Nine Men Arrested For Dynamiting Of Fish At Wrigley

Greene, Mutters, Laws, Pieratt Make Arrests On Felony Warrants

Nine Wrigley men were arrested Monday for dynamiting fish, perhaps the largest number ever arrested at one time in Kentucky for this offense, in North Fork of Triplett Creek, on information obtained by Game Warden Mutters. The arrests were made by Van Y. Greene, Game Warden Laws, of Parand, District Warden A. W. Pieratt, of Hazel Green. The men were placed in the West Liberty Jail and will have their remaining trial May 22 at that city. Those arrested included: Elmer White, Paul Fugate, Wayne Witt, Wendell Lewis, Cleveland Burl Click, Roy Egan, Burnie Whit and Herman Brown.

Mutters said that ten holes were found dynamited in the creek between Wrigley and Caney. He worked in that area for three days last week following up and then called in the other wardens who obtained the information and subsequently made the arrests.

One of the features of the cooking school sponsored by the Union Grocery Company here next Monday and Tuesday afternoons will be the appearance of Miss America, reigning Queen of Beauty, who was recently crowned at Atlantic City. Miss America (Miss Marilyn Mescke) is from Marion, Ohio. New Attractions, Side Shows, And Minstrels Are Featured

This carnival has been coming here for several years and Mr. Bee and most of the personnel are well known to most of Morehead and Rowan County folks. Mr. Bee does not tolerate immoral shows or gambling concessions known as skin games, so the show is always welcome back the show is always welcome back the show is always welcome back.

E. L. Brown, agent for the show, is in town this week making final arrangements for the show's arrival Sunday from Mt. Sterling where they are showing this week. According to Mr. Brown the show is much larger this year for several new attractions have been added. They have seven riding devices and ten side shows featuring Bee's Famous Minstrels with twenty-two colored singers, dancers and funny comedians, and a colored band. They also have engaged for this season Prof. Vincent's Military Band, and of course the usual run of 5c and 10c concessions. The merchants are cooperating by giving free ride concessions. So plan now to visit this carnival next week and enjoy yourself.

HON. H. H. WHEELER

Hon. H. H. Wheeler, progressive leader of the Union Grocery Company and the Sandy Valley Grocery Company, which has wholesale stores located throughout Kentucky and adjoining states will be in Morehead next Monday and Tuesday for the Union Grocery Company Cooking School. Recognized as one of the leading wholesale grocers in the nation, Mr. Wheeler brings to Morehead an elaborate and well-planned school. Crowds that will pack the Morehead College's spacious gymnasium to overflowing are expected for the two sessions of the school. Each session will start at 1 o'clock and last until 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Mary Frances Proctor To Compete In Speech Finals At Lexington

Mary Frances Proctor, representing Rowan county will compete in the state finals of the Kentucky Bankers speaking contest at Lexington next Thursday, May 18. Miss Proctor, Breckinridge student, won the right to represent the county by winning the county meet recently. The same day bankers of this section will meet at the Phoenix hotel. Dudley Caudill of the Peoples Bank will give the response to the address of welcome.

The Union Grocery Company Cooking School, which promises to be one of the most outstanding events ever staged in Morehead's long and colorful history will be the center of interest in this section of Kentucky next week. This popular school, featuring the personal appearances of Miss America, recently crowned Queen of American Beauties at Atlantic City and Miss Marian Houck, nationally famous cooking school expert, will be conducted Monday and Tuesday afternoons, from 1 until 4 o'clock at the gymnasium of the Morehead State Teachers College.

The program will be preceded with a reception for the visiting celebrities in the auditorium of the College, at 10 o'clock Monday morning. Mayor Warren C. Lappin will present Miss America with the Key to the City of Morehead while the beauty queen of the College will present Miss America and Miss Houck with cut flowers. The public has also been invited to attend this reception of the Beauty Queen to Morehead.

Lappin To Present Miss America With Key To City Monday

The Blue and Gold orchestra of the Morehead State Teachers College will give music at both the reception Monday morning and also at each session of the cooking school. Monday afternoon the doors of the college gymnasium will be open at 12:30 with entertainment by the college orchestra until 1 o'clock. The same procedure will be used on Tuesday. The demonstration by Miss Houck will start at 1 o'clock. She will explain scores of interesting dishes, discussing at length modern menus and household hints of general interest to all housewives.

Fifty baskets of groceries will be given away at each school as well as redeemable coupons for free merchandise to every woman that attends. In addition to these daily gifts a new and modern electric Frigidaire range and a Maytag Washer will be awarded as the major prizes at the closing session Tuesday. Advance indications point to capacity crowds for both sessions of the school and an enthusiastic gathering for the reception Monday morning.

