We Offer Condolences

It is with deep regret that we extend condolences to the widow, family and friends of Drew Evans, Jr., who came to an untimely death Friday evening in an automobile mishap on the Wrigley Road.

We know, however, that nothing we can say or do will make restitution for the great loss suffered by this and our neighboring county, Elliott.

Testimonial of the fact that friends of the deceased abounded in the two counties was the numerous floral offerings, those attending the services and those called to extend their sympathies to the bereaved loved ones.

We need only repeat the words of the pastor, a life-long friend of "June's," who was in charge of the services, in order to give one an idea of what those who were intimate with the young man thought of him: "He had a heart as big as the world."

A Hallow'e'n Party For Window Soapers

Instead of preaching or censoring young people for their activities on Hallow'e'n night, residents of one small city in a nearby state, according to a newspaper clipping, entertain the young boys at a Hallow'e'n party.

Different groups entertain the boys each year and the business and professional men contribute funds necessary to carry on the event.

Proof that the idea was successful in obtaining its objective is shown by the clipping, which concludes, "Following the refreshments, the boys marched to the Reno theatre for the late show, after which they dispersed."

No one can accuse the residents of this community of not being forward looking.

Southern Economic Conditions--Section Three--Water

This editorial is a committee report to President Roosevelt on economic conditions in the South. It has received much local comment. Send yours in to the Independent. Read this every week.

To consider another aspect of the South's water resources the once rich fisheries are being depleted on the coast and in the inland life and recreational facilities developed only meagerly on the other. This is true notwithstanding that the shallow sounds along the coasts are important wintering grounds for game varieties of waterfowl and that the sport fishing along the coasts and in the inner sounds is truly notable.

In addition to their value as recreation grounds, these areas are also of tremendous importance as sources of sea food. But their value both as sources of food for the nation and as a means of livelihood for those engaged in commercial fishing and shellfishing, is threatened by overfishing and, in a few places, by water pollution.

The South is only now becoming aware of the fortune it has in its vast water resources. The value in transportation, power, fish, and game, and in health and recreation. It has just begun to consider the problems involved in conserving this many-sided resource, in curbing the destructive power of water and making it useful.

The population of the South is growing more rapidly by natural increase than that of any other region. Its excess of births over deaths is 10 per thousand, as compared with a national average of 7 per thousand and already it has the most thickly populated rural areas in the United States. Of the 108,600,000 native-born persons in the country in 1930, 28,700,000 were born in the Southeast, all but 4,600,000 in rural districts.

These rural districts have exported one-fourth of their natural increase in sons and daughters. They have supplied their own growth, much of the growth of southern cities, and still have sent great numbers into other sections. Of these southerners born in rural areas, only 17,500,000 live in the locality where they were born, and 3,800,000 have left the South entirely.

This migration has taken from the South many of its ablest people. Nearly half of the eminent scientists born in the South are now living elsewhere. While some of these have been replaced by scientists from other sections of the country, the movement from the South has been much greater than this replacement. The search for wider opportunities than are available in the overcrowded, economically undeveloped southern communities drains away people from every walk of life. About one child of every eight born and educated in Alabama or Mississippi contributes his life's productivity to some other State.

The expanding southern population likewise has a marked effect on the South's economic standards. There are fewer productive adult workers and more dependents per capita than in other sections of the country. The export of population reflects the failure of the South to provide adequate opportunities for its people.

The largely rural states of the South must support nearly one-third of their population in school, while the industrial states support less than one-fourth. Moreover, in their search for jobs the productive middle-age groups leave the South in the greatest numbers, tending to make the South a land of the very old and the very young. A study of one southern community in 1928 showed that about 30 percent of the households were headed by women past middle age. Since 1930 more of these women, formerly able to live by odd jobs and gardening, have gone on relief. Public studies in the eastern cotton belt have shown recently that 15 percent of the relief households were without a male over 16 years of age and 15 percent more, or 31 percent altogether, were without any employable male. Even if the southern workers were able, therefore, to secure wages equal to those of the North on a per capita basis dollar for dollar, a great gap would still remain between the living standards of southern families and those of other regions.

