This newspaper welcomes letters, particularly on subjects of general local, or area, interest. Right is reserved to condense. No letters will be printed without author's name and address.

The Editor:
Many times within the past few months there have been in our community urgent needs for whole blood of specific types. Everytime Mrs. C. Mayhall has called on our neighbors or our young college friends they have responded immediately by being donors. A special operation, a bleeding ulcer, an accident, many emergencies have created many unusual needs. There are people who should be named, told they are appreciated, and given the credit they deserve for their unselfish contribution to others.
Since we can't name them all we won't name any, but we will say "thank you" to each, one by one. Student, business man, housewife - everyone of you deserves our deep appreciation, please know we extend it to you.

SENATOR SEEKS ADVICE ON RE-NAMING U.S. FOREST
The Editor:
A proposal is before the Forest Service of the United States Department of Agriculture to change the name of the Cumberland National Forest to "Daniel Boone National Forest." Such a change in the designation of a national forest can be accomplished through a proclamation or executive order, upon a formal recommendation, made by the Secretary of Agriculture to the President.
The name of Daniel Boone has a great association with the history of Kentucky and those who favor the change point out that it could also bring fresh recognition to the Forest, and might be attractive to visitors from other States. On the other hand, the present name is well established and does carry meaning for the people of the area.

When I was notified by the Forest Service that a change in name was being seriously considered and my advice was asked, I told Secretary of Agriculture Freeman that while the idea seemed to me an attractive one and there had been a number of expressions of support, it was my feeling that there should be discussion in the communities about it and I thought it appropriate and proper that the people of the immediate and surrounding areas be fully consulted and have an opportunity to express their views.
Because of my deep interest, I want the advice of interested citizens, local officials, service clubs and other interested organizations to secure their views. I would be very glad to receive recommendations, together with those of any civic or other interested local groups you are in touch with, so that I may forward them to the Secretary for consideration in arriving at his decision.

HOMEMADE FLOOR CLEANER
When using a self-polishing wax on your floors, you'll get better results by cleaning the floor well before applying the wax, says Mrs. Ella Anderson, UK Extension home management specialist. A good cleaner can be made at home by mixing 1 gallon of hot water, 1/2 cup household ammonia, and 2 tablespoons detergent. Wash the floor with the mixture at a time, rinse it well and dry it thoroughly, she recommends.

EGG-SEGREGATIVE ORDER—Governor Edward T. Breathitt signs a document proclaiming March as "Egg Month" in Kentucky during a promotional "kickoff" breakfast in Frankfort as State Agriculture Commissioner Wendell Butler looks on. The poultry committee of the Governor's Commission on Agriculture reports that the poultry and egg industry has the potential of doubling its $30 million annual production.

Kentucky Housewives Can Enter 'Egg Cooking' Contest

A cooking contest for the wives of members of the Kentucky Young Farmers Association, is being sponsored by the Kentucky Poultry Federation as part of March "Egg Month" activities.
Seven district "cook-offs" are planned and will be held as a part of the annual K.Y.F.A. district banquets arranged in cooperation with the Kentucky RECC. Contestants must use at least one egg in their recipes. The first and second place district winners earn the right to compete in the State finals, planned for April 13 at the Executive Inn in Louisville.
The State's First Lady, Mrs. Edward T. Breathitt, will officiate in naming the new state champion, who will receive $150 in U.S. Savings Bonds. Second prize is a $100 savings bond and third place is a $50 savings bond. The other participants in the State event will each receive a $25 savings bond and all of the contestants will receive a participation plaque.
District meetings are scheduled during February, March and April in Shelby County, Rockcastle County, Bowling Green, Elizabethtown, Versailles, Lyon County and Somerset.

Prizes are also awarded on the district level with first place being a weekend at a Kentucky State Park. Second place award is an electric coffee maker and third place, an electric carving knife. Funds for all prizes are being donated by members of the Kentucky Poultry Federation and allied interests.

