Rodburn Women Held In Defrauding Scheme

U. S. Postoffice Inspector Ferrell Takes Four Into Custody After Mail Fraud

WAS UNIQUE CRIME

Photostatic Copies of Mail Orders Led To Arrest

Mae Adams, Ida M. Adams, Lurline Adams, and Emma Adams were taken into custody of U. S. Deputy Marshall Mone Magana, on a charge of using the mails to further a scheme of defrauding last Friday.

All four of these women are residents of Rodburn, Ky.

U. S. Postoffice Inspector W. L. Ferrell pronounced it as "the most unique mail order fraud ever practiced in the United States."

After explaining how the women operated, Ferrell said that it has always been the custom of mail order houses, after receiving an order, to fill the order and return the original blank with the merchandise, with the firm's note appended, on the original blank.

After having done this, the customer returned the order to the mail order house asking for the additional merchandise due him, or the equivalent in money.

Ferrell was called on the case last April after the scheme had been in operation some three years.

Photostatic copies of all orders were made by the firm of both the original and second copies.

Bunk Evans To Enter Race

Democratic Candidate In Pine Grove, Brusby Precinct Is Well Qualified For Job

J. T. Evans, "Bunk" to his friends throughout the county, is making the race for magistrate in the Pine Grove, Brusby district subject to the action of the Democratic voters at the primary election on August 7, 1937, according to the announcement in this issue of The News.

Mr. Evans is probably as well known throughout not only his district but the entire county as any man in the county, and is well qualified from his business experience to look after the finances of the county successfully and well. Mr. Evans will not make an intensive campaign, as he is not in the race seeking. He will depend on the friends who urged him to run to look after his interests in the primary. At the present time it does not look as if he would encounter any opposition in the primary.

Rice Announces His Candidacy For Office

Running For Democratic Office In Walker, Well-Known In Rowan County

James Rice is a candidate for office on the Democratic ticket at the August 7th primary, according to his announcement in this issue of The News. Mr. Rice is a brother of Joe Rice who, because of his health, withdrew from the race last week.

While the time is short, Mr. Rice plans on making an intensive campaign and hopes to be able to visit all the voters of the county before the day of the primary. He solicits your support and influence in the coming election.

Jennings Hits Jury Report

Declares Jury To Be Severe, Prejudiced And Unfair In Its Report Of Last Week

County Judge C. E. Jennings in a signed statement attacked the report of the Rowan Grand Jury declaring their report of last week to be "severe, prejudiced and unjust."

In the statement he declared the report to be "dictated by the Commonwealth's Attorney, whom," he went on to declare, "had a very active part in depriving my father of office."

Jennings stated, in answer to the grand jury charges concerning the money passing through the treasurer's hands, that since the repeal of the sales tax there is considerably less money for the treasurer to handle.

"Undoubtedly," the statement goes on to say, "the grand jury did not lend itself as a political tool for the use of politicians, but were unaware of the true facts of the situation."

The judge went on to affirm that the treasurer's bond in the sum of $60,000 had securities whose assessed valuation was only $19,845, taking issue with the grand jury report which stated the assessed valuation of the security on the bond to be $7,000.

"Not a member on the jury admitted that he or she had not turned in their own property valuation at full value," stated Jennings' report.

Edgar Holbrook died at the home of his parents Mr. and Mrs. James E. Holbrook last Wednesday night at 8:00 o'clock.

Charles Edgar Holbrook was born in Elliott county, March 25, 1911, and moved with his parents to Rowan County several years ago. He died June 30, 1937, survived by his wife Lillian, his daughter, Frances, his mother and father, one brother, John Will Holbrook, of Olive Hill, Ky., and seven sisters.

Mrs. Frank Havens, Mrs. Lionel Fanning, Mrs. Luther Finley, Catherine Holbrook, all of this city; Mrs. Dexter Evans, West Liberty, Ky.; Mrs. M. M. McCormick, Jenkins, Ky.; and Mrs. Earl Tyree of Olive Hill.

Funeral services were conducted at the home of his parents by Rev. H. L. Moore, Rev. T. F. Lyons and Rev. B. H. Kazee.

Mr. Holbrook leaves, other than his relatives, many friends to mourn his untimely passing.

Bobby Allen Has Knee Picked In Accident

Robert "Bobbie" Allen, nine year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Allen of this city, was painfully injured last Thursday as he clambered on the back of his father's truck, piercing his leg just below the knee on a sharp hook.

