A LITTLE BOY WAS REFUSING to eat chicken at Easter Sunday dinner. His daddy decided to quit coaxing him and began to ignore the offspring. After a bit, the boy looked up at him and said, "Daddy, give me some chicken with a handle on it."

SEEN THIS WEEK - YOUNG girl shouting on sidewalk after falling with roller skates. Rumor of spouting Saturday night which turned out to be false. Woman getting little black dog and threatening to name it after this reporter although she said my name was too long to hang on even a dog's name. Woman last Thursday in restaurant asking friend if college instructor who had just walked in was high school "kid" who won money at theatre the night before. Window dresser admitted own product. Dog killed by out-of-control car. College street home owner repairing lawn where cow coming up ditches (council please notice).

MORE THAN 2,100 PERSONS died in Kentucky last year of cancer. Many of these died needlessly.

THIS WEEK WE LOOK INTO the screw-ball and see the following birthdays on our Birthday Calendar: Ellen Hudgins, Friday; Chester Hogg, Monday; Haddenman; Claude Evans, Farmers; Tuesday; Lenora Brumbaugh Taylor, Wednesday.

NEITHER EARL MAY, FISH and Game writer, nor Doc Ellington, the sportsman are the liars they appear to be. That twelve-pound muskie Doc is reported to have caught, according to May's column on page seven, was a four-pound muskie. It was my fish story, I mean, error.

The Floyd County Times has a recipe for the following "recipe for murder" on one Floyd countyman between the ages of 40 and 50.

Thoroughly saturate with from one to four pints of Whisky (amount depending upon absorption ability) of salicylic acid. Place in wayside honky-tonk at midnight with several disreputable men and women.

Call the sheriff. Precautionary warning: Handle Floyd countyman with extreme care and keep away from heat, as subject has low boiling point. If this recipe does not produce one or two corpses by daylight, you'll have to wait until the next election.

Fortunately Rowan county needs no such recipes.

E. W. MARTY, CLEARFIELD has extended his congratulations to Woody, Honaker the Second of Morehead for his prophecy in the last issue on the weather and the coming of spring as betokened by the change of Marty's footwear. Marty says that with a little practice Woody will soon be known as Honaker the First.

CRACKERBARREL COMMENTS by Woody Hixson
Ah, me! It sure is tough to be getting old. Only a few years ago I was extending my congratulations to Woody, Honaker the Second of Morehead for his prophecy in the last issue on the weather and the coming of spring as betokened by the change of Marty's footwear. Marty says that with a little practice Woody will soon be known as Honaker the First.

Well, I suppose I am a man now and I have to wear my shoes the year around, but I still like this time of the year. I am hungry for a good meal in the spring house that would produce me lie down in the shade and watch someone hoe in the garden.

I love fresh vegetables, but I can't eat them like tomatoes for color of them. I like tomatoes for Spring Is Here!

At least it was here when we wrote this editorial. If it is snowing when you read these lines, remember that only a variety of the weather and snowflakes will soon pass away.

We started out to say that this is "clean-up and fix-up time." A city which keeps its back alleys, side-walks, yards and homes attractive is a city to enjoy living in. That means work for all of us.

Some persons have already discovered that cleaning up the back yard, getting rid of old man winter's accumulations, is not a thing to be approached under the heading of work. But it can be a hobby, or something else, even a thrilling pleasure.

Spring cleaning gets one out in the open to breathe fresh air. It's food for the mind, the soul and the body of the individual, even if he does nothing more than lean on the rake while some younger and more active person gets the blisters.

It gives one an opportunity to realize your neighbor in a friendly way and to realize the good fortune that attends you, because while residents of European countries are digging to make place for bomb proof shelters and trying on gas masks, you are digging to plant seeds and to uncover your perennials, and the odor of fresh earth, dank leaves, burning rubbish is one against which you need no gas masks.

Let's welcome spring in a big way.

If You Give Or If You Don't Give

Next week a Morehead resident will ask you for a donation to the American Society for the Control of Cancer. If you give, God bless you, and may the devil miss you. This money will go to carry on an educational campaign.

If you refuse, do not blame the medical profession when someone near to you becomes afflicted with cancer and they are unable to effect a cure.

Scouts Make Valuable Future Citizens

The American Legion has organized an active Boy Scout Troop in which a large number of boys are enthusiastically interested.

Any man who has once been a scout will acknowledge the wholesome influence which Scouting has exerted on his actions. The boys are taught high ideals, practical ways of living, proper attitudes toward their friends and unselfish service day by day. Scouts received national recognition during the Ohio flood for their helpful and heroic acts, proving that a scout is not milk and water and all pink tees.

Scouting is good for father and son, and for mother, too, who is relieved for a short time of the responsibility of a harum-scarum bundle of energy.

Save Wildlife On The Highways

In the early days of Kentucky, the wildlife population, which was subject to diseases and the depredations of predators, managed to maintain its numbers. At this period in the history of our State, the inroads of cultivation had not been made. The natural habitats, areas of cover, and good plants and trees present in such numbers that birds and other wild animals were not destroyed through failure to adjust themselves to changing conditions. Natural cover was available everywhere.

Today, however, we find that suitable habitats have become limited, and many species, through their inability to cope with ever increasing changes in environment, have become greatly reduced in number.

The highways of Kentucky have effectively encroached the state, even into the remote sections, and while no one would object to the benefits derived from good roads, it is very evident that good roads and automobiles have made more difficult the job of preserving and increasing benefits of wildlife resources. Before the days of automobiles our hunting trips were confined to the towns or counties in which we lived. Now, our hunting grounds embrace the whole state, and it was this condition which brought about the need for and passage of the state-wide, uniform game laws. The day of effectively administering wildlife resources by local governmental units ceased to exist with, the coming of the automobile.

Automobiles reduce wildlife population in another way. The amount of traffic over our main arteries of travel is enormous. In addition to the regular drain which occurs on wildlife populations during the hunting season, there is a year around open season on our highways—fall, winter spring and summer, quail and other birds, rabbits, squirrels and other fur-bearing animals, all must cross highways. There is no accurate estimate of the casualties.

All thinking motorists who wish to avoid bent fenders, broken windshields, and possible personal injury will avoid hitting the wild creatures. The true conservationist, wishing to protect our wildlife given every chance to increase during the closed season and, particularly, the nesting period, will studiously prevent the needless destruction of wildlife that takes place on our highways every day.

A good conservationist will check the speed of his car to prevent hitting wild animals the same as he would to prevent hitting domestic livestock.