INCOME HIGHER - The amount spent for food in the United States hit an all-time high in 1965 but people had more of their income left over after paying the food bill than ever before. Total U.S. food expenditures were $85 billion during 1965 - that's up 7.6 percent from the $79 billion spent in 1964, and nearly 8 times the $10.8 billion spent during 1933. But disposable income rose even higher. As a result, people in the United States spent an all-time low of 18.2 percent of their disposable income for food in 1965. This compares to 18.3 percent spent in 1964 and 24 percent in 1933, USDA reports.

Test Predicts Student's Chances
AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Students planning to go to college can find out how hard they will have to work even before they start their first term examination.
Dr. H. Paul Kelley of the College Entrance Examination Board regional office in Austin heads a project that is pooling information on thousands of students. Their high school records, grades on aptitude examinations and records at college were put into the data pool.
From it, researchers got all questions that tell what can reasonably be expected from a high school graduate of certain abilities and success in high school.
An entering freshman can get from a computer score guide for his study for the next four years. The guide is affected by factors it cannot take into consideration, such as activities he gets into while in college, Kelley says, but it gives a broad idea of a student's prospects for success.
Kelley predicts that in a few years this that much more data to go on, the system will be quite accurate. It will serve to guide schools in their grading system as well as students in their goals.
And it can help lower the rate of those who quit college because of bad grades, Kelley said.

Snow Oversight
CHESTER, Pa. (UPI)—C. P. Snow, renowned British novelist, has been honored and acclaimed throughout the world by his colleagues in science and honored with degrees from universities in various countries, has - inexplicably - never until now received a Doctor of Science degree, not even an honorary one.
It remained for an American college - Pennsylvania Military College, Chester - to rectify the oversight. P.M.C. recently conferred a double honor or on Lord Snow by awarding him the honor of a Doctor of Science degree and Engineering Centennial Medal, the latter first given in 1961 to mark 100 years of engineering education at P.M.C.

Publisher's Pen...

Like the weatherman, the medical profession sometimes errs. But they are generally accurate, certainly more so than our Kentucky Derby predictions.

The weather forecaster misses when cold, or warm, fronts shift. . . the United States Department of Health, and the M.D. profession, is equally right about epidemics except when there is a change in cycle.

THIS MODERN AGE IS COMPLEX, FRUSTRATING

This Publisher is not a great many of the staff, have had partial, or full doses, of the flu virus or some illness during the week. . . local merchants report a sharp drop in business, although drug stores are probably booming.

Yers. . . Tax Commissioners are overworked trying to comply with that 100,000 assessment rulings of the Court of Appeals; taxpayers can't sleep because of paying that, plus their April 15 [deadline] income tax, plus multiple others, including a solution to the teacher-pay crisis.

WHAT CAUSES SO MUCH TROUBLE WITHIN FAMILIES?

Over the week this Publisher sat in on a conference with some Cogan, and district, officials including a representative from this county. They were agreed half their official, even off-duty, time was spent in divorce, child desertion and alimony complaints, and litigations.

We jotted down some notes and then came across an article "Skeptical Found Threat to Marriage" among the news, and pictorial, services to which this newspaper subscribes. Louise Chase, of Women's Medical Service, who generally writes about health problems of the fairer sex, has some advice that is worthy of passing on.

during this cold spell in the hope that it might be of some help when there's often more people in the jails of Kentucky, including this county, for child desertion etc than all other charges combined.

Mrs. Chase prefaces her article with: "What makes a satisfactory marriage" and continues: "The foundation by each spouse of such positive qualities as warmth, trustfulness and a sense of responsibility certainly helps. And so does the ability of each partner to accept these qualities effectively to the other."

"This is the finding of Dr. Eleanor Braun Luckey, head of the Department of Child Development and Family Relations, University of Connecticut, based on a study of 80 couples similar in age, education, income, vocation and other factors."

"When husbands and wives agree that each is considerate of the other and is cooperative, the marriage is likely to be satisfactory to both, Dr. Luckey found."

"When one partner believes himself to be generally aggressive and mis-trustful, the marriage is likely to be less satisfactory to both, according to the study."

"A wife who admits she is often skeptical of her husband's motives is apt to be rated as generally mistrusting by her spouse. A husband who says that he is often likely to doubt his wife's word and is hostile, is apt to be found by his wife to be a less than satisfactory mate."

