FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University's Student Government Association will present M.C. Hammer and the Posse, Rob Base and DJ E-Z Rock in concert on Wednesday, Nov. 8, in the Academic-Athletic Center.

Tickets for the 8 p.m. performance are $5 for MSU students and $10 for the general public. They are available now at the University of Kentucky ticket office in Lexington, MSU-Ashland Center, Video Bank in Mt. Sterling, and in Morehead at the Peoples Store and MSU's Student Activities Office.

M.C. Hammer was a pioneer in breaking ground for other rap bands. From the group's "Let's Get it Started" album, some songs have received praise from music lovers, such as "Pump It Up" and "They Put Me In The Mix." Blues fans will notice the BB King guitar licks of Hammer's version of "The Thrill Is Gone."

Rob Base and DJ E-Z Rock crashed on to the music scene with their first underground rap hit "Make it Hot" and have experienced success in night clubs ever since. The follow up single "It Takes Two" increased their popularity while blending soul rhythms of the early '70s with high-tech dance power of the drum machine.

Oaktown 357 will serve as the warm up act for the evening's concert.

Additional information is available from the Student Activities Office at (606) 783-2071.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Dr. Nan K. Ward, who served as director of the Women's Physical Education Program at Morehead State University in the 1960s, has rejoined the University's faculty on a part-time basis.

An associate professor of health, physical education and recreation, the Bath County native retired in May 1988 after 33 years of teaching and coaching at the secondary school and university level. In her years of coaching, Dr. Ward never had a losing season.

Dr. Ward taught and coached at University Breckinridge School from 1960 to 1965, while teaching HPER, coaching and supervising women PE student teachers on a part-time basis for MSU. She later served as director of women's physical education at the University, leaving that post to become head volleyball coach and assistant women's basketball coach at Murray State University.

"It's like old home week," Dr. Ward said of her return to the MSU faculty. "I have many friends here and I just love it," she added.

At the secondary level, she taught at Boone County High School, where she helped organize the Northern Kentucky Girls' Athletic Association; Pasco County High School in Florida, and Bath County High School. From 1975 until 1988, she taught and coached basketball as well as track and field at Salt Lick Elementary School. During the 1988-89 year, she substituted in the Montgomery County school system.

Respected by her colleagues, Dr. Ward is a past president of the Kentucky Association for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance, past president of the Bath County Education Association and a Life Member of the Kentucky Girls' Sports Association. She has held state and chapter offices in Delta Kappa Gamma international society for women educators and is an honorary member of both the Alpha and Beta Chapters of Sigma Delta physical education honor society.

Dr. Ward earned her bachelor's and master's degrees from Morehead State and holds a doctorate in education from the University of Kentucky. She and her husband, the late Lonnie Ward, are the parents of a son, Jimmy Ward of Milwaukee, Wisc., an MSU alumnus and regional manager for Comair Airlines. He and his wife have two daughters.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University will serve as a host site for a live satellite AIDS teleconference on Thursday, Nov. 16, from 1 to 4 p.m. in Reed Hall Auditorium.

Program presenters for "AIDS in the College Community: From Crisis to Management" will include a student affairs officer, clinical psychologist, and a housing director who will provide insights into how AIDS impacts their individual fields. An AIDS victim also will be on the panel.

The number of individuals who have acquired the AIDS virus is constantly increasing, said Madonna Huffman, Student Support Services director and campus coordinator for the teleconference. "This is an opportunity for various groups to share ideas while discussing ways to solve the problem."

The teleconference is free and open to the public. Area institutions also have been invited to participate.

The program is sponsored by the National University Teleconference Network, Ohio State University, American College Health Association, American College Personnel Association, Association of College and University Housing Officers-International, and National Association of Student Personnel Administrators.

Nov. 3, 1989

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Blind and disabled students at Morehead State University now have word processing capabilities, thanks to a special talking computer.

This new equipment was made possible through a joint effort of MSU's Camden-Carroll Library and Academic Services. The system will give blind students a chance to learn a skill to make writing their papers for class one step easier.

