Doy, Bike, Street, Car—
 Life Or Death?

A little boy was almost fatally injured last week because of all of us. Children have to play. When they are small they can and must play in the confines of their own little yards.

But growing children need more space. They need more materials or equipment to play with. If we don't provide it for them, they will play where they can—and usually that's the street. Unavoidable accidents occur because the blame may be laid on the child because he is on the street. But where else can he go?

Progressive cities and villages are solving the problem of taking the children off the streets by building recreational centers. The capital outlay is repaid by saved accidents, less crime and better citizens.

And we're a progressive city—or aren't we?

He's An Angel

The citizens of Morehead who appreciate the Great Outdoors should give Joe Harp, proprietor of Joe's Place, five miles east of Morehead on U. S. 60 a standing vote for his generosity.

Morehead has no picnic grounds. The only one available with suitable tables and play equipment for the children Joe's Place. He makes no admission charge. Morehead parents come and go as they have done generations—with only a thanks to Joe for his kindness. Children have swung on the swings, slid down the slide and hung on the round swing or whatever until saturated with laughter.

Joe may have an ulterior motive of making money from his guests, but they are not compelled to buy anything and they do not all do so.

Joe deserves an orchid.

"Midsummer Night's Drama"

"Lord, what fools these mortals be!"
 Those are the words of Puck in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" written by Shakespeare back in the days of the coaches and the litter. And though, it is true, words bore no relation to problems of travel, there is a temptation to echo them now every time the constantly mounting statistics of death on the highway point to the tragedy of these beautiful summer nights.

"A Midsummer Night's Drama" is a modern drama that no man wrote. Nevertheless, it is one in which thousands play a part after the curtain of darkness has fallen over the highways and byways and over the busy city streets. . . . And thousands die!

It is a paradox of this age of light that we continue to carry on the potentially most dangerous activity of the times in comparative darkness—continue to drive at mile-a-minute speeds over highways that are as lacking in illumination as those over which the coaches rattled from Boston Worcester 200 odd years ago.

Seeing is effected by two major factors. The first, reflected light—light which, thrown upon an object, is reflected back, distinguishing for us the detail of that object. The second factor is silhouette—or the lightness or darkness of objects contrasted with the backgrounds against which they are seen. The distinctness of black type on a white page is a good example.

Headlamps contribute almost nothing to seeing by silhouette and their effectiveness, therefore, must be determined, not merely by the beam power of the lights, but just as importantly by the reflective qualities of the objects or surfaces which are commonly met on the road. The reflective qualities of pedestrians, roads, unlighted cars, trees, etc. is worse than poor, and consequently the effectiveness of headlights is correspondingly limited.

Until major highways and main city streets, at least, are provided with really adequate illumination and are made as modern and safe at night as they are in the daytime, there can be but one salvation—common sense!

When darkness comes, slow down! Be more than ever careful!! Use dimmers when meeting other cars! Keep headlights in proper adjustment and keep them clean—dust and dirt on lenses or reflectors can cut their efficiency in half.

Let's not have to keep chanting "Lord, what fools these mortals be!" Let's not make of a summer night a tragedy in which we play a part.

Harlan County In Flux

Coal operators in Harlan county, Kentucky, have staved off possible prison sentences in the long trial, now ended with a divided jury, on the United States Government's charges they conspired by intimidation to prevent men from joining the mine workers' union. The Government, on its part, while unquestionably disappointed in the failure to obtain a conviction, has accomplished part of its purpose in bringing before the court of public opinion in the nation at large the evidence which tended to show a reign of feudalism and violence.

Possibly the most significant news out of Harlan is not the verdict or lack of one but rather the development observed by the Monitor's staff correspondent when he said on Saturday that, verdict, or no verdict, "conditions which brought the Federal Government into the tiny little mountain coal oligarchy of Harlan will never again be what they were."

He found that even among the defendant operators, who still have no relish for unionism, a majority recognize the handwriting on the wall in the Wagner act guaranteeing the right of a worker to belong to a union of his own choosing—a right enforced by the National Labor Relations Board and conceded in most of the coal fields of the United States.

No tremendous overnight change is to be expected. Feelings engendered three years of bitter strife are not easily eradicated. The first task of defense attorneys may be to restate some of their clients from acts of retaliation on union sympathizers or witnesses which would surely prejudice the case against them in re-trial. If the unions get an upper hand, there may be a similar problem of restraint to assure that workers do not find that they have merely exchanged one set of feudal masters for another, taking toll of their pay envelopes. But surely the problem of understanding can be worked out, as it has been in other troublesome instances, and the nation at large will hope for a healing of the breach and the cultivation of a new type of neighborliness in Harlan county adapted to the industrial era into which it has emerged.—Christian Science Monitor.

Beauty Spots Abound In Kentucky

Not until one sees Kentucky from Mill Point to the Big Sandy is there a realization of the varied beauty and distinctive charm of the state. There are points of rugged grandeur that contrast with the pastoral perfection of the Blue Grass and the Pennyrite.