Several X-rays show his injured limb to be healing well. Tetanus shots were administered to prevent infection, possible from the rusty hook.

Young Allen is at the home of his parents on Main Street.

Has Paris Stamps

L. H. Horton, head of the College music department and stamp collector enthusiast, has received several stamps from the Paris Exposition now going on in Paris, France.

These stamps were sent to him by R. M. Bearout, a Frenchman and a friend of Horton's.

METHYL ALCOHOL RAGEDY CONSIDERED TO BE OF MOREHEAD'S WORST

Three Succumb To Effects Of Poison; Three More Still Seriously Ill

IS DEADLY POISON

Obtained From New Science Building At College

Three are dead and at least three more are not yet out of danger, in this consequence as the result of drinking methyl alcohol Monday night and Tuesday last week. The tragic results of drinking the poison came to light Wednesday night when one victim died. It was the first time that the fact became known that several of the young men of the city had obtained a gallon of the dangerous and certainly fatal poison from the science building at the college and had proceeded to drink it under the impression that it was grain alcohol.

The methyl alcohol is one of the most deadly of poisons. It is wood alcohol and is used at the college in the biology and chemistry departments. The jar containing the poison was labeled Methyl alcohol. There was no shadow of blame attached to the college authorities in connection with the matter, as they were absolutely innocent of any charge of carelessness or fault.

It is reliably reported that a Mr. Bronson, brick-layer from Portsmouth, Ohio, had been working on the building at the college, had reported that the alcohol was there. According to reports he had previously taken some denatured alcohol from the building and had drunk it without untoward results, and the supposition is that he thought this was his same quality and kind.

In the course of Monday evening and night at least a host of the young men of the town gathered and drank quantities of the liquid death. Later it developed that they had been drinking methyl alcohol with the resultant deaths.

Estep Out For Commissioner

Running For County Tax Commissioner Subject To Democratic Primary

In this issue appears the announcement of Peyton Estep as a candidate for the nomination to the office of Tax Commissioner, subject to the action of the Democratic voters at the primary election on August 7, 1937.

Mr. Estep is one of the best known Democrats in the county. He was elected to the office of magistrate from his district for one term, and served the county well and faithfully. He made the race for tax commissioner four years ago, being defeated in the primary. He plans on devoting the time between now and the primary in visiting the voters of the county to lay his case before them, and hopes to see them all. However, as the time is short he asks that they give him their consideration and if possible their support and influence in the coming election.

Reed Seeking G. O. P. Nomination

Is Prominent Republican; Member Of Third Magisterial District; On Board

In this issue appears the announcement of E. F. Reed as a candidate for the office of magistrate from the Third Magisterial District, composed of Plank, Pine Grove, Cranston and Brusby precincts, subject to the action of the Republican voters at the August primary.

Mr. Reed is one of the prominent Republicans of that section and is well known throughout the district. He has served as a member of the County Board of Education for several years, and now he will see the voters between now and the primary and hopes to secure their support and influence in the coming election.

Subject: God Provides A leader.
Exodus 3:1-12
Golden Text: "Come now therefore, I will send thee." Exodus 3:10

Israel is left in bondage in Egypt. There is no Joseph to look after them, and the succeeding rulers see that the Israelites are becoming so numerous that they may be a menace to the government any time. So they are put in bondage. They are made to serve Egypt in the various pursuits of hard labor, such as making brick with straw mixed with mud. Their masters drive them hard and require more of them than they can do. They appeal for leniency, but the answer is that they are to make brick with less straw, and to make more brick daily than ever. Their burdens become unbearable.

While that is going on, the decree that all the male children of the Israelites be killed is being carried out. An Israelite woman has to decide between the knife and the crocodiles for her baby boy. With faith in God, and singing her baby into God's care, she places little Moses in a basket and puts him in the flags among the rushes. There he is spied by the daughter of Pharaoh, and is taken up to become her son. Unknowingly, she calls the little fellow's Israelite mother to be his nurse. Thus Moses spends forty years in Pharaoh's court, receiving his education in preparation for a great work. But Egypt knows nothing of what they are doing for God. God works his purposes among this sinning world, and in spite of opposition, uses those who oppose him for his plans.

