ARTIST RECEIVES KEY

Morehead State University's Academy of Arts, in conjunction with Pine Grove Gallery, recently sponsored a painting seminar featuring Dalhart Windberg of Austin, Texas. Windberg is known for his painting technique, creating scenes of America in the style of the old masters of Europe. Windberg, third from right, was presented the key to the city of Morehead from Mayor Larry Breeze at a luncheon following the last day of the workshop. Watching the presentation were Yvonne Baldwin, left, director of the Academy, Christine Barker of Pine Grove Gallery and June M. Lee of Austin, who assisted Windberg with the workshop.

VINTAGE FASHIONS

Morehead State University 14th annual Appalachian Celebration offered thousands of visitors a chance to participate in various workshops and tours and to view concerts, symposiums, poetry readings and films, while others came to look and buy arts and crafts of the Appalachian region. Senior citizens from different parts of Eastern Kentucky modeled clothes from the past in a "Vintage Fashion Show." Taking part were, from left, Dorothy Ramey of Sharpsburg; Sophie Adkins of Isonville; Joy Howard--obviously a non-senior citizen--of Elliott County and Velearie Stephens of Sandy Hook. MOREHEAD, Ky.--Larry X. Besant, director of libraries at Morehead State University, has been appointed to the State Archives and Records Commission by Gov. Wallace G. Wilkinson.

The commission is made up of 15 members representing all levels of state officials and public educators. Its main purpose is to deal with retention and disposal of records by state and local agencies.

As records officer for MSU, Besant is looking forward to serving on the commission. "It's a very weighty group, including cabinet secretaries, a supreme court chief justice and the state Attorney General," said Besant.

He also is looking forward to broadening his knowledge of the technological advances made in microfilm and laser-disks. "I am interested in learning more about the area of the state's microfilm program, changing rules for archiving computer-readable files and, from a librarian's point of view, retaining material for historical purposes rather than legal," said Besant.

Besant earned a bachelor's degree in chemistry and a master's degree in library science from the University of Illinois. The author of many articles for professional publications, he is an active member of the American Library Association, National Information Standards Organization and the Association of Research Libraries.

Before coming to MSU, Besant was director of the Linda Hall Library in Kansas City, Mo.

July 13, 1990
FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University's Office of Wood Technology, Kentucky Economic Development Cabinet and the Kentucky Forest Industries Association will co-sponsor a program for companies interested in the hardwood dimension industry in late July.

The program will consist of two one-day sessions, the first to be held on July 25 at the Greenwood Executive Inn in Bowling Green and the following day, July 26, at the Ramada Inn in London.

According to Robert Bauer, MSU wood technologist, hardwood dimension is the process of taking lumber and putting it into any form that can be utilized by a furniture company or plant to be made into a product, such as legs for chairs.

"The main purpose of the program is to try to get people to add more value to their lumber," said Bauer.

Topics will include investment and production requirements for hardwood dimension, raw material supply, yield, product pricing, marketing, investment and personnel requirements.

Workshops scheduled include, "Raw Material Supply and Hardwood Dimension Products," a discussion of raw material requirements and what constitutes hardwood dimension stock; "Equipment and Investment Needs," a discussion of what basic equipment is needed to produce dimension products and related capital requirements;

"Raw Material and Finished Product Pricing," dealing with how to determine proper pricing of raw material input and product output and a local perspective of present price competition for raw material and finished product sales; "Marketing Hardwood Dimension," deals with the keys to successful marketing of dimension products, locating the market and determining how to move your product into the market; and "Dimension Yield and Diversity of Markets," which discusses the critical process of maximizing dimension yield from raw materials.

Experts in the field will be on hand to present discussions and to answer questions. The program will allow time for interaction between speakers and the audience.

Additional information is available by calling Bauer at (606) 783-2023.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University recently was featured on MTV. No, not Music Television, but the original MTV--Hungary's Magyar Televizio. MSU's television productions were profiled in March as part of a monthly program known as "Videovilag" (Videoworld). The show featured experts from several MSU-TV programs along with interviews with Dr. Michael Biel, associate professor of radio/television, and students Bradley Barnett of Louisa and Dana Reliford of Shepherdsville.

