The following program as tentatively arranged: Opening Exercises... Dr. G. H. Fera 'Making School Meet New Demands'... W. C. Lippin 'Attendance Under the New Laws'...

SERIES OF EDITORIALS TO DISCUSS FAIR DEVELOPMENT IN NEXT ISSUE OF NEWS

In this issue of the News appears the first of a series of editorials dealing with the growth and development of the Rowan County School and Agricultural Fair, dates for which have been set for September 25-26.

Lacy Black Lost On Forest Trails

Lacy Black, six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Cash Black, living about three miles west of Morehead, will probably never forget last Friday and Friday night.

According to the reports, Lacy had gone with the men who were hauling wood and had started back. Both men thought he was with the other until they met at the house about three o'clock.

Elliott County League

Gives Two Programs

The Elliott County Educational League has just put over two more projects on their program which has further added to the fund that has been building up rapidly under the direction of the president of the league, Mr. Sam King.

Early in June the league sponsored a "barn-dance" in the gymnasium-auditorium building of the school which has been built by WPA funds.

Last week the league sponsored a play, "Here Comes Arabella" which produced a similar amount. The play was very successful and thoroughly enjoyed.

Funds raised by the league are to be used to equip the high school with supplies lost when the school building was destroyed by fire early this year.

MOVE FAIR DATES UP

At the annual organization meeting of the Rowan County School and Agricultural Fair Board held on Thursday night of last week, Mrs. Lester Hogg resigned as president of the association.

Rev. H. L. Moore, president of the association, Wm. Lator, vice president; B. W. Kasez, secretary; Dr. H. L. Wilson, treasurer. The board of directors will remain the same, including the officers and heads of departments.

A number of the merchants have evinced a desire to cooperate with the association more fully than in previous years, by taking active part in the plans and in raising the necessary funds to carry on the work of the fair.

ROWAN COUNTY FAIR ADVANCES

The recent reorganization of the Rowan County School and Agricultural Fair marks the tenth year of its development, a fact of which THE ROWAN COUNTY NEWS is particularly proud. For it was ten years ago, under the sponsorship of the ROWAN COUNTY NEWS and PROFESSOR H. C. HAGGAN, that the first Rowan County Fair was held. THE NEWS at that time put up the major portion of the prize money, and together with Professor Haggan carried on the fair and put it over. It is rather amusing to think back to that period. At that time the fair was called "Jack Wilson's and Henry Haggan's Fair," by which it meant that those two who had taken responsibility and inferred that the fair would not be a success. It was anybody's baby at that time.

But the fair was a success and attracted considerable attention, in spite of the fact that it could not be said to have been a community affair, so much so that the NEWS was encouraged to try again the following year. Again it was referred to as "Jack Wilson's Fair" until the first day, when the crowd in Morehead attending the fair caused several of the business men to begin referring to the infant as "Our Fair."

Then sad times came along and the interest died. THE NEWS felt that it had borne more than its share of the burden and left it to the citizens of the town to carry it on with the result that with nobody pushing it died a natural death. For two years the Rowan County Fair lay dormant, not dead, but sleeping soundly. Then, when Mrs. Lyda Messer Caudill was elected county superintendent, she, together with the ROWAN COUNTY NEWS decided that it would be a good thing for the educational problems of Rowan County if a school fair were held. Planning on that naturally led to interesting County Agent Chas. Goff and the result was the development of the Rowan County School and Agricultural Fair as it is today. Thus again the Rowan County News is proud to say that they had a very definite part in the revivification of the fair and in putting it where it is today, a permanent affair that is doing its part for the development of, not only the Rowan County Schools but for the farmers of the county as well.

Others have joined in and taken an active part in the work of the fair, notably Mrs. Lester Hogge who for two years served as president of the organization and Rev. B. H. Kazee, who has served as secretary for a number of years. Our former citizen, Guy Snyder, devoted much of his time until illness forced his to resign, in the interest of the fair, and had much to do with its success. But the ROWAN COUNTY NEWS, stood then, as it has always stood, in the van for the development of Rowan County and Rowan County's interests, and where it will continue to stand in the future.

We are proud of the Rowan County School and Agricultural Fair and proud of our part in putting it where it is today.

CONGRATULATIONS, MR. PLUMMER

News of the appointment of Hon. A. P. Plummer as highway commissioner for this district did not come as a surprise to his friends in this county, in spite of the rumors and cross-rumors that were so freely circulated for the past six months. His appointment was foregone. The administration could scarcely have done otherwise than replace him in the position from which he had been so summarily removed by Governor Laffoon. He had gone down with his friends and had lost his position solely because of his refusal to forsake them.

During the last campaign when Governor Chandler was elected, Mr. Plummer spent his entire time laboring in the interests of "Happy" Chandler. It is no more than justice that he should be given the recognition which he deserves. His friends in Rowan county congratulate Mr. Plummer on his appointment to his position as highway commissioner of the Eighth District. They are pleased that he has been given the recognition he deserves.

CURTAINS!!

Jim Jones lives out in the country, twenty miles from his office, and drives to work daily. The drive takes place largely on a modern highway, with the last few miles confined to busy streets.

The drive can be made safely in about thirty-five minutes. But Jim would feel ashamed of his record if he ever took that long. So, by "stepping on her" hard, he manages to make it in twenty-five minutes, and sometimes less. The other day, in fact, he did it in twenty-two minutes—a saving of thirteen minutes over the time taken by more conservative pilots.

That saving of time is a great boon to Jim. It permits him to spend ten or fifteen minutes talking about golf to the boys at the cigar stand, or reading the funny papers. And the day he made his record he spent the saved time, plus quite a few minutes more, boasting about it.

