Opening of Second Summer Term at MC Will Be July 18

Enrollment Figure May Reach 300 According to Current Reports

The second summer term, which opens Monday night, may have an enrollment of 300, according to reliable sources.

As is common to second summer terms in most teachers colleges, the enrollment will be much smaller than the first term.

Despite the small enrollment expectations, the curriculum for the second term will be varied. The art, English, education, commerce, and music departments will offer a more diversified schedule.

The Training school will close its lower division, thus making it possible to schedule directed teaching only in the high school division.

No special teachers will be recruited for the second summer session.

August 1 Deadline In Ky. For Renewal Of Drivers' Licenses

Drivers Will Be Unable To Obtain License Immediately After This Date

Approach of the August 1 deadline for renewing Kentucky drivers licenses finds the department of revenue and circuit court clerks busy preparing to inaugurate the new system created by the 1935 legislature.

Rowan county drivers may obtain their new licenses from Circuit Court Clerk Joe McKinney who received application forms this week.

The revenue department has started supplying a new application form and instruction manuals to the clerks to fill out in receiving applications.

The license act was tightened this year as a further step in Kentucky's war against highway accidents and to bring it into closer conformity with similar acts in other states.

Books On Safety For Children Are Displayed At MSTC

New, Unique Series Designed To Teach Accident Prevention

A unique elementary school book series called "On the Road to Safety," is on display at the library in Morehead State Teachers College.

This series of readers for use in the elementary grades is designed to promote safety. There is a reader for each of the grades of schools and the material is built upon safety measures and is designed to prevent accidents.

These books were written primarily because of the increasing accident rate in this country. During an average single year twelve many Americans die from accidents as were killed in the World War.

After goodbyes we boarded our train and our next thoughts are of Gettysburg, but we are disturbed by a "Rebel" on the train.

NOW IS THE TIME TO START THINKING ABOUT YOUR EXHIBITS

If you have any intentions of entering an exhibit, flower, chicken or what-have-you in the exhibit department of the 'bigger and better' 1938 Rowan County Fair, now is the time to start thinking about it.

GOOD BANKS MEAN A PROGRESSIVE COUNTRY

Morehead and Rowan county should be proud of their banking institutions. In spite of depressions and recessions they have continued to grow steadily, maintaining an enviable service throughout this section.

It should be understood, however, that a bank is the depository of other people's money. That money must be there when it is needed in any other excellent way.

In order to remain liquid a bank cannot loan money to every Tom, Dick and Harry indiscriminately.

Some of the things recently proposed in the way of bank credit would mean the return of wild-cat banking. That would be an infinite calamity.

For the good of this community and Rowan county in general, sound banks are necessary. We need banks such as those we now have—banks that have stood the stress of bad weather.

Certainly the fact that banks have large sums of money on hand is not to be regarded to the discredit. On the contrary, when there is a legitimate need for that money, it is there.

Not a bank in this country has asked that credit regulations be made more liberal. All of them would rather be safe than sorry.

WHY CHANDLER IS NEEDED IN THE UNITED STATES SENATE

The State of Kentucky now has a balanced budget for the first time in many years; a deficit of over thirty million dollars has been cleaned up since the election of Governor A. B. 'Happy' Chandler two years ago.

Assuming that the president still thinks of turning over his office to a successor in January, 1941, as he indicated a year or more ago, it is not unnatural for the electorate to begin looking around for that successor.

SAFETY EDUCATION PROGRAM IN SCHOOLS

Last week's announcement of the special emphasis which is to be placed on safety education in the local schools, has already created keen comment and seems to be a matter in which all parents are particularly interested.

WHAT CAN BE DONE

A short time ago a baby belonging to a young couple living near Morehead was at the point of death. The parents had no money. They were living at the home of his mother. He had a WPA not enough food in the house for everyone.

Provisionally a Morehead man, not well known to anyone in the family, dropped in on the family. Realizing the serious condition of the baby, he asked the doctor what could be done.

The Good Samaritan said that he would stand the expense. The baby was taken to Lexington. The baby died. The friend of the family paid the hospital costs.

