

Rowan To Have Sublimity Farm Projects Soon

First Colony Being Established At London - Others To Be Built In This Section

According to the latest information from the Forestry Department, Rowan County is to be included in the plans for a Sublimity Forest Community. The following article explains the plan, and should be of particular interest to many citizens of Rowan County.

Mr. R. F. Hemmingway, of Winchester, Kentucky Supervisor of the Cumberland National Forest, announces that the Sublimity Forest Community, a co-operative project between the Resettlement Administration and the U. S. Forest Service is now being prepared for occupancy and that applications from qualified citizens will be received by E. E. Nausberger, Sublimity District Ranger, London, Ky. until the desired number of qualified residents are secured.

This community is located about two miles southwest of London, in Laurel County, and consists of 66 small farms ranging from three to fifteen acres in area upon which houses within the necessary outbuildings are being constructed.

Since February 13, 1937 applications have been restricted to a comparatively small area within the Cumberland National Forest. Now, in accordance with previous plans, the area from which applications will be received will be extended, effective May 5, 1937, to include that portion of all the counties lying within the Cumberland National Forest boundary.

Families desiring to make application for a Sublimity Home must be citizens of the United States and married couples living together, preferably with dependent child.

News Offers New Serial Next Week

"Leashed Guns" To Appear As Serial In Coming Issues Of News

The Rowan County News has made arrangements for the publication of a brand new serial story to begin in the next issue of The News. Serial stories have been a feature of The News for several years and this year has tried to bring you the best of its kind.

The last serial which ends in this issue, was one with local color, the scene laid in Eastern Kentucky, and written by a former student of Morehead State Teachers College, Harlan Hatcher. It has drawn considerable amount of praise and comment from our readers.

The new serial which begins in the next issue is entitled "Leashed Guns," by Perry Westbrook, and is a story of the West in the days when lawlessness abounded. It is a gripping story from the very beginning and one which will hold the readers breathless awaiting further installments. We hope every reader of The News starts with the beginning and continues through to the end of this great serial story.

E. V. Hollis To Return

It is always pleasant to learn that our friends are making their way successfully, and we are consequently glad to pass the information contained on a postal card received from Dr. E. V. Hollis, former head of the department at the Morehead State Teachers College.

Dr. Hollis has been for the past two years attending Columbia University in New York City. He was head of the department at Education here for a number of years and did much to further the growth of the institution and the department with which he was connected.

The card follows.

Dear Jack and Grace:

Thanks for "the kind words" of some weeks ago in The News. The Hollis' plan to be back in Morehead June 4th. The family will stay

Morehead 2nd In Track Meet

With Skeleton Squad Eagles Grab Off Second Place In Four School Meet

The Morehead State Teacher College Eagles did themselves proud at the track meet held at Berea on Monday of this week, when, with only a skeleton team, they placed second among the four entrants, only Berea, the host team heading them. Morehead had entries in only six events, but won first and second in all of them. Anderson, Morehead speed merchant in the dashes led the small Eagles squad with two firsts, winning the 100 yard dash and the 220 yard dash.

This is Morehead's first attempt to cop in track and field, being the first year the school has entered the lists in this field. Heretofore the Eagles have confined their efforts to football, basketball and baseball. In the meet Monday Berea took first ranking, Morehead with a skeleton squad took second, Eastern, third, and Western fourth.

Custer Reynolds took a second place in the shot put, losing by the proverbial hair. Actually the

Dick Ramey Home Destroyed By Fire

The home of Dick Ramey on Warix Run was completely destroyed by a fire a week ago. The fire presumably originated from a defective flue. The house and all its contents were destroyed.

"Uncle" Dick is one of the many in Rowan county who is receiving Old Age Assistance from the state and federal government. In a month he has been taking up a benefit collection to replace the necessary furniture and equipment to start in housekeeping again.

Senior Play Presented

Playing to the largest audience that has ever witnessed a senior play at the Morehead High School, the senior class presented their annual play, "He's My Pal." The play under the direction of Miss Grace Crosthwaite, senior class sponsor, was well coached and well presented, and the audience thoroughly enjoyed seeing and hearing the youngsters perform.

Members of the cast showed the effects of successful and sound coaching. They were natural in their parts, which is an art in itself.

