The StanByer Stanley K Iverson

A CUSTOMER WHO WALKED into a Morehead store one day this week told in a low voice the clerk what he wanted. The clerk cried out, "Is Alky Hall here?"

"No, no," exclaimed the clerk in a louder voice, "I said I wanted some rubbing alcohol."

HOW COME "CIN" CLAYTON and his wife write alike? And Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Miller? I can scarcely read Dr. Hoke's initials. J. B. Black's writings are as expressive as his face. Marguerite Bishop writes precisely Bob's writing. Exer Robinson doesn't scribble... J. D. Falls and Mrs. Falls write not at all alike... Lucile Cattlett spells her name with only one "t". J. O. Everhart writes conservatively... He doesn't write over the place like Harry Goldbert. Mrs. D. Child draws her initials... My own? I use a typewriter.

REASON WE DON'T GIVE OUT blessed events is because the grapevine system here is so efficient that no newspaper can compete with it.

SEEN THIS WEEK: WOODY shakes hands as though your arm were a pump handle... We'll be sitting under a porch now on a great deal of the time, provided LeGrande Jayne makes no objection, at his new location on East Main Street... Lucile Cattlett spells her name with only one "t". J. O. Everhart writes conservatively... He doesn't write over the place like Harry Goldbert. Mrs. D. Child draws her initials... My own? I use a typewriter.

NOTE TO THE BOTTOM OF the column: After reading Bill May's Fish and Game column, I am beginning to wonder...

IF LUCILLE BASEBAUGH DOES not quit piling on me in the Trail Blazer I'll talk about the time she was sitting under a porch now on a great deal of the time, provided LeGrande Jayne makes no objection, at his new location on East Main Street... Lucile Cattlett spells her name with only one "t". J. O. Everhart writes conservatively... He doesn't write over the place like Harry Goldbert. Mrs. D. Child draws her initials... My own? I use a typewriter.

Indiana College President To Talk Here Thursday

F. Marion Smith, president of Evansville College, Evansville, Indiana, will speak on "The Essence of Education in a Democracy" at convocation in the College auditorium at 10 a. m. Thursday morning.

Dr. F. Marion Smith

Convocations are open to the public and townspeople are urged to attend. There is no admission charge.

Mr. Smith is an ordained Methodist Episcopal minister. He served as pastor of the First Church, Brooklyn, New York, for three years and then for six years at the Trinity M. E. (now the "Central Church") of New England (Methodist), Springfield, Mass., before becoming president of Evansville College. Dr. Smith served as lieutenant in the navy during the World War, studied at the University of Southern California, Boston University, and the University of Chicago. He is a member of the National Teachers' College at Columbia University, New York City, and American International College.

Home Owners To Compete Again In Decorating Drive

Morehead will be given a Christmas tree next week when residents enter the Morehead Woman's Club second annual Outdoor Home Lighting Program. The response last year exceeded expectations, Mrs. R. D. Judd, chairman of the program this year, said yesterday, and it is hoped that more interest will be created this time.

Three prizes will be given as follows: Floor lamp, three dollars, and two dollars. The Kentucky Power Plant employees are donating the three-way bronze lamp which retails $6.75. The judges are not the same as last year. Prize winners before will be eligible this year. The club is confining its efforts to the home decoration program because of a lack of funds.

College Orchestra To Present Concert Thursday Evening

The music department will present the College Orchestra, under the direction of Professor Keith P. Davis, in a pre-Christmas concert at 7:30 p. m., Thursday evening, December 15, in the College Auditorium.

Rules On Rabbits Are Announced

Major James Brown, director of the division of game and fish in Kentucky, following a conference with the attorney general's department today announced the following regulations which apply on the purchase, sale and transportation of rabbits:

- 1. No person shall take more than eight rabbits at any time, except it is lawful for a merchant or dealer to purchase from an individual not to exceed sixteen rabbits at any one time. It is lawful for a merchant or dealer to purchase, sell or have in his possession more than sixteen rabbits at any time, except it is lawful for a merchant or dealer to purchase, sell or have in his possession more than sixteen rabbits at any one time. It is unlawful for any common carrier, contract carrier, agent, employee or any other person to transport rabbits, except the merchant or dealer may transport such rabbits as he has legally acquired, but such transportation shall be personally by the merchant or dealer.

CLUB WILL MEET

The Licking Valley Game and Fish Club will meet in the Science building Tuesday evening.

Four Other Members Of Squad Receive Mention

One of the best football players to represent Morehead on the gridiron received an award that he justly deserved this week. John Horton, Co-captain of the Eagles football team, was named as the center position on the Little All-American football team compiled by the Associated Press last Wednesday.

Horton Is Named To Little All-American

Horton was also selected on the first All-S. L. A. team last week. "Jug" Varney was the only other Eagle to take mention. He was placed on the second team as quarterback. Five Kentuckians gained places on the first team.