March Of Time Features Pageant At Morehead High

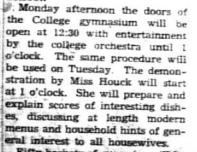

The Morehead High School Pageant, which promises to be one of the most dazzling spectacles ever presented by the high school here, will be held Monday, May 15 in the high school gymnasium at 7:30 p. m. The pageant is an original play made up of featured acts, based on the theme, "March of Time" with Father Time presiding, assisted by the four seasons of the year, who in turn present each month of the year. Because of the many children taking part in the program, the pageant promises to draw the largest crowd ever present at a high school presentation. The originality and hard work executed in making this show possible is a feature not to be overlooked.

The program is divided into twelve parts and each part is made up of featured acts. The program as it was released today follows: (Continued on page 4)

Trade With Independent Merchants Cooking School Theme

Morehead will be privileged next week to witness one of the most remarkable shows, which combines both recreation and instruction, that has ever come to this city.

Not only will all performances be entirely free of charge but hundreds of dollars worth of saluable merchandise and prizes will be distributed among the housewives of this community.

One may wonder how the Union Grocery Company, cooperating with local independent merchants and the two newspapers in the city, can stage the cooking school which will be presented in the College gymnasium Monday and Tuesday afternoons from 1 until 4 o'clock.

The Union Grocery Company, directed by Sandy Valley Grocery Company, directed by its able leader, Mr. H. H. Wheeler, has long been recognized as one of the foremost concerns in its field.

The past has shown that when this company starts in on something they go the limit.

The purpose of the cooking school is primarily to create good will with the people of Morehead and vicinity and to place before the public the independent merchants side of the story.

The cooking school is, in reality, a community enterprise, benefiting all of Morehead and this vicinity of the state.

Morehead merchants, recognizing this, have pitched in with their full support.

Morehead, although a smaller city than Ashland, will be offered the same cooking school, which drew thousands upon thousands of people in these two cities.

The crowds, in fact, were so large that many had to be turned away from even the largest auditorium.

Every woman in this community owes it to herself to attend each session.

We recommend it, without reservation, as the greatest performance of its type, to ever come to Morehead.

We should all get together and show Mr. Wheeler and the Union Grocery Company and that we do appreciate this cooking school, that we are aware of the fact that it is a great boost for this community.

That we appreciate the bringing of the celebrities that will appear, to Morehead.

Planning For The Fair

With the election of the new officers for the Rowan County Fair, attention may now be called to the planning for the fair this fall.

If you are going to exhibit, start thinking about it now.

The more exhibitors, the larger the fair, and the more enjoyment you will get out of it yourself.

Dear Mama,

I want to tell you how much I love you, Mama, because Sunday is Mother's Day.

I know you love me because you've worked, sacrificed, and cried for me.

And I know you are thinking of me now even though we are a thousand miles apart and haven't seen each other for a year.

I love you, Mama, because you tried to raise me the right way.

I love you, Mama, because you spanked me, because you made me wash behind my ears when I didn't want to, because you made me go to Sunday School and church, because you made me go to school when I wanted to play hooky, and because you made me behave when I wanted to be mean.

I love you, Mama, because you tucked me in at night, because you kissed me, because you were always glad to see me.

I love you, Mama, because you gave me a suit of clothes when you should have had a new hat, because you carried me in your tired arms when I was sick, because you always took my side when I might have been in the wrong, because you gave and gave.

I love you more every day, not only Sunday, but every day in the year.

Lovingly, your son, Stanley.

Commerce Clause Expansion

A year ago the Supreme Court of the United States ruled that the percentage of business done in interstate commerce was not to be accepted as a definite yardstick in determining whether an employer was subject to the National Labor Relations Board's jurisdiction. The courts aid in effect that the criterion of federal power was one of general relationship.

Now the court goes several steps further in the case of a small New Jersey factory which makes garments under contract for a New York concern from materials supplied by the latter. The majority opinion by Justice Stone finds that the Third Circuit Court of Appeals erred in holding that the garment manufacturers, "having no title or interest in either the material or the finished product were not themselves engaged in interstate commerce." The secondary defense that the volume of business was "relatively small" was answered with the statement that the act's language "seem to make it plain that Congress has set no restrictions upon the jurisdiction of the Board to be determined for fixed exclusively by reference to the volume of interstate commerce involved."

This moved Justice McReynolds in a dissenting opinion to caution comment on the ruling's utter absurdity. Followed to its logical conclusion, he said, the ruling would mean "if the plant presently employed only one woman who stitched a skirt during each week with every one regularly accepted and sent to another state, Congressional power would extend to the enterprise." Possibly so. Anyhow, the ruling shows to what length the Court has expanded the scope of the commerce clause since it outlawed the NRA and the first Guffey bituminous coal law.

Here's A Good Idea!

This will sing the praises of the officials and the police of Danville, Virginia, who have launched a campaign against motorists who press the buttons of their strident automobile horns unnecessarily.

Policemen, it is reported, watch especially for violators of lines of traffic who immediately blow their horns the moment the green light appears. Moreover, they keep an eye on the impatient motorist who, when he has nothing else to do, delights in blasting the air with the full output of his horn.

This is a good idea for our city. We hope the practice spreads throughout the United States and that indiscriminate users of automobile horns will be fined until they learn better.