With the help of donations of friends, he was able to partially collect some of the expense money. He can ill afford to pay it himself.

WHAT WILL HAPPEN IF I GET SICK?

No one can say when a new-born baby will die. But a statistician can forecast with remarkable accuracy the average age at which ten thousand babies will die.

Utilizing this well-known fact, Dr. Justin F. Kimball, Dallas educator, in 1929 presented an idea new to this country. The chilling effects of depression were just being felt.

Dr. Kimball surveys every medical case in Dallas, finds out what price one is paid to be sick in a hospital. Next he estimated how much sickness the average person might expect.

For three years the rest of America watched the Dallas experiment. They saw it emerge—uninjured—from a severe test: an influenza epidemic.

Suppose our typical subscriber needs an appendicitis operation. Ordinarily he would expect a hospital bill—exclusive of doctor's fees—of at least $100.

Funds needed to start a hospital group range from $2,000 to $20,000—depending on the size of the city. These initial expenses cover administrative costs and hospital billings for the first three months.

MATHEMATICAL JABBERWOCKY? Dr. Albert Einstein, cosmic Alpine climber extraordinary, is reputedly reckoning his famous theory of relativity, but he is because he believes that mathematics really fearsome about the mathematical jabberwocky posed recently by Dr. William Carmel of Toronto, who publicly labeled relativity "pure bunk."

Contrary to public opinion, Einstein's theory is readily grasped by physicists throughout the world. Stated simply, it can be understood by anyone of average intelligence.

So far, all evidence piled up since 1915 by such investigators as Auguste Piccard, Podolsky, Rosen, Michelson, Joos and Stahel, to mention the more prominent, has tended to sustain relativity.

THE CHURCHES TAKE STOCK OF THEIR PROSPECTS The churches did a business like piece of work Sunday when they took a religious census of Morehead. They were taking inventory much like a merchant takes an inventory of his stock.

OBITUARY

John Milton Fraley, of Morehead, Ky., passed away Friday evening, July 1, 1938, at 8 o'clock, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Pat Johnson, after an extended illness of many long months. As the curtains of night were drawn across the blue sky and the birds had folded their wings and all nature was closing their sleepy eyes the Master called for him and with a tired little sigh his agone white soul winged its way yonder to be with Jesus.

No more beautiful could have been the setting than now. When all nature is transformed into a picture of marvelous beauty that is wrapped in a carpet of softest green and sprinkled with God's most beautiful flowers, when the birds are singing their sweetest songs. He left this vale of tears with a beautiful testimony, "I'm going home," and winged his flight to realms above to bask in the sunlight of God's love forever more, leaving the rays of a beautiful Christian life to shine on and on.

About a year ago he accepted Christ and became a devout Christian and as the days went by his Christian life budded and bloomed into a full blown flower, characteristic of the lowly Nazarene, he sank deep into the love of God. Although he was a helpless invalid for many long months there was never a whisper of complaint and even when his voice failed as friends came and lingered at his bedside (and there were many) there was always a loving hand-clasp and a friendly smile for everyone.

He was the son of Daniel and Millie Fraley and was born at Bruin, Ky., Elliott county, May 8, 1864, being 74 years of age at the time of his death.

Early in life he was united in marriage to Miss Barbara Howerton of Newfoundland, Ky., who departed this life April 15, 1900. To this union were born five children. Mrs. F. S. McDowell and Mrs. Ben Hamilton of Ashland, Ky., Mrs. Pat Johnson of Morehead, Ky., Ester and Giffie, who died in infancy. He later was married in marriage to Miss Orpha Elliott, of Bascom, Ky., who survives him. To this union were born four children, Mrs. Lonnie Alderson, of Ashland, Ky., Mrs. Russell Brown and John M. Jr., of Selby, Ohio, and Estel, deceased. Eight brothers, Jim Fraley, Robert Fraley, of Burkey Ky., Taulbee, of Bloomville, Ohio, Cecil, of Detroit, Mich., R. M., of Phoenix, Ariz., and two deceased. Two sisters, Mrs. John Bowling of Sandy Hook, and Miss Mary Fraley, of Morehead, Ky.

