Post Office Has Biggest Day Of Entire History

Rowan County Money Pours Out To Mail Order Houses Through Office

That prosperity is no longer around the corner, but has definitely turned it, is the firm belief of the local post office force. And they are judging it by the best indicator in the world, the business at the local post office. When business is bad the receipts at the post office fall off. When it is good the reverse is true. Friday of last week was the biggest day's business the local office has had for some time. They were busy the entire day cashing money orders to the amount of $350.00. At the end of the day a check-up showed that they had cashed money orders to the amount of 390.00, and had made out other money orders to the amount of $400.00.

If that amount were sent out every day for the next year, it would mean that Morehead and Rowan county merchants are losing approximately $53,000 in cash business that is going to some mail order house, which is in itself not a bad business for any local firm if they want it.

The local post office has during the weeks since the flood been over-worked, as during that period large quantities of mail were being sent to various sections awaiting the waters to subside before going on their destination. During the flood mail was precious, even circular letters, what few were received, being read with considerable interest. Both the citizens and the clerks were given a rest at that time, but the heavy mails since have more than made up for it, according to the post office help.

Rye Appointed Dist. Engineer

Succeeds C. J. McGruder As Head Of Highway Supervision In Section

W. T. Rye, who was recently appointed district engineer assuming his new duties, Monday morning Mr. Rye needs no introduction to the people in the district as he served most faithfully in this position for a period of several months and before that time was for several years assistant district engineer.

He served as resident engineer for Fleming county from the fall of 1927 until his appointment as assistant district engineer. Altogether he has had seventeen years of actual highway experience.

Commissioner A. P. Plummer has received congratulatory messages from all sections of the district complimenting him and the district in having been so fortunate as to secure the service of Mr. Rye, who is considered one of the leading highway engineers of Kentucky.

C. E. Warwick will continue in his position as assistant district engineer. Mr. Warwick has served in his present capacity for more than a year — Flemingsburg Times Democrat.

Mr. Rye replaces C. J. McGruder of Morehead.

High School Will Present Minstrel

Plans are under way for a minstrel show to be held under the direction of Miss Norma Powers and Mrs. Beulah Williams at the Morehead Public School sometime in March, after the basketball tournaments have been disposed of. The school has already purchased window shades which cost them $175.00 and the funds will be applied to this cost. Further announcement will be made later.

County Taxes Coming In Better This Year

Collections For Year Are Better By $900 Than They Were Last Year

With a gain of collections of approximately $900.00 over what they were at the same time last year, Sheriff Mort May is pleased over the prospect of completing his tax collections this year with considerably less delinquencies than formerly.

The tax collections which have been coming in rapidly in the past few days as the dead line for their payment approaches. The legislature last year set March 1 as the date on which taxes became delinquent, whereas it was formerly January 1, although the date has often been set back and more time allowed.

This year there is no likelihood that a further extension of time will be given by the Governor, and taxes must be paid by March 1, or the penalty will be in effect.

The penalty will also go on city taxes after March 1. During the illness of tax collector, John Adams, N. L. Wells served in that capacity. However, Chief Adams is now back at work and will be at the city hall to accept all city taxes.

COZY THEATRE IS BEING REMODELED

C. Willet. The entire theatre is being repainted. The walls are being decorated with "Sun-Bursts" and other art work that will give it an entirely new atmosphere of rest and beauty.

The work is being done by an artist from Maysville, who has had vast experience in the decorative field and who has decorated some of the larger theatres in this section of the country, notably the Keith-Albee in Cincinnati.

Car Licenses Due On March 1

Cost Of Tags Reduced By Last Legislature, Date Postponed

Car owners new and old will likely mark down March 1 on their calendars as that is a fat day for them. It is the day on which they are requested to pay their automobile license. Up to the present, the records in the county clerk's office indicate that 180 passenger car licenses have been purchased in Rowan county, as against $19 during the entire year of 1936. Truck licenses to the number of forty have been taken out this year, as against 27 last year.

The following article sent out by the state department will furnish ample information to those who are not familiar with the new license law passed by the 1936 legislature.