All sportsmen and motorists are urged by the Division of Game and Fish to cooperate in the protection of wildlife on our highways. Remember that for every bird or animal that is spared on the highway, it will mean several more in the fields and forests when the hunting season opens.

We Pat On The Back

We pat on the back this week the WPA Recreation Project leaders for sponsoring the Easter Egg hunt Saturday for Morehead youngsters, Morehead State Teachers College for attaining their second highest enrollment in its history and the Cancer Committee for their work in the cancer campaign.

Young Folks Need Help

To the young folks coming on Finding a job may be hard to do, but you can create a small job of your own, by raising a little crop, raising a pig, a lamb or a calf to graze and to feed your crop to; have a flock of chickens, ducks or geese. Raise something to sell that you see shipped in here. Try to do what you do the very best possible way. Older people like to encourage young people trying to get a start in life.

Many of the largest business men had a small beginning the old legend, while there is a will there is a way.—Clay City Times.

Southern Economic Conditions—Section 12—Credit

If the high cost of credit has hampered southern industry, its effect on farming might be illustrated by the remark of Louis XIV: "Credit supports agriculture, as the rope supports the hanged." Almost the only sources of credit for small farmers—aside from Federal agencies—are (1) local banks, (2) landlords, and (3) merchants and dealers.

The banks cannot meet all credit demands, because whatever scant deposits they may have are largest in the fall and winter, after harvest, and smallest in the spring and summer, when the need for farm financing is greatest.

As a result, the majority of southern tenant farmers must depend for credit on their landlords or the "furnish merchant" who supplies seed, food, and fertilizer. Their advances, in effect, have replaced currency as a considerable part of the rural population. For security the landlord or merchant takes a lien on the entire crop, which is to be turned over to him immediately after harvest in settlements in kind. Usually he keeps the lien and fixes the interest rate. Even if he is fair and does not charge excessive interest, the tenants often find themselves indebted at the end of the year. This is not necessarily a reflection on the planter-merchant, very often he must exploit them in order that he himself may survive.

The credit difficulties of the landlord are only a little less oppressive than those of his tenants. Because he ordinarily stakes everything on a single cash crop—cotton or tobacco which is subject to wildly fluctuating markets—the landowner is a poor credit risk. Consequently he often must pay interest rates as high as 20 percent, making the rates for tenants still considerably higher.

Attempts to find a remedy through credit unions have met with slight success, although such organizations are spreading. On January 1, 1938, there were 564 Federal credit unions in the South, with 30,550 members and assets totaling $2,851,500. The unions are not evenly distributed throughout the region, since Texas alone had 167 while Kentucky had only 4.

Some of the South's credit difficulties have been slightly relieved in recent years by the extension of credit from Federal agencies, to the business man by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, to the farmer by the Farm Security and Farm Credit Administrations, to municipalities by the Federal Works Administration. Many other agencies, ranging from the Works Progress Administration to the Soil Conservation Service, have brought desperately needed funds into the South.

The fact remains, however, that the South has as yet been unable to build up an adequate supply of credit, the basis of the present-day economic system.

Why the well-dressed man is told he needs 18 suits we never knew. They couldn't put five across in contract bridge.

PAUL ESTABLISHES CHURCHES

LESSON TEXT — Acts 14:1-7, 19-20

GOLDEN TEXT — According to the grace of God which is given unto me, as a wise master-builder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon.—I Corinthians 3:10.

"Onward, Christian soldiers," says the well-known hymn, thus expressing the truth that Christianity is engaged in a relentless warfare against the world, the flesh, and the devil. Those who conceive of their relationship to the church as a convenient and comfortable social arrangement, with a bit of spiritual flavor but no responsibility, have none of the Spirit of Christ or of His bondservant Paul, whose life we are now studying. Phillips Brooks was right when he said, "If Christian faith does not culminate in the effort to make Christ known to all the world, that faith appears to me to be a thoroughly unreal and insignificant thing, destitute of power, and incapable of being convincingly proved to be true."

The constraining love of Christ Paul and his co-workers pressing on from Cyprus through Asia to Iconium, to Lystra, and to Derbe. Joy and sorrow, fellowship and hatred came and went but the witness for Christ went on. Our lesson can best be considered as a study in contrasts.

"Multitudes both of the Jews and... Greeks believed." What joy that must have brought to the preacher. "Unbelieving Jews" and Gentiles with "minds evil affected"—how sad such a result made Paul's heart. The same every great teacher. There are only two kinds of people in the world, the believer and the unbeliever.

II. Popularity and Persecution (v. 1).

"The multitude was divided," Paul knew all about that, so does every faithful teacher and preacher of the gospel. Paul and Barnabas were thus made ready for the experience which they were to have at Lystra when the healing of the crippled man first brought them worship as gods, and then bitter persecution. Few teachers are more appealing to the Christian worker than popularity, and possibly none is more treacherous. Let us labor to please God, not men, and when men give us false acclaim let us like Paul urge them to "turn from these vanities to the living God."

III. Boldness and Caution (v. 3, 5, 6).

The persecution at Iconium only made the messengers bolder in their purpose to stay on (v. 3), giving testimony to God's grace. The Christian worker need not be afraid of the devices of evil men so long as God leads him to stand his ground. Christian testimony calls for courage! But wait, in verses 5 and 6 we find the preachers fleeing to another city. Is their courage gone? No. They are exercising God-given judgment and caution. "Sometimes it is needful to flee away for life for Jesus; but if it can be preserved without shrinking duty it is better to flee than to die."

A voluntary martyr is a suicide before he is raised by God from the dead. Be that as it may, God miraculously brought the dead or apparently dead man to full life and his being left for dead. Some of the city of Derbe. Those of you who belong to Christ and serve Him should recognize that our very lives are in His blessed hand. Our purpose should be to glorify Him, whether by life or by death.

Death and Life (vv. 19, 20). The persecution at Lystra culminated in the stoning of Paul and his being left for dead. Some believed that he really died and had the glorious experience recorded in II Corinthians 12:2-5 before he raised by God from the dead. Be that as it may, God miraculously brought the dead or apparently dead man to full life and his being left for dead. Some of the city of Derbe. Those of you who belong to Christ and serve Him should recognize that our very lives are in His blessed hand. Our purpose should be to glorify Him, whether by life or by death.