Of course, Jim has to weave in and out of traffic occasionally, cursing the slowpokes who move along at a sedate forty-

State News

BY HOWARD HENDERSON

From The Courier-Journal

The changes which Governor Chandler already has brought about in the Highway Department, or presently will produce, illustrate the far-reaching effect of the governmental recognition he is attempting. A one-man commission is being replaced by a one-man commission with ample authority and fixed responsibilities; a loosely welded together engineering organization will be reshaped into an efficient, competent engineering force under a capable chief engineer.

This is a far step from the day of 1922 and 1924, when the Highway Commission functioned as an auxiliary to the Chief Highway Engineer. In those days the engineer actually was the directing being placed by the commission had little to do with the management of highway affairs.

By 1928 the pendulum had swung far away. The commission had become the dominant factor. In fact, for several years after 1928 the technical trained men employed in the department were not even listed to. Decisions on engineering questions were made by the commission. It was not long after this tendency developed until the technical knowledge of engineers was of little value at the Highway Department.

Out in the field the trend manifested itself in reconstructed important highways that were marked with innumerable sharp curves and low hills that were a menace to traffic. Disregarding the advice of engineers, the commission ordered the construction of roads for automobile traffic on roadbeds laid out fifty and 100 years ago for stage coach and wagon transportation.

These roadways still stand as proof that men untrained in engineering cannot lay out and construct a modern highway. They demonstrate the fallacy of attempting to build roads without engineers. A few years previous the other extreme had shown the fallacy of turning the entire road problem over to the engineers.

Governor Chandler and his State Administration have profited by experience. He has sought a blending of the two ideas—with a non-technical administrator at the head of the department to moderate and hold in check the tendency of engineers to build super-roads, regard less of cost. He is seeking to restore the engineering organization to its proper function—the consideration and solution of technical questions.

Robert Humphreys, Commissioner of Highways will be expected to keep a controlling hand on the department. It will be his function to determine the number of miles of various roads that can be put down out of any year's revenue. Traffic surveys are made and submitted to him will determine what particular roads will be constructed and of what type. He will maintain general and broad supervision over the department's activities.

This will give him plenty to do. The Commissioner of Highways will be freed of the tedious, laborious task of going over the countless thousands of detailed reports at the central office. This work will be entrusted to reliable and honest sub-ordinate employees. Mr. Humphreys, freed of this detail, will be able to devote his energies to effecting economies in the operation of the department.

Just the ordinary, average citizen and taxpayer has been impressed with the waste and inefficiency of the State highways. Road is loaded to use destination today, reloaded by hand tomorrow, carried 100 feet, run through a mixer and hauled back over the same route it traveled the day before. How to avoid the lost motion is not always easy to point out, but if the problem is attacked on a state-wide scale the State could save hundreds of thousands of dollars annually.

The economies that can be effected in the Highway Department would not result in a decreased tax load to the citizens. Rather, the economies would save money that could be used to give roads to people who are now without roads or to improve the type of roads al-five. And sometimes he has to steal a right of way. Now and then he misses a crash by an inch, and after the first flush of nervousness passes, he chuckles to himself about what a good driver he is. Once he did have a minor accident, but the insurance company paid for that.

There are a good many thousand Jim Joneses driving cars in this country. They go on for years with nothing happening to them—and then the inevitable occurs. Curtains!!

STATE - NATION WORLD

CHANDLER CITES TAX LOAD SHIFT

Backsburg, Ky. — Gov. A. B. Chandler told a holiday crowd of 15,000 Kentuckians Saturday that it no longer was necessary for Kentuckians to pay State taxes on the necessities of life.

"We are carrying on the essential functions of our Government at Morehead, providing our people all over the State with public schools, charities and health agencies, with money collected on luxuries," the Governor said.

"That is a far cry," he added, from the sales tax levies that fell heaviest on those who could least afford to pay and fell alike on necessities like meat and bread, shoes and shirts, and non-essential luxuries.

"Whiskey and soft drinks, cigarettes and cosmetics, large incomes and automobiles bear the tax load now," he said. "Some manufacturers are striving to create sentiment against some of the taxes, but I have a distant impression that they will be of no avail. We must give our children an education. And the money must be provided."

The Governor referred to his promise last year to give the schools a $12 per capita. He cited the prompt fulfillment of that pledge. He referred to his promise to maintain the per capita at that level for a full four years so that the school program could be planned far ahead, and renewed the pledge.

PATTERNS OF WOLFPEN

By Harlan Hatcher

"People ought to have been trees; they live quiet and don't make trouble for other people. They folks are like dogs and chickens and foxes and such, but they're like trees. Mother is a spray of April red bud looking at herself in a clear pool. Daddy is a good hickory, not too bud but straight and honest. Mom prides to sit a mule and have folks look when he goes by like they do at Daddy, but he can't quite. Jasper is a chestnut. Jesse is good but not like Daddy. Jesse is a good hickory, straight yellow poplar. Abrel is hickory, but he's full of knots—pink nut hickory. Daddy is straight grain. Jenny, she's white-barked sycamore, but she's turning yellow since she married Jim Walker when Daddy was young. Abrel is a chestnut, now she's mulberry. And Cynthia, now what are you your own self? I'll be a pear tree by the well with pink-edged blossoms and gold in the heart...."

The days were growing longer over Wolfpen Hollows. Cynthia spoke about it, watching the long shadows going before the blaze of sun into the timber earlier in the morning, and coming out later in the afternoon. She was in the fields, planting. She loved to see the changing moods of a day from the cool vigor of the early morning, through the slow pace under the hot sun of noon, then the ebb and drowsiness of the first hour after dinner, the dreamy relaxation and fatigue in the afternoon, the tired joy of the end of day and the smell of the damp and the plowed bottom-land as she walked back to the house through the dusk.