Recent figures indicate a slowing down of the migration to the cities. However, too, the rural population has increased most rapidly in those sections where the land is poorest. Thus the Appalachian and Ozark areas have shown a rapid increase, while the old black-belt cotton counties of the Delta and Mississippi have shown little or no gains. This has brought about an intensification of the problem of earning a living in the South.

Big families have been growing up on the average southern farm in recent generations. When the children reach maturity, either some must leave the farm to move away, or find jobs in industry or trade, or the family farm—already too small—must be cut into smaller farms.

Far many year after the War between the States, there was a general tendency to regard the rural population but about 1910 a contrary movement began which partially offsets this tendency. Nevertheless, because of the decrease in tillable land, in the older Southern states east of Texas, the farm acreage was actually less in 1930 than in 1890. In 1930 there were nearly twice as many southern farms less than 20 acres in size as in 1880. These figures indicate serious readjustment between the people and the land, and a consequent misuse of resources. (To be continued)

What A Yardstick!

The Tennessee Valley Authority has issued a pamphlet entitled "To Keep the Water in the Rivers and the Soil on the Land." A copy will be sent to anyone, on request, without charge. It comes in a regular government manila envelope carrying the return address: "Tennessee Valley Authority, Washington, D. C. 20541." It is framed throughout, the mails, as sealed, first-class matter, and the envelope bears the usual warning to the effect that penalty for private use to avoid payment of postage is $300.

The pamphlet itself is attractively printed and illustrated, and contains 61 pages of text on the subject of conservation of the TVA. The title page carries the inscription: "United States Government Printing Office--1938."

The private utilities of the nation, with which the TVA and other federal projects are in competition, will be only human if they sigh wishfully when they see this pamphlet and dream of the pleasure of carrying on a business where the government pays for printing mailing of advertising literature. This is only one of the subsidies that a paternalistic government confers on its pet projects. The TVA, for instance, uses government-licensed trucks, and pays no tax on gasoline. If gets various expensive services gratis from the public treasury and accounting offices. Whenever it buys a piece of property, whether it is a machine or some acreage, this property immediately comes off the state, county and municipal tax rolls. If it runs out of money or goes over its ample budget, it has only to appeal to congress for a new appropriation.

And this, of course, is in addition to TVA's major advantages of virtual tax-freedom in all its operations, plus tax subsidies running into the hundreds of millions.

There is the great TVA yardstick—which was seriously proposed as a true measure of rates charged by heavily-taxed private utilities. Any utility that pays taxes on everything they get, whether it's a generator or a booster pamphlet. There isn't a person in this country who isn't directly or indirectly contributing, through taxation, to the upkeep of the TVA. Even the coal miners are helping to pay for a project which, when completed, means less coal to be mined and less jobs for men now engaged in the mining of coal, the TVA striking at Kentucky miners a heavy blow.—Central City Messenger.

If wives or husbands are awkwardly ill-at-ease in public, it isn't bashfulness. They're ashamed of what they married.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson For November 13 THE SACREDNESS OF HUMAN LIFE

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:13; Matthew 5:21-26, 38-42. GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt not kill—Exodus 20:13. Whoever hateth his brother is a murderer.—I John 3:15.

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by the International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

The sanctity of human life finds its foundation in the fact that God created man in His own likeness and image. Because that is true no man has any right to take the life of another for any cause except at the direct command of God. Only by the orderly process of the law for the protection of society and in accordance with the Word of God may there be any such action by man toward man. Both of these truths are declared in Scripture in God's covenant with Noah (Gen. 9:5, 6), which was made possibly a thousand years before the Ten Commandments were given to Moses. Life is held rather cheaply in our day. Nations count their boys and girls as only so much "war material." Life is destroyed "in the highway, in the shop, in the home. . . Let us declare again the solemn command that was made by God, "Thou shalt not kill."

