FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.--The Morehead State University Foundation, Inc., has received a gift of land, valued at $30,000, from the Citizens Bank of Morehead.

The parcel, the former Farmer's Greenhouse property, is located at the intersection of U.S. 60 and Licking River Road.

A deed to the land was presented to MSU President C. Nelson Grote by Alpha M. Hutchinson, bank president and chief executive officer, and Robert D. Neff, executive vice president.

In the making the presentation, Hutchinson said:

"Morehead State University means so much to our community and its economy that we wanted to express our appreciation in a meaningful manner. Our growth is directly linked to that of Morehead State, so it is appropriate that we as business leaders demonstrate support."

MSU officials said that while they had no immediate plans for the property, it represented an excellent investment for future development by virtue of its location.

"MSU is truly fortunate to be located in a community where business leaders are so supportive of its efforts. It is through such generous support as this gift by Citizens Bank that we all benefit," MSU President C. Nelson Grote said. "We are grateful for this spirit of cooperation and are deeply appreciative of Citizens Bank for demonstrating its faith in MSU," he added.

Dec. 3, 1988

MOREHEAD, Ky.--"First Shots of Rage," an original play about an election day shooting in Rowan County which resulted in a county-wide feud, will be the next production by Morehead State University theatre students.

The first performances will be Dec. 9, at 8 p.m., and Dec. 10 and 11, at 2 p.m. Additional performances will be held Jan. 13-15 and Jan. 20-22, with 8 p.m. showtimes, except for the Sunday showings which will be 2 p.m. matinees.

The play, written by Dr. William J. Layne, MSU associate professor of theatre, and two students--L. Michael Breeze, Morehead junior, and Karen J. O'Baker, Geneva, Ohio, senior--will take place at the scene of the actual event, the old Rowan County Courthouse on Main Street in Morehead.

The audience will live through a few hours of election day 1886, according to Dr. Layne. The play will focus on the conflicting accusations as to whether the fatal bullet which killed Solomon Bradley was fired by Floyd Tolliver or John Martin.

"The authentic atmosphere of the courthouse will allow the audience to participate in the action of the play as the members become eye-witnesses to the events that began this famous feud," said Dr. Layne. "This experimental production will follow the actors through numerous scenes as they move about."

While kerosene heaters will be used to heat the courthouse, Dr. Layne recommends warm clothing and comfortable walking shoes for those attending the performances.

The cast of more than 30 will include the following in major roles: Dr. Ronald J. Fiel, professor of physical science, as Judge James Stewart; Dr. Travis Lockhart, associate professor of theatre, as Solomon Bradley; Terry M. Cain, Rowan County Public Library staff member, as John Martin; Durrell "Butch" Hamm, instructor of speech, as John Day, and Larry Breeze, Morehead realtor, as Doc White.

Also appearing in the production will be Edward Figgins, Brooksville graduate student; Maria M. Rosen, a former student from Harrison, Ohio; Tammy Scaggs, Cynthiana sophomore; Janelle McIntosh, Cynthiana freshman; Chance Pennington, Morehead sophomore; Darin Neal Blackburn, Elkhorn City junior; Kellie D. Crump, Cynthiana sophomore; Russell Dickson, Maysville freshman; David A. Dunaway, Harrison, Ohio, sophomore; J. W. Layne, Morehead junior;

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Eastern Kentucky folk art from Morehead State University's permanent Folk Art Collection is on display in Gallery Nine at the University of Illinois in Champaign now through Jan. 26.

The exhibit, entitled "Good & Evil," includes 45 works--paintings, sculptures, and painted furniture pieces by contemporary folk artists.

The display, made possible by a joint agreement between the two institutions, was curated by Barbara Kendrick, professor of painting, and Lisa Wainwright, doctoral student of art history, from the University of Illinois, and Adrian Swain, MSU's folk art curator.

This is the first time that any portion of MSU's permanent collection has traveled outside the state, according to Swain. "The display includes works by established folk artists and relative newcomers in the field," he said. "The show covers a wide range of subject matter with a strong religious representation which gave rise to the title."

Swain will present a slide lecture on the collection at the Krannert Art Museum in Champaign on Jan. 25.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--'Twas the night before Christmas and all through the land, every radio was singing with WMKY's Christmas programs!

This is Christmas 1988, and what better way to share this Christmas than to gather the family together around the radio, like in the old days, and enjoy 90.3 FM's Christmas specials?

"Normally, this is the coldest time of the year in terms of the weather," WMKY Music and Fine Arts Director Bill McIntosh said, "but in terms of what we feel in our hearts, it's the warmest time of the year. I think the Christmas programs we've chosen reflect that warmth."