Kentucky General Assembly extended the date on which vehicles must be licensed from January 1 to March 1 with the understanding that postponement heretofore granted would not be made. License plates have been on sale at the county clerk's office of every county for some time. Under the amended law, they shall be on sale at any time after December 29, 1936 and until March 1, 1937.

The fee for all passenger vehicles designed to accommodate less than seven passengers has been reduced to $4.50 for the State plus $.50 for the county clerk. Truck registration fees remain the same, except that trucks of 3,000 pounds capacity or less owned by farmers, and used exclusively to haul the farmer's goods, may be licensed for $4.50 plus the clerk's fee, provided "Farmer's Truck" is painted in three-inch red letters on each side of the truck, and an affidavit is executed stating that the truck is used exclusively for the purpose of operating a farm.

DR. N. C. MARSH RECOVERS CAR

Stolen From In Front Of His Home Three Weeks Ago: Is Damaged

Dr. N. C. Marsh after losing his car to thieves about three weeks ago, purchased a new one when it looked as if he would not recover the stolen machine. Now he has received a phone call last Friday from Ashland, stating that police in that city had recovered the stolen automobile and would return it to him.

Dr. Marsh's car was stolen from in front of his home about three weeks ago, while he was eating his evening meal. Coming out to return to his office, he found his car was gone and immediately notified police in surrounding cities. As he heard nothing from it, he decided to purchase another car.

According to reports the police located the stolen car parked on a side street in Ashland, and identified the license plates as those of Dr. Marsh. They took possession. The car had been considerably damaged, with the entire back cushion burned.

Winter Carnival At College Gymnasium

Wednesday evening February 24 the candidates for the crown with their followers will parade down main street and back to the college auditorium where the candidates will be presented by the master of ceremonies, Dr. J. D. Falls. The campaign for each candidate will be officially launched by silver-tongued orators whose services have been secured for this event. Follow the crowd and get into the spirit of the Big 1937 Winter Carnival.

For three years Morehead State Teachers College has had a Winter Carnival. For three years war has been waged between the candidates for the honor of being crowned King of the Carnival. In 1934 Claude Clayton of Rowan County won the distinction of being the first King. In 1935 Carter County entered the race with a candidate and Doc King of Olive Hill was acclaimed King by a safe margin of votes. Gilbert Rose of Olive Hill became the popular King of last season.

This week the student body selected candidates for the kingship of the 1937 carnival, which is probably at 100 o'clock and the boxes locked.

It is nothing less than a coincidence that Ruby Smith of Olive Hill, Carter County, and Roger Caudill of Rowan County are the only contestants for the crown.

Friends of both candidates and County.

The announcement of the winners will be made the night of the Carnival just a few minutes before the procession starts at 9:00. Tickets will be on sale Monday morning March 1 in the following places:

Fields Hill, Miss Smith
Eagles Nest, Morgan Clayton
Dixie Grill, Jack West
Allie Young Hall, Exer Robinson

The tickets will be counted Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and the name of the candidates leading will be published. The final count will be Saturday afternoon. The sale of tickets will be over probably at 100 o'clock and the boxes locked.

Rowan County Shows Well In Fire Record

Small Number Of Fires In This County Due To Efficient Work Of CCC Camp

The CCC's at Bodrum in the past year answered 61 fire calls and fought 34 real fires, according to reports from the Cumberland forest Supervisors headquarters. But the fires in this county were only a small part of those in the entire forest area, according to the report. Nor was the acreage burned in this county in comparison to that in the entire area, as only 1800 acres were burned over in this county.

The annual summary of fire reports being made at the Forest Supervisor's Headquarters at Winchester, reveals that 483 forest fires have been fought on or near the Cumberland National Forest during the year 1936 burning over an area of 11,902 acres. The cost of preparing for and suppressing these fires has amounted to a total of $83,000.

The 483 fires fought ranged in size from 1 acre to 1347.3 acres. The latter fire was cut off before it reached the National Forest boundary. This unusually high number of fires can be attributed to the prolonged fire season of last spring and summer. The average spring fire season ends about June 1, while this year the fire season continued through the summer months and into the fall season.

The $83,000.00 spent in preparing for the suppression of these fires does not include the losses.