She liked best the long silence of the afternoon when the teams were scattered with her menfolk among the fields, near enough to be seen, far enough not to affect the moment around her. Then there was a whispering in the timber on one slope of the hollow, and an answering rustle from the opposite hillside. She thought of what the trees were saying and saw that the shadow which came silently out of the woods and hurried across the bottom was the fingers of tulip trees which would soon be scattering honey-sweet brown dust from their burning hearts' core.

Her mood was different when she worked with some one, and at its best when she helped Jesse set out on the sweet-potato plants. That time now came, and when toward three o'clock in the afternoon the sun was far enough toward the Pinnacle not to wither the plants, she went up to House Field where Jesse was building the ridges and leveling off the tops with a rake.

"Cutting out the sweet-potato plants is about the best part of planting," she said, removing her shoes and letting her feet taste the soft warmth of the yielding ground. They went to the hedges near the house. They carefully pulled off the sturdy sprouts from a shallow bed, then roots down in a shallow bed. Then Cynthia dropped them at ten-foot intervals on the top of the ridge and poured a gourd of water on their roots in the hole Jesse had made with his long fingers.

"Cynthia filled them with a delicate mystery, imagining that she was taking live people from dark beds where they were crowding one another to death, in the great cities, and giving them the space to breathe in the sunlight and a place for their roots in the ground.

When they had done with the last row, and the sun had been behind the mountain so long a time that the dark was coming again, Jesse remained on his knees at the last plant, rubbing his hands and picking idly at the dirt on his nails. Cynthia was flicking off the sand from her feet and pulling on her shoes.

"What is it, Jesse?"
 "Do you like this, Cynthia?"
 "Do I like what?"
 "Just being here all the time this way, planting, and tending, and looking after stock, and laying in grub and wood for the winter, over and over the same thing?"
 "Why, yes, Jesse; whatever else, could a body do, anyway? I could live here forever and ever. It's about the best place in the world, I reckon, to live in."
 "I know; it's a good place, and it ain't that I don't like it exactly. But I'd like to be something."
 "Be something?"
 "Yes. Be something. Live in a town, and have a profession. I don't want to just go on with the place where everything is all done and fixed up by Dad and Granddad and the rest of them. I don't see why Jasper and Abrel can't go on with the place, if they like, and I'd be something else."

"A doctor like Daddy?"
 "No; I want to be a lawyer, Cynthia, and have an office, and plead cases over a town. I read some know Randy Morgan over at town, about them in the Gazette, and I've listened some to the trials over there on court days. I think I could do it."

"I don't know, but I've about made up my mind to try this winter anyhow, when things are slack about the place."

"Does it take real money to read law, Jesse?"

"Some. I been thinking about that too. I'm going to dig ginseng roots this fall, and I ought to get a price for my steer when the drovers come through, and I think I ought to get to try it a winter."

"I'd like to have a winter at books in the institution, but I don't guess I'd ever get to."

"What would you do with it after you had it?"

"Oh, I'd just like to know things and not be so book ignorant."

"You know about a place, and you know enough about just books for a girl."

She knew how he meant that tell to her and she kept silent for a time. Then she said, "I wouldn't want to see you go away, Jesse. It wouldn't be the same with you gone, but it would be nice for you to read the law if you want that. Maybe I could go for a while. Let's ask."

"Not just yet, it's too soon. After the crops get laid by, maybe."

There was a pause in words, each one thinking forward in his own way. Then the notes of the supper bell came flying up the hollow in search of them, and they walked slowly home through the dusk.

While Cynthia was watching the quiet movements of Sparrel plowing on Wolfpen, Shellenberger was debarking from the noisy wharf-boat at Caltsetburg at the mouth of the Big Sandy where the river packet Ventura had just landed from Pittsburgh. He got through the piles of sacks and barrels and drolls of iron on the wharf and bank, and walked up the hill to the water-front. There he paused for a minute to look down at the two rivers coming together to form the tri-state view of Kentucky, West, Virginia and Ohio.

Shellenberger stood watching the negroes hustle great loads of flour and coffee and salt from the bow of the Ventura.

A few rafts of logs were tied to the willows above the town. Some men were fishing from them. Heavy fleets of coal barges were moving slowly into view from behind the sharp wedge of West Virginia down the Ohio.

"Looks good enough," Shellenberger thought, turning away from it, and going into Sherry Gordon's saloon. The saloon was crowded with rough men from the boats and the mining towns. A friendly looking hill man was leaning over the rail at the end of the bar. Shellenberger spoke to him and got a hospitable answer.

"Have a beer with me," Shellenberger said.

"Sure, Make it a whiskey." They drank and commented on the spring weather.

"Where you from?" the man asked. "Pittsburgh."

A feller could see you didn't come from no place about here. Where you headin'?"

"Pike County, Shellenberger said. "You going' way up there. It's a long ways from here."

"How's the best way to get up there?"

"They ain't no best way, mister. They'll ain't no way with out your own to walk. You take the C. & O. from here to up Richardson. That's as far as she goes. You ketch a boat up there and it takes you on up to Pike."

STATE CAPITOL

ready built. Governor Chandler wants to put at the head of the engineering force a man with more than a technical engineering education. He wants a proven, experienced administrator as an engineer, one upon whom the Commissioner of Highways can lean heavily on all technical road building problems.

This accomplished, the Governor hopes to blend the better factors of the two old systems into one organization with the advantage of a one-man commission over a commission of several men. Heretofore it eyes has been difficult to tell who is to blame for what has happened. A highway Commissioner has been something of a dictator in his own district, countenancing no suggestion or interference with his management of personnel or road construction in his particular territory.

For whatever happens now Mr. Humphreys will be responsible. Because of responsibility the success or failure will be placed on Governor Chandler. The Commissioner of Highways has ample authority. He will not have to hesitate.