V. Advance and Return (vv. 21-23).

The work of God is not completed by the pioneering forward thrust into the strongholds of Satan. That work is necessary, and just now men are desperately needed to do such work in heathen lands. Women shame the men by their willingness to go where missionary boards can only send men, who are all too often lacking.

On the other hand, there is no more important work than that of confirming and establishing new Christians in their faith. Paul and Barnabas were not making a retreat. They were courageously returning to the stoning and the hatred of the cities they had served in order to give counsel and encouragement to the believers. Note that they ordained elders, evidently consummating some form of church organization. Sometimes one becomes so tired of intricate church machinery that the tendency to wish there were none at all, but here again we need to be balanced in our thinking and acting.

Farmers Advised To Buy High Quality Paints

In buying exterior house paints, Prof. J. B. Kelley of the agricultural engineering department of the Kentucky College of Agriculture suggests two things:

1. Buy a high quality prepared paint or else a lead and oil paint mixed by a competent painter.
2. Use the same kind of paint every year; for instance, do not use one kind one year, and the next a paint containing a different mixture as this may cause cracking, peeling and other bad results.

Spray Information For Fruit Growers

The establishment of a spray information service for fruit growers is announced by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington. Growers of apples, peaches, strawberries and other large and small fruits will be kept informed of the appearance of insects and diseases and told how they may be controlled. To help keep abreast with the coming of insects and diseases, the experimental station has established insectaries at Lexington, Princeton, Henderson, Louisville and Paducah, and observers will report the appearance of pests and diseases to W. D. Armstrong, horticulturist at the Western Kentucky Experiment Substation at Princeton. He in turn will prescribe the necessary sprays and difficult job for the amateur. Also, insecticides usually come in white only so that the user has to do the tinting himself. Not only is this hard, but if the first batch runs out it is almost impossible for the amateur to get exactly the same tint a second time.

As to thinners, Prof. Kelley says turpentine remains the best for home mixing. Water never should be used for thinning.

Prof. Kelley offers the reminder that paint companies sell cheap, inferior paints, and also high-quality products sold at a higher price. The user gets what he pays for, and it is economy in the long run to buy only high-quality paint.

OUT WITH RUBBISH

Into the rubbish heap at the first opportunity should go waste paper clippings saved long ago for a forgotten purpose, magazines, even dog-eared books and letters, suggest experts in home management at the Kentucky college of agriculture.

Houses and also people's minds can be cluttered by rubbish preserved sentimentally or carelessly from year to year. Everyone intends to use these things—but few ever do. After 10 years of work saving such things, moving them around, trying not to get them soiled, etc., it may be advisable to take a good look and then discard them. Books and magazines may be given to schools and other institutions.

FARMING IT BY WILLARD BOLTE

WASH IS THE HYBRID CORN? FERTILIZING CORN. THE MICHIGAN WAY.

There are two advantages in applying insecticide dust by airplane. The first is speed. The second is the fact that the "up-draft" of the passing plane whips the dust back up on the underside of the leaves. Airplanes can be used effectively on fields as small as two acres.

$20 An Acre Value On Winter Pasture

Crimson clover and Italian rye grass pasture was worth $20 an acre as cow feed this winter on the dairy farm of J. M. Neal in Graves county.

Sixteen acres were seeded to 10 pounds of crimson clover and 12 pounds of Italian rye grasses sown to the acre last September. The field had been in lespedeza. Two tons of limestone and 200 pounds of triple superphosphate to the acre were applied before the clover and grass were seeded.

An excellent stand of clover and rye grass was obtained and the growth was splendid throughout the winter, says W. H. Hoover, assistant farm agent in Graves county.

Mr. Neal owns 84 acres and rents 50 acres. He has terraced, limed and phosphated his entire farm in the past four years. In the same period he has developed a dairy herd of 24 cows from an average production of 222 pounds of butterfat in 1935 to 377 pounds in 1939.

Since 1930, 64 percent of the Rhodes Scholars have entered careers in public life.

produced 45 ears—none of them as good as the hybrid ears—and 11 nubbins. Note that the regular corn has gone down badly.

Kentuckiana

By Mrs. A. L. Wallen
So many people shudder, and turn Kentucky down, and turn because she bears the awful name, "The Dark and Bloody Ground."

They haven't had a second thought nor read their history well. To learn just why it bears this name, most anyone can tell.

It comes not from the feuds they've had, nor wrongs that they've done, but from the brave and daring pilgrim deeds. Then hail these pilgrims true!

Strong, brave, enduring pilgrims, the stormy ocean crossed, that they might worship God, the King; this freedom they had lost.

Then, giving thanks to God above, when landing on the shore, they knelt on what seemed Holy Land, and there did Him Adore.

The first few years of hardships made stronger men than they were.

They built, rude huts, the best they could; worked hard for food and shelter.

The Indians roved through all the woods and fished from every stream, but did not like the pale-faced man, who came up like a dream.

Peace pipes were smoked among them, they tried real hard we know, to live among the "Redskins." They loved this country so.

They heard "across the mountains" the soil was rich and deep. It needed cultivation, the pilgrims were to eat.

The deer ran most unheeded, no gun had them pursued. Until these brave and daring men crossed o'er in search of food.

The land was most inviting, all kinds of plants did grow, and flowers of different colors. The Redskins did ignore.

Primitive Hog Raising Methods Are Tabooed

Primitive hog raising methods are to be tabooed in Montgomery county if a program adopted by a group of progressive farmers this spring goes over, reports the county agent, Floyd McDaniel.

Such proven methods as self-feeding, feeding for quick gains, special pastures, practical sanitation, and above all satisfactory breeding, must become general, if farmers are to do better with hogs, says the county agent.

Fashion And Good Taste Not Always Same Says Expert

The thought that fashion and good taste do not always go together is expressed by Miss Frances Seeds, a clothing expert at the Kentucky College of Agriculture.

The woman who follows the fashion, she says, should remember that fashions were made for her, not her for the fashion.

Sales people are primarily interested in making sales, she reminds women. Therefore it may be wise to take their advice "with a grain of salt."

Outlines Program For Sheep Raisers

Feed Ewes And Lambs Well Until Grazing Is Profitable

1. Feed ewes and lambs well until grazing is profitable.
2. Standardize all lambs to be sold after June 1.
3. Drench ewes and lambs every six weeks, beginning June 1.
4. Sell before fall or breeding season all ewes that are old, have broken mouths or spoiled udders.
5. Replacement and new flocks to come from north-western type ewes.
6. Replace all grade, scrub and nondescript rams by purebreds of mutton type.
7. Sow early cover crops such as rye, wheat, barley or crimson clover for winter feed.
8. Feed grain to ewes at least six weeks before lambing time, to prevent pregnancy disease and to insure well-developed, strong lambs.
9. Prepare lambing quarters to prevent drafts on ewes at lambing, and keep quarters dry and well bedded.