Mr. Fraley was one of our leading citizens, having been a teacher in our local schools 29 years and was in government service 25 years, being postmaster at Farmers, Ky., for a period of 14 years where he was forced to resign on account of ill health. He was a member of Morehead Lodge 654, being a 50 year Mason the day of his death.

To know him was to love him and when he slipped into the shadows, the community lost a good man, the family a loving father, and humanity lost a friend. No more fitting words could we find to express his beautiful life than the words of the poet, "He lived in the house by the side of the road and was a friend to man."

SIEGE on the BLUE RIDGE

ENTER now Claudius Crozet, Esq., a picturesque and important figure in the Chesapeake and Ohio story. Ex-officer of Napoleon, first professor of engineering at West Point, an organizer of Virginia Military Institute, Principal Engineer of the State of Virginia, he was an engineering genius and man of vision.

Q He had been champion of steam railroads before any were operated in America, advocate of tunneling mountains before it had ever been attempted for a railroad. To him the State entrusted the tunneling of the Blue Ridge and building of the 17-mile Blue Ridge Railroad to connect with the Louisa Railroad, and later, become its property.

Q Having surveyed the mountains, Crozet anticipated "more difficulties in 8 1/2 miles than usually are spread over fifty." Yet he little knew how great would be the obstacles or how long the task. Work begun in 1849 was not ended until 1854. He had not foreseen the underground problems—rock of extraordinary hardness in one place, soft and crumbling formations in another... subterranean floods... dangerous rock-slides

Q Yet he won. Armed for his siege of the heights with none of the modern equipment, he built not one but four tunnels through the Blue Ridge. They stand as models of engineering technique and as a monument to the pioneer's hardihood which built this railroad... Today, as the inspiration of devotion to a vision of service, Chesapeake and Ohio takes the noble example of Claudius Crozet.

Thomas Burchett For CONGRESS

To the Voters of Rowan County:

In announcing my candidacy for Congress of the 8th Congressional district I want to acquaint you with a brief history of myself and my qualifications. I was born and reared on a farm in Carter County and taught school in that county for a number of years. Previous to the World War I entered the Law College of the University of Kentucky but left that institution at the outbreak of the war. I saw service overseas and took part in some of the major offensives. On returning from France I continued my study of law at the university and was graduated in 1921 with the degree of Bachelor of Laws, after which time I located in Ashland, and have been actively engaged in the practice of law until the present time. During that time I have served Boyd County as its County Attorney for eight years but did not seek re-election. While County Attorney I was actively affiliated with the County Attorney's Association of Kentucky and served on the executive committee as its president. Since living in Ashland I have taken part in many civic activities and fraternal organizations and have been an active member of the American Legion for more than 15 years having served it in the capacity of Post Commander, Adjutant and Service Officer, rendering help to hundreds of veterans and their families. You are invited to carefully investigate my qualifications as to character, ability and fitness for the office. Not unmindful of the importance of the office I am seeking and of the fine leadership we have had in the past, I pledge my entire strength and ability to bring to your district a representation of which you will not be ashamed. Your support is solicited on my own merits and I expect to win on that basis.

Respectfully submitted

Live Penguins With Marine Exhibit

Whom of us after having viewed Admiral Byrd's south pole expedition motion pictures has not wished to actually see those penguins that were so interestingly portrayed, in the sequences of the pictures. Those funny birds that appear for all the world like fat little men adorned in evening clothes.

Who has not watched the antics of these comical birds without hoping at sometime to actually see them. The Mammoth Marine Hippodrome which will exhibit here for one day only, Monday, July 18, has as a feature attraction a whole flock of these penguins.

It is probably only once in a lifetime that the public will be able to view an exhibit of this nature for it is an extremely difficult feat to keep these little fellows alive. It was only with the assistance of Captain Vonsou Boff who has given many years of study to these birds, that this is at all possible. Captain Vonsou Boff having made an expedition to Penguin Island, studying these penguins in their native haunts, as well as first hand information he secured while on the Byrd South Pole expeditions, is perhaps more able than any other man to give instructions on how to keep penguins living from day to day.