Later, Moses chose to leave the pleasant life in riches and luxury at the court of Pharaoh, to be forty years in the wilderness. Here he could commune with God and here God could teach him. So often we are too mixed up with this world to learn anything from God. While out there in the wilderness, Moses sees a bush burning. He looks upon it, and hears the voice of God: "I have seen the affliction of my people which are in Egypt, and I have heard their cry by reason of their taskmasters; for I know their sorrows; and I am come down to deliver them out of the hands of the Egyptians, and to bring them up a good land and large unto a land flowing with milk and honey. Come now therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring forth my people the children of Israel out of Egypt." Moses faltered, and was afraid he could not accomplish so great a task. God assured him, "Certainly, I will be with thee."

Announcement

TO THE DEMOCRATIC VOTERS OF ROWAN COUNTY:
During the past few weeks many of my friends have come to me and urged me to make the race for Tax Commissioner of Rowan County, and in answer to their request, I hereby announce that I am a candidate for the office of Tax Commissioner subject to the action of the Democratic voters at the Primary election on August 7, 1937.

I have been a life long Democrat and have served the people of this county for four years as their magistrate. If I am nominated and elected I propose to give them a clean, honest and fair accounting and to so conduct my official duties as to reflect credit not only on myself but on the county and on my friends.

As the time is very short I may not be able to see all of you before the primary. I feel that you all know me and know my record, and if I am unable because of the short time to call on you personally, I want you to know that I will appreciate any thing you may be able to do for me in the coming primary.

THE TIME BETWEEN

Is Your Obligation

We've seen many a little "booted foot" grow into "sneakers" and then into man-sized "gunboats." We're not given to "worn on the soles, spreads as he goes" mumbblings, but we do think there's something worth thinking about in that statement. Maybe the most important thing is Time. All that Time, from boy into man. That's when habits are acquired that will determine what the man will be. If you want a child to have the saving habit that's the time to start.

ENRICO CARUSO

His Mother Went Barefoot To Pay For His Music Lessons

Caruso's magical voice was not merely a gift from the gods, it was the reward of long years of exhausting work—of patient practice and unflinching determination.

In the beginning his voice was so light that this one teacher told him: "You can't sing. You haven't any voice at all. It sounds like the wind in the shutters."

For years, his voice cracked on high notes, and his acting was so poor that he was actually hissed during a performance. Few men have ever drunk so deeply of the heady wine of success as the immortal Caruso; yet at the very high noon of his fame, when he remembered the ordeal of those early years, he would burst into tears.

His mother died when he was fifteen, and all his life he carried her portrait with him wherever he went. She had given birth to twenty-one children. Eighteen of them died in infancy.

When he was only ten years old, his father took him out of school and put him to work in a factory. Every evening after work, Caruso studied music, but he was twenty-three years old before he was able to sing himself out of the factory.

In those days, he jumped at the chance to sing for his supper in a neighborhood cafe. He frequently hired himself out to warble serenades beneath some lady's window. While the lady's tone-deaf lover stood out boldly in the moonlight going through all the gestures of adoration, Caruso, hidden in the doorway, would pour forth his soul in tones as mellow and seductive as Apollo's.

Finally, when he got his first real chance to sing in opera, he was so nervous at rehearsal that his voice broke and splintered like falling glass. Again and again he tried, but every note was a disaster, at last he burst into tears and fled from the theatre.

When he actually made his debut in opera, he was tipsy. He was so tipsy that the audience drowned out his voice with hoists and catcalls. In those days, he was only an undisciplined study. One evening the tenor who sang the leading role was suddenly taken ill. Caruso was absent. Messengers were sent dashing through the streets to find him. Finally he was discovered in a wine shop, about three sheets to the wind.

He came as fast as he could to the theatre. When he arrived there breathless with excitement, the heat of the stuffy dressing room and the wine of the grape were too much. Suddenly the wine world began to spin like a merry-go-round. And when Caruso walked on to the stage, pandemonium broke loose in the theatre.

At the end of that performance, he was fired. The next day he was so heartbroken, so desperate, that he made up his mind to commit suicide.

He had in his pocket only one lira—just enough to buy a bottle of wine. He had had no food all day. And just as he was drinking his wine and planning how to kill himself the door flew open and in dashed a messenger—a messenger from the opera.

"Caruso!" he shouted. "Caruso, come. The people won't listen to that other tenor. They hissed him off the stage. They're shouting for you. For you!"