WHO'S WHO IN MOREHEAD

EARL MAY Earl Campbell May, conductor of the Independents' Fish and Game column, is one of Morehead's most enthusiastic sportsmen. He not only likes to go bird hunting but also does a great deal of fishing. At the present time he is president of the Licking Valley Game and Fish Club which meets every other Tuesday in the Science building on the College campus.

Born in Berea He was born in Berea, Ky., April 28, 1906, the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. May, who live now at 655 Madison Court, Lexington.

He attended Berea, Lexington Junior High and Lexington Senior high schools, graduating in 1924 from Lexington High. He moved to that city with his parents when he was 12 years old.

May participated in intramural basketball and softball. His first job after leaving school was with the Provident Mutual Life Insurance Company, followed by two years of private business for himself and a job as sales checker for the Lexington Loose Leaf Tobacco Co.

May married Miss Emma Lee Fleming at Danville August 17, 1930, five and a half months before coming to Morehead to assume his present work of educational advisor at the CCC camp. They have one boy, Jack Campbell.

May says he is interested in bird hunting, photography, fishing and wildlife conservation. His ambition is to establish himself in a private business.

May has been a member of the Licking Valley Game and Fish Club since its organization in 1928, majoring in commerce. He was on the rifle team and a member of the R. O. T. C., and belonged to Alpha Tau Omega and T. N. E. He participated in intramural basketball and softball.

The Elliottville P. T. A. will meet at the school building on Wednesday, December 14, at p. m. Every patron is urged to be present. An interesting program has been planned.

The sixth, seventh and eighth grade girls, with one exception, have had perfect attendance during this school year.

The NTA boys and girls have polished all the wood work in the new school building. They are now beginning to mop and oil the floors.

The children in the first grade room are very much pleased with a gift of five dollars from Mr. John Clay, of Paris, Kentucky. Mr. Clay is interested in Nwan county schools. With this money they bought two pictures, "The Angels" and "The Gleaners" by Millet. The children and their teacher, consider this a generous gift and are grateful to Mr. Clay.

The first grade children have decorated their room with a border, showing Santa with his reindeer visiting the homes of good boys and girls. Each child has

Carey P. T. A. To Continue To Meet Throughout Winter

The regular meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association was held December 8. At this meeting it was announced that the members will continue their meetings throughout the winter in order to make some improvement in the school building. Those present were:

Mrs. Mabel Alfrey, Mrs. Lillie Sullivan, Mrs. May Scott, Mrs. Pearl Smith, Mrs. Lillie Thompson, Mrs. Beulah Royse, Mrs. Ethel Williams, and Mrs. Nell Utterback, a guest.

The Cute Family, sponsored by Miss Dorothy Hamilton, will appear in person at the Carey school December 22. Santa Claus will also appear in person at the same time to make the little folks happy and the older folks, too, by presenting to them the gifts that will be found under his Christmas tree. We are glad to report only one absence this week from our school. We hope Cell Calloway will not have to stay at home any more because of work. We hope to have perfect attendance this next week.

made a gift to be given to anyone he chooses. They are also making a gift for Christmas to send to their parents and friends.

The second and third grades made a blackboard border of Christmas trees and Santa Claus. They are planning to finish decorating their room for Christmas this week.

The children have been studying safety rules. They have been playing a little safety game which will impress the rules upon their minds.

Those having perfect attendance in the second and third grades are:

Anna Bell Caudill, Bertaleen Kagley, Wilma Peirce, Norma Williams, Darrel Blankenship, Elmer Brown, Ray C. James, Damon Johnson, James Royse, Jeanetta Phillips, Stella Brooks, Eula Brown, Ruby Caudill, Beatrice Caudill, Jesse Fay Caudill, Christine Phillips, Ruby Phillips, Christie Phillips, Ruby Trent, James H. Potts, Deiter Mabry and Emmet Johnson.

Helen Butcher and Trella Fay Porter have been selected in Miss Carter's room to see that all drinking cups are properly sterilized. This group has been studying sanitation.

Miss Carter's room has purchased a new thermometer. The children have learned to read it and they try to keep the room at 68 degrees Fahrenheit.

The pupils in this room have drawn names and are looking forward to a good Christmas program and to the coming of Santa.

Each teacher has a new water cooler in her room. The whole school is very grateful for them.

RAZOR Lads Higgins

The following children were absent from school this past week: Lovell Purvis, Claude Purvis, Edgar Lewis Purvis, Orville Ellison, Elwood Johnson and Marie Johnson.

Lovell Purvis was absent because of sickness. The children in the Razor school like to sell Christmas seals. They have sold seventy-five seals and had to go after more. We are hoping to have a 100 percent in selling seals so that we can have a "billion day."

BIG BRUSHY

The next P. T. A. meeting of the Big Brushy school will be Thursday night, December 15. The program will include talks from Superintendent Roy Corneille, Judge Peltrey and Herbert Bradley of Morehead, and various short talks from various members of the organization.

Only seven were absent from school last week, three of whom were sick.

