'Golds' Beat 'Blues' In Football Game At Jayne Stadium

Morehead Apparently Will Have Improved Eleven Next Year

That the Morehead State Teachers College Eagles will be stronger on the gridiron than they were last year was fairly well demonstrated here last Friday afternoon when "Blues" and "Golds" picked eleven battles at Jayne stadium, a blazing sun to close two months of intensive spring workouts.

The "Golds" emerged with a 4-6 victory, the difference being that Glendon Stanley booted a perfect placement for extra point while French Hammond's kick proved the end of the game which would have tied the score was blocked.

The play of both teams was necessarily slowed down by heat, but the two teams nevertheless showed enough power and drive to justify Elia Johnson's kick prediction that Morehead would be stronger this fall than they were last year although they lost Reynolds, all-KIAC fullback has dropped out of school.

Perhaps the two outstanding performances of the season were by Elia Johnson and Glendon Stanley, Junior, a back on the winning team.

A crowd of three thousand persons, the largest ever to see a spring-training game here turned out for the match. A large part of this group which overflooded Jayne Stadium consisted of High School students here for the institution's High School Day.

Morehead To Hold 4-H Club Meeting

College Grounds To Be Site Of Gathering Next August

Preparations are being made to hold a 4-H Senior Class Day and a 4-H Club Meeting at Morehead State Teachers College during the first week in August this year. Approximately 300 4-H Club members and leaders will attend the camp.

The camp district includes Montgomery, Bath, Rowan, Carter, Greenup, Lincoln, Mason, Fleming, Nicholas, Robertson and Bracken counties.

The camp will be in charge of Elia Johnson from the State 4-H Club office and the county agents from each of the eleven counties and the home demonstration agent from Rowan County. They will be assisted by at least 25 4-H Club leaders from the eleven counties.

The boys and girls registered are eligible to attend the camp. Facilities available at the Morehead State Teachers College make this an outstanding location for a 4-H Club camp.

The program of the camp is made up of educational and recreational activities. Each evening there will be a resper service conducted by ministers from the eleven counties. The singing will be led by Rev. B. H. Kaeze of Morehead.

Prof. H. C. Haggan will have charge of arrangements as the college representative and will assist County Agent Chas. L. Gelf and the 4-H District Department in making local plans.

Diamond Ball Game Planned To Increase Fund

"A circus of fun and frolic" would be a good name to apply to the diamond ball game that will be staged out at Jayne Stadium Wednesday afternoon, May 18, with a bunch of business and professional men, aided and abetted by faculty members, versus a College club.

The game will be played to what is expected to be a record crowd of 4,000 to be a half-hour more-or-less in Morehead with Mayor Warren G. Lippin declaring it as such in a proclamation. All proceeds will go as a community donation toward the crippled children's drive. Admission prices, according to M. S. Bowne, in charge of arrangements will be one or more pieces of silver or currency.

"Nickels will not count as silver, unless two are more are dropped in the till," Mr. Bowne added.

2,500 Visit Morehead College Campus At Annual High School Day Exercises

A crowd that doubled expectations of administrators of the Morehead State Teachers College turned out last Friday for the institution's initial High School Day.

Approximately 2,500 high school students, coming from practically every county in eastern and central Kentucky were guests of the institution. Although no absolute check was made on the number that attended the festivities, the college fed over 2,200 at one meal, while some of the visitors probably didn't eat in the cafeteria.

Jayne Stadium which seated 5,000 was over-crowded for the practice football game, which was played under clear skies and a hot sun. Administrators at the college were unanimous in their belief that the first annual High School Day proved to be the most successful advertising stunt that has ever been executed here. It has high school students who are prospective members of the student-body at the College, an opportunity to get an insight into the institution; and a chance to see the Morehead plant.

Highlights Friday were the football game, the annual May Day Festival at which President H. A. Babb crowned Miss Helen Puck as Queen, a circus of gymnastics supervised by the departments of physical education, exhibitions in swimming and diving, a tree picture show and a dance. The day was crowded with activities for all of the visitors.

All of the activities were provided without charge by the College. Meals were served visitors without charge to them in the College cafeteria.

Morehead High-Pagant Set For Today

The Morehead High School will give its outstanding social event of the year today with the annual spring pageant, titled, "The Parade of Nations."

The Queen of Nations will be crowned by Audrey Hall; the King by Earl Maxey and the dubious title of "Queen of Rhythm" by Patsy Baker.