Through much experimentation Captain Vonsou Boff has discovered methods of treating the food in such a manner that the vitamins that are so vital to their existence may be injected into the food before it is given to the penguins. These vitamins with the help of the ultra violet ray lamps have been a great aid in keeping penguins alive.

The Mammoth Marine Hippodrome, on a specially constructed railroad car over 150 feet in length, will be placed on a side track near the C. and O. Freight Depot. Immediately on arrival here, and will be open to the public from noon until 10 p. m. Admissions ten cents.

"Hidden Talent" Is Displayed At Party By College Faculty

Play, Solos, Tap Dance, Quartet And Trio, Make Up Part Of Program

A faculty "Hidden Talent" party, given Tuesday, June 28, turned out to be a hilarious unveiling of dramatic, cooking, and operatic potentialities.

After a feast in front of the auditorium, the teaching staff adjourned to the inside of the building for the revealmant of all the dominant talents among the members.

The opening number was a play, a "pantomime-melodrammer," in which Mr. Neville Finsel, teacher in the economics department and director of the College Players, scored a direct hit, and sharing the honors with him were Miss Lucille Catlett, heroine, instructress in the Training School, and Mr. Leonard Miller, hero, assistant College coach. Others in the cast were Miss Mary Page Milton, sister of the villain, Miss Virginia Conroy, mother of the heroine; and Miss Katherine Carr, reader of the script. Noise-makers were Mesdames Naomi Claypool and Dorothy Cumberworth.

PRECEDING CHAPTERS

Wade Rawlins, who is roughing it on the Pacific coast, is stranded when the rickety old car he is driving falls in a ravine. At the Kilbourne home, where he goes to ask to phone, he is mistaken for a tramp. Mrs. Kilbourne has a habit of taking in tramps and as the chauffeur had disappeared that morning with all the silver, Wade, before he can explain the situation, is engaged to fill the vacancy. He decides to stay as the family is so refreshingly eccentric he will get material for stories. The first night he handles a number of embarrassing situations with such delicacy that Mr. Kilbourne, who objects to "made-over tramps," is forced to let him stay. Mr. Kilbourne is anxious lest a dinner party he is giving for Senator Harlan shall not run very smoothly.

CHAPTER EIGHT

Jerry was a serious young man that day. Just when this dinner seemed so important to her father she did not know it did and that was that. What concerned her was that she had given her word that for once there should be nothing "Kilbourneish" at the party. There was need to be serious. It was a high hurdle she had had set herself, she knew, but there was a certain excitement as there always is in taking any hurdle to see that she did not come a cropper. The house itself, she knew would be in perfect condition. The house-maids, who had never been tramps, were excellent. So she could check off that responsibility. The agency would be counted on to send competent men and women for the extra help needed.

Grosvenor was another matter. He was a good butler but he hated all tramps and he had been sighing ever since he first saw Wade. He didn't dare leave, because he was "sort of a big man" as she reminded him when the necessity became great. But he might faint, which would be even worse. She decided the way to win Grosvenor was to flatter him. She could do it honestly that day, for when she went into the dining-room to make sure the table was perfectly laid, every piece of silver and there was many pieces—was laid in mathematical precision.

"Oh, Grosvenor," she said, "it looks just like the pictures of how a table for a formal dinner should look—except that it is better. You are a genius."
Grosvenor did not smile, of course. But he did stop sighing. So Jerry did the smiling.

Kane, she knew, would be all right. It was just that he had been so anxious to have Wade stay and so grateful to his father for finally agreeing. He was just at the age where he would get a thrill out of acting as a sophisticated young man of the world.

Marian? Usually she would have worried about her. But Marian would be even more thrilled than Kane, to fit into the picture of a perfect dinner party. Any fourteen-year-old, allowed to dine with guests for the first time, could be depended on surely—even when she was Marian Kilbourne.

Her mother was a different matter. No one could ever tell what she might or might not do, but she was so beautiful, so charming that it never seemed to matter.

So everything and everyone seemed accounted for. But Jerry's mind was not at ease. Anything could happen in the Kilbourne house and usually did. All she could do now was to go to her room, put on her prettiest gown and hope—or should she pray—for the best.

