SPECIAL TO THE CARLISLE MERCURY

MOREHEAD, Ky.--When Morehead State University President C. Nelson Grote was inaugurated last year, former Gov. Edward Breathitt, vice chairman of the MSU Board of Regents predicted:

"The Morehead (State) eagle will soar like it has never soared before."

Today the University is looking at its largest student body since enrollment peaked at an all-time high of 7,676 in 1978. Based on preliminary figures, the fall 1988 headcount enrollment of 7,304 represents a 12.5 percent increase over the previous fall. When combined with last fall's growth of 10.1 percent, this represents a 22.6 percent enrollment increase in two years.

The number of full-time students--those taking 12 credit hours or more--is among the highest in the University's history. The full-time student enrollment this fall of 5,543 is up nearly 18 percent from last year.

Academic affairs administrators report the retention rate of first-time, full-time freshmen returning this year as sophomores has jumped to 67.7 percent as compared with a 62.5 percent retention rate the University has been averaging over a five year period.

With the increase in enrollment in the fall of 1987, MSU reopened three residence halls that had been placed in "moth balls" during a period of a declining student population. Residence hall population last year was about 3,000 students and this fall that figure reflects a 21.4 percent growth with more than 3,600 students living in 13 residence halls.

On the drawing board are plans not only to renovate one of the older halls currently in use, but also to renovate another which has not been in use as a residence hall since spring 1983. Both halls should be in first class condition by fall 1990.

More students also created a need for more classes and more faculty to teach those classes, so 25 new full-time faculty positions have been added to meet those demands.

MSU's growth has not been limited to enrollment but encompasses just about every sector, including fund raising where the 1987-88 total for private giving, $614,288, represents the second best year in the University's history as annual giving increased 35 percent. The previous year set an all-time record for the University's private giving program with one capital gift of $684,379 which pushed the total program over the million dollar mark. Also the number of active alumni almost doubled during the past year.

All of these are measures or elements of the synergy that results with growth and positive feelings about the University.

Not too long ago, the picture was very different. MSU was plagued by a steady erosion of enrollment and internal struggles which polarized the campus community and tarnished its image in the region.

Dr. Grote is quick to point out that the MSU eagle began "to soar" before his arrival and credits initiatives of Dr. A.D. Albright, his predecessor who served from July 1, 1986, until June 30, 1987.

Under Dr. Albright's tenure as the University's 10th president, a major recruitment marketing program was launched; efforts were made to mend broken relationships with civic and educational leaders throughout the region, and to rebuild campus morale and alumni pride.

"We've fine tuned many of these initiatives, continuing to build upon them," Dr. Grote said. Reflecting earlier this fall on his presidency's first year, he characterized it as the first in "a period of growth and transition.

"There are a lot of people whose efforts have made our growth possible," said Dr. Grote, who had been an MSU administrator from 1960 to 1971. "That list includes our own dedicated faculty and staff, the status of our Board of Regents so ably headed by Gov. (Louie B.) Nunn, our supportive alumni and all those many friends of MSU who believe in what this institution means to its service region," he added.

Recalling the slogan that he used during his first year as president, Dr. Grote said:

"One person can't do it all by himself, but 'Together We Can.' Together we can make the MSU eagle soar to even greater heights."

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.--A Morehead State University faculty member has been designated as a 1988 Al Smith Fellowship recipient by the Kentucky Arts Council.

Dr. Michelle Boisseau, associate professor of English and who has received other awards for her poetry, is one of 10 creative artists in the commonwealth who were selected from 150 applicants.

The fellowships, valued at $5,000 each and named for the Council's former chairman, may be used by recipients to support their professional and creative development, according to Roger L. Paige, Council director.

The awards were made on the basis of excellence, creativity and individuality of the artists' current work and on the potential for the grant to enhance the recipient's professional development, Paige said.

A member of MSU's Department of English, Foreign Languages and Philosophy since 1987, Dr. Boisseau serves as adviser for Inscape, the University's student literary magazine.

Dr. Boisseau's writings--both fiction and poetry--have appeared in such literary journals as Poetry, The Georgia Review, The New England Review, The Missouri Review and others. She also was the 1988 recipient of the Cecil Hemley Award from the Poetry Society of America and took first place in the 1985 National Poetry Competition.

A former member of the humanities faculty at Virginia Intermont College, she holds the Ph.D. degree from the University of Houston, the M.A. and B.A. (summa cum laude) from Ohio University.

This is the sixth year the fellowships have been presented by the Council, a division of the Kentucky Department of the Arts, and the categories for the creative awards are alternated each year. This year applications were solicited from composers, poets, writers of fiction, playwrights and choreographers. In 1989, those in the fields of visual arts, film and video, performance art, conceptual art and other new genres may apply.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Business students at Morehead State University are eligible to take part in the first AT&T Collegiate Investment Challenge, a four-month competition which begins Nov. 1.

MSU's chapter of Phi Beta Lambda, a student business club, is promoting campus participation in the national project which is designed to create a better understanding of the world of business through an investment project.

The project works like this:

When the stock market opens for trading on Tuesday morning, Nov. 1, participating college students will take control of their own $500,000 brokerage account and begin competing against thousands of students from across the country.

For the next four months, they will buy and sell real stocks in an effort to maximize the value of their portfolios. A full service brokerage firm has been set up to handle all trading activity and provide human assistance throughout the event.

When participants are ready to start investing they just pick up their phone and call their broker on a special toll-free 800 line. Their broker is positioned at a fully automated trading desk ready to execute trades based on up to the minute stock quotes beamed in via satellite from the Exchanges in New York.

At the end of each month, players will be mailed a personal three page account statement and newsletter. The statement will provide an account summary, a record of all their transactions, a complete listing of portfolio holdings, and a current valuation of their account. There will also be a rankings section showing how each participant fared against students in their class, at their college, and across the country.

Participants must register to compete by Oct. 21 and the competition is limited to the first 25,000 college and university students enrolling. There is an entry fee of $49.95 per student and participants must be enrolled in two-year or four-year accredited colleges or universities.

At stake are cash awards ranging from $25,000 for first place to $1,000 for 10th place and several other awards ranging from a plaque and certificate for the top student at each college to athletic shoes and watches.

The top 10 players in the country will be flown with a guest to New York City and honored at an awards ceremony. These top 10 players and a guest will spend two nights at the Marriott Marquis in the heart of Manhattan. While there, they will be taken on a VIP tour of the New York Stock Exchange, attend a Broadway show and be interviewed on national television. Then it's off to the Bahamas for a full week of fun in the sun.

MSU students may register by contacting Dr. Ray D. Bernardi, Phi Beta Lambda sponsor. His office is located in Combs 213 and his telephone number is (606) 783-2389.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--More than 2,000 high school band members from several states will compete in Morehead State University's Blue and Gold Tournament of Champions scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 15, at Jayne Stadium.

An invitational high school marching band contest, the Department of Music-sponsored event will begin at 3 p.m. as the bands compete for ratings, awards and trophies.

"We invite the public to enjoy the pageantry which is similar to a Broadway musical as these musicians, flag corps, rifle corps and dancers demonstrate their talent," said Richard Miles, MSU director of bands. "It's an exciting spectacle of sound and color."

Tickets will be available at the gate for $4 per person and concessions will be available.

Prior to the presentation of awards at the close of the competition, MSU's Marching Band will perform.