Mrs. Beulah Williams is the director of the original play. Costumes were designed by the Home Economics Department under the direction of Mary Alice Calver.

The highlight of the performance will be the appearance of the toy band of the Navy and Liberty Dances of the United States will be another attractive feature.

Absence Of Blanks Keeps Voters From Registering Here

State Refuses To Furnish Forms And Court Lacks Authority To Buy

Whether Rowan Countians who have not previously registered to vote will have an opportunity to register and participate in the August primary was placed in doubt here today.

About 50 County Clerk C. V. Alfrey wrote Attorney General Hubert Meredith as follows: "Please forward me 500 registration blanks at once as I have a large number of people wanting to register, and I have asked your office a couple of times for these blanks and have not heard from you in regard to same."

E. F. Purdy, Assistant Attorney General, answered this letter as follows: "This department has no more registration blanks and the Legislature did not make any appropriation with which to buy another supply. I suggest you get your E. F. Purdy to furnish these blanks..."

The fly in the ointment appeared when County Judge J. E. Poffey and County Clerk Alfrey pointed out that section 1486B of the Kentucky Statutes set out that "... printing blanks and forms shall be printed and provided for the Commonwealth and shall be paid out of the State treasury."

It is doubtful if the fiscal court will make an appropriation to buy the blanks, inasmuch as they have no legal right to make this expenditure and to furnish these blanks... out that voters could not be registered on any other forms.

County Clerk Alfrey has already been in to register, but have been unable to do so. Mr. Alfrey estimated that there would be 300 desiring to register between now and August.

Voters wishing to change their registration may do so, since this does not require a new blank. Mr. Alfrey set out.

Weed Quota Is Set At 725 Acres Here

County Committee Completes Work Under Tobacco Referendum Plan

The tobacco acreage allotted to Rowan County for 1938 is 725 acres. This acreage has been assigned to Rowan County farms that have been producing tobacco in the past. The County Committee, whose duty it is to assign this acreage has completed its work.

The county office is preparing forms for each acre to be planted, indicating the amount of tobacco he may grow this year and they receive the largest benefits from the 1938 Agricultural Conservation Program. These forms will be in the hands of the growers by Monday.

Acres that may be assigned to new producers' farms have not been given this year. This allocation will be made in the next month. New producers are planning to raise approximately 300 acres of tobacco. The acreage that has been given to tobacco farmers for this year probably will be much lower than the 300 acres planned.

The county office is preparing forms for each acre to be planted, indicating the amount of tobacco he may grow this year and they receive the largest benefits from the 1938 Agricultural Conservation Program. These forms will be in the hands of the growers by Monday.

Son, Thought Dead Returns To Mother

Puzzle Now Is Who Was Youth Buried As That Boy

This is a Mother's Day story that is odd to everyone but Mrs. Phoebe Fiore. To her it is a "happy day" and she is smiling back from the dead—the boy she thought was dead a year ago.

Donald Fiore, 15, walked into his stepfather's tailor shop on the eve of Mother's Day. He said, "Hello, Pop," and walked on into a year apartment where the family lived.

"Hello, Donald," Donald called. Mrs. Fiore looked up. Her face whitened, and she faintly into his arms.

For Mrs. Fiore and Raymond Fiore buried a youth they thought was Donald a year ago. Mrs. Fiore had gone to Olive Hill, Ky., to help in the home of Donald's uncle. She had been shot to death during a kissing game at a party there. She identified the body of a boy of Donald's age and build as that of her son who had run away, by scars on the leg and forehead.

Donald told of having gone out "to the woods" with his gun away in February, 1936, at the age of 13. He hitch-hiked to California, then worked in Florida on citrus groves and later on in South Carolina farm. He became homesick, and planned a Mother's Day surprise at his home. He had killed his parents thought him dead.

Now, the Fiore wonder whose son he is.

Spending - Lending Bill Is Introduced

Roosevelt Introduces Measure To Aid Business Recovery

A bill embracing President Roosevelt's new $2,194,425,000 spending-lending recovery program was introduced in the House this week. It will be largely in the form of a bill to be introduced by the administration before the Senate.

The bill will provide for the $2,194,425,000 for the use of the recovery drive. Likewise, unlike previous New Deal anti-depression funds, the bill does not appropriate the money to individual agencies and does not in blank check form to the White House.

