This May Save Your Child's Life

Boys will be boys, but parents can very often avoid tragedy by more care in teaching the dangers of common-place things.

For example, in Illinois, an eight-year-old lad tried to start a fire with gasoline. The explosion killed and injured his 6-year-old brother. Unfortunately, the little fellow is dead, but are there parents in Rowan County who permit their children to use oil and gasoline in starting fires? If so, is it not possible to stop the custom, and maybe save a little life?

It is not unusual to see, in the press, where youngsters get hold of firearms and, by probably without understanding the nature of their act, kill somebody. In Pennsylvania, not long ago, two little boys got into an argument over some crackers it is said, and one shot the other with a pistol. The killer was only six years old. Who imagines for a minute that the bot understood the effect of his pistol pointing and that he really had a murderous intent in his heart?

Parents in Morehead should be very careful to remove firearms from the reach of children, but more than this, they should never fail to instruct them against the danger of such weapons.

Gandhi's Decalog

- The great Indian leader, Mahatma Gandhi, was asked to outline his ten rules for an ideal life. With modesty he replied it would be presumptions for him to "lay down rules for the conduct have been." They are as follows:
- (1) Fearlessness.
 - (2) Truth.
 - (3) Belief in the equality of all the great faiths of the world.
 - (4) Belief in the equality of all mankind.
 - (5) Adherence to life's law that one's bread must be earned by the sweat of one's brow.
 - (6) Abstaining from the possession of things for themselves.
 - (7) Restraint of the palate, that is, eating for the mere sustenance of the body and abstaining from intoxicating drinks and drugs, such as opium and tobacco.
 - (8) Swadachi, the belief that man's primary duty is to serve his neighbor.
 - (9) Ahimsa, which may be translated into English as love.
 - (10) Bramacharya, which may be inadequately expressed as chastity.

Kind Word At Last

The American motorist has for long borne the brunt of so much taxation and complaint that it is only fair to say a good word for him, if and when the occasion offers itself. The motorist builds the highways and support many government enterprises by steady and heavy taxes on all that goes into the use and the making of an automobile; he keeps going many major industries which give employment to millions of Americans; he pays and pays and pays, yet is one, if not the chief, of the objects of censure of the courts and civic commissions.

So, for a change, we are glad to note that someone has a kind word to say for the unhappy fellow. Maj. Roy F. Britton, of St. Louis, chairman of the traffic commission of the American Automobile Association in an official report commends the American motorist for doing good work in cutting down the traffic death toll of the nation. Many causes contribute to the fatality reduction, but "motorists themselves do more to bring about the improvement," says Major Britton, who remarks that individual carelessness always has been, is today and must always be the basis of traffic safety.

The motorist is blamed for an increase in traffic deaths; it is not fair to credit him for the reduction.

Poison-Murders For Profit

That more than one hundred persons have been killed in Philadelphia by a poison-murder insurance ring, is the opinion expressed by Judge Harry S. McDevitt, who recently presided at the trial of Herman Petrillo, who was found guilty of murder in the first degree.

While detectives continue their investigation of the ramifications of what the judge pronounced the "most hideous series of crimes ever committed" in the City of Brotherly Love, the report is made that the ring was active in more than one State.

Here, it seems, we have an amazing manifestation of human callousness in regards to human life. By carrying insurance on their lives, the ring is supposed to have profited from the use of arsenic to remove those carrying insurance.

It is hard to realize that there are men and women who are perfectly willing to poison other men and women in order to cash in on their insurance policies. While we find it hard to imagine the process that moves the mind of these fiends, we know they exist.

Pay Your Subscription

The Morehead Independent urges all subscribers to make every possible effort to pay their subscriptions promptly upon expiration. This is dictated by several considerations, chief of which is the evident fact that only through the continued loyal support of our readers can we continue to publish the type newspaper that we have given this section. Another fact, also self-evident, is that the payment of a few dollars will not hurt any subscriber, while the non-payment of many of these accounts will seriously affect our business. Therefore, we ask prompt payment of subscription accounts by our loyal subscribers.

Southern Economic Conditions—Use Of Natural Resources

The great natural resources of the South have been exploited with the traditional American disregard for the high cost of disregard for skim skimming milk. Perhaps no worse than in the rest of the country, but with serious effect on the South, forests have been girdled, chopped, and burned without regard for their use as timber or as conservers of the soil and rainfall.

Ruthless measures have been used to obtain the best ore, oil or gas with the least effort. Careless road-and-pillar mining has resulted in the abandonment of untold tons of coal in deserted mines. In 1935 the Nation lost through wastage 479,826,000 cubic feet of natural gas, not including waste at the wellheads. The Panhandle section of Texas alone accounted for 57 percent of this extravagant loss. Other sections of the South, similarly guilty, failed to take advantage of inventions which would have saved and used much of their gas.

Because of the poverty in which the South was left after the War between the States, because of the high cost of credit since that time, a very large share of the natural resources of the South is owned in other regions. To the extent that this is true, the South is exposed to a double danger. On the one hand it is possible for a monopolistic corporation in another region of the country to purchase and leave unused resources in the South which otherwise might be developed in competition with the monopoly. On the other hand, the large absentee ownership of the South's natural resources and the South industry makes it possible for residents elsewhere to influence greatly the manner in which the South is developed and to subordinate that development to other interests outside the South.