The Prohibition of Murder (Exod. 20:13). The word "kill" in this commandment is one which means a violent and unadvised taking of life, and is therefore more properly translated "murder." Not all killing is murder. A man may kill another entirely accidentally, or by man toward man, constituted legal officer carrying out the law of the land in taking the life of one who has forfeited his right to life because he has slain another. There is also the right of self-defense, but these are the only exceptions; let us not attempt to justify any other.

Murder is much too prevalent in our land. In 1936 there were 13,242 outright killings—murder every forty minutes. The head of the United States secret service estimates that there are 200 persons at large in our land who "have murder" in their hearts and who will take human life before they die." At least 37,800 deaths in automobile accidents. Some of these were by unavoidable accidents, but many were really murder because the one responsible drove with defective brakes, dangerous tires, or while he was intoxicated. Add to these the deaths in industry caused by failure to provide proper safeguards or healthy working conditions, and by the exploitation of child labor, and we say again, that we as a whole should cry aloud, "Thou shalt do no murder."

II. The Cause of Murder (Matt. 5:21, 22).

From the Sermon on the Mount, of which the rest of our lesson is taken, while it "describes the character of the citizens of the earthly kingdom which the Messiah came to set up" and "assumes a class of people already saved, regenerated, and in fellowship with their King" (James M. Gray), does provide the fundamental principles for the general guidance of the Christian.

In this matter of murder, Jesus cuts right through the outward aspects of the matter and points out that the angry hatred in the heart is the root of all murder. If we hate, we have murder in our hearts. Circumstances may hinder the fulfillment, but the danger is always there until we remove the cause. "Just being angry"—calling our brother "Rac" (the modern equivalent of which is "nobody there"), and calling him "thou fool," which classifies him "morally worthless"—these are the three dreadful downward steps to murder. And they begin in anger. May God help those of us who have strong feelings that we may not yield them to evil die in such anger against our brother!

III. The Prevention of Murder (Matt. 5:23-26, 38-42).

Prevention with God means more than putting up a barrier to keep us from killing. He deals with the heart, and thus suits the whole life right. It is not even a question of how we may feel against our brother. If he has fought against us we are to do all we can to win him. He may be unreasonable, grasping, and unfair. However, the spirit that will win him is not that of retaliation or sullen submission to the inevitable; but rather a free and willing going even beyond what is required.

The full interpretation of this passage is not possible in our limited space. However it is clear from other scriptures that it does not mean that wicked and unscrupulous men are to be permitted to defraud and destroy God's people. At the same time, we must not explain away the heart of our Lord's interpretation of this great commandment. Let us seek His grace that we may, like Him, slay by our loving deeds and words even the bitter gainsayers of the gospel.

Carey Pupils Working On Early Settlers Study

Mayme Myers Lowe

The seventh grade pupils are working on a pioneer history project. With the other grades aiding them they are making a park among the pines by clearing the brush and leaves away. A log cabin is now under construction. Sets have already been made under the pines. When the cabin is finished pictures will be made of the park with the children around or near the cabin. This project has been named the pioneer park.

Last Friday afternoon, the teacher and pupils went to the Farmers School carnival. Each one enjoyed the games and other events. The regular meeting of the Carey P. T. A. was held Thursday afternoon, November 3. After a short business meeting, names were exchanged for Christmas presents.

The number drawn for the cowboy quilt was 85 which went to Mrs. Sam Stamper of Farmers, Ky. The parents present at the meeting were as follows: Mrs. Lillie Sullivan, Mrs. Ora Armstrong, Mrs. Beulah Royse, Mrs. Lillie Thompson, Mrs. Pearl Smith, Mrs. Edith Archib, Mrs. Erma Thompson, and Mrs. Amy B. Loux. Pupils who have not been absent from school for the past four months are: Benjamin Williams, Brynlow Williams, Aderbert Williams, Eldon Lowe, Zetta Thompson, Maxine Armstrong, Deloris Royle, Gladys Hamilton. Pupils who have been absent from school for only one day are as follows: Evert Alfrey, Earnest Bowling, Beatrice Uterback and Gloria Royle.

