THE SCENE IS A LOCAL DOCTOR'S office. A woman comes in from a car wreck, slightly bruised and part of her ear cut off. She is accompanied by a slight, thin, elderly companion. The doctor begins giving the woman first aid. Her companion suddenly comes in and says, "Doc, where's her ear?"

DURING THE COURSE OF A recent conversation, a crook-coach who was jollying a member of another church said jokingly that although his parents were members of his latter's church, he thought some of the things they did were very odd. His listener, a gray-haired woman, replied that she had admitted that her fellow-church members had failings and one of them was that they didn't know how to bring their children up right.

"STONE" JACKSON WAS illustrating with his arms how he brought down all those "sawed-off" men, just by swinging other day, when, just by swinging around the corner. "Stone" cried, "Lo, lo, you'll get shot!"

CENSURE -- BOB BISHOP'S dancing lessons are on the wane. Mrs. Sample's parents celebrated the golden anniversary of their wedding, Monday, Dec. 1. I bought a pair of gloves Friday noon and lost them Friday night. ... Cooper, who was in the cafeteria, was chafed on account of Hoover's private yacht ... Twenty-seven-year-old WPA teacher made four "A's" at the college in her mid-terms ... I am related to his namesake ... We've got a Black and we have a Day but no Dixie ... Who is this Lew Lewis ... I just discovered the other day that Mrs. J. J. Cassidy is a Jew. ... You should hear Len Miller tell about the time he made a policeman in Lexington go way mess ... I have been back to work, the rural teachers didn't come in to get their checks ... Some of Morehead's older folks are skating on the coating of ice that skates on Main street. They also "sneaked" rides by hanging on the rear of automobiles.

CRACKERBARREL COMMENTS

Whi Winter at last. Welcome winter, snow, slush, and fresh air. White snow, fresh air, and slush, are some things to think of, I have never seen snow other than white. ... I am in a fix, the snow, said Millard Kores, as he stepped into his heavy underwear. What I can't understand is how the women stand it. I would like to see them stand it. ... I know one of the old lady I knew over in Fleming when I was a kid. They had killed her. ... I never think of the old lady I knew over in Fleming when I was a kid. They had killed her. ... I never think of the old lady I knew over in Fleming when I was a kid. They had killed her.

CAPITOL COMMENTS

The national elections in November showed a trend toward conservatism, that was a political barometer of public opinion. The results of the election were a victory for party politics. ... Governor A. B. Chandler's campaign against Senator Albert W. Barkley attracted a great deal of national publicity. His platform for the campaign was, among other things, a balancing of the budget, less federal spending, and some planned payment on the national debt. ... In 1936, when President Roosevelt went to Kentucky, he rode with him on his train to Elizabethton and back to Louisville. Chandler had a long conference with the president when he was rumored, all through the train, he would be "built up" nationally with a speaking campaign through thirty states, and was named vice-president in 1940. ... The rest is history, his reduction of the state debt, his campaign of conservatism against the New Deal, and the trend of the elections over the years. ... Last week Postmaster General Farley called Chandler to New York for a conference and rumor has it that the Democratic party, i. e. Farley and Roosevelt, will court this conservative element with Chandler on the 1940 ticket to be Harry Hopkins and Chandler. ... Michael Brennan died last week as vice president of the Louisville. He was a benevolent old man, of Irish descent, of the type of Irish Kentuckian mourned throughout the state.

Basketball Season To Be Opened By Breck-Grayson Tilt

Coaches Of Opposing Teams Played In High School Together

Breck Training school officially opened the Morehead basketball season tonight when they engaged Billy Babbs' team from Grayson at the College auditorium. Coach Robert Laughlin said yesterday that Grayson should have a good year although his squad beat Grayson badly last year. ... Laughlin said that he had not picked his starting lineup although he had cut the team to seven boys. Three of the probable starters are Jeff Ponders and Futum. Two guards will be selected from among these four: Charles Frayle, Bobby Hooge, Jack Stewart, and Red' Cantrell. However, they will all see a great deal of play. ... Billy Babbs, son of President Babbs, played on the same Louisville basketball and football teams as did Laughlin and under the same coach. They use the same basketball system, a zone defense. ... Laughlin pointed out two major changes. First, the pivot position (on the foul line) as long as he desires (although he will be penalized if he holds the ball for longer than three seconds. Last year neither the man nor the ball was permitted to be in the pivot position more than three seconds. The Frenchburg team, which Breck will play here Wednesday, December 7, has an all-state center from last year's team who plays in this position. ... The second major change is that the backboard for the hoop is three feet in from the hoop instead of being set back one with the edge of the playing space, as has been the custom for so many years. ... Season tickets are on sale for adults and the school children. The adults will see nearly fifteen games and the children will see the same if they buy season tickets. ... Twelve home games have been scheduled. The increase of play for Russell this week and the scene of the game changed to the local floor.