Briefly reviewing the members of the cast:

Clayton Turner as Wally, the hero and Elva Barker, as Roger Gail, his pal, proved themselves to be young Valentines, the great lovers and friends. It was more or less of a Damon and Pythias affair, in which the hero owed his life to his pal and who after the usual struggle with himself decided to sacrifice his love for Lark Marie Summers, played by Ruth Porter, only to find that it was not such a great sacrifice after all. He found the all-healing balm for his affections in the love of the ugly-duckling who turned out to be a swan, Mona Sparks, played by Corriette Bradley.

The proper amount of comedy was introduced to relieve the melodrama, by the cook at the boarding house run by Ma Averill, a part aptly portrayed by Lucille Honaker, and by Calvin McCoy, Arthur Hogge, inspected, and how, by his wife, Della Crager, Ma Averill, herself, a motherly soul who spread comfort to all, was touchingly played by Southern Hutter.

The audience was practically unanimous in saying that it was the best senior play to be presented in many years.

Kelley Nickell Is Improving From Injury

Was Injured In Auto Wreck Two Weeks Ago. Lung Punctured.

Kelley Nickell, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Nickell of Winchester is recovering nicely from injuries sustained in an automobile wreck on Saturday, May 1. The young man had been on a hike with a number of Boy Scouts from Winchester and was hitch-hiking back home with one of the smaller boys. He had caught a ride with a driver from the city who had taken some passengers to the country and was returning home empty.

As the taxi came over a rise of a hill, they struck a large car, which was turning into the winner's golf course. The taxi was completely demolished, the driver and the small boy escaped unhurt, but Kelly was seriously injured, suffering a broken arm, and having a hole driven into his lung.

Portraits Are Hung Thursday

Speeches By J. Dan Talbot Aand E. Hoze Feature Services Rendered College

A special chapel was called Thursday for the purpose of unveiling the portraits of President Frank C. Button and Judge Allie W. Young.

The speakers were Hon. E. Hogge, an intimate acquaintance of President Button's and J. Dan Talbot, State Commissioner of Finance, and a life-long friend of Allie Young.

Mr. Hogge spoke of his first acquaintance with President Button, and referred to him as "Brother Button."

"In 1887, when Frank C. Button stepped off the train in Morehead he was greeted by unrest and feudality. At that time there were no paved streets or lights, but he had a lantern of purpose behind him. He came as a peacemaker! To know him you could only have loved him. I think the Divine Providence provided us with that man."

Talbot's speech was shorter, but none the less forcible. He expressed the hope that his speech might cause someone to attempt to equal Allie W. Young in accomplishments.

He said, "Words said about a man who has passed away fall flat. No man can take the place of Allie W. Young for Dan Talbot."

Election Of Teachers To Be Held This Month

Board Is Waiting For Decision From Court Of Appeals In Regard To Candidates

The Rowan County Board of Education is still awaiting an opinion from the office of the Attorney General, according to County Superintendent Roy E. Corrette, before electing teachers for the ensuing year. The board asked the Attorney General for an opinion as to whether I. E. Peirley who recently announced Roy E. Corrette as a candidate for the office of County Judge could under the law continue to hold his office as a member of the County Board of Education. Pending the receipt of the opinion, the board has postponed the election of teachers for the coming year.

They expect, however to have the opinion within a few days, and to hold the election sometime during the present month. If the announcement of Mr. Peirley's candidacy automatically removes him from office, a new board member will be appointed in his place by the board of education.

May Program Held

The May Day program at the Morehead Public School, which the first five grades and their teachers participated, was postponed from Tuesday of last week, due to the bad weather, until Friday afternoon, when the program was held in the public school gymnasium.

The room was beautifully decorated in spring flowers. Miss Margaret Sue Corrette was chosen queen of the May, and a very dignified queen she made. Bill Batson was elected king for the occasion. The royal pair were extremely imposing as they led the grand march around the gym before taking their places on the throne set up on the stage of the auditorium.

The program was arranged was one that appealed most to the visitors, including songs and dances and featured by the winding of the May Poles by the members of the different classes.

In spite of the weather the program was one of the most delightful that has been held by the local school and the teachers participating. Mrs. Nell Tolliver, Mrs. Wynona Jennings, Miss Nell Cassidy, Miss Alicea Wain and Mrs. Beulah Williams are to be congratulated in the successful efforts.

THREE-DIMENSION LIVING

Three-Dimension living consists of living in the past, the present and the future all at the same time.