The interviews were recorded in June 1989 in Budapest, during a tour of Hungarian Television's facilities by students in Dr. Biel's International Broadcasting class.

While the MSU contingent was in the "Videovilag" production studio, the show's producer, Judit Kopper, noticed members using portable video equipment to record the tour. Since usage of such equipment is the theme for the series, Kopper inquired about the "camera crew's" background.

Because college-level instructional programs in radio-television broadcasting are practically unheard of in Eastern Europe, it was decided to include a report on Morehead State in an upcoming episode on American video production and a 10-minute interview was taped in the studio, according to Dr. Biel.

Later Dr. Biel sent a tape of several MSU-TV student productions which were incorporated into the program along with the interview. The MSU productions were supervised by Autumn Grubb-Swetnam, coordinator of television production, and Dale Greer, assistant professor of radio/television.

A tape of the MTV production is available for viewing at Camden-Carroll Library.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Accreditation of Morehead State University's Department of Music has been reaffirmed through the year 2000.

Dr. Christopher S. Gallaher, department chair and professor of music, received word earlier this month from the National Association of Schools of Music that the department's accreditation was continued for a 10-year period.

"This seal of 'good housekeeping' is the result of an extensive two-year self-study which involved a great deal of work by our music faculty over and beyond their teaching responsibilities," said Dr. Gallaher.

"Morehead State's music program has long enjoyed national recognition as a quality program," said MSU President C. Nelson Grote. "The faculty and Dr. Gallaher repeatedly demonstrate their commitment to maintaining that quality. They should be proud that their peers in the field recognize this," Dr. Grote said.

According to Dr. Gallaher, the report from the NASM visiting team gave MSU's music department high marks for the "spirit of collegiality and mutual support within a well-credentialed faculty," for its "talented and enthusiastic" student body, for having a well maintained facility and excellent library and for the "spirit of support" from the University's administration.

MSU's music program was one of only four to be accredited unconditionally at the June meeting of the association's Commission on Accreditation. NASM, headquartered in Reston, Va., has more than 550 member schools.

All four of the department's baccalaureate degrees were included in the NASM approval as were both the master's degree in performance and in music education. Also the Bachelor of Music in jazz studies degree program is recognized by NASM, with full approval pending the graduation of additional students.

The NASM visiting team which conducted the on-site inspection of the music department and its programs was composed of Andrew Harper of the University of South Alabama and Herbert Koerselman of Sam Houston State University.

Morehead State's undergraduate music degrees include the B.A. degree, the Bachelor of Music in theory-composition, the Bachelor of Music in performance, and the Bachelor of Music Education. The department currently has more than 140 undergraduate majors.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University will serve as the host institution in the upcoming year for the Kentucky Interscholastic Speech and Drama Association (KISDA). Harlen Hamm, associate professor of speech at MSU, will be campus director of the association.

KISDA is dedicated to advancing speech education in junior and senior high schools. In order to reach its goals, the association conducts an annual competitive state speech tournament and host workshops in various parts of the state.

According to Hamm, MSU will be responsible for directing the state tournament held in early spring. He also will conduct the day-to-day business of KISDA, supervise all working committees, assist in carrying out the wishes of the board of directors and host all board meetings.

"We certainly want to continue the excellent state tournaments that KISDA has hosted in past years. In addition, we want to lend the expertise of MSU's faculty in expanding existing workshops and speech education programs," said Hamm. "We hope to help members improve the speech program in their own individual schools," he said.

MSU speech faculty members are preparing for the annual fall membership drive organized by KISDA. The 1989 membership included 33 high school chapters. KISDA has been in existence only three years.

KISDA offices will be located on MSU's campus in Breckinridge Hall, Room 206. Additional information is available from Hamm at (606) 783-2712.