To spark the Christmas spirit, WMKY presents some of the best loved Christmas dramas and stories, and something for virtually every music fan: classical, jazz, new age, folk music, and choral music.

"I think this year's lineup is probably the greatest variety of Christmas programs we've ever offered," McIntosh explained.

If jazz is your passion, tune in Friday, Dec. 23, at 9 a.m. for The Jazz Feeling, a show packed with vintage and contemporary renditions of familiar Christmas tunes by some of the best known jazz performers of the past and present. On that same Friday at 3 p.m., McIntosh will kick off the holiday weekend with selections from Handel's "Messiah" and Bach's "Christmas Oratorio," on Classical Favorites. At 5 p.m., National Public Radio's All Things Considered will present a radio drama, written by acclaimed children's author Daniel Pinkwater, and starring NPR on-air personalities.

Christmas Eve's lineup will begin at 3 p.m. with A Child's Christmas, which shows Christmas as seen through the eyes of children, with the works of Dylan Thomas and selections from other familiar and beloved literary classics. For many, it just wouldn't be Christmas without a choir performing favorite Christmas carols, and WMKY offers that too. At 8 p.m. Christmas Eve, listeners can sit back and enjoy choral, brass and organ music from the great cathedrals and churches of England, Europe and the United States on With Heart and Voice. Also, The Jazz Feeling will air again Christmas Eve at 10 p.m. The Next Noel, at 11 p.m. promises to be a treat for new age music fans, with refreshing treatments of traditional Christmas music.

WMKY Christmas

As you roll out of bed Christmas morning and begin celebration, tune in for Christmas Day Music at 6 a.m. with recorded live performances from the archives of Performance Today, as well as disc recordings.

A Child's Christmas will be repeated at 2 p.m. Christmas Day, and at 3 p.m. WMKY will present one of the best loved Christmas stories, Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol." The St. Olaf Christmas Festival enhances Christmas Day at 6 p.m. with the combined voices of five choirs and the St. Olaf College Orchestra. Produced in association with the Chopin Society, The Music Book of Christmas, airing 8 p.m. Christmas Day, features actors from the Old Globe Theater dramatizing the story of Christmas and recreating anecdotes about composers inspired by the Christmas tradition.

For folk fans, it's the Whole Earth Christmas, Christmas night at 10 p.m. The famous Paul Winter Consort, joined by Pete Seeger and others, will present a musical pageant for the winter solstice from New York's Cathedral of Saint John the Divine. Christmas Day music rounds out the evening.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--If it's better to give than to receive, some area residents will have a much happier holiday season this year.

A Morehead State University fraternity has collected a total of 2,046 food items, with an estimated value of more than $1,000, at its first annual Lambda Chi Alpha "Pantry Raid." The food will be distributed by the Christian Social Services Center to needy residents in the area.

The generosity of the people of Morehead was the key factor in making this a successful event, according to Dominick Yanchunas, MountainTop, Pa., junior, and president of the group. "It seems that the coldest months are the toughest times for people to make ends meet, and we were happy to use our resources to make this event happen," he said.

Members of the fraternity left grocery bags on the doorsteps of area residents on a Saturday (Dec. 10) with instructions to place non-perishable foods in the bags for pickup the next day. Goods were received from more than one-half of the households that were asked to contribute, Yanchunas noted.

The grocery bags were donated by local food stores. Domino's Pizza provided the group use of their vehicles to drop off and pick up the food bags.

The idea of a "Pantry Raid" came from the national organization and will be repeated next year, Yanchunas said.

Some 15 members of the fraternity participated in this activity. Bob Maze, Morehead junior, vice president of the group, was chairman of this event.

Lambda Chi Alpha, in existence on the MSU campus since 1969, raised $4,500 last spring for the Easter Seals drive with proceeds going to Cardinal Hill Hospital in Lexington.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University and WYMT-TV in Hazard have developed a unique relationship.

Eight of the 43 full-time employees, including the station manager, are MSU alumni.

Selecting qualified personnel is his goal when hiring employees, according to Wayne Martin, station manager, who has hired six of the eight since he moved into this position in November 1987. "The technical qualifications of the MSU students are outstanding; they have the ability to be creative and innovative in their work," he said.

Martin, a 1968 graduate of MSU, is responsible for personnel management and public relations among other duties. "The station provides the opportunity to 'get your feet wet' and obtain experience," he noted. "Those who don't have family ties, and are good at their work, move on to bigger stations."

