FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University's Board of Regents approved a $61.5 million operating budget for fiscal 1993-94 and awarded MSU President Dr. Ronald G. Eaglin a new four-year contract, starting July 1. The regents also endorsed new student housing and dining requirements which go into effect in fall 1994.

In announcing the new contract, board chairman William Seaton said that the board believed Dr. Eaglin "was doing a good job and had initiated policies which will move the University forward." He added that Dr. Eaglin was directing the University toward more public service in economic development.

The budget includes a 3 percent across the board pay increase for faculty and staff, funding for 18.6 new faculty and staff positions, increases to existing student scholarships to offset rising tuition/housing costs, a 27 percent increase in funding for library books and funds for expansion of the extended campus centers in Ashland and West Liberty.

The regents also increased Dr. Eaglin's 1993-94 salary by 3 percent to provide additional life insurance for him and health and dental benefits for Mrs. Eaglin. His current salary is $115,000.

During the discussion related to the budget and other personnel issues, the president reiterated his expectation that the salary increase pool for 1994-95 include a minimum of 25 percent of those funds to be distributed based on a merit system. Regent John Rosenberg asked for information on how other institutions nationwide deal with the issue of merit pay.

In acting on the operating budget, the regents also approved the 1993-94 fee schedule which includes an $80 per semester tuition increase set by the Council on Higher Education, a $5 increase in the student activity and services fee as requested by the Student Government Association, and a 7 percent increasing in student housing. A portion of the housing increase will be earmarked for additional student computer labs with expanded hours of operation.

Also approved was the 1993-94 personnel roster which reflects the University's organizational changes to be implemented July 1.

Effective with the fall 1994 semester, new and returning full-time students with fewer than 60 credit hours will be required to live in University housing and purchase a minimum $300 dining club plan.

The requirement will be waived for students who will be 21 years old during the semester; single parents; married students; students commuting from home of parents or guardian; students with documented medical reasons and veterans.

MSU officials expect the new housing policy to reverse a two-year decline in housing occupancy and to begin to address what is now an approximately $300,000 subsidy of housing from the general fund. Dr. Eaglin said that those dollars could be better spent on academic programs. The regents were told that national studies also show that students living in residence halls do better, stay in school, graduate sooner and are more involved with university life than those living off campus.

Other board actions during the April 30 meeting included approval of awarding an honorary degree to Faith Esham, an internationally-acclaimed operatic soprano and native of Lewis County, and approval of amendments to various personnel policies, ranging from tuition waivers for employees to sexual harassment.

The board also adopted resolutions commending outgoing student regent Chando Mapoma and Dr. Alban Wheeler, who had served as faculty regent for past six years, for their service. The oath of office was administered to the newly-elected faculty regent, Dr. Bruce Mattingly, who began his three-year term at this meeting.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Bryan Carlier, a senior from Batavia, Ohio, has been elected president of Morehead State University's Student Government Association (SGA). His one year term begins July 1.

As SGA president, Carlier, son of Paul and Darlene Carlier, will serve as the student representative on the MSU Board of Regents.

After being a member of SGA for two years, as a junior representative last year and most recently as programs director, the new president believes he has gained experience which will make him an effective leader.

"I am following a successful presidency and I want to continue those programs that will be most beneficial to students," Carlier said, paying tribute to the administration of outgoing SGA President Chando Mapoma. "I want to work toward improving campus facilities and the parking situation."

A business and marketing major, Carlier played soccer during his freshman year at MSU. While no longer participating in that sport, he has continued his support of athletics programs and considers that involvement an important one for all students.

"On this campus, we have the opportunity to know our student athletes," he said, recalling his friendship with Doug Bentz, former Eagle basketball standout. "MSU is the right size and has a warm, friendly atmosphere."

While he believes it was his qualifications that got him elected, Carlier attributes the encouragement of his parents and grandmother, Leona Eichold of Tavares, Fla., for his success. "My family has always supported my endeavors," he said. "And, I also have to thank every person who assisted by voting for me or by providing friendship," he added, noting that his roommate, Cynthiana junior Mike Huff, was elected president of the Interfraternity Council the same week as the SGA election.

Completing the slate of new SGA officers for 1993-94 are:

Executive vice president--Kristie D. Hicks, daughter of Joseph and Margaret Hicks of Bardstown. A senior radio-television major, she is a member of Kappa Delta social sorority, Theta Alpha Phi national honor theatre fraternity, MSU Players and Cardinal Key honor society.

Vice president for administration--Darren Caudill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Caudill of Marion, Ohio. A sophomore chemistry major, he is a member of American Chemical Society, Pre-med Club and Theta Chi social fraternity.

They were accompanied by their teachers Garnet Skaggs and Kay Ison, along with teacher aides Doris Moore and Evelyn West.