Columbus By Roscoe Perkins

When Columbus discovered this new land, He found the Indians and they shook hands. Columbus said, "I am on the hunt of gold." The Indians showed him where it would grow.

Columbus thought he could go east by sailing west, But he didn't do it at his very best. So he landed in America where Indians were, And he traded guns for bunches of fir.

Nobody thought Columbus could be the man, To have discovered this new land. And Columbus came over the second time, But death was waiting its prize, Our men. So he died not knowing he had found the new land.

Demonstration By Typing Expert Is Well Attended

Types More Than 140 Words Per Minute In Speed Test

Students estimated at nearly three hundred witnessed the demonstration given by Corlee Peters, one of the world's fastest typists in the college gymnasium, Thursday morning, November 3, at eleven o'clock. Mr. Peters began typing at the age of thirteen in high school and he now owns and operates three business colleges as well as being one of the fastest professional typists. He has received many medals and awards from the major typewriter companies for his achievements in typing.

He has also given many tests demonstrating skill, speed and endurance in typing. A partial list of these tests is given below. 1. 30 second test—94 words per minute with least possible expenditure of energy. 2. Concentration test—Reciting one article and typing different one. 3. Sensitiveness test—Blindfolded and wearing mittens, he typed out an article without making any mistakes. 4. Contrast of carriage return by students with that of professional. 5. Rhythm on a Royal—Typing an article accompanied by a rhythmic arrangement of music. 6. Speed test—140 2-5 words per minute.

At the close of his demonstration a ten minute discussion was held during which time members of the faculty and students were given the opportunity of asking Mr. Peters questions concerning typing. Loyd Collier, a Marshall county farmer, raised a litter of pigs to weigh 2,069 pounds in 185 days. Phosphate demonstrations in Union county include sowing meadow fescue, tall oat grass, bromegrass, Canada bluegrass and Italian rye grass.

Farmers Advised To Store Equipment

Carl Wade, Agricultural Teacher Now that the period of cultivating the crop is over and the harvesting period is drawing to a close we sometimes think the work is over till the following spring. This time of year is the wonderful period of the mowing machine, hay rakes, plows, harrows and many other farm implements. Why? Because heretofore they have spent the winter in the bag shed, where the sky was the roof. This fall let us, farmers, be more cautious and see that all of the implements that were used, are put in a dry place and out of the way. While storing the tools, check all the parts that might be worn and list those parts that will have to be replaced. Much time can be saved by doing these things this fall and winter when a farmer does not need the work done by the implement.

Let us remember that each one of the farm tools cost a sum of money and the interest rate can be reduced by giving the proper care to all of the farm property. Another time saving job is to use saw oil in putting away the tools. Oil the plow moldboard and save those very unpleasant hours next spring when the plow is used first. There is probably a gate that has been in use all summer and needs repair, barn door in bad condition, and we could point out the many other things that could be done. This may not fit every farmer in Rowan county but some of us have been careless with our own property and we are only calling attention to some of the farmers that next spring work might be made easier at first, if we know all is well in the tool shed.

New Members May Join Special Project On November 14th

Twenty-Eight Additional Students Are Expected

The special NYA project, which was inaugurated on the campus last second summer term, will be joined by twenty-eight new members November 14, according to a recent report. The project, opened in August, 1938, was composed of twenty-two young men who were to live on the campus, work 100 hours per week days, and, in addition, take five to four classes a semester. They have been following these regulations to the letter. The students' college expenses are paid for by their work, and each one receives $7 a month for personal expenses.

I wonder how a game between Centre and U. K. would turn out? Actually there is little doubt in my mind...

Little is known about Central Indiana Teachers when the Eagles play Friday at Ashland, at least in this neck of the woods.

Wisconsin registered a surprise defeat when they turned back Indiana yesterday, November 20-13. The Badgers played faultless ball...

Congratulations to Transy! They deserved to win and did come through 14-7 over Union.

For the second year Alabama's margin of victory over Tulane was a field goal. Last year's score was 9-6, and Saturday's victory was by 3-0.