Can War Be Avoided?

The hardest task before the statesmen of the world today is the job of preventing a world war, if they can.

This can not be accomplished by surrendering all liberty in the face of aggression; it may be done by demonstrating that aggression will not pay.

The democratic nations of the world, whose people now enjoy liberty, have an interest in successfully preventing war. Another great struggle might mean the end of liberty for other free peoples.

Losing 8,000 Acres A Day

It will take twenty or thirty years of continuous effort to get danger from possible soil erosion under control, says Dr. Hugh Bennett, Department of Agriculture.

Testifying before a House committee Dr. Bennett declared that about 100,000,000 acres of crop land, some of it the best, were "completely finished" as a result of soil erosion. He estimated the annual direct cost of soil erosion to farmers alone, not counting the damage to reservoirs, stream channels, irrigation ditches, highways and railways, at $400,000,000.

During the past fifty years the damage from erosion could be placed at $20,000,000,000 and the present rate of erosion is allowed to continue, the next fifty years will suffer the same loss. "We are losing every day, as a result of erosion," says Dr. Bennett, "the equivalent of 200 40-acre farms."

Now, this is interesting information. It should attract the attention of farmers everywhere. There is no use to wait for the government or some other agency to fight the erosion that affects your land. The time to start the war on erosion is at hand and every farmer can do something in the struggle. Moreover, by doing something, the individual will help himself.

Human, After All

A hint of the purpose of Hitler in refusing to make his birthday an occasion of great glorification is found in the story by Rene Kraus, an Austrian journalist who was a member of Schuschnigg's cabinet before Anschluss.

He says Hitler may be as strong as ever, albeit a bit too strong about the waist, four inches greater in girth in a year. Der Fuehrer, says this observer, suffers from sleeplessness, has need of strong glasses and his six doctors on his neck. His famous forehead is being kept so much shorter lately because it has too many grey hairs to be as effective as it used to be. He is nervous and hyper-sensitive, he has respiratory difficulties.

Well, we have no reason to doubt the keenness of the observations of the writer in question, and we know no reason to doubt that every man is heir to the ills of the flesh. Even the conquerors, the supermen, are mortals, as weak as the rest of us. They need glasses, can't sleep nights, have de m'is'ry.

There are men everywhere who know all the answers but few people know that they know them.

People have peculiar ideas about freedom; it does not include the right to intrude upon others.

CRACKERBARREL COMMENTS

By Woody Hinton

"Doug" Farley Bellows can't sleep with his feet under the covers. What president of what college fishes for "birdfish"? Clell Mayflower Bruce spends hours daily looking for additional space on his place of business to hang a sign. Charley "Dew Drop" Shelton was a business visitor in town last week. I am told that his wife, Nora, has all the work to do at home.

I saw a man Monday with a world War uniform on. According to my figures it would be twenty-two years old now. I certainly don't wish my wife could make her clothes hold out that long. The Kentucky Power and Light Company is going to put a dam on the Jim Clay's bill for last month. I don't like that. It's all I can do to pay my wife. Clarence Allen's father-in-law does not look any older than Clarence does.

"Bill" Hamm sold a cow last week, and the man he sold her to bought her back. His complaint was that the would not hold her head up. Bill said: "Now, that's nothing in the world but that cow's head. Just you want 'til she's paid for." I have read so much in the papers about Socialism, Communism, and Fascism that I was in the dark until a kind gentleman explained it to me the other day. He explained, "Now it's like this. If you had six cows, a Socialist government would take three cows and leave you three. A Communist government would take all six and give you none. A Fascist government would let you keep all six of the cows and they would take all the milk. (With our government it's give you your share of the milk, I mean rimmed-breadies. No I mean sporn-rimmed-breadies. Dad gummit, I mean back-rimmed-sporn-breadies." I said, "I'm sorry, sir, what you want a hip-sporn-breadies."

Robert "Reveille" Bishop said that his business was so tough that he decided to go to the following notice on his door: "Sorry, Customers, I am closed. You give your stamps at Baitsons, use A. B. McKinnin's, use the radio at Kennards Hardware Store, read the daily newspapers and give your money to the bank, and weigh yourself at Allen's Grocery."

A sick mother and children sent this message to Louisville: "Come come, Murray, we have faster horses here than what you put our savings on. All my last summer pants choice around the stomach."

STOVE TO BE USED IN COOKING SCHOOL IS ACHIEVEMENT OF SCIENCE

With its growing influence on modern life, the achievements of modern engineering science are noticeable in almost every phase of living and activity. Convenience and enjoyment daily in most cases are the development of a corps of men devoting their lives to the improvement of facilities which perform their assigned functions with a minimum of effort for the user.