Working with Martin at WYMT-TV are Ernestine Cornett (1971 graduate) of Hazard, executive assistant to Martin; Jeff Franklin (1981 graduate) of West Liberty, Big Sandy Bureau chief; Dwayne Imes (1988 graduate) of Ashland and Rhonda Wood (1984 graduate) of Augusta, production agents; Scott Mason (1987 graduate) of Georgetown, account executive, and Shari Short (who will receive a degree in May) of Hindman, morning news anchor.

In a business where the bottom line is dollars, Martin is cautious when selecting a new employee. "My confidence in graduates from MSU comes from my respect for the Communications Department and recommendations from its faculty members--and the students identify with this region.

"And it's extremely exciting to be involved in the initial steps of a young person's career," he continued.

Serving 25 counties of Eastern Kentucky, many of the same counties served by MSU; WYMT-TV strives to bridge the county-by-county communications gap that existed before its establishment in 1985, Martin noted.

"Before WYMT, everyone had to depend on Huntington, W.Va., Bristol, Tenn., or Lexington--depending on the part of the state they lived in--for their information," Martin commented. "We are able to provide services that were not previously available, even through local radio and newspapers."

WYMT-TV is "THE" news source for this region, Martin noted. "It gives a tremendous sense of responsibility, knowing the information you are broadcasting will affect the lives of so many people," he said. "The greatest challenge is grasping the vast magnitude and impact that the industry has on those it is trying to serve."

Martin had 19 years experience to prepare him for the challenges he faces each day. A native of Winchester, he taught high school business courses and coached basketball--nine seasons as head coach for MSU's Eagles--before joining WYMT in March 1987 as sales manager.

"Selling an institution to prospective students and selling advertising medium to clients are similar," Martin said. "This is the region I traveled while recruiting, so it's familiar territory to me."

"The pressure is equally as great in both professions, and the public is aware of your results," Martin said. "However, in this field, the highs and lows are more private in nature," he continued, smiling.

Martin and his team produce 85 percent of the commercials aired, compared to approximately 50 percent aired on Lexington television stations. In the last year, the station has produced 14 community pride shows from April to November, telecast high school football games, high school and college basketball games, and served as the advertising and production vehicle for local advertisers. Recently the station was hired as production crew for four football playoff games to be aired on KET.

WYMT-TV is owned by Kentucky Central Inc. which also owns Bluegrass Broadcasting and operates WKYT-TV and WVLK Radio in Lexington. A CBS affiliate, WYMT-TV operates from 6 a.m. to 1 a.m. weekdays with additional hours on weekends.

Dec. 20, 1988

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Former Gov. Louie B. Nunn, who stepped down the day before as chair of Morehead State University's governing board, reaffirmed his pledge of continued involvement in education at MSU's Winter Commencement Saturday, Dec. 17.

"I have a great concern for education," Nunn told the graduates, their friends and families and other well-wishers who packed MSU's Button Auditorium despite an early morning snow fall.

Some of the more than 1,500 in attendance watched the ceremonies over closed circuit television from seats in Button Drill Room.

Degrees were conferred on approximately 360 graduate and undergraduate candidates by MSU President C. Nelson Grote with nearly two-thirds of them present.

Nunn, whom Dr. Grote introduced as "higher education's friend as governor," said he had been critical of the schools in past, speaking harshly often in order to motivate them to do better.

"I have said that our school system has perpetrated a fraud on our nation, the parents, students and the schools in view of the number of functional illiterates that have been turned out," Nunn said.

He asked the audience to think about the results of a recent Gallup Poll on the 10 top issues in public schools, telling them that three possibly involved the education process, while the others involved the citizenry.

Those related to the education process itself included the difficulty of getting good teachers, poor curriculum or poor standards and large or overcrowded schools.

Citing the drug problem as one of the other seven issues, Nunn asked, "Where have we failed? The schools didn't create the problem."

Next on the list was discipline and he received applause when he recalled the days when parents told their children that teachers had a right to discipline them. "Now if you pick up a yardstick, someone is there ready to file suit."

The other issues included lack of funds, lack of parental interest, moral standards, student disinterest and drinking.

(MORE)

"Seven of the top 10 issues in education belong to we the people. We can not lay them at the doorstep of our universities or public schools," he said.

Also addressing the graduates was student speaker Linda S. Wheeler of Maysville, a high school dropout who received a Bachelor of Science degree in industrial technology and a two-year degree in machine tool technology.

Noting that the United States had lost the competitive edge it once held in business and industry, she said, "It is apparent that if American companies are to be competitive in a global business environment they must have qualified people."

