THE TRAIL BLAZER BROKE out with a rash of colicists last Saturday. A conservative estimate was seven. The best item we lift from Alton Payne's "The Rambler." "The best break of the week was related to me the other day and is supposed to have happened in a government clinic Monday. "Prof Hader was talking about the pyramids for some reason or the other when he casually mentioned that it took 2,000 years to build them. "One of the students, and he must have been a keen one, said, "Please, Doctor, was it a government job?"

BOB MUTTERS SAYS THAT HE is going to make carnival employees buy fishing licenses—they're catching all the "suckers."

Johnson Says Night Football At MSTC Is Being Considered

Schedule Is Released: Holbrook Will Be First Opponent

Night football is being considered at Morehead State Teachers College, according to Coach Ellis Johnson, who released the fall football schedule today.

He says he will have a good first team but few good replacements. Ten letter men were lost by graduation but 14 will return. The Eagles need the greatest improvement of any team in the United States fall, according to Dr. E. E. Littenhouse, University of Louisville professor whose football rating system, difference by coach method is nationally known and recognized.

AN ATHLETIC PROGRAM THAT IS AN ASSET TO COMMUNITY LIFE

The athletic program being supervised by Coach Ellis Johnson is providing a large number of adults and children with healthful exercise and congenial companionship.

IS THERE NO HELP?

For the third successive week, a pedestrian has been injured or killed on U. S. 60 in Rowan county. Rowan county has only 11,000 inhabitants.

HIGHWAY FATALITIES ARE AVOIDABLE

Pick up a newspaper, anywhere in the United States, any day in the week, and you will read about fatal highway accidents.

In a recent study of 985 drivers involved in fatal highway accidents the Bureau of Public Roads pointed out that only twenty-eight served time in jail and only ninety-five paid fines.

A study of the case histories creates the impression that the penalties imposed by the courts are seldom in "reasonable proportion" to the offenses.

In regard to many of the highway fatalities the public takes the view that they are the result of the hap-hazard hazards of the road.

FEMININE LEGS IN CELLOPHANE

Femininity may or may not owe a debt of gratitude to Herman C. Palm at the United States Court-house in Chicago, for his gift to womankind.

These leg protectors of his, however, impart to their wearers something of the aspect of a hare's feet.

Again, the invention seems to fall short of its purpose. How about the exposed arm and neck? Why not wrap the entire lady in cellophane and be done with it?

At the time when the Continental Congress was wrangling over Thomas Jefferson's draft of the Declaration of Independence, Philadelphia was suffering from a heat wave.

by lively stable swarmed in and began to get busy. It soon became apparent that if King George was to be defied, defiance must be speeded up.

The result was that the declaration was rushed 4 or 5 days, July 4, 1776, rather than August 2 or September 4, John Hancock and others signed the historic document.

A CYCLE OF HOUSES

Probably the towns and cities illustrate changing styles in houses in our time more than do rural districts. The farmhouse, especially the well-built one, is likely to last through several generations.

Even in our small Kentucky towns one can find evidence of how the highway or the opening of a park has drawn the fashionable people in a certain direction.

Such as we of the older generation lament the passing of certain phases of country life, we must admit that more rapid changes have been meaningfully going on in the town and city.

One of my most tragic visits to a famous house occurred some ten years ago, tragic, that is, because of what I saw. In this suburban mansion I had lived a former governor of our state.

THE G. O. P. AND THE OLD SOUTH

The advertiser enjoyed reading Chairman John D. M. Hamilton's gay address to Alabama Republicans in Birmingham in which he laid down the proposition that the Republican party in this country will never again amount to anything until the New Deal is repudiated at the polls.

While we enjoyed reading the speech, nevertheless, we must say:

Try again, Mr. Chairman! You didn't do so well this time. The next time you speak over the heads of Southern Republicans to Southern Democrats kindly give specific attention to this question: Isn't a fact that the only enemy the Southern people ever had was and is the Republican party?

As the old Negro said, when asked by a sorry white man to burn a barn for a price, 'I ain't studyin' you.'—Montgomery, Ala., Advertiser.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON FOR JULY 3 A CHOICE OF LOYALTIES

LESSON TEXT—Joshua 12-24:14-21. GOLDEN TEXT—As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord, Joshua 24:15.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Choosing Sides. JUNIOR TOPIC—A Loyal Leader.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Choice of Loyalties. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Man's Highest Allegiance.

"Lives of all great men remind us," according to the poet, that we too may make our lives sublime, and thus leave our prints behind us in the shifting sands of time.