Students receiving funds via the National Youth Administration must sign affidavits stating they are U. S. citizens.

Half-Acre Vegetable Plot Can Produce $100 Crop

By H. C. HAGGAN

There is an estimated 6,500,000 farms in the United States and the Census shows 79 percent of these maintain vegetable gardens. The value of the products grown on them is estimated at $350,000,000 or about $68 per farm. A half acre of ground properly cared for can be made to return $100 up at market value of crops. There are approximately 1400 farms in Rowan county and many of these will plant a garden. It is doubtful if many of these gardens are producing their maximum and returning to the family upkeep their maximum. Gardening should be looked upon as a 12 month job rather than a few summer months. Careful planning will double the vegetable supply on the average farm. The writer has had students draw a plan of a garden 100 X 100 feet and keep an accurate record of cost of production and quantity of vegetables produced. At the end of the season, the market value of vegetables produced from this plot was $185.95. The same can be duplicated on many farms in Rowan county if the same careful thought is applied.

VALUE OF THE FARM GARDEN

The desirability of including an abundance of vegetables in the diet is generally admitted. Vegetables are healthy. Their food value is determined not alone by their content of protein, carbohydrate, and fat. They add needed bulk to the diet and aid in the digestion of other foods. The mineral salts they contain are especially important. Vegetables are capable of furnishing plenty of iron, calcium, and phosphorus to supply the body's needs, and most important of all, they are reliable sources of the vitamins, which are now considered so essential to health of adults and to the normal growth of children.

Land is cheaper than labor so longer rowed gardens should be used to lessen the labor costs. In some available cost records on gardening it has been found that one-fourth acre can easily be used to produce $124 worth of vegetables and in doing this the farmer earned $1.79 for each hour he spent in the garden. Another garden of only one-eighth acre and an acre yielded a return of $47.28 and the farmer was paid $1.63 for each hour of labor expended.

Will other enterprises on the farm of Rowan county give such returns, even including tobacco? The most fertile spot on the farm should be the garden because, per square foot of land, no other crop gives as good a return.

WHAT TO CONSIDER IN THE GARDEN PLAN

Profitable gardening requires planning just the same as any other kind of profitable business. As stated previously, it should be a 12 month job rather than a few summer months. Lack of space will prevent much of a discussion of this topic but a brief outline will be presented.

(1) Size of family will determine size of garden. One-fourth acre properly planned will easily support a family of five and give vegetables to can.

(2) Consider the likes and dislikes of the family in the selection of vegetables.

(3) Location.
(a) Near the house.
(b) Near a tool-shed.
(c) Water supply—as the garden must be sprayed, etc.
(d) Fertility and drainage of soil.
(e) Keep out of frost pockets.

(4) Direction of row—a north to south row will get more sunshine than an East to West row.

(5) Succession of crops—that is—determine in advance what crop will follow another when it gives out.

(6) Proper distance of rows and distance apart in rows.
(7) Group plants systematically

—as annuals, biennials, perennials that occupy the ground the same length of time and take same distance of planting.

7. Whether you use a hot bed or cold frame in production of plants. These lessons are of production.

8. Select those varieties that produce the most of the highest quality. Varieties vary considerably in this respect. There is a best variety of beans or tomatoes for canning over those often raised early for the table.

9. Keep a record of each vegetable and variety group. This record should show date planted, the date the first crop was harvested, and how long it produced. This will show which varieties are giving the best return.

10. Kind of cultivation used, horse labor or hand labor. Use as much horse labor as possible, make the rows longer.

11. Study up each year on better methods of spraying, selection of better varieties. Some varieties of radishes do best in cool weather while others will do good in warmer weather. Radishes can be had in the fall as well as in the spring.

12. If you have garden from year to year, test these before planting. 13. Carefully check the fertilizer supply and the fertilizer needs of each variety of vegetables.

14. Keep tools in good repair. Rainy days can be devoted to this and not interfere with the garden work or other farm work.

The Kentucky Agricultural Experiment gives some good information on early gardening. Study this carefully.

Students Are Given Coveted Places In Elliottville Election

Awards Made To Most Beautiful, Handsome, Popular And On Citizenship

The Citizenship Club of the Elliottville High School held its regular meeting Friday afternoon, April 7. Officers for the next six weeks were elected. President, Ethel Clark, vice president, and Maudie Ward, secretary-treasurer.

Votes in the school election which was sponsored by the club were counted with the following results:

Most beautiful girl, Jean Mabry; most handsome boy, Paul McBrayer; most popular girl, Gene Barker; and most school athlete, Isolene Jones.

After business was care for a short talk was made by Ruby Stamper on the subject, "At School, Not at Work."

A pleasant ending to the program was furnished by the committee on refreshments.

HAVE EGG HUNT
All children of the Elliottville school, entered an egg hunt and Easter party Friday. Miss Lewis' room presented a play to the lower grade rooms in the morning and all joined in the egg hunt in the afternoon. Many "tummy aches" resulted from too many eggs but everyone had a good time.

Mr. Lewis Barker, father of Dorothy and Gracie Barker, died Monday morning. The students and teachers of the Elliottville school join in expressing their deepest sympathies to these girls at this time.

CHOOSE THE RIGHT JOB

By the Faculty Experts of the University of Louisville

ENGINEERING AS A PROFESSION
A southern business leader recently made this statement: "It will not be many years until we in the United States will depend more on the engineering profession than on any other vocation."

He went on to say that this age requires in its leaders a combination of technical skills, technical knowledge, broad culture, and social consciousness.

The enrollment of engineering students in technical schools and colleges, has increased at a rate greater than the financial ability of most schools to absorb them adequately. This naturally raises the question as to whether the national life can provide engineering jobs for the large number of graduates each year.

Of course, there is no definite answer to this query. The problem of engineering educators everywhere is not, "Is the profession being overcrowded?" but rather, "Can the engineering school provide a sufficiently broad general and technical education to meet the demands of the engineer?"

Again, it is impossible to answer the question adequately as those demands are so varied and change so in character from year to year that the schools are baffled as to how to arrange their curricula to fit the changing picture of our public life.

