THE WORK OF THE COUNTY HEALTH DEPT.

Fiscal Courts throughout the State are seeking ways and means to cut expenses and the Legislature has been working to a similar end in regard to state expenses.

This is as it should be, a well balanced budget is just as essential to the City, County and State, as it is to individuals or corporations. A wise economy should characterize the spending of public moneys local and State, at all times, good times as well as bad. Just now the pursuit of the economic situation is particularly advisable.

But, laudable as are the efforts to trim budgets, to meet prevailing conditions it should be born in mind that the mere reduction of expenditures does not in itself constitute true economy. On the contrary, there are times when the result is to prove extravagance of the most expensive sort. There are certain governmental activities, which are properly to be measured, not what it costs to have them, but what it costs to be without them.

At the head stands public health activities: money intelligently devoted to the prosecution of such activities can not be an expenditure in any proper sense of the term. It is an investment, paying better returns, even when judged solely on a financial basis, than any other which any community can make.

It is venturing little to say that every dollar appropriated for the maintenance of the County Health Dept. in Kentucky for the past years has been returned to the taxpayers ten fold. Each of them without exception has in financial returns alone been worth to its community ten, twenty or thirty times the aggregate of what has been expended in its maintenance. Returns already made are but constantly enlarging benefits to occur with each passing year of these activities. In this county alone the diphtheria mortality alone has been reduced from an average of twenty babies each year to none the last year, to say little about the communicable diseases.

The county cannot afford to curtail, in any degree the activities of the health work, nor can it afford to handicap and hamper the work in any way. There is no doubt that there are many ways in which both the state and county can and should retrench. The question "Is Public Health one of them?" Such work strengthens the very foundation upon which rest the happiness of the people and prosperity and power of the commonwealth.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Written each week by Rev. B. H. Kazee,
Pastor of the Baptist Church

Rev. B. H. Kazee,

SUBJECT: God, The Forgiving Father, Luke 15:11-24.
GOLDEN TEXT: "Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him." Psalms 103:12.

It is unfortunate that this story has become commonly known as "The Prodigal Son," for that is not the emphasis of the story at all. "The Forgiving Father" is a much more truthful title. The two parables just preceding this one show us that Jesus is trying to teach how much the Father loves us and how willing He is to forgive.

He is here facing the problem that every father faces with boys or girls. His son has a touch of bolshevism in him which makes him want to break the bonds of restraint exercised by the father. Like many a son, he thinks his father an "old fogey" and that he cannot understand the "new age". He thinks his father means well, but he is too much behind him in his ideas to be progressive. So the son throws off these irksome restraints, judging them to be unsound for this new day, and goes off with his part of the fortune to seek his own happiness and fame.

As long as he still possesses some of his father's blessings, the money which was given him, he got along well, and had plenty of friends, even though he did misuse these blessings. There is enough goodness in God to let a sinner enjoy some happiness, even though he misuses God's gifts. Whatever happiness any of us enjoy comes from what God has given us.

Despite the fact that the father knew his son would come to want, and that he was ungrateful and inappreciative, it never occurs to him to quit loving his son. In fact, he is more tenderly concerned about him in his wanderings than while he was at home safe. In this space we cannot dwell on the misery of the son. But it is known to all that the age-old lesson of life came true here: he became miserable, he wanted, stopped to the lowest thing a Jew could do—feeding hogs, and found no friend to help in his own utter helplessness. The one thing that saved him, was to give up trying to save himself and turn back again to complete dependence on his father. That is what every sinful man must do. His own ways are the ways of death; anything he does of his own devising will be a mistake, for he cannot see the right way. So, confessing himself to be nothing, he must turn from his own striving, and, rely implicitly on his father's mercy.

The surprise which every condemned sinner who turns to God finds, and which brings such great joy, is his same surprise this son found upon returning to his father. He found his father eager to forgive him, even before he confessed, and glad to forgive all the past. This is what you will find, or have already found, dear reader, in the same conditions. God is trying to get men to come home and be forgiven. He pleads for them to turn ere they die.

The banquet made for the returning son preplexed the elder brother. "I've been here all the time, father, and you've never set a banquet for me," he complained. And in a corner the father replied, "Yes, son, but you've never been lost. This boy was lost, and his chances of being found were few. So many lost children never get home! But he did come home; he is found. That makes it fitting that we rejoice." And those of us who understand what it is to be lost rejoice, with the heavenly host, more over one sinner that repenteth than over ninety and nine just persons who need no repentance.

Oval Carey and Thomas Brown accompanied them home. Friday evening some friends gathered at the home of Mrs. Elbert Johnson and heard "Tex and Reddie" as they are known over the Radio played their music. Miss Lela Kissinger has the measles.