During the next three months we are to share in the study of the life stories of great men and women which will not only stimulate the ambition, but which also reveal what God can do through those who are ready to follow Him.

Moses, God's great leader for Israel, having brought them out of the land of bondage and entered the promised land, is about to leave them. God's workman is about to die, but His work is to go on. God is not taken by surprise.

I. A Prepared Man Takes Command (12-6)

"Moses said: now therefore arise." Life is like that: "The king is dead; long live the king," is the cry of those who live under a despotic ruler.

II. Promise (vv. 2-4). God gave the land to Israel. Every place that Joshua planted his foot upon was to be his possession, even as God had promised Moses.

III. Power (v. 5). No man is able to stand against God's service. Faith is God's will, in God's way, in God's time. It was true of Joshua; it is true today. Men set up their opposition to God's will, but because with the assumed belief that they had the position, power, or money, they can readily crush the petty little band of Christian workers. Russia tried it. They even "abolished" God. But religion survives, and it survives, secretly but none the less sincerely and successfully. There can be no power of man or devil that can do what the man who does the will of God.

IV. Courage (v. 6). To serve God means to be steadfast in His help. Faith is God's will, in God's way, in God's time. It was true of Joshua; it is true today. Men set up their opposition to God's will, but because with the assumed belief that they had the position, power, or money, they can readily crush the petty little band of Christian workers. Russia tried it. They even "abolished" God. But religion survives, and it survives, secretly but none the less sincerely and successfully. There can be no power of man or devil that can do what the man who does the will of God.

V. An Experienced Man Gives Counsel (24:12-21)

More than two decades have passed since the appointment of Joshua to lead Israel. God has fulfilled every promise. Israel is in the Promised Land. Before the aged leader dies he calls the leaders of his people together to urge them to continue in the way of faith and loyalty to God. This he does by:

1. Example (v. 15). "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord," he said, and effectively called others to devotion to the Lord unless she sets them an example. No one takes any stock in the teacher or teacher who says, "Do as I say, not as I do." We are more than signposts.

2. Instruction (vv. 16-19). Remembering God's dealings with them, the people declared their faith, and they served the Lord. They spoke rather glibly. Joshua instructs them. God is not interested in lip service. He does not need them so much as they need Him. He does not look upon their confession of Him, if they come to it by fits and starts.

3. Warning (v. 20). God will visit His judgment on His people if they forsake Him and turn away—such is Joshua's warning. We who look back to the history of Israel know that they did forsake Him, and the judgment of God is still upon them.

Owensville—The local option question bobbed up again in Bagh county last week as proponents of the issue started the circulation of a petition calling upon County Judge Walter Shrout to call a special election to determine the question of whether or not the sale of intoxicating liquors should be prohibited. Petitions were started simultaneously in the various sections of the county. The present movement marks the second attempt made on the part of the dry forces to prohibit the sale of liquor. The first attempt for county wide local option some years ago was not brought to a vote because of faulty petitions. A later local option vote in three precincts in the eastern part of the county, Salt Lick No. 1, Salt Lick No. 2 and White Sulphur, failed of its purpose as only one of the three precincts, Salt Lick No. 1, returned a small dry majority, which was called off by the courts because of some alleged defect in the calling of the election. What success is being experienced in getting the petitions signed has not been made public.

Your Opportunity To Make Further Use Of The Services Of A Gifted Young Statesman

BY PROMOTING "HAPPY" CHANDLER YOU WILL PROMOTE THE BEST INTERESTS OF KENTUCKY

The rare abilities as a public servant which "Happy" Chandler has shown as governor, will be lost to Kentuckians unless he is sent to the United States Senate. Kentucky cannot afford to lose the services of this gifted young statesman under whose leadership Kentucky's government has amazingly improved.

"Happy" Chandler is the best governor Kentucky has had. The record of startling achievement proves it. The superb abilities he has shown as a public servant should be utilized further in the service of the commonwealth. He would make as good a United States Senator as he has made a governor.

The major contribution which can be made as governor has been made by Governor Chandler. With completion of the second session of the general assembly his job is virtually completed. Only routine administrative duties remain.

Governor Chandler has made himself available for further public service by becoming a candidate for United States Senator. This is the only opportunity open to him to continue serving the people who have been so greatly benefitted by his fine administration as governor. He either goes to the senate or retires next year to private life.

The unusual ability "Happy" Chandler has shown as a champion of good government, will be lost to Kentuckians unless he is sent to the United States senate. Kentucky cannot afford to lose this gifted young statesman. Such rare gift for constructive public leadership should be employed for the good of the state. The senatorship is the only avenue open through which he may continue to serve Kentucky.