The competing bands will be judged by nationally-recognized marching band adjudicators on their musicianship, marching and general effect.

The MSU Regents Award will be presented to the top scoring Eastern Kentucky band, the Governor's Award to the highest scoring Kentucky band and the President's Award to the overall "Grand Champion" of the Blue and Gold Tournament of Champions.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Dr. Judy R. Rogers, professor of English at Morehead State University, has been named dean of undergraduate programs at the University.

She assumed her new role earlier this month, according to Dr. Stephen S. Taylor, MSU vice president for academic affairs, who announced the appointment.

Dr. Rogers, who had been serving as an assistant to the vice president for academic affairs, also is co-director of the University's institutional self-study under way for the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS).

"Already respected as an educator by her faculty peers, Dr. Rogers also has consistently shown excellent administrative skills and leadership in her part-time association with us," Dr. Taylor said. "We believe she will be an effective link between the faculty and this office," he added.

As dean, Dr. Rogers will be responsible for overseeing, reviewing and assessing undergraduate curriculum programs, including the general education component; serve as chair of the University Undergraduate Curriculum Committee, and coordinate academic advising.

She also will be responsible for MSU's Testing Center, Correspondence Studies Program and the various programs within the Academic Services Center, including provisional studies and TRIO.

"In establishing this post, we were able to consolidate supervision and coordination of several academic and support service areas, while eliminating an executive level directorship," Dr. Taylor said. "The realignment of resources should provide for a more efficient academic structure," he added.

A former MSU Faculty Senate chair, Dr. Rogers joined the faculty in 1967, teaching until 1970 when she left to complete her doctorate at the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill where she was a teaching assistant. She returned to MSU in 1973.

She earned her baccalaureate degree from Centre College and her master's degree from UNC-Chapel Hill. A two-time Woodrow Wilson Fellow, she also participated in a National Endowment for the Humanities Summer Seminar for College Teachers at Princeton University.

A frequent presenter at professional meetings, she is co-author with her husband, Dr. Glenn C. Rogers, also an MSU professor of English, of one textbook which is now in its second edition. The pair has another text scheduled to be published in 1989 by Wadsworth Printing Company.

Her professional memberships include the National and Kentucky Councils of Teachers of English, the Conference on College Composition and Communication and Phi Delta Kappa. She currently is a member of the advisory board for MSU's Academy of Arts and edits the state newsletter for Kentucky's Delta Kappa Gamma.

THE CROWNING EVENT

Morehead State University President C. Nelson Grote crowns Jill Leigh Brookbank, Ripley, Ohio, senior, MSU's 1988 Homecoming Queen during half-time ceremonies at Saturday's football game before a crowd of approximately 7,250. The queen also received roses from the MSU Alumni Association and a silver bowl from the Student Government Association. Brookbank, a journalism/public relations major, is the daughter of Donald and Doris Brookbank. She is a Dean's List student at MSU and a member of Delta Gamma sorority and a Sigma Alpha Epsilon little sis. Escorting the queen and her sister Joy Lynn Brookbank, who also competed for the crown, was their father.

MOREHEAD, KY.--Auditions have been announced for the Morehead State University Theatre production "First Shots of Rage," an original play depicting the Martin-Tolliver feud in Rowan County.

Auditions will be held on Monday, Oct. 17, at 3 and 7 p.m. and Tuesday, Oct. 18, at 7 p.m. in the old Rowan County Courthouse, the site of the original incidence.

Ten local residents will be cast to appear in the play, according to Dr. William J. Layne, associate professor of theatre. He and two MSU students--Mike Breeze, Morehead junior, and Karen O'Baker, Geneva, Ohio, senior--are the co-authors and co-directors for the production.

"The only qualification to appear in the production is an interest in theatre," said Dr. Layne. "There are openings for both male and female roles."

The play will be performed at the old Rowan County Courthouse on Friday through Sunday, Dec. 9-11, Jan. 13-15, and Jan. 20-22, with the Sunday performances being matinees.

Additional information is available by calling the MSU Theatre Box Office, (606) 783-2170, from 1-4 p.m., weekdays.

LOCAL FEUD SUBJECT OF MSU PLAY

Morehead State University Theatre students will present an original play, "First Shots of Rage," in the setting where the story first originated. This version of the Martin-Tolliver feud that took place in Rowan County will be re-enacted on Dec. 9-11, Jan. 13-15, and Jan. 20-22 and include 10 local residents among the cast members. Karen O'Baker, Geneva, Ohio, senior, and Dr. William J. Layne, associate professor of theatre, discuss production plans in the old Rowan County Courthouse courtroom on a recent visit there. Auditions for the play will be held Oct. 17 and 18. Layne, O'Baker and Mike Breeze, Morehead junior, are the co-authors and co-directors for the production.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Mid-year faculty and staff pay increases and a one-time salary supplement for all full-time personnel were approved by Morehead State University's Board of Regents at its meeting Friday, Oct. 7.

All full-time faculty and staff members will receive a $400 gross non-recurring supplement to their salary at the end of the fall semester at a total cost of $437,100. Funding for the one-time supplement came from the University's fund balance (reserve).

The board allocated another $168,750 to provide salary adjustments to faculty base salaries. Two percent of the funds will be added to faculty base salaries to adjust them in relationship to respective benchmarks, while one percent will be used to correct individual inequities.

A number of staff members will be affected by the $60,000 added to the base salary pool to address individual salary inequities and continue funding the staff compensation schedule.

The faculty and staff base salary increments, effective Jan. 1, were funded out of the University's 1988-89 operating budget from increased revenues primarily in tuition and fees.

MSU President C. Nelson Grote told the board that enrollment growth in 1987-88 had accounted for the additional revenues in the fund balance while this year's 12.5 percent enrollment increase was reflected in the additions to the current operating budget. Efficient management of resources also contributed to a 30 percent increase in the fund balance at the close of Fiscal 1988.

In other business, the regents accepted the financial report for the first quarter and amended the FY 89 operating budget to reflect an increase in revenue of .07 percent. The board also accepted the 1987-88 audit report by Kelley, Galloway and Company. Upon a recommendation from the firm calling for a formalized internal audit program, the board authorized Dr. Grote and other appropriate University officials to initiate the process for such a function.

MSU also was given the go ahead to obtain the services of an architectural/engineering firm through the FAC to develop a Campus Master Plan. Such a plan will assist the University in making decisions regarding its actual physical development; provide an information base for its short range and long range capital planning needs and requests to the state, and compliment SACS reaccreditation efforts.

In addition to reports on the 1988 fall enrollment, the athletics study, NCATE and SACS, land acquisition and WMKY-FM projects, the board heard a report on the 1987-88 private giving year--the University's second best fund raising year with $614,288 in gifts. The previous year's giving of $1.1 million, an all-time high included a one-time capital gift of $684,379. This year's total included a nearly 35 percent increase in annual giving over the past year.

Among other actions taken, the board approved or ratified the following:

Personnel actions from July 18 to Sept. 16.

Moving the computer center from Reed Hall to Ginger Hall. This would result in increased space for academic use in Reed, consolidation of computing services personnel and resources in a centrally-located area, and in a more technologically secure area.

Upgrading the administrative and academic copmputer systems, both of which have reached a saturation point.

Development of a new state-of-the-art telecommunications and data network in conjunction with the final design for the renovation of the University's utilities.