July 24, 1990

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Another school year will soon begin at Morehead State University and there are a lot of changes new and returning students can expect to encounter.

Students will register for the fall semester on Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 20-21. Day and evening classes on the main campus will begin meeting on Wednesday, Aug. 22. Registration information night for regional centers is set for Monday, Aug. 20, and evening classes at off-campus locations will start the following Monday, Aug. 27.

When the residence halls open Saturday, Aug. 18, MSU's newly-renovated Fields Hall will make its debut. Housing undergraduate and graduate honors students, along with former residents of Thompson Hall (now closed for similar remodeling), Fields has been transformed into one of the most modern residence halls in the state.

Fields Hall opened in 1927 and has been closed since 1983. The interior has been redesigned to offer cluster living areas. Each living "pod" will include a common bathroom, laundry facilities, kitchen and lounge. Access to a computer line for academic computing needs is available in all rooms and the residents have a computer lab in the basement of the building. Students also will have use of the first floor lobby, study room and recreational areas.

Rededication ceremonies for Fields Hall have been set for Friday, Aug. 17, at 11:30 a.m. An open house will be held during Homecoming weekend.

Several MSU administrators received new titles this summer, including a number in the Division of Student Life. The vice president for student life has added the dean of students to his title; the assistant to the vice president for student life is now assistant dean of students, and the director of student support services has been renamed director of student development.

Also MSU's academic structure has undergone change, with a new college added. The former College of Professional Studies has been re-organized into the College of Business and the College of Education and Behavioral Sciences, bringing the total number of colleges to four.

Changes also have occurred in MSU's academic programs. Agricultural technology, real estate and respiratory therapy have been added to the list of degrees offered. The two-year degree in nursing has been reinstated also. Computer science is now known as computer information systems and office management has been renamed office systems.

Prospective sorority members will return to campus one week early to participate in formal rush. Orientation for rushees will be Tuesday, Aug. 14. A week of informational meetings and theme parties will follow. To be eligible to participate in rush, incoming students must have registered at the Summer Orientation, Advising and Registration programs (SOAR).

Men interested in Greek life must have purchased rush cards from the Interfraternity Council at registration. The IFC Dorm Storm will take place on Wednesday, Aug. 29. On Tuesday, Sept. 4, MSU's 13 fraternities will sponsor a dance in the Alumni Tower parking lot followed by another Dorm Storm. Although fraternity rush continues throughout the fall semester, most fraternities will stop selecting pledges by the end of September.

The Student Government Association (SGA) and the Student Activities Council (SAC) have planned several activities for the upcoming semester. A street dance and ice cream social is slated for Sunday, Aug. 19, in front of the president's house. There will be a concert and dance featuring "Inn-O-Vation" on Monday, Aug. 20, and roving artist Steve "Trash" will entertain students during registration.

Minority Student Affairs will host an orientation program on Friday, Aug. 24, for new and returning students. An orientation meeting also will be scheduled for international students. "Host families and transportation to and from the Bluegrass Airport in Lexington are always needed," said Dr. Perry LeRoy, MSU professor of history and international student adviser.

For those students interested in the performing arts, MSU Theatre productions offer an outlet for their talents. "Romeo and Juliet," "Come Back To The Five and Dime, Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean," "Summer and Smoke" and "The Foreigner" are plays that will be performed in the new school year.

The Arts in Morehead Series (AIMS) offers free admission to MSU students as well as a wide variety of cultural entertainment. Among the events already scheduled for the fall semester are "Chinese Magic Revue," "An Evening with Mark Twain" and a North Carolina Shakespeare Theatre performance of Shakespeare's "A Comedy of Errors."

MSU's Department of Art has scheduled events for the upcoming semester. Glen Rothman will present a Computer Generated Images production in August, the Morehead Art Guild Show will be held in September and a painting and photography exhibition will be presented by Mary Judge and Jack Sal in October.