Placement Bureau Is Extremely Active

Dr. Falls In Touch With Graduates And Others In Field

By J. J. Red Whitte
According to Dr. J. D. Falls, the Placement Bureau is going active aid to graduate students. By keeping in touch with school administrators in Kentucky and surrounding states, its personnel are prepared to notify students of vacancies.

While the bureau does not promise the graduate a job on a platter, nor guarantees every student a job, it does open up the way for worthy students to obtain employment. Often the contacts are made before the student graduates and he starts working as soon as his college work is finished.

This year, Carl Stewart, who completed his work the fall semester of 1937, was sent to West Liberty to take the place of a teacher who resigned in the middle of the year.

Other students who have recently been employed and will begin their work this fall are Irving Triplett, physical education teacher and coach at Hamlin, W. Va., and Joe Marshall, music and band instructor, Morgan County, West Liberty, Kentucky.

PLANE TAKES MEDICINE WHEN EPIDEMICS OCCUR

One of the well-known manufacturers of drugs and medicines in Germany recently secured considerable publicity in Greece when it was announced that their specially built delivery airplane would arrive at the Athens airport, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Department of Commerce.

The airplane is to be used to convey urgently needed medical preparations to all points of the continent. The plane is specially designed for the quick transportation of drugs to areas affected by epidemics. It has a capacity for four passengers and about 36,000 pounds of freight. The four-passenger seats may be converted into two beds and the cargo space can accommodate an additional six passengers.

THESE ARE LIFESAVERS

That's what Consumers Information calls these workers in a Pittsburgh glass plant, who are testing and finishing non-shatterable glass for use in automobiles. It is explained that one of the greatest hazards in auto accidents used to be flying glass, which was the most common cause of injury. Now all American cars are equipped with the shatter-proof variety, developed by American industrial research experts especially for this purpose, and the saving of many lives is the result. The man shown above keeps a constant vigil with his pyrometer, to assure proper melting conditions. The girl at the left is polishing the rough edges of a car window.

Irvin "Puss" Triplett, a mainstay on the Eagle's grid machine for three years has been appointed head football coach at Hamlin High school in Hamlin, West Virginia, according to word received here.

Triplett, selected from a score or more of applicants, will take his post September 1. "Puss," as he is known to his friends will receive his A. B. degree in August.

While a member of the football squad, "Puss" played regular tackle and was considered one good reason why the Eagles had such marked success during the '36 and '37 campaigns.

WHAT HAPPENED? LOOK! HERE'S THE BUTTLE! GOSH! A BROTHER CAN YOU SPARE US A BUCK?

From a notice received Tuesday, June 22, from the College-Executive Committee, Morehead State Teachers College is now offering a major in French and a French and German combination major. The latter requires eighteen hours of French, twelve of them in the junior and senior levels, and 12 hours of German.

Dr. Emma O. Bach, instructor of foreign languages, has long been working toward the passage of this new major.

The members of the Committee are President H. A. Babb, Miss Mary Page Milton, Dean W. H. Vaughan, Drs. J. G. Black, Romie Judd, J. D. Falls, Deans Clarence Nickell and Curraleen Smith and Messrs. W. C. Lappin and H. C. Hagan.

Oliver Hill—Ernest E. Tackett, son of the late Tom Tackett, who was born and reared of the old Primitive Baptist Faith, has been interested in his answering of a "good conscience toward God," a few days ago, and being fond of an old friend, he has been here, he set sail from his home in western Pennsylvania, for the place of his birth, here to be baptized by a relative, Rev. Eph Tackett.

He not only sought the baptism by the minister of his faith but he sought to be baptized in the waters of Tygart at Limestone where a brother had been baptized by the same man in former years. After he had promised to obey the commandments as he sees them, he and his wife visited with relatives for a few days and left for their home. Mr. Tackett, evidently, endowed with the spirit from on high, will walk ever hereafter in a newness of life.

U. Of K. Prof Speaker At Friday Convo

Dr. Amry Vandebosch, head of the department of political economy at the University of Kentucky, spoke in chapel, Friday morning, June 24, on "The Present European Situation."

Dr. Vandebosch asserted that the dictatorships of Europe arose as the result of post-war panic and desire for security on the part of the people.

Service in France during the World War has equipped Dr. Vandebosch with a first-hand knowledge of the havoc wrought by the conflict. He has made two trips to Europe to study political and economical conditions. He has written several books on political and economical problems.

