POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENTS

We are authorized to announce J. B. MAURK for Representative, Rowan-Bath District, PRIMARY TO THE ACTION OF THE Democratic Party, August 2, 1937.

THE AMERICAN WAY

It was not a victory for a party. It was not even a victory for a man, fearless leader as he showed himself to be in his forthright, challenging campaign. It was a victory for "the American way," which has found new expression today through FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

The opponents of President Roosevelt tried to tell the people that their candidate represented "the American way," but the people judged for themselves.

The voters of 1936 forgot party labels, because in this campaign they found something far more important than loyalty to a political party. They voted into office not only Franklin D. Roosevelt, but other men who seemed to share his vision of what America should be. It made no difference to the voters whether these men were listed on the ballot as Republican or Democrat. They choose them for their qualities of liberal leadership.

President Roosevelt left no shadow of doubt in the minds of the people as to what he stood for. No man or woman who heard his speech at Madison Square Garden on the Saturday night before election could have misunderstood his purposes. He gave America the clear choice, and America seized upon it.

It is a sobering thing to think that history will record the election of 1936 as one of the great milestones of liberal advance in the world. It is a deeply heartening thing to think that the American people weighed the issues of a campaign without regard for partisanship, without regard for the force of money, without regard for false issues stirred up by the powerful and well-placed. They voted for the American people weighed the issues of a campaign without regard for partisanship, without regard for false issues stirred up by the powerful and well-placed. They voted for the American way, and they placed its spokesman in the White House to lead the fight in which they have enlisted with all their hearts.

From The Courier-Journal

HEARST ADMITS HE WAS WRONG IN CAMPAIGN

Hearst, publisher and one of the most militant of President Roosevelt's opponents in the late campaign, made a friendly and reconciliatory gesture toward the New Deal in the Guild Daily, published by the striking editorial workers of his suspended news paper, the Post-Intelligencer.

Comparing Roosevelt to Andrew Jackson, Hearst said: "If Andrew Jackson's policies were essentially democratic, why is it not reasonable to concede that Mr. Roosevelt's policies may be equally so—dictatorial in manner and method, but democratic in essence?"

The Guild Daily had asked Hearst for a statement. From New York the publisher telegraphed that he was inclined to believe his first estimation of the President, when he supported him in 1932 and compared him to Jackson, had been more nearly right than his view during the campaign.

Perhaps Roosevelt, like Jackson, has given essential democracy a new lease of life and will establish it in power for a generation, he said. "Every one in a while a republic needs a new birth of freedom, as Lincoln phrased it."

This new infusion of democratic blood prevents a nation from having hardening of the political arteries, and prolongs its existence." "The overwhelming majority of the popular vote for Mr. Roosevelt shows conclusively that the Roosevelt policies are what the people of this Nation want."

"And if these policies are what they want, these policies are what they are entitled to have and will have," the editorial continued. "The cardinal principle of our American democracy is government by the majority. Let all who constitute the minority accept the decision of the majority no grudgingly."

SCHOOL LESSON

THE SUNDAY

Written each week by Rev. B. H. Kaser, Pastor of Baptist Church.

SUBJECT: Risking all for Christ Acts 21:2, 13, 17-34; Rom 9:1-5
GOLDEN TEXT: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." John 15:13.
Last week we told of Paul's trying to convince an Ephesus. You would think he had had enough of trial to discourage him. But Paul was not concerned so much about his trial as he was about witnessing for Christ. And he had much that yet to do. He must hasten on. We have not time here to recite his journey. It was at Caesarea that Agabus claimed to have had a revelation from the Holy Spirit. He took Paul's hands and bound his own feet and hands to indicate just what would happen to Paul, and thereby warned him of great danger, should he (Paul) go on to Jerusalem. But Paul, like Jesus, had his face set toward Jerusalem, for there he must witness to the Jews of Christ.

Paul's danger was not trifling to him, nor was it of much concern to God. For God knew that when He would bring him into earth He would bring him into bliss which would guarantee no loss. God isn't afraid to sacrifice a man on the altar of this earth, for it is only a near way to Heaven for the poor soul, and the fulfillment of a purpose for God. Thus Paul understood, and feared not. To his friends he says: "What do ye weeping ready now to be bound only for the name of the Lord Jesus?" What a courageous stand Fear must not rob him of his opportunity to witness to the important thing.

