Basketball Teams Suffer Slump

Morehead basketball teams seem to be in a temporary slump. The College team barely won its last game before Christmas after losing three. The two high school teams were defeated by only two each in their respective games before Christmas.

The Morehead basketballers, however, are playing highly-rated opponents. Especially, there has been meeting teams from much larger schools like Covington and Winchester. Sickness of the center kept the Vikings from victory in the Olive Hill game.

After the holidays are over the boys will hit their stride and we can watch their dust!

Home Decorating Program Is A Success

The second annual Home Lighting Decorating Program was a worthwhile success. It would have gladdened your heart to have seen so many Morehead homes aglow with the Christmas spirit last week.

Women Still Sympathize With Anna Marie Hahn

Ever since the execution in the electric chair of Marie Hahn, in Columbus, Ohio, we have heard a number of women censor the Ohio governor for refusing to save her life. Practically all the women we talked to about this subject expressed sympathy for Marie Hahn—perhaps not so much sympathy for her, however, as for her son.

This week certain newspapers published Marie Hahn's "confessions." And did this change the tenor of the women's feelings? Absolutely not! They still seem to think that sympathy was aided not one whit by her execution; they still express sympathy for the boy.

Had Marie Hahn, a murderer, been saved from death, however, she might have been pardoned in a few days, and perhaps that boy of hers might have been her next victim!

Some local people outright oppose capital punishment; but not as, as long as present clemency laws stand. We, it stands at present, a person is sentenced to a "life" term in the Pen, he gets out in five years; a person sentenced to five years in the pen gets out again in less than two years. We think that when a person is given a life sentence, then let him serve five years. If that were done, then we would have no more life sentences. Heavens, a life sentence knowing you were really in for life, would be more punishment than death—Russell Times.

Definition Of A Gentleman

It is almost a definition of a gentleman to say he is one who never inflicts pain. He carefully avoids whatever may cause a jar or a jolt in the minds of those with whom he is cast—almost clashing opinions or collision of sentiment; his restraint or suspicion or gloom or resentment; his restraint or suspicion or gloom or resentment; his great concern being to make everyone at ease and at home. He has his eyes on all his company; the tender towards his opinions; the respectful towards the absurd; he can recollect to whom he is speaking; he guards against unreasonable allusions or topics that may irritate; he is seldom prominent in conversation, and never whimsical. He makes light of favors while he does them, and seems to be receiving when he is conferring. He never speaks of himself except when compelled, never defends himself by a mere retort; he has no ears for slander or gossip. He is scrupulous in imputing motives to those who interfere with him, and interprets everything for the best. He is never mean or little in his disputes, never takes an unfair advantage, mistakes personalities or sharp sayings for arguments, or insinuates evil which he dare not say out. He is too busy to be affronted by insult; he is too busy to remember injuries, and too indolent to bear malice. He engages in controversy of any kind his disciplined intellect preserves him from the blundering discourtesy of better though less educated minds, who, like blunt weapons tear and hack instead of cutting clean.

He may be right or wrong in his opinion, but he is too clear-headed to be unjust; he is as simple as he is forcible, and as brief as he is decisive. Nowhere shall we find greater candour, consideration, indulgence. He throws himself into the minds of his opponents, he accounts for their mistakes. He knows the weakness of human nature as well as its strength, its province, and its limits. —Cardinal Newman

Salute To A Lady

Many a man, who in the leisurely days before the advent of motors and "movies," was won't to pay, in his relaxing hours, assiduous court to a certain musical maid, has recently learned, and with some surprise, that the object of his one-time attentions has been "laid on the shelf." Among the twenty favorite songs selected by the St. Louis Society for the Preservation of Barber Shop Harmony, that standby of impromptu amateur quartets, "Sweet Adeline," received not a single vote.

This is almost as great a mystery as why, whenever a group of males give vent to vocalization, the result should be known as "barbershop harmony." To those unacquainted with American ways it is likely to present a misleading picture of tuneful tonsorialists, veritable "Barbers of Seville," mingling shaves with staves and shampoos with solos, meantime working themselves into a lather as to their prospects with the "Metropolitan," whereas in the "good old days" the miscalled "barbershop harmony" could be heard almost anywhere except in those places devoted to hirsute ministrations.

Why "Sweet Adeline" should receive the cold shoulder from a group whose personnel must have included so many staunch ex-admirers will ever be a source of perplexity. But to many admirers of the voiceless young lady are not protesting the outcome. They realize and hope that even the throes she may feel in being ignored will not equal those she must have undergone when she was asked to stand byander within earshot—"the boys broke out with "Adeline."—Christian Science Monitor.