Mr. Roosevelt was told by his Congressional leaders that there would be little opposition to the program provided the money was earmarked and he made no objections. The Chief Executive will largely be made in funds since most will be dispensed by agencies responsible to the White House.

The bill is largely in the form of a bill to be introduced by the administration before the Senate.

Woman, Three Men Nabbed By Agents

Charged In Riley's Court With Making Of Liquor Loans

Three men and one woman were arraigned before United States Commissioner J. W. Riley here during the week charged with illegal sale of liquor. The charges were made by Federal Agents who confiscated three stills and quantities of whiskey and beer.

Vison Vance and M. A. Vance, both of White Oak, Morgan County, were held in Jackson court. Their appearance in Federal Court at Jackson. Officers confiscated a 50-gallon still allegedly belonging to Vance.

Pearl Davis, White Oak, executed a like bond on charges of possessing non-tax paid whiskey. She was held in Jackson court.

Milford Vance, of Bruin, Elliott County, charged with manufacturing, failed to execute bond and was remanded to the Catlettsburg jail to await Federal court trial.

Luther Roberts, of near Soldier, charged with manufacturing and possession filled a $500 bond for his appearance at Catlettsburg.

Officers said they confiscated a 50-gallon still, whiskey and a considerable amount of mash at his place.

Governor Swings Through East Ky.

Chandler Making Vigorous Campaign In Senatorial Battle

The second leg of Governor A. B. "Happy" Chandler's barnstorming tour, preliminary to his state-wide speaking tour in his campaign for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate found him invading the mountain and eastern Kentucky country.

Earlier in the week the governor had carried his good will invasion into the second and fourth congressional districts. Tuesday he was greeted by the voters in Larue, Harlan and Hart Counties in the fourth district. Tuesday found him in Barren, Edmonson, and Warren counties. The latter two being in the second congressional district.

Wednesday he was again in the second district making rapid jumps from Hart County to Edmonson county. Thursday he spent the day in Daviess County where at Owensboro he inaugurated his barnstorming there in the City's new ball park.

Tuesday he will be in a park, game preserve and reforestation project in the breaks of the Big Sandy.

Incomes For FSA Farmers Are High

Fact That Government Assistance Proves Fly Prevalent By Capitalization

While the average cash incomes of all farmers in this five-state region (Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia and North Carolina) fell off in 1937 as compared with 1936, cash incomes of families farming under the regular rural rehabilitation supervised loan program of the Farm Security Administration held their own or showed a slight increase, according to figures released by the Farm Security Administration of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Average cash income of all farms.

MOREHEAD THIS WEEK

Forty-five members of the Elan family gathered at White Oak in Morgan County last Sunday to pay tribute to Mr. Elan.

At the gathering was the first 400 of the people who were born in 1914 in standing around the table and eating instead of sitting down. A large, possibly decorated table, furnished by Mr. and Mrs. McKinley Elan was the place for the tables. The gathering was engraved "L. C. Elan" and "Frances Nickell" with the dates "1914" and "1918."

"We are gathered today to pay tribute and honor our parents' 40th anniversary," said L. C. Elan, of Clearfield, in opening a brief talk. "Words cannot describe the appreciation we all have for the 44 years of toil and labor that they have devoted themselves in in order to make our cup fuller."

L. C. Elan sketched the family history, pointing to the fact that there were nine children, one child deceased, 49 living grand-children and 18 living great-grand-children.

Parnell Martindale, who was the youngest of the family history last week when they returned his home and stole $50 in silver from his bed-side has offered a reward of $5 to anyone who gives the return of a bunch of keys and a bank book which were taken. Martindale didn't care so much about losing the money, he states, as about the keys and bank book.

A road in every section of Rowan County is the aim of Judge L. E. Poffey and he doesn't care whether Alfrey or Chandler and the State Administration or Alben Barkley and the Federal Administration builds them. Just now Mr. Poffey isn't interested in votes, but rather in roads which won't cost the county anything.

The largest number of guests the Morehead State Teachers College ever had was on hand Friday at annual High School Day. The institution fed more than 2,200 visitors, while some of them probably didn't partake in the free eats that were passed out. There seems no question but that High School Day at Morehead was a successful and the enterprising that will be carried out each year. It was one of the best advertising stunts that the school has had in many a day.

