course in architecture at the University of California.

amendments. They said their ground included several senators who fought President Roosevelt's attempt to reorganize the Supreme Court, as well as some who were on the other side of that issue.

More than a dozen senators told reporters they had not read the bill and would not decide how to vote until they had heard it explained thoroughly.

The long discussed subject of tax revision is expected to reach the floor of the House before the end of the week. The ways and means committee agreed Saturday on a bill modifying the levies on undivided profits and capital gains and calling for other important changes in the tax structure. Chairman Doughton, Democrat, N. C., said the measure probably would be introduced this week, but that it probably would not be called up for discussion until Thursday.

SALES IN COUNTRY LOWER IN JANUARY

Daily average sales of general merchandise in small towns and rural areas for January were about 2 per cent below January, 1937 when they were higher than for any like month since 1920.

Total sales for the year 1937 were about 6 per cent above those for 1936, and 22 1/2 per cent above 1935, but were still 2 1/2 per cent below 1929.

Pack Horse Library Has 1,000 Volumes

The Pack Horse Library has a nice assortment of a thousand books and several thousand magazines available for use. The 12 carriers each have a district. They are putting books in every home in the County as fast as possible. Ten new centers are being started this week at the following places:
Plank's Store at Triplett; Clark School; Adams; Hardeman; Evans Store at Clark with Leslie Hillbrand as carrier; Hightown with Martha Sparkman as carrier; Halldeman with Mary Smith as carrier; and one at Blue Stone with Lurline Alfrey as carrier.
The carriers have signs at each of these places giving the date and time they will be there with books and magazines, etc., to loan.
The Library needs more books and magazines. Any donations will be very much appreciated.

GIVES 10 WAYS TO MAKE POULTRY PAY

Ten ways to make money from chickens are suggested by Dr. F. Holmes Martin of the Kentucky

College of Agriculture, in advocating the following of the national poultry improvement plan. He suggests that farmers check on the following points:
Start with production-bred, healthy chicks.
Start chicks in time to have fall and winter eggs.
Keep clean, sanitary surroundings.
Feed a balanced ration the whole growing period.
House only the strong, vigorous and large pullets.
Don't allow parasites, either inside or on the chick.
Keep the moisture reservoir, even for full-grown birds.
Keep an ample supply of fresh, clean water.
Provide a laying house that is comfortable and clean.
Cull often, and sell unprofitable birds.

There are many protective features in the interest of buyers who patronize hatcheries following the national plan, the poultry expert advises. This includes regular inspection of the plant, honest advertising, all chicks hatched from eggs weighing 23 ounces or more to the dozen, and assurance of careful selection of breeding stock.
Kentucky has combined two phases of the work, carrying on at the same time the breed improvement work and the pullorum control campaign. Farmers already are obtaining lower costs and greater profits, through the national plan which was started in this state in 1936.

GETTING READY FOR THE EARLY GARDEN

The first garden activity is breaking the land. This is would have been well to have done several weeks ago, while there was still assurance of cold weather to flocculate the upturned soil and to freeze at least a few of the insects that burrowed beneath the garden's surface to pass the winter. Before breaking, a generous coat of manure should have been spread, which, having become soaked with the late winter rains and snows, would have become at least partly rotted before the sowing of seed and the setting of plants is to begin.
With the almanac and the groundhog tradition, as authorities, some cold weather may still be expected, but gardeners should let no opportunity pass to break their gardens, for the time until actual gardening is to begin is short. This being so, it is preferred that the manure used should be at least partly rotted, and, if possible, it should be cut into the soil surface with a disk or with a hoe, before it is turned under.

The garden should be broken deeply. The deeper the seed bed, the more moisture can be held. Moisture is needed for the quick sprouting of seed and rapid growth of transplants. The early garden results. Moisture is needed, too, to keep the vegetables proceeding at top speed to give them succulence and quality. Besides, moisture is needed to put soil fertilizer into solution so plant roots may use it, as well as that contained in the fertilizer used. Thus, a prolific garden results. The greater the moisture reservoir, the greater the assurance these things shall proceed, even during dry spells. Deep ground breaking is brought insurance.