Southern Economic Conditions Section 7-Health

For years evidence has been piling up that food, clothing, and housing intelligence not only the sickness rate and death rate but even the height and weight of school children. In the South, where family incomes are exceptionally low, the sickness and death rates are correspondingly high. Wage differentials become in fact differentials in health and life; poor health, in turn, affects wages.

The low-income belts of the South is a belt of sickness, misery, and unnecessary death. Its large proportion of low-income citizens are more likely to die than the people of any similar area. The climate can not be blamed—the South is as healthful as any section for those who have the necessary care, diet and freedom from occupational diseases.

Several years ago the United States Public Health Service conducted syphilis-control demonstrations in selected rural areas of the South. These studies revealed a much higher ratio of syphilis among Negroes than among whites, but showed further that this higher ratio was not due to physical differences between the races. It was found to be due to the greater poverty and lower living conditions of the Negroes. Similar studies of such diseases have shown that individual health cannot be separated from the health of the community as a whole.

The presence of malaria, which infects annually more than 2,000,000 people, is estimated to have reduced the industrial output of the South one-third. One of the most striking examples of the effect of malaria on industry was not due to physical differences between the races. It was found to be due to the greater poverty and lower living conditions of the Negroes. Similar studies of such diseases have shown that individual health cannot be separated from the health of the community as a whole.

In reports obtained in 1935 from 9 lumber companies, owning 14 sawmill villages in 5 southern states, there was agreement that malaria was an important and increasing problem among employees. During the year 7.6 percent of hospital admissions, 16.4 percent of physician calls, and 9.7 percent of dispensary drugs were for malaria. The average number of days off duty per case of malaria was 9, while days in the hospital for the same cause were 5. Ten railroads in the South listed malaria as an economic problem and a constant factor in 1936. Four utility companies had full-time mosquito-fighting crews at work during the year. The average case admitted to a company hospital lasted 3 days and the average number of days off duty because of malaria was 11. Each case of malaria was said to have cost the companies $40.

If we attempt to place a monetary value on malaria by accepting the figure of $10,000 as the value of an average life and using the death rate of 3,943 for malaria reported by the census for 1936, the annual cost of deaths from this disease is $89,500,000. To this figure could be added the cost of illness, including days of work lost.

The health-protection facilities of the South are limited. For example, there are only 100 doctors per capita in South Carolina as there are in California. The South is deficient in hospitals and clinics, as well as in health workers. Many counties have no facilities at all. (To be continued)

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR JANUARY 1

Lesson subject and Scripture texts are selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

PETER CALLED TO SERVE

GOLDEN TEXT—Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men.—Mark 1:17. LESSON TEXT—John. 1:40-42; Luke 5:1-11.

As we embark on the New Year, we gather in our Bible schools to take up an interesting series of studies on the life and work of Peter. The life story of any great and useful man, is worthy of our careful study. The life of Peter has peculiar interest because he was so intensely human, and yet so gloriously used of God.

Our lesson for today starts at the right point for we meet Peter when he as Simon first met the Lord. He was a mature man by that time, successful in business and settled in life, but with him (as with us) life did not really begin until he met the Lord Jesus.

It was brought to Christ (John 1:40-42). Andrew, of whom we know but very little, is a character greatly beloved because having found the Christ, he at once set out to bring his brother to Him. He probably did not know that in bringing his rough fisherman brother to the Lord he was bringing one of the leaders of all time. The important thing is that he brought Him.

It is the history of the Church there abounds stories of humble men and women who have been used to win others to Christ, who have been greatly used for Him. Think of the humble man who led Spurgeon to Christ, the Sunday School teacher who brought Moody, the simple but earnest Moravian who won Wesley—and be encouraged. You may have someone near you who may be awaiting your word to bring him to Jesus.

It was given a New Name (John 1:42). Simon, meaning "to hear," is changed to Peter and will take the name of Peter, who in His omniscience knew what the change in Peter's heart was to mean in his life—gave him a new name to fit his new character.

What a blessed truth it is that God in Christ can and will take the blustering fisherman and transform all of his good qualities into power and usefulness for Himself. Thus God who knows just what we are is ready and willing to make us just what we ought to be for Christ. Have you gone through the experience of having Christ say, "Thou art... thou shalt be?" It may mean that you have passed through or will pass through the process of having Christ's life needed to weld together your characteristics into a "rock," but it is God's hand that makes the change you will find it to be all joy.

His Occupation Was Changed (Luke 5:1-11). Christ had chosen Peter for one of those who should forsake all and follow Him, as one of His disciples in the inner circle of the Twelve. Note how graciously He carries out His purpose. One day he stands to teach on the shore of the Sea of Galilee the crowd presses Him, and He steps into a boat and asks the boatman to pull out from the land. And it "just happened" to be the boat of Simon, who had about a year before met the Lord and received the new name of Peter.