Recalling that John F. Kennedy had said, "Our progress as a nation can be not swifter than our progress in education," Wheeler called for a "focus on education so that industry will have the qualified workforce it needs."

In his closing remarks, Dr. Grote told the graduates that they had dreamed and made that dream come true. "Now it is time to dream again, to set new goals," he said.

"Lifelong learning will be a critical element as we enter the 21st Century. Make that commitment now, for the quality of life you hope to have will depend on it," he urged.

The graduates were welcomed by MSU Alumni Association President Lisa Browning as new alumni and told that they would be the first class to receive a one-year complimentary active membership in the association.

Dec. 20, 1988

MOREHEAD, Ky.--A better understanding of difficulties encountered by aliens in the United States and a realization of how fortunate Americans are.

That's what the summer of 1988 brought to two Morehead State University ROTC students, who became the first cadets in the MSU program's history to go overseas for Cadet Troop Leadership Training (CTLT).

For Paris senior Beth Hensel and Brooksville junior Joey Todd, both ROTC cadet captains, the five weeks spent in Germany and Korea, respectively, not only provided a deeper insight into their future roles as Army officers, but also a look at cultures different from their own.

Hensel not only was the first CTLT officer to be assigned to the Quartermaster unit of the 503rd Forward Support Battalion in Kirchgoens, Germany, but also her battalion's only female.

Hensel said she spent most of her time observing how the battalion was run, while trying to understand what enlisted personnel expected from their commanding officers.

Majoring in English and minoring in Spanish with a background in German and Russian, Hensel is looking at a minimum of four years on active duty with the Army and would like to work in military intelligence, perhaps as a linguist.

While discovering that she was perceived as a future officer and given due respect in her battalion by both the enlisted men and her fellow officers, Beth found herself at a disadvantage in a foreign country and culture.

"Even though I'd had German, I wasn't fluent. I could pick up bits and pieces, but that was it. I felt illiterate for the first time in my life," said Hensel. "I have a better understanding of how others feel coming into our country when they don't understand the language. I think we as Americans could readjust our attitudes in relation to our treatment of them," she said.

One highpoint of her summer experience was perhaps a once in a lifetime experience--visiting the East German border at Checkpoint Romeo.

"Not too many regular Army personnel get this opportunity," Hensel said. "The chances of me ever seeing it again in my Army career are slim, so I really appreciated this."

And there was one other special moment for Hensel, whose grandfather emigrated from northern Germany. "My parents have always dreamed about going to Germany and especially to Heidelberg," she explained. "So I went to Heidelberg for a weekend, where I visited a pub and ordered a beer in Germany for my dad. I called him then and told him."

Todd, who served two years in the Army before enrolling at MSU, was assigned as a platoon leader with the 304th Signal Battalion. After attending commanding officer's briefings each morning where he learned what his platoon was expected to accomplish that day, he would brief his platoon's senior NCO and see that assignments were carried out.

"I was given the opportunity to lead enlisted men," Todd explained. "My previous service as an enlisted man paid off, because it gave me a perspective on both sides. I was able to become a liaison, bridging the gap between the officers and enlisted men," Todd added.

Looking at a military career for himself, Todd also said he'd recommend that anyone in the ROTC program serve at least four years. "You gain so much from it, including good management experience as an officer that prospective employers recognize," he added.

"I like the military life. It's a good way to travel and experience a lot that you could never do in most other jobs," continued Todd, who would like to be assigned to active duty in a field artillery branch after earning his degree.

"For me, the training experience took on new meaning. In Korea, constant enemy threat is a reality when the Demilitarized Zone line is only a few feet from where you go to sleep," he said.

While in Korea, the social science and secondary education major toured several Korean War battle sites, including Chipyong-Ni and Inchon where Gen. Douglas MacArthur made his surprise landing. At Chipyong-Ni, Todd recalled, you could actually see fox holes where the men had dug in and with the help of a metal detector he picked up shell and hull fragments.

His travels, Todd said, "made me realize for the first time in my life how lucky I am to be an American. The people are so poor. They could live off of what we waste as I see it. With the exception of the major cities, the country is underdeveloped," he said.

Todd also experienced the Korean hostility toward Americans firsthand following an overnight stay in Seoul. No cabs would pick him up in the city. Only after he had walked outside the city, did one stop and take him back to camp. "That was because the driver knew there wasn't anyone around to see him pick up an American," Todd said.

CTLT is offered to only 20 percent of all ROTC cadets and is designed to give the participants actual experience as an officer.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.--On Friday, Dec. 23, National Public Radio's All Things Considered will present its second annual Christmas pageant on WMKY public radio, 90.3 FM. The pageant is an original radio play written by acclaimed children's book author Daniel Pinkwater.