The public utilities of the South are almost completely controlled by outside interests. All the major railroad systems are owned and controlled elsewhere. Most of the great electric holding systems, whose operating companies furnish the light, heat, and power for southern homes and industries, are directed, managed, and owned by outside interests. Likewise, the transmission and distribution of natural gas, one of the South's great assets, is controlled completely in the hands of remote financial institutions. The richest deposits of the iron ore, coal, and limestone that form the basis for the steel industry in Birmingham are owned or controlled outside the region. Until recently, too, the Birmingham area was subordinated to the Pittsburgh area as a result of a system of pricing steel, which placed it at a tremendous disadvantage. As a result of the disadvantage—that is, because it was more economical for them to be in the areas formerly favored by the artificial price system—the fabrication plants which use most of the steel were not constructed in the Birmingham area. The fact that these fabrication plants are outside of the South will make it hard for the South now to find a market for its steel, even though the pricing system has been changed.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

PAUL WINS RECOGNITION FOR GENTILE CHRISTIANS

Galatians 2: 1, 2, 9, 10
 GOLDEN TEXT—Acts 15:23-29
 LESSON TEXT—A man is not justified by the works of the law, but by the faith of Jesus Christ—Galatians 2:16

Persecution from outside was soon followed by what has even more serious difficulty within the Church. It should not destroy God's work, nor may be cunningly and insidiously plan. Although the first council at Jerusalem (Acts 15) had decided that Gentiles need not be circumcised, the Gentiles also had to be circumcised in order to be saved. The Gentiles could be saved, they had to come into the Church in all, by way of baptism and first fulfill the Jewish rite of circumcision.

I. A Serious Difference of Opinion

The story of how this vital and fundamental question came up is found in the early verses of Acts 15. The entire future of the gospel ministry was in a sense dependent on the solution of this problem. Christianity is the only religion that is based on the fact that presents justification by grace on the way of redemption; all others follow (mark) or less the path of salvation considered by the Christian now way. Shall works of the law be mingled with grace—can Jesus Christ alone save men, or is salvation secured by a combination plus something else? How was such a serious question to be settled? Should argument and strife be permitted to break on each side, or should a stronger party prevail? Better judgment indicated the destruction of it.

II. A Christian Method of Settlement—Council not Castro

There may be times when it becomes necessary for the Christian worker to take an uncompromising stand for the truth of God and refuse to be moved, even what may be certain, there should be no such spirit in dealing with differing interpretations of Scripture on the part of sincere and earnest Christians. However, a compromise would be gained in the Church today if, instead of magnifying differences and permitting personalities to be excited, God-fearing men were willing to sit down in the spirit of Christ around the tables of Christian counsel and brotherhood, and to be directed by the Holy Spirit (see Acts 15:28).

The whole question was honestly and modestly considered by the second council at Jerusalem, with the result that there was a vindication of the preachers of God's grace and the presence of the Holy Spirit in those who had not troubled them and subjected their souls to such a serious thing it is to have a council held on such a matter. The council being of one accord, gave recognition to Paul and Barnabas as men who had "advanced the word for the glory of the Lord Jesus" and were worthy of confidence and support.

Not should think more highly of himself than he ought. Humility is a Christian grace which will "humbly a sinner saved by grace. But the Bible abounds with admissions to honor one another, to recognize the laborer as being worthy of his hire, to give recognition to those who are over us in the Lord. The brethren at Jerusalem were thoughtful and courteous enough to so honor and encourage Paul and Barnabas. We could well follow their example in recognition of faithful servants of Christ in our own church or Community.

III. A Monstrous Decision—Salvation by Grace

The final decision of the council is sent not only by Paul and Barnabas, but also by a committee from Jerusalem, a gracious gesture of fellowship. Courtesy is not out of place in dealing with even such difficult things as controversies on Christian doctrine. In fact it should be most in place in such a situation.

As a mark of record (a wise procedure in such a case), a letter was sent which, after addressing the Gentiles as "brethren," reviewed the history of the matter and then, without mentioning circumstances at all, puts upon the Gentiles "no greater burden than the necessary things." And what were these? Those things which relate to purity of life as those who were enjoying Christian liberty. The law of Moses need not be kept as a ground of salvation to law in sin. We are set free in Christ, not that we may sin, but that we may "go on and on in grace."

Cows Average $73 Above Fed Cost

The South Shelby County Dairy Herd Improvement Association in Kentucky reports an average income of $12.45 per cow for the test year recently ended. After allowing for the cost of feed, including the cost of roughage and grain, the income averaged $72.86 per cow for 696 cows on test. Feed cost 73 cents per 100 pounds of milk and 18 cents per pound of butterfat.

Average production per cow was 280 pounds of butterfat. The herd owned by M. R. Scott at Finchville produced 371 pounds per cow, and nine herds averaged more than 300 pounds. One cow produced over 500 pounds of butterfat, 11 over 400 pounds, and 85 over 300 pounds.

Three hundred tons of 47 percent superphosphate ordered by local county farmers are being spread with 300 tons. Interested readers, engage seeders and buy it. Much of it is not to be had. A pasture land. Tests show that it is the soil of the county which pleases.

a speech made by Professor H. C. Haggan at the College breakfast at KKA last Friday morning in Louisville.

The curriculum was greatly enlarged, the number of majors nearly doubled, Haggan pointed out. New departments were added, the number of credit hours and classes increased by one-half, and the value of the College to its territory as an educational center demonstrated by the increased demands made on it by various groups for conferences and contacts.

Better yet, said Haggan, the territory is asking to come to the College for conference and contacts like the Smith-Hughes agricultural teachers, the Kentucky

Intercollegiate Press Association, YMCA, YWCA, Hi-Y conference, Kentucky Academy of Science, debating clubs, 4-H club camp music festival, history conference, and High School Day.

Territory Progress in Education
The surrounding 29 counties from which the college draws its student body is progressing educationally. Ten years ago some counties had no high schools and many of them only one-room rural schools.

Now there are about 150 consolidated schools with eight and nine-year school terms. "Our county can boast of having eliminated every rural school and is supporting a six-year term."

Students From Ten States
At present the college has enrolled students from 98 Kentucky counties and ten states. Eighteen of the counties furnish 90 percent of the students.