"Sometimes husbands and wives see themselves quite differently from the way they are seen by their partners. This can affect a marriage positively or negatively, depending on the circumstances, the report indicates. For instance, if a man thinks he is generous and cooperative and his wife credits him with possessing these virtues to an even greater extent than he thought, the marriage is likely to benefit."

"If, on the other hand, a wife believes she is more giving, self-effacing and cooperative than her husband, but her husband fails to agree with this assessment, the marriage is likely to suffer."

"Happily married couples, the report indicates, believe that they share positive qualities to about the same extent."

"It is striking that happily married couples often seem to hold themselves, as well as their partners, in high esteem. Underlying their relationship is the idea, 'What can I do to make a go of our marriage?'"

"With unhappily married people, the story is quite different, according to the investigator. She says that a troubled husband or wife seeking help from a marriage counselor is more likely than not to ask, 'What can be done to change my spouse?' Seldom, she says, is the question put: 'How can I change to improve my marriage?'"

"Dr. Luckey notes that the qualities most likely to contribute to less than satisfactory marriages are skepticism and mistrustfulness."

ment at this session of the Legislature. Of course, we had conversed a little with Governor Bratcher, and some other folks of stature. It looks today that this will not be adopted by the General Assembly, and was poorly handled by members entrusted to its passage.

GREAT BIG SPORT - Maybe tournament bridge can't be classed as a sport. It's probably a past-time, or some word would classify the participants in this, except the game of 52 cards as plain nuts. Regardless, those bridge matches are attracting record entries and on-lookers. Complaint of sponsors is that no admission is charged. Upwards of 6,000 players are expected for the American Bridge League tournament in Louisville. Every hotel, motel etc is sold out.

BIG PROTECT - How big is this Medicare plan about which county seat and community hearings and sign-ups are being held? Kentucky alone has 59,000 persons over 65 years of age on the Public Assistance register, all of which would be eligible for Medicare. The total eligible for Medicare cards.

PREDICTION - Reports and some 'misinformation' to the contrary, this forty poundage control vote on Mar. 20 will be a 1 in favor. This is sort like the groom being led to the altar with the bride's father at back with a double-barrel shotgun.

ALARMING - A report at hand reads that at least 100,000 charity drives are held in the United States. We are truly our brother's keepers.

STRATEGIC - One of the boosts for attracting industry to Kentucky is that we have a wide, a single, and a double distance [automobile] of 70% of the nation's population.

THEY PROPOGATE - Kentucky's deer population is estimated this week at 50,000 and the buck and doe population continues to climb.

THOUGHT - The Paducah, Hopkinsville, Mayfield etc areas are promoting western Kentucky as vacationers paradise because of Barkley and Kentucky Reservoirs, plus the Land Between the Lakes. With announcement last week that General Leber of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has given approval for the long sought Upper Tygart's Dam, it is feasible that an area civic group could be formed to give this part of Kentucky the same kind of favorable publicity. We will have Cave Run, Grayson and Upper Tygart waters, with their scenic views, and all near Interstate 64. We have a lot of advantages over western Kentucky, i.e., Interstate; heavier population within 125 or 150 miles; more interesting tourism; our streams are purer and will propagate trout; and [for industry] closer markets and ample labor supply. Those three reservoirs could completely change the economy of the area in the next generation.

DROPPING - Kentucky has 140,000 farms, of 2,000 from last year and still dropping. The land doesn't shrink, but fewer people are acquiring more of it . . . plus government acquisition.

VIRTUAL CERTAINTY - By the time you read this the Kentucky State Senate may have already voted, and approved the bill, giving University name and Statute to Morehead, Eastern, Western and Murray. It's due for a vote today [Thursday] or tomorrow. Despite opposition from the President of the University of Kentucky and the Louisville Courier-Journal, the bill passed the House 83-0 and has the blessing of ETB.

DISTURBED - With all this noise at the Rowan County Courthouse over the 100% tax assessment, plus return of checks representing the Department of Revenue . . . City Tax Assessor Noah E. Kennard must be alarmed that some of the first solid ground under his head property is supposed to be assessed at 60% of market value, and the tax payers are looking over this probable 75% in almost all of Kentucky's fourth class cities.