ABSENT MINDED PROF

In Mr. Peratt's history class the other morning a good example of the absent-minded professor occurred. One young gentleman, arriving late, asked if he had been checked absent for the day. Mr. Peratt replied in the negative saying, "You were here when I checked the roll!" The amusing part is that the roll had never been checked.

The success of Columbia University and its affiliated institutions are now estimated at $128,868,671. The budget for the last fiscal year was more than fifteen million dollars.

A six million dollar expansion program has been announced by Cornell University authorities. A mural depicting the early use of anesthesia has been hung in the New York University college of dentistry.

CRANSTON Ray Hoze

Only four children were absent from school this past week. They were Milford Egan, Verita Slous, Dewey Griffith, and Lee Roy Morehouse. This is a good record for a school as large as Cranston and two of these cases were due to illness.

The schoolhouse is getting a new coat of paint. The children, teacher and parents will be glad to have this completed as it will add greatly to the appearance of the school.

Parents and children are interested in selling Christmas seals and think they are giving their time and efforts for a worthy cause.

MOORE AND CRANEY

Moore school reports no absences this week and since this is the first time this has happened this year, they feel proud of this report. Miss Virginia Dawson is the teacher and she also reports a 100 percent sale in her school of Christmas seals, which means five seals sold to each child. They are now looking forward to their prize, the balloons.

Florence Dawson, a sister of Virginia, who teaches at Craney, only reports one absence. This looks like a race between sisters.

FARMERS

The Farmers school reports the following number of children absent in each room: Henrietta Maze, 1 truant; Christine Hall, 2 sick; Harold Peltrey, 0; Beulah Burrows, 1 sick; 3 truants; Austin Riddle, 6 sick, 1 truant.

Harold Peltrey is holding his head just a little higher than usual. It is the weekend after perfect week attendance at school. Harold prides himself on this part of his work.

A Peace Council to coordinate the peace activities of existing campus organizations has been organized at New Jersey College for women.

Most major national organizations engage in some sort of philanthropic work among the poor and underprivileged.

SCHOOLS HAVE SHORT CHRISTMAS VACATION

The rural schools will dismiss on Thursday, December 23, and resume work again Tuesday, December 27. The consolidated schools will dismiss Friday, December 23, and will resume their work January 2, 1939.

However, the consolidated teachers will get no pay for the week they do not teach. The rural teachers like to go ahead with their teaching in order to be out of school in time to enter the first semester at the college.

COLLEGE DEGREE VALUED IN DOLLARS AND CENTS BY NORTHWESTERN PROFESSOR

"The dollars and cents value of the college degree is, on the average, between three and four times greater than a high school diploma."

This note of encouragement to those struggling for a college education comes from Dr. Samuel N. Stevens, dean of the university college of Northwestern University at Evanston, Illinois, who has just completed a survey of the economic status of some 14,000 college graduates.

The vast majority of those surveyed, Dr. Stevens said, are still increasing their earning powers after being out of college ten years.

Billy Black's BLARNEY

I asked a question last week about the Kentucky Wildcats. They answered it Saturday night by snowing the Wesleyan Panthers under, 57-18. They left no doubt in the spectators' minds that they are perhaps the most powerful team in Kentucky's history.

Otto Carr used to play semipro baseball with an Armo outfit in Middletown, Ohio. I always wondered why he followed baseball so closely.

The Kentucky colleges were well represented on the All-S. I. A. A. team. Five boys from "Dark and Bloody Ground" rated the first team and two landed on the second. Two Eagles, Horton and Varney, made center and quarterback on the first and second teams respectively.

That Frenchburg game was a thriller of the first degree. Well, their all-state forward, seems to have a charm on the ball. At the half, when the team was shooting, he dribbled to the corner and threw the ball behind his back without so much as a glance at the basket, and it slipped through the net, not even touching the rim!

My dear, have you seen the simply di-vine uniforms that the College basketball team has? They are re-ally jaw-geous. The material is, what do you call it? You know, those men with the little caps that ride horses? Jockey, that's it! It's jockey satin. They are rather close fitting with elastic inserts on the side of blue and gold knit material. The trend seems to be toward a low waist-line and don't you know, they have the dullest belts to match! They set off Horton's delicate features to perfection. There is a blouse with the outfit which is, to say the least, revealing. It has the cutest numbers on it though, and with the accessories, black shoes, white laces, and blue and gold socks in a rather stick-candy effect, and got 'em knee pads, just sets off a dark complexion. Oh, but I forgot the boleros. My dear, they have the most adorable evening jackets! Yes. Gathered at the waist and wrist with about seven buttons up the front. They're gold, too. They look like a sunset when they stand in a semi-circle. You know, "Twilight on the Trail" . . . Uh-huh. Well, I must be running along. I have to see Mrs. Astorworth about the literary tea. Ta-ta.

