With The Schools Of Rowan County

Written Each Week By MABEL ALFREY County Attendance Officer

Certificates To Be Given

A new plan to help the children see what they are doing in attendance is now in progress. A small Attendance Certificate is being given the child at the end of each week. When he has four certificates the teacher will give him a surprise in the way of a prize or a picnic for his regular attendance. At the end of the year when he has twenty-eight of these certificates, he will be rewarded with a large certificate which has already been bought. These certificates have the name of the county and state on them.

There are several children in the county who have not yet enrolled in school because of work. Every child must be enrolled this week, because the enrollment cards must be brought into the office. The parents are urged to send all children this week who have not yet enrolled. Even though a child is past sixteen or eighteen, the teacher will be glad to have them in school. It is never too late to learn, and children of this age should see what they have missed and return to school.

Absences Down

The following Absences have been reported for the past week: Adams, 1; Brown, 1; Dora Hutchinson, 1; Clark, 3; Street, 2; Ernest Brown, 1; Ruby G. Brown, 1; Mayme M. Lowe, 1; Cary Creek, 5; Marie Thomas, 39; Darlene New Home, 39; William Slab Camp, 1; Doris Penix Moore, 2; Virginia Dawson, 1; Three Lick, 0; Ira T. frey Bluestone John Caudill, 0 Asa Crosthwaite. The following schools had 100 per cent attendance on the day I visited them last week: Perkins, 16 enrolled and 16 present. Wes Cox, 30 enrolled and 30 present. Slab Camp, 13 enrolled and 13 present. Bull Fork, 23 enrolled and 24 present.

Attendance Race At Sharky The boys and girls are dividing for a race in the Sharky school. It is to be an attendance race. The child who has the winning side will be given a prize. They will also be given a picnic. A pie supper and social was given at the Sharky school last week. A large crowd was present and five gallons of ice cream was sold.

Pie Supper At Clearfield The pie supper at the Clearfield school was a success. Several pies were sold, also ice cream and lemonade. Chances were sold on a plate of candy. An ugly man and a pretty girl was also vored upon. $3.00 was made to purchase supplies for the school. Every one enjoyed the social. Many from Morehead were present.

Perkins To Have Paper The teacher, Mrs. Muri Gregory and Doris Penix, are planning to work out a paper. They are planning together on this, and when a copy is received here we will be glad to have a copy in this paper that other teachers may see the interest that these children take in this work, and perhaps be an incentive to them.

Don't Want Outsiders A peculiar yet interesting story was related by one of the girls at the Wes Cox school. This girl was so interested in their school keeping perfect attendance that she told me of a family who lived in an adjoining district and wanted to come to school at Wes Cox. They came down to enroll about two weeks late and the children asked them to go and enroll in their own school. She went on to explain that the reason the children did not want them to enroll in that school was because they would not come regular and they didn't want a family out of the district bringing down their attendance percentage. This is just an example of the interest in this school. I hope parents who are living out of one district and sending to another school, will be kind enough to realize that they should send their children every day.

Make Newspaper Back A newspaper rack has been made and nailed to the wall. On this rack are newspapers for the upper grades to read during their spare time. All children from the first to the eighth grade are able to understand and read the newspapers and good magazines, and every school might profit by this idea. Try it and see if it works.

All schools have been visited except the following, which will probably be visited this week: Razor, Ramey, Big Brushy, Johnson, Pond Lick, Holly, Glenwood, Moore, Carter, Three Lick, and Perry. Thirty-eight have been visited.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Exodus, 20:17. Subject: God Gives Laws to a Nation. Exodus, 20:17.

Golden Text: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Matt. 22:37, 39.

God has a right to write the laws of a nation, and therefore he has a right to tell us what to do. At great cost he delivered us; we have no right to question his authority.

The first section of his laws show our duty to God. There shall be no other gods before him. We worship the God of money, fame, appetite, lust, pleasure and many others in violation of this command. God will not have it, and as a result we shall suffer loss. Then, we are to make images, such as the heathen make, and bow down to them. God is a Spirit, and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth. No images are necessary. God's name is high and holy; we must not take it in vain. All swearing, and vain words in which God's name is used in violation of this law, and they shall be put into judgment for it. The Sabbath day, one rest day in seven, was to be used for the use for the worship and kept as holy unto God. God will remember our disregard of that day. The Jewish Sabbath (rest) was Saturday. The practice of Christians since Apostolic days is to keep the first day, Sunday, in Commemoration of the Resurrection. But six days labor is enjoined as well as one day rest.