Nine students were graduated in the first five years of the College's existence, 181 in the second five years or 116 in the first ten years. In the third five year period, diplomas were awarded to 184 men and 185 women, a total of 369. The first fifteen year grand total is 4781.

Majors Nearly Doubled
In 1932 the College offered nine majors, 12 first majors, 223 classes, 531 college credit hours compared with 15 majors, 16 first majors, 354 classes and 924 credit hours.

Rowan with its seven border counties had 158 graduates out of 356 in the third five year period, 1933 to 1938. The following eleven counties contributed less than more graduates in this period: Rowan, 74; Boyd, 37; Carter, 29; Greenup, 28; Bush, 17; Montgomery, 16; Lawrence, 15; Morgan, 12; and Floyd, 11.

Teaching Arm Extended
Reaching out into the counties 30 students and teachers unable to attend classes on the campus the College has extended its teaching arm by the ever-increasing number. Two hundred students enrolled in study centers in the first semester of 1938-39 and the second semester of the same year and from April 1, 1938, to April 1, 1939, the College taught by correspondence 492. Saturday classes during the first and second semesters of '38-'39 numbered 154 students.

Departments Made Over
A department by department review shows radical and far-reaching changes made in the third five year period.

The department of education was not specialized in 1933 but finds the department organized as to general courses, elementary education, secondary education and supervision and administration.

Field biology grew from a meager field to one of the largest and best equipped in the state. It has now built up the largest natural museum in the state, with a collection of 225 bird skins, 173 mammalian skins, 93 reptiles, 59 amphibians, 200 fish specimens, and 500 plants. The head of the department is well known for his colored motion picture films on beautiful flowers and birds.

The art department in '33 had one teacher, offered only a second painter and had eight classes. Today it offers a major and a first major and has 24 classes.

The English department has added two full-time teachers of English, has introduced a typing and placement program for freshmen which enables the student to earn more efficient teaching in freshmen classes and has established a literary magazine.

In chemistry the department committee was established last year to meet the demands of training in chemistry in business subjects and provide definite vocational training for students who do not intend to teach.

In chemistry three new courses have been added. The chemistry majors have continued their studies and obtained advanced degrees in chemistry. Two new courses have been added and 23 courses offered the last two years. The physical education department has nearly quadrupled the number of classes, more than quadrupled the number of credit hours and added two teachers.

Many students found only six-teen classes available to them in '33 and a first major. Today they can major and minor and take their choice of 42 classes.

These figures were compiled by Mr. Haggan, the Registrar's office and the department of extension.

MORE INTEREST IN HOGS

Owen Miller, of Adair county, has entered a litter of 10 Hampshire-Poland China pigs in the Kentucky ton-litter contest. He is keeping grain and tankage in a self-feeder before the pigs, and will have a grass-leoparden pasture. He expects to make them weigh considerably more than 2,000 pounds when 145 days old. Rollin Murvell, also of Adair county, is finishing 36 Duroc pigs on grain, tankage and alfalfa pasture.

Fish And Game Club To Hold Annual Banquet

The annual banquet for the Fish and Game Club will be held this next Tuesday evening at six o'clock at the Methodist church. This is no ordinary banquet and I will tell you why. Besides the companionship, food and regular entertainment there will be one of the finest movies ever filmed. I have seen it. I know what I am talking about. This movie is a talkie, when shown at the CCC camp last fall the boys gave it a five star rating.

The picture is not made in a studio, it was made in the jungles, on the plains and around the rivers of wildland Africa. It shows men actually being killed by lions, men being killed by snakes, men being torn to pieces by crocodiles. The picture is a series of such gruesome sights, these men were killed accidentally while on this expedition trip. The picture most like our show for the banquet was Frank Buck's "Bring Them Back Alive." Buck's picture was good, it ran in all popular theatres in the country—but "Beyond Bengal" is better, much better. "Beyond Bengal" is not a love story, it is a straightforward presentation of life and exploration in deepest Africa. Don't miss it, it's different. Come to the banquet, bring a friend.

Conservation Goal Of Ky. Sportsmen

New League Now Has Organization of 83 Clubs, 11,000 Members. Conservation of the wildlife in Kentucky is becoming more and more important to sportsmen. With the realization of just how important this matter really is, both hunters and fishermen have been drawn together in the common cause of protecting the wildlife and from this unity of purpose has emerged the League of Kentucky Sportsmen.

This league, having an organization of 83 clubs with a total membership of over 11,000, is cooperating to the fullest extent with the Division of Game and Fish in its program of conservation and propagation of wildlife. This operation is doing much towards helping Kentucky take its place with the other top ranking hunting and fishing states in the Union.

Dennie Gooch, Somerset, Ky., who is president of the league, stated that the clubs are increasing their memberships, new clubs are being organized, and the general interest in the wildlife of the state is being increased. The league holds its annual convention at Dawson Springs on May 15-16 and will elect new officers for the coming year. It is hoped that each club in the state will be represented at this convention.

Anglers Warned Of Seining For Bait

Fish And Game Division Explains Definition Of "Minnow"

The "angler's" attention is called to the laws which cover the seining of minnows in this state, by the Division of Game and Fish. In the first place it is lawful for any person to take minnows with a seine from the public waters of this state to be used for bait for angling. Seines used in the taking of minnows must not be more than ten feet in length, four feet in width or height, with mesh not larger than one-quarter inch.

The definition for "minnow" is this: "All small fish used for bait except black bass, trout, crappie and rock bass or 'toggie-eye,' jackminnow or wall eyed pike, or striped bass."

The law states that any fish caught which are excluded from the definition of minnows must be without injury, immediately returned to the water from which they are taken.

Violation of this section of the game and fish laws, upon conviction, carries a fine of not less than $15 and not more than $100 for each offense.

Major James Brown, director of the Division of Game and Fish, urges all anglers to help preserve the minnow supply in this state by taking only those that are needed for bait and returning the others to the water and put all those minnows that are left over the end of the fishing trip back in some branch or creek where they can be taken again later on when needed for bait.