The equipment, located in the Learning Resource Center of the library, became operational in late September. This new addition gives students verbal directions and instructions by a means of synthesized sound.

To work the computer, a student pushes a button on the keyboard and then hears the letter, command or word typed. The student listens to the computer's verbal response through headphones much like those used on portable stereos.

The system will talk to the student with an unlimited vocabulary in either Spanish or English.

"Our main goal is to train all blind students on the computer keyboard. The keyboard isn't any different than one of a regular computer, so students will only need to learn the functions and placement of letters," said Belva Sammons, coordinator of Special Services at MSU.

Debra Reed, counselor at Special Services, and Kathy Wanke, a data specialist II from the Department of Psychology, are currently setting up training sessions for the students on the keyboard, according to Sammons.

"We had a little trouble getting the program on line, but with the help of two fine people we are well underway," said Helen Williams, head of the Learning Resource Center in the Camden-Carroll Library.

Williams expressed appreciation for the help of Dr. Ed Malterer, associate professor of music, who installed the Apple II G Slotbuster software and for Brent Jones, electronic technician II, for installing the hardware.

Without these two people, it would have been an almost impossible task, Williams noted.

"It is possible for students to reserve the machine for their personal access without waiting by calling 783-2828. Students, however, are welcome to take their chances on coming in and seeing if there is a computer available," Williams stated.

The equipment is available during the regular library hours of Monday-Thursday, 8 a.m.-10 p.m.; Friday, 8 a.m.-6 p.m.; Saturday, 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m. and Sunday, 2-10 p.m.

One visually-impaired student has already found the talking computer offers her extra benefits in her education.

"The addition of this computer is a great tool to help me succeed in life," said Missy Evans, a senior radio-television major from Mt. Sterling. "I think it is fantastic that something like this is here at Morehead State. This computer can be used as a great recruitment tool for not only blind students, but for others who are disabled."

MOREHEAD, Ky.--For those interested in comic relief, Morehead State University Theatre students will present Paul Zindel's "Ladies at the Alamo," November 15-19, in Kibbey Theatre.

The behind-the-scenes intrigue and power struggle of a famous regional theatre and its long-time artistic director are the focus of this play which is biting and very funny, according to Dr. Travis Lockhart, coordinator of theatre. "The antics of five fiesty Texas ladies are set against the backdrop of the lavish Alamo Theatre."

Appearing in the leading roles as the "ladies" are Anita Rae Bigelow, Magnolia senior; Donna Ison-Engelke, Mt. Sterling senior; Janelle McIntosh, Cynthiana sophomore; Melinda Reed, Louisville senior, and Ramonna Suzanne Reffitt, Ashland junior.

This production will be produced entirely by MSU students. Karen O'Baker, Geneva, Ohio, graduate student will be the director; Dennis Walls, Harrison, Ohio, junior, will be the scenic designer; J.W. Layne, Morehead senior, will design the lighting, and sophomores Rhyam Shipman of Madeira, Ohio, and Gail Steenrod of Maplewood, Ohio, will be designing properties.

Darin Blackburn, Elkhorn City senior, will design costumes. Shipman also will be the production stage manager with Trishia White, Kettering, Ohio, freshman, and Tricia Boehnlein, Madeira, Ohio, freshman, serving as stage managers.

The performance will begin at 8 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday, Nov. 15-18, with a 2 p.m. matinee on Sunday, Nov. 19. Because of limited seating, reservations are required.

Tickets are $5 for adults, $2 for high school students and senior citizens, and free to MSU students with a valid I.D. card. Supporting memberships for MSU theatre may be purchased by calling the Theatre Box Office.

Additional information can be obtained by stopping by Combs 119 any weekday between the hours of 1-4 p.m. Telephone: (606) 783-2071.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University senior Anita Bigelow of Magnolia has been cast in a leading role in the University's theatre production of Paul Zindel's "Ladies at the Alamo," November 15-19, in Kibbey Theatre.