There are many other examples of expansive panoramas which come immediately to mind, including the vista from the top of Black Mountain, near Whitesburg; Cumberland Gap, near Middleboro; the magnificent view overlooking Burkesville as approached from the west; the landscape, better known as the vicinity of Havesville as one views the Ohio river from commanding heights; Halls Gap between Somerset and Stanford presents a scenic spectacle worthy of being included; Harlan county presents a succession of rare mountain scenery; better known as the Pikes fry in Pike county there are rugged heights from which one sees mountain splendor that is awe-inspiring.

Last, but far from least, is the panorama at Clay's Ferry on Kentucky river, worthy of being included. No effort is made to include all points of unusual beauty—only those that come readily to mind. Natural Bridge State Park and Cumberland Falls State Park have an exceptional charm.

The abundance of beauty in Kentucky has an appeal for those frequent travelers along the borders of the state. Kentuckians accept it somewhat as a matter of course. —Richmond Register

Swapping Power

The agreement reached between the Kentucky Utilities Company and the TVA for an exchange of electric power during the construction period of the Gilbertsville dam is another evidence of the foresight and good judgment of Robert M. Watt, Washington Reef, and their associates in the management of the Kentucky Utilities Company.

Some utilities companies, have opposed the development of power by the federal government, again by exchanging power for the Gilbertsville construction and receiving, in return, power from the Tennessee division of the TVA.

Through this arrangement more power will be made available to the public generally throughout the state of Kentucky. By co-operating with the state government in its program for rate reduction and co-operating with the federal government through the REA and the TVA, the Kentucky Utilities Company has certainly shown itself fully willing to meet governmental agencies halfway in their programs. Such an attitude not only will benefit the state but should in the long run greatly advance the company's interest.—The Lexington Herald.

 LESSON...

LESSON FOR AUGUST 21

HANNAH: GODLY MOTHERHOOD

LESSON TEXT—I Samuel 1: 9, 21-5.

GOLDEN TEXT—Her children arise up and call her blessed. Proverbs 31:28.

"Godly Motherhood" — All the power and grace of the world God working in and through the most tender and at the same time most potent human relationship—the motherhood! There indeed is the solution of many of our national and social problems. For we agree with the poet that man, who regards himself as being mighty, ruling over land and sea, must defer to a mightier power.

For the hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world. Hannah was the mother of Samuel, who became one of Israel's outstanding leaders—a priest, a prophet, and "the maker of kings. God needed a great man, so He chose for him a great mother."

"Our study for today will be topical rather than textual and extended to related portions in Chapters one and two. We consider Hannah as a mother who God needed a great man, so at the same time practical in her daily life and service.

I. Spiritual.
 Many are the tributes offered to mothers, but none has deeper significance than the testimony of a boy or girl that their mother has led them both by precept and example to have faith in God. Though other advantages may be beyond reach even of the most self-denying mother, this most important of all benefits she may bring her child to God. When every other blessing is an earnest and faithful follower of the Lord.

1. Hannah trusted God in her hour of trial rather than in her husband. Her husband was man of good qualities, he had followed the custom of the times and taken a second wife. Hannah, childless in the presence of Peninnah and her children, was in deep sorrow. But she knew where to take her burdens; she brought them to the Lord in prayer.

2. She prayed—so fervently and effectually (1:17). In comparison (James 5:16b). Mother's prayers have followed many a wayward boy and girl and brought them back to God. When every other influence for good had been swept aside, they have been unable to forget mother's prayers.

One wonders what would happen to boys and girls who go out to face a wicked and bewildering world, with that children of a prayerless, worldly mother to blight, rather than to bless them.

3. She recognized children as a gift of God (1:11). And surely they are. Christian men and women should protest by both word and deed against the vicious modern theory that children are a sort of biological accident to be avoided.

II. Sacrificial.
 The most precious possession that a woman can have is a child of her own. It was, then, the deepest and finest sacrifice of a noble mother-heart, when she belligent recognition of the fact that children are a gift of God. Let us not stand in His way (on their way) as the gracious Lord leads them out into service for Him.

2. She kept her promise (1:24-28). Many parents have solemnly dedicated their children to God before their birth and then later the prospect of separation from them has been too much for the parents, and the promise to God has been thrust aside. The writer has on many occasions seen young men and women sweep with broken-hearted dismay because a mother or father has forbidden them to go to China, Africa, or elsewhere at God's call. Mother, have you kept your promise to God regarding your boy or girl?

III. Practical.
 Hannah not only promised her boy to God; she made the completion of that promise certain.

1. By guiding her boy in the right way (1:24). As a matter of fact, she went with him to the temple. A mother who "sends" her boy to Sunday school or church will never help him like the mother of whom it may be said "she brought him unto the house of the Lord."