The Advisory Commission is little more than a make-shift organization to placate sectional ambitions. It is without legal authority to hamper the commissioner and will be unable to thwart or hamper his work or the Governor's purposes unless he and the Governor extend to the Advisory Commission powers and privileges and functions which the Reorganization Act did not contemplate.

There was talk at Frankfort last week that the Administration may propose a State debt refunding bond issue to the voters in November. If this happens, a special session of the General Assembly must be called. Whether it would include any other suggestions is problematical. In any event it probably would interfere with Governor Chandler's desire to "circulate" during the fall campaign.

When Governor Chandler told President Roosevelt goodbye in Washington last week the President is reported to have bid him "Godspeed" and told him to go forth and "circulate" among the voters. The Governor received the suggestion favorably.

If he decides to submit a bond issue in November will force him to stay here in Kentucky this fall. To have the proposed refunded bonds carry some suggestion of repudiation, and the State Administration will not want to take that risk. So the readers can tell ahead of time whether there will be a special session and a bond issue proposed by watching Governor Chandler's plan for campaign activities.

The probability at this stage is that the Governor, who has had under consideration various proposed solutions of the debt problem, will turn in the end to the simple one of getting legislative sanction for the State Treasurer and the Governor to fix the State warrant interest rate at "not more than 5 per cent." This will be elastic enough to enable the Administration to work out a very considerable reduction in the interest which the State is paying on its warrant debt. It will not necessitate a bond issue campaign and is quicker

New Way To Dress Up Your Studio Couch

THE studio couch is coming into its own in the modern home. Twentieth century hospitality includes the ability to ask guests to stay the night even though the apartment be small and only one studio available. This accounts for the extraordinary sales of studio couches and the transformation of the living room itself into a combination studio-bedroom. Suggested below are a few ideas to incorporate the studio couch into a lounging room by daytime and destroy none of its advantages as an emergency bed.

A framework of rough 2 x 2 seasoned lumber is built to the necessary size. This is then covered with pressed wood and trimmed at the joints with ordinary decorative moulding obtainable from any lumber dealer. Book shelves, radio, liquor or linen compartments can be built into the end sections and it is well to include also on the top of each end section an electrical socket for lamps. In the unit pictured here, the back is hinged at the bottom and swings down and open to allow the storage of blankets, sheets, pillows. Units of this type can also be constructed to make use of extra box spring and mattress of either standard or oval size. A midwestern hotel was recently remodeled and furnished with leather divans were fitted into units of this type in modern private dining rooms.

Pressed wood is suggested for use here because it is easy to handle and offers none of the staining and finishing problems of regular lumber. It can be purchased in sheets up to 4 x 12 feet and the surface is smooth and it needs no finishing. It can be painted to fit the general color scheme of the room, but the rich, brown luster of the fabricated wood offers a delightful combination with other colors either in harmony or contrast.

Cozy Show Stars College Show Grant & Bennett On Thursday

In an amazing overnight transformation, Joan Bennett, dainty blonde film star has been changed from a petite ingenue type to a personality whose outstanding characteristics are sophistication and smartness.

The transformation was achieved by Walter Westmore, head of Paramounts makeup department, through the accentuation of certain features of Miss Bennett's natural beauty for her role in Walter Wagner's "Big Brown Eyes," which opens Sunday and Monday, July 12 & 13 at the Cozy Theatre.

In "Big Brown Eyes," the blonde star is that of a hotel manager, whose quickthinking shrewdness and knowledge of "all the answers" leads her, first to a job at a newspaper columnist, and then to the capture of a ruthless gang of jewel thieves and murderers.

As the first step in changing Miss Bennett from an innocent unsophisticated, Westmore lengthened her face by raising her hairline and extending it back at either side of the forehead to give a "widow's peak." This is an entirely painless operation, performed with an electric needle.

The next step was to raise the brows, giving them a higher arch and extending them on the ends to change the expression of the eyes.

The contour of Joan's lips was also changed to give them additional fullness that is more in keeping with the new personality. For this only lipstick was needed. Her slightly recessed nose was highlighted on the bridges to give it length and make it appear thinner; her cheeks were hollowed through a darker makeup and her cheekbones were highlighted to give a "sculptured" look that adds additional glamour to her rare beauty.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Fabely and family of New Castle, Ind., spent the Fourth at the Oscar Hall home.

Notice to Contractors

PROCUREMENT DIVISION, Public Buildings Branch, Washington, D. C. July 2, 1936 Sealed Proposals in duplicate will be publicly opened in this office at 1 P. M., July 31, 1936, for the construction of the U. S. P. O. at Morhead, Ky. Attention is directed to the special conditions of bidding set forth in the specification. Upon application, one set of drawings and specifications will be supplied free to general contractor interested in submitting a proposal. The above drawings and specifications MUST be returned to this office. Contractors requiring additional sets may obtain them by purchase from this office at a cost of $5 per set, which will not be returned. Checks offered as payment for drawings and specifications must be made payable to the order of the Treasurer, U. S. Drawings and specifications will not be furnished to contractors who have consistently failed to submit proposals. One set upon request, and when considered in the interests of the Government, will be furnished builders' exchanges, chambers of commerce or other organizations who will guarantee to make them available for any subcontractor or material firm interested and to quantity surveyors, but this privilege will be withdrawn if the sets are not returned after they have accomplished their purpose. W. E. Reynolds, Assistant Director of Procurement, Public Buildings Branch.

Rid Yourself of Kidney Poisons

DO you suffer burning, scanty or too frequent urination; backache, headache, dizziness, loss of energy, joint pains, swellings and puffiness under the eyes? Are you tired, nervous—feel all unwell and don't know what is wrong?