R. S. Bishop Named To Directorship Of State Merchants

Association Elects Elizabethtown Clothing Merchant President

Members of the Kentucky Merchants Association, at their annual meeting November 22, 1938 at the Brown hotel in Louisville, elected Frank J. Lanz, Elizabethtown clothing merchant, president, to succeed James W. Smith, Campbellsville, who became chairman of the board of directors, of which Robert Bishop, Morehead druggist, was named as a member. ... Directors named for the 8th congressional district are: C. H. Parsons, Ashland, vice president; H. H. Wheeler, Ashland; P. A. Williams, Russell; L. F. Slagt, Greenup; W. W. Owsley, Cynthiana; R. S. Bishop, Morehead; W. F. Tume, Mayfield; A. A. Wells, Louisville; J. T. Gillespie, J. Walsh, Mt. Sterling; Robert Collier, Mt. Sterling. ... The directors voted unanimously to affiliate with the American National Federation, a national organization with headquarters at Washington, whose purpose is to coordinate the provisions of the National Labor Relations Act as a central clearing-house of facts and relations and to serve through its representatives and ideas toward public questions. ... Shirley E. Haas, treasurer of the Louisville Merchants Association, addressed the meeting on the Federal Wage and Hour Law. Haas explained the provisions of the act and brought out the fact that inflated materials are exempt from its provisions by two separate sections. ... The report contained the minimum wage and maximum hour provisions shall not apply to any employee engaged in a local retail trade, and the second that the act is retroactive to the date of its passage. Basketball Season Opens Drop everything! Basketball days are here! The starting whistle blows tonight for Breck and Grayson in the Ohio auditorium.

Basketball is beloved by the average small town. Unable to develop good football teams to show their superiority over large cities, the small town can quite often put forth crackerjack basketball teams which can pin back the ears of the city slickers.

Many villagers who sit like logs at a football game will laugh, cheer and cry at a basketball game. After all they are acquainted personally if not in some way related to one of the boys on the squad.

Their success is the fans' success. Quite often the only thing a small town can boast of is its good basketball teams.

Business Marches On As we approach the Christmas season, business continues its march forward on practically all fronts.

A glance over the complete figures for October shows it to have been a very good month in almost all lines. In some, it was exceptionally good.

A Model Playground For Morehead Visitors to the AAUW exhibit at the college library this week will see a miniature playground designed especially to supplement the needs for recreation for the residents of Morehead.

A playground here is a vital need. It would promote the growth of happiness not only of our children but of our adults.

The playground would serve a variety of recreational needs because it would contain a community house, picnic area, basketball court, hand ball courts, volley ball courts, roller skating, high jump, broad jump, soft ball diamond, picnic area, horseshoes, archery range and croquet courts.

The playground is designed for economical construction, for a limited area, for a small number of people and for the satisfaction of the interests of the people of this community.

The community house was planned to provide an opportunity for the development and expression of local spirit. It would also provide a regular meeting place for local affairs.

Adults will also find a great deal of enjoyment in a playground of this kind. The picnic area, archery range, croquet courts and horseshoes, handball courts, soft ball diamond and volley ball courts will be found most suitable for adults but may also be used with enjoyment by younger people.

The Extremes Of Christmas Giving

The extent of "Christmas giving," like everything else apparently in the course of life, moves in cycles. People go from the extreme of spending beyond their means and spreading gifts promiscuously to the extreme of deciding that "giving is overdone, and resulting in the purchase of a lot of junk and giving it to people who have no use for it, and this year were eliminating it, or giving just one good gift to the family."

In general it would seem that the extreme of giving too much is to be preferred over the other of giving too little. If, after all, we should eliminate what comes under the term of junk in this sense, and all reduce our uses to absolute essentials, it would revolutionize existence.

The non-essentials of life, strangely enough, appear to bring the greatest pleasure. From the cradle to the grave, and particularly at those two points, modern life is piled with "junk." History indicates that humans can exist in mud huts, with loins of skins for covering, and nuts plucked from the trees for food.

Modern life is filled with non-essentials that give added zest to life. And Christmas gifts that may not answer some immediate need are not "junk." They give someone employment and joy in making and certainly joy in the receiving.

Southern Economic Conditions-- Section 5--Income Since the South's people live so close to the poverty line, its many local political subdivisions have had great difficulty in providing the schools and other public services that give added zest to life.

Consequently, the South is not able to bring its schools and many other public services up to national standards, even though it tax the available wealth as heavily as any other section in the South.

Although the South has 28 percent of the country's population, its Federal income tax in 1934 were less than 12 percent of the national total.

So much of the profit from southern industries goes to outside financiers, the form of dividends and interest, that state income taxes would produce a meager yield in comparison with similar levies elsewhere.

Under these circumstances the South has piled its tax burden on the backs of those least able to pay, in the form of sales taxes.

The efforts of southern communities to increase their revenues and to spread the tax burden more fairly have been impeded by the vigorous opposition of interests outside the communities which control much of the South's wealth.