Nope Dame beat a helpless Navy team 15-0. Layden used his second and third teams most of the game.

Another upset of the weekend was Purdue's 12-0 victory over Ohio State. As in previous games, Purdue's scoring was done in the last half.

Patience and perseverance win out in the end. After 69 years of waiting Rutgers has defeated Princeton. The first intercollegiate game of football was played between the two schools in 1899...

Southern California looks like the best in the West after skinning California's Golden Bears 13-7. The game was more one sided than the score indicates.

Those erratic Wildcatters from U. K. were in their element with Georgia Tech and the Engineers were glad to escape with the 19-18 victory.

Those darky-boys, Joe Louis and John Lewis are booked for a scrap in Madison Square Garden. Louis is heavyweight champion and Lewis a few weeks ago held the light-heavyweight, middle weight and welterweight crowns...

The Lexington Leader has a columnist called the "Demon Dipster." A good name for us would be the Angelic Anticipator, or something of that sort.

Raconteur's Newest Is Frances Abrams

A senior, Frances Abrams, was named as Miss Webster on the Raconteur, Monday, October 31, according to a release from the Annual staff.

Besides being a member of the Beaux Arts and English Mens clubs, Frances holds a place on the Student Council, an active honorary organization of Fields Hall. She has attained for herself a high scholastic standing and a reputation as an all-around student.

At the beginning of this school year she was appointed to the position of recorder in the Registrar's office to replace Mrs. Dorothy Clumbe, who resigned to take residence at Cleveland, Ohio.

By Earl May

The stories of hunting and fishing during the days when this country was being settled are always fascinating. The most unimprovable part of the story...

Probably no man in this section of the country has had the experience, in new and unsettled country, of D. F. Walker. Mr. Walker's father, Mr. Ray Wandle, of Morehead, was reared in a section of Louisiana that was divided into huge plantations...

During his active business life Mr. Walker was a railroad contractor and a busy one. Many miles of railroad across the jungles of South America or across the Panama Canal Zone were built through new country under his guidance.

Besides just working in these countries and enjoying the hunting and fishing, Mr. Walker owned extensive land in the timber wolf hunt to his heart's desire in Mexico he bought a ranch of twenty-five thousand acres and in the West Virginia Short Land large plantation where he had his favorite sport, quail hunting.

One of his earliest experiences was the trapping of his timber wolf. Being only a boy then he was anxious to keep the wolf rather than to kill it, so he roped the huge job and brought him home where he put him in one of the empty slave cabins.

Hearing of the wolf and believing that his dog could take care of him as he had every other canine, the pit bull's owner offered to wager $100 that his dog could whip the wolf. Some sportsmen in the community soon covered the bet and arrangements were made with the young wolf owner to allow the fight and to stage it in the slave cabin.

When the day of the fight arrived a large crowd of sportsmen, planters and slaves were on hand to witness the contest. Spectation of both contestants by the spectators soon had the crowd split into two factions, one for the wolf and the other for the dog.

At that time the slave cabins had no windows and the spectators began knocking the chinking out of the logs so that they could see the fight. The pit bull, all ways eager to fight and bred for nothing else, was led to the door. The smell of the wolf was not what he had expected and something in his makeup warned him of the impending danger. However, he was put in the cabin and knowing it was fight or die he being far from coward, slowly approached the wolf which was backed into the fire place.

Tenly the animals watched each other for a few minutes, the dog slowly advancing and the wolf just waiting. Suddenly the bulldog started a lightning-rush at the wolf.

The wolf's tactics were not the tactics the bulldog had trained himself to and as he rushed to close in the wolf side stepped and threw his flank toward the dog, making no effort to close the throat as the dog figured he would. Instead of trying to crush legs, chest and throat the wolf began to slash with powerful cutting fangs, fangs that for thousands of years had been developed into killing weapons.