Then give some thought to your kidneys. Be sure they function properly for functional kidney disorder permits excess waste to stay in the blood, and to poison and upset the whole system.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They are recommended the world over. You can get the genuine, time-tested Doan's at any drug store.

"Dancing Pirate" which comes to the College Theatre, Thursday, July 9, definitely adds another monument to the progress of color in motion pictures.

It is the triumphant presentation of Hollywood's first large scale attempt to give the public comedy and thrills in color, and it required more than a year for research, preparation and filming.

Frank Morgan has the principal comedy characterization. The dancing headliner is Charles Collins, fresh from stage hits in New York and London. Steffi Duna, heroine of "Cucaracha," which was the first picture filmed under the new process, is the featured heart interest. Louis Alberni, a veteran of hundreds of screen laugh hits; Victor Varconi, star of silent picture days; Jack LaRue, villain extraordinary; the Royal Casino family; a group of 50 dancing stars and many other favorites are active in the production.

Morgan's work, backgrounded with colors in tune with his varied moods and embarrassing situations, is said to have the finest opportunity of his entire career. Hollywood, after a preview of the film, conceded a triumph for color musical comedy and romance.

Coming Monday, July 13 to the College Theatre, July 13 is "Stand Condemned," a thrilling drama of love and espionage in World War Russia, starring France's leading character actor, Harry Baer.

Mrs. Oscar Hall and daughter little Janice visited Mr. Hall in Russellville and Mrs. Herbert Cooper in Bowling Green over the Fourth. Attorney E. Hogge spent the week-end at Latonia.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Kazee, Pastor of Baptist Church. Written each week by Rev. B. H. Kazee.

SUBJECT: Witnessing Under Persecution. Acts 4:1-12; I Cor. 1:21, 25.

Golden Text: "We ought to obey God rather than men." Acts 5:29.

God wants the Gospel to be preached to everybody. But not everybody will come to hear it, so He appoints peculiar methods of bringing it to them. Here is an example.

The Sanhedrin, the Jewish Council would not let these wandering disciples come before them with their message of Jesus as Saviour and Lord. So the Lord chose the method of persecution to bring it before them. Peter and John were going into the temple at the hour of prayer, and as they passed through the gate an afflicted man asked them for alms. "Silver and gold have I none," said Peter, "but such as I have give I unto thee." And he healed the afflicted man, who ran here and there attracting much attention to Peter and John, pointing them out as the healers. The rulers were embittered about this sudden popularity, and called the Apostles in to question about what they had done. They had examined the man and found him unyielding in his testimony to the power of these men. But when the Apostles were interrupted in a sermon, and called to account for the deed, they immediately gave God the glory, and said it was through Jesus Christ that they had done this healing.

They were brought into the midst of the court, among all the dignitaries, a place where they never could have gone with their message had not there been antagonism. They were there for persecution, but the Holy Spirit filled Peter and made him able to witness boldly to the power of Jesus. Take his message from the Scriptures: "Ye rulers of the people, and elders, if we this day be examined concerning a good deed done to an impotent man; by what means this man is made whole; but it known unto you all, and to all the people of Israel, that in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, and whom God raised from the dead, even in him doth this man stand here before you whole. He is the stone which was set at nought by you builders, which was made the head of the corner. And in no other name is there salvation: for neither is there any other name under heaven, given among men, wherein we must be saved." Talk about striking while the iron is hot; Peter, spoken through by the Holy Spirit, sent the word of the Gospel through their hearts. It was the same important body that had tried Jesus a few weeks before. They marvelled at the boldness of Peter and John, but it was the Spirit of the Lord. The passage from Corinthians is Paul's treatment of the same subject in a letter to a church which he had found in a wicked city, a church which had taken up worldly ways and philosophies. In substance it says: "God's way is a mystery to the smart people of the world. By education and training alone it can never be found out. He uses unlearned, ordinary men, oftentimes, to show forth his wonderful works, that the faith might not be in men but in God. Paul is an example of a smart man who counted his wisdom as naught and accepted the revelation of God. This is not to decry education. But experience and not philosophy is God's way. The world in its way could not understand about this Christ. But the Spirit of God could explain him to unlettered men. And so, through the foolishness of the preaching, God's chosen ones tell the story again and again, even under persecution. The record of the Apostles is a recital of powerful preaching and spiritual demonstration under worldly opposition and persecution.

Mrs. Jackson Is Laid to Rest

Mrs. O. L. Jackson died Tuesday June 30 at St. Joseph's hospital in Lexington. Death came as a result of complications following a broken leg sustained in a fall at her home about three months ago. Farm and Agricultural News

Twenty eight Todd county farmers who cooperated with County agent Stuart Barabant in demonstrating improved methods of curing dark-fired tobacco sold $10,000 pounds for an average of 11 cents a pound, against an average of 7 cents a pound for the country as a whole. The demonstrators averaged $103 an acre, compared to a county average of $57. The county average included the demonstration crops.

Tobacco is grown for the cash income, and prices received by farmers using improved curing methods prove the worth of the quality-to-labor program which has been carried on in this county for the past six years, comments Mr. Barabant.

The Carlisle County Wool Growers Association sold 21,906 pounds of wool for $7,811, receiving 37 cents a pound for clear wool, 33 cents for light burf, 31 cents for medium burf and 26 cents for hard burf. The expense of handling the wool, including labor was 50 cents per hundred.

Wool growers in Carlisle, Graves Fulton, Hickman, Ballard and MacCracken counties formed the pool. Four sealed bids were received, T. H. Brothers of Paducah submitted the best bid.

Grain and mash must be kept before the birds if they are to develop to where they will lay well when eggs are good in the fall and winter. It is a good plan to move the hens and watering utensils frequently.