You may note an absence in the news of an moon- (Continued on page 4)

Thursday Morning, May 12, 1938. WHEN THE PRINTER IS TO BLAME

Every writer knows the annoyance of misprints. While among the many vexations of a life, can be kinder than that of the author who, having with infinite care fashioned a sublime sentence, finds it, by the simple chance of a letter, degraded into the ridiculous.

It seems indeed almost as hard to avoid misprints as to root out the tares of the field. Rightly does the Revised Version of the Bible bear its name, for I have heard that its proofs were revised more than a score of times.

There is no doubt that, sometimes, the printer is to blame. I have had not a few of my most careful corrections ignored "because of misprints." Some of these errors are very curious.

Very great men have suffered in a similar way. Some think that, in the first lines of L'Allegre, "Of Cerberus and blackest Midnight born, Milton really wrote Erebus."

Probably the Pulitzer Prize awards in letters and journalism will cause less controversy this year than usual. Chief popular interest will attach, most likely, to the award to Thornton Wilder's play, "Our Town."

Despite all the abuse which the compositor has received, there is one class of men who owe him unstinted gratitude. Had the first folio of Shakspere contained no misprints, of Keats not occasionally proof-reader, had the eye of Keats not occasionally failed, where would our commentators be?

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP OF FOOTBALL

Have a thought for Haliback Snaphops of Midwest State. He is being not only hit by the line against old Mizzeno, but is performing instead "an essential governmental function."

Federal taxes. From that you can see why the question has had to go to the highest tribunal. There is involved a possible extension of the same doctrine under which income from state and municipal bonds are exempt from state income taxes and the salaries of federal officials are exempt from state income taxes.

But the suit involves more than mere legalisms. Peering only a little way ahead, one can discern some of the heads of the public ownership problem. Relief of federal taxes on their receipts, the athletic associations of state institutions would enjoy in effect a substantial subsidy over their less fortunate competitor colleges and universities privately endowed.

Perhaps it has taken something like this to arouse us to the sinister inroads, if such they be, of socialized management in such a field of individualistic enterprise and development has led to problems such as those cited by educators at a session of the Eastern Public Speaking Conference in New York the other day.

TRICKS OF THE TONGUE

Speech is an increasingly vital force in the affairs of men. Radio has intensified the range and power of the spoken word. The air waves are used day and night by those who have something to "sell," anything from a commercial product to a political theory, or maybe themselves. Wars are being waged with words between factions and between nations.

The protest could be carried even farther. Not all those who wish to learn how to make friends in order to influence people go in for public speaking. Many tricks of the tongue are used in the art of salesmanship.

Certainly there is need for greater alertness than ever before not only lest the individual be deceived by words designed to sway unwary listeners but that he himself should speak no guile.

THE PULITZER PRIZE AWARDS

Probably the Pulitzer Prize awards in letters and journalism will cause less controversy this year than usual. Chief popular interest will attach, most likely, to the award to Thornton Wilder's play, "Our Town."

The awards to Prof. Paul H. Buck for "Road to Reason, 1865-1900," a study of the healing of wounds of the American Civil War; and to Odeli Shepard of Brown James for their biographies of Abraham Lincoln and of Andrew Jackson, respectively, will be accepted as recognition of scholarly research and interpretation.

A NEW SOCIETY

The universal urge to kindness toward animals extends to birds and fish as well. This instinct of man's kindness to all creatures is dramatized in two bits of current news. In Milwaukee a man sold his house, Lot 2 of the property before giving new house. Low over the property before giving new house.

Rudi asks Ann's true identity and Giulio has only to deliver it to ruin her. Now after dinner, she and Rudi are to leave and be married.

CHAPTER ELEVEN
At the door of the dining room, Rudi was waiting for her. There was an imperceptible falter in his step as he saw her gown. Then, recovering, he kissed her hand in greeting.

"Annie, it's been a whole day," "Darling, it's everything arranged."

"We leave for Locarno right after dinner." He pressed her arm. "Maddelena told the Contessa and the Admiral. Be nice to her dear. Understand how she feels?"

Her eyes were a trifle edgier. "If she's nice to me. If she understands how I feel."

"She won't, Maddelena couldn't be any other way." Rudi said.

Ann wanted to make a retort but she wasn't quite certain of what to say. Then they were at the table and from everyone came a disinterested, determined rush of words.

"Well," the Contessa drawled in her own most hateful way, "how striking you look, my dear."

The little burst of sound was over and there was a self-conscious pause. Then Maddelena held out her hand. "I want to wish you the best of everything, Annie. And I hope you'll be very happy."