New Is Proper Time For All Sportsmen To Post Themselves

Right now is the proper time for all sportsmen to post themselves fully upon the Kentucky fish and game laws. The fishing season is at its height and the temptation to catch a few more is very great. No person shall take or have in his possession more than ten black bass nor more than ten trout nor more than fifteen rock bass or goggle-eye nor more than fifteen crappie nor more than fifteen jack salmon or wall-eyed pike nor more than fifteen striped bass in any one day.

No person shall have in his possession any black bass under eleven inches in length nor any trout under seven inches, crappie under eight inches. Any person having fished two days in succession may have in possession a total not to exceed 20 black bass or 20 trout, 20 rock bass or goggle-eye or 30 crappie, 30 jack salmon or wall-eyed pike, or 30 striped bass.

That is a fairly liberal law. Any larger amount would put one in the fish-bog class.

Every good sportsman should feel it to be his duty and his privilege to obtain the officers of the law in the enforcement thereof. No person should violate the law or desecrate the streams upon the assumption that the law was made for the other fellow. It was made for everybody and a claim of most citizenship cannot be made without observing it.

CLEARFIELD

Goddie Dillon, Prin.
 The Clearfield School had a pie supper Friday. Several contests were held which provided much entertainment. The baby contest was won by Bradford C. Hart. The Little Child contest was won by Billy Gay Bailey. Beauty contest was won by Mary O. Boggs. A guess pie and cake were sold. Chances were sold on Mexican pitcher full of homemade candy. Vick Owens won the pitcher. Forty-one dollars was raised which will be spent for the school and fair expenses.

The pupils and teachers of the Clearfield school were the guests of a luncheon on Tuesday night. The children enjoyed this free show very much and would like to take this opportunity to thank the management for making it possible for giving them this opportunity.

A drive in attendance is being launched in each room in the school. The beginners are divided into sides "The Red Tigers," with J. Baird as its leader and "Blue Elephants" with John P. Hamilton as leader. The losers are to give the winners a party.

The first and second grade rooms elected three attendance officers. There is an officer for each row. They check up on all pupils absent from that row. The second grade is sorry to have little Ward Owens absent this morning on account of sickness. They hope he will be well soon. Last week the boys beat the girls in an attendance race.

The third and fourth grades have been divided into two groups known as the Reds and Blues. The group having the least number of absences are to be entertained by the losing group with a party at the end of the month. These children are very proud of their new flag given them by the teacher.

The fourth and fifth grade rooms ran an attendance contest for the first month. The fourth grade won by having 100 per cent attendance. The fifth grade had 99.44 per cent.

A boy and girl from each grade in room five has been selected as a committee to work out a plan for beautifying their class room. The following are members of the committee. Stella Maxey and Walter Barnard from the eighth grade, Joe Hall and Geneva Peltz from the seventh grade, and Leona Balbridge and Gilbert Quisenberry from the sixth grade. Their suggestions are eagerly awaited by the entire room. A drive for perfect attendance is also being carried on in the sixth, seventh and eighth grade rooms. The sixth grade had an attendance of 100 per cent for the first month. The school is striving for no less than 100 per cent the second month.

The first parents' meeting of the year was held Thursday night. The purpose of the meeting was to elect officers and organize for the year's work. The following officers were elected: Mrs. Joe Nolan, president; Harry Faulkner, vice president; M. O. Boggs, secretary and treasurer; and Grace Rose and Lottie McBrayer, program committee.

Mrs. Mabel Alfrey made a very interesting talk on attendance. Presentments were served at the close of the program. The parents present were Mrs. Mabel Alfrey, Mrs. B. F. McBrayer, Roy Crawford, Home Oakley, D. H. Faulkner, Beaulah Stewart, Kate Stroman, Maxine McGuire, Carmie Lee Beffitt, Myrtle Caudill, Andy Lambert, Mrs. Mabel Alfrey, Roy Crawford, Mrs. Maynard, Mrs. Ewer, Mrs. Louie Cramer, Mrs. Ora Burnette, Mrs. Cecil Dolan, Mrs. Jollie Faulkner, Mrs. Jennie Amburger, Mrs. Ethel Nolin, Mrs. Fred Collins, Mrs. Johnnie Hamm, Mrs. Delphis Beaire, Lulu Hammon, Paul Elam, Mervel Dyer, Estell Brown, Norton Early and Ted Williams.

LITTLE BRUSHY

Mrs. John Candill
 The county superintendent, Roy Cornette, visited the Little Brushy school Wednesday while the arithmetic class was taking their monthly test. Visitors at the school this week were Mrs. Milton, Mrs. Val Moore and Mrs. Lewis.

A soft ball team has been started and the boys and girls are enjoying many interesting games. The highway men have removed the weeds on the bank in front of the school house. This improves the looks of the playground.

CAREY

The Carey P.-T. A. met Thursday August 11, 1938. The officers elected for the year were as follows: Mrs. Mabel Alfrey, president; Mrs. Lillie Sullivan, vice president; Mrs. Ora Armstrong, secretary; and Mrs. Mae Scott, treasurer.