The dog was fast and determined but the wolf was not out for a fight, he was out for a kill. Action was fast, neither animal wasted energy by growling or snarling, and for the first minute, the spectators did not realize what was going on when the wolf made those lightning slashes to the dog's stomach and sides. Suddenly the cunning of the wolf became apparent; the dog's intestines were being ripped out, his stomach was cut to ribbons as though it were done by a surgical knife.

As his indignation over losing his dog grew, it became a rage and to revenge his dog's death he whipped out a fancy hand-carved muzzle loading pistol and shot. The cold, cruel cunning of the wolf had steeled him to no avail. He could handle a dog, probably two or three at a time, but his worst enemy, man, defeated him.

Six Chosen On MSC Campus For New Who's Who Edition

Group Chosen Because of Character, Scholarship And Leadership

Six students were selected last week by a committee of faculty members to represent Morehead State College in the "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. Creed Grumbles, Janet Judd, Christine Thaw, Virginia Harpham, Hazel Hicks and Thomas Havens have received the recognition of being entered in this book.

To be included in Who's Who, a student must have a combination of qualities in leadership, extra-curricular activities, character, scholarship, and potentialities of future usefulness to business and society. Only juniors, seniors, and students in advanced work were eligible. The purpose of Who's Who is to serve as an incentive for students to get the most out of their college careers, and as a recommendation to the business world. It is a medium through which the names of students throughout the country could be brought before business and social groups.

Clarence E. Nickell, dean of men, was chairman of the committee that selected the group to represent Morehead. He was assisted by Dean W. H. Vaughn, Miss Curralee Smith, dean of women, H. C. Haggan, and Miss Inez F. Humphrey.

Mr. Grumbles, Ashland, is a senior. He was business manager of the Trail Blazer '37-'38, most versatile boy and in his junior year, president of the sophomore class '36-'37, and is a member of the band, orchestra, Foster chorus, Y. M. C. A., and Baptist Student Council.

Miss Judd, a senior, is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. D. Judd, Morehead. She has been a member of the Foster chorus, Le Club Francis, the band, Y. W. C. A. and the English Majors club since a freshman. Now president of the English Majors, she belongs also to the Beaux Arts, Baptist Student Union, and the swimming team.

Miss Thaw is a senior from Lima, Ohio. She has belonged to the Le Club Francis for four years, and was secretary for the first two years. She is president of the Student Council of Fields Hall, and belongs to the band, orchestra, string quartet, Foster chorus, English Majors, and chairman of music of the Y. W. C. A.

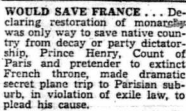

Miss Harpham, a senior of Pleasant Lake, Indiana, is on the Student Council, and has had her name engraved on the scholastic cup for two years. She has been pianist for the Y. W. C. A. for four years, and belongs to the

AAUW To Have Exhibit

To Show Model Playgroup
The social studies group is building to scale a model playgroup and community house suitable for recreation in small communities. This miniature playgroup will be shown on a nine by twelve foot area.
The exhibit of children's literature will include an ideal children's library for different age groups. Descriptive lists of these books can be secured upon request.
Miss Florence Inlay, state supervisor of home demonstration agents, will be here the day of the exhibit to demonstrate all types of home-made toys. These toys are made from tin cans, inner tubes, spoons, cigar boxes, clothes pins, paper boxes and other ordinary household materials. Miss Inlay will hold conferences in the afternoon and evening with any one interested in discussing the purpose and construction of these toys. Mimeographed copies of patterns will be available.
The educational commercial toy exhibit will group toys for the age levels from one to sixteen years, according to fundamental educational values. A part of this exhibit will include children's hobbies, and a comparison of toys today with toys used a hundred years ago.
The committee chairmen in charge of this exhibit are as follows:

Mrs. Naomi Clappold and Miss Edna Neal, children's creative art; Mrs. Frank Miller, fellowship; Mrs. Clark Lane, international relations; Mrs. Myrtle Hall, economic and legal status of women; Miss Margaret Findlay, legislation; Miss Louise Caudill, social studies; Miss Inez Faith Humphrey, education; Mrs. Alice Palmer Morris, executive.