The special holiday production will feature NPR hosts and reporters, including Susan Stamberg, Bob Edwards, Robert Seigel, Scott Simon, Lynn Neary, Linda Wertheimer, Nina Totenberg and Cokie Roberts. All Things Considered airs on WMKY at 5 p.m.

In keeping with the holiday spirit, Pinkwater's play is a story for children loosely adapted from his book, "Wizard Crystal." A slightly morose wizard searches for a magic crystal which he believes will bring him happiness. On the way, he encounters a new-age shopowner, a wilderness rabbi, and singing frogs. Competition for the leading roles is said to be stiff.

Last Christmas, Pinkwater charmed listeners with a radio play adapted from his book "Blue Moose." It starred NPR's senior news analyst Daniel Schorr as a blue moose who befriends a despondent restaurant owner. The laconic blue moose makes a return appearance in this production.

"Put some colored lights and egg nog in a news studio and something strange happens to serious radio journalists," said associate producer Ira Glass, director of the play. "It's like making them wear wigs on the air."

Pinkwater's irreverent and whimsical commentaries are a popular feature on All Things Considered. He has written more than 50 children's books, including "Lizard Music" and "The Hoboken Chicken Emergency."

More information on WMKY's programming, or on how to become a WMKY member, is available by calling (606) 783-2001.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University's campus becomes home for many second generation students, but for the Holbrook family of Morehead, the campus is home to a fifth generation of students.

Michelle Decourley, Ironton, Ohio, junior, and Kristina (Kris) Holbrook, Morehead freshman, are carrying on a family tradition.

The students' great great grandfather, Dan Holbrook, was a mathematics professor at the Morehead Normal School and Teachers College in the early 1900's. Holbrook Hall in married student housing was named in his honor.

Their great grandfather, Roy E. Holbrook, was a graduate of Morehead Teachers College and a basketball coach at University of Breckinridge. Of his five children, Helen Frances (Michelle's grandmother) and Harold Edward (Kris' grandfather) were among the offspring.

A former cheerleader at MSU, Helen Holbrook married Touissant Parard, also an MSU student. Of their two daughters, Vicki Gail enrolled at MSU where she met and married Ernest Decourley, a member of the Eagle football team. Michelle is the second of their three children.

Kris' grandfather, Harold Edward Holbrook, began his college career in pre-dentistry at MSU but later transferred to the University of Kentucky to complete his program of study. He and his wife, the former Jane Young, reside in Morehead where he is a dentist. Their son, Harold Edward (Eddie) and his wife, the former Janie Allen, attended MSU. Kris is the oldest of their four children.

The students have known each other through the years, having attended the same family reunions, but say they were never pressured by family members to carry on the heritage.

Interest in a particular program influenced Michelle to choose MSU. "For me, it was the right choice," she said. "The school was small enough to know a lot of people, but big enough to see different people every day."

A graduate of Ironton High School, she is pursuing a degree in dietetics. "But college is more than books and study," Michelle said. "You need to get out and meet people."

(MORE)

This philosophy is something Michelle practices. In addition to 15 to 18 hours of classes each semester, she is corresponding secretary for Cardinal Key, treasurer of Gamma Beta Phi and the Equestrian Team, and attends Baptist Student Union functions.

Because she liked being involved, she became a resident adviser in her hall, Mignon Tower. "I enjoy leadership roles," she said. "This gives me the opportunity to really help others."

Getting involved is advice shared by Kris. "College is different than high school, and while studying counts, one should get to know as many people as possible," she said.

For Kris, making friends came easy as a member of the Lady Eagle cheerleading squad. "I have met so many people that I would not have known otherwise," she stated. "It's such a good feeling when I walk down the street and people stop to say 'Hi.'"

A graduate of Rowan County Senior High School where she was a member of the cheerleading squad for four years, Kris is accustomed to the regimen that accompanies any sport. Her schedule averages 10 hours a week of practices and performances.

"College cheerleading is such a different experience than high school," she added. "The pressure of competition is not there, and you can always make new friends."

A business and accounting major, Kris has worked at a local flower shop throughout the semester. She believes she made the right choice in attending college at MSU and is planning for her second semester of activities.

"I am one of the lucky ones," Kris said. "I can go home to a hot meal and a quiet place to study at any time."

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Two-and-a-half hours of sensational, nonstop, live jazz will usher in the New Year on WMKY in the 1988 American Jazz Radio Festival New Year's Eve Party. The party airs on 90.3 FM, member supported radio, at 10 p.m., Saturday, Dec. 31.