The patrons present were: Mrs. Edith Archibald, Pearl DeHart, Mrs. Ethel Williams, Mrs. Mabel Alfrey, Mrs. Lillie Sullivan, Mrs. Ora Armstrong, Mrs. Mae Scott, Mrs. Katherine Archie, and Mrs. Jewel Grayson.

Because of a very hard rain several of our patrons were unable to attend. A special meeting has been arranged for Thursday, August 18, so that more members can be present to decide upon the plans for the fair. The next regular meeting will be Thursday, September 9, 1938.

CAPITOL COMMENTS

Chapter 301, O. E. S., Banner County, Jr. O. U. A. M.; Member Breckinridge Church, 4th and Breckinridge, Louisville; Life member of the Royal Order of Moose and was elected to the office of Secretary of State in 1938. Duties of said office are as follows: Section 91 of the Constitution of the State provides for a secretary of state to be elected by the qualified voters of the state at the same time the governor is elected, and designating the term of office as four years.

By CHAS. D. ARNETT.

As Secretary of State, I am keeper of records as filed from many of the other departments of our government. The Secretary of State appoints the Assistant Secretary of State and he keeps the Executive Journal of the Governor in which he recorded all the orders of the Governor. The original orders are filed and kept in this office; inasmuch as to county judges, justices of the peace, police judges, members of the various boards and commissions are issued in this office and the order of the Governor.

All commissions to elective or appointive officers signed by the Governor, such as county judges, justices of the peace, police judges, members of the various boards and commissions are issued in this office and the Great Seal of the Commonwealth of Kentucky attached thereto. The Great Seal of the Commonwealth of Kentucky is attached to all official documents of State in the keeping of this office. One of the duties of the Secretary of State is the affixing of the Governor's signature to all official documents, and the affixing of the seal.

The Seal of the Secretary of State is affixed to such papers as are certified by the Secretary. There are many requests for certified copies of records filed in this office and copies of laws found in the Law Library. Perhaps the most frequent request for copies is for a copy of the Divorce Laws of other states. So many are the requests for certified copies it requires the full time of one typist.

All fees charged by services are fixed by statutes. Two dollars for a Notary Public Commission; $1.00 for filing Statements of Process Agent for a Corporation; 25 cents per hundred words for copying Articles of Incorporation and for certified copies; $1.00 for certificate. These fees are fixed by Statutes. Prior to 1893, all corporations were incorporated by act of the legislature. Since that time this department has steadily grown until there are approximately 125, 000 Articles of Incorporation on file domestic and foreign.

We also have in this department the filing of Trade-Marks, Acceptance of the Constitution and all automobile services where foreign signs are involved.

All fees received in this department are turned over to the state treasurer for the general fund and far exceed the cost of the maintenance of this department.

The law requires all candidates for state and district offices representing two or more counties, to file certificates of notification and declaration with the secretary of state at least 40 days before election. All such candidates are required to file in this office pre-qualified printed ballots and expense accounts. After the primary or general election is over and all votes counted, we order the results printed by counties, showing the number of votes cast for each candidate and mail one to each county clerk in Kentucky.

Four years ago by act of the General Assembly, the Land Office was transferred to this department of state. This requires the services of one clerk. There are many requests for copies of land grants and some of these records are invaluable.

It is impossible to give you a detailed description of the work, but I have tried to give you a glimpse of the inside of this department of your state government, which is now termed under the Reorganization Law of the Department of State and requires the services of eight clerks—full time.

RANDOM SHOTS

The governor is on his vacation with a group of friends at Lake Desert, Ontario, Canada, and will be returning early part of September.

Gov.-Gov. Keen Johnson is Governor in his absence.

Behind The Scenes In Business

BUSINESS: Prices in retail stores registered the smallest monthly decline there since September, 1937, when a downward trend began that has lowered the average retail prices nearly eight per cent. Reports from the country's manufacturing plants continue to indicate reviving employment.

Last week thousands of telegrams were sent to employees of leading motor plants telling them to report for work immediately. Intensive operations in the Detroit area are about to start. America's export trade is holding up nicely. Business prospects generally are bright, except for a disturbing decline in farm prices the last few weeks. In the last month each wheat prices have dropped about nine cents a bushel, corn ten cents, rye ten cents, oats five cents, pork $1.50 a barrel and beef $6.00 a barrel. This means a loss of rural purchasing power, which enlightened business men today recognize as an indispensable factor in keeping the wheels of industry turning.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE: European cables bring rumors of another impending financial crisis in France and hint at further devaluation of the franc. To bankers, foreign exchange is a fascinating subject, but to the average layman it's all Greek. What makes currencies fluctuate? There are many factors, of course, involving confidence in a government's political and economic stability. But international trade plays a big role too. Suppose, for example, an English importer buys 1,000,000 bushels of corn in the U. S. at 50 cents a bushel. In doing so he has to take his own money—pounds sterling—and bid for the 500,000 American dollars in the money market. Just as at an auction, his bidding tends to boost the "price" of dollars. English pounds at night will read, "Dollar rises," while American papers at the same time will read, "Found sterling devalued." That's one reason why France, which has imported more goods than she has exported every year except two since 1920, has had a gradual decline in the value of its franc. The excess of imports had to be paid for in dollars and other foreign currencies purchased with francs.