With deep breaking must go the application of some plant material to rot down into humus to make soil spongy, to give it moisture-holding ability. Manure makes the best humus, but in its stead may be turned under a sod of legume or grass, or a cover crop sown especially for the purpose. Or, even a coat of weeds or garden debris may be used, though if it is breaking should take place early enough to be certain they can rot completely before actual gardening starts. It is regrettable to wait to break, but just before planting, and to burn off the weeds, for they are valuable matter in lieu of something better. Good advice, though not timely now except to make memorandum, is so to conduct the garden this year that room may be found in at least one part of it, to grow a winter cover crop, or to arrange for a sure source of enough stable manure during this winter. For, unless humus matter of some sort is turned under, ultimately the soil will become worthless for garden purposes, or for any other, in fact.

SWEDES HAVE $6,240,000 INVESTED IN FUR FARMS

Based upon incomplete returns from the 1937 census of fur-bearing animals in Sweden, there is now a total of 4,826 fur farms operated in that country with a total of 210,000 animals, according to a report of the Department of Commerce.
The silver fox with 3,114 farms and 132,000 recorded first. Mink farms ranked second, 913 farms having 41,000 animals; blue fox, 811 farms and 26,000 animals; and 498 nutria farms with 8,000 animals.

The total value of the animals was estimated at approximately $6,240,000. The value of fur exports from Sweden in 1937 was approximately $3,250,000.

NEW PROCESS FOUND TO KEEP FISH FRESH

A new process has recently been developed in Germany for keeping fish fresh over a longer period of time, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Department of Commerce.
As soon as possible after landing the clean fish are scalded in a highly diluted solution of 30 per cent hydrogen peroxide and immediately thereafter packed in ice and in shipping containers.
Tests show that this process increases the resistance of the fish to bacteria, and they remain fresh for a period of from three to six days.

BIG LITTERS MAKE HOGS PAY BETTER

Big litters with few losses among pigs make hog raising pay better, points out Grady Sellards of the Kentucky College of Agriculture, in suggestions on hand-rearing sows and litters. One sow with six or eight pigs will mean more profit than two sows with three or four pigs each.
Pigs are usually stronger and faster to save when the sow has been so fed as to gain before farrowing. The feed before farrowing should include, in addition to grain, a quarter to a half pound of tankage daily, alfalfa or other legume hay and a mineral mixture of 40 parts of ground limestone, 40 parts of bone meal and 20 pounds of salt.
Corn and other grain should be reduced by half in the week before farrowing, wheat bran being used instead for half of the grain ration. For a week following farrowing, the feed should be put enough to keep down hunger. When bran or middlings should be used this week, with no corn, milk or tankage.
Beginning the second week after farrowing, grain, milk and tankage can be added little at a time, until the sow is on full feed in 10 days to three weeks.

Cincinnati Team Is Having Face Lifted

Only Two Of Starting Line-up Last Year May Be Back

The Cincinnati Reds have had their faces lifted. The outfit whose first squad started drilling here Saturday will enter the 1938 National League schedule with a corps of new men to replace the crew that heaped it finish at the bottom of the heap last season.

Because of the deals with other major league teams, the Reds' process of face lifting has been generally overlooked. As the situation now stands, there is a very strong possibility that, outside of the battery, only two of the men who participated in the opening 1937 National League tilt will be in action when the Reds open their 1938 schedule against the Chicago Cubs.

Ival Goodman, in rightfield, will be the only outfield holdover from that memorable 1937 opening skirmish. All of the other gardeners are gone. Replacing them will be Harry Craft, highly touted rookie who caught the eye of Bill Terry as soon as he entered the National League; Dusty Cooke, whose 345 batting average at Minneapolis earned him another big league trial; Nino Bongio, Italian speedster from the Coast; Rookie Lee Gamble and Arnold Moore; Gene Davis and Chick Hafey, veterans who finished the season with the Reds. Neither Davis nor Hafey is expected to become a regular outfielder.

