Historical Information: Appalachian Development Center was initially established as part of the Appalachian Regional Commission Act of 1965 as the Appalachian Adult Education Center at Morehead State University in June of 1967. In the summer of 1978, Morehead president Morris L. Norfleet announced the foundation of the Appalachian Development Center. The center focused on continuing education, assisting local governments in training employees, and providing economic and scientific research. The center became part of the Office of Regional Development Services in 1987.

Scope and Content: Collection consists of brochures, event flyers and other ephemera published by Appalachian Development Center and the Office of Regional Development at Morehead State University to publicize the Appalachian Celebration held in Morehead, Kentucky from 1980 to 1998. Collection includes a typescript speech made by Bonnie Eaglin presented at the welcoming event of the 1993 celebration titled "Women of the Nineties."