Mrs. Kilbourne, too, was planning to do her bit toward pleasing her husband. She knew the dinner would be perfect—there wasn't a cook in the state who could surpass theirs. But after a meal was cooked, it must be served. That was where she must take a hand. Her efforts almost undid the good work which Jerry had done, so far as Grosvenor was concerned. He didn't faint, but he did have to hold on to the door for support, when he entered the dining room and saw and heard which might be called a rehearsal.

"Oh no, Rawlins," Mrs. Kilbourne was saying, "you must always—not just now and then, you know—serve from the left."

Rawlins had nothing in his hands but they were held—as if he were carrying a tray.

"But, madam," he said, "this is your left hand."

"So it is—I am always getting mixed up. I suppose it is because I'm naturally right-handed and I've never taken the trouble to change. Now serve Mr. Kilbourne, please. I can watch better when I am not doing anything but watching."

She indicated the chair at the head of the table where Mr. Kilbourne would sit, but there was something—she couldn't quite say what but there was certainly something—not exactly right in the way Wade was playing his part. Perhaps it would be better if Wade played he was Mr. Kilbourne and she was the waitress.

All was going well until Mrs. Kilbourne, remembering her husband was so anxious for this dinner party to be perfect and being carried away by this play, whispered to Wade.

"Is everything all right, dear?" She realized her error, immediately and explained she had really believed for the minute he was Mr. Kilbourne. But Grosvenor who heard the whisper rather than the explanation, had backed to the door. He announced to the servants in the kitchen that this was the end. If the family wished to demean itself by treating tramps and lunties and criminals—as their equals, they could do it. He would not.

"I'm leaving," he announced. And then glaring at the cook and not saying I've said that before."

"But you can't with this dinner party on," said Etta.

"And you're these—how will you get it?" asked Rose.

That alone would probably have made him change his mind but when he heard Jerry's excited voice in the dining-room, he knew he could not leave. In her present mood, she would not hesitate to go beyond blackmail. She might really telegraph his first wife.

Jerry had reason to be excited. A telephone message had just brought the word that Frank Thornton could not come. It would be necessary to remove two plates and tell Marian she must forget the party or have thirteen at the table. Which did her mother wish?

"Nether," said Mrs. Kilbourne decisively. "You know I am superstitious, so thirteen at the table is simply out. And I've promised Marian, so removing two plates is equally out. You go and phone Frank Thornton he can't treat us this way."

"I can't phone him, Mother. He's in the hospital."

"Well, it's never here than in a hospital and he ought to know it."

"But, Mother, I told you he was in an accident! He has a broken leg."

"Jerry, I'm surprised at your taking that for an excuse. Why my grandfather—that makes him your great-grandfather, doesn't it?—wore crutches for years and he never missed dinner once. And he ate as much as anyone, too."

"Frank can't come, Mother," Jerry said patiently, as if speaking to a beloved but rather backward child, "and it's too late to get anyone else. So it's either thirteen with Marian or Marian doesn't—"

"What?" came a cry of anguish from the doorway. Marian was standing there.

"It's too bad, dear," Jerry said gently, "but Frank can't come—we all promised Father to be good for once—we'll make it up to you someday."

Kane who had heard Marian's scream ran in and put his arm around her.

"Be a sport, Marian. I'll let you have my place, but that wouldn't do—you know the number of men and women must be the same."

Marian was not the weeping kind, so she began to scream. She had been promised! she was going to be so good; it wasn't fair; nobody cared anything for her; she would not eat in her room; if they didn't let her come to the table, they'd regret it as long as they lived; whatever she did would be their own fault; she had promised to be good as a guest, not as a banished child; they treated her like a red-headed step-child! Suddenly the tirade stopped.

"Of course we can get someone," she said firmly. "I read an ad this morning. A young man who has a tuxedo—I'll bet it's a brand-new wig—will for a consideration—"

"Do you know where the paper is so we can phone—?" asked Mrs. Kilbourne.

"Stop being foolish, both of you," she said.