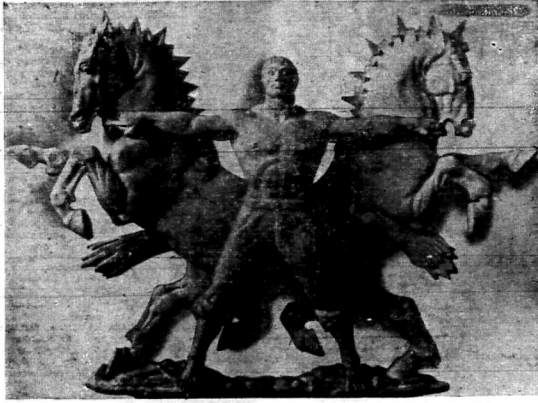

Bill Myers probably will be the lone infield representative of the 1937 opening team. Alexis Kampouris, who later became the regular second baseman, will be fighting for his post with Jimmy Froy purchased from the Cubs, while Lew Riggs and Charles English both are favored over Jimmy Froy, last year's starter at third. Jimmy is still with the team. Neither Frank McCormick nor Buck Jordan, the first sackers, started last year as regulars. McCormick later went to Syracuse and did well enough to gain consideration as the Reds' likely No. 1 first baseman this season. The pitching staff will be quite similar to the corps that represented the club last year. There are a few newcomers, but not enough of them to cause any great change. Even Whitley Moore and Johnny Vander Meer, the leading rookies, were with the team at the start of the year.

Heading the mound division, of course will be Letty Lee Grissom, Paul Derringer, Gene Schott, Al Hollingsworth and Feches Davis. These five men, with Moore and Vander Meer, holdover Joe Carracalla, who was with the team at Washington in mid season, and a flock of other recruits, including Ted Kleinmann, brought up from Kansas City, should give the Reds one of the crack mound staffs of the league.

New man in the catching department is Willard Hershberger, a member of the International League all star team last year. He's a mighty fine prospect and the Reds had to go high to get him. The holdovers are Ernie Lombardi, regarded as the hardest hitting catcher in the National League, and Spud Davis, a veteran who is given much credit for the success of Lee Grissom. Dee Moore also is on the roster but probably will be farmed out. The catching is strong. Because changes have been made is no reason for Bill McCormick to become too optimistic about his team's chances. He doesn't expect any miracles to happen. He is reasonably sure the club will do better than last year. Bill believes his team must show its ability on the ball field, and not in the hotels, so he's not making any fantastic predictions. Too, he doesn't know of the ability of many of the men on his roster. He wants time to get for himself before talking. The Reds' squad could consist of 50 men, about 15 of which belong to minor league teams in the Cincinnati farm organization.

Bureau Expects 6 Million Tax Reports

Single Persons With Annual Incomes Over $1,000 Must Pay

Employees of the Federal In-

A return must be filed by everyone, married or single, who has a gross income of $5,000 a year or more. A return also is required of single persons having an income of $1,000 or more and married persons having a net income of $2,500 or more. These returns are necessary regardless of whether they show a tax payment must be made.

10c STORE SALES HOLD UP WELL IN JANUARY

Daily average sales of variety stores for January were about 1 1/2 per cent above January 1937 and higher than for any January since 1930, according to preliminary estimates just received by the Louisville District Office of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

Total sales for January without consideration for the number of days were about 3 1/2 per cent below the total for January, 1937, there being one less Saturday on which stores were open in 1938 than in 1937.

Sales for the entire year 1937 were 2 1/2 per cent above 1936 and 11 1/2 per cent above 1935 but were still 4 1/2 per cent under the 1929 level when the index figure was 107 for the year.

Troops Rushed To Austrian Frontier

Plan Is To Break Up Mobilization Of 40,000 Nazis

Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg Sunday rushed federal troops to Austria's southern frontier, to break up a reported mobilization of 40,000 Nazis for a local putsch and a march on Vienna.

The troops, sent from Vienna across the Alps into Styria province, occupied all strategic points in and around Graz and the city of 153,000 population was under virtual martial law although civilian authorities remained nominally in control.

Machine guns with a sprinkling of motorized light artillery, were set up behind barricades at main street intersections and at bridges across the Mur river, turning back bands of peasants attempting to reach the city.