DRIVERS' LICENSING RESTRICTIONS VITAL

It is widely believed among safety authorities that passage of the standard drivers' license law by all of the 48 states is an essential step in solving our automobile death and accident toll.

States which have adopted the law find that it is definitely in the interest of public safety and better driving.

The law is not designed to materially lessen the number of persons operating cars—it is designed to force them, if need be, to become reasonably competent and careful. Under the terms of the law applicants are given an examination on traffic rules and a driving test. If they fail the first time they may take the examination again later. Ultimately, only a small percentage of drivers fail to earn licenses—and all licensed drivers are more capable pilots of automobiles.

But the law does prevent the licensing of persons whose presence at the wheel of a car would constitute a menace to life, property and health. These include persons under the legal age limit, habitual drunkards, narcotic addicts, the congenitally reckless and incompetent, etc.

FOREST A FACTOR IN FLOOD CONTROL

Much has been written about reforestation and flood control but the following article, from the U. S. Forest service is the most clearly stated of any that have come to our notice. Therefore we reprint it.—Editor.

Recent experiments carried on by the United States Forest Service in many parts of this country shows the influence of forests on run-off and stream flow is an important factor in flood control, says R. F. Hemingway, Forest Supervisor of the Cumberland National Forest. Through the experiments it was found that run-off from cultivated land following severe rains was as high as 125 times as fast as that from undisturbed forest land. Forest fires in old growth pine hardwood forest increases surface run-off on an average of ten times over that of unburned forest of the same type and as much as thirty-two times in individual storms. In the comparison of two canyons one burned and one unburned, the run-off ratio is found to be 22 to 1 for the ratio of eroded soil and debris was more than 1100 to 1.

The slower run-off of water from forest land can be accounted for to several conditions found only in such areas. The forest litter, which is made up of the leaves, twigs and debris which cover the forest floor, is capable of absorbing from 150 to 900 percent of its own weight in water. Forests also retard freezing of forest soils and hence the retention of its capacity for absorbing water, reduces evaporation from the soil, and the trees and plants themselves consume water which the soil, and the forest acts like a great sponge and is nature's best water and soil holder.

It is pointed out that the primary reason for the establishment of the National Forest was for the protection of watersheds. The effect that a project will have on the watershed is always taken into consideration before any work is started on the National Forest, whether it be road construction, cutting timber, planting and the numerous other projects carried by the Forest Service.

Flood conditions, such as recently caused great losses in Kentucky, are taken in consideration in the construction of roads, bridges, recreational areas etc., and the Cumberland National Forest reports that all of its roads so far constructed, building roads of this nature often necessitates heavy construction and the building of high bridges but the value of all weather roads has many times proved itself the most economical in the long run.

Farm News

First thought on reading of garden planning is that of a formal map on which are shown the rows of the various vegetables, but only part of planning, for, too, is included properly selecting varieties to perform as they are expected to perform, also making provision for insect and disease control and for cultivating the garden after it is under way.

Certainly, a map drawn to scale should be made, showing high spots in which the earliest vegetables are to go, as well as spots that are low, and therefore late in arriving at garden condition. Besides, should be drawn buildings and trees in whose shade or part-shade should be put those crops that can accommodate themselves to such a condition. In addition, walks, rows of perennials and any other feature for which allowance must be made, should appear. With all this blocked out, planning may begin.

The first step is to decide what vegetables are to be grown as determined by what meets the family's taste, but a list supplemented with a few vegetables whose acquaintance the family should make, for the average garden lacks variety. Then, should be computed how much of each vegetable is to be produced, based on the number of servings per week or year, and on what constitutes a "serving." These quantities may then be translated into garden rows, and set down on the map, to complete the plan.

At about this point, it may develop that the garden space is quite too small. That need cause no trouble, if one will recall that not all the rows are in the garden at the same time, but one may use "succession" and "companion" planting schemes to squeeze in crops here and there, for which no room at first was apparent. Kentucky extension Circular No. 243 should serve any gardener, both in planning and in later caring for his garden. A copy of this circular will address a request to the College of Agriculture, at Lexington.