At the game Monday night, some smart Aleck remarked that Trany needed a double-edged axe because "Big John" Wiggers was "tall timber." Somebody gag him! Morehead Hi has good prospects for a very successful season. The team's height is above average and most of the boys have two or more years experience. They beat Sandy Hook the other night 50-18, and 50 points is points in any man's language. Watch these Vikings!

Shriek, Girls! College Has Bumper Crop Of Wild Mice

By Don Claypool

The science department of Morehead State Teachers has collected more live golden wood mice than have ever been gathered together, skinned or unskinned, in any other place in the world up to this time.

Allie Holbrook, post-graduate, has collected 18 specimens of the golden mouse to be used in his experiments. Although this wood mouse is very rare and not generally known to inhabit this area he has obtained more live specimens than have ever been gathered together before, either alive or dead. These mice were caught in traps and in his hands.

Of 25 specimens caught on-ly four were females, which are necessary in figuring out the life cycle. With the methods he is now using he will be able to calculate the cycle accurately and make all of the observations he needs for his work.

A complicated special diet is important in the preservation of mice in captivity. Mr. Holbrook has worked out this diet so well that the mice are not only alive and healthy but are growing fat. In the class with Holbrook are E. P. Walters and Leo Oppenheimer, who are working respectively on "Asters Found in Eastern Kentucky," and "Problems in Baso-metabolism." These students have been working on these problems since the present semester began. Although they have not completed their work they have already ob-tained some interesting results.

Mr. Walters has found 19 species in 90 collected specimens of astors in eastern Kentucky. There are approximately 65 different species of this plant found in the United States. He also found many variations of the same species. The first two months of Mr. Walters' work were spent in collecting specimens before the first frost. He is now recording his results and cataloguing his specimens.

Mr. Oppenheimer has met with some difficulty in his baso-metabolism experiments on eggs because of the inadequacy of his apparatus, but he will probably complete his experiments, using a mouse as his subject.

Chapel Speaker

Dr. William Spencer, president of Franklin College, which is located at Franklin, Indiana, addressed the student body on "Friendship" at the convocation period on Friday, December 9. He discussed Cicero's idea that beautiful friendships in troubled and competitive times are few and far between and he applied this thought to the world's most famous friendships. After telling of the monetary value of friendship, he enumerated the qualities that he would want most in a friend, loyalty, sympathy, tenderness, high ideals.

Eagles 43 To 36 Wilmington Downs

Last Wednesday night at Wilmington, Ohio, the Morehead Eagles landed the art of the Ohio champions and came out on the short end of a 43 to 36 score. Wilmington jumped into an early lead and held it throughout. The score at the half was 22 to 13 in favor of Wilmington. Kirk, forward, of Morehead, led his teammates in scoring with 11 points although Townsend of Wilmington was the high scorer of the game with 12 points. The game was cleanly played with only one man being put out of the game on fouls. Morehead used 12 men and Wilmington 15.

Breck Loses Close Game To Frenchburg

A field goal and a free toss by Wells, All-State forward, gave Frenchburg a 17 to 15 win over the Eagles of Breckinridge last night in the College gymnasium. This was one of the closest games of the year and the teams were tied 3-3 at the end of the first period. Frenchburg led 9-7 at the half and the Eagles held them scoreless in the third frame to lead 11-9. The score was tied eight times during the contest.

ATTENDS CHEMICAL MEETING IN LEXINGTON

Dr. W. H. Keller, chemistry professor, attended the monthly meeting of the Lexington chapter of the American Chemical Society, Tuesday evening, December 6. The speaker for the meeting was Dr. Krauss of Brown University. Dr. Keller is president of this chapter. Thomas Havens, a chemistry major, accompanied him to the meeting.

One-quarter of the Pinetown University freshmen are more than six feet tall. Pleas Hall, official University of Georgia bell ringer, estimates he has a wife, the instrument 250,000 times in six years.

Campus Club Meets To Admit Pledges

Harry Lowman Acts As President In Absence Of Hammonds

Vice President Harry Lowman presided at a special meeting of the Campus Club November 28, in the absence of the club president, "Frenchy" Hammonds. The meeting was one of the most important of the year as the club voted new pledges to become members the second semester.

When pledges are voted on, every commendable quality is discussed, and also those undesirable traits which are human. The club tries to select those men with the maximum quantity of good habits and a minimum of bad ones.

Because of the fact that the club constitution allows only a limited number of active members there are as many eligible men who don't get a sufficient number of votes to become members as there are those who get enough votes. Scholastic ability, leadership in athletics, or other campus activities, and personality are taken into consideration when pledge voting time comes around.

The pledges who will be initiated the second semester are Allie Holbrook, Tom Fearing, Orville Redwine, Billy Hogue, Harry Walker, Gordon Grant, Leon Watson, John P. Cassidy, and Charlie Morris.

Active members present at the meeting were Harry Lowman, Roger Caudill, Jimmie Babb, John Harvey Fitch, Ralph Holbrook, Custer Reynolds, Edgar Kiser, Lot Marzetti, Donovan Darnell, Frank Robertson, and Miller Ashcraft. Bill Coldiron, alumnus, was also present to lend his prestige.