The next section of the law is the duties of men to each other. The family relationship is the basis of all good citizen to anyone else. Thou shalt not kill—respect for human life. Thou shalt not commit adultery—respect for marriage relationship which is the base of a good home. Thou shalt not steal—maintaining honesty in all our getting. Thou shalt not bear false witness—respecting the good name of our neighbor. Thou shalt not covet—respecting the right of possession. What is another's we should not crave. If our nation could go back to these ten laws, there would be no need for endless books of law and for costly, wasteful law-making bodies. God always has the best of everything. So in law.

Cozy Offers Good Feature As a fresh start on the gentle art of makeup, there is the case of the makeup man who was called upon to make a few changes, not in a human face but in an oil painting. Such an event never happened on the Twentieth Century-Fox lot where filming was proceeding on "That I May Live." To be shown Friday and Saturday at the Cozy Theatre with Michelle Hudson, Robert Kent and J. Edward Bromberg featured. A painting of Abraham Lincoln, hanging on one of the sets, didn't suit director Allan Dwan at all.

I think that painting of Lincoln makes him look far too young, and director objected, and to the kind, humanitarian face that everybody reverses. Call in the makeup man and fix it.

Whereupon the oil painting of Mr. Lincoln speedily put on some twenty years, and the portrait that had been painted in his youth took on the later, more familiar aspect of the Great Emancipator.

Richard Crooks He Went Hungry To Hear Caruso But He Turned Down $1,000 A Week and Refused A Contract At The "Met"

Away up in the land of the midnight sun near the northern tip of Norway lies a town smelling of cod liver oil and salt fish—a bleak, barren town called Hammerfest, the northernmost city in Europe. I visited Hammerfest a few years ago and noticed some American photograph records in one of the store windows. What sort of music do these fishermen listen to during the long Arctic winter when they never see the sun for months at a time? I examined the records—and found that they were sacred songs sung by Richard Crooks. Expert musicians have told me that Richard Crooks is the most distinguished tenor America ever produced—and he is certainly one of the best-loved. He has sung with the greatest symphony orchestras in the world. He has sung at the Chicago opera, he is starred at the Metropolitan, and you can hear him frequently on the air.

As a young man, Richard Crooks was so poor he had to do hard manual labor to get money to take music lessons. He lived in Trenton, New Jersey; at fourteen he got a job painting a big reservoir tank for the gas company. He specialized in painting the tops of the structures on an eighty-foot ladder, because that was dangerous and he was paid fifty cents more a day for doing it.

At fifteen he was loading ice on ice wagons for twenty cents an hour, he had to get on the job at three o'clock in the morning. When he came to New York to study his music, he found himself with four other boys. The room was small, but they managed to jam a bed and three army cots into it. The room cost five dollars a week and the boys split it five ways. There were cheap restaurants, the food wasn't very good, he told me, but he was glad to have a healthy appetite and I liked any kind of food it only had a lot of ketchup on it.

He used to get hungry all day to hear Caruso sing. He would deny himself all food for a day except a pint bottle of milk and then go to the opera and pay a dollar ten cents for standing room in the topmost gallery. In order to get a good stand ing place, he had to go early so he would go to the opera about four o'clock in the afternoon and stand there until almost nine at night waiting to hear the immortal Caruso.

"I was awed by Caruso," he told me, "I felt taken and I just feel that he was the most wonderful singer who ever lived. I used to go to the library and read articles and biographies about him. I discovered that he had been poor, that he had to work in a factory until he was twenty-one years old and that his mother had gone without shoes in order that he might have music lessons."

Richard Crooks got his first job in churches, singing for weddings and funerals. He told me that, although he didn't wish anybody any hard luck, he was always glad in those days when a funeral came along. Walter Damrosch heard him sing and was so impressed that he volunteered to get a ten thousand dollar loan for Crooks so he could study abroad. But Crooks refused the loan. He wanted to earn everything for himself. He wanted to be independent. Finally he was offered a job singing in The Student Prince at a salary of one thousand dollars a week? What? A thousand dollars a week? For him? He could hardly believe his ears. He needed the money. He was married at the age of nineteen to a girl who had five children and had a long episode of serious illness and he himself wanted to study abroad; but he turned down a thousand a week because he wanted to devote his life to a higher type of music, to concert work and the opera.

And speaking of opera, he is probably the only singer who ever lived who turned down offers year after year to sing at the Metropolitan Opera in New York—before he had become famous.