A generally accepted definition of professional engineering is the scientific utilization of the forces and materials of nature in the construction, production, and operation of works for the benefit of man, implies that these qualities of leadership should be the possession of professional engineers.

It is any wonder that engineering educators are concerned with the task of providing "a sufficient amount of general and technical education to meet the demands of the engineer?"

Our Train Ride

Grades one and two of the Farmers school rode on the train to Morehead Tuesday morning. There were twenty children in the group. Fourteen children had never been on a train. It was raining, but we enjoyed the trip so much that we did not mind that. After we got off the train we walked to the Training School.

Here we saw a model of Morehead which the second grade had made. They explained to us what they wanted to do in their class. Miss Neal read a story about a train. We listened carefully and learned many new things. We liked their room and appreciated their kindness.

Later we went on a sight seeing tour through the building. Finally we returned to town and ate our lunch. Then the school bus came by and took us back to Farmers. We had a good time and it was very interesting. We plan to study more about trains and gather material for our lessons.

CAPITOL COMMENTS

The State has, for the last three years, been carrying their own insurance on buildings up to $200,000. They charge the usual premium and put this into a fund that was started with an appropriation of $100,000. In that time they have had three fire losses of any importance—one at the penitentiary at Edlyville and two at the Greendale reformatory outside of Lexington. The losses, amounting to approximately $50,000, was paid out of the insurance fund and they now have a balance of $304,129.36. Subtracting the $100,000 appropriation they have saved the state $204,129.36 since June 30, 1936.

When the fund reaches $1,000,000, no more charges will be made for premiums; and that amount invested properly should bring in revenue enough to cover future losses, a swell thing for the state and the taxpayers.

Don't Put Up With A Poor Kitchen

AT THE WORK TABLE
Kitchens mean meal getting. So you must store staple groceries and perishable foods, and you need storage cabinets and a refrigerator for these. You must have a work table at hand, too. The closer together all these are, the better, as they will then make a compact working center for food preparation. Speaking of the work table, we are all agreed that where food is prepared we need room to spread it out, so the table should be 36 inches long—still better, 48 inches—and of a comfortable height, 36 inches if you are average height, 35 inches if you are short. Storage space above and below the work table will take care of staple groceries, of utensils, such as casseroles, pie and cake pans needed first at the work table and food preparation tools and dishes. The exact grouping depends upon your wall space. A chimney or other projection, for example, may require building useful shelves or cabinets around it.

AT THE SINK
Water, hot and cold, is essential in the cleaning and preparation of vegetables and fruits. So, to save steps, place the sink near the food-preparation center. In the small kitchen this is a simple matter. In the large kitchen it may merely mean moving the work table, storage cabinet and refrigerator nearer the sink, which is the most difficult thing to move. In other words, you are really arranging a smaller kitchen at one end of your large one. And while we are discussing the sink, let us remind you of a great convenience of a double-drain-board sink, or one with two compartments and a table or counter space on either side. This makes for system in dishwashing as the dishes may be piled ready to wash on the table or counter at one side; and after being washed they may be rinsed and drained at the other side.

If you have a one-drain-board sink that you are not ready to replace, why not put a shelf on the other side, or use a portable table. Avoid a low sink and you'll avoid a crick in the back. The sink should be 33 inches high unless you are unusually short.

Kentucky Congress Parents, Teachers To Meet May 1 & 2

Will Be Held In Covington; National Convention In Cincinnati

Mrs. C. A. Schroetter, Covington, Kentucky, President of the Kentucky Congress of Parents and Teachers, has issued the annual call to convention, and has asked the members of the Kentucky Congress to send accredited delegates and representatives met in Covington, May 1 and 2.

The Kentucky Congress membership is looking forward with keen anticipation to this particular convention because the National Congress of Parents and Teachers will hold its annual sessions at the Hotel Gibson in Cincinnati, Ohio, with headquarters at the Hotel Gibson in Cincinnati, Ohio, in the First Presbyterian church in Covington.

The Kentucky Congress has not arranged a program this year. The delegate body will register at the National Convention and attend its programs, since Kentucky has adopted the same theme as the nation, "Freedom for Growth." Mrs. J. K. Pettigill, national president, and the national program committee have arranged a program of unusual interest on the convention theme. The program will be based on the book "The Purposes of Education in American Democracy" published by the Educational Policies Commission and the theme will be developed with daily topics as follows: Monday, "Self Reliance"; Tuesday, "Human Relationships"; Wednesday, "Economic Effectiveness"; Thursday, "Civic Responsibility."

Related general sessions are to be held each morning and afternoon. At the morning session a guest speaker will present the topic of the day, which will be further considered at the afternoon session by a group of guest discussants and national chairmen.

Conferences on parent-teacher activities and procedures will be conducted by national committee chairmen each morning following the close of the general session. The Kentucky congress will entertain the delegate body of the national convention with a boat ride on the Ohio River, Tuesday afternoon, May 2. The "Island Queen" has been chartered and four thousand guests are expected to take the trip.

that 20,000 individuals and 3,000 corporations and 1,500 partnerships will file returns by April 15.

The law requires that all single persons having a net income of $1,000 or more or a gross income of 1,500 or more and married persons living with husband or wife having a net income of $2,500 or more or a gross income of $3,000 or more shall file returns, irrespective of whether or not tax is due.

Department of Revenue officials warned that income taxpayers failing to mail their returns to the department in envelopes postmarked before midnight, April 15, or failing to deliver their returns to the department before the deadline would be penalized as required by law.

RESUME

The Citizens of Clover City, a western desert town of the 80's are victimized by ruthless Jim Knox who is determined to secure land for his railroad. Knox buys out the newspapers editor and court judge so as to be unhampered when he burns out those citizens who will not sell to him. Maggie Adams, beautiful girl owner of the town restaurant and old Tom Logan, candidate for Governor, defy Knox. They warn him that Logan's son, Steve, is returning from the East to champion the people. Knox and three of his men, Mulligan, Gagan and Bumper, set out to burn out Logan. While Knox engages Logan in argument in his home Bumper sets that fuse to start the fire in the barns. He is surprised at his work by a masked stranger.

A terrific fight ensues and Bumper shoots the masked man. Despite his wound the stranger knocks out Bumper, then makes for the Logan house, where he is revealed as Steve Logan. To conceal his wound, Steve pretends to be drunk. Further, he apparently sides with Knox. This alienates his sweetheart, Maggie Adams. In need of medical attention for his wound Steve turns to the Mackerel, pianist in the local saloon, in an effort to defeat Knox's plans. After his recovery, Steve in order to win over Knox's laborers, and the Mackerel steal the newspaper press and kidnap Underwood, the editor.