The peasants offered no resistance to the warlike display when told to return to their villages. The government had ordered all peasants to leave their homes in fear of a major outbreak of Nazi disorders.

The Styrian peasants, unlike the peasantry in most other sections of Austria, are ardent pro-Nazis. Meanwhile, in Vienna, Joseph Reither, Austrian Peasant leader, announced after a large mass meeting that 90 per cent of the country's peasants were "determined to defend Austrian independence with our blood."

"Do not get the wrong impression from these affairs in Styria," he said. "Tell the world that 90 per cent of all Austrian peasants are not Nazis and are desirous only to support the government by all means."

Count Armalia is one of the old aristocrats of Trieste. He is fond of expounding his theory that life is a great roulette wheel and man's station in life is purely the result of chance. His young friend, Rudi Pal, strongly disagrees with him. One night Armalia visits a water-front cafe and meets Anni, one of the entertainers. He offers her two weeks at fashionable Terrento, where Rudi is staying with his fiancée. She will have clothes and money but when she returns it will be over. She must not come complaining to him.

CHAPTER TWO

The train was nearing Terrento and Anni watched the passing landscape. Her eyes were wide and shining like those of a person who realizes for the first time that she is alive. Thus, one short day had changed her life.

She thought back, with incredulity, to the previous morning. It had taken every ounce of courage to enter Gullio's and ask for the traveling suit in the window. She, with her tight-fitting mended dress and cheap beads. But Count Armalia's name had been magic.

In brilliant array there had been displayed for her, lingerie, sport clothes, evening gowns. Finally, there had been the luggage shops and beauty salons.

Gloatingly, she caressed the pigskin bag at her feet. In it, as the piece de resistance of her whole wardrobe reposed the coveted red evening dress, glistening with beads. It was symbolic somehow, a flaming torch, to light her way into this world of enchantment.

The train puff-puffed to a stop. Her bags were placed on the platform, and she found herself quite alone. There was a hollow space within her. It was so quiet, just a few, queer, twittering sounds. Birds, probably. But no car. No driver. No one.

She whirled swiftly as a low, mellow voice said, "Signorina, you are going to the hotel!"

The young man was tall and lean with a careless way of standing, swinging forward from the postmaster and telegraph operator's chair he had ever seen, as if they had never heard of a secret. She felt an odd stirring in her breast that had never been there before. To cover the unwonted feeling, she asked brusquely, "Are you the driver?"

"No, Signorina, but my cousin is. Only Pietro—that's my other driver—must have been with the telegram so that the hotel did not send the car in time. I am so sorry."

She asked sharply, "And am I expected to walk to the hotel?"

"No, no, Signorina. With easy steps, he slung the mail bag over his shoulder. Anni felt a tiny, involuntary thrill race down to her toes. "You may ride to the hotel with the mail and me, if you wish."

Following his gesture she saw a dejected looking donkey hitched to a cart. "Do you think I would ride in that?" she demanded indignantly. "Ladies don't ride in donkey carts." It was her first attempt at class distinction and she was making the most of it.

"It would be unusual, Signorina," he retorted gravely. "But then, great ladies can do unusual things."

"I do amount to something. It's an important position, you know. Sometimes as many as a hundred letters come through in one day. Not every day, of course, just sometimes." His eyes sparkled. "Once there was a money order for a thousand lire."

The cart rattled over a small boulder and Anni was suddenly against him. For a brief second she felt the steel strength her color was high as she moved away and said breathlessly, "I mean, to become rich, important, respected."

"You mean ambitious?" He clucked again to the donkey. "I used to think that it would be wonderful to go to Vienna, Paris, maybe Rome." He shrugged. "I got over it. I see so many people at the hotel who come from these cities. They aren't happy. To be happy you must be contented. To be contented, you must find your place in this world and stay there. I'm happier than most people."

A cloud of dust appeared and a speeding automobile shot past them.

"What was that?"

"Car from the hotel. My cousin Pietro must have delivered your telegram."

"Why didn't you stop it?" she demanded furiously.

"How?"