The past is a store house of inspiration, experience and tender memories. Sift out the good from the past and let it help you find happiness today. Unreeling your book of joyful memories will bring peace and contentment into your life. Following the guide posts of past mistakes will enable you to steer clear of the rocks today.

Live today. Grasp the present moment and squeeze out of it all the joy and inspiration and power in it. Make your life count today. Do good work today.

Protect yourself into the future. Dream dreams. Make plans and lay foundations under them with hard work. Plan a bigger, broader, more worthwhile life. Reach beyond today.

THE CORONATION

It is quite natural that Americans, whatever their racial descent, should take a peculiar interest in British affairs. For one reason, the lands which became the United States of America were colonies of the British crown, and our laws, customs and habits of thought and speech derive directly from England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales. For another reason, the government of Great Britain has become, somewhat through the influence of our own successful experience in self-government, the only democracy in the world which compares with ours in the liberty of thoughts, speech and action which every citizen enjoys.

The coronation of George VI, however, has not aroused the enthusiastic public interest in America that would have been shown if the man crowned on May 12 as King of Great Britain, Emperor of India and of the Dominions Beyond the Seas, had been his older brother, now Duke of Windsor, who sat for a year, though uncrowned, on the throne which he gave up for love of an American woman. That his intention to marry Mrs. Simpson was seized upon as the excuse for the political intrigues who forced Edward VIII's abdication does not alter the fact that it made him a glamorous and romantic figure and added to the warmth of American feeling for him. We Americans knew Edward VIII. He had been our guest twice, and charmed everyone who met him. We might feel the same way about George VI if we knew him as well as most Americans feel that they know his brother. But the fact is that there is no such enthusiastic interest in this coronation as there might have been.

This is not the first time brother has succeeded brother on the British throne. William II and Henry I were brothers, sons of William the Conqueror. Richard I and King John were both sons of Henry II. Edward IV and Richard III were brothers. Queen Mary and her sister Elizabeth, both daughters of Henry VIII, reigned as sovereigns. King Charles II and King James II were sons of Charles I. The English people cut off Charles I's head and deposed James II. And George III and uncles of Queen Victoria.

We think it not un-American to join in the ancient prayer: God save the King!

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Kaese, Pastor of Baptist Church. Written each week by Rev. B. H.

(Note: The writer of these articles regrets an unavoidable absence for the last two weeks. These occasional absences in the very nature of our work are necessary. Subject: Promoting Peace. Genesis 26: 12-25.

Golden Text: "Blessed are the peacemakers for they shall be called the children of God." Matt. 5: 9.

The story of this lesson should be read in Genesis 21 to 28, inclusive, in order to get the full significance of the part acted. Isaac is at Gerar, the place where he was born the son of Abraham and Sarah. Here his father had dug many good wells, and here the land was good for producing grain and grass. It was fitted for herding the industry which made men rich in these days. Isaac unstopped these wells which the Philistines had filled up during a desert war. Isaac "Waxed great, and went forward, and grew until he became very great for he had possession of flocks, and possession of herds, and great store of servants." The herdsmen of Gerar began to strife with Isaac over these unstopped wells, claiming them as their own. While they would not help restore them, they wanted to claim them after a progressive man had done so.

In view of the fact that the background of all this was a famine, the contention grew very serious and might have caused war, had not Isaac been willing to give in for the sake of peace, surrendering his rightful claim to the selfish claim of the local herdsmen. Another well was discovered and the Philistines laid claim to it. Isaac again gave in, and moved to another place. Isaac found a third well over which was no contention. After this he went up to Beersheker, and there the "Lord appeared unto him." This was the reward of the peacemaker. Isaac's action is here set forth as the "spirit of peace. We cannot agree with many of the lesson writers that this will bring a permanent peace in this war-torn world of ours today. This attitude among nations would be far better than the attitude of conquest which tears at the heartstrings of peace today. If all nations would take the same unoffensive attitude, willing to give in where contention is evident, the plan would be effective to world peace. But it is not to be expected that nations, such as are threatening world peace today, who have greed and national ambition, conquest of world possessions as their aim, should withhold that greed in the interest of world peace. They will take advantage of the peace-loving attitude of other nations who try to promote peace. There lies at the heart of man a selfishness which can be overcome only by the individual salvation of God, where in the Spirit of God comes in to dominate the spirit of self. Until the majority of the world's citizenship has had that experience in each individual heart, nations will remain selfish.