You would like Richard Crooks—everybody likes him, even his wife likes him. She said to me, "Dick Less Monthly Discomfort Many women, who formerly suffered from a weak, run-down condition as a result of poor assimilation of food, say they benefit by taking GARDOL, a special medicine for women. They found it helped to increase the appetite and improve digestion. Gardol helps build more strength from their food. Naturally there is less discomfort at monthly periods when the system has been strengthened and the various functions restored and regulated. Costs, paid by thousands of women, is well worth trying. to hold the mortgage, why in hell are yuh pressin' Miss Hall for the money? Can it be that what yuh want is the ranch an' not the money.

The lawyer's pale eyes narrowed. My affairs are my own. he snapped. Definitely and finally, that mortgage is not for sale. Good day gentlemen. He went to the door and held it open.

Slim laughed coldly as he stepped out. You're deludin' yourself, Arthur. You're shore draggin' your rope if yuh figger to steal the Dot H Dot Ranch. You'll never do it. An' the next time yuh hit Miss Hall up for the money, she'll surprise yuh by handin' it over. Cmon, Dakota. I'm sick of talkin' to side-winders an' polecats. Let's ride an' get some fresh air.

George Arthur watched them until they had disappeared, jogging easily out of town. His thin lips were writhing with anathema, his hands clenching and unclenching. He saw Jigger Starbuck slouching across his office and hailed him.

Starbuck came over and entered. Well? he demanded. What did Loyalé an' Blue want?

The lawyer fumbled nervously for a black strop, snapped the tip off and lit it. Loyalé tried to get me to sell the Dot H Dot mortgage to him. I'm afraid they are beginning to get wise, Starbuck.

I know damned well they are, grunted the sheriff. They shore hung me over a barrel just now. I see a hum. I'm gonna be the final goat in this deal. It won't be healthy for a lot of folks I can name, if things shape that way too strong.

Arthur looked puzzled, I don't exactly understand. I mean that Brockwell is gettin' too raw, exploded Starbuck, the anger he had been subduing breaking forth in full fury. Him an' his crowd are clumsy as a bunch of oons.

Start from the begginin' an' count up the slips he's made. Yuh an' me put Slim Loyalé in Jarillo, knowin' Bart Loyalé would be dead before Slim got out. Then the question of a parole for Slim came up. Brockwell promised us that he had influence enough to block that parole. He fell down an' Slim got out.

In the meantime he was gonna see that Dakota Blue was put outa the way. The best he could do about that was to miss a good shot at Blue one day along Nigger Ridge. Since then Blue's been too wary to be got. Sarg ain't been able to pull down the Dot H Dot hands fast enough to keep the Hall girl from payin' her interst on that note yuh hold.

Why, I hear that he was even dickerin' to buy up some of her stuff. Course he'd have robbed her, give her only half what the stock was worth, but had the deal gone through, she'd have had money to stall yuh off. Brockwell is so damned greedy he's blind!

Anyway, last night he had a chance to get Slim Loyalé on the trail between the Circle L and the Dot H Dot. Loyalé got through clear with the help of Roy O'Brien. Before the night was over, O'Brien plugged Hango Deale. Deslé an' Cider Alton were pale. So what does that crazy Alton do but try to wipe out Loyalé again? Just now up in the Wild Horse. Loyalé didn't even have a gun on him. Alton got upset an' his guns should take off him. An' Loyalé an' Blue are all through turbin the chere cheek.

Loyalé's puttin on his guns. He told me straight that, parole or no parole, he's gonna start throwin' lead. He also said that if I tried to take him into custody he'd salt water me. An' Dakota Blue an' the whole Circle L outfit is backin' Loyalé to a finish. Damn Brockwell an' his crowd for a bunch of knot-headed fools, anyhow.

Summer Drinks

There's nothing more soothing to a hostess's pride than the delight and surprise of her guests when she produces a frosty drink as if by magic. But this magic requires clever planning and forehanding in the form of bottled syrups.

Chocolate always is a favorite for cold drinks but there are any number of other flavors that are popular, too. A lot depends on the flavor you choose. Nourishing drinks with a milk foundation use the whole cake of flavors—fruits, spices, vanilla, almond, pistachio, caramel, apple—in fact anything you may fancy.

Fruit syrups are easy to make and will keep indefinitely in the refrigerator. Their base is a simple syrup to which the juice is added to make the flavor. A fruit syrup gives a smooth finished drink than clear juice and undissolved granulated sugar does.