INFLUENZA OUTBREAK CAUSES POSTPONEMENT

An outbreak of influenza in West Liberty necessitated the closing of school last Tuesday December 6, and the postponing of a band concert by the M. S. T. C. Band there. Many cases of influenza were reported in the county.

The day the school was to reopen was not learned here. The West Liberty Band, who was sponsoring the concert is under the direction of Carl Reeves, a former Morehead student.

College Debaters Plan Schedule

The regular meeting of the eligible members of the College debate team met Thursday evening in room 18 of the Administration Building, according to Dr. J. B. Holtzclaw, coach.

Those present were Adrian Thompson, Bruce Walters, Madge Childers, Hazel Hicks Virginia Young and Bernice Byrd.

The subject this season, according to Coach Holtzclaw, is Resolved, "That the United States should stimulate business."

A complete debate schedule has not yet been worked out.

BETA ZETA BANDS BIRDS

The members of the Beta Zeta Club have been divided into two groups to compete with each other in the banding of birds. These groups will catch birds and release them after registered government bands have been placed on them.

This activity is part of a new program of the club to carry on projects outside of the club meetings. Allie Holbrook and Kinney Long are the chairmen of the two groups. The group banding the smallest number of birds are to give the others a party.

KENTUCKY

Wildlife Should Be Given Protection Says Director

Permanent Food Supply Must Be Made Available—
Brown

Given the protection of vegetative cover in which to hide, and a sufficient supply of seeds, berries, and fruits upon which to feed, quail and many other desirable forms of wildlife will be more able to outwit their natural enemies and increase their numbers successfully. This statement is made by Major James Brown, director of the division of game and fish in Kentucky.

Fortunately, many of the same shrubs, vines and other plants which provide cover also furnish food. By care in selecting the species of vegetation used, a sequence of trailing dates can be obtained which will provide food and cover throughout the year.

Some forms of vegetation which are valuable for erosion control can be used in small, scattered areas about the farm to control erosion and at the same time provide conditions favorable for the increase of wildlife.

The cover should be thick enough to furnish concealment and yet not be too thick to prevent free movement of the game. Such cover is furnished by ungrazed woodlots, young evergreens, hedges and fence rows, vines, plum etc.

A farm with woodland, shrubbery, brushy gullies, creeks, crop stubble, swamps, standing corn and weeds can harbor more wildlife than can a farm that has only standing corn, or any other uniform environment.

Nesting cover is a highly essential requirement of quail. Quail favor roadsides, margins of right-of-ways, fence rows, grassy fields and a variety of similar nesting sites.

Shrubs may be planted on bare spots of the farm and will serve the double purpose of controlling erosion and providing food and cover for game. Gullies and severely eroded areas about the farm make ideal locations for such plantings.

In order to keep the game which we now have and hope for an increase from the present supply, means of protection must be provided and a permanent food supply made available, Major Brown stated.

California Beats R. I. In Vote Buying

When it comes to devising vote-buying political platforms, California politicians have nothing on Rhode Island State College students.

In the annual campaign for "campus mayor," the candidates offered everything from the elimination of final examinations to free gasoline for all student drivers.

These words speak louder than ours, so here are just a few sample platforms proposed in the seven-sided race.

1. Lectures in rhythm—swing sessions in all classes.

2. Free dances every other night (refreshments served)—alternate nights left open for petting.

3. Free date bureau—partners produced in order.

4. No padding of freshmen.

5. No more exams.

6. No more failures.

7. Honor privileges to all.

8. Upholstered and air-conditioned chairs everywhere.

9. Refreshments and tobacco served in classes.

10. Suspension of Saturday classes.

Wee Willie Wilcox the "Dog Patch" candidate, went "Buck" one or two better, with this platform:

1. The use of a Lincoln Zephyr or Bodel T at the rate of 10c a week under the Socialized Car Users' Association Act.

2. Instead of exams, a final gala week of spree from the proceeds of the accumulation of the $2 days.

3. Thirty dollars every "blue" Monday or "wet" Friday.

4. Open subsidization of athletes.

5. No co-edges at college dances.

6. Every day a "Sadie Hawkins" day.

7. Pre-curved turnips for everyone.

8. Swing sessions at all assemblies with famous bands instead of dry speakers.

9. Greened flag pole fight between freshmen and sophomores.

10. Free hurricane insurance for all professors over "80."

11. No more curfew co-edges.

12. On credit sale at the bookstore every Sunday; one cent sale at Giro's every Tuesday.

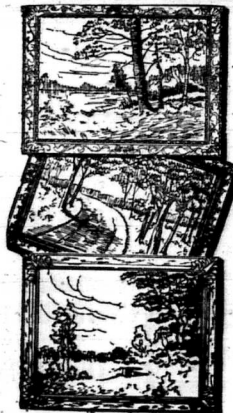

13. Free postage to all co-edges in China.

14: A full moon once a month.