The work of these engineers may be witnessed in many details, one of which is at the performance of an electric range made by Frigidaire with cooking units designed to supply the exact quantity of heat required for each of the five pre-arranged basic cooking operations. Miss Marian Houck has selected the Frigidaire Range as the stove to be used in the Union Cooking School Monday and Tuesday. The five different speeds were not selected arbitrarily. On the contrary, the number of heats was chosen after an exhaustive analysis of the various types of cooking done in the home. From information gathered in their investigations, these engineers designed a five-speed electric cooking unit, which provides a practical heat for every basic cooking need, together with a minimum of additional value.

It is true that skilled engineers designed this electric cooking unit," says Miss Houck. "But their work, of course, are more concerned with what such a unit will accomplish rather than with any detailed explanation of how it is perfected.

"This five-speed unit is part of every 300 Frigidaire electric range unit, because of its highly practical design, supplies the exact heat a woman wants for hot job-cooking, broiling and browning, cooking in small amounts, maintaining active cooking but not increasing temperature and simmering. Consequently, a variety of cooking tests with precision ranges, a thermometer not only greatly increased convenience and accuracy of results, but also the variety that comes with minimum cost of heat waste."

Ernest E. Shannon To Run For Office Of State Treasurer

Has Been Prominent In State Politics For More Than Twenty Years

Ernest E. Shannon, of Louisa, Ky., and a member of the Morehead State Teachers College Board of Regents, announced this week his candidacy for the office of State Treasurer, subject to the action of the August Democratic primary.

He was elected to the office of Public Accounts in the November election of 1923 and asks the electorate of the Commonwealth to return him to Frankfort on his record of the past four years.

Mr. Shannon states that, in his opinion, any public office is to be run in accordance with the ultimate welfare of the taxpayers of the State and that the office does not belong to the office holder.

Mr. Shannon was a member of the Board of Charities from September 2, 1924, until May 13, 1928; was chairman of the Board of Charities and Corrections from March 22, 1925 until April 21, 1926. He was Kentucky's first purchasing agent and helped to compile as passed which created the Purchasing Commission in 1924 and served until the Administration changed in 1928.

He has been a director of the First National Bank of Louisa for the past thirty years and Chairman of the Board of Loans. While in Louisa Shannon engaged in the real estate business and the embalming and undertaking business.

Mr. Shannon visits at Louisa once a month where his eighty-seven-year-old mother now lives. At the present time he is residing at 216 Shelby Street, Frankfort.

RESUME

The citizens of Clover City, a western desert town of the 90's are victimized by ruthless Jim Knox who is determined to secure land for his railroad. Knox buys out the newspapers editor and county judge so as to be unopposed when he burns out those citizens who will not sell to him. Maggie Adams, beautiful girl owner of the town restaurant and old Tom Logan, candidate for Governor, defy Knox. They warn him that Logan's son, Steve, is returning from the East to champion the people. Knox kidnaps three of his men, Mulligan, Gagan and Bumper, set out to burn out Logan. White Knox engages Logan in argument in his house Bumper sets the fuse to start the fire in the barn. He is surprised at his work by a masked stranger. A terrific fight ensues and Bumper shoots the masked man. Despite his wound the stranger breaks out Bumper, then makes for the Logan house, where he is revealed as Steve Logan. To conceal his wound, Steve pretends to be drunk. Further, he apparently sides with Knox. This alienates his sweetheart, Maggie Adams. In need of medical attention for his wound Steve turns to the Mackeral, plains in the local saloon. In an effort to defeat Knox's plan, after his recovery, Steve in order to win over Knox's labors, and the Mackeral kidnaps Underwood, the editor. They print an edition, signed THE WASP, which tells the truth about Knox. Knox and Mulligan, thinking Underwood is THE WASP, offer a huge reward for his capture. Steve and the Mackeral hold Underwood prisoner in the hills; but Underwood tells their plan by wrecking the press. Steve then persuades Knox to buy a new press in order to print a newspaper that will counterbalance The Wasp's accusation. Knox does so

Safety Education Furthered By Gift

Safety educational work of the Kentucky Highway Patrol in charge of Major W. H. Hansen will be augmented in the future by the use of a picture projector which has been donated to Major Hansen and his staff by the Kentucky Association of Insurance Agents, capitalist stock company fire casualty agents organization. Presentation of the equipment was made at patrol headquarters in Frankfort and a demonstration was given before the insurance association's executive committee and safety committee.

The educational activities of the patrol in the past have been restricted to verbal messages before school and civic groups throughout the state.