How To Control Tobacco Insects

Recommendations for the control of tobacco insects, as made by a joint committee of representatives of tobacco states and the United States Department of Agriculture, are given in a new circular of the Kentucky College of Agriculture. Insects for which controls were prescribed include flea beetle, hornworms, black European slug, cutworm, grasshopper, budworms, green June beetle larvae and sod webworms. The committee was made up of men from Kentucky, Tennessee, North and South Carolina, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Florida, Connecticut and the Department of Agriculture.

LARGEST BASS THIS SEASON

It took a lovely worm, on the hook on the end of the line of R. L. Gaines, of 520 Hale Avenue, Cincinnati, Ohio, to lure an eight and a quarter pound large mouth bass from the depths of Herrington Lake, at Gwynn's landing, recently.

This is the largest catch recorded thus far this season from the waters of Herrington Lake. The angler making a larger catch than that of Gaines, will certainly know that he has had a battle.

Jesse K. Lewis Is Candidate For 37th District Judgeship

their descendants are scattered throughout the District and other parts of the State. On the maternal side of his family, Mr. Lewis is a member of the Kitchen, Shearer and Rice families. Mr. Lewis received his early education in the public schools and Christian Normal Institute of Grayson, 1924. He graduated from Transylvania College at Lexington, and for four years thereafter he was engaged in tax and legal work with the State Tax Commission. Resigning from this position in 1928, he entered the University of Kentucky Law School where he completed his legal training in 1931. Since that time and up until 1937, when he became a distant Attorney General of Kentucky, Mr. Lewis was engaged in the active practice of law at Grayson, during all of which time he was City Attorney. After he served only a few short months in the Attorney General's office, and as a result of the ability displayed as a lawyer, Mr. Lewis was promoted from staff Assistant General to third Assistant.

Since early manhood Mr. Lewis has been a deacon in the Christian Church. He is a member of and Secretary of the Board of Trustees of Christian Normal Institute, a church school which is doing a great work in the field of Christian education. Mr. Lewis has always been active in civic and community enterprises. He is a member of the American Legion, and was one of the organizers of the William C. Lewis Post of the American Legion of Carter County. Mr. Lewis is a former Adjutant and past Commander of this organization of World War Veterans.

The public and the voters in general have always been very much interested in the aggressive campaign which Mr. Lewis is waging because of the democratic and engaging manner in which he meets the people and because of the stand he is taking to place the position of Circuit Judge on the high plane where it should be. It is the ideal of this candidate for Circuit Judge and he is so stating to the voters that the judgeship is a position that should be free from all political and subversive influences and where the most humble citizen should be able to receive the same consideration and fair treatment as the most influential and wealthy citizen.

"The fundamental liberties of the people and the principles upon which our government is founded can only be preserved, if the courts are kept free from the control of those who have selfish interests to serve," says Mr. Lewis. He is therefore running as a candidate free from all political and subversive influences and where the most humble citizen should be able to receive the same consideration and fair treatment as the most influential and wealthy citizen.

Mr. Lewis states that he will have further announcement to make to the people of the District in the campaign progress.

Since the constitution of Kentucky guarantees fair and speedy trials of all cases, both Civil and Criminal, Mr. Lewis insists that when elected, he will conduct the Circuit Courts of the District in such a manner as to insure the honest observance of this Constitutional provision. "The campaign slogan of Mr. Lewis is 'Fair dealings to all, special privileges to none.'"

Mr. Lewis is urging all the voters of the District, who believe in and stand for the things he is advocating, to become active in his behalf, because, as he says, "the people cannot have just and honest courts unless they themselves bring about the election of men who take a stand for justice and fair dealings."

DON'T TRY TO TREAT COUGHS WITH HOME-MADE REMEDIES

Coughs Are Danger Signs, Treat Them Accordingly. If you are suffering with cough of long-standing and do not know its cause, go to your doctor immediately. You might have a serious ailment. Even cough due to cold or exposure often lead to serious complications by breathing down your resistance. For the latter type cough there is a medicine, compounded by a great scientist, fortified with both Vitamins "A" and "D," given to the world by a great laboratory and sold by leading druggists under the name of Mentho-Mulsion. At an all-time low price of 75c. Although home remedies are sometimes effective, many of them have been proven merely superstition, so why take chances when Mentho-Mulsion is sold under an iron-clad guarantee of satisfaction or your money back by the manufacturer every-where—adv.

How Do You Like Your Eggs?

Ask Katharin Fisher of Good Housekeeping Institute Biddy deserves a vote of thanks from all of us for her untiring devotion to her job of laying eggs. For in the sealed oval packages, over the laying of which she caresses so proudly, is one of the most fascinating foods we eat. Small though they may seem, these eggs are packed tight with many things that help us to keep in good health.

Some of you may still have the idea that eggs sold as freshly laid eggs are the finest you can buy.

He is a member of your community—and not only is in a better position to advise you regarding your insurance requirements—but can be of inestimable assistance in case of loss.

Virgil H. Wolfford
General Insurance
Phone 249—Morehead

As a matter of fact, if these so-called newly laid eggs have been allowed to stand around in a warm place, as we often find them in stores, they may lose their freshness in a day or two. So it behooves all of us to urge our grocers to keep their eggs under refrigeration. Needless to say, too, the eggs we use at home should always be kept in the refrigerator, for they are a perishable food, just like milk.

As for grades of eggs to buy, I wish I were able to give you more help on this point. In New York State eggs must be candied and labeled, Fancy, A, B, or C grade before the grocer can sell them, but no one grading system is common throughout the country. So most of your knowledge of egg grades must be gained by actual buying in your particular community to find out just what stores can be depended upon for fresh eggs.