The syrup from sweet, canned fruits such as peaches, strawberries and pears may be combined with lemon juice to make refreshing drinks. Be sure cold drinks are not over-sweet although the beverage which is tasted at room temperature should be sweeter and of stronger flavor than you want the finished product.

A very swanky way to serve fruit drinks is to drop a ball of mint, lemon or orange ice in each glass in place of crushed ice. If you are serving from a punch bowl, put a pint or more—depending on the number to be served—of the ice in the bowl and pour the prepared fruit juices over it.

Simple Syrup. One-half cup sugar, 1 1/2 cup water. Put sugar and water in a smooth sauce pan. Stir over direct heat until sugar is dissolved. Boil five minutes without stirring. For lemon syrup, cherry, peach or other fruit syrups add from 1 to 2 cups fruit to boiling syrup, crush and let stand until cool before straining through a fine sieve.

This amount of syrup diluted with ice water will make four tall glasses or eight small punch glasses of the beverage. In November, as the Democratic Democrats (Continued From Page One) majority of 75 votes. When the vote was counted, Flannery had carried the precinct by 8 votes.

Number Ten, Morehead, where it was claimed Flannery would get by 25 votes, was carried by Young by the comparatively small majority of 42 votes, Flannery receiving in that precinct 142 votes to 184 for Young.

Number 7 precinct claimed by the Young forces by an overwhelming majority was finally carried by the slim margin of 11 votes for the administration candidate.

Number 18 gave the surprisingly small majority of 16 votes over Flannery, Number 19, which was conceded to Young by a large majority, was carried by him, but by a much smaller majority than was claimed.

Farmers Number Two, where Mr. Flannery was known and where he lives, gave him a majority of 54 votes. Wagner, where things were said to have been done Friday night, held up for Flannery giving him his second largest majority in the county.

A total of 2059 votes were cast in the Representatives race. Of these Young received a plurality of 1017 votes. His opponents received a majority vote, 1922, an actual majority of the votes cast of 25.

Luther Fraley evidently ran the fastest race of any Democrat, carrying the county by a majority of 322. John Butcher piling up commanding leads in his two home precincts in Hogtown and Lewis was never overtaken by his opponent Mike Flood. Butcher cut into the town vote in a way that proved a major upset.

I been advisin Slim to steer clear of trouble. Starbuck, the put in. But what happened just now shows me that he's up again a pack of yellow polecats who are willin' to shoot him even if he is unarmed. What he just said goes for me, too. I'm backin Slim's play every turn of the trail.

There's five more boys out at the Circle L who are gonna back it the same way. Less'n yuh see that Slim gets the protection he's entitled to this country is gonna bury a sheriff. That's plain talk, but every word of it is gospel.

Dr. Hoke spoke at a home-coming reunion.

AN APPRECIATION TO THE VOTERS OF THE ROWAN-BATH DISTRICT.

I wish to thank the Republican voters of the Rowan-Bath District for their cordial action in giving me the Republican nomination for the office of Representative without opposition in the primary. I pledge to you my sincere appreciation and my loyal support in the future.

I am a candidate and I expect to make a hard fight in the time between now and the November election. I will appreciate the support of my friends in both parties at the coming election.

The Garden

Letters have been coming complaining about tomato fruit worm injury, and about the prevalence of mis-shapen fruit. As to the insect, the condition is due to improve, now that corn is silking out. The tomato fruit worm and the corn ear worm are the same, and fortunately for the grower, the particularly those who grow the late crop, the insect seems to prefer corn. Knowing that the tomato fruit worm situation is about to be eased a small comfort for the men who have seen their early tomato profits dwindle, in fact, most vanish, but they may take that much heart.

The mis-shapen fruit condition will also improve, as any gardener can see if he will examine the clusters now ripening. The improvement is being brought about by the weather. While the earlier fruits were being set, the season was rainy and the nights were cool. This interfered with pollination. However, now that temperatures are more to the tomato's liking, symmetrical fruit is resulting.

At the risk of seeming to repeat may it be said that the Mexican Bean Beetle is quite too well established for comfort, and for the likelihood of the later plantings of beans behaving satisfactorily. The insect crept up on us in rather more insidious fashion than usual, but it is nevertheless quite firmly established now, in some portions of the state will call on the very best efforts of the gardener to control it. Plantings protected now will produce beans in September; certainly, the pleasure of having beans then should not be foregone.