This won. Slowly, she began to relax and a contented smile curved her lips. After all, it was better to accept this beautiful country with its strange people. The hotel would still be there when she arrived. She realized that something of Gullio's own peace and calm had invaded her. "Tell me," she said dreamily, "are these trees always this beautiful?"

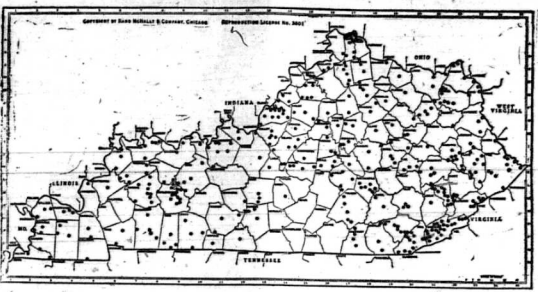

"No, Signorina. Yesterday, they were less beautiful and tomorrow they will be more."

"You really believe that?" she asked queerly. "And you have lived here all your life?"

He nodded. "When I was very young, I saw a pine tree in the snow. I wanted to grow like that—tall and straight and strong. Then, when I was older, I saw a poplar in the sun and I laughed. And I wanted to laugh like that."

There was a moment of silence. Anni looked at his lean brown hands, slack of the reins, up her luggage and she was moving toward the stairs when a young man, sauntering by, stopped. "Good afternoon, Signor Pal, Nobill said unclosely."

"And has Signorina met my postmen?"

Her chin jerked up. "Of course not."

"It doesn't matter," he said importantly. "I would still be the strangest Ah, the hotel. We have arrived."

Anni caught her breath as her eyes surveyed the white terraces, the green grass of the lawns. All of this beauty was to be her home for two whole weeks.

"Thank you so much, Postman." She saw his jaw muscles tighten as he bowed with dignity. "I have my salary from the government, thank you Signorina." Turning on his heels, he left.

"She paled and then blushed crimson. Her first mistake and an important one. But there came a swift stab of pain. That hurt look on Gullio's face. He had been sweet and kind and she wanted him to think well of her.

"The register was placed before her and she caught herself up short. A postman, she thought contemptuously. She was forgetting the cart. Well-bred young women did not bother about such lowly creatures.

BOYD FARMERS TO GROW STRAWBERRIES

To help supply large near-by markets, Boyd county farmers are planning to start in the strawberry business this year. Approximately 100 men in eight organized communities will set patches of a quarter of an acre to an acre each this spring, according to County Agent Robert Wigginton. This season will be spent getting the patches established and learning how to care for the plants. Next year it is hoped to market the first crop cooperatively in Ashland, Catlettsburg, Russell, Greenup, Raceland and other Kentucky towns. The Aroma variety will be grown.

A few years ago the same towns were buying most of their milk and other dairy products at a distance, shipping them in. Now dairying has been developed to where Boyd county farmers last year received more than a half million dollars from milk. More vegetables, fruits and poultry products are also being produced in Boyd and other eastern counties for local markets and for towns in Ohio and West Virginia.

Several Argentine apiculturists have stated that Argentina would offer a growing market for the sale of queen bees of United States origin provided they were transported in suitable containers.

Previous shipments of bees from the United States to Argentina resulted in most of the bees dying before arrival due, it was stated, to the small type of container in which they were shipped.

One of the defects which the Argentine apiculturists find with the American container is that it is entirely too small and is therefore not conducive to proper ventilation, the report stated. Another fault is the fact that American shippers use new combs which melt in equatorial climate, whereas old combs do not.