Chapter Six

STING OF THE WASP
The main bunkhouse of Jim Knox's railroad was jammed with the laborers. Italians, Poles, Swedes, Germans, Irish and English, the brawny, unkempt mob crowded around the little cockney who held a newspaper press and in his trembling hands, "VOTE FOR THOMAS LOGAN AND HUMAN RIGHTS" he read in a loud voice.
"What that mean?" asked a huge Pole.

"Let a bloke read," the Cockney protested. "Ere's what the paper says: 'Betrayed by a corrupt and stive judge whose character would shame the lowest 'orse thief - Clover City lies stricken and destroyed under the greedy whip of Jim Knox. Are pub men with the torch of freedom in yer lands in a silk 'hatt'?"
"Sure and that's Jim Knox himself wid the silk 'hatt," roared an Irishman.
"Shut your fyce," ordered the Cockney and settled down to continue his reading. "Men of the law, tinned, the eye is open to youse to tyre your stand as the new breed of American or else allow yourselves to degenerate into the origin' and cowardly type of 'alf human hyena' exemplified by Christian Dane Mulligan."
"Half human hyena!" shouted another.

The men roared with laughter—but their shouts died in a sudden hush as Mulligan towered over them from the doorway. He jumped out and cracked the Cockney with a blow to the jaw that sent the man to the floor.
"If there's any more readers present," he said slowly, "I would like them to step forward."
No one moved.
"That bein' the case, will the rest of the students hand over their lessons?"

"You're wasn't to be in the 'drum of 'The Wasp'?"

The men stumbled forward and dropped the papers on the table near him.
"We no buy the paper," offered an Italian.
"We was in mine pants pocket," explained a German.
"Me auld woman found one in her shoe," said another.
"Mine was in me bed," assured a fourt.
Mulligan eyed them coldly. "If when me back is turned, I see any of you ugly bowwers so much as layin' the side of his eye to this paper again, I promise to crack his skull in the middle and screw. Am I understood?"
The men remained sullenly silent, Mulligan spat. "Shame on ye all!" he thundered. "Grown men, sittin' around readin' writ the saloons open. If I was to tell Mr. Knox youse would all be fired out of your jobs and left on the desert to rot. But not today. I'll not be takin' advantage of yer ignorance and disloyalty this day. He shoved a copy of the paper into his pocket. "I'm off to trail. His face cleared with relief as Maggie rode into sight. "Hello!" he called.

He turned on his heel and left. He reached the "Bugle" office to find it wild with disorder. Knox was somewhere in the hall and a posse crowded the place.
"I want every hill searched—every house," shouted Knox. "That moth-eaten, wessal-brain Underwood! Writing such stuff and signing himself 'The Wasp'." Mulligan pushed his way in as the men rushed out to do Knox's bidding. "I want to see the editor of this newspaper," he announced darkly.
"Oh, you would," Knox jeered. "Well, the editor has escaped—gone—fled—" Mulligan blinked hard. "Mr.

Knox. If you're concealin' this bowser from me, I promise you, backwards and forwards, you'll be sorry for it—"
"Concealin' him!" yelled Knox. "This man has attacked me and is out to overturn everything I'm doing—"
"Attacked you?" roared Mulligan. "And what did he call you but a tyrant in a silk hat. And an octopus. It's my name that's stickin' out like a poor creature with its throat cut. Me full name, With reference thereto as a hyena—"
"Listen Mulligan," interrupted Knox. "There are fifty men looking for 'The Wasp' with orders to hang him on sight."
"I'm prayin' for me whole soul that I see 'im first," roared Mulligan.

At this moment Steve and the Mackerel entered the "Bugle" office. The latter edged over to the desk and with a quick movement slipped something into his pocket, then darted for the door.
"Mr. Knox," said Steve blocking the sight of the fleeing Mackerel. "I want to offer my help. I was figuring if I kept my eyes open real sharp I might locate that newspaper press."
"Go to it," Knox replied.
"So yer wantin' to be in on the death of 'The Wasp, too, are you," asked Mulligan.

denly and untethered his horse. "Hie—!" he cried. "That's horse stealin'."
"You can do the rest of your 'wasp' hunting on foot today, Mr. Logan," she shouted as she rode off.
Galloping hooves sounded from the opposite direction. Steve ducked behind a large rock as Mulligan rode into view. At that moment the Mackerel emerged from the cave.
"What are you doing here?" roared Mulligan.
"Huntin' 'The Wasp," shouted the Mackerel, "only I think I heard him ride off down that hill—"
Mulligan stopped to listen and heard the echo of Maggie's horse down the mountain side. With a wild gesture he spurred his horse after her.

Steve crept from his hiding place and breathed a sigh of relief. The Mackerel closed his eyes and shuddered at their close call.
A sudden banging noise from the cave sent them both gyring inside.
Underwood, pale and defiant, the ropes with which he had been tied hanging from him, was pounding the press with a mallet. "The light that was hope died in Steve's face."
"It's done for," he said sadly. "Our little 'Bugle' has blown its first and last note."
"What will Steve do next? How will he keep Underwood hidden? Will Knox discover that Steve is 'The Wasp'?" Be sure to read next week's thrilling chapter.

By EARL C. MAY

Last week has been an active one for the Fish and Game club. With the break in the weather the State Department of Conservation shipped 175 mature Bob Whites for release by the local organization. Chairman Helwig, of the bird releasing committee, said that the birds were placed in localities where they should thrive and where sportsmen of this community would be allowed to hunt them. The Bob Whites were released in the same place. Practice for them to find a new home as the weather was clear and warm. All birds were released in pairs or in some cases two pair were released in the same place. Practically all farmers were very glad to cooperate with the club in finding suitable places to start the birds off.

Doctor Durrut put his boat in the North Fork of Triplet's last week and fished down for several miles but had no luck. He claimed the water was too cold—when he came back from Canada he said the fish up there liked cold water. It's funny how the water is too cold or too hot every time a yellow fails to catch anything. What Doc needs is a guide to go along and catch his fish, he probably had one in Canada to catch them for him. When he sees this well, I never saw him catch any and, although he did have a twenty-pound pike last summer (partly of which he gave to me) I am not sure where he got it—I mean caught it.