Mr. Woodrow Hamm and family spent Easter with Mrs. Ham's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Roberts of Dry Creek.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Caudill entertained with Ada Alderman at an Easter dinner.

Mr. Easter and Miss Revana Johnson spent the week-end with relatives at Bangor.

Mr. Bob Cox came from Shelby, Ohio to attend his brothers John Cox's funeral.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH NEWS

Last Sunday was another big day at the First Christian Church. Easter services began at 6:30 with the sunrise service. The Bible school reached another high mark in attendance and offering. The choir under the direction of Prof. W. C. Lappin sang a beautiful Easter anthem. At the conclusion of the morning preaching service there were five confessions of faith. At the night service there was another confession of faith, making a total of six for the day.

The divisional leaders made their seventh report in the eleventh week campaign. The total amount is far beyond the $500 mark. Division No. 3, Mrs. W. C. Lappin, leader, maintained its reports to be made, when the campaign will close Mother's Day, Sunday May 10, with a great service as a climax.

Next Sunday is to be another big day. The Bible school, which begins at 9:45, is expecting another big attendance. It is expected that the reports of the divisional leaders will raise the total receipts to a high level. Dr. G. H. Fern's sermon subject will be "The Greatest Thing

In The World." The night combination service begins promptly at 6:30. Elijah Hogge is the leader for the young people. The young people's contest is close and very interesting. Another contest will be made Sunday night. Dr. Fern's part of the night service will include a baptismal service. The public is invited to witness this solemn service.

NO ACTION TAKEN

That he was cooperating with them to the fullest extent in an effort to solve the problem of raising the necessary funds.

In the meantime considerable agitation is being aroused throughout the county over the possibility of the discontinuance of the Health department, due to lack of funds. During the years that the Health department has been operating in this county by the people of the rural sections have become impressed with the growing importance of the department in the keeping and bringing of healthful, sanitary conditions in the county. The total absence of typhoid, and typhoid fever has become noticeable in Rowan county that it is being remarked on all sides. Consequently, the loss of the department is a matter of growing concern throughout the county.

"The Ford V-8 uses less fuel and oil for the power it gives than any other car we have ever made AND ITS UP-KEEP COST IS THE LOWEST"

ENTHUSIASTIC sales talk often begins and ends with gasoline mileage. Some salesmen would like you to believe it is the whole story of automobile economy. But drivers ought to know better. For, the fact is, it's way down the list.

The big items of car economy are low first cost, low up-keep cost and low depreciation. Savings here can make a great deal of difference in cost per mile. Gasoline mileage is more of a talking point than an economy factor.

Check up and you will find that the difference between 17 and 19 miles a gallon is less than $10 for a whole year's average driving (8400 miles at 18 cents a gallon). Here are the big items that make the Ford the most economical car:

More value for every dollar you pay.
Lower cost for repairs and service.
Long life. Slow depreciation.
Quality means economy and the 1936 Ford V-8 gives you more real quality than any other low-price car. No other car under $1645 has a V-8 engine. No other low-price car has Center-Poise Riding, safe, sure mechanical brakes and Safety Glass all around at no extra cost.

CHAPTER SIX

Until cancelled—and from what I've gathered M<sup>rs</sup>. Defarge will see that they are cancelled. The doctor is suspected from his behavior at the trial. It is death to sympathize with the condemned. And to that tiger, M<sup>rs</sup>. Defarge, even the child—is an Evremonde.

"But that's unthinkable!" cried M<sup>r</sup>. Lorry.

"I can get to see Charles—I know a man—the way we drinking fellows do—M<sup>r</sup>. Lorry, lend me your coat and hat. Take the Doctor's—and here, take mine and keep it unpermitted—Lucie and Miss Pross's too! tomorrow. No, no, don't protest! Take the word of a drinking man for once. At eight o'clock tomorrow morning have your horses ready. If Lucie hesitates, you must force her. Tell it is Darnay's last wish that she leave before the execution."

"Do I wait for you?" asked M<sup>r</sup>. Lorry.

You wait for nothing but to have my place occupied. Keep the bargain M<sup>r</sup>. Lorry, I shall keep mine. He left hastily and sought out Barsad at La Force prison. By a threat to reveal to the Committee of Public Safety that Barsad had been a spy in the employ of the Marquis of Evremonde, Carton forced him to aid in his scheme to save Darnay. Barsad had authority enough to get Carton introduced into Darnay's cell for ten minutes. The latter was writing farewell letters when Carton entered and was left alone with him. Darnay sprang to his feet astonished.

I bring a request from Lucie, said Carton, with an air of authority. She begs that you do exactly as I say.