Ann nodded, her throat dry.

"Thank you, Maddelena. I— I hope we'll always be good friends." There was a rather grateful scramble for seats. Then starting every one began to talk a once and when the conversation again died, the silence seemed appalling. Two waiters moved the soup plates and everyone eyed the maneuverer intently.

The Admiral decided that this was the moment to lighten up the atmosphere. "Perhaps at this time I could propose a toast to the bride and groom."

"Later Admiral, please," the Contessa said. "Suddenly, there came the sound of distant, plaintive singing. "The peasant music," Maddelena whispered and then, out of the ensemble, the poignant voice of Giulio's flute was heard in all its melodic clarity. "It's the first night in so long that Giulio has played with the others."

"He sounds very sad," Rudi said whimsically. "And I know why." Ann's response was extremely sharp. "Why?"

Rudi smiled. "Because every night in Trenton. He danced with Anne at the Festa, Maddelena said."

"How nice," the Contessa observed. "Too bad I missed seeing you."

Ann's eyes glittered. There was such a crowd on the floor. Then her limbs grew weak for the peasant music had faded away but the flute was continuing to play. And it was coming closer—closer.

"Funny, Giulio seems to have left the others," Maddelena said, startled. "He's playing alone now."

"Coming this way, too, from the sound," the Admiral commented. "The feast within her, Ann burst out, "He shouldn't be allowed on the hotel grounds."

Rudi started at her. "Annie." "He shouldn't." She surveyed the shocked faces and said thinly, "I'm sorry. I've got such a headache. All this excitement—"

"Of course," Maddelena murmured. "Perhaps you'd better go to your room. Rudi—"

"But the music had stopped. Listening. Ann sank back in relief.

lef. "I wouldn't think of breaking up the party," she said and turned to the Admiral with a strange burning conviction. "You know, Admiral Monti, it's odd I don't remember you. And you say you were such a good friend of hers." She had teased him with this reminder ever since that first day when he had sent the note to her table.

Now however, she barely heard her own words for his glance was riveted on the figure of Giulio who stood in the lobby at the main desk.

"You were such a little bit of a thing," the Admiral said solemnly. "That was safe, he thought. All little girls had once been tiny tots. And without realizing why, he suddenly felt sorry for Anne Vivaldi. She seemed so strained and haggard. Probably a bad consequence for having taken Rudi from Maddelena. Ah, these young people. Well, when they wear old like himself they find that even love didn't matter so much. "You were a sort of miniature of what you are now, Anne."

"And what am I now?" Ann asked absently. An alert little bellboy had come to the desk, receiving the telegram that Giulio had left, he started briskly across the lobby toward the dining-room. "I want to know about myself as the approaching boy. He was bringing a telegram that would like Rudi from her, would send her back to the waterfront bar but her eyes did not waver. "The answer that pleases." "A perfect little lady."

"Yes." "And I wore the nicest of clothes," she turned to them all, "made especially for me, even as a little girl I wore my hair long and in braids. "The Admiral, "And I was a well-mannered little girl, wasn't I?"

"The answer that pleases." "A perfect little lady," she repeated mechanically. Her lips parted in an odd smile as if at some private, bitter joke.

Maddelena looked at her wondering. "You speak of yourself so strangely. Almost as one would speak of the dead." The Contessa's voice was low and one would have said that a harsh kind of pity dwelt within it. "Or of someone who had never lived."

And then the bellboy was there. "A telegram," Rudi smiled at Ann. "I'll bet it's for you darling. From Count Arma."

child. "Anni said, "what I looked like, the clothes I wore and the things I did."

She was hanging on the Admiral's words, though her eyes were fixed on the messenger boy. So fear becomes inhibited when disaster is truly inevitable. See how calmly, how even with interest, the very old man regards death. Ann's eyes did not waver from Ann's smile was set. "No. It's for the Contessa." Looking at her sharply, the Contessa ripped open the envelope. The crackling of the paper was like a machine gun barrage. "How did you know?" the Contessa asked and that was all. In a growing, roaring silence the telegram was passed around the table.

One look at Rudi's face told Ann all she needed to know. There was horror in it and relief—the relief of a man who has escaped the dreadful fate of marrying beneath him.

Ann rose slowly. "You needn't get up please, any of you. Yes, it's all true."

"You should have known you couldn't stay with it," the Contessa said evenly. "I missed by only a very few minutes."