At Jerusalem he met friends. Many changes had happened since Paul was there. James, pastor of the church there, met him with other brethren. Paul told them his story of missions, and indicated the genuineness of his Gentile converts by bringing a substantial offering from them to the Jerusalem church. The Feast of Pentecost was now on. The most rabid Jews of the whole world were there. They hated Paul, and ranked under his Army and power among the Gentiles. They produced false accusations, as people usually do against a preacher who preaches against sin. To clarify his position among the Christians Jews Paul conformed to some of the ceremonies of the Jews, those in which no principle was involved.

The storm broke. They charged that Paul had been seen in the streets with a Greek, and likely had taken him into the temple. A mob gathered and a riot followed. The officers arrived in time to save Paul from a lynching. They were probably already beating him. The officers were dragging him away from the people when Paul asked to be allowed to speak. See the trick? God had gathered into this mob the meanest Jews, and Paul now had a chance to speak to them of Jesus. Once he had preached the Gospel, what did it matter about Paul? He was ready to go on to death, just as Jesus was.

Then they called the Sanhedrin together to settle matters. A former member being tried by the court. They had to take Paul away after that to keep him from bringing to pieces. And the night following the Lord stood by him and said: "Be of good cheer for as thou hast testified of me in Jerusalem, so must thou bear witness also at Rome." Forty Jews took oath not to eat until they killed Paul. They must have starved to death, for soldiers escorted Paul out of Jerusalem to Caesarea.

Paul's sacrifice here is expressed beautifully in Romans 9:15. Read it.

Nickell Speaks To Men

Recent Movement Under Discussion

Dean C. E. Nickell called an emergency house meeting of the men of Thompson Hall and an appeal was made to the men concerning their conduct since the new rules of the social committee have gone into effect. Many boys voiced their opinions saying that it was unfair and unjust to be deprived of practically the only social activity on the campus during week days. After an explanation by Dean Nickell of why these rules were put into effect a decided change of opinion was voiced. It was voted to have a committee appointed to

ROWAN COUNTY SCHOOLS

Written Each Week By
MABEL ALFREY, Attendance Officer

BLUESTONE SCHOOL IS IMPROVING IN ATTENDANCE

The Bluestone School located at Bluestone is a two room school. Last year were three rooms and three teachers. The attendance made it necessary to have only two teachers this year. In the upper grade room there are 24 enrolled. Mr. Tilford Gevedon has had a little trouble with his attendance in both of the rooms this year, but he has some children who come every day to school and are doing fine work. Mr. Gevedon has offered prizes and this helps his attendance. Mrs. Fraley teaches the lower grades. She has 35 enrolled. She has kept her attendance by having a silver dollar contest. This contest was between the girls and boys. The one who has the best attendance is given a silver dollar. Mrs. Fogley has a very attractive room, having many pictures, charts and exhibits of the children's work. The building is a good building with plenty of space for the children on the playground. The children are interested in ball games and have had some very interesting ones this year. Both teachers are doing good work and would like for the parents to come in to visit them and see the work their children are doing.

ADAMS-DAVIS SCHOOL OFFERS SCHOLARSHIP

The Adams Davis School is across the Nicholas Hill. This school has always been outstanding because of the fact that Mr. Davis, an old time wealthy citizen in that district used to take such an interest in the school. Although Mr. Davis has long since passed away, he left a trust fund in a Mt. Sterling Bank which would take care of any student who would go to the Richmond Normal School. The fund allotted is $100.00 a year. The interest on this fund takes care of the student without touching the principal. The student who wishes to take advantage of this fund, is recommended by the County Superintendent and accepted by the President of the Richmond School. Miss Thelma White, a student from Adams Davis is taking advantage of the allowance this year. Mr. Davis was a far-sighted man and wanted to do something for his district for many years after his death, probably could think of no better way to help the boys and girls than to leave this fund for those who wanted an education and couldn't afford to go to school and pay all expenses themselves. This is valued the Davis fund, and is something for the parents and children in the district to be proud of. The school was formerly called the Adams school, but the Davis part was added after the Davis will was made. There are 35 children enrolled. The school house is in good condition, with new curtains, and shades, new stove, book case, and other exhibits which gives the room a homelike appearance. Miss Dora Hutchinson is the teacher and seems to be making a success of her work.