The behind-the-scenes intrigue and power struggle of a famous regional theatre and its long-time artistic director are the focus of this play which is biting and very funny, according to Dr. Travis Lockhart, coordinator of theatre. "The antics of five fiesty Texas ladies are set against the backdrop of the lavish Alamo Theatre."

Bigelow will appear as Suits, one of the "ladies." A theatre major, she is the daughter of Ray and Georgia Bigelow and a member of the MSU Players.

The performance will begin at 8 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday, Nov. 15-18, with a 2 p.m. matinee on Sunday, Nov. 19. Because of limited seating, reservations are required.

Tickets are $5 for adults, $2 for high school students and senior citizens, and free to MSU students with a valid I.D. card. Supporting memberships for MSU theatre may be purchased by calling the Theatre Box Office.

Additional information can be obtained by stopping by Combs 119 any weekday between the hours of 1-4 p.m. Telephone: (606) 783-2071.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--To familiarize students with the programs available on its campus, Morehead State University will host a "Meet Morehead State Night" at the Drawbridge Inn in Fort Mitchell on Tuesday, Nov. 14.

High school juniors and seniors and their parents from the Northern Kentucky area are invited to attend. Also superintendents, principals, and guidance counselors from area high schools have received a special invitation.

"This is an opportunity for students to explore the various educational avenues available on a college campus," said Alan Baldwin, coordinator of recruiting activities. "Information on career possibilities and programs of study will be provided."

Representatives from MSU will be on hand to discuss admissions, academic programs, campus housing, athletics, and student life. There will be a special session on student financial aid options for financing a college education, Baldwin noted.

Community college students and students from nearby counties also are invited to attend.

The program will run from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Additional information is available from MSU's Office of Admissions at (606) 783-2000 or toll free at 1-800-262-7474.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University's Individual Events (IE) Team won first place in sweepstakes competition this past weekend (Nov. 3-4) at the Marshall University IE Tournament in Huntington, W.Va.

One of 12 schools competing, MSU returned with eight first place trophies, five of which were earned by Chance Pennington, Morehead junior, according to Jan Caldwell, MSU assistant professor of speech and team coach.

"It was an excellent effort on this young team's part," Caldwell said. "Several members distinguished themselves in this tournament."

Pennington picked up first place wins in impromptu speaking, extemporaneous speaking, prose, poetry and pentathlon.

Tony Rizzo, Vanceburg freshman, earned two firsts--novice prose and novice impromptu speaking-- and fifth place in extemporaneous speaking. Teamed with Wendy Harris, Pikeville sophomore, he also placed fifth in duo interpretation.

Harris also tied for first place in persuasion, fifth in pentathlon and combined with Lesia Bryant, Blue Creek, Ohio, sophomore, for sixth in duo interpretation.

Other individual winners included:

Stacey Dixon, Ashland senior, second place in prose and third in informative speaking.

April Erdmann, Eldorado, Ohio, freshman, second place in novice impromptu speaking and third in persuasion.

Carol Tyler, Mt. Sterling junior, placed fourth in poetry and prose as well as sixth in impromptu speaking.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--The Morehead State University Jazz Fusion Ensemble will present a free, public concert on Sunday, Nov. 19, at 8 p.m. in Duncan Recital Hall.

The program, featuring selections made popular by Anita Baker and the Manhattan Transfer, will include arrangements and original compositions of MSU students.

"The rhythm section has written a number of compositions that are still untitled and a majority of these will be played in the concert," said Jay Flippin, MSU associate professor of music and ensemble director.

This year's ensemble has 21 members, including eight vocalists, five rhythm section members and eight horn players. Each section will be featured during the concert.

One of the selections for the concert was arranged by MSU sophomore Wayne Hardesty of Bedford, Ind., and is his version of the "Muppet Theme." The group also will play a selection arranged by Larry Blocher, MSU associate professor of music, entitled "Giant Steps."

The ensemble, now in its third year, practices every morning at 8 a.m. "I know that the members want to be here because how many students would be up at 8 a.m. if they really didn't want to do something?" Flippin stated.