Cutlines:

- 1---On a tour of the Academic-Athletic Center, the students stopped at the swimming pool area, where Dr. Palmer Adkins, assistant professor of health, physical education and recreation, pointed out features of the diving well and pool.
- 2---While at the AAC, Kelli Graham, left, tried her luck at shooting free throws in Johnson Arena as Joe Cantrell waited for his turn.
- 3---A visit to Lappin Hall, MSU's science building, gave the youngsters an opportunity to feel the differences in the pelts of two furry creatures found in Eastern Kentucky as Les Meade, associate professor of biology, offered explanations.
- 4---This painting depicting Noah's Ark, using wood and metal, caught the attention of Harry Houston as the class stopped to see the exhibits at MSU's Folk Art Center.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Dr. Wanda Durrett Bigham, a Morehead State University administrator, has been named president of Huntingdon College and will assume her new duties June 1.

Located in Montgomery, Ala., Huntingdon is a four-year, co-educational liberal arts college which is affiliated with the United Methodist Church. It enrolls approximately 800 students.

According to Jack Boykin, chairman of the school's board of trustees, Dr. Bigham may be the first woman president of a four-year residential college in the state of Alabama. She will be the 13th president in the school's 139 year history.

Currently special assistant to MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin, Dr. Bigham previously served in a variety of roles with the University, including acting dean of graduate and special academic programs and associate dean for academic affairs.

"Huntingdon College is fortunate in gaining Dr. Bigham as its chief executive," said Dr. Eaglin. "Her organizational, administrative and leadership skills cannot be challenged. Dr. Bigham joined the president's staff at my request this spring and has been a tremendous asset to this office," he added.

A former president of Marycrest College, now Teikyo Marycrest University, in Davenport, Iowa, Dr. Bigham left MSU in 1985 for Emerson College. There she was executive assistant to the president and later vice president for development and college relations. She held the Marycrest presidency from 1986 to 1992.

Dr. Bigham earned a bachelor's degree in music education at Murray State, master's degrees in music and higher education from MSU, and her doctorate in higher education from the University of Kentucky. She has studied at Harvard University's Institute for Educational Management and is an American Council on Education Fellow in Academic Administration.

Her involvement in professional organizations at many levels include service with the American Council on Education as a member of the Committee on Self-Regulation, State Coordinator of the organization's National Identification Program, and member of the Professional Development Committee of the ACE Fellows Program. Active in the National Council of Educational Opportunity Associations, she has served as treasurer and board member. In addition, she was president from 1983-85 of the Southeastern Association of Educational Opportunity Personnel, an organization which includes members from Alabama.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Registration is currently under way for the third annual Summer Keyboard Experience, sponsored by Morehead State University's Department of Music and slated for June 6-10.

The five-day program is open to high school keyboard students and adults interested in enriching their keyboard skills, according to Dr. Paul Taylor, MSU assistant professor of music and coordinator for the session.

"Area keyboard teachers have the option of enrolling either as participants or observers," Dr. Taylor said.

Classes will begin at 9 a.m. and continue throughout the day with several special evening activities and field trips planned. One of the field trips will be a tour of a piano factory in Salt Lick, Ind.

Offerings will include daily sessions in piano, organ, harpsichord, electronic keyboard instruments, jazz improvisation, sight reading and accompanying.

Cost of the Keyboard Experience will be $205 which includes room and board or $100 for those participating only in the day sessions.

The program will close on Thursday evening, June 10, with what Dr. Taylor described as a "Monster Concert." Approximately 60 keyboard students from a four-county area of Eastern Kentucky, who were selected by audition, will perform as a large ensemble. "We will have 20 to 30 pianos on the stage each with multiple keyboardists playing together," Dr. Taylor said.

"Monster Concert" participants are from Montgomery, Mason, Johnson and Rowan counties.

Serving as faculty with Dr. Taylor will be Jay Flippin, associate professor of music; Larry Keenan, professor of music, and Fred Tremper, keyboard technician.

Keyboardists interested in registering may contact Dr. Taylor at (606) 783-2405.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Plans are being finalized for a reunion of former students and faculty of Breckinridge School, which served as Morehead State University's laboratory school for teacher training from 1924 to 1982.

Nearly 1,900 alumni and faculty have been invited to return for a variety of special activities and to renew friendships during the weekend of July 2-4.

Among those expected to attend is a member of the first graduating class in 1932, former state Court of Appeals Judge Elijah Hogge of Frankfort.

Breck alumni can be found in 48 of the 50 states, from Hawaii to Alaska and from Florida to Massachusetts, but the majority make Kentucky their home, according to Barbara Brown Fannin of Morehead (Class of '60), vice chair of the reunion executive committee.

