

Warring Factions to the Front.

MOREHEAD, KY., July 2.—A difficulty occurred here to-day between two old enemies, Craig Tolliver and Matt Cary. Tolliver got the drop on Cary, who begged for his life, and Tolliver granted it, and permitted him to get out of danger. Cary then bled him to his friends and sounded the tocsin of war. He summoned Howard Logan, Cook Humphrey and others and moved into town, taking up quarters at the Logan House. The Tolliver faction soon gathered, and assembled at the Raine House, at the other end of the town, near where the troops were quartered last year. They are now gathering in men and arms, and as there are plenty of both, a serious conflict is hourly expected. These are the factions that were at war last year, and who made a patched-up peace under the influence of the Governor and the military.