I don't understand Carton, what you have in mind—it is utterly useless to attempt to escape.

My plan won't fail. Write what I dictate. At once! Write. It is my last message to you. I ask you to recall the words that passed between us on a certain occasion. I am grateful that the time has come when I can prove them. That I do so is no object for regret or grieving. I said if ever I could do anything for those dear to you—

"I'm faint. What's that queer smell?" Darnay, looked up, saw Carton waving a handkerchief. Carton threw the handkerchief over his face, held it there until Darnay became unconscious. Then he began quickly to change clothes with the prisoner. The exchange was complete when Barsad returned at the end of ten minutes, and Carton had pocketed Darnay's farewell letters.

"Remember, Barsad. Get him to M<sup>r</sup>. Lorry's by eight o'clock. We'll tell the guard he was overcome—I staggered in entering so the guard would think I was half drunk. The plan worked; the guard suspected nothing. At seven o'clock in the morning, Carton heard the door of the cell being unlocked. Despite the gloom he recognized the form of Lucie. To prevent her crying out in amazement he said loudly for the guard to hear 'Lucie, my darling, it was brave of you to come, but there is nothing you can do—nothing but say goodbye. Remember all that I have given you I give freely. Say goodbye quickly, my dear. To make a protest would endanger the lives of the others.' He whispered: 'all the others—even little Lucie!' Then in a louder voice: 'Say goodbye to the others for me—Say good-bye to me now.'

Clinging to him for support, she looked up long into his eyes. There was no shadow of fear in them. She drew his head down and kissed him as the keeper rattled the door and said her time was up. Carton half supported, half pushed her through the door which was again locked. The permits of the fugitives, being in order, they were held up at the Paris gates only long enough for a careful inspection. As the busy gullotine began its daily grisly task that afternoon, M<sup>rs</sup>. Defarge was not in her accustomed seat of vantage. Sydney Carton, awaiting his turn held tight to the hand of the little Seamstress who had been found guilty because she had listened to a criticism of the Republic. She knew that Carton was not Evremonde and had pleaded with him to give her courage by holding her hand. As her number was called she stood up. 'Am I to kiss you now?' She kissed him. 'You are not afraid. It's almost as though you welcomed death. 'Perhaps I do. Perhaps in death I receive something I never had before: I hold a sanctuary in the hearts of those I care for. It is far, far better thing I do now, than I have ever done; it is a far, far better rest I go to than I have ever known.'

When the little seamstress had been despatched, he walked firmly to the steps of the gullotine. The setting sun broke through the clouds and shone upon the dead face. THE END

Changing sorrow to gladness and despair to hope—so charmed the little world in which he lived—to know him was to love him and when his appealing voice reaches out from the screen to touch your deepest emotions—you'll know him as the boy that was all man—unseltish, loyal, courageous, no matter who or where he was—a little boy in America—a little lord in England—The part of little Lord Fauntleroy is taken by Freddie Bartholomew, who made Davis Copperfield so real and alive.

The college does not have a show on Friday April 17, on account of the meeting of the Kentucky Educational Association.

COZY THEATRE

Robed in modernized versions of their own period styles, "the six most glamorous and beautiful women of history" will be seen in Paramount's new musical, "Collegiate" coming Sunday and Monday April 19 and 20, to the Cozy Theatre.

Paramount's production heads need to make a choice in the matter and after considerable consultation they chose:

Helen of Troy, Catherine the Great, Josephine Bonaparte, Madame de Pompadour.

Six of Hollywood's best known models portray these famous women in the film, which stars Joe Pentec, Jack Oakie, Frances Langford and Betty Grable.

"Collegiate" is a story in which Oakie falls heir to an old-fashioned girls college, assumes active management with the help of Pentec and Noel Sparks, and turns the institution into a charm school. Among the new departments he starts is the "fash ionology" class and the famous ladies of history serve as models for the girl students in that department.

AN Electric REFRIGERATOR is as modern as Electric light

Unusually Low Operating Cost Is Outstanding Feature of the New 1936 Models

YOU need not fear high electric bills when you install an electric refrigerator. Operation is as low as 2 cents a day, and its use cuts the cost of other electric service in your home.

Even in hottest weather you can depend on your electric refrigerator to protect food, make plenty of ice, and have frozen desserts ready to serve on time. With never any greasy smudge, flame, or fumes, it's so easy to keep your electric refrigerator spotlessly clean.

Your electric refrigerator will enable you to get out more and enjoy life. And you can use it in city, village or country—wherever there is ordinary electric service.

More than 7,000,000 electric refrigerators are now in use. You can rely on yours for satisfactory service year after year at very moderate expense.

You'll always be glad you have an Electric Refrigerator