AMONG THE COUNTY AGENTS In Metcalfe county Mrs. W. L. Kessler cleared $254 and Mr. Jack Sparks $193 on their poultry flocks last year. Warren county homemakers took in $277 on their curb market during the past two months. Three Henderson county homemakers' clubs report that members have canned 212 quarts of meat and 15 quarts of vegetables. When Lawrence Coats of LeFlore county bought a purebred bull last month, that made 17 purebred bulls in the county. Two Bell county banks are distributing the best corn available to 4-H club members, to be paid back later. A Livingston county 4-H club member has cleared 170 quarts of locust seed for spring planting. C. Rankin, Nicholas county turkey producer, won many prizes at the Harrisburg, Pa., turkey show. Pearl Cole, Estill county, has bought an incubator of 5,300-egg capacity and built a 40-foot extension on his laying house. In Elliott county, a better livestock campaign is in full force with every community cooperating. One hundred Caldwell county families recently have started up their own quart of milk per day per person. Campbell county's plan of work includes the seeding of 1600 acres of sweet clover, 1,000 acres of alfalfa and 1,000 acres of lespedeza. E. Smothers' Jersey herd on his Washington county farm averaged 600 pounds of milk and 40 pounds of butterfat per cow. Spencer county's tobacco acreage last year was 80 per cent larger than in 1936. Many barns were built during the winter of 1937 and with modern ventilating systems. Ten farmers reported favorable results from growing Kentucky 10 burley program at the Agricultural Experiment Station. Three market outlets tend to encourage dairy farming in Todd county. There is a whole milk route in the county, and cream stations are scattered through the county. Last summer a cooperative cream route was organized. The growing of Kentucky No. 16 and No. 5 burley tobacco, plus use of fertilizers, have increased yields and improved quality in

Cumberland Forest Has 3rd New Bridge

Bridges of similar size and construction, located in Jackson and Rowan Counties are now nearing completion. With the completion of the new Red River Bridge, one of the most beautiful scenic loops in Eastern Kentucky will have been finished. This route from Pine Ridge on Route 15 to Frenchburg on Route 40 passes "Sky Bridge," a remarkable natural stone arch, and travels along the beautiful Red River Gorge. Many hundreds of motorists are already traveling the route annually. The men at Brigham Young University are all a-flutter. Reason for their suspense is the poll being taken among wopner students to find the man they would "most prefer" having as an escort for the evening. He will be announced at the first annual Association Women Students ball. All girls in the University were asked to list four Russell county to the value of $15,000 a year, it is estimated. men in order of preference as escorts for the evening. The man whose name was listed most times as "preferred" will be "king" of the ball. What is the most difficult college course? Organic chemistry. The Bureau of Educational Surveys in New York City has found that the use of college outlines and other supplementary aids to study is in direct proportion to the difficulty in the subject experienced by the student. The number of students in organic chemistry using college outlines far exceeded that of any other course.

NEW FARM PROGRAM TO PROVIDE STABLE SUPPLIES

The Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 seeks to help tobacco farmers stabilize income and supplies at fair levels, according to information received by the College of Agriculture at Lexington. As a means of keeping supply in line with demand at fair prices to producers, the new Act provides for marketing quotas in years when an abnormally excessive supply of any kind of tobacco exists, with penalties for marketing over the quotas. The would be the number of pounds the farmer could sell without penalty. For 1938, if the Secretary of Agriculture finds that the supply of any kind of tobacco is in excess of the reserve supply level, he will announce a marketing quota, and a referendum will be held among growers of that kind of tobacco to determine whether or not the farmers favor or oppose the quota. If more than one-third of the farmers voting in the referendum oppose it, the quota will not be effective. A referendum of growers of cotton and dark tobacco will be held March 12, the secretary of Agriculture having set quotas for these crops. If the marketing quota becomes effective, the national marketing quota will be apportioned among the states producing that kind of tobacco. In each of these states the local committees of farmers now helping conduct the Agricultural Conservation program will distribute the quota among individual farmers. All marketing quotas will be in terms of pounds. There will be no tobacco acreage quotas under the new Act. The acreage allotments set up under the 1938 Agricultural Conservation program will serve as a guide to help individual farmers keep production in line with the marketing quotas. The provisions for regular tobacco producing farms are such that the marketing quota cannot be less than the average production, including diversions, during the past three years, if in the case of fire-cured tobacco, this average is less than 3,200 pounds, and in the case of other kinds of tobacco, the average is less than 2,400 pounds. The Act specifies that the quota for a farm on which tobacco is produced in 1938 for the first time in five years is not to exceed 75 per cent of the quota which would be given similar regular tobacco farms. In years when the marketing