"For me!" Caruso cried. "That's silly. Why, they don't even know my name."

"Of course they don't know it," the messenger panted. "But they want you just the same. They're shouting for that drunkard!"

When Enrico Caruso died, he was several times a millionaire. His phonograph records alone earned him over two million dollars. Yet he had been so seared by the poverty of his youth, that up to the end of his life he wrote down every expenditure in a little book. Regardless of whether he bought a price-less bit of old lace or carved ivory for his collections, or tipped a bell-boy, he made a note of the exact amount.

He was haunted by all the superstitions of the Italian peasantry. To the day of his death, he feared the Evil Eye. He never crossed the ocean without first consulting an astrologer. He never walked under a ladder, or wore a new suit on Friday. And nothing could induce him to begin a journey or start a new undertaking on Tuesday or Friday.

He possessed the rarest and most valuable voice in the world, yet he smoked in his dressing room while he was putting on his make-up. When people asked him if smoking wouldn't hurt his voice, he merely laughed. He scoffed at dieting, and at every performance, just before he stepped on to the stage, he took a nip of whiskey and soda to clear his throat.

He had left school when he was ten, and he practically never read a book. He said to his wife: "Why should I read? I study from life itself."

Instead of reading, he spent hours over his collecting of stamps and rare coins. He had an extraordinary gift for caricature, and every week he contributed a cartoon to an Italian periodical.

For years he suffered from excruciating headaches that tortured his senses and made him scream from pain. As he grew older his astonishing vitality began to wane. He spent more and more of his time in the quiet of his study and cared less and less for the plaudits of the throng. Finally he succumbed to a driving melancholy and spent hours poring over his newspaper clippings, cutting them out and trimming them and pasting them in his book of memories. Perhaps the greatest and happiest moment of his life was when he first held his daughter Gloria in his arms. He said over and over again that he was only waiting for the moment when she would be big enough to run down the corridor and open the door of his studio. And one day in Italy, as Caruso stood by his piano, that very thing happened. He caught the little girl up in his arms, and with tears in his eyes, he said to his wife: "Do you remember—I was just waiting for this moment to come?"

And within a week he was dead.

THE GARDEN

Last week there was begun a discussion of vegetables to raise, in order to stretch the garden's effectiveness to the very last of the growing weather, and several suggestions were offered to that end. Here are some more.

Beans.—It is presumed that a bean planting schedule has been made, and is being maintained to assure plenty of fresh beans and an adequate canning-supply besides. However, a few more beans will not come amiss, especially of the "green-shell" sorts, sometimes called "fall beans," for although they are merely beans, their flavor is distinct and different. "Horticultural" is the variety to use, either Pole or Dwarf (bush type). The time to start them is in June, for they take 80 days to mature.

Cabbage.—Although it may not be part of the gardener's plan to provide cabbage to store for the winter, he can well arrange to have cabbage in his frost time, and have good, fresh cabbage for long after. Any early variety such as Golden Acre, Comenagen Market or Charleston Wakefield may be started even in early July, to result in just such cabbage. It is best to sow the seed in groups where the heads are finally to stand, to escape the

"Eloise" To Be In Last Ride At Cozy

"Eloise," one of the famed French taxicabs that took an important part in the world War, winds upon long and distinguished career with her appearance in "Cozy at Heaven," the Twentieth Century-Fox romance starring Simone Simon and James Stewart Friday and Saturday at the Cozy Theatre.

Time has taken its toll of a figure that once was the inspiration of all France. When the German army was hammering at the gates of Paris in 1914, Eloise became one of many similar taxicabs that carried the famous "Lions army" to the Marne.

Called upon recently to appear in "Seventh Heaven" Eloise bravely chugged onto the sound stage, while mechanics shook their heads doubtfully. Through the early scenes, she did very well, but when a burst of speed was called for, an ear-splitting crash, that made the sound track look like a volcano in eruption, heralded the skyward bearing of a piston whose conical bearing just couldn't stand the gaff.

An understudy was hastily built to take Eloise's place, but even ingenious studio engineers could not duplicate all those character marks—denials as they were termed by unfeeling mechanics—so Eloise was re-located throughout the picture for close-up scenes, while her duplicate made the speed runs.