BULL FORK SCHOOL SITUATED IN AN ISOLATED DISTRICT

The Bull Fork School is one of the most isolated school districts in the county. It is almost impossible to get to this school in the winter time without walking part of the way. In fact the best way is to climb up and down a hill. It is named from a creek which runs down in front of this school named Bull Fork. Mrs. Mary L. Holbrook is a very fortunate teacher due to the fact that she lives just on top of the hill above the school. Her home has just been built and she had her path made over to the hill so she could get to the school. The forest was so dense before the path was made, that the trail had to be blazed in order for the workmen to know where they were. The school is located down at the foot of this hill and is a very comfortable building. The Superintendent and County Board have had some work done there. They have put up a new door, new windows and panes, new roof and new blackboard. The teacher and children take care of the building, keep it decorated and clean. Mrs. Holbrook is interested in showing that as good work can be done here as can be done in the larger schools and they are doing it. Last week they invited the Sharky school over for an Autumn program. The school certainly is showing progress. Mrs. Holbrook does not use any method to keep up her attendance. The children come every day they can without any incentive.

FREE PICTURE SHOW FOR GOOD ATTENDANCE

Mr. Mav has charge of the management of the picture shows at the college. He has expressed a desire to have all the children in the county see a free picture this year. This has been based on the attendance percentage. For the rural schools this month, the schools can come first, if there is a five per cent gain in attendance. This is really going to mean something to the boy and girl who has never seen a talking picture. About sixty children can be taken care of at one time. These children will have a pass entitling them to be admitted free. Some of the teachers will see that the children have a way to come to this show when their school receives a standing which will permit them to come. We are hoping that this will be an incentive to the children to attend more regular, and at the same time give them something to work for. More about the show will be announced, perhaps each week, and I hope the children and teachers will watch the papers, as your school may be the first one to go to the Educational Meeting at Ashland this week end will be given a vacation from Thursday at noon until Friday evening. The Teachers have enrolled in this Association 100 per cent and it is hoped that every one will be present from over the entire county. This would look well for our county as well as be beneficial to the teacher. No teacher can attend these meetings without being benefited and bringing back something that will be an added help in the teaching profession.

HALDEMAN DRAMATIC CLUB IS DOING NICE WORK

The Haldeaman Dramatic Club are really doing work. They gave a play in the High school Gym Oct. 30. The play was directed by Misses Margaret Stewart and Hildred Maggard. The proceeds were $71.50. This money will be used to buy books for the library. The cast in the play were:
Miss Jane Meek ..... Coleen Carree
Bella ..... Katharine Stinson

Durant To Speak At E. K. E. A.

Dr. Will Durant, famous philosopher and author of many books that are best-sellers of the non-fiction field will speak at Ashland, November 12, at 7:30 p. m. under the auspices of the Eastern Kentucky Education Association.

DR. WILL DURANT

Following a series of lectures on philosophy while he was Professor of Philosophy at the Jumbia University, Dr. Durant was persuaded to publish these lectures in book form and that of CIVILIZATION, the first volume of which "Our Oriental Heritage" was published early in 1935, and this to be followed by four more volumes at five year intervals.

Dr. Durant said to receive more attention in the press of the country than any other American speaker is being done with intellectual matters. This is due to the originality of his ideas and the compelling manner in which he expressed these ideas.

With a gift of eloquence and wit, and a wide background of education, he is considered as "the best educated man in America." So brilliant are his lectures that no matter what his subject, he holds and thrills every audience he addresses. His is the universal appeal, rarely suggestion resulted in his first book, "The Story of Philosophy" which has exceeded the sale of even the most popular fiction. Other books followed, including "Mansions of Philosophy," "Transit," the interesting story of his life, "Studies in Genius," and "The Case for India" which caused much discussion, and many others. He has circled the globe twice to gather material for his monumental story

Following a convocation address at the University of Indiana attended by the largest group of students and faculty members of the season, everybody thrilled to the admirable address and afterwards commented enthusiastically on its worth. A typical comment is that made by Dr. D. S. Robinson of the University of Indiana faculty: "In my forum talk on Tuesday evening I characterized Will Durant as the Thomas A. Edison of philosophy because of his wonderful ability to make the difficult theories of philosophy clear to everybody. His address on Wednesday morning convinces me that this is an accurate characterization. Throughout his discussion I continually marveled at the mastery manner in which he presented philosophical argument for and against human progress. As a teacher of philosophy, I am deeply indebted to him for having so vigorously stimulated the thinking and for having quickened the interest in philosophy to all who are fortunate enough to hear him. May he return soon to our campus."

Woodie Hinton, Ford Dealer of Morehead, attended the Ford Dealers Convention in Detroit over the week-end.
Miss Doris Tabor spent Sunday at Olive Hill.