"Over 40 years Continuous Service to Morehead"

MOREHEAD, - - - KENTUCKY

By Edri May

There are always some hunting stores a fellow would like to forget about.

I have never mentioned this story to a soul as I have always thought too much of Woody Hinton to spoil our friendship. Today, however, I feel I am justified in letting this story out because Woody's article last week got me in the dog house again. Well, here is the story:

Woody became sports-minded last fall and bought himself a gun and the other paraphernalia necessary for bird hunting. Woody is a fine shot, understands bird dogs, has an uncanny ability to lead the dog to fine cover and to top it off—makes one of the most with. However, you will notice that Woody hunts no more. Maybe this is the reason:

O. K. WITH BIRD DOGS

Again I repeat, Woody gets along alright with bird dogs but other dogs don't take Woody right, especially curs and varmint dogs. Now this may seem strange but it's true. Woody's feet don't track like other people's, they track like varmints.

To get right down to what I mean, I must say his feet don't give off a human odor, there is something animal about them. Now I don't want you to think I ever smelled them, 'cause I haven't, but varmint dogs have and they just go crazy over his tracks. They howl and howl and whine and run after him until they tire him or hole him nearly every time he gets in the field.

The last time we went out, I tell you, we had a miserable time. Woody was run to a hole four times, tread six times and run into a holler log twice more. I was so worn out digging him out of holes and shaking him out of trees and trying to explain to farmers that their dogs had a man in this hole or up that tree instead of a varmint that I was near exhaustion.

The only funny thing about the whole trip was to see old men running after their dogs and bragging about how good the dogs were. "Never let a varmint get past them and never lied on the trail," they'd say. Yes, it was a little funny to watch the expression on their faces when we would dig Woody out. Pretty near every time they would start cussin' and whip-pin' their dogs.

The climax came, though, when some fellers beat me to the hole and was a'wastin on Woody with a long very long line. They were twist and Woody would yell and the dogs would all bush up and howl and some of them would stick their tails between their legs and want to sneek off.

TWISTIN' HIM

Of course, Woody would holler and try to tell them to quit twistin' on him, but his voice sounded wild and hysterical comin' out of a hole and the fellows would twist all the harder. When I got there and convinced them, or tried to, that they were a'wastin' on a man, they cussed some'thin' awful and called me lots of names that would be hard to take under other circumstances.

Well, Sir, one of the other big fellers held me while the others twisted all the talkin' I could do did me no good. One of the men started to smoke Woody out and had enough green leaves and stuff to smother him in a minute when all at once another fellow twisted some duns out of Woody's pocket. One of these duns was made out to a feller in the crowd that was a 'twistin' and as some of the men read the dun they began to see their mistake.

Well, they left in a hurry, cussin' and bawling around. They didn't even have to cut the dogs 'cause they were glad to go. After about an hour, I got Woody dug out and found that they had broken his foot and twisted all the hair off his legs.

You remember, Woody walking on crutches, don't you? Well, that is show for another fellow twisted everyone that saw his foot in the 'cush will know I am telling the truth. Crackerbarrel Comments notwithstanding.

BIRD HUNTING CENTER

This county is getting a quite a reputation as a bird hunting center. People are coming here from all parts of Kentucky and other states to take advantage of the sport offered. When you stop to think of the money spent on hunting and fishing in the United States each year, you will remember it runs into the millions of dollars and communities where sportsmen go are reaping nice rewards in the form of profit from sales to these sportsmen. With the National Forest already an established fact and the geographical location we already enjoy here there is no reason why Morehead should not profit greatly in the years to come from sportsmen.

With the program of conservation now in effect there is no doubt that soon we will have good deer hunting, good turkey hunting, good grouse hunting, good fishing and better bird hunting. We won't have this in five years but we can have it in ten years. The Federal Government is going to take a hand in restocking these hills soon and the citizens are going to back the movement. Just think of the big cities within a few hours of Morehead and try to realize the money we can bring in here. Some other states have as much as ten million dollars spent there every year by visiting sportsmen and we can get the business with a good conservation program. It seems that quail hunting conditions are becoming more ideal. Quail have settled down to their old routine they had before the first of the season and the dogs are in good shape, so, as a rule, most hunters are 'expecting better bags. The rabbit hunters have about quit the fields as they have killed most of the crop or run the others off, so quail are not disturbed nearly as much as they have been. Try one of your old fields again and you will probably find the birds you missed at the first of the season.

Still Coughing?

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your common cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, stop at once and get Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which is rich in the best of the broths and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expectorate laden phlegm. Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained. Creomulsion is one word, ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

GERTRUDE GELBIN

CHAPTER FIVE

Marie Antoinette hastily wiped the tears of chagrin from her cheeks as she hurried to the ambassador's study. She trembled with rage as she recalled the rebuff given her by the Duke D'Orleans and thanked Heaven she had never, in the four years of their association, succeeded in his importunings of love. His answer to her pleas for help, "I would be ruined if I aided you!" would ring in her ears forever!