A hazard of transplanting. Careful watch should be kept to take care of the seedlings against the dreaded beetle spring with Bordeaux in suggested. Later, there may come the cabbage worms, but assistance application of arsenicals is the care

I AM A CANDIDATE

Regardless of rumors or statements that you may hear, I am a candidate for the nomination to the office of

REPRESENTATIVE

FROM THE ROWAN BATH DISTRICT

I expect to see the majority of the voters, of this & Bath county before the primary. I am running on a platform of service and am not making extravagant promises that I cannot fulfill. On that platform I am soliciting your support and I want to assure you that I am in the race to be finish and will appreciate anything you may do in my cause.

Rumors have been circulated and statements made to the effect that I was withdrawing from the race for Representative. To those who may have made these statements or who may have heard them I wish to say:

Over a hundred Democrats of this county and a good number from Bath county not only asked me to make the race, but urged me to do so. When I finally reluctantly agreed to announce myself as a candidate, and made that announcement hundreds of other Democrats called on me voluntarily and without solicitation and pledged me their support. I told them that I was making the race as a Democrat at the request of Democrats and that I was in to the finish, be that what it may.

In view of the fact that efforts have been made to take me out of the race, I wish to again state that I have never gone back on my word, once it is given. I have never put my hand to the plow without finishing the furrow. I have never started anything that I did not do my best to finish.

I am making my own campaign, without casting reflection on any candidate in the race and I want every man and woman who feels that he can honestly and freely support me to cast their vote in my favor. I feel that I can be of service to the people of my district in Frankfort and that is my sole aim in making the race.

SYNOPSIS

Slam Loyale is paroled from prison after serving 18 months for a crime he did not commit. He returns to his Circle L ranch to find his father dead and sinister forces at work, trying to make him violate his parole so that he can gain back his freedom to prison.

The Brockwells and their gang are plotting to gain possession of Circle L ranch and the property of Mona Hall, a neighbor and life-long friend of Slam Loyale.

Slam discovers that Sheriff Starbuck has joined the plot against him. With the help of Dakota Blue and his cowboys, Slam Loyale defies the band-robbers to do their worst.

He only knew that he had this hated fellow where he wanted him, and that a keen, savage joy flooded him every time his falling fists found their mark.

He was insensible to the fact that Mona was tugging and crying at him. And even when Abe Farnochman, at the frantic behest of Slam, grabbed him from his prey, Slam still fought.

But the foreman was powerful. Between him and Mona, they finally got Slam into a chair, where Mona retained him by the simple method of sitting on his lap and wrapping both arms about his neck, at the same time pleading, with tearful words.

"Slam!" she cried. "Slam, you don't know what you're doing. They'll take you back — back to Jarillo."

Abe Farnochman, who had been leaning over Leo Brockwell, securing his guns, now looked up. There was a queer pain in Abe's eyes as he watched Mona.

"Not this time they won't miss Mona," he said quietly. "Remember if anybody goes to askin' questions it was me who hit Brockwell—not Slam."

These words, more than anything else, served to quiet Slam. Suddenly the hard-strung, tauntless went out of him and he sagged wearily. "I—I'm sorry Mona," he panted. "I reckon I shouldn't have paid no attention to him. But I'm all raw inside, an' that dang drives me loco. Abe, I'm shore findin' out who let your friends are. However, I can't let yuh take the blame on yore shoulder."

"Yuh shut up—an' be good!" growled Abe gruffly. "Brockwell had it comin' to him. Was I in yore place, I'd be been just as red-eyed."

With none too gentle power, Abe dragged Leo Brockwell erect and slammed him into a chair. Leo's eyes were glassy and his head rolling, but consciousness was returning. Slowly the light of complete comprehension showed in his eyes, and his bruised, swollen face twisted into a mask of hate and rage.

When Starbuck hears of this of this," he gasped, "y're all through, Loyale, yuh damned ex—Abe Farnochman shook him roughly. "Best thing yuh can do is close yore mouth an' keep it so. If Starbuck comes snoopin' around here I'll tell him it was me who whaled yuh, not Slam. Now yuh take yore rotten pollution off this ranch an' stay off. I told yuh some thin', get gone!"

Leo Brockwell went, with Abe Farnochman in close attendance. As the door closed behind them, Mona awoke suddenly to the somewhat embarrassing position she had taken, and slipped away from Slam, faint color whipping through her cheeks.