Acquisition of a 0.2 acre tract currently leased for parking and appraisal of another parcel with structure, both pieces of property front on Second Street.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--"Business Loans on Tour," an on-site visit with small business owners who used business loans to establish or expand their operations, will be offered by Morehead State University's Small Business Development Center.

Scheduled for Tuesday, Nov. 1, the tour will offer new small business owners, who are interested in obtaining a business loan from the SBA or their bank, an opportunity to talk with those who have recently been through the process, according to Ernest Begley, general management consultant with MSU's SBDC.

Co-sponsored by the SBA and the Gateway Area Development District, the tour also is a chance for participants to see some "unusual businesses in our region that many people may not be aware of," Begley said.

The tour includes Acorn Industries, located in Farmers; Rowan County Steel, also in Farmers; Clayslick Bait Shop at Cave Run Lake; Barton Foods Company (a jelly factory) in Denniston; Family Restaurant in Camargo; Sears of Mt. Sterling and Dutch. Ishamel's Chevy in Mt. Sterling.

The tour will depart from Butler Hall on MSU's campus between 8:30 and 8:45 a.m. with return scheduled for about 4:30 p.m. Cost is $6 with lunch at Family Restaurant additional and expected to range from $4 to $7.

Participation is limited and registration will be necessary, according to Begley. Those interested in making the trip should call MSU's SBDC, (606) 783-2077 by Oct. 25. Registrations must be confirmed with payment mailed by Oct. 28.

MSU's SBDC is an outreach service of the School of Business and Economics and is located on campus in Butler Hall 24.

HOMEcomings '88 AT MOREHEAD STATE UNIVERSITY: A Picture Story

MOREHEAD, Ky.--The Morehead State University family--alumni, friends, students, faculty and staff members--joined to reminisce about the "good old days" and make new friends during the 1988 Homecoming festivities on the MSU campus, Oct. 6-9.

They came from near and far to visit the campus, according to Bill Redwine, alumni relations director. "It was a smashing success," he said. "More than 7,000 attended the MSU/Murray State football game."

Highlights of the weekend included a Ricky Skaggs/Sweethearts of the Rodeo country music concert, Athletic Hall of Fame Induction and Reunion Dinner, and coronation of Jill Brookbank, Ripley, Ohio, senior, as the Homecoming Queen.

"Since everyone had such a good time, we hope they will begin making plans now for Homecoming '89, Oct. 13-15," Redwine noted.

Cutlines:

- 1--These Carter County natives, from left, W. Hubert Counts of Olive Hill, William Counts of Morehead, and Henry Shufflebarger of Newport News, Va., had "lots to catch up on" at the Welcome Reception on Friday evening.
- 2--Several hundred alumni and friends attended the fish fry, following the Homecoming football game. Conversation and the opportunity to visit with friends was a high priority for those in attendance.

- 3--Forty former music students returned to participate in MSU's Alumni Band during the half-time ceremonies of the football game. Among the local participants was Steve Rigsby of Morehead, shown practicing on the sousaphone during the band's rehearsal.
- 4--Items donated by entertainers and sports figures were auctioned at the Celebrity Auction during the fish fry. Jim Caudill, left, Eagle Athletic Fund director, holds this Alabama jacket for the crowd to get a better view, while auctioneer Dr. Mike Brown, associate professor of health, physical education and recreation, asks for bids. Top money makers were a Peavy electric guitar and case and a football autographed by New York Giants' quarterback Phil Simms.
- 5--Saturday was a busy day for alumni returning for the Homecoming activities. The Adron Doran University Center was the gathering place in the morning hours for registration and updating alumni records during the continental breakfast and before the smorgasbord brunch. Among those attending were Anna Lou McNeill of Flemingsburg, at left.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University will host "Student Opportunities Night" at the Springs Inn in Lexington on Tuesday, Oct. 18.

High school juniors and seniors and their parents from Bourbon, Clark, Fayette, Harrison, Jessamine and Woodford counties have received a special invitation to attend. Also invited were superintendents, principals, and guidance counselors from the high schools in these counties and sophomores at two-year colleges in the area.

"This is an educational opportunity for students to explore the various avenues available on a college campus," said Dr. Randy Wells, MSU's coordinator of school relations. "'Student Opportunities Nights' are designed to provide current information to those who wish to continue their education and preview career possibilities."

MSU President and Mrs. C. Nelson Grote will be in attendance, along with faculty members and students currently enrolled.

Representatives from academic departments and student services--admissions, housing, student life, campus development, and athletics--will be available to answer specific questions about a particular area.

The program begins at 7 p.m. with registration, followed by a video tape depicting campus life.

Additional information is available from MSU's Office of Admissions, (606) 783-2000, or toll free, 1-800-262-7474.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University's Continuing Education Program for nursing and allied health professionals will sponsor an evening workshop for nurses on Thursday, Oct. 27.

The workshop, entitled "Community Services and the Elderly," will run from 4-9:10 p.m. in the Adron Doran University Center on the MSU campus.

The faculty for the session will include Robin Franklin and Lois Vice of St. Claire Medical Center's Home Health Services; Marlene Huff and Marie Smart of Sanders-Brown Center on Aging in Lexington, and Barbara Moore, assistant professor of nursing at MSU.

The cost for the training is $30 which includes handout materials and refreshments. Nurses will receive five contact hours as approved by the Kentucky Board of Nursing.

Additional information is available from MSU's Department of Nursing and Allied Health Sciences, (606) 783-2632.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University has launched a Peer Advising Program this fall aimed at increasing the retention rate of those "undecided" freshmen who enroll without a major.

A joint effort of the Office of Academic Affairs and the Student Government Association, the Peer Advising Program works on the buddy system with upperclassmen providing social as well as academic mentoring.

The program is a pilot project, according to Dr. Judy Rogers, MSU's dean of undergraduate programs. "We will need to evaluate its success and see if it really serves as an aid to retention," she said.