"They've distinguished themselves in their careers, whether as business professionals, educators, doctors, lawyers, engineers or civic leaders. There are many who would credit their success to the Breck legacy of educational excellence," said Fannin.

Serving on the executive committee in addition to Fannin and the committee chair Jack L. Barber of Wilmore (Class of '53), are Walter W. Carr, (Class of '38), and Shirley Mobley Parker (Class of '56), both of Morehead; James C. Clay (Class of '54), William Earl Clay (Class of '52), Nancy Duggan Mangrum (Class of '65), Caroline Bowne McBrayer (Class of '60) and Patricia Crutcher Skaggs (Class of '52), all of Lexington. Assisting the executive committee are nearly three dozen other Breck alums from the region.

At 4 p.m. on Friday, July 2, there will be a brief ceremony during which the contents of the time capsule in the Breck Cornerstone will be removed for placement in the Breck Archives in Camden-Carroll Library. The time capsule was placed in the cornerstone during the 1930 construction of Breckinridge. A Dutch treat cookout and mixer will follow at the pool pavilion of Morehead's Holiday Inn with special entertainment by an alumni group.

On Saturday, July 3, registration will be conducted from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Adron Doran University Center with brunch in the Crager Room also at 10 a.m. The day continues with tours of Breckinridge Hall, the Breck Archives and the MSU campus. MSU President and Mrs. Ronald G. Eaglin will host an afternoon ice cream social on the lawn of the president's home.

Class photos will be taken during the social hour that evening and seating for the banquet that follows will be by class year. After dining and a special program, reunion-goers will dance until midnight in Wetherby Gymnasium.

The Holiday Inn dining room and pool pavilion will be the location on Sunday, July 4, for a Dutch treat breakfast buffet from 7 to 11 a.m., with the afternoon free for individual class get togethers.

Breck alums also will be able to purchase commemorative items to remind them of their days at the school, including a coffee mug and t-shirt with the school logo. Also a reunion video and class photos may be purchased or ordered.

Reservations for the reunion may be made by contacting the MSU Foundation, Palmer Development House, Morehead State University, Morehead, KY 40351-1689. Telephone: (606) 783-2033. The $20 per person cost includes Saturday's brunch, banquet and dance.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---John Michael Seelig, a member of Morehead State University's faculty since 1983, will be the recipient of the University's 1993 Distinguished Service Award.

The award will be presented by MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin during Spring Commencement on Saturday, May 15, at 1:30 p.m. in the Academic-Athletic Center.

Established last year, this award is given to recognize those at MSU who exemplify the highest ideals of citizenship and service.

Seelig, a professor and director of MSU's Social Work Program, recently added the role of affirmative action officer for the University to his other duties.

An advocate of faculty governance, Seelig has served the University as a leader in that arena as well as in his efforts to see that MSU's social work program meets the needs of future and current practitioners. In the community, he has given freely of his time as a speaker, workshop/seminar facilitator and even as a youth coach.

"Mike Seelig is a multi-faceted individual who has repeatedly demonstrated his commitment to service by enthusiastically accepting leadership roles at the University and by constantly endeavoring to improve the social work education program at all levels," Dr. Eaglin said.

Seelig has consistently taken leadership roles at the University. In addition to serving several terms on MSU's Faculty Senate and as its chair during 1987-88, he was a leader in reestablishing the campus AAUP Chapter of which he is president. He is a state AAUP vice president and serves on the AAUP Investigative Team. Last year he received the Kentucky Conference of AAUP's Paul Oberst Award for upholding the principles of academic freedom. Also, Seelig was instrumental in organizing MSU's Staff Congress.

As program coordinator of MSU's social work program, Seelig worked to develop a flexible evening B.S.W. degree program and was the major player in establishing the cooperative M.S.W. degree program with the University of Kentucky. Under his leadership, the undergraduate program has grown from 35 majors to 200.

Co-author of the grant which resulted in the establishment of the MSU Consortium Training Resources Center, Seelig now co-directs the center's activities in providing enhanced training for social workers in the state and region.

A Fulbright Scholar, Seelig has presented more than 21 papers at state, regional, national and international conferences. The author or co-author of 19 articles for professional journals, he has served as legal issues editor for the Journal of Independent Social Work since 1987.

He holds master's degrees in social work and public administration from Ohio State University and the J.D. degree from Capital University.

During the commencement ceremony, degrees will be conferred on more than 750 undergraduate and graduate candidates. International opera star Faith Esham, a native of Lewis County, will receive the honorary Doctor of Musical Arts degree. The student speaker will be Dorothy E. For example, while students are "learning through computers," they will have activities in language, math and reading. All programs utilize a self-paced concept with computer printouts to show one's progress.

MSU education students enrolled in classes during the two summer terms will have the opportunity to observe teachers and students who are involved in the program.