"The group is called Fusion because the term fusion represents the connection between jazz, rock and pops," he said.

The group tours every spring and this year has been invited to perform the opening concert at the annual Kentucky Music Educators Association's (KMEA) convention.

"MEET MOREHEAD STATE NIGHT": A Picture Story

ASHLAND, Ky.--Morehead State University recently conducted a "Meet Morehead State Night" at the Quality Inn in Ashland. For this special evening, prospective students and their parents were invited to visit with MSU representatives and learn more about the University and its programs.

"Meet Morehead State Nights," held at various locations throughout MSU's service region, are designed to provide information about academic offerings, student services, and campus life in an informal atmosphere.

Cutlines:

- 1---Checking out the material on one of the display tables were Kim Ferguson, left, and Tricia Toponak, students at Russell High School.
- 2---Shane Davidson of Raceland, left, and his mom Cindy Davidson talked with MSU President C. Nelson Grote about the University and its programs. Shane is a senior at Raceland High School.
- 3---An opportunity to talk with MSU faculty members on a one-on-one basis is an added plus for attending a "Meet Morehead State Night." Larry Dales, left, MSU assistant professor of journalism, was able to answer specific questions for Tony Esposito and his sister Melissa. A student at Greenup County High, Melissa plans to study journalism in college.
- 4---Kristin Miller of Ashland, center, and her father Jim were among those attending the Ashland night. Planning to major in elementary education, Kristin, a junior at Russell High School, sought some advice from Dr. Diane Ris, MSU professor of education.

"MEET MOREHEAD STATE NIGHT": A Picture Story

ASHLAND, Ky.--Morehead State University recently conducted a "Meet Morehead State Night" at the Quality Inn in Ashland. For this special evening, prospective students and their parents were invited to visit with MSU representatives and learn more about the University and its programs.

"Meet Morehead State Nights," held at various locations throughout MSU's service region, are designed to provide information about academic offerings, student services, and campus life in an informal atmosphere.

Cutlines:

- 1---Lisa Scott, South Point High School student, got "pinned" with an MSU eagle pin by MSU President C. Nelson Grote during the evening's activities.
- 2---Marylene Fryman of MSU's Office of Financial Aid, left, discussed the proper procedure for filing for financial aid with Amanda Liggett, Cathy Forbush and Steve Classing, all students at South Point High School.
- 3---An opportunity to talk with current MSU students on a one-on-one basis is an added plus for attending a "Meet Morehead State Night." South Point High School senior Kimberly Lawson took a moment to talk with Chris Simmons, MSU sophomore from South Point.

LEXINGTON YOUTH VISIT MSU CAMPUS

Morehead State University's Kappa Alpha Psi hosted a "Big Brothers" day on campus for 43 youngsters of the YMCA and Main Street Baptist Church in Lexington. The visitors--ranging from elementary to junior high students--toured the campus, watched the Black Gospel Ensemble perform, ate at Mainstreet MSU, and saw a presentation of campus life. Sharing a moment of comradery were these Lexingtonians, from left, nine-year old Charlie Kirkland, MSU senior Kendrick Darneal, and 12-year-old Samuel Ashbury. The day, co-sponsored by MSU's Office of Minority Student Affairs, was designed to allow youth to experience college life at an early age while enforcing the need for continuing their education.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Two artists who graduated from University of Iowa are displaying their work in the gallery, Claypool-Young Art Building, now through Nov. 22.

The exhibit features paintings and drawings by Nanci Erskine, MSU instructor of art, and Pat Kowalok, assistant professor of art at Pikeville College.

A closing reception, which is free and open to the public, will be held in their honor on Monday, November 20, 4-6 p.m. in the gallery.

Erskine, formerly of Valley, Wash., received M.F.A. and M.A. degrees from the University of Iowa and completed undergraduate work at the University of Oregon. Her works have been published in two editions of the Iowa Journal of Literary Studies and she has had solo exhibits at Pasco, Wash., Iowa City, Iowa, and Eugene, Ore.