I can tell you this much, however. The color of the egg shell is of no consequence whatever in buying eggs—white eggs and brown eggs being of equal quality. So don't pay a premium for one or the other just to follow a fashion in your community.

CHESAPEAKE and OHIO

"How do you want your eggs?" is a question many of us ask or are asked several mornings a week. And because the answer is just as likely to be "scrambled" or "fried" as poached, we should know all the simple ways of cooking eggs as well as the tricks that make them just right every time.

Poached eggs make a royal dish, with or without the savory toppings that transform them from breakfast into luncheon or supper dishes. The easiest way to keep the poached egg attractive in shape is to use one of the approved egg poachers now on the market. But even without a poacher you can do yourself proud. Just grease a skillet and fill it with boiling water. For each quart of water used add 1 teaspoon salt and one tablespoon vinegar. (The salt and vinegar keep the eggs from spreading.) Then carefully break the eggs one by one into a cup and slip them into the boiling water. Now cover the skillet, lower the heat so that the water keeps hot but does not boil and let the eggs stand until the whites set and a film has formed over the yolks. Then lift the eggs out to the waiting toast with a flared perforated skimmer, draining off all water so as to keep the toast invitingly crunchy and not soggy.

And now about fried eggs, the favorite American breakfast dish—at least of many of our menfolk. Whether the eggs are cooked sunny side up or turned over, whether they have the yolks whole or broken, the method of frying is the same.

Melt enough fat or use enough salad oil to cover the bottom of the skillet, allowing a little extra for spooning over the eggs. Let them cook slowly, keeping the fat from smoking, until the whites are set, yet tender. Spoon the fat up over the eggs now and then to cook the top. Then, just as soon as the eggs are set and tender, remove them and serve alone or with crisp ham or bacon.

Kentuckians Asked To Help Crippled Children Of State

Intensive Campaign Will Not Be Conducted This Spring

Citizens throughout Kentucky have an opportunity again to give the state's crippled children a "lift," as the Kentucky State Society for Crippled Children mails to its contributors a letter telling of work accomplished during the past year and asking for a renewal of membership. Memberships range from $1 to $100 and upon support gained in this manner the Crippled Children Society depends for its existence. Upon the results of this annual appeal also depends the amount of supplementary funds turned over to the Kentucky Crippled Children Commission for extension of its work.

This spring the society is not conducting an intensive campaign of personal solicitation, as sending its regular membership appeal to friends who for many years have kept the work alive. They are members of service clubs, such as Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions, Women's Clubs, church societies, and individuals who realize what the splendid work of the allied organizations—Commission and Society—means to hundreds of boys and girls who, without the help given by these agencies through free clinics and free treatment, would remain lifelong cripples.

The commission hold clinics in every part of the state, and finances care for crippled children in hospitals in Ashland, Lexington and Lexington, where physicians and surgeons give freely of their time and skill to repair broken bodies. The society aids the commission in its program and promotes general interest in the social and educational needs of crippled children, as well as in the physical rehabilitation. The society is organizing local committees in the various counties to study the problem of crippled children in their respective communities.

During 1938 the commission examined at its clinics 2,994 cases and provided treatment for 161. There is always a waiting list and it is to help reach children on this waiting list that the Kentucky Society for Crippled Children asks for a renewal of membership.

Students Organize New Social Group At Farmers School

Annual School Play Will Be "Aaron Slick From Puntin Creek"

The Farmers annual school play is under production. The rural comedy, "Aaron Slick From Puntin Creek" has been chosen. It will be presented next week. A definite date will be arranged and announced later. The play is being sponsored by the Farmers P. T. A.

Harold Pelfrey attended the K. E. A. at Louisville last week. He reports a fine trip and says that he saw everybody at the convention and had to shake hands with them all, which probably accounts for the pale look he developed while there.

COMPLETE TREE UNIT
The third and fourth grades completed a unit on trees last Friday. The project was culminated by a program which was presented to the parents. The parents enjoyed the program and party and showed much enthusiasm of the new unit which these pupils are now studying.

ORGANIZE SOCIAL GROUP
Grades five and six are organizing a social group to investigate current events. They have prepared a regular newspaper rack and have completed plans where they will have all of yesterday's papers every day. They are running an attendance race grades seven and eighth for this month. The losers will give the winners a picnic.

Social Security Applicants Are One-Third Women

Thirty-six of every hundred persons who applied for social security numbers in 1938 were women, according to James A. Chaney, manager of the Old-Age Insurance Bureau field office in Ashland, Ky.

"Of 5,700,000 applications for social security numbers received in 1938, a total of 2,100,000 were filed by women," Mr. Chaney said. "Of 30,000 social security numbers which our office issued last year, it is likely that more than 10,000 were given to women, using the same percentage as that of the nation."

"In 1937, the first year in which old-age insurance was in operation only 27 percent of the applications for social security numbers came from women."

RESUME

The Citizens of Clover City, a western desert town of the 80's are victimized by ruthless Jim Knox who is determined to secure land for his railroad. Knox buys out the newspapers editor and county judge so as to be unhampered when he burns out those citizens who will not sell to him. Maggie Adams, beautiful girl owner of the town restaurant and old Tom Logan, candidate for Governor, defy Knox. They warn him that Logan's son, Steve, is returning from the East to champion the people. Knox and three of his men, Mulligan, Gagan and Bumper, set out to burn out Logan. While Knox engages Logan in argument in his house Bumper sets the fuse to start the fire in the barn. He is surprised at his work by a masked stranger. A terrific fight ensues and Bumper shoots the masked man. Despite his wound the stranger knocks out Bumper, then makes for the house, where he is revealed as Steve Logan. To conceal his wound, Steve pretends to be drunk. Further he apparently sides with Knox. This alienates his sweetheart, Maggie Adams. In need of medical attention for his wound Steve turns to the Mackerel, pianist in the local saloon. In an effort to defeat Knox's plans, after his recovery, Steve in order to win over Knox's laborers, and the Mackerel steal the newspaper press and kidnap Underwood, the editor. They print an edition, signed THE WASP, which tells the truth about Knox, Knox and Mulligan, thinking Underwood is THE WASP, offer a huge reward for his capture. Steve and the Mackerel hold Underwood prisoner in the hills; but Underwood foils their plan by wrecking the press.

