SPECIAL TO THE MOREHEAD NEWS

CHINESE STUDENTS PERFORM: A Picture Story

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Rowan Countians were able to experience another culture when the Chinese Youth Folk Sports Troupe from Taipei, Republic of China, visited Rowan County Senior High School and Morehead State University on Monday (Aug. 30).

The troupe, composed of 24 members ranging in ages from 10 to 13 years, are junior high school students who attend Taipei city schools.

The group visited RCSHS for a morning program then gave a public performance, as an Arts in Morehead (AIM) special event, at MSU's Academic-Athletic Center in the evening.

Before departing the region, the Kentucky visitors went horseback riding at MSU's Derrickson Agricultural Complex.

Cutlines:

- 1---RCSHS senior Cliff Scott of Morehead, left, and Chen Jou-Han started the ceremony for the presentation of gifts during the Chinese students' visit to the high school.
- 2---An opportunity to see an American classroom was a treat for the Chinese visitors but also enjoyable for the RCSHS students. Providing some one-on-one conversation are, from left, Mike Little, Huang Wei-Chung, Josh Knipp and Huang Chun-Ni.
- 3---While at RCSHS, 13-year-old Huang Chun-Ni demonstrated her expertise at shuttlecock kicking for the students.
- 4---Diabolo spinning incorporates skill, the arts of dancing, body movements and teamwork. Demonstrating one technique with the ancient Chinese toy are Tseng Hsiang-Pei, left, and Wu Hsing-Chien.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University faculty and staff joined recently with personnel from several state agencies to learn the latest information on the Kentucky Education Reform Act (KERA) at what is thought to be the first conference of its kind in the state.

MSU was the host of the KERA Update Conference: Partners in Education Reform (August 27) which was attended by more than 450 and included several area school superintendents.

Addressing the group, Sherry K. Jelsma, secretary of Education and Humanities Cabinet, said that Kentuckians have already proven that they are the most competitive by adopting KERA and now can prove that they're the best.

"Higher education needs to be a day-to-day partner with KERA," Jelsma said. "MSU has already reworked 117 classes to meet KERA needs and is to be commended for that."

Organizing a KERA update like this one is an example of the kind of leadership we want to see at Kentucky's universities, said Dr. Robert F. Sexton, executive director of the Prichard Committee for Academic Excellence who lead the afternoon sessions on the history of KERA. "This shows positive image leadership in Kentucky," he said.

The message from the Council on Higher Education is simple, said Dr. Gary Cox, executive director. "If you don't want to serve the schools and the folks who run those schools, don't do it; get out of the business. This meeting shows you're serious."

Dr. Cox noted that all faculty members in the room were dealing with KERA now, an issue that is sometimes overlooked. "You're all training teachers, whether you're teaching biology 101 or an education course." He reiterated that training teachers is a responsibility of the entire University, not just those in the education departments.

A former school principal, Lois Adams-Rodgers, deputy commissioner, Bureau of Learning Support Services with state Department of Education, said she was encouraged by MSU's commitment to KERA. "MSU is working with KERA five days a week, rather than on Friday afternoons," she said. "It has to be in your classrooms, whether you're preparing teachers or scientists."

Because KERA is still in its infancy, everyone does not know all there is to know, Dr. Roland Goddu, associate commissioner of the Office of Teacher Education, said. "We must respect what we do know and build upon that knowledge. Don't just do something because it's always been done that way. We need to realize what we still have to learn and we can all learn together," he said.

(MORE)

Dr. Goddu discussed the New Teacher Outcomes that have been adopted by the Kentucky Education Professional Standards Board upon recommendation of the Kentucky Council on New Teacher Performance Standards. "The model will be outcomes-based; the assessment will be developed by the state, and the training will need to be developed by MSU as a total university," he said. "MSU's task will be to develop a teacher education model which will meet the new state standards."

During the afternoon sessions, there were discussions of multicultural education, high school restructuring and curriculum framework.

Multicultural education, according to Jan Arnow, Multicultural Branch manager with the state department, should prepare students to live, learn, and work together to achieve a common goal in a culturally diverse society. "The world is becoming multicultural and students need to have the education to deal with this," she said.

Pat Todd, Gheens Professional Development Academy with Jefferson County Schools in Louisville, discussed the proposed high school restructuring. The new plan, to be approved by the State Board for Elementary and Secondary Education, calls for a more personal approach, a more rigorous intellectual course of study, and an exit review for high school students.

In the curriculum framework session, Agnes Durbin, manager of sciences unit, Division of Curriculum with the state department, discussed the six learning goals as outlined by KERA. "Content is still important and should be coupled with processes such as becoming self-sufficient, working in teams, thinking critically and creatively and integrating knowledge," she said.

"Students need opportunities to have guided choices," Durbin added. "You should expect a high level of achievement from students."

From the opening remarks by MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin, to the final group meeting, the conference was designed to be a working session.