WEST LIBERTY, Ky.---Education programs in prisons are not a waste of taxpayers' money, but an investment in the future was the message delivered Friday night (May 14) by one of those investments.

The speaker, William K. Brown, was one of five inmates of the Eastern Kentucky Correctional Complex who earned degrees from Morehead State University under a program offered at EKCC through the University's Licking Valley Extended Campus Center.

MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin, along with other MSU administrators and faculty garbed in traditional academic regalia, joined with state corrections officials to conduct a special commencement program at EKCC for the graduating inmates and their families.

Brown of Catlettsburg, Michael Lonnie Burke of Newport, Dewayne E. Goodlett of Taylorsville, Charles Wayne Houpp of Nicholasville, and David E. Russell of Mt. Carmel, Ohio, received the Associate of Arts degree from MSU. Brown, Houpp and Russell graduated with distinction.

"Unfortunately, there is very little that we can do about what happened yesterday, other than learn from those mistakes and not repeat them," Brown told his listeners. "Dwelling on these mistakes is not what this degree is about. It is about tomorrow."

Convinced that he wouldn't be in prison today, if he had pursued a college education rather than taking "the easy way out," Brown said that his vocational choice of welding had led to hard labor, discontent, frustration and alcoholism.

Noting that he had made a number of excuses for not going on to college, Brown said that he now knows that they were false barriers. "Education is about overcoming these fears and recognizing our abilities. It's about finding the answer to whatever problems exist. It's about looking to the future with pride and never looking back," he added.

"Recidivism is the problem we have to combat now," Brown said, adding that overcrowding in the nation's prison is aggravated by recidivism. "The only proven thing to combat recidivism is education," he said.

According to Brown, between 60 and 80 percent of people released from prison without education return in a short period of time, but that drops dramatically to 35 percent for those with a little education.

"Each time someone leaves prison without an education and returns, it costs the taxpayers a lot more more money than it would have to educate them to begin with," he said.

EKCC Graduation

"There are forces in our government that would take education programs out of the prison system in the name of saving a dollar," he said, urging the members of the audience to write their congressmen and tell them to continue this program.

Under current federal legislation, there is a possibility that Pell Grants may not be available to prison inmates.

MSU President Eaglin, who conferred the degrees, earlier told the graduates that the University was proud of its program and what it is doing to help them and other inmates prepare themselves for a productive life when they return to society.

"Many of you are aware that certain political leaders and others are critical of college degree programs at correctional institutions," he said.

"But we know at MSU that education has proven to be the best method of rehabilitation and we want everyone at this institution to know that Morehead State is committed to helping you get out and stay out through education," Dr. Eaglin said.

EKCC Warden Michael J. O'Dea welcome the inmates' families and other guests to the ceremony which was followed by a reception.

MSU has been offering college classes at EKCC since fall 1990 and this is the second class to graduate from the program. The first four students received their degrees at this time last year in a similar commencement program.

SPECIAL TO THE FLOYD COUNTY TIMES PROGRESS EDITION COPY

The growth of Morehead State University's Big Sandy Extended Campus Center is a clear indication of the region's desire for additional higher education opportunities and MSU officials believe that growth pattern will continue.

"Regional sites, such as the Big Sandy Center, are where our future enrollment increases will be seen," said MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin. He added that he envisions a time when the University's off-campus enrollment might equal that of the main campus.

Last fall the Big Sandy Center had nearly 600 students taking a variety of undergraduate and graduate courses, a 19 percent increase over the previous year. The Big Sandy ECC serves students from Floyd, Pike, Martin, Magoffin, Johnson, Lawrence, Perry and Knott counties.

With classes in sociology, history, psychology, paralegal studies, speech, government, art, biology and other disciplines, the Center also offers two plus two programs in elementary education and business along with a B.S.N. degree program for registered nurses which saw its first graduates this spring. Several graduate programs in education also are available at the Big Sandy ECC.

Last year, the Center began offering classes during summer terms and a full schedule is planned this year. Summer term registration at the Center is scheduled for Monday, June 7, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

This fall, the Big Sandy ECC will be one of two off-campus sites for a special graduate class in management which will be offered through distance learning by interactive computer (Optel System) and voice communication integrated with videotapes. Teaching the course will be Dr. Rodger D. Carlson, professor of marketing, who will rotate teaching the class from the main campus to the Big Sandy and the Ashland Area centers.

While MSU has offered graduate work in Prestonsburg since the 1960s, the addition of upper division undergraduate work complementing existing coursework at community colleges and other schools came in 1986. Working closely with Prestonsburg Community College, MSU sought to identify the needs of those people with two years of college who could not leave the area to take additional work toward a four-year degree.