It pays to make children's garments well. They must stand hard wear and frequent washings, which means that the materials must be good and the construction well done. Close stitching is advisable. All finishes should be smooth and flat.

Don't forget the farm accounts in the rush of summer work. Accrues and yields should be carefully recorded at harvest time, when there can be no mistakes. Ages, gains and other facts about livestock should be recorded from time to time during the season.

Water in the house is probably the first modern equipment to be given consideration. The College of Agriculture at Lexington and county and home demonstration agents are preparing to help farmers plan water systems for their homes.

Cultivation of strawberries through out the season is advisable. Many inches, and apply a side-dressing of growers narrow the rows to about 8 sulphate of ammonia or nitrate of soda at the rate of about 20 pounds to a tenth of an acre or 50 pounds to a quarter of an acre.

Cream separators are designed to operate at a certain speed. Slower speed results in a larger volume of fat of thinner cream and a loss of butterfat in the skim milk. Higher speed causes a smaller volume of richer cream and more skim milk.

To control cucumber beetles, use a well-mixed dust made of one part of calcium arsenate and 15 parts of gypsum or hard-plaster. Screen the dust and mix it with the plaster before mixing. The dust may be applied with a gunny sack.

POULTRY MEN JOIN DRIVE ON THIEVES

Plans to join in a national drive announced by the directors of the Kentucky Poultry Improvement Association, meeting during the 12th annual poultry short course at the University of Kentucky of Agriculture.

The 1,400 members of the association are to be asked to use the tattoo method of putting a brand on the web in each bird's wing. These law enforcement officers to help trace stolen chickens. The method is said to be simple, inexpensive and effective. Cooperating farmers will be furnished a large sign readable day or night warning thieves that their flocks are protected.

Joe H. Wetherill, Carrollton, was elected president of the association; D. D. Slade, Lexington, vice-president, and Miss M. C. Lane, Lexington, was re-named secretary and treasurer.

ADVISES CULLING AND BETTER CARE

Security of feed brings a statement from J. E. Humphrey, College of Agriculture field agent in poultry, urging the culling of the pullets, so that better care can be given to the birds that will lay eggs next fall and winter when prices are good.

In the flock are pullets that developed rapidly, are the first out in the morning and the last to go to roost, have vigor and vitality, possess broad, deep and short heads that blend into the bodies with good spring of ribs. Their bodies are deep and slab-sided rather than shallow and round. They stand well, and have width between the shanks.

Then there is a class of pullets not quite so good, a little less mature, with bodies and heads not so good. Some of this class probably should be culled. A third class consists of the out and out culls, most of which should be sold. They have bare backs, and long, slim crow feet. They often are knock-kneed.

Mr. Humphrey says the good birds should be moved to clean ground, if possible, and to a field where there are alfalfa, Trepepedez or other green feed, and plenty of shade and fresh water. Shade and water cost nothing, yet are important in reducing feed cost. If there is no alfalfa or despedeza field then the next best is a cornfield after the corn is so big that no dam-

3 Boys Charged With Setting Fire

Fleming County

John Ingram, Plummers' Landing and Clyde Jones, Flemingsburg, were taken before Judge Wallingford at Flemingsburg on June 26, charged with accidentally starting a forest fire. These boys were squiring hunting and admitted to District Ranger, Karl M. Stoller, that they had been smoking squirrels in the woods and had accidentally set the woods on fire. Judge Wallingford, on the recommendation of Mr. Stoller, suspended the sentence.

With the woods in their present dry condition a cigarette butt or a glowing match will easily start a fire and it is hoped that this case will be an object lesson to all people traversing the National Forest, as well as all woodlands. The particular fire in question was cut off from National Forest lands and confined to the woods between the heads of Stockton and Indian Creeks by the fire crew of the CCC camp at Clearfield, Kentucky. Several hundred acres of young timber were burned over.

Traffic Studies To Be Made In Nation

A study of highway safety problems in one hundred thousand communities will be made throughout the nation as a result of the eleventh national safety campaign, announced today by the Highway Education Board. Remedial action will be sought.

Eleven national organizations concerned with highway safety will collaborate in the campaign and the group that has the best record in accident prevention in the United States today, Thomas H. MacDonald, Chief of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, is chairman of the Board.

This group, according to the Board, is the elementary school children of the nation, whose safety record during the period of the phenomenal when compared with earlier campaigns is little less than that of their elders. During a ten-year period while the adult fatality rate was increasing more than 200 per cent, the Board claims, the face of advancing car registration, car miles and growing population. When the activity among school children was suspended four or five years ago, the fatality rate, insurance statistics revealed showed a 17 per cent increase in one year.

To interest the schools again in safety education, the Board announces a renewal of the safety campaign and safety lesson contests open to elementary school pupils and teachers. Collateral activity includes school boy patrols, the award of merit room banners and school plaques.

The contests are open to all pupils of the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades, who are asked to write essays on the subject "A Definition Program for My Community to Prevent Highway Accidents and to Promote Highway Safety." To write on this subject pupils will need to study conditions in their several communities. As an incentive 440 state prizes and medals are to be given for the best essays, and three national awards will be made. The state prizes vary according to the elementary school population of the several states.

All elementary school teachers engaged in class room instruction are eligible to compete for three national awards offered for the best lessons on highway safety. Their subject is "A Lesson on Highway Safety for Children of My Community" and prizes total $1,000 in cash. The writer of the best lesson will receive $500 and a trip to Washington with all expenses paid. The second and third best lessons will earn for the author $200 and $200 respectively.