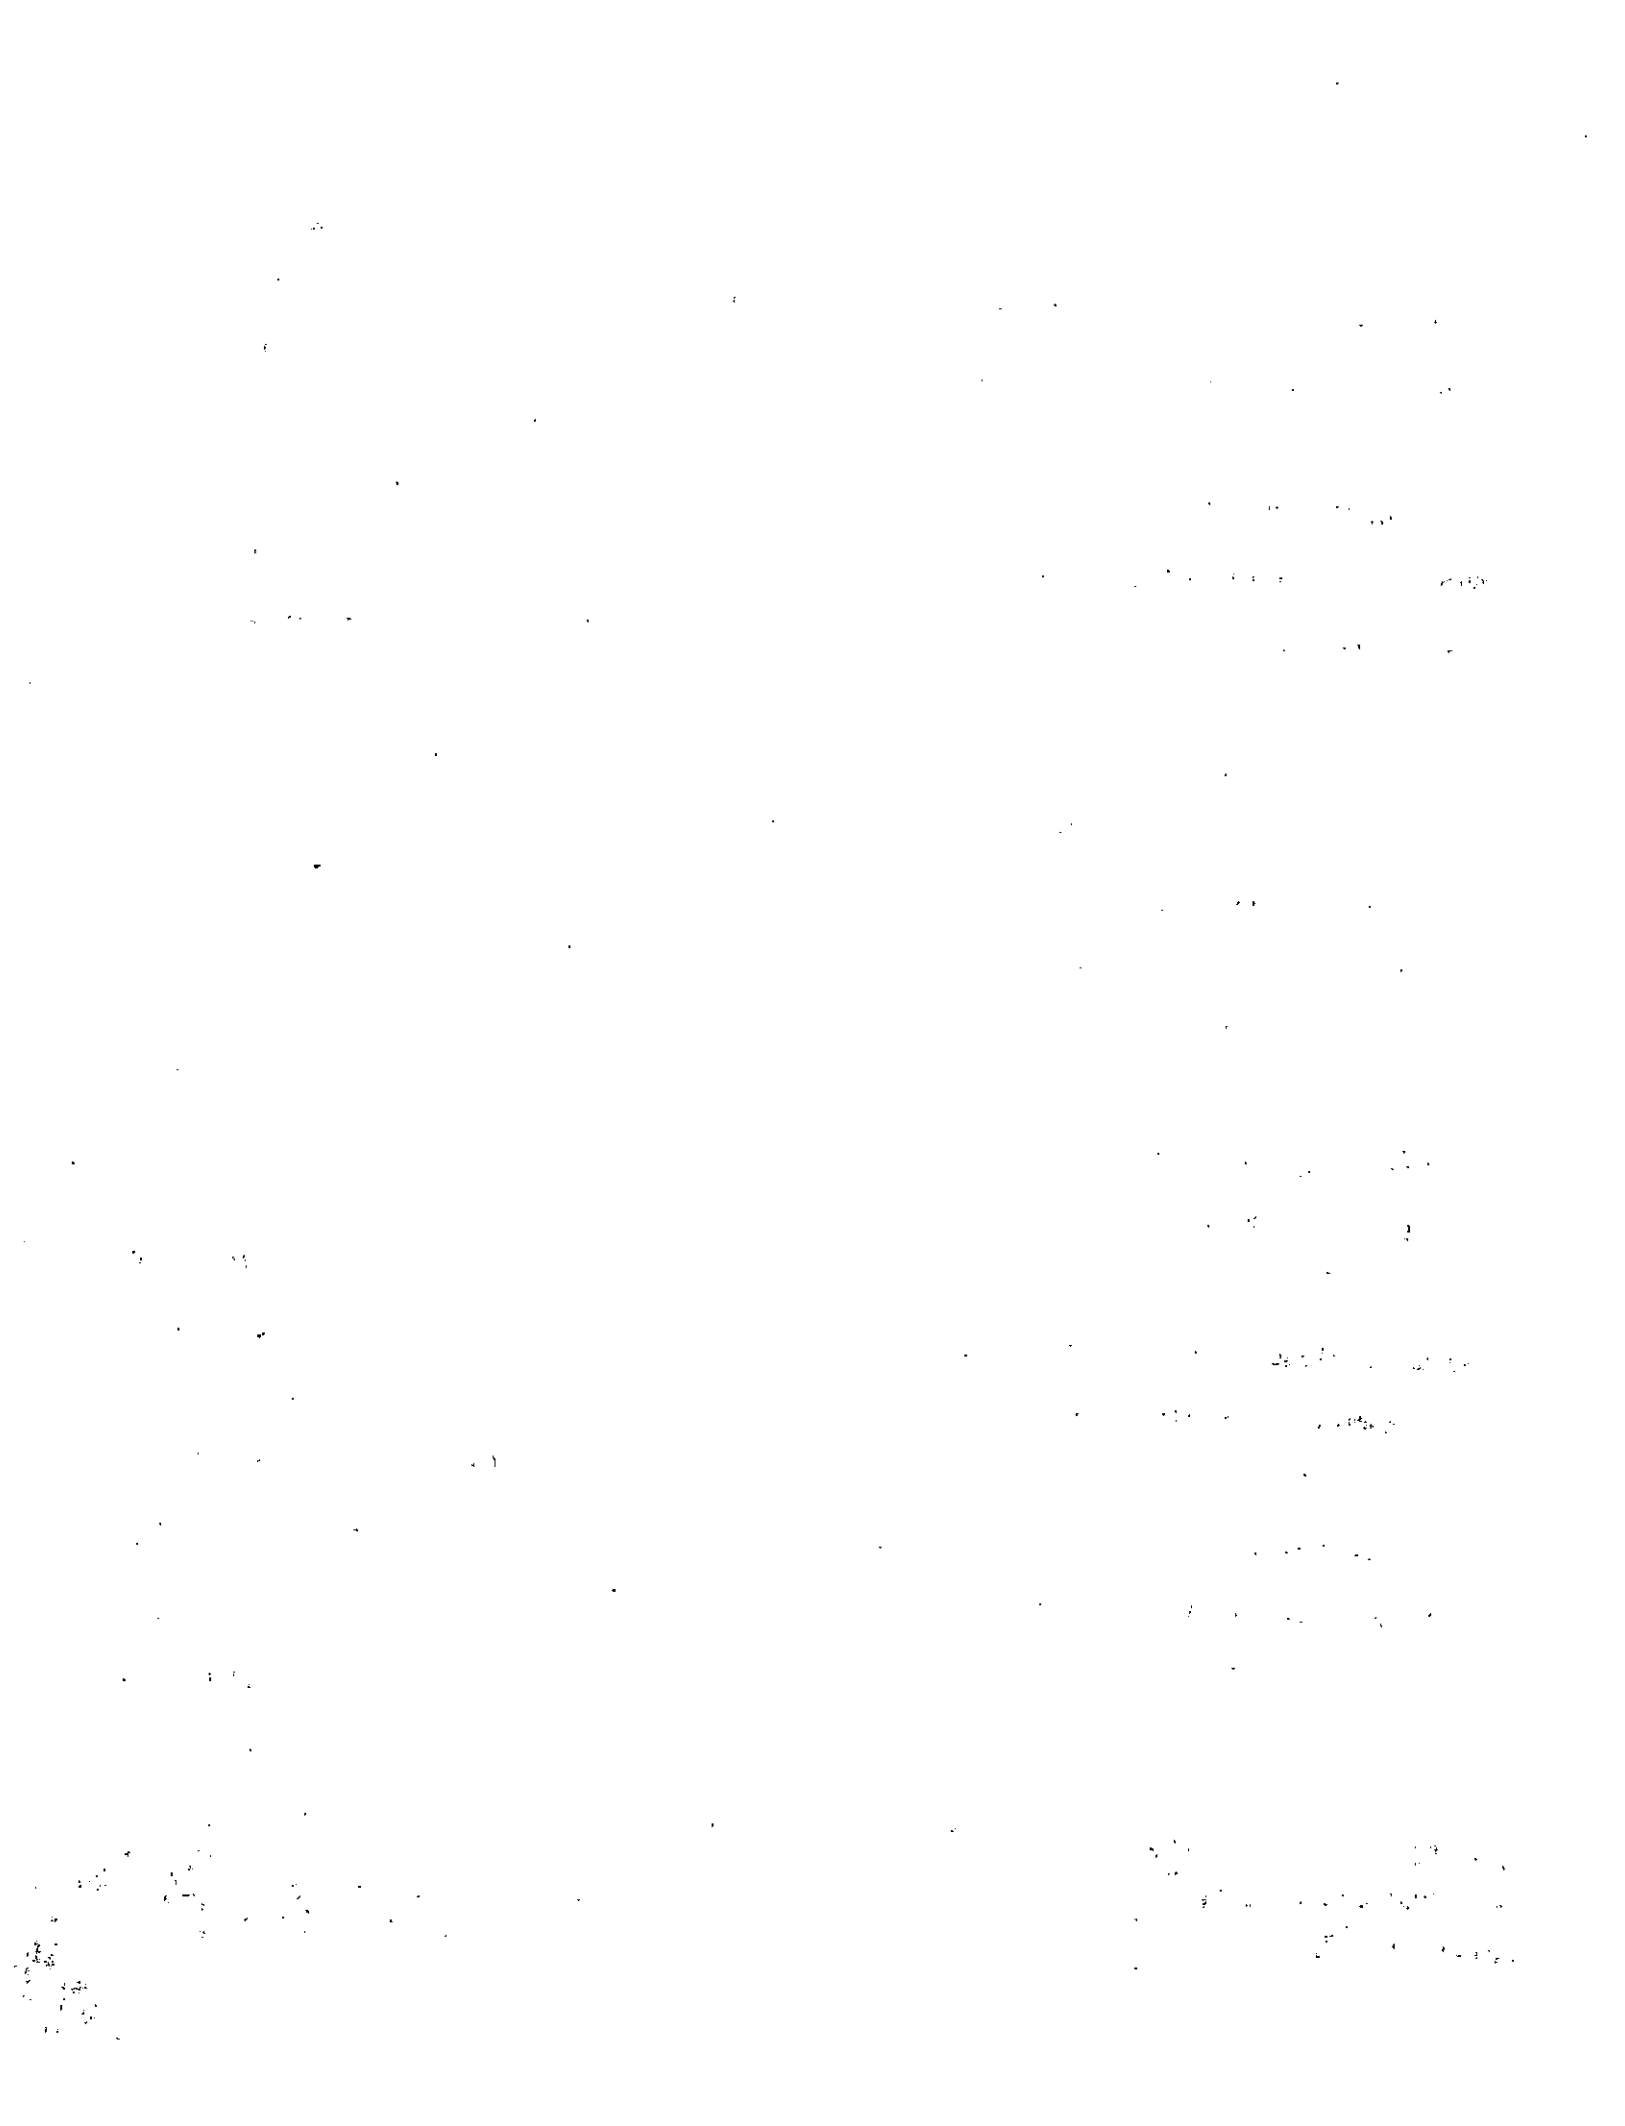

"We hope to use this program to help those "undecided" students select a field of study, and also to provide assistance in making the transition to college from high school," she said. "They need to know about campus life and campus services as much as they need to know what courses to take."

According to Dr. Rogers, once students select their majors, they will be assigned to a faculty adviser in the appropriate department.

"Studies show that there is a direct correlation between an affiliation with a specific program and its faculty and retention of students," explained Dr. Rogers. "All of us in the University need to make a concentrated effort to give students sufficient guidance to select a major field."

The program calls for 25 to 30 juniors or seniors in good academic standing to be selected and trained through MSU's Academic Services Center. Each adviser will be responsible for 12 advisees.

(MORE)

Supervising the peer advisers will be retired faculty or staff members who have volunteered to help with the program.

In addition to learning about the project itself, the peer advisers will receive special training in helping their advisees cope with the stress of mid-term exams and resulting grades. Another session will prepare the peer adviser to assist their advisees in making out a schedule for the spring semester.