The day-long project was jointly sponsored by The Kentucky Department of Education, The Prichard Committee for Academic Excellence, The Kentucky Educational Development Corporation, Kentucky Department of Education Region 7 Service Center, and Morehead State.

GETTING THE FACTS ON KERA

Morehead State University officials recently hosted a University-wide conference on the Kentucky Education Reform Act. During the morning break, MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin, left, shared a moment with Dr. Robert F. Sexton, executive director of the Prichard Committee; Sherry K. Jelsma, secretary of the Education and Humanities Cabinet, and Dr. Gary Cox, executive director of the Council on Higher Education. Program presenters for the day-long conference included State Department of Education personnel who gave a synopsis of KERA since its inception three years ago and highlighted the proposed changes now in the planning stages. More than 450—including MSU faculty and staff members, local school superintendents and representatives from state agencies—attended the session, thought to be the first of its kind in the state. The conference was sponsored by the Council on Higher Education, Kentucky Department of Education, Prichard Committee for Academic Excellence, Kentucky Educational Development Corporation and Region 7 Service Center and MSU.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.—The Learning for Life Foundation will sponsor its second annual croquet tournament on Saturday, Sept. 25.

The tournament, sponsored by the Morehead National Bank, will begin at 10 a.m. at the soccer field at the Rowan County Senior High School.

It will be a fun day for the participants as well as those who just want watch the competition, according to Dr. Ewell Scott, president of the Learning for Life Foundation and tournament director. "Just bring a picnic lunch and a lawn chair and enjoy the efforts of the team members," he said.

Prizes will be awarded to the winners as well as to the "Best Dressed" team.

The entry fee is $25 per person with four players on each team. All equipment will be provided.

Those choosing to enter a team should contact the Rowan County Board of Education at 784-8928. The registration deadline is Sept. 18.

All proceeds from the event will be used to support the Learning for Life Foundation, a community support arm for the Rowan County School system. The Foundation funds local teacher-initiated projects designed to reduce school dropouts in the county.

MOREHEAD, Ky.—An internationally recognized authority of linguistics and educational policy in China will speak on the Morehead State University campus Tuesday, Sept. 14.

Dr. Chen-Ching Li, director of the cultural division of the Coordination Council for North American Affairs Office in the U.S., will talk on "Educational Policy of the Republic of China on Taiwan and Its Impact on National Development," at 10:20 a.m. in the Riggle Room, Adron Doran University Center.

On leave from the National Taiwan Normal University, Dr. Li has been responsible for coordinating academic and cultural exchanges and research programs between the ROC and its counterparts in the U.S. for several years. Currently in the Washington, D.C., office, he worked out of the San Francisco office for two years, coordinating programs on the West Coast of the U.S. and in Western Canada.

He has made presentations on language education and interpretation at international conferences and has lectured at numerous institutions including University of Oxford, Free University of Berlin, Stanford University, East-West Center in Honolulu, Hawaii, and American University in Washington, D.C.

Dr. Li has published nine books and more than 100 articles in relation to linguistics, English-Chinese translation and interpretation, and the philosophy and culture of his native land.

He received his Ph.D. in linguistics from the University of Hawaii at Manoa where he also earned an M.A. degree in English as a Second Language. He holds a bachelor's degree in English from National Taiwan Normal University.

Accompanying Dr. Li will be Ching Jen Liu, executive assistant of the cultural division in Washington, D.C., who will be making a return visit to the campus.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University students will assume the role of "host" for their family members when the University presents Parents Weekend '93, Sept. 17-19, on the campus.

There will be many, many opportunities for families to spend time together while enjoying a variety of activities, according to Susette Redwine, university center programs and special events coordinator. "The purpose is to have families learn all about the campus where students will be spending most of their time in the coming year," she said. "And, who is better qualified to serve as the tour guide but one of their own family members."

Activities get under way on Friday, Sept. 17, when The Passing Zone, a comedy juggling team, takes the stage in Button Auditorium at 9 p.m. The entire family will enjoy the antics of these young men who were winners at the 1989 International Team Juggling Championship and holders of Guinness World Records. They incorporate everything from flaming torches to bowling balls into their "flying" objects.

There is no charge for the juggling performance but donations, to benefit the Student Emergency Loan Fund, will be accepted at the door.

Saturday's activities begin with a complimentary continental breakfast at 9 a.m., followed by the annual MSU Parent's Association meeting at 10 a.m. in the Crager Room, Adron Doran University Center. New officers will be elected and installed for the 1993-94 Parents Advisory Committee. All parents are invited to attend.

Pre-registration is required for the golf scramble scheduled to begin at noon at the MSU Golf Course. This is a nine-hole, best ball tournament with a shotgun start. Play is limited to the first 72 who register and there are no greens fees.

At 2:30 p.m., the MSU Equestrian Team will present a riding demonstration in Richardson Arena at the Derrickson Agricultural Complex. There is no admission charge.