Altogether a total of $6,500 will be given away in prizes and awards, distributed according to the excellence of the papers and the school population. The awards are made possible by the automotive industry, and the entire campaign is part of a nation-wide movement sponsored by the industry to reduce the number of accidents on streets and highways. Among the organizations cooperating in the campaign are the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators, American Association of State Highway Officials, National Safety Council, National Education Association, American Congress of Parents and Teachers, General Federation of Women's Clubs, the National Grange, the International Association of Chiefs of Police, the National Bureau of Casuality and Safety Underwriters, the American Legion, the Harvard University Bureau of Street and Traffic Research and others.

The contests are conducted with the aid and cooperation of city, county, and state school officials, who are being asked to aid in the announcement of the competition and the selection of the essays and lessons to receive the awards. Pupils and teachers have until May 15 in which to submit their papers, and it is expected that the result will be of school this fall. Descriptive literature containing detailed rules have been sent to each superintendent of public and parochial schools in the United States. These officials then request the necessary number of additional announcements for use in the school and the classroom. This literature is supplied free.

Booklets containing certain of better lessons of other years and other safety literature also are being distributed by the Board. This activity marks the re-entry of the Highway Education Board in the safety field. For ten years it carried on similar campaigns through the schools, with the result that children, through their intensive study of safety rule, escaped the heavy toll that claimed their elders.

Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS
ONE teacher tried to teach the kids about units, and she told 'em they must learn it or stay in for a week. She showed 'em a hat and a tin can and a door mat and a piece of crayon and a book, and she said about every one of 'em "This is a unit." Then she tried to tell 'em that everything was a unit, and she told the kids to write a true story about some thing that happened at home that night, and bring it to school next day, to illustrate units. George brought in this one: "When dad came home last night he was pretty full of units. Also, he had two cold units in each pocket of his unit and he came in and slipped on a unit and fell and broke the two units in his right-hand pocket, and then his left-hand unit that old unit that make you set so rilly." So she took the other two units that wasn't broke yet, and threw them out the window. As the floor was full of units, she said, "The floor, and he looked like a unit." (American News Features, Inc.)

"I WOULDN'T RISK MY LIFE ON ANY OTHER TIRE"

Says Louis Meyer—Only three times winner Indianapolis Race 28 33 36

EQUIP YOUR CAR WITH Firestone GUM-DIPPED TIRES for Greater Safety!

There is a reason why Louis Meyer won the 500-mile Indianapolis race this year—and why he is the only man ever to win this grueling race three times. He always used Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires, and never experienced tire trouble of any kind.

Louis Meyer knows tire construction. He also knows that to drive for 500 consecutive miles over this hot brick track, negotiating the dangerous curves 800 times and the record-breaking average speed of 109 miles an hour, requires tires of super strength and all over greatest blowout protection, as a blowout on any one of the dangerous curves would likely mean instant death. By the Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process with liquid rubber, thereby preventing internal friction and heat. This is the secret of the extra strength and reserve safety built into Firestone Tires.

When you make your holiday trip this week-end, you of course will not drive 109 miles per hour, but at today's higher speeds you do need tires that will give you greatest blowout protection and will stop your car up to 25% quicker. Take no chances. Let us equip your car today with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires, the safest tires built. It costs so little to protect lives worth so much!

Information To Cattle Owners

The Cumberland National Forest offers the following information to cattle owners in Kentucky.

It is very evident that this year's drouth is doing considerable damage to the range land in eastern Kentucky. In many places the forage has become so scarce that the condition of the range has reached a critical point. If rain does not come to our assistance in the very near future our cattle will suffer from lack of food.

The range condition within the wooded areas would undoubtedly be much better than the open field areas under normal conditions. The matter must lie on the ground until it is completely absorbed if we are to receive the full amount of benefit that nature intended for us to have. If anyone will take the time to examine the soil in an unburned over area, he will find that there is a very fine rich layer of top soil developing from decayed vegetables.

Fire burns up all of the dead materials and what is left of this thin layer of ashes following the burn. These ashes will stimulate the top soil to some extent, but more often are washed down into the gulches and finally end up in the streams. Even the ashes left from a burn are not of sufficient value to the soil to anywhere near replace the fertility lost in the burning.

This fire also kills the young seedlings hardwoods and natures method of counteracting this burning is to produce the following year a lush growth of several stems where only one stood before. This, of course, intensifies the shade to such an extent that it also hinders the actual growth of grasses.

After a few years of repeated burning the soil has become so poor that it is capable of reproducing only sage and wire grass. We all know that cattle cannot favorably compare with other cattle if they are raised on such materials.

If a range is burned over early in the spring and all of the dead material consumed, the green grasses and weeds show up much earlier in this burned area than they do in an area not burned. But if anyone would take the time to move aside the leaves of the time to move aside the leaves of the ever more grasses growing there, but, of course, to the casual glance the burned over area looks much greener, but in reality it is in poorer shape than the unburned area.

Another important factor entering into grazing is erosion. Erosion in a short period of years a meadow that was once fertile and green becomes washed away into the near by stream, leaving only a desolate wasteland.

It would be worthwhile for individual cattle owners to look over the range that they are grazing and compare the repeatedly burned over area with areas not burned. This fits and assistance that nature will give them if they only will assist her by keeping out fires. The Cumberland National Forest is doing everything within their power to assist you in preventing forest fires. Help the Cumberland National Forest help you prohibiting the destruction of songbirds.

EVEN ARABS ARE QUIET FOR JERUSALEM'S 41st.

Jerusalem — American Jews in the Holy Land celebrated the 41st of July without even fireworks from the Arabs.

The country was quiet as compared with a week ago when the warring of railroad trains culminated the most violent seven days of the present disorders.

GATES CLOSED

Fayette County's chief attraction, for tourists — the thoroughbred horse farm — are so sun-baked that many of them have closed their gates to visitors. This is a precautionary measure to safeguard the farms against grass fires, many of which have broken out since the drouth began. Farm managers are afraid visitors might be careless in tossing aside lighted cigarette stubs or matches.