Chapter Seven

THRUST AND PARRY
Jim Knox entered the Carson House proudly with Maggie Adams on his arm, ushering the way to a quiet booth near the piano platform.

"I've ordered a steak for two, Maggie," he said as he held her chair for her.

She smiled at him impersonally.

"Maggie," he continued quietly after they were seated, "you're what I want most out of the West. A Mrs. Jim Knox for a large, empty house."

"You're an odd sort of scoundrel," she answered thoughtfully.

"Why should you want to marry a woman who doesn't love you?"

He shrugged. "Maybe because a woman who did wouldn't be worth marrying."

She laughed. "I'll think it over."

"Go on Steve—a hell—out for the birds!"

"I can say now is that there's one quality you have that I find appealing—at least you're a self-made villain. Nobody ever had to bribe you to become Jim Knox."

He eyed her sharply. "You're talking about Steve Logan. And you're talking as if you were still in love with him."

"I find Mr. Logan a little too painful to discuss," she said coldly.

Knox shook his head. "When prying someone hurts you, that's being in love too—in a way."

"You think I'm a fool, don't you?" she interrupted angrily. "Little Bo-Peep pining away for her cold-hearted hero, and suffering terribly because he's not even a hero, but a coward who jumps through a hoop when Jim Knox whistles." She looked off across the room and saw Steve heading for their table. "I'll tell you what I think and feel about your little man Friday when he reaches us."

Steve approached them with a smile. "Hello, Mr. Knox. Hello, Maggie." He pointed over his shoulder toward the bar. "Mr. Mulligan and I were just discussing the Wasp. Do you mind if I join you and talk about it some more."

Maggie flushed angrily. "Mr. Knox is not interested in waps this evening," she observed. "He's just doing me the honor of asking me to marry him and you've interrupted my answer, Mr. Logan."

"I'm sorry," grinned Steve and started away.

"Oh, don't go until you've congratulated me," she called.

"On what?" he asked blankly.

"On becoming the future Mrs. Jim Knox."

Knox seized her hand. "You're serious?" You mean it?" She nodded. "You've made me a very happy man," he said softly. He handed the waiter. "Water! Drinks for the boys on me. Champagne for everybody!" He slapped Steve on the back. "And a little music, Steve, for the future Mrs. Knox. Go on, son—a ballad for the bride and if you're a good boy you can sing at our wedding."

Steve turned on his heel and made for the piano-platform where the Mackerel awaited him.

"I can't stand it," whispered the Mackerel hoarsely. "She's throwing herself away! The drums has gone too far. It's worse than Zaza—"

Steve pushed him toward the piano bench. "Start playing," he ordered.

The Mackerel stood stiff with defiance. "Yes, not gonna sing wid a broken heart—I won't allow it."

"Start playing, I said," Steve ordered. "Play 'If I Had a Forgotten You'—Then—and start at the beginning!"

"Not that," gugged the Mackerel. "My fingers won't play it."

"Sound your A. D'Aragnon," Steve murmured. He faced Maggie and Knox and in a voice that throbbed with emotion, he sang the heart-breaking quatrain.

At the bar, Mulligan brushed away a handful of tears. "Another bottle, bartender," he wept. "I never heard singin' more enjoyable."

A round of applause thundered through the bar-room, the restaurant and the gambling room as Steve brought the song to its last gasping note. His eyes clouded with some far-away thought, he suddenly tapped the Mackerel on the arm. "I've got it," he whispered.

"What will it be?" asked the Mackerel, getting set to play an encore.

"A little buzzing," replied Steve. "Mackerel—The Wasp is going to fly again."

He leaped off the platform and headed toward Knox's booth, the wondering Mackerel at his heels.

"Well don't my lad," cried Knox had us all cooling like doves. Have some wine. You, too, Mackerel."

"Thanks," smiled Steve, taking the seat next to Maggie. "I was thinking, Mr. Knox, I wish I could do something more practical for you than just warbling."

"Name your job, son," answered Knox. "You've earned it."

"Well, mused Steve. "It's not exactly a job. But I've an idea that you're not taking The Wasp seriously enough. He left a lot of poison behind in your men and I feel you're jeopardizing the election by your silence."

"What do you want me to do?" demanded the other. "You don't expect me to get on a soap box and defend my honor to a lot of hunkies?"

Steve laughed. "Well—yes, in a way. Look, Mr. Knox. Why don't you send to Carbonville for another press? Set it up in the 'Bugle' office and get out a newspaper—a real one—that will win back the sympathy of the community—you could send for the press tonight—set it up by tomorrow—and have your newspaper ready to give out tomorrow night."

"Say!" shouted Knox. "That's an idea! I'm amazed at myself for not having thought of it." He eyed Steve with approval. "You've got a head on you that I can use, Logan."

Maggie leaped up from her chair suddenly and pushed her way past Steve. "You crawling Judas!" she exploded. Without warning, she struck him violently across the face and ran out of the room.

Steve stared after her in silence. Whatever Knox's reaction, he controlled them as he turned coolly to Steve. "I'll have Bumper and Gagan go out to Carbonville tonight by stagecoach for a press," he said thoughtfully. "And I thank you, Logan, for the idea."

The coach set out that night; and early next morning with Knox's new printing press inside it followed the road back to Clover City.

Coach wasn't built to carry no printing press," complained the driver.

"Mr. Knox will pay for the re-painting of your coach," Gagan assured him. "Slowly, will you. This fog is thick."