The interest in these programs shown by residents of the region resulted in the Council on Higher Education formally designating the regional site as an extended campus center in 1989.

"Our goal is to see that programs are offered at the Center which will enable students in the Big Sandy area to have more employment opportunities in the region," said Dr. Marc D. Glasser, dean of MSU's Graduate and Extended Campus Programs.

"Currently we are exploring the possibility of offering the baccalaureate degree in social work sometime in the future, but that will be dependent on funding being available and the demand for such a program," he added.

The Big Sandy ECC plans to add its second resident faculty member this fall to assist with the elementary education program, joining Dr. David Peterson, assistant professor of elementary education, at the Center.

"This will make it possible for us to enhance the elementary education program we already are offering," said Dr. Margaret Lewis, who assumed the post of director of the Center last summer. "This also is indicative of MSU's commitment to the Big Sandy area.

"We hope to continue expanding our offerings and will be examining how technology can be used to enhance the marketability of our students," she added.

For many years, the MSU classes were housed at Prestonsburg Community College, but as space needs of both PCC and the MSU Center increased, it became apparent that the University needed its own facility. In fall 1991, the Big Sandy ECC moved into its new quarters in the Highlands Plaza Shopping Center.

The new facility offers approximately 14,000 square feet of space for 10 classrooms, offices, a student lounge and a computer lab equipped with 19 PCs and several laser printers. One classroom includes an instructional media lab for teacher education students, while another is equipped for the nursing students. A bookstore operates in the Center at the start and the close of each term, for the buying and selling of textbooks and miscellaneous supplies.

The center also offers computerized registration and access to the on-line card catalog at Camden-Carroll Library on the main campus. A steerable satellite dish gives the Center access to teleconferences and to KET's Star Channel, while a "KET Cabinet" with computer, TV monitor, VCR and interactive keypads makes it possible for participation in any KET-aired teleconference.

The Big Sandy Center also has the computer capability of helping students from other schools determine not only what courses will transfer to MSU but also what additional work is needed to complete a degree.

Working with the students, in addition to Dr. Lewis and the faculty members is Debra Slone Salyer, academic/student services coordinator, who splits her time between the Big Sandy and the Ashland Area centers.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---"If you can't sing good, sing loud."

That phrase used by the father of opera star Faith Esham to tease her was the message she brought to Morehead State University's spring graduating class of 1993.

About 670 of the nearly 800 candidates for undergraduate and graduate degrees were present for commencement program which drew more than 6,500 friends and family members to the Academic-Athletic Center.

Esham, a native of Lewis County who is now an internationally-acclaimed operatic soprano, was the recipient of an honorary Doctor of Musical Arts degree, conferred by MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin on behalf of the Board of Regents.

"Each of us here--each one of you-- has a song in your heart and this song will lead you to service," Esham told the audience. "So I say to you today, sing loud, sing with joy, sing with wisdom and with a prayer in your heart. It will make a difference," added Esham, who closed her acceptance remarks by singing "The Prayer of St. Francis."

She also paid tribute to her mother, Mrs. Ruth Esham of Vanceburg, and her "mom-ette" and former vocal teacher, Vasile Venettozzi, for their support over the years. Esham studied for four years with Venettozzi, who retired from MSU's faculty in December. Esham's father, the late Dr. Ellwood Esham, served as an MSU regent from 1954 to 1958.

Dr. Eaglin called the honorary degree the highest recognition of personal accomplishment that can be bestowed by an institution of higher education. MSU's primary objective in awarding honorary doctoral degrees is to recognize individuals associated with Eastern Kentucky who achieved national and/or international prominence.

"Such persons are a source of pride to us and to our fellow citizens as they help combat the negative stereotypes of the good people who live in these hills and hollows," the president said.

Student speaker Dorothy E. Schmidt of Georgetown reminded her fellow graduates that their education was not over. "A college education is a great starting point," she said. "Continued education and self-improvement are essential in making our lives meaningful and challenging," said Schmidt, who received her B.S. degree in veterinary technology with honors.

"Our education can take us to great heights, but how high and how far we go is up to us. Remember, eagles can glide along on currents of air, but to get where they want to go they have to flap their wings," she said.

Also presented by Dr. Eaglin during commencement was MSU's Distinguished Service Award which recognizes those at MSU who exemplify the highest ideals of service and citizenship. This year's recipient was John Michael Seelig, professor and director of the University's Social Work Program.

Following the conferring of degrees, MSU's newest alumni were inducted into the Alumni Association by William H. Redwine, director of alumni relations. The new graduates join 37,000 MSU alumni nationwide and abroad.

After commencement, President and Mrs. Eaglin greeted the new graduates and their families at an Alumni Association-sponsored reception outside the AAC.