An all-you-can-eat pre-game fish fry will be held at the Academic-Athletic Center beginning at 4 p.m. Tickets are $6 for adults, $4 for children ages 5-10, and free to those under 4 years of age. In case of rain, the activity will be held in the east lobby of the AAC.

Culminating the day's agenda will be the first home football game of the season as the MSU Eagles take on the Golden Bears of West Virginia Tech. Kickoff is set for 7 p.m. in Jayne Stadium. Students may obtain tickets for their family members at a reduced rate if purchases are made by noon on Friday, Sept. 17, at the Athletic Office in the Academic-Athletic Center.

On Sunday, Sept. 19, students may use the free time to complete their family's tour of the campus and see other places of interest in the area.

Throughout the weekend, student organizations and various clubs will be hosting receptions and each residence hall will be sponsoring a number of events. The halls will be competing for a prize for the most families that stop by for a visit.

Family members who want overnight lodging on campus should notify their offspring as soon as possible in order that the arrangements can be made.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---The 1993 Kentucky Wood Expo, sponsored by the Kentucky Forest Industries Association, has attracted the interest of ESPN which will tape the lumberjack games for airing in November.

The 11th annual sawmill and logging equipment show will be held in Bowling Green on Sept. 18-19.

Morehead State University and the Kentucky Division of Forestry will coordinate and set up the lumberjack games which will feature the top lumberjacks in the world, according to Bob Bauer, MSU wood technologist.

They will be competing in the Stihl Timbersports Series for a chance to qualify for the finals, Bauer said. ESPN expects to air the Kentucky competition on Nov. 6 as the fourth program in the Stihl series.

The contestants will compete in chainsaw, crosscut and chopping events to determine the overall champion. They will chop through white pine logs in under 20 seconds and will use "hot" chainsaws which are powered by up to 500cc motorcycle engines.

Additional information on the lumberjack games or the Wood Expo in general may be obtained by calling Bauer at (606) 783-2627.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.—Morehead State University and Lexmark International, Inc., of Lexington have renewed their agreement for another year, continuing the opportunity for some MSU students to work in a corporate environment while still in college.

The MSU-Lexmark Writing Project, which began last year, allows MSU students to provide technical writing services to Lexmark through a special grant.

Donna Cummins, Morehead senior English major, has returned to her role as lead writer for the project. During the summer, she worked full time at the Lexington operation.

Also continuing with the project are Michelle Horton, a Milford, Ohio, junior English major with technical writing minor whose specialty is LAN administration, and Holly Rowlett, a Madison, Ind., junior special education major.

Joining the team for the first time this fall is George Barnette, a Morehead senior English major with editing and word processing expertise, and Brian Anderson, a Versailles junior psychology major with a minor in computer science.

The students, working 10-20 hours per week, will continue the conversion of data from one desktop publishing system to a newer, industrial system, as well as writing documents for the firm.

One student who worked with the project last year, Morehead graduate student Theresa Perkins, completed her master's degree, worked at Lexmark during the summer and has now been employed on a full-time basis.

The MSU-Writing Project operates from a special lab in Breckinridge Hall, utilizing computer equipment donated by Lexmark. Dr. Jennings Mace, associate professor of English, is the project director.

606-783-2030

Sept. 14, 1993

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.--As tourism continues to increase in the region, the hospitality industry is expected to be one of the next major employers in Eastern Kentucky and one program at Morehead State University is gearing up to meet that demand.

The Hotel-Restaurant-Institutional Management Program is undergoing changes to meet the needs of students specifically in MSU's service region, according to Garret Ross, assistant professor and program leader.

The curriculum, which is in the Department for Human Sciences (formerly Home Economics), is being revised with an eye to encouraging MSU graduates to stay in the area by starting businesses and seeking jobs in the local hospitality industry.

Keeping the University's graduates in the region after they finish their education has been a difficult task in the past due to lack of jobs, but Ross said that trend can be changed with a program geared at practical application.

"We want the students to come out with general knowledge and a good background in the industry combined with entrepreneurial skills so they can be encouraged to come back and start a business in the region," said Ross, who joined MSU in July.

The hospitality market has mushroomed and will continue to grow more than ever, he said. The state Tourism Cabinet, which has been aggressively promoting Kentucky's parks and recreation areas, reports that tourism has increased 30 percent this year. The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, Economic Research Institute, recently reported that hotel management is expected to increase 44 percent in the job market by the year 2005.

Since recent environmental regulations have weakened the coal and timber industry, tourism and hospitality are becoming the newest frontier in Eastern Kentucky's industrial pursuits, Ross said.

Among the curriculum features are an emphasis on management skills through classes in the College of Business and on-the-job training with local businesses through a cooperative program that could lead to job placement upon graduation, he said.

Ross, whose experience entails managing various clubs and restaurants from New York to Canada since 1982, believes students can receive greater benefits of critical thinking skills through job experience as well as classroom theory.