PLEA FOR LOAN IS VOTED DOWN

Geneva, — The League of Nations Assembly Saturday refused Emperor Haile Selassie's request for a loan for Ethiopia and voted to end debate on the Italian Ethiopia war.

The Assembly's action practically nullified the lifting of League sanctions from Italy, which last year the peace body branded an aggressor.

Forty-four members voted to adopt a steering committee resolution to end further debate on the conflict. Four members abstained from voting. Ethiopia voted "No."

The Assembly silently accepted a suggestion by Premier Léon Degrelle of Belgium, president of the body, that it was unnecessary to vote on Ethiopia's resolution against recognition of the Italian annexation of the East African Empire.

KEROSENE OPERATED ELECTROLUX

brings you Modern Refrigeration at LOW COST

HERE'S WHAT MRS. W. E. COBBS, MULMALL, OHIO, WRITES: "We think Kerosene Electrolux claim it will do. We have had our Electrolux just about a year and it has been in use every day and the cost of operation is not over 60¢ a month. I have had quite a lot of experience with other makes of refrigerators but none of them are as good as the one that I have had from my Electrolux."

RUNS ON KEROSENE (COAL OIL) WITHOUT MACHINERY... NEEDS NO ELECTRIC CURRENT... NO DAILY ATTENTION... NO WATER

NOW give your food the finest protection modern science has devised! Put an end to the inconvenience and waste of inadequate or makeshift refrigeration... running back and forth to the well house for supplies... traveling long distances for ice over land, washed-out roads... losing valuable meat and milk through spoilage.

Kerosene Electrolux keeps food in perfect condition 24 hours a day... brings you all the comforts and conveniences that have made the gas-operated Electrolux Refrigerator the favorite for finest city homes and apartments for country over. It gives you plenty of ice cubes at all times... new delicious desserts... more freedom from kitchen work.

Picture this beautiful, labor-saving Electrolux in your kitchen! And remember: Electrolux operates on ordinary kerosene (coal oil) for just a few pennies a day... one filling of the tank lasts a week or more. Owners find that it saves on refrigerating cost and on food bills.

- NOTE ALL THESE ELECTROLUX ADVANTAGES:
- NO MOVING PARTS TO WEAR
 - LASTING EFFICIENCY
 - CONTINUED LOW RUNNING COST
 - FULLEST FOOD PROTECTION
 - EVERY WORTH WHILE CONVENIENCE
 - SAVINGS THAT PAY FOR IT
 - AVAILABLE IN 4 FAMILY SIZES
- Plenty of ice cubes with Electrolux. Temperature regulator keeps freezing.
- make Electrolux actually pay for itself. The outstanding efficiency of Kerosene Electrolux is the result of its simple operation. A wickless glow-type burner does all the work... takes the place of all moving, wearing parts. Electrolux uses no water. Clip coupon for booklet.

Pigmy Elephants With Huge Circus

With one hundred double-length railroad cars, bearing 1600 people, African pigmy elephants, African ponies, seven herds of full-sized elephants, 1009 menagerie animals, ad Barnum & Bailey Combined and 700 horses, the Ringling Bros. Circus arrive in Lexington, Kentucky July 11, for afternoon and night exhibits.

The circus is especially slated this season over the amazing success of the Big Show's sensational new super-feature—the first herd of African pigmy elephants (tiny tuskers that years ago attained their full growth) ever to leave the depths of darkest Africa, and the first herd of African elephants ever to set foot in America. The weird midget made to the Department of Commerce the past week just received by its Louisville District Office.

Wholesale markets showed improved trends with considerable respite in the purchase of fall requirements. The drouth situation continued to cause uneasiness in many sections. Building maintained strong upswing. There were indications of the establishment of new high records in vacation travel in substantially all cities affected by those activities.

Louisville reported that as result of drouth serious milk shortage is anticipated; already prices advanced 1 cent a quart. Dairyman resorting to winter grains for cows. Milk supply in Lexington estimated at 15 to 20 per cent below normal.

BONUS MONEY AIDING BUSINESS

A decided increase in business over the week-end is reported by Flemingsburg merchants, due to the cash payment of the soldier bonus. It is realized that $150,000 has been put in circulation in this immediate trade area, with additional amounts finding its way into local trade channels daily.

Many old accounts have been paid, mortgages, a home lifted and numerous purchases made on furniture, used cars, small acreage of land, etc.

ALARM WORLD WIDE AS WHEAT TOPS $1

Chicago — Flying impetuously aloft, the extreme limit allowed, five cents, and preparing for another equal fight, wheat markets Saturday showed world wide alarm over the drouth.

High price records for the season were broken right and left by every grain on the list and the old-time rural ideal of $1 a bushel wheat became as out of date at the moment as the horse and buggy era.

HEAT WAVE HITS DROUTH SECTOR

Chicago — The season's most intense and widespread heat wave rolled over the Midwest Saturday at the critical period for a major segment of the Nation's food producing areas near its first week's end.

That period, Secretary Wallace of the Agriculture Department, had said, will reach its close in about two more weeks and will determine whether the present crop crisis will end as disastrously as the long dry summer of 1924.

Temperatures ranging from 100 to 110 degrees were sighted by the central Weather Bureau forecasting station for virtually the entire drouth area from the Rocky Mountains eastward to Illinois.

Refreshing Relief

When You Need a Laxative

Because of the refreshing relief it has brought them, thousands of men and women, who could afford much more expensive laxatives, use Black-Draught when needed. It is very economical, purely vegetable, highly advanced and safe.

Mr. J. Lester Robertson, well known hardware dealer at Martinsville, Ky., writes: "I have used Black-Draught as a splendid medicine. I have taken it several times and feel better, and have found it very satisfactory."