To bring this heart-changing experience is the work of God, through Christian people. It would be far better for us to spend our money and efforts in this direction than to spend the millions we do on peace pacts, parleys, and the innumerable governmental efforts at peace which are so costly to us as the "spirit of peace. # Patterns of Wolfpen

By Merlan Hatcher
Copyright by the Bobbs-Merrill Co. W.V.U. Service

Abral had gone before daybreak into the great world at Last. Jasper had taken one of the plow mules to Popular Bottoms to turn the ground. Jesse was getting ready the Finemare and the mules for the journey to the river and the boat. Jane and Lucy had the breakfast prepared.

"I'm not used to having someone wait on me like this Cynthia said.

You are starting on a wedding journey. That only happens about once Jane said.

While Jesse and Reuben were strapping the small trunk and the new telescope on the pack-mule, Cynthia made a last visit about the house. She went through each room. She took down the Boone powder horn and Sparrel's pioneer clothing and looked at them. She went into the medicine room to smell the herbs her father had left there. She charged Jane to watch over the things her father had left in the desk by the mantel. She went into the weaving room for the last time and sat by the loom, feeling the tears form. Lifting her hands a ball of yarn, the last one Julia had dyed it isn't so easy to leave everything. Maybe Jane will learn to use it. She takes hold of things. But it isn't easy. Then she took the two volumes of the history worn yellow by Sparrel's thumbs through, and the years he read to her, and a few packets of the flower-seeds Sparrel had gathered from Julia's garden, and packed them to carry away with her.

She heard through her tears the voice of Reuben speaking to Jesse and there was laughter in it. She thought of the cottage in the orchard above the river. The cherry trees would be in bloom when they got there. That would be her place, as Wolfpen had been Julia's and now was Jane's it isn't so hard to leave everything going with Reuben.

Jesse rode away with them. Jane stood at the kitchen door, as Julia used to do when Sparrel was riding over to town. She waved to Cynthia, and Reuben lifted his hat, returning the farewell. Lucy and Jenny and their children were in the yard. They found Jasper at work Popular Bottom and bade him goodbye there. Take care of yourself and come up and see us now before long.

They took the more difficult trail around Cranestem because Cynthia did not want to pass the spot where her father was struck down. At the top of the mountain they stopped to look down for the last time into Wolfpen. The mill was silent and the pond was dark with the shadow of the hill behind it. The shelf of graves was hidden by Cranestem. The house and orchard were far away, tiny and quiet. Under them Popular Bottom looked to be standing on edge Jasper was plowing, the old iron plow blade flashing in the sun when he turned at the end of the row. He strode the furrows like his father, only it was not Sparrel. He called to Sparrel's mule in the cadence of Sparrel's voice; it lay poised in the hollow like a thin fog and then floated up to Cynthia's ears on the mountain-top. It was only an echo of Sparrel's call.

It was a moment of sentiment for Cynthia, and of vision. She turned earth lay brown and naked to the sun, fertile and ripe for seed. Death was now no more. Death was gone with the winter snow, buried in the earth to be reborn. Perhaps Sparrel lay with content by Saul and Barton and Tivis above his fields and those of his fathers, seeing Jas per in the long furrows. Perhaps Julia rests in peace by Sparrel's side seeing Jane raking seed into her garden, knowing the secret, swelling that would plump the new wife's womb before the roasting ears were ripe. Death had come to Wolfpen suddenly, violently. Then reserved and silent once more, it had withdrawn into the dark places of the earth beyond the sight of men, yielding place for another season to the urgency and assertion of life under the sweet ache and thrust of the sun, and the moist nurture of the rain.

They rode on through the forest around the Cranestem Ridge. Reuben, Cynthia, the pack-mule, Jesse in file. The sun shone on the budding trees. At the end of the ridge where the trail began to drop into the big Sandy Valley, Cynthia stopped to look back. The top of the Pinnacle was just visible from this point, when the trees were not in leaf. It was taking the sun on its yellow edge, enduring above the desolation in Dry Creek like the nobility in the human soul outstanding in the schemes and exploitations of little and selfish men.

Cynthia turned from it to the road ahead. Stretched below her was the timeless circling of the river through the valley toward the sea. I reckon this is good-by to Wolfpen, she said, patting the neck of the Finemare and looking at Reuben.

And welcome to an orchard at the other end of the river, Reuben smiled at her.