Besides organized and group activities, MSU students will find many opportunities to become involved at the University. They may take advantage of intramural sporting events, be a participant in the MSU Marching Band or support the MSU Eagles in their intercollegiate sporting endeavors.

Not forgetting the individuals who support the students, MSU will host Parents Weekend on Sept. 28-30. A fun-filled event for all is Homecoming Weekend which will be celebrated on Oct. 12-14.

'DESTINATION GRADUATION'

Destination Graduation provides tutoring aid to students identified by their high school as being "at risk." Morehead State University is one of 12 institutions of higher education in southern and eastern Kentucky participating in the program. Participating in one of three programs this summer offered at MSU were Menifee County students, from left, Melinda Wells, Pamela Manns, Danny McClaine, and Larry Layne. The summer program, which lasts for two weeks, is intended for students who have made the most progress in the Destination Graduation program during the school year. The goal of the program is to build a relationship between the high school student and the college counselor that will encourage the students to take charge of their high school and college careers, according to Dr. Wallace Flint, MSU assistant professor of education and project director.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--"When I dropped out, I never intended not to finish, I always knew I'd come back to school," said Janet Lynn Vandeventer of London, a senior at Morehead State University.

"Although people kept telling me that students who drop out rarely go back to finish their education, I knew I would be different," said the commercial art major.

And Vandeventer has certainly made a comeback, she will graduate in December with a bachelor's degree in commercial art. A major factor in her decision to continue her college education was influenced by her experience in the manager's training program at a local fast-food restaurant.

"One thing that started me along the path toward returning to school was the realization that not everyone has the opportunity to attend college. It was then that I realized how fortunate I was to have had that chance," she said.

Vandeventer, a graduate of Laurel County High School and Sue Bennett College, dropped out for a year and a half--at first because of the pressure and later to stay at home and care for her mother. When her younger brother Mike graduated from MSU in December 1989, he began to care for their mother, giving Vandeventer a chance to continue her education.

A drafting teacher at LCHS first told Vandeventer of MSU's "excellent industrial technology department." When her brother Mike later enrolled at MSU, she often visited him on the campus. Janet's sister, Anita, also graduated from MSU in May of this year.

Vandeventer is spending her summer as a workstudy at MSU, where she is working in the Office of Publications as a layout and design artist. Her creative skills are utilized to create paste-ups and layouts for the catalogs, fliers and brochures the University produces.

Her future plans include working for a publishing company, preferably in the layout and design department. "I would like to work in a small company. In a large firm, there are so many co-workers that you don't receive recognition for your skills and talents," she said.

Vandeventer believes the skills she has acquired at MSU will help her in her quest for job security and happiness. "Eventually I hope to be my own boss, maybe work my way up to the head of the department or even the company," she said.

Having always been interested in art, she realized her talent when she enrolled in a high school art class.

Her hobbies include dancing, listening to music, softball, basketball, racquetball, swimming, fishing and various other sports. She paints in her leisure time and does pastel chalk drawings of things that catch her eye--landscapes, animals or a spectacular sunset. Another of her favorite pastimes is spending time with her dog Jodi, who is part Doberman Pinscher.

Vandeventer is the daughter of Layton Vandeventer and the late Mary Louise Vandeventer.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Headcount enrollment for Morehead State University's two summer sessions is up over 1989 summer terms, continuing a steady growth pattern begun five years ago.

The number of students registering for Summer II classes reflected a 15.3 percent increase over last year's second session.

According to Gene Ranvier, MSU registrar, 1,895 students are taking classes during the second term, up by 251 students from the 1989 second session.

MSU also showed a modest enrollment gain for the first summer term over Summer I of 1989 with 2,295 students. Enrollment for the 1989 first summer term was 2,290.

"Second summer term's growth was very dramatic, especially when you consider we had a 19 percent increase in students taking a full-time class load," said Dr. Stephen S. Taylor, MSU vice president for academic affairs and dean of faculties.

While enrollment gains were reported at each class level, the University saw the highest increase in graduate students, according to Dr. Taylor.