CLOSE SHAVES: Men with whiskers, who use more than a billion and a quarter razor blades every year, according to the latest department of commerce estimate, will be interested to know that the tax collector is nicking them, too. One blade in every ten purchased by bewhiskered brethren—there must be about forty million of them—goes to the tax collector in the form of hidden taxes. While 45 cents is paid for a package of one hundred blades, according to the tax reports of a leading razor blade manufacturer.

THINGS TO WATCH FOR: Milk that will keep fresh and fresh at room temperature for as long as four months; a little hydrogen peroxide and potassium iodide is scientifically "cooked" in to the milk, without affecting its taste in any way. A surf automobile for use in salvaging stranded ships, catching and finding wrecks, harvesting shellfish. An acid treatment for opening the sealed "pores" of oil wells, thus obtaining a greater yield of oil. An "auto starter" which automatically jiggles the throttle while the engine is being started.

INDUSTRY TWISTS: It requires one and two-thirds pound of live-stock to produce a pound of meat for the dinner table. A ton of iron can be stored in a container having a capacity of four cubic feet. A ton of aluminum, which weighs only a third as much as iron, needs more room. To store a ton of aluminum the container would have a capacity of 11.6 cubic feet. Nearly one-half of the men hired by the steel industry during 1936 and 1937 had high school or college education, compared with only one-fourth who had such training among those hired in 1929. It takes 35 to 50 hours of labor to harvest 15 bushels of wheat with a sickle and thresh it with a flail, but a combined mechanical harvester-thresher does the job in only 45 minutes. There is one mile of railroad for every 12 square miles of land area in the United States, but only one mile of track to every 99 square miles in the rest of the world.

HEADLINES IN NEW YORK: Agricultural department forecasts 1938 corn crop at 2,566,221,000 bushels; compares 1937 crop of 2,644,966,000 bushels; Wallace sees no new for producer referendum on quotas. Cotton crop of 13,988,000 bales forecast; 1937 crop was 18,946,000 bales. Farm marketing receipts off 12 per cent since March, 1938. Russia and Japan sign border peace like 1937 period. U. S. Steel Corporation operating rate drops in July. Machine tool orders expected to gain in August. Japan again sends gold to U. S.; shipments here total $352,800,000 since March, 1938. Russia and Japan sign border peace

Exports of Cuban leaf tobacco and tobacco products in June, 1938, were valued at $1,385,777, as compared with $1,203,044 in the preceding month, and $1,216,941 in June 1937.

The total value of Cuban tobacco shipments to the U. S. in June was $773,063, as against $550,160 in May, 1938.

During 1937 Peru decreased cigarette imports 42.6 per cent as compared with 1936. For the most part foreign cigarettes imported into Peru were supplied by the United States, followed by the United Kingdom and Cuba, with very small quantities from other countries.

During the first quarter of 1938 France brought in 3,463 quintals of cigarettes, of which the United States supplied 2,166 and the Colonies 137. The United Kingdom supplied 829 quintals, Belgium 57, and other countries 24.

CONTOUR CULTIVATION CHECKS SOIL EROSION

A leaflet published by the Kentucky College of Agriculture stresses the need for contour cultivation of sloping land. Tests indicate that as much as 60 tons of top soil per acre may be washed away where corn or tobacco is grown directly with the slope. By running the rows around the slope, erosion can be largely prevented. The leaflet gives many valuable facts about the practice of contour cultivation.

TURKEYS DON'T WORRY ABOUT FAT; JUST GROW

Turkeys are different from hogs and beef cattle in that they do not fatten; they merely grow, says Dr. J. Holmes Martin of the Kentucky College of Agriculture, in suggesting that farmers take advantage of comparatively cheap grains and keep the big birds growing until Thanksgiving or Christmas time.
Corn, wheat, oats and barley are good feeds for the big birds. He suggests a mixture of 200 pounds of mixed wheat feed or ground wheat, 100 pounds of ground yellow corn, 100 pounds of ground oats, 100 pounds of meat scrap and 5 pounds of salt. Both grain and mash should be fed.

Woman Against Woman

CHAPTER ONE

Stephen Holland was riding up the elevator when it came to the floor that was strange. He asked Dora to come to his office. What had he to ask her, what could he have said to her, but she had not been so kind to him. He was uncomfortable, even humiliating. He thought was edging into his consciousness. He forced it back. Dora could not talk freely before his wife. Resolutely he looked himself that he had overstepped on this case, but his nerves were cutting strange capers that his imagination was making up emotional burdens in his life.