"I'm trying to incorporate my experience into my classes. I've worked in the industry and have the academic knowledge. I want to combine those two to get a better program for the students," said Ross, who expects to finish his doctoral dissertation in October at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University.

He said the program will highlight job opportunities that students may not have realized were there.

"I'm very positive on this program. Located nearby are some of the best parks and recreation facilities such as Cave Run Lake and Carter Caves State Park. These are strategically located to become key elements for a good, solid hospitality program here," he said.

Ross said that the approximately 40 students now in MSU's program are responding already and are excited about the opportunity to work in the field. He said he hopes to triple enrollment in three to seven years, keeping pace with a growing need for hotels, restaurants and club facilities as tourism becomes a primary industry in the state.

Already a member of the Morehead-Rowan County Chamber of Commerce, Ross hopes to form a solid business-education partnership with the community to communicate and share expertise in the local industry.

Ross stressed that it could take up to five years to implement all the changes necessary for a better program in the hospitality industry; however, he is seeking input from those who wish to volunteer on the curriculum advisory committee.

He may be reached at (606) 783-2975 in the Lloyd Cassity Building on campus.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.—More than 800 seniors from area high schools are expected to participate in Morehead State University's first Regional College Fair on Tuesday, Sept. 28.

The program, coordinated by MSU's Office of Admissions, will be held in the Academic-Athletic Center from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Personnel from various colleges, universities and vocational schools as well as representatives from three branches of the military--Army, Air Force and Marines--will be on hand to talk with the students, according to Michelle Richmond, admissions counselor and Fair coordinator.

"Representatives of 40 organizations from Kentucky, Ohio, Tennessee and West Virginia are already scheduled to participate," Richmond said. "All of Kentucky's state schools are sending a delegate, as well as Centre, Transylvania, Midway, Thomas More and Berea, who will be among the private schools to be participating."

Representatives from MSU's Office of Financial Aid and Career Planning and Placement will be available to answer general questions about financial aid and discuss the forecast for career opportunities.

Nine area high schools have already registered for the day: Bath County, East Carter, Elliott County, Menifee County, Morgan County, Nicholas County, Powell County, Rowan County and West Carter.

"Students currently enrolled but seeking information about another educational setting are invited to attend," Richmond noted.

Additional information is available from Richmond at (606) 783-2000.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Water aerobics classes, sponsored by Morehead State University's Office of Continuing Education, are scheduled to begin Monday, Sept. 20, and continue for 12 weeks.

Held at the University pool in the Academic-Athletic Center with Ken Hackett as instructor, the class will meet Mondays through Thursdays. The cost for 48 sessions is $30.

Aside from being fun and relaxing, water aerobics is considered a low-impact program to improve cardiovascular muscle strength, flexibility and endurance for all age groups.

"If you have any concerns about this exercise program, you may wish to talk with your doctor as to whether it is right for you," said Shirley Hamilton, director of community education.

Those interested in enrolling or obtaining additional information on the program may call MSU's Office of Continuing Education at (606) 783-2077.

MOREHEAD, Ky.—Preliminary figures for Morehead State University's fall 1993 enrollment show 8,695 students enrolled, a decrease of 5.2 percent from the previous fall figure of 9,169.

MSU officials believe that the general economic status of the region coupled with an increase in the minimum index for unconditional admission may have contributed to the decline. The latter may have affected some May 1993 high school graduates who needed at least a 400 admissions index to enroll unconditionally.

"I think it is important to keep in mind that while we may have fewer students, our new freshmen are coming in with better credentials which translates into a better chance for their success," MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin said.

Noting that the enrollment drop did not come as a total surprise, Dr. Eaglin said:

"We have had seven straight years of phenomenal growth, but we've also been saying that this would not continue. We've been expecting it to level off at some point," he added. "However," he said, "we did meet the enrollment projection (8,600) that our budget is based on for this year."

While headcount figures for the University's regional class sites have not been tallied, the Office of Graduate and Extended Campus Programs said that "duplicated" (students taking more than one class) enrollment was up overall by 15 percent.

The preliminary enrollment figures were announced today at a meeting of MSU's Board of Regents.

MOREHEAD, Ky.—Morehead State University's Associate Degree in Nursing program has received accreditation from the National League for Nursing.

The five-year initial accreditation period is retroactive, covering the program's May 1992 graduating class as well as this year's, according to Dr. Linda Salyer, chair of MSU's Department of Nursing and Allied Health Sciences.

In 1987, MSU suspended the two-year nursing degree program, which had been accredited by the NLN, but reinstated it with the fall of 1990 to meet the region's need for additional skilled registered nurses. At that time, it was necessary to reapply for accreditation, Dr. Salyer said.

"The associate degree faculty and staff, under the leadership of Dr. Salyer and the program coordinator, Dr. Janet Gross, did a tremendous job and they should be extremely proud that their efforts bore fruit," said Dr. Gerald DeMoss, dean of MSU's College of Science and Technology.