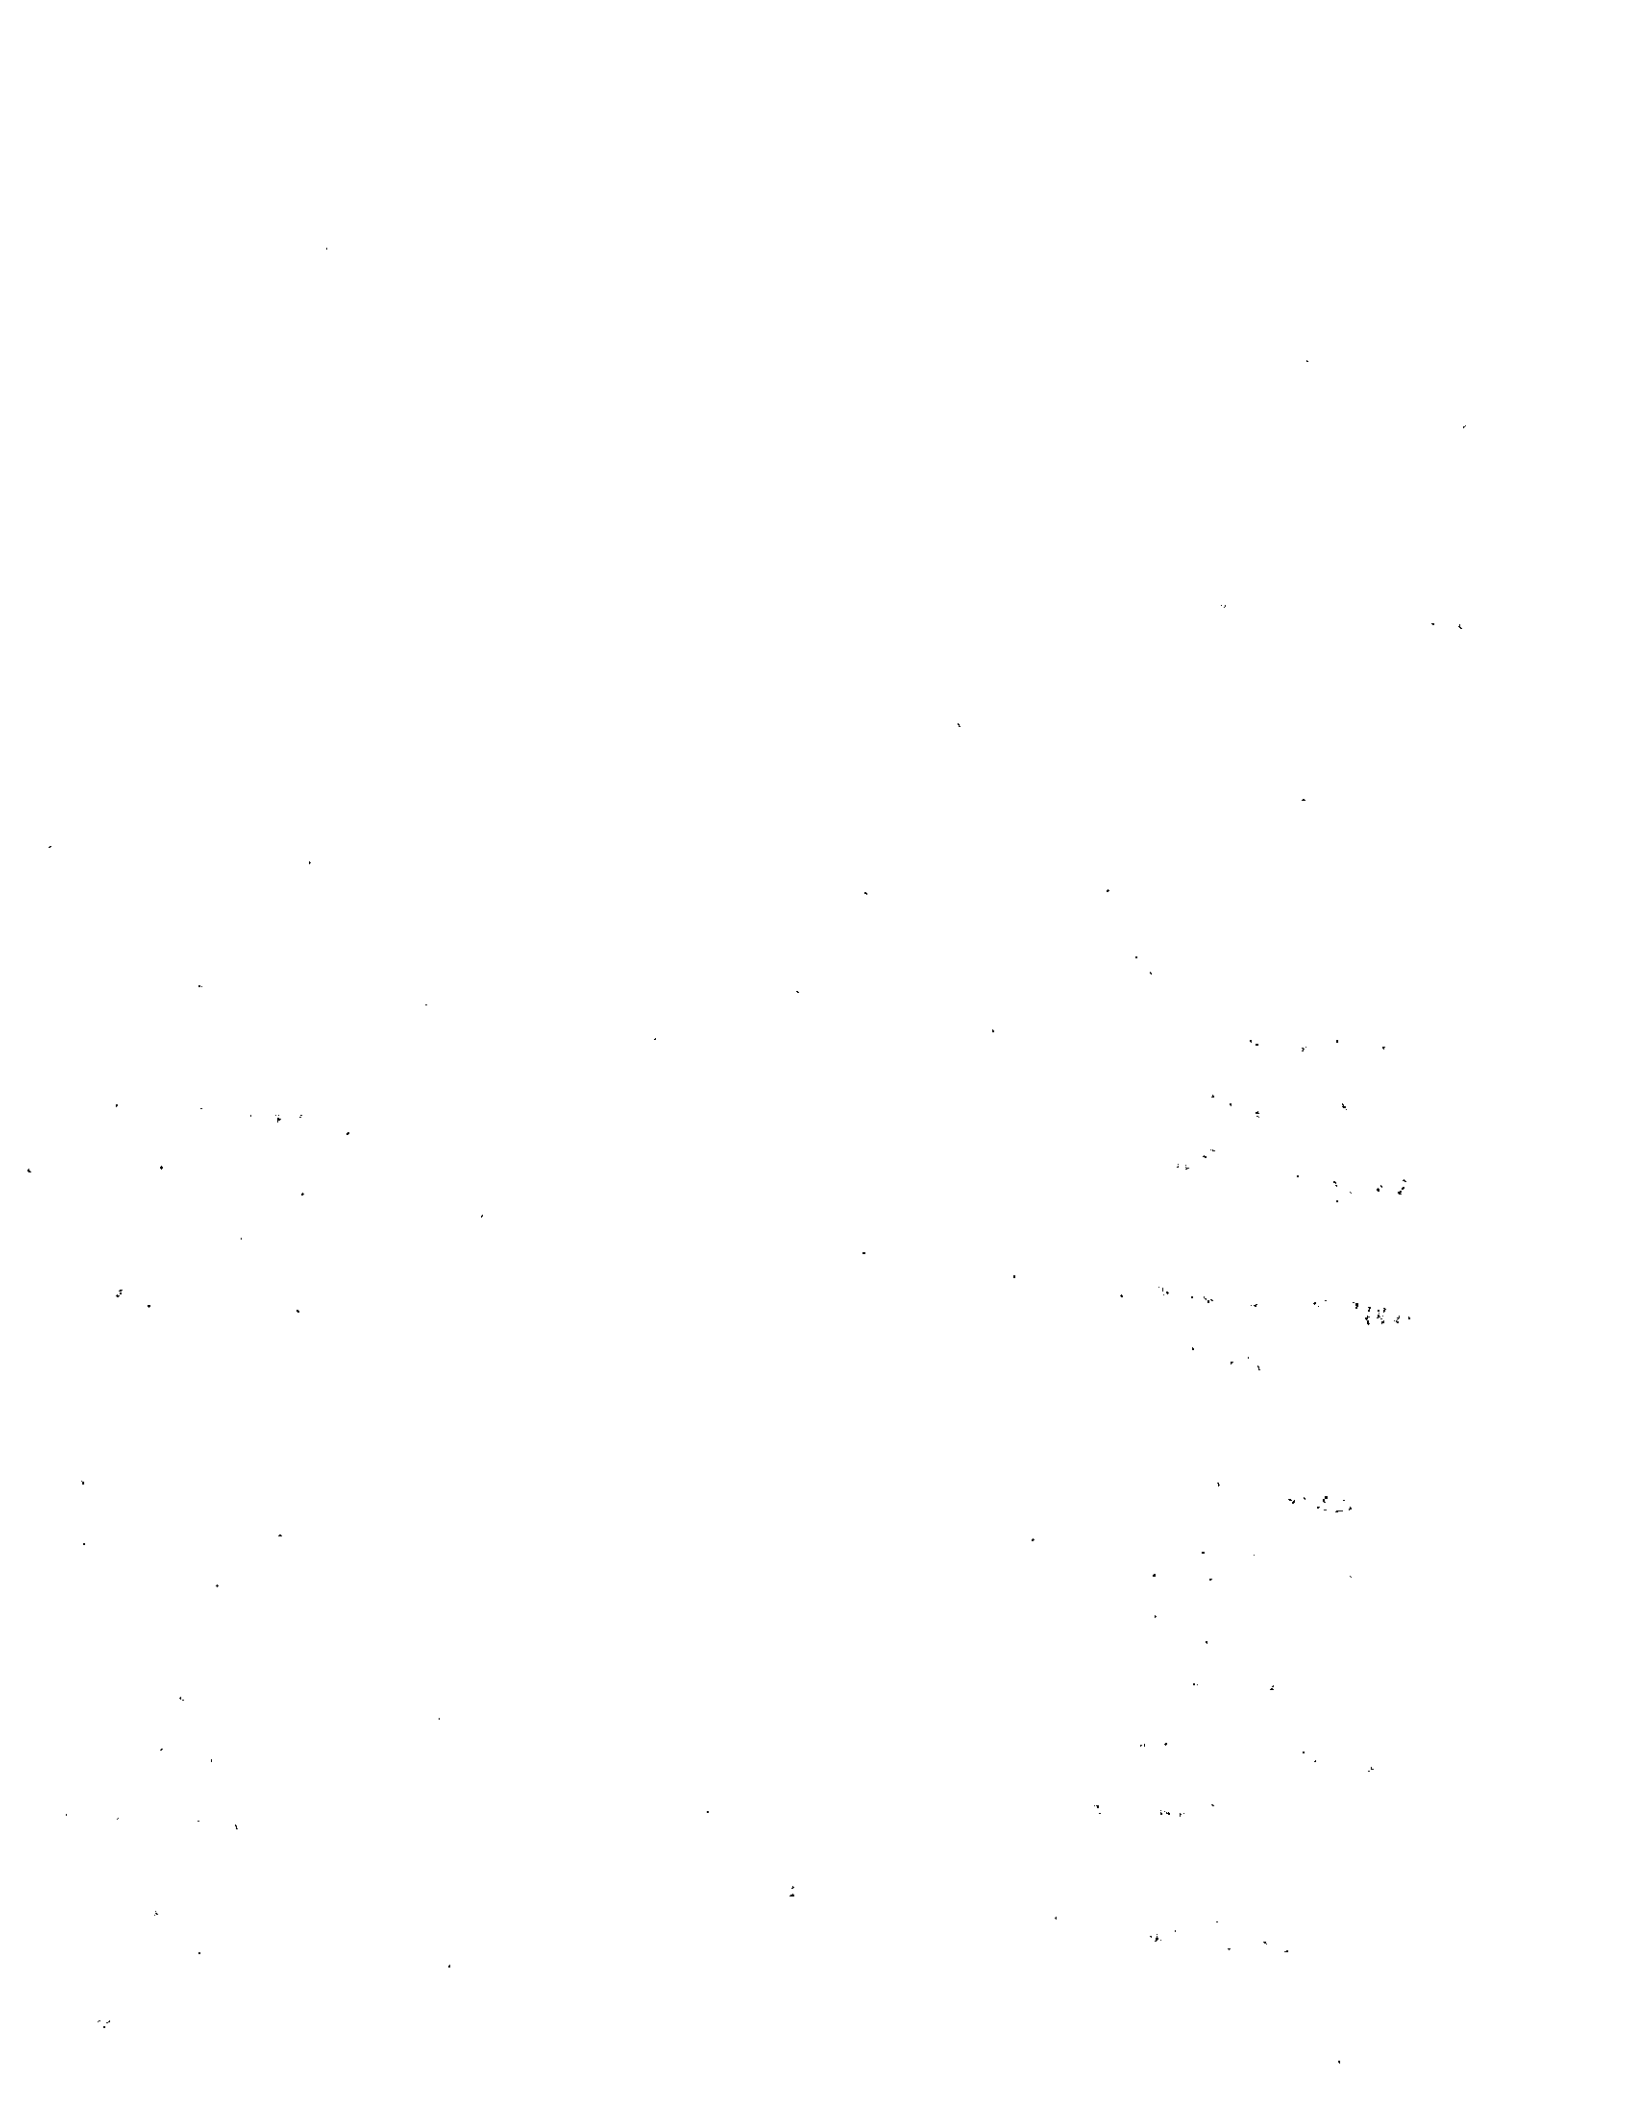

"I think it is important to stress that one of the primary functions of the peer advisers is to be there to provide support to their advisees. The program is not strictly geared to academic needs," Dr. Rogers said.

An advisory committee has been set up to coordinate the program with representatives from the student body, the Office of Residence Education, faculty members from each college and retired faculty.