No season passes without some trouble from insects and diseases. Many times, their attacks come so swiftly as to catch the gardener unprepared, to the point of panic. Now is a splendid time to insure dependable supplies of insecticides and fungicides, as well as to make needed repairs to apparatus with which to apply them, if not to make replacement.

Too, weeds will come, and with them the need for cultivating the garden. It is unfortunate that the word "weeding" is often used for the proper term, "cultivation," except it is true that unless proper tools are used, cultivating a garden does become real labor. More will be said about this later, but, for the present, any gardener who places his reliance in a hoe, should see that it is bright and sharp and properly "hung" or, better before the rush comes, calmly and dispassionately purchase a garden plow or wheel-hoe. As any person who uses a wheel-hoe can tell him, such a purchase will return him dividends in garden pleasure, and in vegetables, beyond his believing.

Men Are Not Gods At College

Friday's show at the College features the lovely Miriam Hopkins in a sparkling story in which she and Ann Williams is the secret to London's leading dramatic critic. She is about to turn in a vitriolic review of a story by one Edmund Persuadee Ann to alter the story and "rave" about the performance. This she does and is "fired" for it. She then spends her time watching the play and falls in love with Ed. They then take a serious mumm. Things then take a great dramatic climax, one which it would be unkind to reveal here.

Sunday's show is another top-notch starring Victor McLaglen in "The Magnificent Brute" McLaglen takes the part of "Big" Steve Andrews, who moves into a steel town and immediately becomes the competitor of another husky by the name of Bill Morgan. The film is far from the usual scrupulous follow, plots against Steve but is finally caught in the plot and forced to confess. Dealing with rough and tough individuals the film is far from the lavender and old lace type.

Another special show Tuesday is a dramatic romance entitled "Women of Glamour", which stars Virginia Bruce and Melvin Douglas. Modern in theme and atmosphere, the story to be told in this production is a dramatic and merciless

Sam Earley Dies

Burial was made in the Bradley Cemetery.

Fire Record

caused by the damage of the fire to timber, wild life, watershed protection, and recreational values.

Analysis of the fire by causes shows that all but fourteen of the fires were man-caused or the total of 97 percent man-caused fires for the year 1936. Railroad caused 6 percent of the fires, campers 3 percent, smokers 18 percent, debris burners 11 percent, lumbering 1 percent, miscellaneous 5 percent and incendiary fires accounted for 53 percent.

Seventy-one civil and criminal cases of fire trespass were initiated and reports to date show that 21 of these cases have been won and four lost. A concerted drive to eliminate willful and negligent setting of fires on the National Forest will be continued with an even greater vigor during the coming fire season, said R. F. Hemingway, Forest Supervisor.

Due to the fact that 1936 was an abnormal year it is impossible to make a fair comparison of figures with those of previous years. Definite progress has been made and will continue to be made as long as the public will continue to cooperate in the prevention of fires while using the National Forest. probing of human emotions and weaknesses. It tosses two men and two women into situations which, although their relations cause their lives to become considerably tangled, enable each one to find exactly what he or she wanted without quite knowing how to go about attaining it.

Patterns of Wolfpen

By Harlan Hatcher

Copyright by The Spahr-McClure Co. W.V. Service

Tandy Morgan, large, jovial, easy-going Tandy had praised Jesse to Sparrel. That boy of yours has got a head on him, Sparrel. He beats all I ever saw the way he takes to the law. I'm going to take him into court to help me with cases, come next term. Sparrel liked that, and told it to Cynthia when he returned. I always knew Jesse would do well at whatever he was minded to follow, Cynthia said. They say the school is doing right well this term under the new prin-

pal. I was just thinkin, Sparrel said, you might just as well as not go over and get in the second term. No, I can't this year now, Cynthia said. We could get a woman to come in now, Sparrel said. I don't fancy a strange woman taking over the house. There's always been a Pattern woman to do the woman's part of the house. I don't think Mother would want Amy Wooton or somebody messing around her closets and beds and kitchen and smoke-house and fruit shelves and milk cellar. It's too soon yet. Maybe next year with Jasper getting married and all. You're the doctor he said. I read the books on the shelf and the papers that come. And, any way, I am about of the mind that to run a house like this the way Mother did it is just as good as the book learning over at town. Unless you have a real turn for books. It takes a real turn for a house, too. Sparrel left it there, glad of her pride in the house. He took the bank book from his pocket and held it near the light for a long time. That looks pretty good, I reckon.