Marian screamed again.

"You don't belong at a dinner-party, but in a nursery," said Jerry, acting like this.

If only her mother would not speak! But of course she did.

"Your dear little sister is right, Jerry," she said. "She was promised, and she should be allowed to express her ego."

Kane had run out of the room, but so no one had noticed it. He returned to say he had called three friends to try to get one of them to fill in. They were all out.

Marian opened her mouth again. Kane clapped his hand over it. "There's the door-bell," he said. "The guests are arriving."

error ensued, at which Mr. J. O. Larry, former assistant attorney-general, spoke to a group of approximately seventy-five Chandler enthusiasts, both faculty members and students.

Other speakers for the governor were Dean Clarence Nickell and Mr. L. K. Rice.

The Chandler Club is a recent addition to the College club roster, having been formed at the first year.

Have you also seen Pine Mountain State Park near Pineville, and the ancient buried city at Wickliffe? . . . Wonders never cease in Kentucky! First and foremost, let's all know and be proud of our own wonderful State!

Behind The Scenes In Business

By John Craddock

BUSINESS: To the business man confidence is the basis of profits and the prospect of profit is what makes property. Factories are reopened or new ones built as soon as operators believe that there is at least a 50-50 chance of being able to sell more merchandise at a profit in the near future. The return of confidence usually begins to manifest itself in the stock market. People are willing to pay more for stocks and bonds of corporations once they feel assured that earnings and dividends are likely to increase. Last week men and women all over the country and even in Europe began to invest idle money in American securities. Result—the stock market rose to a new high for 1938. Even confirmed pessimists had to admit that all signs indicate the low point in the depression is behind us.

mining rules okayed by President Roosevelt last week will for the first time enable small businesses to use bonds and sell them to their local banks. It is estimated that as much as three billion dollars of private money may thus be made available to start operations. Old regulations prevented banks from buying bonds which did not have a ready market. Another new regulation which will be helpful to small business men permits bankers to make long term loans of more than nine months) a type of lending which formerly was discouraged.

INVENTORIES: One of the soundest, underlying reasons why business men feel that business recovery is in the making is that inventories have been greatly reduced. Inventory is unsold merchandise on the shelves of retailers or wholesalers or in factory warehouses. In depression periods, when there is great uncertainty, manufacturers generally fill orders from inventory already accumulated rather than keep factories going full steam turning out goods that it may be impossible to sell. By this process, called working off inventories, the supply of goods available for public consumption grows smaller and smaller. Eventually a point is reached when no orders no longer can be filled from inventory. Then production must be started again, men and women go back to work and a new recovery cycle is launched. Inventories of wholesalers at the first of June were 4.8 per cent lower than a year earlier, a very healthy sign.

FOR "SUBURBANKS": Beans thrive in an acid soil, whereas carrots prefer to "stay over on the alkaline side." These are two of the more elementary of many fine points of soil testing this year. Soil diagnosticians of the Freeprot Sulphur company report home gardeners are going much more scientific than ever before, with unusual demand noted for small chemical kits, sold at hardware and seed stores from $2 to $20, with which they test and adjust garden soil for alkalinity-acidity balance. Kits consist of charts, manual test tubes and vials of fluids. Some gardeners report savings up to 50 per cent of their summer vegetable bill through this scientific "science."

THINGS TO WATCH FOR: Golf clubs with transparent heads, in which screws are imbedded to guide the stroke. A "can't miss torpedo" which, in case it misses an enemy battleship, turns back and strikes the warship from the opposite side. Portable partitions for soda fountains, which move on an overhead rail and can be adjusted to divide off any number of seats from others. A germicide more potent than tincture of iodine, yet less irritating. A "water" car which runs up and down the side of stairs in your home.

HEADLINES: New car registrations declined, but filling stations were upturn in business—reason: old cars burn more gas than new ones. Miami to have movie colony—studio under construction will begin by producing cartoons and later do full length features. Cigarette production shows increase over last year. Private power companies last year paid a tax bill of $330,000,000, or 16 per cent of gross revenues. United Business Service cites upward trend in building as brightest spot in business picture. Over 100 general magazines gained an average of seven per cent in circulation last year. Survey of 33 cities shows retail drug store sales greater in those communities having larger percentage of chain food stores. United States has 30,000,000 automobiles, or 70 per cent of world's total. More than 70 per cent of American homes are now using electricity.