They drove along silently, plunging into thicker mist down the road.

"Throw up your hands!" The command rang out at them as two horsemen sprang out of the fog. Handkerchiefs concealed their faces. The one leaped off his horse and grabbed the stagecoach reins; the second, with guns drawn, ordered Bumper, Ga-gan and the driver to climb off the coach.

"Listen, fellows," offered Bumper, "you're wastin' your time. Nobody inside this coach but a printin' press."

"Quiet!" thundered the man holding the reins. He frisked them rapidly and having satisfied himself that they had no weapons, he motioned his accomplices to the coach. Then, quickly leaping to the driver's seat, he leaped up on the driver's seat.

"My best regards to Mr. Knox, Bumper," he shouted as he whipped up the horses.

A sudden light dawned on Bumper's face. "That highwayman, the gumped—the wasp!" And, gesturing wildly, he and the driver ran down the road.

The two highwaymen looked back to make sure they were well out of sight before removing their face handkerchiefs.

"Steve," trembled the first, "I never was so nervous in my whole life."

Steve laughed reassuringly. "Take it easy, Mackerel. Take it easy! And remember! The Wasp starts buzzing again tomorrow!"

The Wasp writes again! But will Steve be able to carry out this new plan against Knox? Don't miss next week's chapter.

Tobacco Situation Probably Will Be About Like 1938-39

Prospects Are For Stable Or Moderately Improved Conditions

Tobacco growers probably will sell their 1939 crop under demand conditions about the same as prevailed during the 1938-39 marketing season, in the opinion of Dr. H. B. Price, of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

According to the spring outlook report on tobacco, issued by the Federal Bureau of Agricultural Economics, the prospects are for stable or moderately improved general business conditions for the remainder of 1939; and for a continuance of the present high level of cigarette consumption.

Burley growers report prospects for a decrease of a little more than three percent in their 1939 plantings, compared with the 1938 acreage. "Assuming a five-year average yield," Dr. Price said, "the crop this year will be about 324 million pounds compared with the present estimate of 335 million pounds for the 1938 crop. Burley stocks on October 1, 1938, are expected to show a slight increase over a year earlier."

Again quoting from the outlook report, Dr. Price said that the burley outlook favors about the same or slightly larger domestic consumption of cigarettes and smoking mixtures in the 1938-40 season, and demand for the 1939 burley crop "may be about the same as for the 1938 production."

A large proportion of the 1938 crop consisted of smoking grades which brought about lower prices relative to burley on the heavy side than in previous years. The fire-cured acreage for 1939 is indicated at about 12 percent smaller than in 1938. Growers of dark air-cured tobacco report intentions to reduce their plantings this year about 11 percent. With average yields on these acreages in 1938, crops would turn out about the same production as the record low of fire-cured and dark air-cured production in 1938.

These smaller acreages of dark types appear about in line with the downward trend in the demand and disappearance of these tobaccos, Dr. Price pointed out. Total supplies of the dark tobaccos probably will be even smaller in 1939-40 than in the present season. "It is reasonable to believe," he added, "that the average quality of the new crops will turn out superior to the lower average of the fire-cured and dark air-cured produced in 1938."

4-H SPONSORED LIBRARY PROVES TO BE POPULAR

During the three winter months, 1938 boys and girls, parents and other adults read 320 books from a traveling library sponsored by the Boston 4-H club in Butler county, Kentucky. Twenty-seven 4-H club members read 193 books. Several read 10 books each, and 11-year-old Marjorie Givens read 24 books. The library was at the Boston school. The total cost during the period was $2.10.

FARMING IT . . . BY WILLARD BOLTE

Pin feathers are no longer a problem for the up-to-date poultry dresser. After "roughing off" the larger feathers he retains the carcass—dip it four or five times in a melted wax preparation—allows the wax to harden—and then strips it off like peeling a banana. The sheet of wax removes both pin feathers and down.

A number of Illinois farmers built temporary silos out of baled straw this year. The silo in the picture good feeding will result.

is 12 bales high and required 14 bales for each course. The silage probably would have kept better if this silo had been lined with paper to prevent air from seeping through the straw.

Bucket-feeding a bunch of loose calves is too much like a football game without an umpire. Make two small stanchions in the yard, fill the half-pens and feed them from the outside. They'll be a better and more efficient feeder.

Bordeaux Mixture Asset For Farmer And City Gardener

Has Many Uses In Control Of Insects And Plant Diseases

First-aid for all harassed gardeners is Bordeaux mixture, because it accomplishes so many ends on so many different vegetables. It is unique; there is no substitute.

Its good works begin with the coming up of the early potatoes. When the black flea-beetle first comes, for it is a repellent and a control for these insects, whose injury is ridging the leaves. Many fine holes is passed lightly by because the damage seems so remote. That it is not, any extensive potato-grower who tries to prevent it, knows, for he has found more and better potatoes result when the flea-beetle is taken in hand, and early.

Bordeaux mixture is a control for, or at least a deterrent for the various leaf-spots collectively called "blight." Any vegetable that is enabled to retain its foliage intact bears for a longer time (e. g. the vine crops; sometimes beans; tomatoes) or, as in the instance of potatoes, may be made to continue green for as much as two weeks longer, giving the tubers that much longer to make size, and consequently more crop.

Bordeaux mixture is a combination of copper sulphate (blue vitriol), lime and water, or, in the form of powder called "roppe" (a mixture of powdered unslaked lime and anhydrous copper sulphate). The "dry Bordeaux" designed for making liquid Bordeaux is not suitable for use in Bordeaux dusting.