"As the state director of safety, it is my firm belief," Major Hansen stated following the presentation, "that this projector and sound equipment will be the means of presenting to the citizens of Kentucky visual education and safety which will go far in creating a greater 'safety consciousness' throughout the state and materially assist in the actual reduction of motor vehicle accidents. The safety division has long desired such equipment but appropriations were not available. Any school group or civic organization desiring to hold safety meetings and give safety pictures are urged by Major Hansen to address his department in Frankfort and arrangements will be gladly made.

ing the worst of the milling until he regained his feet and came pounding into his assailant once more. The Irish lion staggered forward in a flurry of rights and lefts. His head wobbled, his knees bent; he sank down slowly. "Are you licked?" panted Steve, standing over him. Mulligan looked up in a daze. "Do ye take it back I'm a king's spy?" "No," cried Steve. "Then I'm not licked," muttered Mulligan and struggled to his feet, his fists sailing out. A red glare from the valley below illuminated the hillsides. Mulligan turned momentarily to see what it might be. "Don't let that glare distract you, Mulligan," advised Steve. "It's only my father's house set fire by Jim Knox." "That's a lie!" shrieked Mulligan. "That's American burning," answered Steve grimly, "hit by the man you're serving—"

"It's a lie—a lie—" Mulligan let go with his fists as if to punch back into Steve's mouth the words he had uttered. But Steve was ready for him. He flared out with a sudden right to the jaw, another to the ear.

A third to the stomach and a fourth to the chin. Mulligan staggered under the attack and at the last blow stretched out on the ground. Steve bent over him, panting, unable to move for exhaustion. A low, suppressed sob made him look up with a start. Standing nearby, clear in the glare from the fire down the valley, stood Maggie. "I saw Steve," she whispered. He shook his head as if to dispell an imaginary vision. "How'd you get here?" he panted. "Mackeral told me." He remained silent.

"Are you hurt?" she asked anxiously. "Here and there," he grinned. She ran to him and threw her arms about him. "Steve! Steve!" she wept. "Forgive me for not knowing—for hating you—I didn't want you to know, I'm soothed, and I needed your hate." "Oh, Steve!" "Darling!" he murmured and holding her close, he sealed their reconciliation with a kiss. Suddenly Bumper's voice called up from the dark below. "Hey, Mulligan! Are you up there, Mulligan?"

CHAPTER TEN FIELD OF HONOR

Mulligan paused for a moment and listened intently for the sound of climbing feet. Which way had The Wasp gone? He strained his eyes and ears. A soft voice, almost at his elbow, called to him. "Who is it?" he answered startled. "Steve Logan."

"Steve?" questioned Mulligan in surprise. "I thought I was after The Wasp by meself. Which way did he go?" "He's right here, Mulligan." Mulligan clambored forward feverishly in the direction of Steve's voice. "Ye got him!" he shouted. "Yes." "Hang on to him," Mulligan ordered fiercely. "I'm comin'. Where are ye?" He lit a match and held it up. "Oh! Ye're right in front of me. Well—where is he? Bring him out. I want to see him for a minute." "You are seeing him," Steve said quietly. Mulligan looked about wildly. "Where?" "Under your big, red, Irish nose!" "Man!" roared Mulligan. "This is no time to stop for jokes. Have ye gotten the Wasp—or haven't ye?" He stared ominously at the smiling Steve; and even as he stared, the truth began to dawn on him. "You!" he panted in disbelief. "You? Steve Logan?" He clenched his fists in fury. "Ye're that ugly bowser!" Steve nodded. "The man I've drunk together with?" Mulligan cried, mopping his face with the back of his hand. "What are ye sayin'?" It's more incredible than if it were itself," rage burrowed through his blank astonishment and his voice rose to a shout. "Why, ye poodie-headed drip of nothin'—I'm goin' to break ye in half and beat ye insensible with your own gizzard. I'm goin' to—" he broke off—"You're the wasp, eh, ye singin' sewer rat!" "Save your wind," Steve interrupted. "You're going to need it. And don't move, Mulligan, I've got a gun."

"Shut that flannel mouth of yours for a minute," Steve replied evenly. "I want to talk to you. Why I don't want to kill you. Why should I kill one Mulligan when the earth is crawling with people like you. All as thick-headed and stupid as yourself. All ready to take your place for a pat on the back. Jim Knox can pay a wagon load of Mulligans for a dollar with a hole in it—"

"Ye're cheatin' me out of me chance," bellowed Mulligan in impatience. "They'll be back and all get ye in a minute."

"There's a whole tribe of you," continued Steve. "Ready to do another man's dirty business but too yellow to raise even your voice for your own kind."

"You're talkin' big with a gun at me belly!"

"Would it be any bigger if I threw the gun away?"

"It would that," sneered Mulligan.

Steve smiled. "I've tried to win you, Chris Mulligan, by hitting you over the head with a newspaper and wakin' you up—you and that gimlet brain of yours. But ideas bounce off your thick skull like rain off a tin roof. Yet I know something. Inside you there's a man, Mulligan—and not a toad. And I'm going to drill a hole in your head with my fists and whisper to him."

Mulligan's face was grey with hate. "I'm waitin', impatiently," he said tersely.

"I'm making no bargains with you," Steve concluded. "If you lick me, you put me on a horse and take me to Judge Bronson for hangin'."

"You won't need hangin' whin I'm done with ye. A shovel will do."

"But if I lick you, Mulligan, I'll ask for nothing. I'll take the chance that my fists will convince you I'm a better man to serve than Jim Knox and that you'll come out of your beating with all your toady-headed rummings out of your nose. And that you'll see clear through your closed eyes. And you'll raise your Irish heart like a flag over your own kind."