Maddelena touched her hand impulsively. "You poor darling."

"Don't feel sorry for me Maddelena," Ann said. "You should hate me for what I've done to you but you won't. You're the finest of my eyes know. Too good for Rudi but you're in love with him. I guess love makes you do crazy things."

"Annie—" Rudi's eyes were averted from hers. "You're not broken hearted, Rudi any more than I am. You want to marry Maddelena. I've known that ever since you asked me to marry you. A miracle saved you this time but if you've got any sense at all there won't be a next time." Her next words were for the Contessa. "You're very high class Contessa and very smart. But I'm just as smart. Remember that." And finally there was the Admiral. "You're very high class Admiral and very smart of honor for him. "Will you ever forget how you used to dawdle me on your knees?"

Then, abruptly, she walked away. The Contessa muted, gazing after her. "I don't know why I waited that telegram. That dress should have told me."

The Admiral too was staring after her. "I don't know why I waited that telegram. That dress should have told me."

Walking through the lobby Ann's legs took on a faster tempo. Quickly, quickly she moved and then as she reached the stairs, she broke into a run like a frightened child.

And finally she was inside her room. "Marial Maria," she cried and crumpling there on the floor at the feet of the serving woman, she burst into convulsive sobs. (To be continued.)

Mediator between EAST and WEST

In the State of Virginia of 1847, east was east and west was west, with the Blue Ridge mountains looming between. But the means to union were already taking form.

Q That was a great year in Chesapeake and Ohio history, for its predecessor company—the little 49 mile Louisa Railroad—made two important decisions: to tunnel the Blue Ridge at Rockfish Gap and to undertake all operations on its line. This second decision involved the purchase of equipment, and it was a proud day for the Louisa's owners when they inspected their first locomotives.

Q The stockholders were told by the president, Colonel Edmund Fontaine:

"... a contract was made for three engines, two of which have arrived... the third is on the way... We trust the day is not far distant when this noble machine shall become the mediator between the East and the West... break down the wall of partition between eastern and western interests, and proclaim eternal union between the mountains and the lowlands."

Q No one gazing at the 14½-ton locomotive on that June day of 1847 could imagine how successfully the dream would be realized... by the truly "noble machines" of today—the powerful 400-ton Chesapeake and Ohio engines that speed passengers and freight across two mountain ranges from the Atlantic seaboard to the Middle West, thus helping daily to maintain "the eternal union between the mountains and the lowlands."

Modern Teaching Is Subject Of Attack By Carnegie Tech

Say Teachers Know Less Than The Students They Teach

Exploding and letting loose another blast in its drive to make U. S. higher education higher, the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching found last week that American colleges are graduating high school teachers who know less than the students they teach.

Basing its charges on the results of a ten-year study of high school and college students in Pennsylvania, the report urges drastic reforms in the training of teachers. The report says that the majority of the prospective teachers being trained in our colleges "exhibit inferiority in nearly every department of study; and they show up badly when compared with the same tests with students four years below them who represent the educational problems with which they must be prepared to deal."

The report broadens its attack with the following statement: "Both state subsidies and the income from endowments today are flowing in large amounts to individuals who might be replaced by more appropriate investments."

"Much of our present failure to provide further education for high school graduates is due not so much to lack of resources as to lack of precision in our knowledge of their abilities."

The present "pseudo-standards" of time and effort should be abandoned in education, the report maintains.

"The paramount standard," it concludes, "is one which the institution holds unflinching not before the student, but before itself; it is none other than the standard of suitability which marks the treatment accorded to a student by the institution in view of his ascertained character and peculiar needs."

Incomes For FSA Farmers Are High

mers in the region was $638 in 1936 and $543 in 1937, or a drop of 932. The average cash income of FSA farmers in the region was $417 in 1936 and $466 in 1937. The figures were taken from a study of crop yields and farm incomes by W. C. LaRue, FSA Regional Farm Management Adviser, who pointed out that the average of all farm incomes showed a decrease in 1937 as compared with 1936, due to a drop in farm prices, but that FSA farmers, by improving their farming methods, were able to keep their incomes up in spite of reduced prices.
Under the FSA rural rehabilitation program low income farmers are helped to make a better living and improve their incomes by means of credit and supervision in good farming methods. The figures do not include produce consumed at home, it was pointed out.