Cynthia examined the single entry of $4,000 in the neat bankers' hand. Is that all there is to it? She exclaimed. That's all. She could not somehow get used to it. Through the days it moved in and out of her thought. Four figures in a little thin scrap of a book. That's all there is to it. Four figures in ink. It don't seem right. The Pattern land sold a bunch of strange men from down the river in here chopping down the place, everything changed right around until a body don't know where she is living in all matters to the lumber camp, and all scratches to the menfolk is some scratches on a thin little scrap of a book with a brown back to it. Sparrel was so busy at the mill after early November. He went often to the logging camp and found more content in being near the house. He seemed to her more like the Sparrel of a year ago when the new mill was being planned. He was only he was graver now. He was doing things that gave a satisfaction deeper than the physical act of doing. He spent an entire day going over the loan, replacing and lightening loose threads, and greasing the tracks. He pegged the boards in the floor which had come loose. He brought sawed lumber from the mill and built the new row of shelves in the smoke-house. A little while he gathered up the seeds from Julia's flowers and put them in labeled jars as she had always done, saying to Cynthia. I reckon we'd better put these away for seed. It wouldn't seem natural not to have the flowers around the place. Then he gave the garden its coat of cow dung and its fall plowing, turning it carefully in deep narrow furrows and harrowing it until it lay soft mellow and without clods. And so he worked about the place for many days until Cynthia thought for a moment that past Wolfpen. It was only for a moment. Then Abral came at the end of a wet and misty afternoon, out of breath with running bearing the news about Doug. Sparrel was in the medicine room behind the chimney Cynthia was in the kitchen listening. The lumbering had moved restlessly up the Dry Creek Hollow. As the great trees fell, they were collected and dragged down to the creek by the mules and the yoked oxen. Now, at the end of November, they were far up into the narrow portion of the hollow and beyond the floating capacity of the creek. Mules constructed a narrow tram road around the rim of the hollow to carry the logs to the dam at Gannon Creek. They were snaked down from the hill to the rude platform and there rolled on to the log trucks. The track sloped rather sharply down the hollow, giving to the trucks considerable speed under their own momentum. At the last bend opening into the mouth of the hollow at Gannon, the tracks curved abruptly and plunged down the slope to the dam. One man at the end of each truck to apply the brakes and bring the load of three logs to a halt at the collecting point. The men grew reckless and increased the speed. They drank. They laid bets against a record speed over the course. They boasted against one another of going around the curve down the long last slope without touching the brakes. Doug had grown rash in their company. He talked more and bolder.

He drank with them from the jug behind the bushes. That afternoon he pushed the wood blocks from their place under the wheels of the loaded truck and gave it a sharp urge with the crowbar. Standing on the narrow platform by the brake, he waved his hat to the lumbermen, and as the load of logs gathered speed he shouted. This'll be a record. The two logs on the bottom were thick and very heavy, the third and top one was thin, not straight and of little value. Doug held to it, letting the truck go its way untouched by the brake. Abral and the men at the dam heard the uncommon rumble of the truck. Doug came furiously into sight around the bend, preceded by the roar of the wheels on the infirm tracks. It's Doug Mason. He's gone blum' crazy, Abral said. While he was yet speaking, the heavy load struck a weak joint in the wooden rails in the middle of the curve and plunged down the foot of the hill to the creek bank. They rolled the worthless log from his torn body and carried him bleeding to the camp; Sparrel must hurry.

Eagles Close Successful Season By Winning Fourteen Games Out Of Sixteen To Top Conference

Average 43.25 Points To Break High Juniors Game While Opponents Make But 30 Points

Now that the Eagles have finished their regular season in the basketball wars, at the very top of the KIAC standings, they have time to pause for a moment before the tournament battles begin and examine their record. They find after a thorough examination that, in spite of two defeats they have not done so badly for themselves. In fact they feel that they have a perfect right to be proud of the record they have, hung up, especially in view of the fact that with the exception of one man left over from the varsity of last year, the entire squad is composed of sophomores.