ALARMING - As predicted in this newspaper two years ago, insurance underwriters are looking over this probable water shortage in Morehead. Your policy could be cancelled.

ENCOURAGING - The Red Cross Bloodmobile collected 129 pints at Morehead Monday. That's pretty good. Although most was given by MSC students, it is heartening to record that a greater number of townspeople had their sleeves rolled up.

LEAVING - Russ Brown, Manager of Chakras [Tra] Theatre in Morehead is being transferred, probably to Danville - details later. Russ has been a hard core of the maximum dedicated workers in the Bloodmobile program. Offhand, we call special and deserving attention [with community thanks] to John Collins and Mrs. C.C. Mayhall.

SOMETIMES DREAMS COME TRUE - The biggest crowd ever in Morehead was to hear President Truman - second time - last year. The crowd was somewhere in our dreams last night we saw Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey speaking right here in our midst.

WINDING UP A 'FLU' WEEK - Trying to infect and kill and capture Viet Cons seems to be rather closely comparable with trying to dip water with a sieve. A news item reports that chimpanzees has about the same degree of intelligence as a six year old child. That applies to many to an extent. It is strange anomaly for Chinese to

Water Conservation Spurred by Meters

NEW YORK (UPI) - Water conservation is being urged by engineers in many areas of the country suffering critical water shortages. . . The United States has had water meters since 1850, when Henry R. Worthington, founder of the present Worthington Corporation, invented the first commercial water meter. . . Today an estimated 164 million persons live served by meters. The greatest single achievement of the water meter is considered to be water conservation, according to Andrew K. Richardson, president of Worthington's Gammot/Calmest meter division. . . Water Wasters - Undetected leaks in mains or faucets can be a serious source of water waste. For example, under 60 pounds of pressure, which is approximately normal household pressure, the amount of water lost through a 1/2-inch opening is 200 gallons a day. . . A recent industry advance, aimed at reducing the cost of reading and billing residential units, has been the development of the outside register. This eliminates the need for entry to the house by the reader and the time and labor loss of a return trip when the source cannot be entered on the first visit. Worthington markets two systems for outside meter reading - the Two-Head system and Read-A-Meter. Both are electrically operated, with the meter inside the house and the register mounted outside.

Ranger's Column

U.S. Forest Service Column, No. 1

When a forester normally thinks of a forest he thinks of many living things. Chuck Saboites who is a ranger on the Jefferson National Forest at New Castle, Virginia, has what I thought was a good definition which is as follows:

A forest is a good sized tract of land covered with trees. Now that sounds all right, doesn't it - or does it? Wait a moment. Let us look at that definition. Maybe it should be changed a little. What of other plants besides trees in the forest - and, do we think of streams and lakes as part of the forest? When we think of trees, do we think of birds in the branches, squirrels playing on the limbs, or raccoons in hollow trunks? It looks as if we shall have to be more careful when we think and talk about forests, for all these things are an important part of the forest and should be included in the definition of a forest.

Foresters think of the forest as a combination of soil, water, plants, and animals closely associated and more or less dependent on one another. The very kind and nature of the plants and animals depend to a great extent upon the kind and amount of soil available. The continued existence of the soil and its fertility depend to a large extent upon the kinds and numbers of plants it continues to grow.

Plants and animals can't live without water. Streams and lakes dry up when the plant cover isn't heavy enough to preserve the snow and rainfall. Some trees and plants depend upon certain animals for distribution of their seed. The well-being of some animals depends upon a particular kind of plant. In short, no living thing of the forest can get along without the help of other living things found there.

In the management of the National Forests, the Forest Service takes into consideration the essential findings concerning the habits and requirements of the wild creatures. Areas are sometimes cleared in the forest so that lower growing food plants can thrive and also be nearby larger trees which furnish the cover for refuge and rest.

When the timber producing trees become mature and are ready for harvesting, the needs of wildlife are not forgotten. Hollow trees that serve as dens for raccoons or special trees which furnish nesting sites for birds may be left standing. Clear cutting timber in small blocks leaves wooded patches and openings close together, making an excellent wildlife habitat.