What had he learned all day Dora? He said he did not know. When he told himself, he was sure in his life, nothing could have been more shattering than what she was saying. For she was obviously telling the truth. That Dora should seem to anyone would have seemed unbelievable. But to him—

"Please don't, Dora," he said, "I have a right to know the truth and I know, as well as you, that your leaving us is not wise." Mrs. Holland's suggestion of "wise."

Laura did not look at him as she moistened her lips and spoke. She was bewildered, there was no anger in his voice as he interrupted her.

"I have known you for thirty-three years—I've told me everything about your life before I knew you—I've heard all about your family—and now you tell me you have a sister in California and you are going to her."

She was looking at him now and when he saw her eyes filling with tears, he stopped.

"I don't ever lie to you, Steve," she asked, in her emotion using the name she had called him when he was a child. "You know I never did. And didn't I teach you to be truthful, as the old rule says by practice as well as precept? So, if I have lied to you now won't you please just let me go?"

"I will not," he answered firmly. "All my life, you have been so much—no more than a part to me than my mother and now you suggest walking out as if you were some nurse who had got through an agency. What is the matter with you I don't know. But you are going home with Mrs. Holland, put Ellen to bed and forget all this nonsense. If you have some crazy idea that Mrs. Holland doesn't like you, get it out of your head."

"It isn't that," she said in a strange way, as if she were speaking against her will, but could not keep the words back. "It is that I don't like her. I can't go on living in the same house with her. You must believe me when I say it is better for all of us that I go quietly now."

"What has she done to you, Dora?" he asked in a hard voice, clipping his words.

"Nothing to me. And if she did, I could stand it perhaps. It didn't mean to say this—I don't want to say it now, but I can't help it. You wanted the real reason—here it is. There is no love in your house, except between you and Ellen—and me. I can see nothing else. Mrs. Holland is beautiful and she can be charming. But she is selfish and hard. Even worse, she is bound to rule. She calls the tunes and you and Ellen must like to them. It's getting worse. You haven't a mind of your own any more, or if you have you hide it. That's one reason you overwork all the time. She hasn't interfered with your work yet."

—perhaps she won't, for she is ambitious, she wants you to do a great lawyer. But there is nothing else she won't spoil. Oh, now you don't quarrel—any more. That's because you always let her have her way. Why, she's even got her own mother believing you're a bit of a fool—dear one of course, but a fool in everything except your practice. Look into your head and mind, Steve, and tell me if I am right or wrong."

He felt that he should be angry, a man did not allow anyone, even the woman who had cared for him all his life, to say such things of his wife. He was not angry. He was stunned. But his wife held. He must defend his wife.

"You are mad, quite mad," he said. "You are so devoted to me that you do not see things from the true perspective. You don't understand my wife at all. He paused a moment and then said softly: "I'm sorry, more than I can say that we should part like this. Goodbye Dora—and thank you for everything through these years."

She rose and walked to the door. Then she turned. When she said, "I pray with all my heart that you'll be right, Steve."

She went out quickly without looking back.

He was glad when he had seen her. Yet he dreaded going home. What Dora had said was so absurd, he told himself. He told her, he said, "I'm sorry, more than I can say that we should part like this. Goodbye Dora—and thank you for everything through these years."

When he reached his home, he took a shower, so he went directly to the nursery. He found the door open. He saw a crack, dropped to one of his knees and sent the little man scurrying into the room. Ellen, sitting at a little table, having supper, shrieked with delight as he came, bending over the table turned quickly. She shrieked too, but it was with delight, as the boy hit her ankle.

"I'm so sorry," said Stephen. "I'm Mr. Holland."

"That's the right," she answered, in a tone which suggested it was altogether wrong. "I'm the nurse, Miss Van Horne."

Ellen had left the table and rushed to him.

"It's for me—the cunning little one, isn't it Daddy? Is it my birthday, or Christmas or something?"

"It's because I love you," he said. "That's the best reason there is for giving a person anything. And—Ellen, tell me does it look like me?"

She looked at it carefully and then told him seriously it didn't look like him at all. She said it looked exactly like Pinocchio whose picture was in her story book.

"I think Ellen had better finish her supper," said the nurse.

"I think I would rather talk to my father," protested Ellen.

"Miss Van Horne is right, sweetheart," said her mother. "I mustn't interfere with your meals, and you mustn't be rude to Miss Van Horne. So—what do you say, when you're all ready for bed, coming in to see me and I'll read you a story."

"All right, Daddy," Ellen said, going back to the table.

Cynthia came in from the dressing room, just as he opened the door to the bedroom. He thought he had never seen her look more beautiful than she did just then in her fluffy negligee. She ran to him and put up her face for a kiss.

"Hard day, darling?" she asked.

"So-so," he answered. "I won't have any more bed for what I think. You know this is a hard one."

"I know, dear. I know you love your work but you mustn't overdo it. You may be the most brilliant young lawyer ever known in this part of the country, but you can't work all the time. You need some relaxation."