MSU COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

Student speaker for Morehead State University's spring 1993 commencement was Dorothy E. Schmidt of Georgetown, who received her B.S. degree in veterinary technology with honors.

"Our education can take us to great heights, but how high and how far we go is up to us," she told her classmates. Schmidt is the daughter of Georgetown residents Mr. and Mrs.

Leslie Schmidt and granddaughter of Anna Mallory. In addition to the degrees awarded to nearly 800 undergraduate and graduate candidates, an honorary Doctor of Musical Arts was conferred on Eastern Kentucky native Faith Esham, an internationally-acclaimed opera star.

More than 6,500 people filled MSU's Academic-Athletic Center for the program.

GRADUATING WITH DADDY

Commencement at Morehead State University has always been a family affair, but this spring it was even more so for graduating senior John Walsh of Morehead as he carried daughter Elizabeth across the stage with him. Congratulating Walsh on receiving his Bachelor of Business Administration degree is MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin.

GETTING READY

Nearly 800 undergraduate and graduate degrees were conferred at Morehead State University's recent spring commencement, with approximately 670 of those candidates taking part. Here Sherry Gray of Morehead, who received her B.B.A degree, helps Ralph Logan, a staff member with MSU's Department of Military Science, with his mortar board prior to the academic procession into the Academic-Athletic Center. Logan received his Associate of Arts degree.

CAPPING IT OFF

Recently, it has become a tradition for many university graduates to tape messages to their mortar boards worn at commencement. One of Morehead State University's spring graduates, Samantha Jo Dunaway of Bellevue, may have just taken that tradition to new heights. Perhaps in memory of all the coffee consumed over the past four-years, Dunaway adorned her mortar board with coffee pot and mug. Dunaway, who was the speaker for MSU's recent Academic Awards Convocation, received her B.A. degree with honors, majoring in English with minors in Spanish and creative writing. MSU's spring commencement class included nearly 800 undergraduate and graduate degree candidates.

MSU SPRING COMMENCEMENT '93: A Picture Story

With nearly 800 undergraduate and graduate students scheduled to receive degrees, Morehead State University's spring 1993 commencement drew more than 6,500 friends and family members of the candidates to the Academic-Athletic Center. Honorary degree recipient Faith Esham of Vanceburg, an acclaimed operatic soprano, told the graduates that each of them had "a song in your hearts" and urged them to sing loud with joy, with wisdom and with a prayer in their hearts. When MSU President Eaglin asked the 670 plus grads taking part in commencement how many were first in their families to earn a degree, approximately 80% stood up. Student speaker Dorothy E. Schmidt of Georgetown reminded her classmates that their college education was only a starting point. Commencement also was the backdrop for the presentation of MSU's 1993 Distinguished Service Award to J. Michael Seelig, professor and coordinator of the social work program.

- 1---Nearly every seat in Ellis T. Johnson Arena was filled as 6,500 friends and family members turned out for spring commencement which saw degrees conferred on nearly 800 candidates by MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin.
- 2---Prior to entering the Academic-Athletic Center, students often help one another adjust their caps and gowns. Here Sherry Gray of Morehead, who received her B.B.A degree, helps Ralph Logan, a staff member with MSU's Department of Military Science, with his mortar board. Logan received his Associate of Arts degree.
- 3---For J. Michael Seelig, right, professor and coordinator of the social work program, commencement brought formal recognition of his service to the institution. Presenting him the medallion symbolic of his selection as the 1993 Distinguished Service Award recipient was MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin.
- 4---Student speaker for spring commencement was Dorothy E. Schmidt of Georgetown, who received her B.S. degree in veterinary technology with honors. "Our education can take us to great heights, but how high and how far we go is up to us," she told her classmates.
- 5---Commencement at MSU has always been a family affair, but this spring it was even more so for graduating senior John Walsh of Morehead as he carried daughter Elizabeth across the stage with him, stopping to receive congratulations on attaining the Bachelor of Business Administration degree from President Eaglin.

Spring Commencement

- 6---In recent years, it has become a tradition for graduates to tape messages to their mortar boards worn at commencement. One of Morehead State University's spring graduates, Samantha Jo Dunaway of Bellevue, may have just taken that tradition to new heights. Perhaps in memory of all the coffee consumed over the past four-years, Dunaway adorned her mortar board with coffee pot and mug. Dunaway received her B.A. degree with honors, majoring in English with minors in Spanish and creative writing.
- 7---Among the spring graduates was Beth Ousley, former Lady Eagle Basketball standout who completed her Master of Business Administration degree. Hooding her was Dr. John C. Philley, MSU's interim executive vice president for academic affairs.
- 8---Following the ceremony, the graduates and their families had a chance to visit with faculty and staff at a reception, sponsored by the MSU Alumni Association.