Tree plantings are arranged to provide openings for wildlife and species valuable as food and cover; are fre-

USO Revived in Rowan; Hogge Named Chairman

Major General Arthur Y. Lloyd, Adjutant General and State Chairman for USO, has appointed Attorney Elijah M. Hogge to serve as local Chairman for the United Service Organization, Inc. [USO].

The USO is being revived to surprisingly serve the second generation of U.S. servicemen.

Three and one-third million big game animals, thousands of predators and fur bearers and untold millions of smaller animals and birds live on the national forests.

There are over 80,000 miles of good fishing streams and within the national forests also there are over 2 1/4 million acres of natural and artificial lakes that are used for fishing. It is easy to see, if we stop to think about it, that there are many things in the forest besides the trees - are there not? Also that the youth of the nation has an incomparable heritage in its national forest wildlife.

Clennie Hollon

If our pore farmers don't vote for a acre poundage program, they aim to cut our bases 15%. But if we vote for the acre poundage, they aim to raise us 6.5%. You know us pore. We will vote for a raise before we will vote for a cut regardless of the after effects. Of course us pore don't understand them government figgers no 'count nowadays. If we don't vote for the Program we git a cut. If we vote for the Program, we git a raise. Just what is the standing of the Program anyways?

Too, we hear tell that before the vote, we will git a notice of our acreage base with the 15% cut. Since most of the bases of us pore ain't much, 15% of nearly nothing don't amount to nothing nowadays. My base will be cut to exactly .5 of an acre with the 15% cut. Then Herbert Childers and them other farmers in that office are going ahead and figger out the poundage system and figger out how many pounds the average is in Lee County. After this is done, we will be sent a new figger of how much tobacco we can grow on our base. If we vote the new regulations in. And we git a 6.5% raise in our base. Of course it is a bit confusing right about here. Say we already got our notice of a cut of 15% first. Then we vote for the new system and we git a 6.5% raise. Will that still figger up that we got a 8.5% cut after all? Or does it mean that if we vote right we can git an actual raise of 21.3% above the amount we could have growed this year if we hadn't voted for the new acre-poundage program? Maybe you think I ain't confused, but I am. All this figgering mize have been done a pair that new modern math that us pore don't know a thing about.

Although we know the best program has been figgered out for us and we should just accept it and then take the consequences later, but the best interest of us pore would be just to vote to let things go along like they are. That feller a feller us with a tape measure all the time is bad enough; but when his buddy starts carrying a pair of scales, we are a going to git nervous. Just wait and see.

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

It's somewhat interesting to observe that the newspapers are a-bringing that the Governor has control of the Kentucky Legislature.

That's no news - its been going on since Isaac Shelby was Chief Executive.

He and Timothy ain't exactly taking up for the Governor, but we would like to know who is going to kick the show going after the General Assembly finishes its 60 days, pay-year-round, meet-every-two-year session.

We herewith predict all them Judges of the Court of Appeals will vote for a 100 percent tax assessment will be defeated at the next election.

I see by the papers where we was still making a little headway in this the Great Society was putting every, Congressman Richard Rousevar of Indiana has reported we just did $23,700 to a group of our fine citizens for studying the "life cycle and behavior of the African ostrich."

Congressman Rousevar was of the opinion it was mighty fine to get the latest data on how the ostriches was having in Africa and to get this $23,700 put in circulation on the poverty circuit, but he was a little alarmed, he said, that maybe them Government agencies was overdoing the matter. Fer instance, he had took note where the Department of Agriculture had just named a professor at the State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, New York, $42,000 to "study the sex life of cabbages."

Personal Mister Editor, everybody already knows the ostrich buries his head in the sand when he sees trouble coming and I figger that's about all we need to know in this field. Actual, the African ostrich and them Government agencies was a head alike when they see trouble coming. One sticks his head in the sand and the other sticks his paws in the sand.

And I'm agin this $42,000 cabbage deal fer persons' reasons. The Government has already admitted they was tapping phone lines and hiding them "bug" contraptions around trying to get information about certain citizens and taxpayers. When we git to spending $42,000 to study the sex life of the poor old cabbages, it looks like we was invading to the tax straw the right to privacy give us in the Constitution.

