NEW MEXICO LEADS ALL STATES IN WAR ON ILLITERACY

Santa Fe, N. M., July 9.—New Mexico has led all other states with the single exception of Kentucky, in effective work done in the last five or six years to eradicate illiteracy. This was the statement made by Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, chairman of the National committee for the eradication of illiteracy, before the convention of the National educational association in Milwaukee last week.

Superintendent J. H. Wagner, of the New Mexico public school department, has just returned from Milwaukee and says that Mrs. Stewart also told the convention that the federal census had done New Mexico a grave injustice in listing as adult illiterates all of the Indians on the various federal reservations in this state. The state auditor she told the educators were not permitted to do anything for the education of these Indians who are strictly federal charges.

The wo great ideas stressed at the convention, Mr. Wagner said, were the necessity of teaching English as the best means for thorough Americanization, and to give greater attention to the physical education of the youth of the nation.