Similar figures by states were given out as follows:
Kentucky cash receipts to all farmers, 1936, $658; 1937, $526; FSA farmers 1936, $462; 1937, $533.
Tennessee cash receipts to all farmers, 1936, $725; 1937, $666; FSA farmers 1936, $409; 1937, $400.
West Virginia cash receipts to all farmers, 1936, $497; 1937, $443; FSA farmers 1936, $688; 1937, $624.
North Carolina cash receipts to all farmers, 1936, $969; 1937, $798; FSA farmers 1936, $423; 1937, $522.

Success story of the week is that of C. Bedell Monroe, youthful president of Pennsylvania Central Airlines, who is celebrating the 12th anniversary of the airline.

Aviation's youngest major executive, Monroe, is a pioneer in commercial aeronautics. Universities Battle For Beauty Honors

News dispatches say Northwestern University and the University of Chicago are still battling over the most beautiful co-ed honors and the former has won the first round.

There hasn't been a really beautiful woman around here since Little Egypt reared her skirts on the world's fair midway in 1893.

That started a hot argument, and the appointment of a beauty judging committee—and the committee working from photographs selected Joy Hawley, a Northwestern co-ed as the most beautiful on the Maroon Midway.

HOW HE BECAME A RADIO STAR

by LANNY ROSS

I was raised in the brilliant glow of footlights. Mother was a pianist and father a Shakespearean actor.

However, even as a youngster I worried under the high tension of theatre life. It was I for a quieter kind of existence. Still I wanted to be in the thick of events.

In time I gained a scholarship at the Taft School in Connecticut, and spent four years there preparing for Yale.

My first regular sponsor introduced me to the air in January, 1929. Since that time, I have headed several programs, my longest single engagement being with the Maxwell House Showboat.

Motion pictures opened up a new field to me, and I have visited Hollywood several times for work before the camera.

I like Hollywood, although the nature of my work here this season will prevent me from making extensive concert tours and from visiting familiar places throughout the country.

According to news reports the U. S. Office of Education, in the course of its publication, "School Life," reviews two types of colleges that are exerting a significant influence on modern education.

Many Co-Operative Colleges in U. S.

A small group of colleges, largely situated in the South, require all students, regardless of financial ability, to assist in the work of operating the colleges.

The idea of working and studying at the same time results in fine training, according to those who have studied the operation of these colleges and the students upon graduation, are well equipped to fill positions in the outside world.

Some ten thousand American college students are enrolled in "Cooperative Colleges." Instruction is offered students in cooperation with industrial or commercial concerns.

The University of Cincinnati was a pioneer in this type of college work as far back as 1906. At that time some 15 firms joined in the program at the University of Cincinnati.

In one institution the average earnings over a year were $18.75 for second year students; $17.38 a week for third year students; and $19.20 a week for students in their fourth year.

This type of training is largely limited to schools of engineering where the cooperative plan serves such programs as electrical, mechanical, aeronautic and other branches of engineering work. Your correspondent isn't trying to draw any moral from all of this. He isn't advocating that all students get jobs to complete their college schedules.

CONFESES TO WRITING 12,000 COLD CHECKS

Assistant State's Attorney Richard B. Austin, of Chicago, said Walter H. Wood, head of a manufacturing concern, confessed this week that he had written 12,000 worthless checks in the last year.

The prosecutor said Wood began to write the checks to raise $500 a year ago and then wrote more to pay debts and to obtain cash at currency exchanges to cover previous checks.

The process continued, Austin said, until a bank called a meeting of all creditors holding the checks and complained to the State Attorney's office. He said that the creditors would lose approximately $8,200.

GOP Collegians Draw Up Platform

In Princeton, N. J., the first move of eastern Republican collegians in the current congressional campaign was made here yesterday when an eastern intercollegiate Republican club conference was held to draw up a model platform for the Grand Old Party.

Sponsored by the Stephen K. Little Republican club of Princeton University, the conference discussed current political, social and economic problems, and listened to outstanding speakers in these fields. The platform was drawn up after listening to speeches and meeting in groups for discussion.

Capitol Comments...