And don't miss your boat, you two, Jesse said.

(THE END)

Social Security Report

A total of 2,711,708 employers of one or more persons in steel auto, automobiles, textiles, electrical and mechanical appliances, lumber and woodwork, food processing, building supplies, and other industrial and commercial groups, whose employees will benefit under the Federal Old-Age Benefits provisions of the Social Security Act, have reported to the Social Security Board since November 16, 1936, that their employment rolls number 26,696,173 earners.

These figures and also the number of employers by states are as of April 17 and were made public by the Board with a State breakdown of the same date of the 26,610,456 employees who have filed applications for social security account numbers and for whom social security accounts are being set up for their participation in the Old-Age Benefits program.

A few employers, such as agricultural labor, domestic service in a private home, casual labor not in the course of the employer's business, and several others, are not now covered in this program. Workers who are not in covered employment may become covered as they transfer to work in industry or commerce, whether full-time, part-time or on a temporary basis.

As to the difference of $5,671, in the number of wage earners who have filed applications and the number of workers the employers have reported on their rolls, the Board stated that applications are still being filed with local postmasters and that its Bureau of Federal Old-Age Benefits is receiving applications from post offices at the rate of approximately 40,000 daily. The Board estimates that ultimately there will be active records set up for 40,000,000 workers.

To qualify for a monthly benefit a wage earner must be at least 65 years old, his total wages from covered employment after 1936 and before age 65 must be $2,000 or more and he must have received wages after 1936 in covered employment for work on at least 1 day in each of 5 calendar years before reaching age 65. Only wages up to $3,000 a year from any one employer are counted as total wages. Monthly benefits are not payable until 1942. Meantime, the Social Security Board's regional and field offices are now prepared to assist workers who have reached age 65 to file their claims for lump-sum payments which are payable now to those who qualify. These payments amount to 3 1/2 percent of the total wages received in covered employment after 1936.

Hundreds of such claims ranging from a few dollars to $105, have already been filed with the Board. The Bureau of Federal Old-Age Benefits estimates that approximately 323,684 persons or their estates will be eligible in 1937 for lump-sum or death payments. Claims will be filed during this year either by workers who have reached age 65 or by the families of workers who die during the year.

On April 17, 2,711,708 employers had filed for identification numbers and 26,696,173 employees had filed for account numbers.

Of these numbers 29,995 Kentucky employers had filed and 320,955 Kentucky employees.

Use of the much maligned word "ain't" is not necessarily illiterate; historically, at least, it is often merely colloquial like "shan't", in terms Prof. Harold H. Bender of Princeton University's department of oriental languages and literature.

What is the "Low-price Field"?

YOU hear a lot about "the low-price field" these days. A good many cars claim to be in it. So whenever the low-price field is mentioned, remember:

Until Ford came, no average American could own a car.

Today all Ford prices are still low — with the prices of the 60-horsepower Ford V-8 $30 to $60 lower than those of any other car of comparable size.

But with Ford, "low price" doesn't merely mean low figures on the price tag. It means much more than that. It means low prices and low costs all the car's long life. Low prices for service — for parts — and, above all, for operation.

Both Ford V-8 engine sizes are economical to operate. The 85 horsepower gives greater gasoline mileage this year than ever, and the "60" delivers the highest mileage in Ford history.

Private owners, cab companies, fleet operators all report that the "60" averages from 22 to 27 miles per gallon of gasoline.

Check and see how much Ford saves you.

Carrol And Power Teamed

The chief pitfall of character portrayed for the screen is a tandandy of most actors to allow their full burden of the interpretation, according to Sir Guy Standing featured in the Twentieth Century-Fox screen triumph, "Loyds of London, at the Cozy Theatre Friday and Saturday.

Portraying the security fixer, old John Julius Anger, the actor whose role Loyds emerged as an important international organization. Sir Guy, veteran British actor, promised to describe details of his perfect makeup, and to point out the temptation to overdo stage parts with an overabundance of gray hairs and pointed whiskers.

Makeup is only half of it he explained. "The real job is to get it there are other characteristics. There is no makeup can imitate. An old man talks with some difficulty due to shortness of breath which has a tendency to wheeze. The job is to simulate this without obvious affections. At seventy-five one moves around with a little more difficulty. The joints are stiffer, and the body decidedly lacks springiness.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Little of Lexington visited at the D. B. Caudill home over the week-end.