Kowalok holds three degrees--M.F.A., M.A., and B.F.A.--from the University of Iowa. A Ford Foundation Scholarship recipient, she has exhibited in numerous nationally-juried shows including Taos, N.M., New Castle, Pa., and Youngstown, Ohio. She is a published author and some of her works are a part of private collections.

The gallery hours are 8 a.m.-4 p.m., weekdays. Additional information is available from MSU's Department of Art, (606) 783-2766.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.--The Glimcher Company of Columbus, Ohio, has donated nearly 30 acres of restored wetlands to Morehead State University. The value of the restored land is estimated at approximately $95,000.

Located west of Morehead on KY 1722 near Farmers, the land has been designated as the Rowan County Sphagnum Swamp and will be used by the University for research and teaching purposes.

Glimcher, one of the developers of the Ashland Town Center Mall, purchased the land last fall in compliance with a federal requirement dictating that wetlands removed from an area must be replaced with at least twice the acreage lost. The Town Center project displaced 8.5 acres of wetlands.

"The University is fortunate to be the recipient of this unique gift," MSU President C. Nelson Grote said. "While acting as a responsible corporate citizen by seeing that the region's ecological balance is maintained, the Glimcher Company has given Morehead State a marvelous resource.

"The Rowan County Sphagnum Swamp not only will enrich our science students' learning experience but also allow our faculty access to stimulating research opportunities in their own backyard," Dr. Grote said.

Doug Campbell, construction manager for The Glimcher Company, said that the firm was proud of its role in the restoration project. "All of us need to be concerned with preservation of our environment and we are pleased that Morehead State and its outstanding science faculty will serve as the stewards of this ecological resource," Campbell said.

Acting as a liaison between the University and mall developers was Dr. Jerry F. Howell Jr., MSU professor of biology.

"The land acquired by Glimcher was originally a wetlands area, but had been drained," Dr. Howell said. "The company hired Eco-Tech, an environmental consulting firm headed by Hal Bryan, to develop a plan to restore the area, including a monitoring effort," Dr. Howell explained.

"What we have now as the Rowan County Sphagnum Swamp is unique in this region," the biologist noted. "Most of our wetlands have been destroyed nationwide."

Bryan's firm redirected the waterflow on the site, established shallow ponds to provide standing water for breeding pools for water plants, insects and other invertebrates, planted five acres in trees, install bat boxes and wood duck boxes, and fenced in the site.

According to Dr. Howell, the deed mandates the land remain undeveloped and maintained as a wetland.

During the restoration and before the swamp was officially presented to the MSU Foundation, it had been used as a research laboratory for faculty and students.

Graduate student Teri Bryan of Louisville is in the process of surveying the flowering plants on the site for her thesis. Graduate students David Blevins of Romulus, Mich., and Mike Hardin of Morehead have begun studies of above and below ground water movement, water chemistry, productivity of the site and an inventory of existing aquatic insects and other benthic life forms.

Ornithologist Fred Busroe, an associate professor of biology, is studying the wetland bird life. Bryologist Allen Risk, a new addition to the faculty, has discovered several rare plants not normally expected to be present in this area, including a hummucky swamp thicket (decodon verticillatus) and a three-way sedge or grassy plant (dulichium). Both are found in coastal plain wetlands. Also doing research at the University's wetland lab site will be another new faculty member whose specialty is wetland ecology, Dr. Brian Reeder.

"The swamp will be an excellent field trip site not only for University classes, but also for high schools in the region," Dr. Howell said.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University's Department of Music will host its 30th annual Choral Festival for high school singers on Thursday and Friday, Nov. 16-17.

The two-day festival will feature Donald Neuen of the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N.Y., as guest conductor.

The 250-voice chorus will be composed of high school students from schools in Kentucky, Ohio and West Virginia, who are expected to take part in the workshops and performances, according to James Ross Beane, associate professor of music and festival manager.