I bring this matter up at the country store Saturday night and Zeke Grubb claimed we was taking one step forward and two steps backwards in a heap of these poverty programs. Fer instance, he reported he had saw in the papers where the Revenue agents had went all out to git the moonshiners in Georgia.

The agents, said Zeke, claimed them self employed fellers in Georgia was cheating the Government out of $20 million a year in liquor taxes, so they clamped down on the bootleggers so hard they was shutting off the main line of supply to Atlanta and the legal liquor stores was suffering a shortage.

The figgered by blowing up the stills they would git $20 million more in

Working Women Like Their Jobs

NEW YORK (UPI) — Many married women with new jobs had taken them because of the job, they find they like.

The Institute of Life Insurance said that some form of financial security was expected. What was not expected was the number of women who said they preferred to work.

Your... Social Security

By Thomas E. Thompson - Ashland District Mgr. For Social Security - Information: District Social Security Office, 1816 Carter Avenue - Ashland, Ky. Phone 325-7666.

The social security office in Ashland, Kentucky, will be open to the public on Saturday mornings until the end of March to afford persons age 65 or over an opportunity to sign up for the medical insurance part of Medicare, Earl Tyler, Social Security Field Representative in Rowan and Carter Counties, said today.

He explained that some other folks work Monday through Friday and cannot visit the social security office during regular hours without losing time from their jobs. The Saturday office hours will also give young people a chance to take older relatives to the social security office without losing time from work.

People 65 or over before 1966 will have medical insurance protection when it starts in July only if they sign up by March 31. Many social security beneficiaries have already received enrollment cards in the mail. If they have lost their cards, they can get another at the Ashland, Kentucky, Social Security office.

Other persons 65 or older who want to sign up for medical insurance and have never applied for social security benefits before they are working full time or do not have enough social security work credit to get benefits, should get in touch with the Ashland social security office.

The Ashland Social Security Office is located at 1816 Carter Avenue. The telephone number is 325-7666.

Spring Clean-Up: Here's How to Make Home Spic and Span

Spring Clean-Up Week is rolling around again, and you can do your share toward making your home and your community a better place to live by following these few simple suggestions, says the American Insurance Association.

- You can start the clean-up job in your own attic. This is frequently a place where old newspapers, furniture, and other discarded combustibles collect. Go through the newspapers and old magazines, and throw out those you no longer want. There will be a new newspaper arriving tomorrow, and new magazines next week or next month.
- Also, look around the attic and see if there is any clothing you will never wear. Throw it out or give it to a charitable organization which, in turn, will pass it on to some needy person or sell the garment for rags. Many charitable organizations make a good income through selling old newspapers and rags, and you can help the charity by turning these old combustibles into useful dollars.
- Check the attic light. If it is not working right, have it repaired by a qualified electrician.
- Now, check fire hazards that may exist in the bedroom closets. If there are old blankets or worn out sheets and other items you may never use again, throw these out, too, or give them to a charitable organization. And, incidentally, never step into unlighted closets with lighted candles or matches. Always use a flashlight. In fact, it is a good plan to keep a flashlight on the shelf in closets that are frequently used.
- In bedrooms, too, check lights, extension cords and switches, and have them repaired by a qualified service man if they are not in good operating order. Window air conditioners should be serviced at least once a year by a qualified maintenance man to be sure the unit is well lubricated and will run smoothly. A dry overhauled bearing in a motor can cause an unwanted fire. In bedrooms, too, throw out old newspapers and magazines if they have accumulated.

- If you have smokers in your house, make sure that there are plenty of ash trays in every room, including the bedrooms. And keep in mind that one should never smoke in bed. Matches and smoking are a leading cause of fire, and are responsible for one out of every five fires.
- In the living room and dining room, as in the bedroom, make sure that all electrical equipment is in working order. Check extension cords if you use them, and never run them under rugs, over hooks or nails or in any place where they might be subject to wear or damage. Remember, American Insurance Association studies show that every fifth fire is caused by misuse of electricity.
- In the kitchen all electrical equipment should be checked. If you use a gas range, make sure the pilot light is working properly. If you have a towel rack, it should never be placed where towels will hang over an open flame. Keep range ovens, broilers and burners free of grease, and if you have a grease container it should be kept away from the range.