Her heart sank when the Ambassador's servants informed her that Count Mercy had been summoned by the King. All, then, was lost. Even at the moment, she knew, the papers annulling her marriage and recalling her to Austria were being signed. The thought of Du Barry's disgrace faded in the face of the disgrace she had brought upon the House of Hapsburg.

Her tears fell afresh and like a frightened child, she whispered "Mamma!" So intent was she upon her grief that she failed to hear the door open, and she dropped her face in her hands and broke into stifled sobs.

The young man who entered stopped aghast at the sight of her weeping. The door banging closed behind him, swung her around and with vexed surprise she perceived her sorrow was being spied upon. Her tears dried in hot eyes as she recognized Count Axel de Fersen, the one man in Paris who had dared to defy her invitations.

"The man who had spurned her kisses in the esplanade at the gambling house. . . pardon me . . . he pleaded, then stopped, his distress and embarrassment leaving him at a loss for words. He pointed to the desk, "I left some papers here . . ." he paused, waiting for her permission to take them. She stared at him with cold disinterest. He seized the papers hurriedly and started for the door, then stopped, and faced her. "Is there anything I can do?" he asked quietly.

"He seemed made it difficult for him to continue. He smiled desperately. "I'm trying to tell you that my life is at your service, you know." "You've hearkened the news, I suppose," she asked. "You know why the King sent for Count Mercy?"

He nodded. "And I can't get rid of you!" she mocked unbelievably. "You want to be my friend in disgrace?"

"Yes," he answered gravely. "I'm not impressed, Count Fersen," she said flatly. "I've lived too long at Court." She threw him a hard, challenging look. "Confess . . . I attract you. I saw it in your eyes that night at the gaming house. You want to profit by the occasion. You'd like to make love to me, wouldn't you?"

He met her challenge with clear, honest eyes. "I should like to make love to you," he replied.

"You risk nothing in offering me your attentions," she observed bitterly. "You are not French . . . you need no favors from the King or France . . ." a sob choked her words and she turned away.

"I wouldn't cry," he said kindly. "He isn't worth it."

A slow flush spread over her face as she realized he referred to the Duke D'Orleans. "Oh, be quiet," she commanded. "What have you to offer in his place?"

"I do not know what his place was. I am offering you myself." "How generous of you!" How comforting to a discarded woman! Oh, she rushed on as he gestured in protest, "surely you must have heard." They said he was my lover!"

"I know that isn't true."

"You don't know anything about me, Monsieur."

"I've known you all my life," he said simply.

She stared at him in amazement. "You saw me for the first time at that gaming house in Paris . . ."

He shook his head. "You are mistaken, Madame." He crossed over to her and looked down at her with eyes alight with love. "At thirteen you could neither write German, nor French correctly. You knew nothing of history. You liked music, but trifled with it. You came down to breakfast every morning and announced that something wonderful was about to happen to you. On rainy days you sat at a small gilded table and pressed yourselves . . . and screamed . . ."

"Monsieur!" she interrupted. "How do you know?"

"Do you remember a governess . . . Madame Cordet?"

"Pecky!" she exclaimed . . . "not Pecky?"

"Pecky," he nodded. "She became my sister's governess."

Her tense expression gave way to a slow smile. "And Pecky chattered all this! How dreadful!" "When she left, Madame," she left you with me. I fell in love with you. I dreamed of daring feats in your defense. The world reeked in some tremendous upset and I rode through seas of blood to your side.

"You were very foolish," she said wistfully.

"I was jealous, too," he declared. "Insanely jealous. It maddened me to think that paid menials could hear your voice . . . see you, hair unbound. And when you were married . . . I was in despair."

"I begin to understand," she said softly. "That's why you were so angry the night at the gaming house. You thought of me as something quite wonderful and you found me an empty-headed, ill-mannered fool. . . . My sanity changed."

"No, Madame," he protested earnestly. "You've made pleasure a shield against loneliness and slander . . . but you could never change so deep a heart . . . so easy to be loved."

She shrugged her shoulders in ironic embarrassment. "Everyone," he pleaded, "even the highest, has some dream of love in his heart. Unless he can achieve it, he must fill the emptiness with noise, fame, excitement, pleasure."

Something struggled within her to accept his words, but Court training was too deeply imbedded. "Where did you learn all this, Monsieur," she asked lightly.

"In museums, Madame. Museums are dull, most of them, and neglected. But you'll always find someone there, gazing at the relics of Queens who were true lovers."

She looked musingly into the dream . . . not me . . . "You!" he cried. "You as you are; loyal and sweet and brave." He waited for her to speak, but she was silent. "If he met you once," he whispered, "and never saw you again, his heart would be filled with you forever. And he could never be less than he might be . . . for your sake."

Her lips trembled and she felt her tears fall. "I must go . . ." she said suddenly.

"Madame!" he pleaded. "Let me go! You're only upsetting me! You always do. You did last time. And now . . . the things you say hurt me. You hurt me as no one else has."