The hope that industries would bring with them better living conditions and consequent higher tax revenues often has been defeated by the competitive tactics of the communities themselves.

Smokers of France have noted that Premier Daladier rolls his own cigarettes, says a news item. If he doesn't start French factories rolling, he is liable to be rolled out.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR DECEMBER 4 THE SIN OF LYING

LESSON TEXT--Exodus 20:16; John 3:42-47; Ephesians 4:25. GOLDEN TEXT--Behold thou desirest truth in the inward parts.

Lesson subjects and scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

"God is truth. The word truth describes the very nature of God. Lying, therefore, reveals a character opposite from God. Satan is a liar. He was a liar from the beginning and is spiritually the father of all liars. A lie does not necessarily have to be an untruth. A statement of a truth may be a lie if its purpose is to deceive. A half truth may be the worst kind of a lie. Satan's lies are usually mixed with truth."

Consider "modernism, which has enough truth in it to make it accepted by thousands of people, but sufficient error to deprive it of any power to save souls" (L. D. Hickey).

This commandment specifically forbids perjury, which is one of the worst forms of lying, because it may result in the forfeiture of the very life of a fellow being. It includes all forms of lying, whether in business, in social contacts, in the home or in the church.

Our constant concern for the body that it may be healthy, clean, and well groomed is commendable up to the point where it becomes an attempt to "glorify" the flesh. But after all, the body is not the most important thing. The heart is what makes a man (read Matt. 15:7-11).

What a horrible catalogue we read in verse 19. It is not what a man eats what he wears that makes him, but what he is in his heart. How foolish then to hope to redeem humanity by improving housing, having better schools and bigger playgrounds. All these are desirable, but the one thing he is washed in the blood that family would Christ, that he be born again.

He had better consider their "family tree" and see how they like their spiritual father. He is lustful, murderous, and there is no truth in him (v. 44). If you belong to that family would you not like to change families and be born into the family of God.

As we have already suggested, the prize lie of Satan is modern religious liberalism. We quote again from Mr. Hickey: "The first lie was told by Satan and it brought about the fall of the human race. The last lie ... by make Jesus a liar, or we lie ourselves, and it is obvious that the latter is the case.

"Whisper" refers us back to the preceding verses where we are told, now, as Christmas, we have put off the life of the "old man" (v. 22) and put on the "new man," therefore we are to live in true holiness. But evidently the Ephesian Christians still fell into their old heathen habits of lying who bear the same tendency had died out with the early Church, but as a matter of fact, it seems to have become aggravated as the years have come and gone.

Being in Christ--members of his body and thus united to one another in Him--should make us scrupulously truthful toward all men. Let us--which means you and me--scrutinize every relationship of life and be sure that we have not by word, act or inference told lies. Think carefully of your family life, your church life, your community life. Deal with each practical case of grocery bills, taxes, tenements to gossip. We preachers need to consider our sermons.

Are they true to God's word? Are they honestly prepared? Do we "stretch" our illustrations to make them effective? Surely all of us who bear the name of Christ must put away every form of falsehood.

Satan is being told even now in the form of modernism, that makes the Church impotent even to save its own people. Let us have no part in putting forward this falsehood. Note that in verses 45-47 Jesus challenges his enemies to convict him of sin or falsehood. No one has ever been able to meet that challenge. Even those who deny his Godhood and Savourhood speak swelling words of commendation of His pure life and exalted moral teaching. If then He told the truth about other things, surely He spoke the truth about Himself. The claims He made for Himself as the Son of God and the Saviour of the world are plain and unmistakable. If we deny them we either

Season Closed On Jacksnipe, Federal Law To Contrary

Although the federal regulations state that there is an open season on jacksnipe, the Kentucky law says that the season is closed on this particular type of bird.

There seems to be quite a bit of confusion in the ranks of hunters as to which regulation is right. Major James Brown, director of the division of game and fish, states that while state and federal laws differ, the law with the restriction is the one that is enforced. In other words the federal law says that there is an open season on jacksnipe in Kentucky and the state law says that there is not. The state law has the most restriction and, therefore, is the one which governs.

The federal regulations state that any person under 16 years of age does not need a federal "duck stamp" to hunt ducks, but the state law points out that any person regardless of age must have a state hunting license in order to hunt ducks. The state law also references the state and federal regulations coincide.

Applicants For SS Numbers Must Pay Postage On Letters

Persons who apply for social security account numbers by mail must attach regular first class postage to their letters, according to James A. Chaney, Manager of the Ashland social security office.

Postage must be attached to all applications, whether they are addressed to our office, as should be the case, or whether they are directed to the postmaster. Our office issues account numbers for Boyd, Breathitt, Carter, Elliott, Floyd, Greenup, Johnson, Knott, Lawrence, Lecher, Lewis, Magoffin, Martin, Morgan, Perry, Pike, Rowan, and Wolfe counties. Postmasters have the application blanks which individuals use in obtaining account numbers, but our office issues the numbers, both originals and duplicates cards which have been lost or to replace those account number destroyed.