Currently the ADN program has 90 students enrolled. The curriculum combines classroom study with intensive clinical experience at hospitals and other health care agencies in the region.

In addition to the two-year program, MSU also offers a Bachelor of Science in Nursing degree with two options: a traditional four-year program and the R.N. track which offers registered nurses the opportunity to earn their bachelor's degree while working full-time.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University's Student Government Association will present Sawyer Brown with guest Chris LeDoux in concert on Wednesday, Oct. 20, at 8 p.m. in the Academic-Athletic Center as part of the University's 1993 Homecoming activities.

Tickets are available now at various locations: Ashland Area Extended Campus Center in Ashland, Licking Valley Extended Campus Center in West Liberty, Downtown Video in Mt. Sterling, Martin's Department Store in Jackson, County Market in Maysville, and in Morehead at Martin's Department Store, Peoples Store, Main Street Music and on campus at MSU's Student Activities Office in the Adron Doran University Center.

Admission for the general public will be $17 reserved and $12 for bleacher seating, while MSU students with a valid I.D. card will pay $10 for reserved and $5 for bleacher seats.

One of the most popular groups in the country music field, Sawyer Brown books more than 225 shows a year. It has been nominated as "Vocal Group of the Year" for almost every award, including American Music Awards, Academy of Country Music, Country Music Association and TNN/Music City News Awards.

While some of the members have been performing since their college days, it was not until 1983 when the group changed its name and took the first place prize of $100,000 on "Star Search" that Sawyer Brown became a household word.

From there, the group continued to grow in popularity. In 1985, the group took the Horizon Award from the Country Music Association and began its list of chart climbing records which included "Step That Step," "Used to Blue," and "Betty's Bein' Bad."

The next few years brought additional nominations, nine albums, and numerous singles which hit the Number 1 position on the R&R's weekly country chart: "All These Years," "The Walk," "The Dirt Road" and "Some Girls Do." These singles, as well as "Cafe on the Corner" also achieved Number 1 status in videos.

Sept. 17, 1993

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Services housed at Morehead State University for adult literacy programs have been expanded, according to Sharon Jackson, project director of the KET GED ON TV program.

A referral hotline was installed Sept. 1 to offer information for all adult education programs available in Kentucky. The number is 1-800-228-3382, and is designed to inform the public as to what programs are available in each area of the state.

This is just one more option offered at MSU to let interested people statewide know how they can obtain their General Equivalency Diploma (GED), whether it be through adult education programs in their area or the currently existing GED ON TV program offered on KET. The number to call to inquire about GED ON TV is 1-800-538-4433.

Jackson said that during the first nine days of the new referral line, her office received 471 calls from persons statewide who called to ask about obtaining a GED or other adult education services. She reported, based on a survey, that persons who get their GED can increase their annual average income by about $2,700. She added that increased education generates more revenue for the state as well and is good for economic development.

The office has served approximately 50,000 persons through the GED ON TV program since the pilot program began in 1984. About 16,000 adults have formally enrolled and approximately 6,500 have passed the test, Jackson said. Based on an increase of $2,700 in their annual income, these GED graduates are putting an additional $17 million into the state's economy, Jackson added.

While the GED ON TV program costs $350 per graduate to administer, each student pays only $20 to enroll. The program takes about 5 1/2 months of study for the test, Jackson said.

Sept. 17, 1993

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Calling it a "wish list," Morehead State University's Board of Regents today ratified the University's Capital Construction and Equipment Budget Request for 1994-96.

Totaling $63.4 million, the request contains 44 proposed projects to be funded through various sources, including federal, state and agency funds. The list was given earlier to the Council on Higher Education which will submit its recommendations to the Governor's Office in November.

Top priority on the list $6.5 million for the second phase of the Lappin Hall project. The first phase, a $5 million addition to the science building, is scheduled to be completed this fall. Phase two involves renovations to the facility which was built in 1937 with an addition in 1967.

The regents also ratified the University's operating budget for the 1994-96 biennium. The proposed budget totals $41.5 million for 1994-95 and $51 million the following year and is based on full formula funding in 1995-96 in accordance with CHE guidelines. MSU's current state appropriation is 68.6 percent of the formula-generated amount.

"We've lost ground as a result of budget cuts over the past few years," MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin said. He added that he was not optimistic on the chances of full formula funding.

The CHE's finance committee is scheduled to hold initial budget hearings next month with each institution with recommendations to be made in November so that the state's higher education budget request may be submitted to the Governor's Office by Nov. 15.

In other business, the board learned that private giving to the University during the past fiscal year had reached an all-time high of $1.6 million, representing a 22 percent increase over the previous year's total of $1.3 million.