Two free, public concerts will be given. The first will feature the Chamber Singers and the Concert Choir, both under the direction of Beane, at 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 16, in Duncan Recital Hall. The program will include music by Victoria, Mozart, Britten and John Rutter.

The concert also will feature MSU faculty musicians: contralto Jo-Anne Keenan, instructor of music; Leo Blair, associate professor of music, and Terry Durbin, assistant professor of music, on the violin; and Suanne Blair, assistant professor of music, on the cello.

On Friday, Nov. 18, a combined high school chorus will perform in concert at 7 p.m. in Duncan Recital Hall under the direction of guest conductor Neuen.

The program will feature Joseph Haydn's "Lord Nelson Mass," with Jay Flippin, MSU associate professor of music, as accompanist. The soloists will be soprano Laura Bevins, MSU junior voice major; contralto Jo-Anne Keenan, instructor of music; tenor David Brown, a Louisville high school teacher, and baritone Raleigh Kincaid, MSU alumnus from Lexington.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Alta Blair, Morehead State University assistant professor of nursing, has received the 1989 Kentucky Community/Ambulatory Nurse of the Year Award from the Kentucky Nurses' Association.

Nominated by her district's community liaison nurse for her involvement in the community, Blair received the award at the Kentucky Nurses' Association Council meeting at Ft. Mitchell in mid-October.

"The University community takes pride in Mrs. Blair's recognition by her professional colleagues," said MSU President C. Nelson Grote. "Her commitment to providing a better quality of life in the community has been in evidence for several years," he added.

Dr. Charles M. Derrickson, dean of the College of Applied Sciences and Technology, commended Blair for being selected from other nurses in the state. "We are delighted to have one of our nursing faculty receive recognition for all their community efforts," he said. "Many times we fail to realize the roles our faculty play in service oriented projects."

Working with the Special Olympics, helping with the American Red Cross Blood Drives, and providing CPR training for Boy Scouts are among the activities which qualified Blair for this award. She has been recognized for "demonstrated leadership" to several organizations including the Gateway Child Sexual Abuse Task Force.

She holds membership in the Kentucky Nurses' Association, American Nurses' Association, Kentucky Public Health Association and serves on the Board of Directors of the Gateway Health Coalition as a member-at-large. She is the Kentucky Nurses' Association representative to the state Coalition Against Rape and Sexual Assault.

A native of Montgomery County, Blair earned a M.S.N. degree from the University of Tennessee and a B.S.N. from the University of Kentucky. She is a member of Sigma Theta Tau international honor society of nursing.

Blair joined MSU's nursing faculty in 1984.

OHIO VALLEY VISITORS EXPLORE MSU PROGRAM

Morehead State University's model program, Personal Development Institute (PDI), has attracted national attention since its establishment 20 years ago. The program is designed to enrich a student's professional and personal life through instruction on social behavior and encourages self evaluation of personality traits and attitudes while assisting the student to develop the self-esteem necessary to succeed. Picking up pointers from Carolyn Flatt, center, MSU PDI director, on how to establish such a program were Sharon Woomer, left, admissions secretary for Ohio Valley College in Parkersburg, W.Va., and Susan Ryan, secretarial science instructor at the two-year school.

WJHS STUDENTS SPEND 'DAY ON CAMPUS': A Picture Story

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Nearly 70 eighth and ninth grade students from Winburn Junior High School visited Morehead State University earlier this month as part of the Ashland Oil Inc. program, "A Day on Campus." Part of AOI's comprehensive effort to create an awareness of education's importance, the program is designed to encourage students to consider making college part of their education and to begin preparing for it scholastically. In addition to touring the campus, the youth visited various academic departments where they talked with students as well as faculty members.