Mr. Chaney emphasized the importance of all workers obtaining their social security numbers before applying for Kentucky unemployment compensation benefits which will be payable after January 1, 1939. "According to the Kentucky Unemployment Compensation Commission, they will not accept applications until the worker shows his social security card," Mr. Chaney said.

"Any worker who has lost his account number card should obtain a duplicate rather than wait until the first of the year. Dealy in obtaining cards will result in benefits being paid after the time they come due under the Kentucky job insurance law," the Ashland manager declared.

FISHING CHAMPS

According to an article carried in a London, Ky., paper, J. T. Jones and John Dillon are London's champion fishermen, having broken all season records, when from the waters of Rockcastle, about three miles below the Somerset road bridge, they caught two big wall-eyed pikes, commonly called pack salmon. Mr. Jones' catch measured 31 inches long and weighed ten and a half pounds. Mr. Dillon's fish was slightly less, being 28 inches long and weighing seven and a half pounds.

SOUTH IS STUDY OF VANDERBILT FROSH

Math problems and English themes are usually thought of as the freshmen's greatest curriculum problem, but at Vanderbilt University this year the freshman students are tackling the nation's number one economic problem—"The South." This innovation is the idea behind the new social science survey course. Purpose of the course is to introduce all freshmen in matter and methods of the social sciences and to interest them in contemporary problems.

Concluding Half Of Article In Ken On Primitive Baptists

The preaching continued till shortly after noon when recess was declared and all the people wandered out into the yard. While the church was empty Brother William Messer, one of the deacons, and Elder Tackett swept the front of the room and prepared the communion table.

The same table that had held the water buckets served. The little pats of unleavened bread and two bottles of grape juice were set under the table where they would be out of the way until they were needed. Two long towels were also laid out.

Again the chanted song called in the people, but there was now no casual wandering about. All was now in reverence and quietness. Elder Tackett spoke briefly, explaining that only members of the Primitive Baptist Church could participate—they must be members in good order, and it must lie with them to decide when they were or not.

In America, the Primitive Baptist Church, in its present form, grew up about the middle of the 19th century probably in the areas where they are most numerous today. There are about 2,000 churches in the country today, and about 80,000 members. These figures are nearly the same as those for 1890. Of these churches, about 100 are in Kentucky, and nearly all are rural. They include a membership of about 4,000, of which probably 60 percent are women.

Each church is independent, though they are loosely bound in small groups called "Associations" which may include a dozen churches. However each church governs itself, and is the sole judge of which other churches it may have fellowship with. This "fellowship" means that preachers may attend each others churches and preach there.

Thus the Moderator's announcement effectively separated the sheep from the goats, and the members of Dry Fork Church clustered around the front on the benches, still with the women on the left and the men on the right. The communion service was much the same as in any small rural church—simply administered and as simply accepted. Then there was a brief flurry as shoes, jackets and stockings were slipped off and set back under the benches out of the way.

Water was poured into the tin dishes, and a towel was handed to the first man in the row, and the first woman, and the foot washing began.

The ceremony is based on the incident recorded in the thirteenth chapter of John when Jesus washed the feet of the disciples on the night of the Last Supper. Each detail is followed, they washer ties the towel around his waist leaving the long end to dry the feet, then kneels and washes the feet of his neighbor. When he has finished the neighbor passes on to the next person the women washing the feet of the women and the men washing the men's feet. Most of the men removed their coats before putting on the towel, which may be a reference to the fourth verse, which said Jesus laid aside his garments and took a towel and girded himself.

The ceremony in general suggested humility, affection, and equality. Silk dresses knelt before calico, preachers before less articulate members, age before youth. There was no whispering or chatting during the ceremony, yet the air was not veiled with the heavy solemnity of grander ceremonies in grander churches. The participants were reverent but not awed.

As soon as the foot washing was finished, Elder Tackett rose again and announced the final ceremony of the day—a general shaking of hands. Men and women who had known each other all their lives and visitors who may never pass that way again were royally welcomed in this. There was so much human kindness and brotherly love bubbling in the little church that it is a wonder the roof did not rise and drift away.

It was nearly night when the people drifted out the door and started home. They had been there since ten o'clock in the morning, if not earlier. But still they talked as they passed across the foot bridge or climbed into their cars or trucks.

Emphatically honest, eminently polite, these mounting people deserve better reporting than they have had in the past. They are tolerant—except that they cannot abide ridicule or interference. Their hospitality harks back to the time when a stranger needed it if he wanted to escape sleeping in the woods. But their politeness is their most remarkable, and perhaps their most misunderstood quality.

He's An Industrial Worker!