The Eagles during the season just finished played sixteen games. They lost two of the sixteen by a squeaky margin of 2 points each, to Louisville and to Eastern. Both games were played on foreign floors at Louisville and Richmond.

The Eagles met three out of state foes, one of them, Holbrook, twice, and came off victorious in all four encounters. They swamped Holbrook 56 to 28 in the first game and came back two weeks later to vanquish them again, 38 to 24. Morris Harvey of West Virginia fell before their onslaught, 54 to 37 and the University of Mexico took the count by the score of 43-20.

So much for foreign invaders. The Eagles went to work earnestly to top the KIAC teams in Kentucky. With the exception of the two teams mentioned they succeeded in doing so. Eastern and Louisville both had games scheduled in Morehead but due to the contingencies of the flood were unable to meet them. Thus the one game played by the Eagles against each team was final, so far as they were concerned.

Two teams in the state the Eagles failed to meet, solely for the reason that they were not on the schedule. These teams were Western and Murray. Murray scheduled no games with Kentucky teams other than Western. Western played six games in the conference.

The following is the result of the season's play of the Eagles, a record that in one of which not only the Eagles themselves, but the college and the community are justly proud:

Holbrook	44
Harvey	54-37
Holbrook	38-24
Georgetown	34-25
Union	43-34
Wesleyan	34-30
Transy	33-29
Centre	41-38

Win At Washington

Breckinridge High School, both Juniors and Seniors took Henry Lee Prichard's Washington High School team into camp last Friday night by scores of 12 to 6 and 45 to 35. The games were played at Washington, which is not in the District of Columbia, but in Mason county.

The games were hotly contested from start to finish, and produced the six foot four center, Fihley, who accounted for seventeen points.

Walter Carr was high scorer man for Breck with 12 points, while Bob Fraley made 10 points.

On Monday night Breckinridge Seniors played West Liberty, winning by a score of 44 to 23. Tatum was outstanding for Breck with 16 points.

Louisville	44-46
Georgetown	43-20
Berea	43-20
Mexico	38-40
Eastern	46-40
Union	42-23
Transy	38-23
Wesleyan	36-23

Analysing the scores during the season, it will be seen that Morehead piled up a total of 692 points as against a total for their opponents of 501. This gives the Eagles an average for the season of 43.25 points per game, at the same time their opponents were scoring 31.25 points per game, or an average margin of 12 points per game.

Considering the fact that the Eagles were under two district handicaps in that they were a squad almost entirely new and the added fact that they were under a new coaching system which they were obliged to learn and at the same time win games, they have done a remarkable piece of work, and not only the Eagles themselves, but the coaching staff is to be congratulated on the showing they have made. This without regard to the showing they may or may not make in the tournament they are about to enter and we hope win.

Wesleyan Fray Won By Eagles

Locals Win Conference Title By Crushing Ministers Saturday

Six minutes without a score, while Wesleyan was piling up a comfortable lead of seven points, passed in breathless suspense to Eagle fans, last Saturday night at Winchester, and then the birds from Morehead broke through the hoop with a free throw to register one point. But that one point was the shot that broke the spell. The Eagles tied the score at seven all in the closing minutes of the half. Wesleyan dropped in another to take the lead 11 to 9 and the Eagles began a drive that refused to be stopped. They were headed after passing the lucky eleven, ending the half 20-14 and the game 35-20. The game started fast with Wesleyan confident that they were about to upset the Eagles and knock them from their perch at the top of the K. I. A. C. ladder. They started out well, aided by a foul or two called on the Eagles. Playing coolly in spite of a seven point lead held by the Panthers, the Eagles finally found themselves and opened a barrage of the basket that pulled them out of the hole and into the lead as the whistle sounded for the first half.

The Eagles played a well rounded game, with their defense ending the game with an average of 35.25. The offense with their scoring ace, Arzen in a guard position suffered somewhat. However a feature of the game was the manner in which the scoring was scattered, practically every member of the team breaking into the column that counts.