She leaned heavily against a chair as if she would faint. He stepped forward and put his arm firmly about her.

"Perhaps the great loves come, with tears," she murmured.

He gazed at her dazed and incredulous. Then, with indescribable sweetness, her lips met his and he folded her close in embrace. Her head fell against his shoulder and her eyes closed in an ecstasy of happiness.

BUT NOTHING STOPS THE RAILS Illustration of a train crossing a bridge over a canyon.

BY 1869, with the Blue Ridge and the Allegheny Mountains tunneled, only one more great natural hazard faced the intrepid builders who pushed the Chesapeake and Ohio tracks westward. This was the wild and treacherous canyon of the New River in West Virginia. Today, as your comfortable train runs safely through this gorge, you delight in its beauty—unequaled this side of the Rockies—little realizing how men risked health and life itself to make your journey possible.

Down from Hinton, West Virginia, fifty-one miles to Kanawha Falls, the New River has cut its bed, as deep in some spots, as 1,200 feet, below the surrounding levels. Down there engineers saw a natural roadway for the rails which, already brought as far as White Sulphur Springs, were pointing toward Cincinnati. Surveying, alone, was a heroic task. Often it required that men be suspended by ropes from the face of cliffs in order to locate the line. Then followed tremendous construction problems in that wilderness. No roads existed on which to transport materials and equipment. Barges which floated supplies down river were constantly imperiled by the rapids. Food was difficult to obtain. But the job was done.

Those pioneers, inspired by George Washington's vision of swift and transportation, were undaunted by risk. So now the New River Gorge is part of an important passenger and freight route—a thrilling sight for the traveler . . . and another evidence of the railroad's will to conquer nature in the service of the communities it has helped to establish and sustain.

Breck Is Defeated By Winchester

Beginning the second half, the same five Kirk, Higginbotham, Tallent, Henry, and Stinner, which started the game, were put in; Tallent soon went out on fouls followed by Stinner. John Wiggers, six foot, eleven cent, entered the play but after ten minutes was taken out with four personals. His gangling form stood a head above the other players and enabled him to get the rebounds but he was unable to stop fouling long enough to do Morehead much good, beyond tossing in three free throws.

Eagles Spurt Near End

A seven point scoring spurt near the close of the game enabled Morehead to gain the victory. Transy was leading 30 to 23 with seven minutes to play when Gant dropped in two free throws and knot the count. Istamal and Stevan of Transy each tossed in field goals; Gant dropped in a long shot and Wiggers three free throws. Blumer and Betts ended Transy's scoring with four fouls.

The lineups were as follows: Morehead (37) (35) Transy Kirk, 6 F 6 Stevenson Hig'n'hom, 2 F 12 Greene Tallent, 7 C 3 Stops Henry G 7 Betts Stinner, 3 C 3 Cunningham Substitutes: Morehead—Kaser, 2 Walker, Istamal, 8 J. Gant, 6 Horton, Wiggers, 3 G. Gant; Transylvania—Patrick, 2 Blummer, 2 Murphy, Moon, Speers.

The next game is with Kentucky Wesleyan, January 9 at the College auditorium.

The Eagles' record to date is composed of two wins, Holbrook and Transylvania, and three losses, Wilmington College, Lawrence Tech and Cincinnati University.

The StanByer . . .

(Continued from Page 1) arrives and I can hardly wait. Christmas time this year will mean much to me. It will be Tommy's first Christmas. He missed last year by only seven days. I'd like to see him a day but I'm afraid he would chew its ears off and I shudder now when I think of him eating the trimmings off the Christmas tree.

It was pay day at the Citizens Bank last week. I nominate Miss Pruda Nickell as being the number one female Santa Claus of Morehead. She sent out Christmas checks than ran into thousands and I don't mean penny or nickles. One young lady got one for $250. Her boy friend has always been bragging what a fine big Christmas he is going to have. "Lucky guy!" Last year I had one for a hundred but this year I almost completely fizzled out.

I have read the following a hundred times and I can't master it. The guy who writes such stuff should be shot, or, I mean—shot. A duel was fought in Texas by Alec Shott and John S. Nott. Nott was shot and Shott was not. The way was a rum that Nott was not shot, and Shott avows that he shot Nott, which proves either that the shot Shott shot at Nott shot or that Nott was shot notwithstanding. Circumstantial evidence is not always good. It may be made to appear on trial that the shot Shott shot, shot Nott, or that Nott was shot with firearms are frequent, it may be possible that the shot Shott shot, shot Shott himself. When the whole affair would read itself into its original elements and Shott would be shot and Nott would not. We think, however, that the shot Shott shot not Shott, but Nott, anyway it is hard to tell who was shot and who was not shot, but I claim that both Shott and Nott should both be shot not Shott, but shot Nott, or that Nott was shot by Shott. Listen, I will go nuts if I have to write Shott one more time. Come, to think of it they should be knoched in the head.