"MSU's Student Government President Andy Parker and Student Regent Sheridan Martin have demonstrated what student leadership is all about as they have been in the forefront in supporting and developing this program," Dr. Rogers noted.

If the project is successful, MSU officials will seek funding from an educational foundation to assist in its continuation and expansion.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University's Department of Music will host its 29th annual Choral Festival for High School Singers on Thursday and Friday, Oct. 27-28.

The two-day festival will feature Robert Page, assistant conductor of the Cleveland Orchestra and director of its choruses, as guest conductor.

Choral groups from approximately 20 Kentucky and Ohio high schools are expected to take part in the workshops and performances, according to James Ross Beane, associate professor of music and festival manager.

Two free public concerts will be given. The first will feature MSU's Concert Choir and Chamber Singers, under the direction of Beane, at 8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 27, in Duncan Recital Hall. The program will include works by Argento, Scarlatti, Brahms and Morales.

Performing with the students will be MSU music faculty members, Larry Kennan, associate professor, and Jo-Anne Keenan, instructor, on piano and an instrumental ensemble composed of Dr. William Bigham and Dr. Frederick Mueller, professors; Leo Blair and Larry Keenan, associate professors; and Robert Pritchard, John Viton and Suanne Blair, assistant professors.

On Friday, Oct. 28, a 250-voice chorus composed of students from participating high schools will be heard in a concert at 7 p.m. in Duncan Recital Hall under the direction of guest conductor Page.

The program will feature works by Berger, Paulus, Bernstein, Effinger and Copland with Jay Flippin, MSU associate professor of music as accompanist.

One of the country's most distinguished conductors, Page is making his ninth appearance as the festival's guest conductor. Formerly on the faculties of Temple University and Carnegie-Mellon University, he currently is music director of the Pittsburgh Mendelsohn Choral Society in addition to his duties with the Cleveland Orchestra and Cleveland Opera.

Conductor of a 30-voice professional chorus, The Robert Page Singers, he also maintains a full schedule as a guest conductor for opera companies, symphonic organizations and music festivals from California to Maine.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University will host the 1988 Kentucky Student Affairs Conference on Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 19-20.

Activities will be held at Adron Doran University Center on campus and at the Holiday Inn of Morehead, according to Madonna Huffman, MSU's director of Residence Education and conference coordinator.

More than 60 student personnel administrators from state and private higher education institutions are expected to participate in the sessions, Huffman said.

The program includes a pre-conference video workshop Wednesday morning dealing with student involvement in campus programming on substance abuse.

Speakers and topics for Wednesday's sessions include Dr. Neil Bailey, vice president/dean of student affairs at Marshall University, "A Perspective on Student Affairs," and Barbara Tootle, special assistant to the president, Ohio State University, "The Values in Our Profession."

On Thursday, Dr. Roy Peterson from the Kentucky Council on Higher Education will discuss "Recruiting and Retaining Minority Students," followed by special interest sessions featuring various MSU administrators. Scheduled are:

"Maintaining Administrative Effectiveness," with Dr. Mike Hopper, Career Planning and Placement director; "AIDS Education on Campus," with Huffman and Jane Blair, Student Health Services nurse; "Planning for Coed Housing," with Rhonda Baldwin, recruiting activities coordinator; "Minority Teacher Preparation Program," with Linda Lucas, coordinator for MSU's program, and "Recruitment and Enrollment Services: An MSU Perspective," with Tim Rhodes, executive director of University Enrollment Services.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Author Jill McCorkle will be featured during a week-long "Novelist-in-Residence" program at Morehead State University Oct. 31-Nov. 4.

Supported with a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, the residency is one of two scheduled by the University to bring writers whose themes are national in scope to the campus, according to Dr. Michelle Boisseau, associate professor of English and residency project director.

During the residency, McCorkle will present two public readings and hold round table discussions with students, writers, educators, and residents of the region. The theme for the sessions will deal with writing for a national audience without losing a sense of region.

A native of North Carolina, McCorkle has three novels to her credit, published by Algonquin Books of Chapel Hill, N.C. Her first two, "The Cheer Leader" and "July 7th" were reprinted in paperback by Viking-Penguin in its Contemporary American Series. Her short stories have appeared in a number of magazines including Seventeen and Southern Magazine.

Critics have praised McCorkle's fiction for its energy, wit and sympathy, describing her style with adjectives ranging from "captivating" to "sensuous."

Formerly on the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill English faculty, she now teaches creative writing at Tufts University.

Novelist-in-Residence
2-2-2-2-2

On Tuesday, Nov. 1, she will conduct a round table discussion of "Fiction: From the Front Porch to the Front Page," in East Room A, Adron Doran University Center, at 2 p.m. McCorkle will present a reading of her works at 7:30 that evening in the gallery of Claypool-Young Art Building. There will also be a question and answer period at that event. During a public reception which follows, she will autograph copies of her books.

Tuesday's activities will be videotaped and made available to area teachers through MSU's Learning Resources Center in Camden-Carroll Library. At the evening reading, there will be signing for the hearing impaired, according to Dr. Boisseau.

Wednesday's schedule includes a session on "Trends in Contemporary Fiction" at 3:30 p.m. in East Room A. Designed particularly for librarians and teachers, the discussion will focus on ways to introduce regional audiences to works by national writers and ways to interest national writers in the region.

On Thursday, Nov. 3, the program will move to West Liberty where McCorkle will visit Morgan County High School classes and at 2 p.m. present a public reading at the MSU-Morgan Center with a book signing to follow.

McCorkle's works are available on campus at the University Store.

All events are open to the public.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Arts in Morehead (AIM) will present the North Carolina Shakespeare Festival's touring production of Shakespeare's "Macbeth" at Morehead State University on Friday, Oct. 28, at 8 p.m. in Button Auditorium.

Admission will be by season membership or single admission tickets at $5 for adults and $2.50 for non-MSU students. MSU students with valid I.D. cards are admitted free.

Group rates and other ticket information is available by calling MSU's Academy of Arts (606) 783-2659.

Written about 1605, "Macbeth" is considered one of Shakespeare's greatest tragedies. The play is based on 11th Century Scottish history and events surrounding a real King Duncan and the subsequent ascent to his throne by a real Macbeth.

Rather than serving as a historical drama, Shakespeare's "Macbeth" focuses on Macbeth's ambition and lust for power. The Festival's Outreach Tour production of the drama uses a "theatricalized" design of the period in which Macbeth lived as its setting in order to focus on the play's innate success as high power drama, according to the director Louis Rackoff.

The North Carolina Shakespeare Festival is not a stranger to the AIM series, according to Dr. Ron Fiel, AIM program chairman. "Last year the touring company presented a sparkling modernized version of 'A Midsummer Night's Dream' before a near capacity crowd," he noted.

AIM is a cooperative effort of Morehead State and the Morehead-Rowan County Arts Council.

The AIM 1988-89 season also includes upcoming performances by the Atlanta Chamber Players on Nov. 29; the Joffrey II ballet company on Feb. 6; Jomandi's production of "Do Lord Remember Me" on Feb 8; Broadway musical "42nd Street" on March 27, and a Morehead Celebration Chamber Orchestra concert July 14.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Dr. Michael Biel, associate professor of radio-tv at Morehead State University, spoke to the General Assembly of the International Association of Sound Archives (IASA) at their annual conference held recently in Vienna, Austria. The conference was organized by the Arbeitsgemeinschaft Audiovisueller Archive Osterreichs and was held at the Osterreichische Phonotheek in Vienna.