NOTICE: The United States has attached one 1936 Model Ford V-8 Sedan, Motor No. 314957 License No. 221-323 at Morehead, Kentucky. Person interested are warned to make application on or before November 25, 1936 to the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Kentucky, J. M. Moore, U. S. Marshal.

Sinclair Lewis's Dodsworth To Be College Feature Sunday

For Sunday, November 15th, at 2:00 P. M. the College Theatre brings Walter Huston and Ruth Chatterton in "Dodsworth" from the story by Sinclair Lewis. The story concerns itself with a wealthy American, Sam Dodsworth, who goes to Europe with his wife in order to rest from the strenuous business cares under which he has been for years. His wife is much younger than he and is anxious for one last fling at romance before she grows old. She has many flirtations on ship and in Europe and finally divorces Dodsworth. Later he goes back to Europe and falls in love with a wealthy woman in Naples and is having a happy time with his wife. But fate plays his wife a queer hand and she sends a frantic call to Dodsworth when she finds that she cannot marry a man she has chosen. Dodsworth rushes to her and they join again on a boat headed for the States. Here however Dodsworth sees her as the grasping selfish person which she has always been and he bids her goodbye and returns to the woman whom he really loves in Naples.

A large crowd over the county attended the play, and reported it as being excellent.
The Haldeman school also has a P. T. A. which is alive to the needs of the school. They have done and are doing good work and helping the school out, as well as serving as a social hour for the parents.
They met Thursday evening, November 5. Mrs. A. F. Ellington, a former teacher at Ashland Senior High, spoke to the group on the work of the P. T. A. Mrs. Ellington has had experience in this line of work and knows what it is really all about and the work which is possible for them to do. The fifth grade, under the direction of Mr. Glenmore Hodge, presented a dramatization of the singing of the Mayflower Compact, a project developed in the History class. Lunch was served at the conclusion of the program.

GAVE HALLOWEEN PARTY FOR PUPILS THURSDAY

Mrs. Thelma Kissick gave a Halloween party for her pupils last Thursday. The room was beautifully decorated with jack-o-lanterns, black cats, bats and other suitable things. Orange and black paper about the room gave it the spirit of the season. Many beautifully colored autumn leaves were scattered about. Jack-o-lanterns were made by the pupils. Many games were played and candy was served on brightly colored napkins. The pupils had a wonderful time. Socials like this help to keep up the school spirit and relieve the monotony of school work. There is no better time than Halloween to give children a real chance to have a good time and enjoy their childish pranks.
Pupils on the attendance honor roll for the first four months are:

Gladys Terry, Elnedra Terry, Katherine Black, Hays Choate, Lorraine Swim, Cleddis Moore, Malcolm McClurg, Pearl Poston.

The attendance honor roll in the Upper Lick Fork Schools is as follows:

REVIEW & STANDING

spring with Len Miller as his assistant. Laurie Apitz found nearly the same situation. Both coaches have brought their proteges along until they now rank ahead of some of the teams that topped them last season.
The methods of their achievements, however, varies. Johnson has inspired his boys with a fighting spirit and they play hard, rough football, using the two-point play but capable of pausing when the occasion arises. Apitz began forming his methodical combination early by getting the gridders in good physical condition, with each man ready to play sixty minutes of football. This early training has been one of the teams' greatest assets.

The performance record of each team puts them about on a par, with any advantage that may result from this comparison, leading toward the Eagles. While the Cardinals were able to defeat Union 13-0 and Georgetown 12-8, the Eagles could do no better than tie each, the Bulldogs at 6-6 and the tigers in a scoreless affair. On the other hand the Big Golden wave from Morehead swept over the formerly unbeaten Eastern Maroons 19-7, in one of the upsets of the season. The Richmond had edged a single loss was to Murray, 14-7, in a close contest that was anybody's game until the last.

Having seen both Union games, it is the opinion of the writer that the Union that the Morehead was not the same disorganized group that represented the Bulldogs against the Cards on Parkway Field in that early season tilt. To paraphrase the gamblers term, the Cards "played 'em close to their belts," in taking Georgetown. The Tigers were driving for a touch-down in the closing minutes when Crawford Keeling gave them an intentional safety, so as to boot the ball out of danger.

CITY TO REDUCE TAXES

more than ample to justify the removal of the tax levy of 75 cents per hundred.

Of course that is more or less of a pious. But it is a vision that the city councilmen want to see realized and that they believe they will realize. It is based on the assumption that the use of gas will become almost universal, so far as Morehead is concerned, as soon as the system is completed and the prospective customers are able to realize the saving in both work, dirt and worry they receive from the use of the gas.