YOU would naturally think of the man operating the tractor as a farmer. And he is a farmer, but he's also an increasingly important figure in the industrial world—not only as a consumer but as a producer. He's engaged in hoing up a field of soy beans which later, after passing through various factory processes, you'll be using in the form of paint and varnish, soap, linoleum and scores of other products. Consumers Information points out that 91 million pounds of soy bean oil, a comparatively new crop for American farmers, was produced in one recent year. Of this amount, 2 1/2 million pounds went into the soap kettles, 5 million into linoleum and 13 million into paint and varnish. This brand new market for American farmers, who are now growing a large number of industrial as well as food products, has been developed, like many others, through the vast research programs undertaken by American industry, whose laboratories have led untold millions to the nation's wealth and also thousands of jobs for American workers.

TAKIN SOIL SAMPLES . . . Although frequent notices have been given on the radio and in the press within the past two years that soil samples should not be sent to the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington without first getting directions for taking samples, very few of those who send samples ask for directions.

In the future, soil samples will not be tested unless accompanied by a statement that they have been taken according to directions, and other information asked for in the directions is given. Investigation has shown that most of the samples sent by persons who have not asked for directions, were not properly taken.

Samples not properly taken may not be representative of a field, and therefore advice given upon the basis of a test of such a sample may be wrong.

Red Cross Seeks Cut In Accident Toll

1,725,406 First Aiders Trained Since 1910

Cognizant of tremendous losses in human lives and of permanent injuries resulting from accidents in homes, on farms and highways, and around industrial plants as well as in the basement workshop, officials of the American Red Cross have been directing a systematic fight against what they term "this economic waste."

As part of this nationwide effort to reduce deaths and permanent injuries from accidents, a recent statement from Red Cross headquarters in Washington reports that during the past 12 months certificates have been granted to 289,025 persons completing courses in the administration of Red Cross first aid.

Holdes of these certificates have followed detailed courses of study, and have been taught how to splint fractured limbs, stop flow of blood, treat poison sufferers, care for victims of heat, electric shock, and handle other common emergency situations. The courses emphasize methods of caring for patients until professional medical aid can be summoned to scenes of accidents.

Since 1910, the report reveals, 1,725,406 persons have received this training from qualified Red Cross instructors, and at the present time 27,629 persons are qualified to give such instruction.

Bringing help nearer scenes of possible accident, 2,465 emergency first aid stations have been established in strategic locations on principal highways throughout the nation, operating the nation's Red Cross ambulance service and maintaining full first aid equipment on the spot. Conveniently placed, they also maintain up-to-date lists of available doctors and ambulance services, pledged in advance to cooperate with Red Cross first aiders in preventing deaths and permanent injuries that so frequently result from automobile accidents.

Mobile first aid units also have been established in cooperation with state highway and police departments, operators of public utility vehicles and others frequenting highways, operators of such units also receiving the prescribed Red Cross courses in first aid.

To cut the number of persons losing their lives through drowning while swimming, the Red Cross has redoubled efforts to train as many persons as possible in life saving methods. During the past 12 months persons received certificates upon completion of courses. Since 1914, 824,819 persons have been trained in Red Cross life saving methods, including thousands of persons in CCC camps, beach patrolmen, camp instructors, and school boys and girls. Carrying the fight onto farms and into homes, a campaign to eliminate accidents caused by careless habits and faulty equipment last year resulted in self-checks being made in 10,000,000 American homes through cooperation of children in school, women's clubs, farm organizations and other groups. The 2,700 Red Cross chapters and their branches in every county are cooperating in this national effort to end needless pain and suffering resulting from such accidents.

The efforts to lessen such appalling tolls of human lives and usefulness are made possible through memberships in the Red Cross. The annual Red Cross Call will be between November 11 and Thanksgiving Day, when all Americans are asked to join or renew their affiliation to ensure continued methods of accident prevention measures.

Billie Black's BLARNEY

Something happened last week that surprised us. Every man that we picked on the All-K. L. A. C. team, with the exception of one, made either the first or second Associated Press team.

Something else, too, gave us quite a shock. All the predictions were correct. This astonishing outcome gives us a season's record of 43 wins, 17 losses, and 2 ties for an average of 704.

If we don't miss our guess, dear old Morehead is going to pull a few surprises on the hardwood this season. The few rough edges are rapidly being ironed out and Johnson should have a team on the floor for the starting whistle December 9 that works like "dressed lightning". The first hit is with Transylvania on the local floor.

Remember the Holbrook game in 1936 when Jurell Vinson ploughed through the line for a touchdown, almost leaving his pants behind him?

Thoughts of that game still make me laugh. There Jurell was, galloping down the field, holding the ball in one hand and clutching his pants with the other, with tacklers strung out behind him in various positions of "pose". As soon as he crossed the goal line he dropped the ball like a hot potato and centered all his attention (and both hands) on rearranging his apparel.

The Duke Blue Devils ended a perfect season Saturday, undefeated, untied, and unscored on by beating Pittsburgh 7-0. They are the first team since 1932 to have a perfect record, when the Red Raiders of Colgate didn't have their goal line crossed. Duke is scheduled to play Southern California in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day. Personally, we think Duke will take U. S. in their stride.