"You are speaking wise words, lady fair," he answered. "And that is just what I'm going to have this evening. I'll tell you—you keep on that charming whatever it is and I'll get into my lounging pajamas . . ."

"Why, Steve darling, you haven't forgotten, have you, that we're dining with the Mortons tonight?" She took his hand from her shoulder abruptly.

"I have not forgotten," he said crisply. "because I never knew it."

"But I told you," she said firmly. "of a week ago."

"You told me we were invited," he said. "And I told you I would not go to their house tonight or any other night. I can't stand the Mortons—quite aside from the fact that she is a crook."

"He's one of the most powerful men in the state—"

"Which doesn't keep him from being a fellow all the way through."

"You mustn't detest him so if he threw the Thompson bankruptcy case in your lap, perhaps."

"I wouldn't touch it—or anything else which is connected with it. He may be a big shot now, but he's been a clever dodger so far, but—"

"There is no time to go into that, Steve," she interrupted. "You have barely time to dress now."

"I'm not going," he said. "I don't care what you say, except that I'm not coming."

Cynthia put her arms around his neck. Her voice was soft and pleading as she spoke.

"You know that I can't do that this hour," she said. "I'm sorry. I didn't know you felt so deeply. But we've got to go—so be good for my sake, and hurry."

He knew he should refuse—what was it Dora had said—but he couldn't.

"All right, this once, to save your face," he said. "But never again. Is that plain or shall I spell it out."

She kissed him lightly and ran into the dressing room.

GIVES CONTROL FOR BAGWORMS -- SPIDERS

Bagworms and red spiders seem to be doing particular injury to lawns and other plants at this season, according to complaints received by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

It may be practical to handpick the bagworms from smaller lawns, carrying away and burning the bags. The most effective control for general infestation of larger trees by bagworms is spraying with arsenate of lead at the rate of one-half pound to six gallons of water, applied as soon as the worms are noticed.

Sprays should be used on evergreens only when the temperature is below 85 degrees, as otherwise the trees may be injured.

The red spider feeds on nearly 200 kinds of plants. Measures alleviate rather than entirely cure the trouble. One method often tried is frequent spraying with a spraying of the plants with a stream of clear water applied with force enough to tear up the webs of spiders and knock them to the ground. As water often applied may injure some plants this is not always practical.

Dusting with superfine sulfur is of value. Spraying the plants with wettable sulfur mixed according

14 Rules For Fishers And Hunters Given By Game-Fish Dept.

The Division of Game and Fish gives several points for every sportsman to learn and abide by. If these are strictly observed, there will be more game and fish, better hunting and fishing, and a closer relationship between the sports-man and the landowners:

1. That game and fish belong to everyone.
2. To get permission from the landowner to fish or hunt and en-joy in peace your holiday.
3. That you can believe in tres-sure signs without being supersti-tious.
4. That the word "sportsman" is dubious unless you can truly add the word "gentleman."
5. To respect the laws of man and nature and you'll respect yourself.
6. To take your legal share of fish and game in season.
7. To familiarize yourself with the game and fish laws and abide by them.
8. That limits on birds and fish are fixed for good and obvious reasons.
9. To unload your gun before en-tering your car.
10. That a fool and his gun are soon departed.
11. That carelessness can be abolished by 'thoughtfulness.
12. That a gate's efficiency de-pends on its being closed.
13. That fire is a menace and only God can make a tree.
14. To insure future wildlife by creating interest among our young people.

SCHOOL NEWS

HOLLY Erna Crabtree

The Holly school is the largest rural school in the county. Fifty-five children have been enrolled. Improvement has been made in the school grounds. The yard has been cleaned and mowed. It is one of the most beautiful playgrounds in the county. The floor has been oiled and the building is in good condition. The schoolroom at this school is very attractive, having a color scheme of cream and brown. The walls are cream and the wainscoting, window borders and a stenciled border is brown.

Visitors at the school are Iva Sloan and Ruth Masters. The children having perfect attendance for the first month are: Isaac Henderson, Gladys McDowell, Calvin Hamm, Bob Sloan, Harold White, Mary Fane Hamm, Hobert and Cobert Thompson, Clifton Thompson, Dan Thompson, Sue Crabtree, Alene White, Alene Gregory, Jimmie Hamilton, Robert Barker, Janet Thompson.

Any one visiting at this school will enjoy hearing their singing. During the visit of the attendance officer the song, "How Beautiful Heaven Must Be," was sung by Ruth and Mildred. Ruth sang soprano, Hay tenor and Mildred alto. The song was much enjoyed and well rendered.

ADAMS DAVIS Bessie Birchfield

Thirty-five have been enrolled at Adams Davis. Much improvement has been made in the building and grounds. The yard has been mowed, a tree-trunk and swing has been built and a park is being planned in the back of the building. The room decoration is carried out in tan and green. The walls are tan, the bulletin board green, and the book case and large chairs are tan. A large green clock adorns the wall and a large flag adds to the room.