MOREHEAD, Ky.----"Not only was it the largest but also the most beautiful building in Morehead."

"It had the latest in facilities--a science lab, woodworking department, nice library and an indoor gymnasium."

This is how former state Court of Appeals Judge Elijah Hogge of Frankfort describes Breckinridge School, where he was a member of the first graduation class in 1932.

Hogge is planning to return to his former high school for its first school-wide reunion July 2-4. He is curious as to how many others, from the nearly 1,900 alumni and friends who also have been invited, will return to Breckinridge for the weekend's activities.

Planning to be a lawyer, Hogge anxiously enrolled in Breck when the new building was completed in 1930 so he could take Latin. "My dad was a lawyer and it was expected that I become a lawyer as well," he said. "And Latin is something I still use frequently in the legal profession."

Because the teachers were so well prepared, Hogge believes the students at Breck, which also was Morehead State University's laboratory school for teacher training from 1924 to 1982, received a quality education. In addition to his Latin teacher, Juanita Minnish, he remembers George Young, Mildred Silver and Lucille Catlett among those first educators at Breck.

While the school in its early days did not have a formal athletic program, Hogge was a member of the first basketball team. "We did not have real uniforms but we donned khaki shorts and white tank tops to play," he said. The competition included approximately half-dozen neighboring schools and he believes that the major victory was a win over Soldier, a former school in Carter County, with a score of 16-12.

Life was much different in the '30s than it is today, Hogge noted. "There was no thought or mention of drugs in the schools," he said, recalling that there were approximately 500 students enrolled in the college and fewer than 100 attending Breck. Recreational activities included going to a movie at the Cozy Theatre where the feature changed four times a week, bowling a line for 15-25 cents, and eating at the Amos and Andy restaurant where 10 cents bought a hamburger or hot dog and soft drinks were a nickel.

For Hogge, a highlight of his high school days was the lunchtime activities when he and friend Roger Caudill listened to music on the car radio. "Roger was the only one in my class with a car," he said. "Every day, we would drive around listening to a broadcast from the Netherland Plaza Hotel in Cincinnati."

Elijah Hogge

Education was a high priority in the Hogge household when he was growing up. His father Lester Hogge, a 1906 graduate of Morehead Normal School, was a school supervisor in the Rowan County School system where he worked with the Moonlight School Program and Cora Wilson Stewart, county superintendent. His mother, Maude, was a teacher in the same system.

After graduating from high school at 15, Hogge enrolled in Morehead State Teachers College because his parents believed him to be too young to leave home. When he graduated at 19, Hogge was off to Washington and Lee University in Lexington, Va., for his law degree.

With a career in law that has spanned several decades and numerous positions, Hogge has remained close to Rowan County and a building on the edge of campus bears his name today. He was a county attorney and practiced law in the Eastern Kentucky town in the '40s, before and after a stint in the naval reserve.

In 1957, Hogge was named commonwealth attorney for Rowan, Bath, Menifee and Montgomery counties. He served in that position until 1971 when he became actively engaged in Gov. Wendell Ford's campaign. Ford's successful race opened the door for political aspirations when Hogge was named to the cabinet. He became the first secretary of the newly-organized Transportation Cabinet, which included the Department of Highways and Motor Vehicles. Under his supervision, the highway linking Morehead to Northern Kentucky, by way of Flemingsburg and Maysville, was improved. He later resigned that post to serve on the Public Protection and Regulation Cabinet.

Under Gov. Julian Carroll's administration, Hogge was named to the Kentucky Court of Appeals for the first time. Today, he is counsel with Hazelrigg and Cox and hears all cases that come before the State Racing Commission as well as serving as a special judge who can be assigned to hear cases anywhere in Kentucky.

While he continues to live in Frankfort, Hogge makes frequent visits to the 135-acre farm he purchased in Fleming County. He is renovating and improving the Cloverland Farm which he has owned since 1988. "When I used to travel from Morehead to Cincinnati, this farm always looked so pretty," he said. "I always thought it would be fun to own."

In the days leading up to the Breck reunion, Hogge will join many others reviewing their yearbooks and trying to remember the names of former friends and classmates.

May 28, 1993

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Effective June 1, administrative oversight of Morehead State University's intercollegiate athletics program will shift to the Division of Student Life from the Division of University Advancement, where it had been since 1990.

The move is just one piece of an organizational restructuring of the University which was announced earlier, MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin said.

"In reviewing the functions of the institution, it became apparent that athletics was really more closely aligned with student affairs than with advancement," Dr. Eaglin said.

"Much of the reorganization takes effect July 1 and later, but we moved up the timeline on this change to enable the vice president for Student Life (Mike Mincey) to participate in some of the current planning for the 1993-94 program," Dr. Eaglin added.