Dr. Biel, the immediate past-president of the Association for Recorded Sound Collections (ARSC), presented his association's annual report of their activities. While at the conference, Dr. Biel was also able to conclude negotiations to hold a joint conference of ARSC and IASA in Ottawa, Canada, in 1990. Additionally, Dr. Biel made a presentation to the IASA Copyright Committee on the recent problems in the United States where certain record companies have prohibited the importation of records under the claim of "parallel importing."

Dr. Biel also traveled to Budapest, Hungary, and concluded arrangements to have Hungarian Radio and Television host tours and seminars for Kentucky students who will be attending classes with Dr. Biel in Austria during the summer of 1989. The class in Field Studies Experience in International Broadcasting is being sponsored by the Kentucky Institute for European Studies (KIES).

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Shirley S. Blair, a member of Morehead State University's School of Education since 1970, has been named director of the Student Teaching Program, part of the school's Educational Services Unit.

She assumed the post earlier this year, according to Dr. Jim Bowman, associate dean for education.

As student teaching director, Blair will be responsible for coordinating all of the unit's professional laboratory experiences, including all areas of teacher preparation from Primary K-4 and Middle 5-8 to the various secondary fields.

Describing her role as an "ambassador of good will" for MSU in her work with supervisory personnel in the 28 school districts it serves, Blair said, "Student teaching is a particularly exciting and challenging time for the student and I'm pleased to be part of that experience."

An assistant professor of education, Blair taught at University Breckinridge School prior to joining the elementary reading and special education faculty in 1982.

Since then she has served as a regional trainer for the Kentucky Beginning Teacher Internship Program, coordinator of clinical and field experiences and director of the Head Start Program. Her teaching specialty is children's literature.

A graduate of Elliott County High School, Blair earned her bachelor's and master's degrees from MSU. She serves on the executive board of the Kentucky Association of Teacher Educators and is a member of the Phi Delta Kappa Project Review Committee for District VIII.

Among her professional honors are a Phi Delta Gamma grant for a "Young Kentucky Authors Workshop" and the 1987 Phi Delta Kappa Service Award.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--The platinum-palladium photographs of Dick Arentz will be on display from Oct. 26 through Nov. 23 in the gallery, Claypool-Young Art Building on the Morehead State University campus.

This type of photography gets its name from the platinum and palladium coating on the paper used in the printing process.

Gallery hours are 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Additionally, the artist will present a public slide lecture on Thursday, Oct. 27, at 7:30 p.m. in Claypool-Young Room 111. A reception, which is free and open to the public, will follow.

Arentz, who lives in Flagstaff, Ariz., has exhibited works in most of the states in the U.S. and also in several foreign countries. His photographs are included in many permanent collections as well as university and corporate holdings.

Nationally-known for his works, Arentz has been recognized on numerous occasions. He is the 1988 recipient of the Isaac W. Bernheim Fellowship, 1986 recipient of the Edna Ridner Foundation Grant, and was selected by the Arts and Humanities Commission as one of the "Twenty Arizona Artists" for 1978.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Boy Scouts and their leaders from 12 counties will be guests of Morehead State University at the MSU-Austin Peay football game here on Saturday, Oct. 29.

"The Salute to Scouting" is intended to recognize Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, Varsity Scouts and Explorers throughout the Midland Trail District. Scouts and leaders in uniform will be admitted free to Jayne Stadium for the 1:30 p.m. kickoff in MSU's last home game of the season.

"The University is pleased to join with the Scout leaders in this area of Kentucky to salute the young men and the adult volunteers who are upholding the great traditions of Scouting," said MSU spokesman Keith Kappes.

Additional information is available from Midland Trail District Scout Executive Tom Cardiff at 784-2573 or from MSU at 783-2031.

Midland Trail includes Bath, Bourbon, Clark, Elliott, Harrison, Menifee, Montgomery, Morgan, Nicholas, Powell, Rowan and Wolfe counties.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Radio's most famous play, The War of the Worlds, was originally broadcast on Halloween Eve in 1938 by Orson Welles' Mercury Theatre.

This Halloween Eve, 50 years later, WMKY will present the Otherworld Media's 50th anniversary production of Howard Koch's famous science fiction radio thriller. The broadcast will air on 90.3 FM at 10 p.m. Halloween Eve, Sunday, Oct. 30, and again Halloween night at 9 p.m.

WMKY Program Director Daniel Picazo called The War of the Worlds original "the greatest Halloween prank ever. And, maybe, it was the first time that international society woke up and discovered that the new broadcast age had arrived," added Picazo. A new broadcast age has arrived once again with the 50th anniversary production.

The War of the Worlds 50th Anniversary Production stars Jason Robards as Professor Pierson, the main witness of a Martian invasion which starts in Grovers Mill, N.J., and threatens to destroy the world. The program is the first authorized new production of Koch's script since Welles brought it to the airwaves and made radio history 50 years ago. It is also the first radio drama ever to be recorded on location, like a movie, using a state-of-the-art portable digital recorder.

Otherworld Media's production of The War of the Worlds was produced by Judith Walcutt and directed by veteran radio dramatist Davis Ossman, a founding member of The Firesign Theatre. Sound design for the project was provided by Academy Award-winning designer Randy Thom whose credits include "Never Cry Wolf," "Apocalypse Now," "The Right Stuff," and "The Empire Strikes Back."

"This is one of the most ambitious radio productions ever done," said Thom. "It is certainly the most ambitious I've ever worked on. Welles used sound in a very sophisticated way for his time and his listeners, and to be true to that, we have to be as sophisticated as our time and our listeners. I like to think Welles would have welcomed our 'cinematic' approach to a piece he realized so brilliantly."

(MORE)

The War of the Worlds
2-2-2-2-2

Prior to recording the production, director Ossman worked with Koch to update the language of the original script. The names, places, and events have remained the same, but the military references, slang, news coverage style, etc. have been modernized so that the new production, while remaining true to the original, will sound current rather than like a nostalgia piece.

"The script is still a 'grabber' even after 50 years," said Ossman. "We want this new production to call people's attention to the power and magic that radio theatre still has, to the possibility of people once again turning to radio regularly for this kind of entertainment."

As Princeton astronomer Richard Pierson, Robards, an incomparable master of the stage and screen, will once again bring to the airwaves the role Welles made famous in 1938.

Comedian, actor, composer and talk-show host Steve Allen is featured as the New York network newsman who keeps broadcasting "to the last." The War of the Worlds also features legendary CBS radio newsman Douglas Edwards as a radio newscaster who provides informed commentary on the impending end of civilization.

Two of National Public Radio's foremost personalities, Scott Simon and Terry Gross, took a break from their regular network programs to join The War of the Worlds cast. Simon, anchor of NPR's Saturday "Weekend Edition" and himself a veteran "hot-spot" reporter, plays Carl Phillips, the newscaster who accompanies Professor Pierson to Grovers Mill, the sight of the first Martian landing. Gross, host of NPR's daily interview show "Fresh Air," plays a board operator.

The production was predominantly recorded on location at George Lucas' Skywalker Ranch in Marin County, Calif. Presented by WGBH Radio Boston, the program is made possible by grants from McGavren Guild Radio and the National Endowment for the Arts.

More information on WMKY's programming or on how to become a WMKY member is available by calling (606) 783-2001.