Basements, like attics, are places where unneeded combustibles accumulate. Throw out any old newspapers or magazines that have collected there during the winter. Store flammables like cans of paint in a corner well away from the household heating unit. If you have been painting, and have left rags, nearby empty paint containers or worn out brushes, throw them out.

If you have an attached garage, cleaning it up is part of the over-all job. If oil has dripped on the garage floor during the winter, clean it up and scour the oil-stained spot with a grease-cutting detergent. If you keep gasoline in the garage for use in a power lawn mower or an outboard motor boat, be sure you keep it in a container listed by Underwriters Laboratories. If it is listed, it will bear the U.L. label.

When you clean up your yard, place your rakings on the curb where they can be picked up by the trash collector. It is advisable not to burn leaves. Most communities prohibit outside fires or require the household to get a permit to burn leaves or trash.

One reason civic authorities oppose leaf burning is that the smoke from the fire adds to the contamination of air already polluted to an uncomfortable degree. Another reason is that the sparks from an outside fire, if carried by the wind, can start another fire some distance away.

If you are in a locality which permits the burning of leaves, never start a fire on a windy day. And before you start it, be sure the garden hose is hooked up to the faucet and ready for use in case the fire gets out of hand.

Permanent press now comes into living. The use of the new wrinkle-resistant fabric treatment that eliminates ironing usually has been associated with outer ready-to-wear. Now one maker, available, is introducing it in its regular line so that bras keep their shape and fit and don't wrinkle or droop. The firm tested its fabric on as many as 40 washings before introducing it in living.

It was found to happen - wrinkles first, even to eye makeup. Women's Wear Daily reports that one Los Angeles firm, "Tropicat" is introducing the spec in 10 shades of hues to complement eye cosmetics and dress fabric.

The nude look so prevalent in spring and summer fashions for women will reach into a handful of '66's girls but not with the remainder of the nation's 70 million females. So says the Corset and Brassiere Council. It does not predict what the next "nude look" in fashion will be but quotes a foundation industry spokesman follows: "Through New Looks and H-line sheaths and shifts women have tried on brasieres and jetties to mold figure to fashion. And able foundations have become ever lighter, ever more soft and more comfortable, they are essential as ever to the girl and well-groomed appearance."

The newest in men's hats is crush, stain and water resistant. It's been introduced by the one manufacturer (that Courtesy of America) who used a new felt - called Surfex. The hat makers said the permeability and silhouette measurements are the pinch front and center creases. In actual tests, they added, a 200-pound man sat for a whole act of opera then watched his "crushed" hat resume its original line.

Save an old handbag to make a first aid sewing or whatnot kit to pack in car trunk for emergencies.

Mix peanut butter with honey and raisins as a variation on the children's favorite sandwich.

Keep shirt sleeves from tangling in the washer by buttoning them at buttons on the front of the shirt.

Fresh coconut will be easier to remove if you heat the coconut shell in the oven first.

Stubborn lipstick stains on cups can be removed by rubbing with salt.

Wilted asparagus can sometimes be refreshed by placing the stems in cold water.

Lemons heated in hot water before using will give more juice.

Reldom-used luggage is a good place to store blankets if short on storage space.

An old spray top bottle filled with turpentine is handy to have around when cleaning hands of paint or grease.

If candles are too large or too small for candle holders, hold bottom of candle in very hot water to soften, then mold to fit.

Cook dried fruits in the water they were soaked in for full flavor.

A hot water bottle that's pretty as well as functional is better for keeping in the bottle has a quilted exterior and a floral design in red, green and white or blue, green and white. What's more, the bottle is insulated so it needn't be wrapped in a towel.

There's something new in the way of beach loungers under the sun. A new corporation formed to market reinforced paper products has come out with a decorative paperboard beach "mat" that can be elevated for leaning or laid flat as the base for a picnic or camp ground on the beach. It folds for easy carrying and storage.