THE BRIDE WORE RED

BEATRICE FABER

PRECEDING CHAPTERS

Wade Rawlins, novelist, who is searching in the Pacific Coast is stranded when his car falls into a ravine. He goes to the Kilbourne house to ask for the use of the phone. He is mistaken for a tramp and as Mrs. Kilbourne has a hobby of taking in tramps and the chauffeur has disappeared that morning with all the silver, he is engaged to drive against his will. After a few exciting and humorous situations he wants to stay in the strange household as it will furnish him with good copy.

CHAPTER SIX

Wade was exhilarated rather than tired from the many varied things which had crowded his day, but as he was not to be on call that night and there was nothing to do, he took off his uniform and put on the pajamas, leaping robe and slippers which the butler had left in his room. He was just ready to go to bed when he heard some one drive up. He couldn't see who it was, but whoever it was seemed to be having trouble. He was in the garage when Kane came in hurriedly, ran to the phone and dialed a number.

"Betty," he asked and his voice was soft and strained at the same time. "Everybody's asleep. I tell you I can't wake father up. He'd be so furious I never would get anything out of him. I promise you I will get it—I'm not one to wobble—but, Betty, I can't right now. I know nobody forced me, but—yes I'll wait while you ask them."

There was a pause. Then: "I can't Betty. I'm sorry if this is embarrassing to you. Yes, I know you okayed my credit—but five grand and only a minute to get it. Yes I'll wait."

Another pause. Nervousness had become panic when Kane spoke next. "No—no! I'll come down to see you. If you come up here, all father will do will be to turn me out for good and you won't get any of it. What's that? You say you'll wait until noon, tomorrow? Thanks a lot."

He hung up the phone and stumbled toward the car. It was then he saw Wade.

"What do you mean listening to my private affairs?" he stormed.

"Five thousand!" said Wade.

"They took you to the cleaners didn't they? Now take it easy. I didn't mean to pry into anything, but I did hear some of it. I might as well know all. Just because I'm older than you and had more experience, perhaps I can be of some assistance."

It was an old story. He had gone to the Red Mill, a girl introduced him to a couple of her friends, they played cards, at first he won his share, then—

"Yes, I know the rest," said Wade. "Now what I suggest is that you go to bed, get a good night's—"

"How can I sleep? How will it help any?"

"Please do as I say. I think by the time you are awake in the morning, you can forget the whole affair. I've knocked around quite a lot in my time; I know something about tough guys and how to handle them. You can trust me."

"I don't know why," said Kane, "but somehow I believe you can get me out of this jam. I don't know how to thank you, but—"

"It's nothing, but it might come in handy—please take this. Some way, it will make me feel better."

He placed three one-dollar bills in Wade's hand. Wade, being a nice man, thrust the money in his pocket. Then when Kane was out of hearing, he went to the phone and asked for the number of the Red Mill.

He had just finished his conversation with Betty and her friends and stepped to the door for a breath of air, when another car drew up in front of the house. It was a taxi and whoever was in it, seemed to be having difficulty in getting out.

"Well what I want to know is what if I did ask you your name ten times? We're pals—you and —and pals ought to know each other's names is my motto."

It was Mr. Kilbourne. He looked as if he needed help so Wade walked rapidly toward him.

"You say this is my house? Well what's wrong with it? Answer me that! What are you whispering for—got a cold?" Mr. Kilbourne was also whispering.

"If you don't need me any more I'll take my fare and be on my way," said the driver.

"Thanks for the ride, old boy"

"Steve, you're the only person alive with a standing invitation to drop in on us."

Meet you, as per agreement, some other time."

"But my fare?" said the driver.

"It's five dollars."

"What's five dollars between friends? I don't need it. You just keep it. I won a lot tonight. How much do I owe you?"

When the driver saw the big roll of bills Mr. Kilbourne drew from his pocket, he said the amount was fifteen dollars. Mr. Kilbourne held out the roll to him but before the driver could take it, Wade stepped between them. He took the bills, put them back in Mr. Kilbourne's pocket and leaned over to look at the meter.

From his pocket he drew out the bills Kane had given him.

"Here's three dollars—fifteen cents less than that thing reads and three dollars more than you deserve. Now be on your way. I am handling this."

The driver gave Wade a look not exactly on the friendly side. But the only other answer he made was to start his motor and rush down the drive, with his hand on the horn.

ing place. His troubles were not over. One minute Mr. Kilbourne would berate him and say he needed no assistance; the next he would say he had always been fond of him and never expected to have another friend he loved so much. In fact, it was, under the circumstances, just the conversation one might expect. Wade kept up his end by trying to keep Mr. Kilbourne from shouting and falling down. At last they were in the house. Mr. Kilbourne insisted to help her.

Wade lifted her easily, but Jerry insisted she could not make it, he must put her down. They tried it once more. Again she said it was too high.