- 1---One of the day's highlights was an MSU student panel whose members talked to their junior high guests about what college meant to them and offered advice on how to get ready for college. Panelists were, from left, Mike DeMarsh, Crestview sophomore; Stephanie Bailey, Lexington sophomore; Dionne Franklin, Dayton, Ohio, senior, and Kendric Darneal, Lexington senior. Bailey and Darneal are alumni of Winburn.
- 2---WJHS students Frederick Fink and Jon Horton had an opportunity to gain some hands on experience with a television camera during a stop at Morehead State's television production studios.
- 3---Taste-testing typical student lunch fare were, from left, Vonda Neyler, Jennifer Prather, Stacey Fischer and Cara Todd.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Approximately 100 exhibitors of handmade and homespun arts and crafts will display their wares at the third annual Christmas Arts and Crafts Market Saturday, Dec. 2, at the Laughlin Health Building on Morehead State University's campus.

Beginning at 9 a.m. and continuing to 6 p.m., a variety of crafts, including Christmas decorations and gifts will be available for purchase. There will be a Christmas tree adorned with handmade decorations by the exhibitors.

"This is our third Christmas market and our previous ones have been very successful," said Georgia Sammons, an MSU Small Business Development Center staff member, who coordinates the Christmas Market. "This year the quality and variety of arts and crafts are even better and we are anticipating a bigger event."

The market is sponsored by MSU's Office of Regional Development Services to promote the high quality of arts and crafts that are produced in eastern Kentucky and the nearby region.

Admission to the market is $1 for adults. Children under 12 years of age will be admitted free of charge.

Additional information is available by calling Sammons at (606) 783-2077.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- "The Gifts of the Magi," a musical adaptation of two classic O'Henry short stories will be presented as part of the Arts in Morehead (AIM) series at Morehead State University on Thursday, Dec. 7, at 8 p.m. in Button Auditorium.

Based on the story of the same name and O'Henry's "The Cop and the Anthem," Lamb's Theatre Company Ltd.'s production of "The Gifts of the Magi" ran for five seasons off-Broadway before making its premier national tour.

"It's our Christmas offering to the region," said Yvonne Baldwin, AIM program chair. "The show is one that the whole family can enjoy and should set the tone for this joyous holiday season."

Admission will be by AIM series season ticket or single event tickets available at the door for $5 for adults and $2.50 for non-MSU students age 18 and younger. MSU students with valid I.D. cards will be admitted free.

The setting is New York City just before Christmas 1905 and Willy, newsboy, relates the familiar stories of a couple who each sacrifices a most treasured possession to purchase a gift for the other and that of Soapy, a cheerful bum, who wishes to spend the frigid holiday in a warm jail but cannot get himself arrested.

The show was hailed by the New York Times as a "professionally made singing and dancing Christmas card." When it opened at the Lamb's Theatre, the New York Tribune described the show as "a bright, beguiling musical...brings a cough to the throat and a misty tear to the eye of theatre-goers, young or old."

AIM is a cooperative effort of MSU and the Rowan County Arts Council. Additional information on the holiday musical may be obtained by calling Baldwin at MSU's Academy of Arts (606) 783-2695.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Electrical power to Morehead State University's main campus, primarily from Breckinridge Hall west, will be off from 7 a.m. Friday, Nov. 24, to approximately 10 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 25.

Also affected will be three residence halls, Thompson, Waterfield and Butler as well as the Lakewood Terrace married housing complex.

MSU Physical Plant officials will take advantage of the campus being closed for Thanksgiving in order to repair damage to the electrical system resulting from the fire last week in the Switchgear House serving the main campus.

"We need to make the repairs at this time in order to remain on schedule with the changeover to a new campuswide electrical distribution system, which is part of the utility tunnel renovation project," said Freeman Hamilton, construction coordinator for MSU's Office of Physical Plant.

"Doing this work now also reduces the chances for additional power problems related to the fire," he added.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--For the second consecutive year, Morehead State University's Marching Percussion has taken honors in the National Marching Percussion Forum at the Percussive Arts Society International Convention held recently in Nashville, Tenn.

MSU placed second in the ensemble category behind the University of North Texas. Other schools in the competition, listed by rankings, were Jacksonville State in Alabama, Memphis (Tenn.) State and the University of Kentucky (tie), University of Iowa and Northeastern Missouri State.