The effective agent in Bordeaux is copper sulphate, or, in the form of leaf damage it would cause, the lime is added. The formula recommended for garden use is 4-4-50, meaning four pounds each of the ingredients just named, and 50 gallons of water, making 50 gallons of Bordeaux. This amount of spray would cover between 1/2 acre and 1 acre, more area than any gardener would need spray in any one time. On the other hand, Bordeaux mixture must be used as made; it will not keep for even 24 hours. Thus, the gardener finds himself in a quandary in arriving at the quantities of Bordeaux materials to use in making this spray in garden amounts, for fine arithmetic is involved. For aid to gardeners who wish to make as little as 2 1/2 gallons of standard Bordeaux, this procedure has been evolved:

1. In five quarts of water, in a non-metallic vessel, dissolve 1 pound of blue vitriol (bluestone). Hang in a sack just into the water, bluestone bisulphate itself, in an hour or so. This is "bluestone stock."
2. In the tank of a 3-gallon sprayer put 9 quarts of water, and add 1 quart of stock. What results is 2 1/2 gallons of 4-4-50 Bordeaux.
3. Close the sprayer, and shake and—run 10 to 15 times. What results is 2 1/2 gallons of 4-4-50 Bordeaux.

The rest of the "stock" may be put into a corked jug, ready to use when more Bordeaux needs be made. Except for evaporation, its strength stays constant. This

To Observe 25th Year of Work To Improve Farming

Many Farm Practices Improved As Result Of Farm Agent

Twenty-four Kentucky counties which have had farm agents since the inauguration of agricultural extension work in 1914 will this spring observe the 25th anniversary of the establishment of this work to help improve conditions on the farm. In most counties there will be a dinner for farmers, homemakers, 4-H club members and others interested in agricultural improvement. The progress of a quarter-century will be reviewed and the improvements in the farms and the farm homes noted.

Many farm practices have been improved as a result of the farm agent and the agricultural extension work, it is pointed out. Some of these developments in Kentucky include the growing of large acreages of koran lepeletra, the extensive use of limestone, marl and superphosphate, the seeding of winter cover and pasture crops and of grasses, the improvement of beef cattle, sheep and hogs, the development of dairying and poultry raising, the control of livestock diseases, the conservation of the soil and the development of 4-H clubs.

All of the 120 Kentucky counties now have farm agents and more than half of them have home demonstration agents. Farm women have organized homemakers' clubs to study better methods of homemaking, with emphasis on health, improved diet, the home production of vegetables, fruit and meat, and better living off farms.

When the first sign of spotting or of flea-beetle injury is seen, but better is to anticipate any such damage, to start spraying when the seedlings are a few inches tall, and again in 2 weeks, and in 2 weeks again.

Miss Martha Woodley

The marriage of Miss Martha Woodley, daughter of Mrs. Myrtle Hall, head of the Morehead State Teachers College Home Economics Department to Joseph Marion Latimer, of Anderson, S. C., son of Mrs. Russell D. Latimer of Anderson, was solemnized Saturday morning, April 15, at Wrightman Chapel, Scarritt College, Dr. King Vivian, pastor of McKendree Methodist church, officiated in the presence of an assemblage of friends and relatives.

The altar was banked with ferns and palms and was centered with a large arrangement of Easter lilies and white stock. At the sides, white tapes burned in wrought iron candlesticks.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Leroy H. Woodley, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., wore a navy blue ensemble with showy bouquet of gardenias and valley lilies.

Following a motor trip through the Smoky Mountains and western North Carolina, where they will spend several days at Asheville, Mr. and Mrs. Latimer will go to Anderson to make their home. Mr. Latimer is professor of chemistry at the Boy's High School there.

CAPITOL COMMENTS

(Continued from Page 1) stretch to wire and victory. The racing industry brings millions of dollars to Kentucky, and Kentucky horses have made world-famous.

This may be the reason we entertain ambitions so much, for joy out of elections is not the cold methodical procedures found in the rest of other states, but a contest to be enjoyed and followed, and although we take them seriously, most of the joy is in the competition as well as the victory, and so it is with the coming general election.

Patrick Welsh, newly elected chairman of the Democratic organization in Louisville, died of a heart attack Sunday night. His death was a loss to the Democratic party in Louisville, and leaves the political situation there as unsettled as ever.

The Louisville Republican organization is promoting harmony and will be a strong factor in the coming primary.

Labor unions are trying to organize Owenston industries, have caused much material damage and large business losses. Such tactics, if followed, will kill the economy of the unions, as public opinion is already turning against them.

Fishing season is now with us. I call it being season for my "New Deal" because in the middle of May it takes him all winter to study up enough fish tales to last through the season. He is in his glory when he gets around strangers and starts telling some big ones.

So many people are moving-dissatisfied I reckon. They say when Doug and Grace Bellamy first moved here from up in Morgan they moved every month.

I INTENDED TO WRITE a story about the NYA work in the county which is being carried under the direction of Mrs. Frank Laughlin, but one of her girls wrote a poem describing their work so nicely that the poem is being published instead.

OUR NYA Our NYA is the place we love. For the training we receive there; Our ideal, smiles, and many good times. With each other, we do share.

The NYA is the place to go—For training of various kind. We all love that dear place so much. That no one can change our mind.

Our boss is liked by everyone near. She is a better boss as she can be. If as nice to boss could ever be found; Tell me "who on earth" it could be.

We are learning to sew, patch, knit and weave. Fancy work even takes a great part. We plan and cook our own meals in our own kitchen.

We have a teacher who is giving us lessons. The same as if we were attending school; And when it is time for classes to begin.

We'll all know better than to act a fool. Oh! The NYA, again we shout: Is the very thing who we need. Even those who never had all chance for school.

Are fast learning to write and read. The NYA is growing better day by day. Improvements can be seen, I'm sure. Since we have a willingness to try and learn.

Our mistakes are growing fewer and fewer. The NYA—we will stick by it to the end. We love it with all our heart; We will sing it, and shout it, to everyone near.

And hope we shall never have to part. —Grace Elizabeth Craycraft.