Reporting earlier to the board's student life and external relations committee, Keith Kappes, vice president for University Advancement, said that the number of total contributors had increased by nearly 10 percent, while alumni gifts accounted for 76 percent of the total received from all sources. Kappes also serves as executive vice president of the MSU Foundation.

The regents also received the preliminary fall enrollment figures which showed 8,695 students enrolled, a decrease of 5.2 percent from the previous fall. Dr. John C. Philley, MSU executive vice president for academic affairs, told the regents two factors may have contributed to the decline: an increase in the minimum index for unconditional admission and a requirement that students deferring tuition/fees payment pay at least one-third of them at the outset.

Noting that the enrollment drop did not come as a total surprise, President Eaglin said that the University had been expecting it to level off and that the institution had met the projection of 8,600 that the budget was based on.

In other actions, the regents approved a revised Faculty Senate Constitution which President Eaglin said would strengthen the senate as truly representing the faculty.

The board also acted on various personnel policies; ratified personnel actions, personal service contracts and external agreements, and adopted a resolution recognizing the MSU Foundation as the University's fiduciary for private gifts with obligations of that relationship to be spelled out in an operating agreement.

The oath of office was administered to James A. Finch, who was reappointed this summer by the governor to a term ending in 1999, and the new student regent Bryan Carlier, a senior from Batavia, Ohio.

At the outset of the board meeting, the regents went into executive session for a discussion of personnel matters and pending litigation with no action being taken.

MOREHEAD, Ky.—Morehead State University's Small Business Development Center will present a day-long workshop on taxes for small businesses on Tuesday, Sept. 28.

There is no charge for attending, but because of the limited number, registration is a must. The program will run from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The program will cover the small business owner's legal obligations to report taxes due the Internal Revenue Service (IRS), the Kentucky Revenue Cabinet, the Social Security Administration, and local city and county tax authority.

This workshop will be good for the person starting a business as well as a refresher course for existing business owners, according to Ernest Begley II, SBDC general management consultant. "Business owners need to know the correct procedure for preparing taxes on a timely basis," he said.

Partially funded by the U.S. Small Business Administration, the training program is open to all individuals without regard to race, color, sex, creed or national origin. Arrangements will be made for the disabled when requested in advance.

The session is co-sponsored by the Kentucky Cabinet for Economic Development's Small Business Division, Buffalo Trace and Gateway Area Development Districts, Morehead-Rowan County and Mt. Sterling-Montgomery County Chambers of Commerce, Internal Revenue Service, Kentucky Revenue Cabinet, Social Security Administration, the Morehead-Rowan County Tax Authority, and MSU's College of Business.

SPECIAL TO THE LOUISVILLE DEFENDER CAREER EDUCATION

MOREHEAD, Ky.---"Educate the Mind--Celebrate Our Differences" is more than a slogan at Morehead State University; it's a philosophy that the administration and faculty take seriously.

"On our campus especially, it is important that we foster an awareness of the value of cultural diversity, because many of our students may not have had an opportunity to experience cultures that differ from their own," said MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin.

That diversity was celebrated this year with a special achievement for one Morehead State University student: Dionne C. Coatie of Louisville became the first African American "Miss Morehead State University" and represented the University in the Miss Kentucky Pageant. Coatie, a social work major, is a December graduation candidate and plans to pursue a graduate degree with the goal of becoming a mental health counselor or family/child therapist.

Providing appropriate role models for African American students among the University's faculty and staff is a major priority for the University also.

In view of that commitment, MSU has added to its professional ranks this year: Abbie Robinson-Armstrong, an assistant professor of elementary, reading and special education, and Carlos Edwards, a minority retention specialist.

Robinson-Armstrong, a Ph.D. candidate at Michigan State University, is the former director of the Division of Early Childhood, state Department of Education. She brings 14 years of experience of teaching early childhood education at large urban and small rural colleges and seven years as chair of departments of Early Childhood Education and Early Childhood Administration at colleges in Canada, as well as pre-school teaching experience.

The co-author of several texts on reading levels, she also has written numerous articles for professional journals and other publications. A frequent presenter at international conferences, Robinson-Armstrong has served as an early childhood education consultant.

Among her professional memberships are the National Association for the Education of Young Children, the National Association of Early Childhood Teacher Educators and the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development.

An MSU alumnus with an A.B. degree in communications and an M.A. degree in adult and higher education, Edwards serves as an academic adviser, teaches career planning courses and coordinates a mentoring program for minority students. Known as GUSTO (Guiding Undergraduate Students Toward Opportunities), the program matches incoming freshman or transfer minority students with a faculty member in their major field and offers workshops on career choices and study skills.

Edwards, a native of Cincinnati, Ohio, is a member of Phi Delta Kappa professional educators fraternity and the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators.

MSU officials agree that recruitment of minority students is not enough. The real issue is retention, so that they can learn and earn their degree which is a passport to a position within their career field.