Forty-one have been enrolled at the Walt school. Improvement is just starting here and the children and teacher are interested in making their school one of the most attractive. The house has been given a coat of white paint. The teacher, Miss Vencill, was very unfortunate when she had to discontinue school on Wednesday last week and have a long operation. She is able to resume her work this week.

HARDEMAN Leland Hoge

Thirty-three have been enrolled at Hardeaman, a school near the edge of Lewis county. The school building is located on the side of a hill with the acres of playground. The tree trunks have been whitewashed, the grass cut and more playground cleared. They are much more improved. The roof is very attractive, being newly painted a yellowish with tan and white curtains. The shades are just as are the book case and other pieces of furniture.

out in a speed boat to the island. The guide remarked that if one had plenty of money there was one place where one could be cured of asthma and hay fever.

Not having asthma or hay fever, also no money, we did not stay from St Ignace. From St Ignace we went on to the Locks at St. Marys Falls Canal. There are four locks here. These locks are the longest, largest and busiest in the world. The traffic through these locks exceeds that of Panama, Suez, Kiel and Manchester canals combined. There was a stream of tourists here waiting to see the vessels let thru. Here we found three Ken- nedy cars, the first we had seen since leaving Ohio on the way up.

We soon got acquainted and enjoyed seeing folk from home. Going on down to the ferry we arranged to go on over into Canada and see some of the Canadian points of interest. Here we had a little trouble with our experience in getting a permit to enter as we wanted to take our car over and lead it into the States.

After a call across to the Canadian custom officials we were over. We ate our lunch at a cafe and left for the tourists. A few remnants of older settlements remained but it was more or less like the towns of the upper peninsula of Michigan. The small windows were interesting, I saw some lovely china ware, pottery and the woollens from Hudson Bay. It was tempting to buy some of the pottery and blankets but the duty increased the price so much that I refrained.

We drove out in the country from Saute Ste. Marie and I noticed that all highways were marked with the Crown of England and read, "King of the Road." We passed the largest caribou plant in the world and a steel plant.

The fact that the United States can undersell the world in steel even with higher priced labor and higher cost of production is due to the cheap transportation on the Lakes and through the locks. These locks are free to all vessels foreign and home and, this benefits the country as a whole.

The state of Kentucky is characteristically known here in North- western Michigan as a state that likes its politics with mustard—for our Kentucky mountaineer and his old-time—or hot tempers—the Blue Grass and the Kentucky Derby.

Our next door neighbors who were here from Grand Rapids learned we were from Kentucky and one evening when we were playing bridge and Dock Ellington had his ace trumped and became "mildly" irritated. He and I then cautiously inquired if all Kentuckians were hot tempered.

He told us that at times we were easily "riled," but were really harmless, and he remarked that he had suspected as much as his wife's mother-in-law, a former Kentuckian but he had never dared voice the opinion.

We have enjoyed getting the "blue" from the "white" and away, for you know, "What's 'taast or west, 't's home that's best."

Mr. A. F. Ellington and Dock P. S. Iverson, any time you want to take up fishing as a hobby will be glad to give you the real inside data on the sport.

Lewis county farmers bought purebred rams in Kentucky to mate with large western ewes. Several Todd county farmers are rebuilding laying houses to provide light and ventilation.

Dr. & Mrs. Ellington Write Vacation Letter

(Continued from page 1) Most any direction one goes here in northern Michigan numerous small fishing lakes will be found. These lakes are very pretty with the lakes, rolling fields of wheat and grazing and miles of forest in which deer and birds are plentiful.

Michigan claims more tourists than any other state in the Union due to the hunting, fishing, climate and other conveniences for tourists and visitors. The highways are very well kept with beautiful paved roads through the most picturesque spots.

We noticed roadside tables and benches are found at intervals all along the roads for the picnickers and travelers to rest and lunch. It seems that every one is always going some where or another here. It is certainly a state that believes in hospitality to strangers. The people are especially hospitable and they have a wonderful sense of geographical location.

In products here in northern Michigan are slowly becoming high. In fact the Irish potato and the apple here have the best flavor have ever tasted and the reputation for the best flavor of taste can well be proved by any one who considers themselves a connoisseur. The small yellow corn which is delicious and nutritious during the short summer season for table use. Cornbread is not a favorite bread here, nor is hot biscuit very plentiful. Dairy products are very fine.

There are several interesting tourist resorts and visitors so this week we found ourselves going further northward toward the upper peninsula of Michigan and toward the Canadian border.

The first stop was made at Mackinac City. Here we took the ferry across Mackinac Strait to St. Ignace. The strait is a narrow ledge and here it is that they have a train ferry that transports trains across the strait.

The ferry we saw carried about sixty freight cars at one trip. About ten or twelve miles out lies Mackinac Island. This island is a favorite resort for tourists and hay fever victims. No automobiles are allowed, the trip being made