Arzen, guarding the Wesleyan ace, Combs held him down to a "safe" score and finally fouled him out. Particularly in the last half Wesleyan, fighting desperately to overcome the lead the Eagles had piled up, became rought and fouling was the order of the day, so much so that three of their best string left the floor by the foul route. The Eagles, during the last six minutes of the fray froze the ball, with little attempt to score. Wesleyan took advantage of this attempt to toss in enough shots to bring the game uncomfortably to a close, but the Eagles woke up to the danger and edged in enough to put the game on ice.

The game was enough to crutch the bunting for the Eagles. Western closed the season in second place while Eastern, league leaders for several weeks, dropped to third place in the standings.

Thursday and Friday classes are the same as Monday's and Tuesday with the exception of convocation hour at 10:00 o'clock Friday.

Vikings Win Last Five Games For Good Season

Crash Thorough Russell To Topple Them 34-13 As Juniors Also Win

Sweet revenge came to the Vikings and the Kinglets maintained their unbroken record of a season without a defeat, when Russell came to Morehead for a return game. Earlier in the season the Vikings were defeated at Russell. Not so this time. After three quarters of about even play the Kings, broke most to run up the score. Headed by Barker and Tackett, they walked away with the game, more than doubling the score. The Kings won 34-13 for a revenge that was like sweet music in their ears. The Vikings, during the early part of the season were used more or less as doormats by some of their opponents on the court. They were held in the nature of practice games for some of the teams they met. However with the beginning of the second semester, they obtained a fresh lease on life and have won their last five encounters straight. They have upset Haldeman, Grayson, Louisa, Rareland and last Saturday night, Russell.

Local fans are looking forward to the final game of the district tournament, when the dope indicates that the Vikings and Breckinridge Training School will meet for the first time this season. Both teams will have its adherents and the game before the hometown fans should be exceptionally interesting. The Vikings and the Vikings seem to have gotten under full steam just in time for the tournament.

Eagles Have Hard Row To Hoe To Win KIAC Tourney At Richmond

Must Meet A and Defeat Heaviest Bracket To Face Final foe Saturday

On this page appears the bracket of the drawing in the K. I. A. C. tournament which gets under way in Richmond on Thursday of this week. The Eagles, winners of the K. I. A. C. conference in the regular season will have the backing of a considerable part of Morehead and Morehead College when they enter their first battle Thursday evening at 7:30 p. m. The Eagles have defeated Union twice during the regular season, but anything can happen in a tournament, and they are not going into the fray overconfident. They know they have a battle on their hands.

In case the Eagles defeat Union, they have several other hurdles to jump before they get through to the finals and some of them are mighty big hurdles. If they beat Union they will be called on to meet the winner of the Berea-Centre struggle, probably Centre, judged by season play. Centre proved to be one of the hardest teams the Eagles met during the regular season, the Eagles winning by a three point margin.

Again in case they overcome the Georgetown-Murray go. Whoever wins in this game will be just one game fresher than the Eagles, if they win, which is bound to give them that slight advantage that often wins games. Murray is easily the favorite to win over Georgetown while the Eagles are picked to meet them. Supposing all goes well with the Eagles up to this point, the boys will then meet Murray Saturday afternoon in the semi-finals and on the result of this game will depend the finals Saturday night.

Western is picked to win the upper bracket, and the vice across pick Murray to be their opponents doing both picking and praying. We believe the Eagles barring upsets are just as good if not a little better than Murray and that they will be able to top them and go to the finals. Kentucky teams have no method of really judging Murray, as the only team they have met has been Western. They won one and lost one to the Bowling Green team. Western on the other hand was defeated by Louisville, by a larger margin than was Morehead. It looks like a case of take your choice and our choice is of course the Eagles.

Tournament war is not like the regular season. It is intensive and difficult. There are eleven teams in the tournament, any one of which may turn on an inspired type of ball and win. The K. I. A. C. is regarded as much more difficult play than the SIAA which follows. Incidentally the Eagles won the right to compete in that tourney as well as the KIAC by taking the top round in the league last week.