Isn't this the real problem of Beer —and almost its only problem?

THESE ARE people, of course, who steadfastly and sincerely believe beer to be intoxicating, or its use sinful, harmful, or a first step toward use of "hard liquor."

Just as sincerely we hold that the weight of the evidence is overwhelmingly against them...that beer is a mild, wholesome food beverage...and that "there is nothing more promising to combat the evil of too much alcohol than the opportunity of drinking good beer."

No...it is not in beer itself, we believe, that its gravest problem lies, but in those conditions, undesirable to us all, which sometimes surround its sale.

How should that problem be handled... by brewers, by retailers, by consumers, and by the public authorities? On its handling, we believe, depends the ultimate success or failure of the art and science of brewing, with all its manifold contributions to human pleasure and happiness, and to the farm and industrial welfare of this country.

In that belief, a short time ago the Brewers Foundation was organized... to align the brewing industry with forces working for the public good in this country.

Our underlying motive... to perpetuate and promote our industry... is of course obvious. But equally obvious, we hope, is the fact that our interests coincide with the public interest.

Important progress has been made. Brewer-members of the Foundation already represent nearly half the production of beer and ale in the United States; and these members are pledged, individually and collectively, to the Brewers Code, one significant clause of which is as follows:

"We pledge our support to the duly constituted authorities for the elimination of anti-social conditions wherever they may surround the sale of beer to the consumer."

Being practical men, we promise no miracles. We cannot immediately or effectively "police" the quarter-million points where beer is sold (nor, to be fair, have we legal authority in many cases to do so). Nor can we, immediately, bring about full compliance with the law among all retailers, nor honest enforcement by all authorities.

But a beginning has been made... and we do promise that you will see results from it.

How far we can go, and how soon, depends very much on ourselves...but partly also on you.

Public opinion, once aroused, can operate to bring about honest enforcement of existing laws. Restriction of your patronage only to legal, respectable retail outlets can and will operate to raise retailing standards. Public preference for the products of Foundation members* will bear witness of your approval both to members and to cooperating retailers, and will encourage them to renewed efforts.

This is, therefore, at once a statement of our objectives and an appeal for your support, without which we must fall short of our high hopes. We urgently invite your full and sympathetic cooperation.

HERE and THERE

GOVERNOR CHANDLER gave Kentucky farmers fine highways and rural roads.

ALBEN BARKLEY voted to charge Kentucky farmers a higher rate of interest on farm loans. (July 22; 1937.)

GOVERNOR CHANDLER reduced Kentucky farm land taxes from 30c to 5c.

ALBEN BARKLEY voted to give Austria, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, etc., a moratorium on the payment of their war debts to the United States because HERBERT HOOVER asked him to AND... at the same time BARKLEY VOTED AGAINST an amendment to grant farmers of the United States a one year moratorium on their debts to Federal Land Banks. (December 22, 1931.)

GOVERNOR CHANDLER gave Kentucky a low farm truck license, high school per capita, free textbooks, new hospitals, etc.

ALBEN BARKLEY voted against 1 1/2% interest rate to refinance farm mortgages. (Frazier - Lemke Bill, June 20, 1937.)

President Roosevelt Said:
"Governor Chandler is my good friend."
"Governor Chandler has been a good governor."
"I have no doubt but that GOVERNOR CHANDLER WOULD MAKE A GOOD SENATOR FROM KENTUCKY."
"In all of his trips to Washington, 'Happy' Chandler has never returned to Kentucky empty handed."
In three speeches in Kentucky, President Roosevelt rightfully took credit for all federal legislation favorable to Kentucky farmers, Kentucky labor, business, Kentucky needy and W. P. A.
NOT ONCE DID HE SAY THAT ALBEN BARKLEY WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR ANY OF THESE THINGS. Because Barkley was NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR ANY OF THEM