The report is that two nice muskies were caught last week in lower Triplet (the same creek Doc Garred fished in). These muskies were near the same size, one weighed 18 pounds and the other 20 pounds. This is a good time to try your luck on muskies. They are hitting the artificial bait for the men who know how and where to fish.

Dr. Ellington caught a 12 pound muskie Sunday.

IS THE LITTLE LADY LICENSED?

Kentucky's game wardens are not an unreasonable lot, so don't explode and hit the ceiling, or clouds, if one asks to see the fishing license of the little lady who's a companion on your angling outing. They're merely doing their duty.

Take along the wife or girlfriend for good company, but don't let 'em help you cast or hand in the big ones unless they have a license. A new Kentucky law requires women, and girls and boys sixteen years old or over, as well as a man, to be licensed.

A hunting license is needed by everyone operating within the state, even if he's a little five-year-old coot barely able to shoulder his popgun.

By the way, if you like to hunt and fish, who not obtain a copy of the state game and fish laws, you can be sure you're staying within the law? They can be had at the county clerk's office or from the state conservation department office at Frankfort.

NEW WAY TO WEIGH BASS

A Glasgow fisherman has informed all anglers that an easy way to weigh bass up to five pounds is as follows: Measure the length and girth, multiply them together and divide by 55. The figure reached will be within a few ounces of the actual weight. Try this sometime, but don't ask why divide by 55.

Put Brush In Field Corner Or Gully For Wildlife Cover

Game and Fish club throughout the state that are undertaking wildlife projects, as well as farmers and other landowners who are beginning their spring house cleaning of fields and woodlands, are urged by Major James Brown, director of the Division of Game and Fish, not to destroy brush and other material that will furnish good cover for wildlife.

Major Brown pointed out that if such brush is gathered together in one pile in a corner of a field or refuge where it will not retard crop cultivation or the planting of food plots, or if it is thrown in eroded gullies where it is out of the way, it will serve as ideal cover for game.

Many sportsmen and farmers in developing local refuges or in pursuing clean farming practices burn brush and other debris, not realizing that they are destroying a potential home for quail, rabbit and other desirable wildlife. Fruit tree trimmings and other forms of brush can even be collected from neighboring territories and placed in suitable places for wildlife. Not only farmers and sportsmen, but everybody can cooperate in such a program, and the division urges all to help in any manner the conservation and propagation of wildlife in Kentucky.

Sidewalk Coaches Have Place In Sun At St. Mary's Univ.

San Antonio, Texas (ACP)—Monday morning quarterbacks, those critics of American football who are the thorn in the side of many a college coach, have been given an opportunity to do something constructive by St. Mary's University athletic officials.

The university has just announced the formation of a "Quarterback Club," an organization of alumni, business men and other supporters of the institution's athletic teams. Chief purpose of the club is to help finance and promote interest in the school's athletics.

As a special inducement to join, the club offers $10 to members that will give purchasers $30 worth of tickets to athletic events. Here's what membership gives ticket holders:

- 1. Two paid admissions, including tax, to every athletic contest at St. Mary's University during the current year of membership.
- 2. Two reserved seats to all home football games in the 50 yard line section.
- 3. Tickets are transferable at all times.
- 4. There will be four home football games and twenty basketball games with contests in baseball and boxing also.

"Howdy Day" is a special event on the Los Angeles City College calendar. Students wear special identification tags on that day, say "howdy" to everyone they meet.

ORDINANCE

AN ORDINANCE AUTHORIZING THE CONSTRUCTION OF A SEWER IN THE CITY OF MOREHEAD, KENTUCKY, EXTENDING FROM A POINT AT BACKLINE OF J. G. BLACK PROPERTY TO THE CENTER OF ELIZABETH AVENUE, A SOUTH EAST COURSE TO HIGHWAY NO. 60, AND FROM THENCE A DISTANCE OF APPROXIMATELY 175 FEET TO AND INTERSECTING WITH AN EXISTING SEWER LINE OF THE CITY OF MOREHEAD COLLEGE.

ALSO A SEWER LINE BEGINNING IN LINE OF SECOND STREET A DISTANCE OF 95 FEET FROM THE CURB OF ELIZABETH STREET, THENCE A SOUTH EAST COURSE TO THE WEST SIDE OF MAIN STREET AND ELIZABETH AVENUE, THENCE CROSSING ELIZABETH AVENUE AND IN LINE WITH MAIN STREET TO A POINT INTERSECTING WITH THE ABOVE MENTIONED PROPOSED SEWER LINE AND TO ACQUIRE RIGHT OF WAY OR EASEMENT THEREFOR.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF MOREHEAD:

Section 1. That in order to protect the health and to improve the sanitary conditions in the City of Morehead for the use of the general public, that a sewer line be constructed, beginning at a point back line of J. G. Black property and 221 feet from the center of Elizabeth Avenue, southeast course to Highway No. 60, and from thence a distance of approximately 175 feet to and intersecting with an existing sewer line of the Morehead State Teachers College; Also another sewer line beginning at line of Second Street, a distance of 95 feet from the curb of Elizabeth Avenue, thence southeast course to the West side of intersection of Second Street and Elizabeth Avenue; thence crossing Main Street and crossing Main Street to a point intersecting with the above proposed sewer line.

Section II. That said sanitary sewer line be constructed in accordance with the plans and specifications prepared by W. H. Rice, City Engineer, which plans and specifications are now on file in the office of the City Clerk in Morehead, Rowan County, Kentucky; said specifications shall be constructed upon such grades and in such manner as set out in said plans and specifications.

Section III. That said sewer lines may be built in conjunction with the Works Progress Administration or other agencies of the Federal Government.

Section IV. That the City is authorized by this Ordinance to acquire a right of way for said proposed sanitary sewer lines, across and over the various pieces of property over which it passes as shown by said plans and specifications, either by contract or condemnations proceedings in accordance with the laws as laid down in the Kentucky Statutes.

Section V. That the material for the construction of this sanitary sewer line, to be furnished by the City, shall be purchased from the lowest and best bidder from any material man or any person, firm or corporation who has filed with the City a bid for the material to be used in the construction, and shall submit sealed proposals for the material to be used according to the plans and specifications; said bids shall be sealed and filed with the Clerk of the City Council and the Clerk before accepting said bids shall advertise for same by a notice inserted in some weekly newspaper published in Morehead, Kentucky, which notice shall state the time and place when said bids will be received.

Section VI. The entire cost of the work herein ordered to be done shall be the cost of the City in conjunction with the money received from the Works Progress Administration or other Federal Governmental Agencies.