The campaign took a definite turn this last week when Governor Chandler attacked the president in a speech at Lawrenceburg. It has long been rumored, that Dan Talbott and Bob Humphrey were spending many sleepless nights worrying over their effort to keep the Governor from taking this step. The Governor said in his speech at Lawrenceburg last week, "when Mr. Roosevelt was running for President, he told you the depression was caused by President Hoover—allowing the country to go in debt to the extent of $5,000,000,000—if being in debt $5,000,000,000 caused the depression, then what about the $42,000,000,000 we have now—? With the Lawrenceburg speech the battle lines are definitely drawn and the siege guns will start firing. The campaign seems to be Chandler and his State debt payment program against Barkley, Roosevelt and the Federal spending program. The farmers have been suffering from a shortage of farm labor because of the WPA spending program—which uses labor in their projects, which the farmers need. Governor Chandler intimated. But in the same speech he denounced the fact that the WPA is the minimum wage in surrounding states.

The special session of the General Assembly will be called about the last of this month, the reason for the delay, being the extra time required to draft the bill on the proposed legislation, that deals with the modernization of State institutions for the treatment of the insane inmates. Senator Barkley appeared before the Senate Appropriation Committee last week requesting additional sums be appropriated for use in the forestry service and for tobacco grading administration. He asked that a total of $10,000,000 be provided for the Forestry Service and pointed out that this would enable the service to acquire 128,000 additional acres in the Eastern Kentucky region known as the "Breaks of God" for the Jefferson National Forest Reserve. Rumors from Washington have it that Barkley will be

Mr. King, said the next session of the Texas Legislature will be asked to enact a law embracing the Kentucky system. JAPAN TO PLANT MORE VIRGINIA TOBACCO SEED

An area of 86,000 acres will be planted to tobacco in Japan during the next crop season, of which approximately 36,740 acres will be devoted to the cultivation of tobacco from Virginia seed, according to a recent report. It is reported locally that the Japanese Government has decided not only to extend domestic tobacco production but also to increase the crop volume in order to meet the rapidly growing demand for cigarettes which are made from domestically grown tobacco of the American variety. About 33,065 acres were planted with Virginia seed in Japan during the 1936-37 season.

to paint screens and it's really a simple process. Brush them off on both sides until they're quite clean. If necessary, you may use the hose on them. Then, after the screens are dry, give both the wood and metal frames a thorough wash with a coat of screen enamel. If you're a good housekeeper you'll be sure that both sides of the screen are well painted. Often the inside of the frames will be in good condition, and it will be necessary to touch up only the outside. But if the wire mesh needs painting, be sure to paint on both sides. After the screens are thoroughly dry, be sure the markings are quite clear. You may then, if they're to be stored in their winter quarters, take a look at the shutters. See that they're in good condition; rub for rust on hinges and signs of wear. Then apply a protective coat of exterior paint on the shutters; this will probably not be amiss. Or, perhaps you'd like to color-from green to deep blue, for instance-will brighten the appearance of your home considerably. Good care of these small items about the home is important. And for the hours that you spend in this fashion, always amply repays you in satisfaction at a good job well done.

Packhorse Library Adding New Books

The library has received 150 books from the Christian Normal Institute of Grayson and Flemingburg last week. Friday, May 6, was open house for the new books and 2,000 magazines from Grayson and Flemingburg last week.

Chances are being sold on a five-bed spread to raise money for books for this library. Due to such a demand for books the supply is getting low. Last week about this many go out every week and it keeps the carriers busy getting the books checked in and in order to meet this demand. Each reader is allowed to keep a hundred books. Over sixteen hundred magazines were also delivered last week.

The sponsor, Roy Cornett, and the County Board of Education have announced last week, furnishing the necessary supplies to carry on this work.

Here, all horizons are immediate; it is heavy with the hemlocks' weight which hangs down. The ground is always higher than the eye. And nothing's said an echo won't recry. A walker calls his dog across the world is up and down here. Where trees march upward into cloud-hung skies. Across a ridge the ragged fields are against the mountainside; the gullies all run down. To hidden valleys and to constant streams. A source of rivers and a source of dreams. —Robert Wistrand.

Social Security Forms Available

"Employees past the age of 65 should secure social security account numbers for use by their employers in the quarterly information returns required by the Kentucky Unemployment Compensation Commission," G. R. Parker, Regional Director of the Social Security Board, stated today. "Many employers have been submitting to this office the names and addresses of the employees past 65 who do not have account numbers," Mr. Parker said. "It is impossible for us to assign account numbers to these individuals from the lists. The employee should secure the number himself, either by applying personally or by mailing an application to the nearest field office of the Board. Kentucky will start paying unemployment compensation benefits the first of January of next year, and in order to apply for these benefits it will be necessary for a worker to have an account number."