Steve threw his head back and ground. "Come on, Chris Mulligan. The Wasp will talk to you in your own language."

Mulligan hurled himself upon Steve. Irish fists cracked into head and body. Steve ducked, weaved and weathered the first furious onslaught. Then he returned the blows. Mulligan's head snapped back again and again. They grappled and rolled over each other, with Steve get-

Bat Coughs From Cold's Break Down Resistance

The scientists and doctors of the world have made great strides in the diagnosis and treatment of the dreaded pneumonia.

They have learned the various types and almost every city has hospital facilities that are fast reducing the death rate.

Most doctors agree that when a person's resistance is low he is much more susceptible, and that coughs following a cold certainly break down your resistance.

Alton Payne To Speak At Ashland

Alton Payne, editor of The Trail Blazer, has been asked to address the Boyd County Alumni, Thursday, May 11, at its first spring dinner.

The dinner is to be held at the Chimney Corner in Ashland. Luster C. Oxley, Ashland instructor and member of the State Assembly, is president of the group.

Oxley is a graduate of Morehead College with the class of 1934.

DANCING CLASS GIVES EXHIBITION IN SHARPSBURG

Pupils of Miss Jean Luzader's dancing class gave several numbers between acts at the senior play given by the Sharpshurg High School Friday night. On the program were Eleanor Bruce, song and dance; Jean Phyllis Fielding, tap dancer; Janey Faye Mynhier, acrobatic dance, and Don Battson, tap dance.

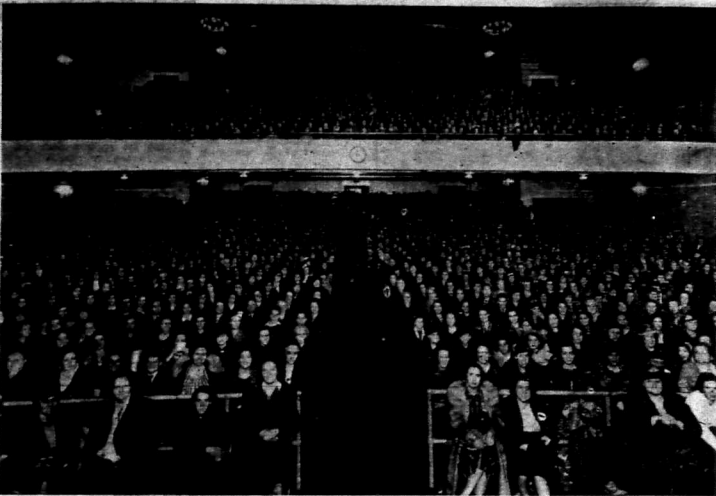

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED TO MISSIONARY SOCIETY

At the last meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Christian church, officers were elected for the coming year. Mrs. G. C. Banks was re-elected president; Miss Inez Faith Humphrey, vice president; Mrs. William Huggins, secretary; and Mrs. Arthur Blair was renamed treasurer.

As they may carry the seed of development into other fields of interest, they may serve as the key to the education of the masses.

"Of almost equal significance is the program of education for family living. It goes into the homes of the people, of the underprivileged and needy, to help them to meet and overcome the problems which are most immediate and intimate in their lives. . . . It is the program above all others which, under some auspices, should be developed and permanently continued.

"Public affairs education, a relatively small program in its present form, comes next on the list. It is based fundamentally on the practice of democratic government. . . . If democratic procedures are to persist, this type of educational service will have to become one of the most important in the field of adult education.

The above picture shows a portion of the immense crowd which attended the closing session of the Union Grocery Company and the Sandy Valley Grocery Company cooking school at Lexington, Ky. Similar capacity audiences were on hand at all sessions of the Lexington, Ashland and Paintsville schools, with thousands of women turned away from the largest auditoriums in both cities. The gymnasium of the Morehead State Teachers College, spacious as it is, is expected to be taxed to capacity for the school here next Monday and Tuesday afternoons.

BLUE AND GOLD ORCHESTRA TO PLAY AT COOKING SCHOOL

The Blue and Gold orchestra, Morehead College's popular swing band, will furnish the music for the Union Grocery Company's cooking school to be held in the gymnasium Monday and Tuesday afternoons from 1 until 4 o'clock. The orchestra will also appear at a reception, to which the public is invited, in the auditorium of the Morehead State Teachers College Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

Educational Work Of WPA Appraised

The emergency education program of the Works Progress Administration has made one of the most significant contributions to the progress of education in the history of the United States, according to the report of a survey recently completed under the auspices of the Advisory Committee on Education, of which Floyd

W. Reeves is chairman. "That there was and is a demand for the services rendered is manifest in the persistence and growth of enrollments," the report states. "The people can learn, the people want to learn, the people intend to learn. What the regular educational agencies have failed to provide, the people have found—in a relief program.

"The impetus given to education by the emergency program constitutes one of the most significant developments in the history of the United States."