Section VII. The City Clerk is hereby ordered and directed to cause an attested copy of this Ordinance to be published in an issue of either the Rowan County News or the Morehead Independent and also to cause for bids for said materials to be furnished according to the plans and specifications for at least ten days before the date of letting; by publication in one of said papers for at least two issues before the date fixed for accepting said bids.

W. WARREN C. ADFIN, Mayor
ROY E. HOLBROOK, Clerk.

Durham, N. H. (ACP)—What's in a name? It can be much or it can be little, for at the University of New Hampshire a new student organization has dubbed itself "Student Landlords." The name is not all that it sounds, as qualification for membership does not mean that the undergraduate must be a property owner.

State Compensation Law Found To Be Most Equitable

"In a number of respects, Kentucky's unemployment compensation Law has been found to be the most equitable of other similar state laws," Robert B. Hensley, Burlington, Chief Legal Counsel for the commission declared recently in an address before the annual meeting of the Kentucky Bar Association held in Louisville.

Hensley cited the merit-rating plan as one of the unique features of the Kentucky act. This, he explained, is, in effect, setting up a separate account for each employer to which is credited the contributions paid by each employer to the commission. Benefits payable to employees are chargeable against the reserve account of the employer who retained him from employment. Thus, Hensley said, an employer's reserve account will increase where the employer has maintained steady employment and will fall where he has released several of his employees. Upon the condition of each employer's reserve account, after July 1, 1940, will depend the employer's contribution rate.

"If an employer has a large reserve balance, his contribution rate will be lowered," Hensley explained, "while the employer who has a low reserve balance will be compelled to pay a higher rate. The exact rate will depend on the ratio between his reserve account and the amount of benefits chargeable against it with certain other factors such as the annual payroll for the preceding year entering into the final determination.

"This, of course, encourages the employer to stabilize employment, the primary objective of the Kentucky Act."

Hensley declared that officials of the Social Security Board had named Kentucky as doing the best job of administering the law of any state agency in the United States.

Since January 31, Hensley said, the commission has paid to unemployed workers a total of $815,811.63, averaging about $38,000 a day.

He explained that only such workers who had previously been employed by an employer operating under the provisions of the Kentucky law were eligible to receive benefits. Other conditions of eligibility were listed as requiring that the claimant be totally unemployed; must have earned at least $200 in wages from subject employers in the first twelve of the last fifteen months preceding the claim; must be physically and mentally able to work; must register for work with the Kentucky State employment service, and must serve a three-week waiting period of total unemployment after filing the claim.

Pool Operators Given The "Works" At Ann Arbor, Mich.

Ann Arbor, Mich. (ACP)—Football pool operators are being given the "works" in at least this one college community, which is conducting a vigorous drive against those who make a gambling racket out of the nation's most popular amateur sport.

Last week Circuit Judge George Sample slapped a $500 fine and a probation term on an alleged pool operator, and gave vigorous warning to all others.

The case began when a university student filed charges against the pool operator when he failed to pay off an estimated $3,700 won by students on a Saturday last fall. Those who oppose this form of gambling point to the fact that operators usually fail to pay winners when their losses are heavy, charging that participants lose when they win.

Mrs. D. D. Ellis sponsored the following nominating committee: Miss Curralee Smith, Mrs. J. M. Clayton and Mrs. S. M. Bradley.

Following the business session, Mrs. J. G. Black conducted a forum for the study of cancer control. Mrs. Black announced a drive, beginning next week for membership in the Women's Field Army and for donations to be used by the American Society for the Control of Cancer.

Dr. E. D. Blair was the principal speaker for the program. Dr. Blair stated that the "bugbear" of Cancer is that the cause is unknown, and until the cause is known, the medical profession is hampered in prevention, treatment and cure.

Statistics show, Dr. Blair stated, "that there are one hundred and ten thousand deaths annually in the United States from cancer. Diseases of the heart and blood vessels come first as the cause of death, and cancer second. There are only three types of treatment of any value: cancer, radium, X-ray, and surgery."

The purpose of the Women's Field Army is to regulate the physical examinations, early treatment, and the encouragement of research work.

Young Women Join Christian Church

Three young women, Lottie Glower, Frances Burns and Frankena were baptized at the Christian church Easter Sunday morning. Margaret Crocks and Barbara Anne Hogg will be baptized at a later service. On Palm Sunday Miss Lucille Alley, freshman at the college, was baptized.

Proclamation

Whereas one of the greatest menaces facing the people of this country today is that caused by the disease of cancer,

And whereas the month of April has been designated as Cancer Control Month by the proclamations of both national and state,

I, therefore, at the request of those who are leading the local drive for the control of this disease hereby declare the week beginning April 17th as Cancer Control Week for the City of Morehead, and ask the complete cooperation of all citizens in order that the efforts of the local committee may be successful.

Signed: WARREN C. LAPPIN, Mayor.

Funeral Rites Held For Wm. Messer

(Continued from page 1) The Regular Primitive Baptist Church January 7, 1889. He had been a consistent member and had lived in that faith fifty years.

Brother Messer will be sadly missed by his relatives and friends and his brethren of the Regular Baptist church. He served regularly each year as delegate to the association to help with the proceedings, such as the necessity of a combination of churches, and to guard the rules of the association according to its form of government and its articles of faith.

breakfast and raw carrots at midnight. I hate to cut corn-stalks, and I have never tasted butter-milk. I can't eat eggs unless they are almost rare.

Leonard Saunders likes spare ribs for breakfast. Dr. Nickell likes a few eggs straight-up with his pepper. E. C. Blevins won't eat at that time but at noon his wife has to tie his tongue to the table leg to keep it from slapping his brains out. H. C. Carter out in Elliott always wants a good sized steak with plenty of eggs.

NEWS FLASH: City has cleaned up alleys (fairly well). Local Copper put tag on citizen's car for parking on wrong side of street in front of the fire station. (Good work, Hiram Lee). Our friend and neighbor, E. B. Lykins, was over Sunday. He is the new proprietor of the White Manor at Mayville. Let's all give him a warm welcome.

M. C. Crosley has a new Chrysler and I just dare some one to get in it and get the floor mats dirty. Roy Casidy looks hotter than a fire cracker in that new mud colored Plymouth, watch out girls, it won't be long now "Mike" Flood has plenty of eggs in Plymouth, with trimmings that are plenty hot.

Did any of you folks ever hear of Ford's? Let's see - his first name was Henry—Henry Ford!