Such things do not "happen." The destinies of men are in the hands of God. The day and hour for Peter's call had come and here he was to be taught by Jesus through a miraculous draught of fish that he was to be a fisher of men. God's clock always runs on time. Remember that, and also be assured that if you are His child not even the simplest "happening" in your life is unknown to Him. He who numbers the hairs on our heads, He who observes the fall of a sparrow, is not lacking in loving interest and care for His children. Had our lesson been deliberately chosen for a New Year's message it could hardly have been more appropriate. To the one who knows not Christ as Saviour there is an invitation to begin the New Year by coming to Him. To the Christian there is the admonition to do as Andrew did—bring your brother or friend to Christ. We are not all called to leave our daily work and become full-time Christian workers, but every believer should be a soul-winner. To the one who has heard the call of God to leave his nets and follow the Lord in full-time service, here is the urgent renewing of that call. Step out in faith and follow Him. To the church or religious worker who is discouraged by the failure of a social or ethical program here is the lesson and example of a life changed by personal contact with the Lord Jesus.

Hunters Must Look At All Angles In Conservation

Many a startled and perplexing conservation problem would be solved if all we had to do when we wanted to improve fishing was to put more fish in the streams and if all we had to do to improve hunting was to put more quail and rabbits and other animals in the fields and woods. Unfortunately, the theory that any secrecy among our game animals can be permanently corrected simply by adding more animals to our livestock or to the more we will have, does not stand the test of practice.

No one needs to be a wind-blown farmer to know that there's more to raising crops than merely planting seeds, and that it would be somewhat foolish to grow bananas in Alaska. In agriculture, we do not expect to "recharge" our soil simply by scattering crops at random, or without determining whether the soil in which we do the planting is suitable for the particular crop we want to grow. No do we put our livestock out to pasture on land where it is nothing or an insufficient amount to eat.

We also know that we cannot increase production by "choking" with more seeds a field already planted to the limit, or by adding to our livestock if our pastures are only sufficient for the herd we already have.

Habitat is one of the factors which must be considered in connection with artificial propagation. Another, and one which bears directly on the questions of when, where and how much artificial propagation is justified, and whether it will be effective or wasteful, is that of the rate of natural reproduction. Artificial propagation is inevitably limited by financial cost and many other practical considerations, and the number of birds or animals that can be reared artificially is but a fraction of the number that can be reached in natural reproduction. Quail, deer, wild turkey, coon, or any other animal or bird can be planted only where plenty of food and cover are available. If the sections that are well-stocked with game receive additional number of the same species, starvation and diseases are certain to follow.

Billie Black's BLARNEY

The last roundup of football is scheduled for Sunday when the outstanding outfits of the nation tangle in the various bowl games. I pick Southern California over Duke, Tennessee over Oklahoma (which is the game), T. C. U. over Carnegie Tech and St. Mary's over Texas Tech.

In the high school division Manhattan and New Britain meet in New Orleans. I'll forsake the home state and pick New Britain.

From all reports the Vikings' game with Ceredo-Kenova was more football than basketball. The Vikings went down 44-15, but only after putting up a hard fight. That's the spirit, Vikings, keep it up!

We'll get them next time (we hope). Thursday night at Mt. Sterling the Trojans' nosed Breck out 16-14. The men of Troy led in field goals 6-5. They made 4 out of 5 foul shots while the Eagles made only 4 out of 13. The game was fast all the way, Breck making a final spurt in the last minute in an attempt to overtake the Trojans who led throughout the game.

Heard after the Mt. Sterling game: "I didn't know they had such good players..."
"We lucked out on them that time, didn't we?"

MORE LICENSES SOLD
The sale of hunting licenses in Kentucky during the year 1938 shows a decided increase, according to preliminary reports received by the division of game and fish from the county clerks from over the state.
Very few counties showed any decrease in the sale of hunting licenses; some counties sold approximately the same number as last year, but most of the counties reported increases. For example Mercer county reported the sale of an additional 74 licenses over last year, bring the total to 250 licenses thus far this year in this county.
Fishing licenses also showed a decided increase.

Carey Went Over Top In Christmas Seal Campaign

Mayme Myers Lowe

Our school has gone over the top with the sale of Christmas seals. We have sold one hundred and thirty seals which gives us ten to carry over the top as we had to sell only ninety seals to be one hundred percent perfect.

The Cate family has come and gone from our school stage and Santa Claus has vanished also. Thus brings to a close another episode of the Christmas spirit that has hovered over the little school for the past five years at Yuletide. The house was filled and overflowing at six p. m. with patrons and friends from our community, as well as friends from Cogswell, Farmers, Bluestone and other nearby places. As one glanced over the audience he found many former pupils that had gone to Miss Lowe in former years. They were welcome and cordially invited to attend again.