The report, entitled "Educational Activities of the Works Progress Administration," is one of a series prepared at the request of President Roosevelt on the general relationship of the Federal Government to education. The report is a staff study published with the approval of the advisory committee, but the staff members who wrote the report, Doak S. Campbell, Frederick H. Bair, and O. L. Harvey are responsible for the opinions expressed. Dr. Campbell is dean of the graduate school of education, Peabody College, Nashville; Dr. Bair is superintendent of schools, Bronxville, New York; and Dr. Harvey, since completing his work for the advisory committee, has been on the staff of the Federal Committee of Apprentice Training, U. S. Department of Labor.

The report gives a full discussion of the general background and scope of emergency educational activities, beginning with the federal emergency relief administration in 1933; analyzes the program content, and offers an evaluation both of organization and administrative procedure as well as of program accomplishments.

The WPA education program "has sought and found its principal application in the ranks of the underprivileged," the study points out. "Although not deliberately so intended, this is the reverse of the usual procedure of providing educational facilities to the wealthier groups first. . . .

In evaluating the outstanding phases of the program, the report follows in order of importance: "The literacy and naturalization programs constitute the outstanding contribution of the emergency program. . . . It within them-ing at 10 o'clock at which Miss America will be presented with a key to the city by Mayor Warren C. Lippin and Miss Marian Houck, famed home economist and Miss America will be presented with large bouquets of cut flowers by the beauty queen at the College. Doors for the cooking school will be open at 12:30 each day and the Blue and Gold band will furnish music until the school starts at 1 o'clock.

W. Reeves is chairman. "That there was and is a demand for the services rendered is manifest in the persistence and growth of enrollments," the report states. "The people can learn, the people want to learn, the people intend to learn. What the regular educational agencies have failed to provide, the people have found—in a relief program.

2,500 FROGS BAGGED OVER THE WEEK-END. Well, maybe not that many but the boys have been having excellent luck of late. Last week I felt that there was no game to take and now I feel that all you have to do is to walk up to the creek bank with a flash light and you can get a bag full of big frogs.

FROGS UNUSUALLY LARGE. When the fellows get to describing how big the frogs are they begin to look at their hands and kinda move them back and forth just like they were doing their best to show you just exactly how big the frog was. By the time their hands come to a stop they look up and smilingly say, "Just about this size." You know it's just another frog story and you to yourself, "Well, that's just a size I have been getting," which is another lie. Isn't it funny how two grown men, known throughout the community for their excellent character, will stand and look each other in the eyes and tell lies and know that you know it's a lie and then act like they all believe it.

Well, to change the subject from big tales back to the truth I will give a certified list of the frogs bagged this past week-end. Gilbert Jones and Clint Jones, fee-packed 55, all biguns. Doctor Ellington and Jim Brown swapped up an even hundred in burlap, they say. I hope they were stretching it because that's a lot to get at one time. Frank Mixie and Jim Carpenter dressed 80 after their night on the creek. Jim Lane and his party skinned out 91 large ones. (Some were so large they had to be quartered to get them in the trying pan. (See paragraph above). Frank Mixie and a party of three others mailed 62 of the green backed crayfish eaters. Roy Holbrook and son bring in a right smart. Denton Blair and his party got only twenty-five of the old fellows on their sasha.

FLASH-FROGS FOR THE SKILLET. Doc Ellington Heaps Coals of Fire on My Head. Since this type was set up I saw Doc Ellington and told him about what I had said about the fellows getting so many frogs, to which he agreed. "But," he said, "I am generous with them." So I gave me about two pounds. Maybe it's not so bad after all.

PLENTY OF FISH FOR EVERYBODY. Quite often old timers will say, "Fishing ain't what it used to be," in a tone that is calculated to serve all arguments and to offend.

In those fund-remembered old days the picture was a little different that it is today. Streams were teeming with fish because fishermen were few and far between. The lucky ones who lived close to fishing waters or who packed in by horseback or team, or hiked, caught fish-lots of them. But the number of fishermen was small. Back in 1914 Kentucky's Game and Fish Commission reported the sale of 344,129 resident fishing and hunting licenses and 47 non-resident licenses. During the year 1937 a total of 152,798 fishing and hunting licenses were sold. Fishermen to the number of 23,640 bought licenses in Kentucky during 1938. Licenses for hunters totaled 101,696. This makes a total of 175,396 hunting and fishing licenses for the year 1938, or an increase of 141,100 licenses over the ninemuds and anglers of 1914.

Despite the ever-increasing number of fishermen and the easy accessibility of fishing waters, there are still plenty of fish for everybody. And plenty of anglers are still getting their limits. But with more anglers, better roads, fast automobiles, shorter working hours, more holidays, there is an increasingly heavy demand on our streams and ponds and lakes. Were it not for stocking the streams, the army of fishermen would deplete the supply of fish the first of every season. Everything possible is being done by the Division of Game and Fish to give sportsmen as much game and fish as can be made available. The sportsmen can reciprocate by doing their part by being good sports, by not violating the laws, and by refraining from taking more fish and game than they can actually use.