MSU's attempts at providing an educational experience don't end with a baccalaureate degree, but there is a concerted effort to encourage graduate education. To assist minority students in their pursuit of a master's degree, 12 new graduate assistantship slots were established and earmarked for black students.

Also MSU is participating in a special doctoral program offered for minority students, Faculty for the Future Fellowship Program. One student already has begun the program at the University of Kentucky.

Another effort on the undergraduate level, MTEP (the Minority Teacher Education Program) is beginning to see success in graduating qualified black teachers. Two graduates from MTEP are already teaching in Louisville area schools, while there are two candidates for December graduation and three more slated for May, according to Ernestine Winfield, MTEP coordinator.

High school students identified by the teachers or counselors as potential MTEP participants are brought to the campus throughout the year, including a weeklong session at MSU in the summer. During these visits, they hear about the teaching profession from minority educators and take part in special workshops.

Once enrolled at MSU, the students receive the academic support needed to complete the teacher education program. Currently there are 42 students in the program, of whom half are recipients of MSU awards. Now in its sixth year, MTEP is funded in part by the Kentucky Council on Higher Education and targets schools in Jefferson, Fayette and surrounding counties. The program also received $23,000 from the state Department of Education for student scholarships for 1992-94. One MTEP student, Kimberly Simpson of Louisville, was one of nine students statewide to receive a Kentucky Scholarships in Teacher Education for Minorities award for 1993-94.

This past summer, MSU served as a host for the Whitney M. Young Scholars Program, sponsored by the Louisville-based Lincoln Foundation. Each spring, the Young Scholars Program accepts 50 sixth graders who have academic potential but are economically disadvantaged and provides them academic support along with enrichment programs through high school. Those who meet the criteria through high school graduation are assured financial assistance for college.

Through its Office of Minority Student Affairs, MSU offers a diversity of programs and activities designed to foster pride in black cultural heritage, with speakers ranging from successful alumni to artist Bettye Lee Nichols and film historian Donald Bogle.

In addition to observing Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday each year, MSU also celebrates Black Awareness Week and Black History Month. This past year, the University and the community combined to pay tribute to the late civil rights leader with a candlelight march and program, "Unity in the Community," with the Rev. Raymond Brown as speaker.

Although students are encouraged to be involved in all aspects of campus life, including student government, there are activities offered specifically for the black student: two historically black Greek sororities, four fraternities, as well as The Brotherhood which is a co-ed social organization and LaDies, a women's group. There is also the Black Gospel Ensemble, now in its 26th year, and the Black Student Coalition.

"While we hope students will be prepared for college life, academically and socially, there are safety nets for those who may not be," said Mike Mincey, MSU vice president for student life.

Among them is a Little Brother-Little Sister program, an academic and social peer counseling effort giving upperclassmen the opportunity to help new students succeed. The University also offers a special orientation program for new and returning minority students.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Klas Andersson, a Morehead State University graduate student, competed in the 1993 Phi Beta Lambda conference in Washington, D.C. earlier this year.

He won the award in economics in competition that pitted him against thousands of students from the U.S. and various territories.

Andersson has entered the competition and won awards during the two years he has been a member of Phi Beta Lambda, according to Dr. Ray Bernardi, professor of business education and PBL adviser. "We are very proud to have Klas as a member," he said.

A native of Sweden, Andersson came to Morehead State four years ago. In May, the honors graduate received a Bachelor of Business Administration degree with a major in economics and accounting.

He is currently pursuing an MBA degree.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---From a family of school teachers, Estha Holtz of Flemingsburg will be the fourth generation to choose the profession as her life's work.

"I guess it's in my blood," said the Morehead State University senior who wants to teach home economics at the high school level. When next May rolls around, she hopes to be among those to walk across the stage at Spring Commencement and into a classroom.

With graduation less than a year away, Holtz has begun the countdown. Utmost on her list of school obligations are completing the 14 hours she's carrying this semester and doing student teaching next semester. Then it will be time to find a job, she said.

Holtz began toying with the idea of becoming a teacher while in high school. "In my senior year, I thought about it," she said, then followed up by enrolling at MSU, her father's alma mater, that fall, planning to be a vocational home economics major.

After two years and a "program change or two," Holtz decided to take a break from her education. "I wanted to join the Air Force, but they didn't want me, so I joined the Navy instead," she said. Two weeks after making the decision, she was on her way to the "bootcamp for females" in Orlando, Fla. After that, it was Meridian, Miss., for more training, then to the Naval Air Facility on Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland where she remained until her military obligation was completed.

How does Holtz describe that part of her life? "Some good, some bad," she said, remembering the times she saw the fireworks at the Capital and visited the Smithsonian Institute. During her Navy years, she got married, had a son and got divorced. Among those things she will not miss, are the Friday inspections.

"College is not as strict," she said. "The boots had to be polished, uniform pressed; everything had to be just so-so."

Holtz left the military in March 1991 and she and her young son moved back to Kentucky. Along with the discharge with the rank of E4, she received recognition for being enlisted during Desert Storm.