I wish to express my thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Lonz Utterback for assisting in the Christmas program. I also wish to thank Misses Blanche Bowling, Fay Hamilton, Dorothy Hamilton, Cora Smith, Mae Smith and Irene Armstrong for assisting me with the program.

The success of Columbia University and its affiliated institutions are now estimated at $158,868,671. Budget for the last fiscal year was more than fifteen million dollars.

The Elliottville school children edit a school paper each month. The name given the paper is "The Village." Below is a copy of the paper printed in December:

Program Given At Elliottville
Many songs, poems and plays, were given by the school, "The Obliging Christmas Tree" and "The Runaway Stockings" were the two plays presented by the first and second grades. The play "The Christmas Candle" was presented by the fourth and fifth grade.

At Elliottville
The Bar X Cowboys were at Elliottville Thursday night, December 22. They were featuring Casey Jones, champion fiddler of 1936. They broadcast from WLAP.

P-T-A. Meeting Held
At a December meeting of the P-T-A, a most interesting program was enjoyed by all. Everyone took part. Mr. Crosthwaite and Mr. Kissinger entertained the group by entering a contest which required much skill and dexterity. Although Mr. Crosthwaite won, Mr. Kissinger came very near the goal. The winners remarked that if that were the only way that I had of getting something to eat, I am afraid I would starve to death. We have often heard it said that a good laugh is better than a barrel of medicine. If this is true no one will be ill again as long as our P-T. A. is in action.

Just before the refreshments were served, Mr. Hoggie started the snowball fight and poor Mr. Crosthwaite, who was a splendid target, had the whole group to fight. No one knows who won, but no meeting could have been enjoyed more and everyone is looking forward to next month's meeting. The parents have promised to bring refreshments.

Why Children Should Be Taught There Is A Santa Claus
The Santa Claus story is one which all children are entitled to enjoy. What kind of Christmas would little children, who cannot appreciate the true story of the Christ child have if they did not believe in Santa? The first five or six years of a child's life is made happy by the belief in that benevolent person. The story grips the child's imagination. No holiday is looked forward to with more eagerness. The Santa idea really leads up to the real Christmas spirit and no child will be that he has been taught that there is a Santa Claus. The spirit of giving which is the true spirit of Christmas is gradually inculcated into the child's life more good is brought about by the Santa idea than Santa realizes.

KENTUCKY FARM NEWS

Samuel Hamilton, of Metcalfe county began preparing for the 1939 tobacco crop by sowing crutalaria last spring, some of the plants reaching a height of 7 feet by fall. The growth was turned under and wheat seeded as a cover crop, to be plowed under next spring.

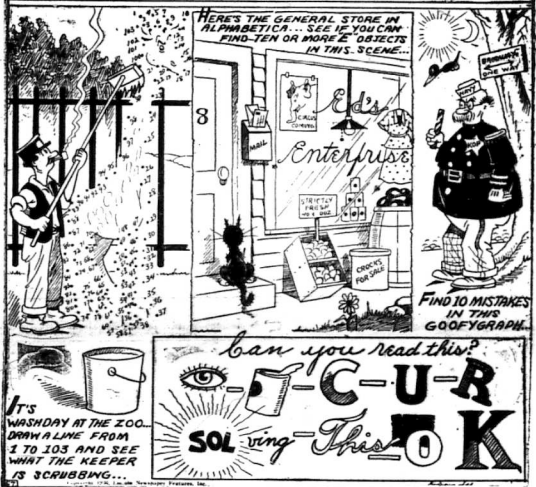

High humidity and lack of artificial heat resulted in much tobacco damage in Christian county. Some of the burley not fired rotted in four to seven days. Other crops cured out dark. Continual firing for several days was required to reduce the humidity.

Mrs. Mary Johnston Clarke left Friday for a visit at the homes of relatives in Ashland, Pikeville and Huntington, W. Va.

OUR PUZZLE CORNER

The meeting was a real success. The crowd that was there proved not an excess. We were all quite interested in good roads and good schools. Superintendent Corrette and Mr. Bradley were the toastmasters so full of jolly good humor they made a good chat. And when the meeting was over said, "Now what do you think of that?" We decided to draw up a petition for each patron to sign. And get the road surfaced and off of our mind. When the meeting was over, we all got our hats. And stood near the stove for a friendly warm chat. We all pull together on Big Brushy, you see. "What's good for our neighbors is good for you and me." We've done our duty and hope we are blessed. It's left for Judge Pelfrey and the Fiscal Court to do the rest.

Turkeys are being raised on more than 30,000 Kentucky farms. and the annual income from the big birds exceeds a million dollars.