"All right," said Wade. "We'll try it another way."

He got down on all fours and said her to get on his back, he would raise her to the ledge that way.

"Goodnight," she said when she was safe in the room, "and thank you."

"Goodnight and a few're well-combed," he answered under every breath.

He had gone but a step or two when she called him back.

"I'll drop my purse," she said.

"Will you?"

It had opened where she had thrown it out. On the ground beside it lay her key.

IS PROHIBITION COMING BACK?

It wasn't the professional prohibitionists who brought about the charter in Kentucky and the second charter in the United States for 50 years and never mustered a corporal's guard of votes.

People voted the saloons out to get rid of them as a political nuisance and because "efficiency engineers" told them how much better the workers would work if they didn't have their drinks. They never thought of the blind pigs that were to spring up everywhere. No, the prohibitionists didn't bring about prohibition.

In Detroit today there are 3,000 places where it is legal to sell liquor by the glass.

Under prohibition by the most conservative estimate under the careful study of Police Commissioner Rutledge, there were 15,000 blind pigs—knowing no law except that of the jungle.

Old Italy is trying to point out that in an effort to escape from one intolerable situation a voter for prohibition and found the second far worse.

It is a law of logic that action brings reaction; that the harder the throw the greater the rebound; that violence begets violence; and temperance, temperance.

"Every reform," said of Sam Coleridge, "however necessary, will, by weak minds, be carried to an excess that itself will need reforming."

BACK-TO-THE-FARM MOVEMENT CONTINUES

The back-to-the-farm movement continues undiminished according to indications of a special 1935 survey just resumed by the Louisville District Office of the Department of Commerce.

In describing the results, William L. Austin, Director of the Bureau of Census says that one in every nine of the 3,900 farms enumerated reported persons who had not resided upon a farm five years previously. Farms in selected counties in 40 states were included in the project.

Craftsmen Club Of Breck To Go On Trip

To Go Through Tennessee And North Carolina; Mays Sponsor

The Craftsman Club of the Breckinridge Training School, according to Professor Jesse T. Mays, sponsor, was granted the first charter in Kentucky and the second charter in the United States to the national organization of Future Craftsmen of America.

The charter was granted from the standpoint of perfection in craftsmanship.

Members of the Craftsman Club are J. G. Black, Walter Carr, Bob Fraley, Clinton Tatum, and Harry Caudill.

Last year the club raised $55 repairing and building furniture for people in town. With the money which they raised, the club is taking a tour from June 23 to 26 through Tennessee and North Carolina. The club will visit Cumberland Falls, Norris Dam, Knoxville, Lookout Mountain, and the Indian Reservations in North Carolina. They will visit the power plant at Norris Dam, the lumber mills at Chattanooga, and the handcraft displays at the Indian Reservation. The Club will return by Asheville, North Carolina.

"What do you mean by calling me names?" said Jerry.

"Quiet! Folks trying to get some rest!" roared Mr. Kilbourne.

It was then a light flashed out came to the window. Wade managed to push Mr. Kilbourne into a clump of bushes where he would be invisible. He looked up at the window. It was Mrs. Kilbourne from an upstairs room. Some one bourn.

"Don't be alarmed, Mrs. Kilbourne," Wade said. "Some one who had been drinking too much insisted he lived here, but I got rid of him."

"That's very thoughtful of you," said Mrs. Kilbourne. "Strange he should think he lived here, but drinks get such funny ideas into their poor, befuddled heads. If he comes back, just tell him it's a mistake. Goodnight!"

He waited until the light had gone out, then helped Mr. Kilbourne to come out from his hid-and heard Jerry and Herbert Wheeler arguing.

"I don't feel like being kissed, Herbert," she said. "And that's that."

Then there was a sound he did not understand, until Jerry jumping out of the car, said: "And next time I'll slap you harder."

The car drove rapidly away. It was then she noticed Wade. She asked him why he was prowling around and why, especially had been snooping on her and Mr. Wheeler. They said good-night. But just as she neared the door and opened her purse she had no key, she explained. How would she get in. Wade suggested she try one of the windows. She seemed to be giving it careful consideration, then said they were too high, she was sure. He assured her he would be glad

Commenting on the report concerning dealing with the NYA program for out-of-school youth, Mr. Salyers expressed encouragement over the fact that 15,204 youth had left projects. "This is an indication," the state director said, "that many young people engaged on NYA work projects are taking advantage of their training opportunities and are obtaining jobs in private industry."

Although the major objectives of the National Youth Administration is to help underprivileged young people, the benefits accruing to the general public as a result of the program are not to be overlooked.