Those who have investigated say that the gas rate offered local users is considerably lower than that of neighboring cities, one of the lowest offered any city in the entire state. That being the case, there is no reason why Morehead citizens should not use the gas being offered for their convenience, since they not only will have the benefit of a low rate, but will be able at the same time to know that any and all profits that accrue will go into the city treasury and be used eventually to reduce their city taxes and possibly do away with them altogether.

It is safe to say that Morehead is in the best condition financially it has ever been, and that as the gas consumption becomes more widespread this condition will continue to improve.
Thus far the gas has been turned on in only a limited number of homes, but in those it has proved satisfactory.

and drove the Kings to cover with a barrage that ended after the visitors had piled up three touch-downs and converted an extra point to make their total 19.
The Vikings, while they have won but one game in the season have shown continual improvement in every game. They are just beginning to get organized into a fighting machine, and with the same boys or the roster next year, should be able to give a good account of themselves. It should be remembered that the Kings are an absolutely green squad and have had all the fundamentals to learn this year.

ing the greater part of their time and money at present to hospitalization and burial. Funds raised by the local Red Cross will remain in the county and be used to help the needy who require hospital and surgical attention and to assist in providing suitable burial for those who are unable to take care of their own needs.

The drive for members will continue until Thanksgiving Day, officially, although Mrs. Wells states that she has had the promise of more than the quota set. She hopes to finish the work within the next two weeks with the cooperation of those who have become regular assistants in putting on over the drive.

U. S. FOREST SERVICE

The Cumberland National Forest is the only National Forest in Kentucky and has a gross acreage of over one million acres.

Over 60 per cent of the Forest Fires occurring on National Forests in Northeastern United States since January 1, 1936 have been on the Cumberland National Forest in Kentucky.

25 per cent of the revenue collected by the United States Forest Service by sales of timber on National Forest lands, to be used for roads and schools. An additional 10 per cent is returned to the National forest for roads.

Hunting and fishing is allowed on National Forests in accordance with State Fish and Game Laws.

It is a misdemeanor in Kentucky for a person to start a fire and abandon it, thereby damage is done to growing timber, whether on public or private land.

Over 90 per cent of all fires oc-curing on National Forests, State and Private land in the United States are man-caused. Forest fires in the United States during 1934 cost us $124,000 a day. North America, with 1-12 of the world's people uses about one-half of all the timber consumed in the world.

Mostly owing to carelessness, an area larger than all New England was burned over by Forest Fires in 1934.

Stopping preventable waste in lumber would save yearly half as much as now grows every year.

There are 200,000 known kinds of tree attacking insects, and their attacks upon the trees are going on all the time. It is estimated that these insects cause a loss of $100,000,000 every year.

In 1934 careless smokers started 40,000 forest fires in the United States.

The good woodman appreciates the value of the Forest to himself, his neighbor, his community and his State. He knows the vital need of observing fire prevention rules

Holtzclaw Is Speaker

Discusses Social Studies Teachers

Dr. Holtzclaw, head of the history department, was the attraction at Friday's chapel. His subject was and never finds these rules burdensome.

Daulton Addresses Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. had as its guest speaker Howard Daulton. Daulton stated that "Prophecy is one of the things that is so apparent in the Bible" and gave several current activities to illustrate his point.

"The Social Science Teacher And A Changing Democracy." Parts of his speech are as follows: "The social sciences, and social science teaching in the public schools of the United States, along with the institutions of democracy itself, are now in a process of transition—perhaps we might even use a stronger term and say 'revolution'."

"This, of course, as every well informed social science teacher knows, is not the first time that fundamental changes of this kind have occurred in this field of teaching. Indeed, there have been several upheavals of this nature during the past half century. For instance, each of you here today who has been a high school student during the past few years, especially if you have had well trained social science teachers, were influenced by a very fundamental change which occurred during the first two decades of the present century. And, even though your education has nevertheless been affected by that movement, for the widening scope of the social science curriculum and the changing nature of text books have had an influence regardless of the training of the teacher.

"Lest you who have recently come through high schools should regard your social studies 'three m and y and void of practical value, let me describe to you briefly the history and history teaching that high school students met before the turn of this century. Those were the days when the classical languages and the historians completely dominated the social science curriculum in the high school. It was conceived then, that the cardinal purpose of secondary education was to prepare students for classical college work only, and not to prepare them also for effective citizenship in a changing democracy as is the case now. In the field of history (and there were no other social studies then), it was assumed that history existed largely for the historian, and that every student who pursued its pages was a historian in the making."