Slam did not appear to notice her confusion. His head was bent, and his eyes staring at the floor. Mebbe it'd been best if he had plugged me, he said heavily. Seems all I'm good for now is to be a liability to my friends. Shore, they can't pack my load forever. Better I reckon that Starbuck should take me back to Jarillo."

Mona stamped her foot. "Stop that kind of talk, Slam Loyale. You're no quitter. You're got a hard fight ahead, but it's worth while isn't it? You see how your real friends feel about it. They are willing to back you to the limit, believing in you utterly. And if you do them as a worthless, empty thing, you're just as worthless, empty thing."

"You're right, Mona," he agreed grimly. "I never guessed what real friendship meant until now. Shore, I'll play the game. Dakota Blue tells me that Leo Brockwell has been hangin' around yuh a lot. That don't mean yuh care in particular about him, does it?"

"Does it appear like it?" she retorted. "No, I don't care for him; I should say so. He gives me the shivers, always did. But I've got to get money from somewhere, things have been going so bad for me. And I've been tolerating him merely to put over this sale of stock."

"I thought that owing the money in one lump sum to the right sort of a person would enable me to get more time and pull through. But I that Abe was talking with him a bout 1-1 guess it's all off now.

Mona shoulders sagged a little wearily. Slam stood up and went over to her. "My friends ain't halted at nothin' to help me," he stated quietly. "An' I ain't gonna halt at nothin' to help them. How much money do yuh need? Yuh can have all I've got."

Mona's eyes grew a little misty. "I could use five thousand dollars very nicely, Slim," she acknowledged. "But I won't take a cent from you. You may need it for your self, later. Courtney and his gang may start in rustling you to pauper erisk any time, the same as he has me."

"Courtney?" exclaimed Slim. "Yuh mean Flash Courtney from over past Battle Mountain?"

Mona nodded.

Slam was silent, thinking. Yeah, he muttered finally. "It could be done. Flash Courtney sh!" He looked at Mona. "How come yuh ain't been able to fight him off? Have yuh taken it up with Jigger Starbuck?"

Mona shrugged. "I've seen Starbuck about it, but so far he hasn't done a great deal. And because of lack of funds, I haven't been able to keep anything like a full crew for the past year."

"You know how dad got roped in on that mining stock deal. When he died he left a lot of debts. Those whom he owed money to weren't very patient about it. It got to where I couldn't stand being haggled any longer. So I borrowed the five thousand dollars and paid off all of those old debts."

"I thought that owing the money in one lump sum to the right sort of a person would enable me to get more time and pull through. But I find it was merely robbing Peter to pay Paul. This sale I was tinkering with the Brockwells for, would have helped some, but I imagine it was just a matter of stalling off the inevitable a little longer. I'm afraid I'm going to lose my ranch, Slim."

Mona's voice was choked and teary as she finished.

"Who'd yuh borrow that money from?" asked Slim.

From—the lawyer, George Arthur."

Do You Know?

Tides are caused by the attractive force of the sun and the moon. Waves sometimes rise as high as fifty feet in the Bay of Fundy.

We Want You To Know

There's an "attractive force" in good work well done at a fair price. One customer tells another and our business grows because of our policy of guaranteeing satisfaction on every service and repair job.

Farm Homes

ANYWHERE

Can Have Conveniences Of Finest

MODERN REFRIGERATION

NATIONALLY FAMOUS

Electrolux

NOW OPERATES WITH
Needs No Electric Current—No Daily Attention—No Water
KEROSENE (Coal Oil)

If you've always longed for the many worthwhile conveniences and comforts of modern city refrigeration, here's your answer! Kerosene Electrolux brings farm homes anywhere all these big advantages. In all important respects, it is identical with the gas-operated Electrolux now serving finest American homes and apartments in cities from coast to coast.

You'll like the way Electrolux saves steps and food freezes delicious desserts, plenty of ice cubes. And you'll like, too, its amazingly low cost to run. This ideal farm refrigerator operates on ordinary kerosene (coal oil) for only a few pennies a day actually saves enough on food bills and refrigerating cost to pay for itself. One filling of the tank lasts a week or more. Electrolux uses no water.

The reason Electrolux can operate so efficiently is its simple refrigerating method. Electrolux has no moving parts at all! A wickless glow-type kerosene burner does all the work, eliminates depreciation due to moving, wearing parts. Today—clip coupon below for free literature.