There is talk of having a permanent trophy placed in competition between Breck and Mt. Sterling. The two schools have always been bitter rivals and the teams point for this game. The Eagles have never beaten Mt. Sterling in the regular season, but defeated them in the 1936 Regional Tournament in an overtime period 23-22, a thriller which kept the fans on the edge of their seats throughout the game.

The details have not been worked out, but the Breckinridge Senior Class, which is sponsoring the movement, is looking for a suitable trophy, and will report something definite soon.

Sudden Thought: If I don't hurry and get this in, Iverson will start tearing his hair.

And there's the story they tell about basketball's equivalent of Cross-Eyed Kelley who grabbed the ball, rushed in for a trip, and threw his foot in by mistake.

RESUME

Marie Antoinette, young, vivacious, beautiful, is sacrificed to the French Austrian alliance when her mother, Empress Maria Theresa, of Austria, marries her to Louis Augustus, Dauphin of France. On her bridal night Marie discovers that not only is Louis a distasteful, sullen lout, he is also unfit to be a husband. For two years she bears the brunt of court ridicule and neglect. For his own purposes, the Duke D'Orleans, sworn enemy of Du Barry, the King's Mistress, decides to play Marie against the latter. He urges Marie to conquer Paris and thus rout Du Barry. Without friends or husband to counsel her, she falls easy prey to his intrigue.

Chapter Three BATTLE OF WITS

From the moment she vowed to be Dauphine of France in deed as well as name, Marie Antoinette, triumphantly beautiful, gorgeously gowned and jeweled, her hand resting lightly on the arm of her constant escort, the Duke D'Orleans, made herself the center of interest and attraction at Court.

Her escapades became the byword of Paris. Her reputation spread beyond the borders of France. Du Barry all but died of envy! Madame La Dauphine lost fortunes at races and at cards. Madame La Dauphine gaddied about Paris like a wanton in the company of jockeys, gamblers and libertines!

At that very moment her Royal Highness was running out of a notorious gambling house. She peered eagerly up and down the street, her eyes dancing with mischief as she espied two men advancing toward her. The one was middle-aged, the other a dashing gallant.

Marie Antoinette sped toward them and seized the arm of the younger man. He stopped short and searched the face of the bewitching, and magnificently dressed woman who accosted him.

"Monsieur," she smiled, "are you by any chance a Russian?" "If a Russian? Unfortunately no, Madame."

"Oh, don't say that," she pleaded. "I need a Russian so badly."

He laughed. "I don't suppose you could use a native of Sweden?"

She looked dubious. "Perhaps. Wait here. I'll ask them. Don't go away . . . she disappeared through a nearby door.

"The elderly man clutched the other's arm. 'Count Fersen,' he exclaimed, 'we must get away from here. Do you know you were speaking to the Dauphine of France?'"

"Impossible!" cried Fersen. He swung toward the door through which she had gone. "What is this place?"

"A gaming house," whispered the other. "If you are wise, Count, you will walk on with me."

The door opened and a lackey motioned for Fersen to enter.

"I'm not that wise," he laughed. "No, really Ambassador, you must excuse me. After all . . . with a royal nod he entered the gamist."

Marie Antoinette awaited him. "Come quickly," she whispered and led him to a small, brightly lighted room. She examined his face intently.

"I am Count Axel Fersen of Sweden, Madame. And you?" "Can you speak Russian?" she demanded, ignoring his question. He shook his head.

"Well . . . speak Swedish then. They won't know the difference. And you must help me. You see, she explained, 'we were playing forfeits and I had the most appalling luck. I lost every cent I had.'"

"Nor I yours, Sir," Fersen replied coldly. "Hear him!" roared the other. "I flatter myself that only a stranger would ask my name. Pardon me, Sir, to present myself and company. We are a troupe from the Opera Comique . . . his most Christian Majesty's own favorite mummery." He bowed toward the Dauphine. "And she is our bright and glorious star . . . the toast of Paris . . . Mademoiselle Gabrielle Ducros."

The courtiers crowded closer, delighted with the joke. Fersen's eyes glittered. "I've heard much of Mademoiselle Ducros," he said evenly. "Paris talks of no one else."

Marie Antoinette raised her eyebrows. "What do they say of her?" Fersen moved toward her with familiar insolence. "They say that she is not unkind . . . that a man may ask her to supper in a place not too discreet . . . The Duke stepped quickly between them. "You presume, Monsieur!" he warned.

"One may speak of supper with a little actress, Sir!" Marie Antoinette separated them. "The joke is sour," she said. "Cousin, will you inform this person who I am?" she placed her hand lightly on the Duke's arm in the gesture known to all of Paris.

"Her Royal Highness, the Dauphine of France," cried the Duke. Fersen eyed her sternly. "The joke is sour. Mademoiselle is charming and I have no doubt talented. I imagine Mademoiselle excels in the role of soubrette. She has the appearance, the manners and the temperament . . ."