"We are extremely proud of these students' performance," said Frank Oddis, MSU assistant professor of music and coordinator of the percussion program.

"They have worked hard to earn this honor and really deserve this recognition.

"In fact, it is really ironic that MSU would place second to North Texas," Oddis noted. "Directing the North Texas program was Robert Schietroma, former MSU faculty member and alumnus of the University. Also he was my instructor," Oddis added.

In addition to the overall competition, two MSU students ranked high in individual competitions. Richard Viano, Clearwater, Fla., sophomore and the son of Nancy Painter, was the winner of the snare drum division and Sean McGrew, Steubenville, Ohio, junior and the son of William McGrew, took second place in the marimba category. Bobby Jones, Lexington senior, participated in the multi-tom category.

"Once again, Frank Oddis and his students have distinguished themselves, bringing honor to the Department of Music and the University in a national competition," said MSU President C. Nelson Grote. "We take pride in noting that our program is competitive on such a broad scale."

Oddis credited the win to faculty members within the department and the hard work and dedication of everyone involved. Helping with the production were John Radcliffe, graduate assistant, and Greg Strouse, instructor in music.

Serving as section leaders were Jones, overall drums; Viano, snare; Marty Chirumbolo, Ambridge, Penn., sophomore, base; Tammy Lyons, Elkhorn City sophomore, and Anna Linville, Carlisle sophomore, cymbals, and McGrew, front line.

The music was written by Oddis and Jones; visual designs by Jones and Marc Whitlock, Flatwoods senior, who also served as student assistant.

MSU alumni providing support were Pat Petrillo of Brick, N.J., who is a Broadway performer; Eric Middleton, formerly of Lexington who now performs with leading show business personalities in Reno, Nev., and Elizabeth Bevins of Lexington who is working on a master's degree at Austin Peay State University.

En route to the competition, the MSU group stopped at four high schools--Elizabethtown, Meade County, Warren Central and McGavock (Tenn.)--where it conducted clinics for the students and invited high schools from the region. Some 60 high schools participated in the programs.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---"A Christmas Visit" will be the theme for the 1989 Christmas Dinner Party hosted by Morehead State University President C. Nelson Grote on Friday, Dec. 15, at the Adron Doran University Center.

The 7:30 p.m. dinner will be preceded by a social period beginning at 6:30 p.m.

"Mrs. Grote and I invite all of our friends from the campus community--students, faculty/staff, former employees--as well as our alumni and friends from the region to join us as we launch the holiday season," President Grote said.

Tickets for the $12.50 per plate dinner must be reserved by 4 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 12, according to Anna Mae Riggle, dinner ticket chairman. Reservations may be made for table parties of any size or just by individuals by calling her at (606) 783-2071.

"We'd like to encourage faculty and staff members to pick up their tickets in advance, so they will not experience delays in entering the dining area," Riggle said.

Special holiday entertainment and decorations are being planned by the dinner committee which is chaired by Harlen Hamm.

Other committee members include: Dot Collis, Barbara Fossett, Tim Francis, William Layne, Pete McNeil, Mandi Martino, Charlie Moore, Martha Norris, Adrian Swain, Marge Thomas and Vasile Venettozzi.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University's Small Business Development Center will sponsor a Business Loan Preparation workshop at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 7, in Butler Hall's conference room on campus.

"This seminar is designed for individuals who need information on 'loan packages' for presentation to conventional lenders and/or the SBA," said Ernest R. Begley II, director of the Morehead SBDC and workshop leader.

Topics to be discussed will include Why Bank Loans Are Rejected, the Five Cs in Borrowing, What Banks Look for in a Loan, Importance of Business Plans and How To Put Together a Loan Package. A question/answer period also will be provided.

Reservations may be made by calling Begley or Georgia Sammons, (606) 783-2077. There is a $5 registration fee.

Special arrangements for the handicapped will be made if requested in advance. The Kentucky Small Business Center is partially funded by the U.S. Small Business Administration.