"The shift also will allow our vice president for University Advancement (Keith Kappes) to more fully focus on his roles in governmental and legislative affairs, development and institutional relations which are key areas to Morehead State's future," the president said.

Shortly after his arrival on campus last July, Dr. Eaglin requested the University Planning Council to initiate a study of the University's structure. Meetings were held with all segments of the campus and input was solicited from all faculty, staff and students before the final plan was presented to the Board of Regents in April.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---A Morehead State University administrator will be honored by Mason County High School at its graduation exercises on June 4.

Jerry Gore, minority student affairs director, will be recognized as MCHS's 1993 Distinguished Alumnus. Gore is a graduate of the former Maysville High School which was merged with Mason County last year. The Maysville native and three-time graduate of MSU also did his student teaching at MCHS in 1970.

Gore, who has served in his current post at MSU since 1985, said he believes he is being recognized for his efforts to encourage minority and other students to set educational goals and work toward attaining these goals, especially those from his home area.

Previously he was recognized by the Maysville-Mason County Black Caucus as the 1988 recipient of its Outstanding Merit Award for Community Service.

A member of the MSU staff since 1972, Gore has held several administrative posts over the years, including residence hall director, counselor, assistant to the dean of students and assistant to the admissions director.

Adviser to MSU's Black Student Coalition, Gore was one of the founders of the Black Gospel Ensemble which celebrated its 25th anniversary this year. He and a colleague, Dr. Stuart S. Sprague, MSU professor of history, are collaborating on a research project to reconstruct the history of African-Americans in Maysville and Eastern Kentucky.

Active in the community, he has served on the Morehead Human Rights Commission, the Morehead-Rowan County Arts Council and on the board of the Friends of KET.

Gore is the son of Mrs. Hattie Dunlap of Maysville and the late Wilbert Dunlap.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University will be a host site for a two-hour teleconference, "Competing in the '90s: Forming Business Networks," on Wednesday, June 9, beginning at 3:30 p.m.

Coordinated by MSU's Small Business Development Center, an arm of the College of Business, the teleconference will be held in the Eagle Room, Adron Doran University.

Because of limited seating, registrations must be received by noon Tuesday, June 8, and may be made by calling the SBDC at (606) 783-2895. Arrangements will be made for the disabled when requested in advance.

The teleconference will provide participants with specific examples of companies which have been helped by participating in business networks and specific ideas about how Kentucky firms can form such networks.

Participants will be able to interact with the panel members by using KET keypads and telephone.

The teleconference is a statewide collaborative effort with the Kentucky Economic Development Cabinet-Business and Technology Council, Inc., Kentucky Science and Technology Council, Inc., KET, Kentucky Small Business Development Centers, Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, Kentucky Department for Libraries and Archives and the University of Kentucky Community College System.

MOREHEAD, Ky.—Folk Fest '93 will bring the great folk sounds of the '60s to the region as part of the many activities slated for Morehead State University's 17th annual Appalachian Celebration, June 20-26.

Folk Fest '93, which is free, is scheduled for Tuesday evening, June 23, on the lawn of the Laughlin Health Building. Picnic grounds will open at 7 p.m. with the Folk Fest '93 concert starting at 8 p.m. (The rain location will be Baird Music Building.)

"We've planned this as a family event, so we invite everyone to bring a picnic basket and blanket and enjoy the talents of musicians from the region under the stars," said Steve Young, one of the hosts for the evening.

Joining him as hosts will be Harvey Pennington and Glen Buckner, Young's friends from "Friends and Folk," a program aired by WMKY 90.3 F.M., public radio from MSU's campus, on Saturdays each week at 3 p.m.

According to Young, the evening's sounds will be reminiscent of the days when instruments were acoustic and played instead of being plugged in. "The folk music of the '60s was simple, honest and played at less than 150 decibels. Not only were the lyrics important, but you could understand them," he said.

"If names like Joan Baez, the Kingston Trio, Judy Collins, Peter, Paul and Mary or the Brothers Four conjure up pleasant memories, you'll want to be on hand for Folk Fest," he added.

Musicians from the region also will include Tim Gibson of Louisville, Emily Weatherspoon of Russellville, Ohio, Rob McNurlin of Ashland, the Tru-Tones from Morehead, Brenda and Steve Rigsby of Morehead, Robert Tincher of Lexington and Raison D'Etre of Covington.

Appalachian Celebration, a weeklong series of events sponsored by MSU's Office of Community Services, is held each year to promote an understanding of Appalachia, its people, its culture and its rich heritage.

The week's activities include an exploration of traditional music and dance, films from Appalshop, symposiums, crafts demonstrations, exhibits, dramatic performances and inservice workshops for teachers.

Capping the week is the Arts and Crafts Market from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday, June 26, at Laughlin Health Building.