A shocked gasp greeted his words. The courtiers slowly reached for their swords.

"I am Count Axel de Fersen," he continued. "You may reach me at the Swedish Embassy."

"Get me the address of the Dauphine. There's a time for such things . . . and a place . . ."

D'Orleans signalled for them to be gone and the Duke turned to Fersen with royal condescension. "My apologies, Monsieur," she said with dignity. "The Dauphine of France is unable to accept Count Fersen's kind invitation to supper tonight but she is entertaining a few friends at the home of Madame de Lamballe and begs he will attend."

"Count Fersen regrets, Madame, but he is expected elsewhere," he replied, and bowing low, he left.

"Flouted, Madame!" shouted one courtier.

"I'll fetch him back," Marie cried furiously.

"Your diamond necklace that you want!"

"A wager!" she exclaimed and rushed out the door, overtaking Fersen in the lower hall.

"Wait, Monsieur," she cried. "I beg of you . . ."

He swung upward to face her. She hurried up to him and placed her hand on his arm. "I deserve the snub," she said softly. "You knew me from the beginning, then?"

"And if I forgive you for treating me so disrespectfully, will you forgive me for dragging you into our foolish game . . . and will you come to supper?" She smiled up at him. "An invitation from me is not only an honor . . . it is a command."

He remained silent for a moment. "I doubt your motives, Madame," he said at last. "I have my vanity, too."

She smiled winningly. "I am spilt," she confessed with assumed sweet frankness. "And vain. It is true I ran after you because I was hurt and angry . . . but now I'm asking you to come because I want you to be my friend."

Her womanly suppleness disarmed him and he was about to acquiesce; but noise on the stairway caught his attention. He looked up into the mocking faces of the courtiers observing them. His expression hardened.

"Perhaps," she continued, unaware of what he had seen. "If you'll take the trouble to know me, you'll find that I'm not altogether bad."

His ironical smile forced her trump card.

"Well," she sighed, "if we must part, at least let us part as friends."

She reached out her hand and he bent low to kiss it. He was going then! But she must win the wager! She drew him to her with sudden swiftness and thrust her arms about him. She kissed him ardently, then stepped back, confident expectation in her eyes. Her hopes died in the face of his cold disinterest.

"For a moment you had me fooled," he said flatly. "The words were the words of Madame La Dauphine . . . but the lips were the lips of Mademoiselle Ducros."

He put on his hat with a flourish. "Many thanks, little soubrette," he smiled, "and good evening."

Without further thought he turned quietly out of the door.

THE FARM AND HOME

Limited use of milk, cream, butter and other dairy products is said to represent the greatest defect in the diet of the average person. Most serious of all is the comparatively low consumption of milk and butter by both adults and children.

Plans for 1939: Accurate records of household expenditures serve as a basis for studying buying habits, show mistakes in past expenditures and may be a guide in making plans for future spending. Hard-earned money should be carefully spent and made to buy the most.

In remodeling houses, consideration should be given to making greater use of porches. Ninety percent of Kentucky homes have or could have porches that could be used six months in the year. Many porches, however, need widening, screening and otherwise remodeling.

Fall plowing of tobacco beds permits the land to mellow during the winter and be in good condition for making the bed in the spring. It is almost necessary that stiff sod land be plowed in the fall, since the grass may sprout and give trouble if plowed in the spring.

Keep pullets in good flesh by feeding liberally on grain. When not fed well, they may molt early and quit laying when eggs are high. Grain is comparatively cheap this year. A good plan is to feed grain and mash in separate hoppers.

Experiments indicate that cultivated fruit trees produce better than trees among which type, vetch, clovers, lespedeza or other crops are grown. In some tests, seeding young orchards to legumes resulted in stunted trees.

First, he is 100 percent Czech. That's a good reason, but Joe's second is even more important.

His grandad, Matt Beneish, is a cousin of Edward Beneish, ex-president of Czechoslovakia, now exiled and newly-signed, University of Chicago lecturer. That makes Joe third cousin of the most fa-

Pond Lick 'Happy Trail Book Club' Holds Meeting

President Everett Lee McRoberts called the regular meeting of "The Happy Trail Book Club" to order Wednesday, November 16, at 3:00 p. m. Members present were as follows:

Everett Lee McRoberts, Herbert Morehouse, Aaron Tackett, Ernest Tackett, Sam Cooper, Delona Tackett, Studie Cooper, Harvey Cooper, Elwood Tackett, Geneva Blewens and Keela McClouth.

An interesting program of readings, nursery rhymes and riddles was given by the lower grades and a brief selection from "Alice in Wonderland" was read by our teacher, Miss Hogge.

Many new books have been added to our new reading table, which was made by Leslie Cooper. He also made some shelves and a chalk tray. The building has been sealed and window shades put up recently.

Union College Has New President

Dr. Conway Boatman this week assumed his duties as president of Union College.