HERE'S A FELLOW WHO DIDN'T NEED A LICENSE. Conservation officers B. L. Britton, Harrodsburg, and Kiebler F. Price, Nicholasville, were returning the lower section of Herrington Lake Sunday, April 30, checking fishing licenses and giving aid or information to the anglers who had turned out for the last day of fishing until the first day of June, when a very funny incident happened.

Spying a group of fishermen on the shore of the lake the officers coasted their boat into the bank and asked for the anglers' license numbers. A small boy, probably thirteen or four years of age, had been seated near the water's edge but up on the approach of the officers he had moved about eight feet back up the bank. Directly in front of him was a steel pole and reel.

Britton and Price had finished checking the licenses and were about to leave when the boy asked: "Say, mister, how old do you have to be before you have to buy a fishing license?" Britton told him that all persons sixteen years of age or older, both men and women, must possess a fishing license when angling. The boy did not so much as say thank you to ear by a broad grin and he immediately slid down the bank and took up the steel rod and continued his fishing.

Two anglers were having trouble with their outboard motor in the middle of the lake and after checking their fishing licenses officers Britton and Price located the man in the motor, fixed it and sent the sportsmen on their way.

Conservation Officer A. J. Backy of Buena Vista, Ky., who covers the upper section of the lake checked 284 licenses on April 30 while Britton and Price, working together, checked 153 on the lower lake.

Quarterback Shuffle. When the footballers of Murray State Teachers College trot out onto the gridiron next fall, the quarterback is going to be a card expert as well as a ball-carrier. Here's the plan: Coach Roy Stewart is going to equip the signal caller with waterproof cards containing the diagrams of all of the intricate plays and defense formations. When the team goes into a huddle, the quarterback will select the next play, pass the proper card around to each player. Purpose of the plan is to prevent confusion—but referees claim they're going to be making a lot of penalties for too much time in the huddle. Anyway, the demerits should rejoice: Spectators will use "Give us a new deal" for their battler.

PONDS AND LAKES OF STATE MAKE GOOD FISHING GROUNDS

While there are a number of good fishing streams in the Western section of Kentucky the anglers find most of their sport in ponds or lakes. Most of the landlocked bodies of water range larger than our ponds but they are too small to be classed as lakes.

The small lakes, as they should be termed, are located mostly in Ballard, Christian, Caldwell, Lyon, Marshall, Hopkins, McCracken, and Callaway counties. They are stocked mostly with bass, new-rybs, crappie, catfish, and brown.

Liberty Lake, three miles east of Princeton has 80 acres of water and has a good variety of fishing. Lake Clough, near Eddyville and in the city limits of Kuttawa, has 42 acres of excellent fishing water. Maple Sink, near Drydenburg in East Crittenden county has 225 acres of water enclosed within its stone line.

Lock Merry Lake, which has 170 acres of water surface, is located outside the city limits of Earlington. This lake is owned by the Utilities Company but is open to public fishing. The officials stated that there was an over-abundance of carp in this pool of water.

In the northern section of Christian county and the eastern section of Caldwell county near Dawson Springs, is located the Princeton Game Refuge, owned by the Soil Conservation Service of the federal government which takes in 13,000 acres of timberland. A dam has been built within this refuge and as a result of its construction, a lake covering 60 acres has been formed.

On the shores of this lake will be held the shooting and bait-casting contests by the League of Kentucky Sportsmen who convene of May 15 for their annual convention at Dawson Springs.

Many other such lakes as the ones mentioned above dot the surface of Western Kentucky and offer the sportsmen an abundance of good fishing.

Where the Central, Northern and Eastern sections of the state abound with numerous swift clear-running streams, Western Kentucky has its thousands of large ponds and small lakes to offer to the anglers of the Commonwealth as well as to those sportsmen in the adjoining states.

Harry Blades, Princeton, Ky., who is the advisory commissioner of the Division of Game and Fish in Western Kentucky, stated that a number of good sportsmen organizations are carrying on the work of conservation of wildlife in this section and are cooperating fully with the Division of Game and Fish in its work of restocking the fields and streams and of protecting the wildlife that now needs protection in that area.

Funniest Man Is Spurned By World's Funniest Men

No Delegates Show Up For Annual Convention

Columbus, Ohio, (ACP) — The "world's funniest man" has been spurned by the "world's funniest men," and he's decidedly unhappy about the whole thing.

The man is George C. Miller, president of the American Association of College Comics and boss of the Ohio State University humor magazine. The men are the members of the organization he heads. Here's why George is so unhappy:

Since last year, when he was elected president of the funmen, George's fraternity brothers have been greeting his entrance into a room with, "Here come the world's funniest man." George would bow in response.

Last week he called a convention of his comic cohorts so they could elect new officers—but not one delegate showed up!

So now George is wondering whether or not they'll ever have another national convention—and he's worried about the prospect of going through life living up to his title of "world's funniest man."