Consistently stressing his major ideals for the Christian liberal arts college to be a genuinely friendly atmosphere, quality academic instruction, and truly Christian business integrity, Dr. Boatman met with an enthusiastic reception alike from faculty, students, and citizens of Barbourville and the surrounding territory.

Dr. Boatman made addresses at a special faculty meeting, at student assembly, and at the regular meeting of the Upper Cumberland Schoolmaster's Club.

Because of the necessity of winding up details of his administration at Snead Junior College, Boaz, Alabama, where he has been president for the past eight years, Dr. Boatman will not be able to take up permanent residence in Barbourville for several weeks.

Dr. Boatman succeeds Dr. John O. Gross, who resigned last August after a ten-year administration at Union College to accept the presidency of Simpson College, Indianola, Iowa.

A volume of rural Michigan songs and ballads has been completed by Wayne's Prof. Esmeyl E. Gardner and Alumna Geraldine J. Chickering.

Fight Against T. B.

Is Urged By General Surgeon Thos. Parran

New and more vigorous lines of attack against tuberculosis, with emphasis upon a decent economic status, better housing and improved nutrition as combative measures, were urged in a statement issued yesterday by Surgeon General Thomas Parran.

To achieve this objective it is essential that the present activities—made possible by the sale of Christmas Seals—be continued and greatly accelerated, Dr. Parran said in endorsing the annual Seal sale of the National Tuberculosis Association.

"Future efforts against tuberculosis must be widespread and unrelenting, if the results are to keep pace with knowledge," Dr. Parran continued. "We need an intensive national-wide attack

Poets Should Start

With Pleasure And Arrive At Wisdom

"Poems and fireflies. They represent our lucid intervals and glow only for a moment." Poet Robert Frost, addressing Ohio Wesleyan students, added, on the other hand students should start at pleasure at arrive at wisdom. Too many young poets want to write about philosophy at first."

And Alice Tate of the University of North Carolina faculty advised literature students that "Second readings are necessary for a complete understanding of poetry."

"Copying one book is plagiarism; copying three books is research," Prof. V. P. Rapport of Connecticut State College points out what he considers a discrepancy in terminology.

"Instructors would favor federal support of public education, but insist that the schools should be controlled local authorities only," Dean William L. Richardson of the college of education at Butler University voices the opinion in the current debate among educators.

"The so-called social sciences are not sciences at all in any manner analogous to the natural sciences," Dr. Harold W. Woods, president of Princeton University, says that science has helped the man in the street but little in deciding how he should vote.

Disasters Strike 41 States During Year

Red Cross Aids 420,000 Persons Following Catastrophes

The past year has not been an uneventful one for the American Red Cross as shown in a report listing disaster necessities during the past twelve months.

The report reveals that 123 domestic disasters struck the Red Cross in 247 counties of 41 states, and that assistance was given to 420,000 persons who were disaster victims.

"This has been a very active year is obvious when one compares this year's operations with the average of 52 disasters that have occurred annually for the past 15 years," Chairman Norman H. Davis said in commenting on the Red Cross disaster relief service report.

These catastrophes included cloudbursts, cyclones, epidemics, fires, floods, forest fires, hailstorms, mine explosions, a school bus accident, a shipwreck, tornadoes, drought, and wild storms.

"Disaster relief was the first humanitarian work of the American Red Cross after its organization in 1881," Mr. Davis said. "In the ensuing 57 years the disaster relief work of the Red Cross has carried relief to more than 2,300,000 persons of disaster at home and abroad."

Mr. Davis said that the Red Cross has contributed over $140,000,000 contributed by the American public in this work of mercy.

The Red Cross policies of relief, the national chairman pointed out, have been established over a period of years through actual experience of disaster writers in the field.

They Laughed When He Sat Down To Play On The Piano

By Lucille Eisenback

At an informal get-together of the students who stayed on the campus during the Thanksgiving holidays, all eyes were flabbergasted to see a certain football player, who had earned a reputation for being stoutly quiet and unassuming, sit down to a piano and play—with both hands—a series of hymns, folk tunes, and one popular song.

"Who was that?" asked one who approached a piano before in the presence of his friends. To see him suddenly sit down to that piano and play almost floored them all. "You could have knocked me over with a feather," said one girl.

minimum wage and maximum hour provisions shall not apply to "any employee engaged in any retail or service establishment, the employer part of whose selling or servicing is in intrastate commerce."

R. J. McKim, a director of the association, in speaking to the merchants on the topic "Better Retailing," stressed particularly the importance of training employees to do their individual jobs more efficiently.

The annual meeting was attended by many members of the association, in whose ranks are numbered several thousand merchants in every line of business from all sections of Kentucky.

"Until we can realize the ideal, let us idealize the real," President Charles N. Pace of Hamline University quotes another, unidentified, college prexy in his homecoming address.

"Education is a preparation that helps a man to understand his environment and to live there happily and usefully," William Allen Whit, the sage of Emporia, Kansas, states his philosophy of learning at K. U.'s 75th anniversary.