When she returned to the Morehead State campus, Holtz was an interior design major but switched to vocational home economics during her first semester back.

"There just isn't enough time to do everything I want to do," said the Dean's List student. "There's classes, homework, play with my son,...."

But Holtz is seeing rewards for her labor. Last year, she was the winner of a statewide competition, sponsored by Electrical Women's Round Table (EWRT). She received a $500 scholarship for discussing the value of electricity in today's homes.

Jane Ellington, associate professor in the Department of Human Sciences (formerly Home Economics), is not surprised by Holtz's efforts. "She is a very motivated, young person and strives to do an excellent job," she said. "She makes good grades and should be complimented for balancing the responsibilities of being a full time student and a single parent."

And why did Holtz choose home economics for a career? "Because it's so interesting," she said. "I wouldn't want to be stuck in a situation where it's always the same; this is a field that offers variety," she added, noting the numerous areas to be explored, sewing, cooking, interior design, child care, and fashion merchandising among the different avenues.

"And, you can get new information to stay updated by going to conferences and conventions," she continued.

Staying busy is nothing new for Holtz whose day usually begins around 6 a.m. and often doesn't end until midnight. On the MSU campus, she serves as historian for the Student Home Economics Association and is a member of the Nontraditional Eagle Society. Evenings and weekends, she works on the genealogy of her family, does various jobs for the Flemingsburg Baptist Church where she is a member, and hones her photography skills with Phillip, her 4-year-old son, as the chief model.

During her early years, Holtz lived in Ohio, Kentucky and North Carolina and traveled from one end of the U.S. to the other. Eldest of four children of Lois and the Rev. Roy Machen II of Flemingsburg, the Augusta High School graduate hopes to find a teaching position in one of the surrounding counties.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Dr. Jack C. Sheltnire, a former faculty member at the University of Maine at Presque Isle, has assumed the post of chair of Morehead State University's Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

The former HPER coordinator at the University of Maine succeeds Dr. Robert Grueninger, who resigned the position to return to full-time teaching at MSU.

"Dr. Sheltnire's credentials include extensive experience in recreation and leisure services which will benefit not only the HPER program but our students as well," said Dr. Sylvester Kohut Jr., dean of MSU's College of Education and Behavioral Sciences.

"He also has worked extensively with public school systems in education reform activities which will assist us with our KERA efforts," Dr. Kohut added.

A former outdoor education instructor with the Syracuse (N.Y.) public schools, Dr. Sheltnire had been at the University of Maine's Presque Isle campus since 1979 and held the rank of professor. He previously was a member of the Department of Recreation Education faculty at SUNY College at Cortland.

While at UM's Presque Isle campus, he served as chair of the Division of Education, Health, Physical Education and Recreation from 1981 to 1989. Since 1979, Dr. Sheltnire had coordinated the school's Recreation/Leisure Services Program, which was accredited by the National Recreation and Park Association and American Association for Leisure and Recreation.

He holds the B.S. degree in recreation from Utah State University, the master's degree in outdoor education from SUNY at Cortland and his Ph.D. from the College of Environmental Science and Forestry at Syracuse University.

The author of numerous articles for professional publications, Dr. Sheltnire is licensed as a master guide in Maine and is the recipient of several awards for his work in outdoor education and recreation.

A former president of the Maine Association for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance (HPERD), he is active at the state, district and national levels with the American Association for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance (AAHPERD) and was a representative and program presider at its 1993 Delegate Assembly in Washington, D.C. He also is scheduled this spring to present a paper on his current research efforts to the 1994 Delegate Assembly in Denver, Colo.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Approximately 2,000 high school students from Kentucky and surrounding states are expected to participate in Morehead State University's Blue and Gold Festival of Marching Bands on Saturday, Oct. 2.

The bands will perform for ratings and awards beginning at 1 p.m. at Jayne Stadium. Tickets will be available at the gate at $4 for adults, $2 for children 12 and under, and free to those under 6.

The festival is open to all high school band programs, according to Dr. Richard Miles, MSU director of bands. "This is a non-competitive format and each band will have two opportunities to be evaluated," he said.

The activity, sanctioned by the Kentucky Music Education Association, allows each participating group to receive a rating from a KMEA panel of adjudicators and an individual "mini-clinic" by a separate set of judges.

The bands, which will be divided by size, will perform throughout the afternoon at 15-minute intervals. The MSU Marching Band will give an exhibition performance at 8 p.m., followed by the awards presentation at 8:30 p.m.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---If a particular toy had a natural habitat, where would it be?

That is the theme of a series of "Environmental Portraits" on display Oct. 4 through Nov. 5 in the Strider Gallery, Claypool-Young Art Building on the Morehead State University campus.

The exhibit is the work of Eric Shindelbower, who has been the University's chief photographer for more than three years. The show, which consists of 26 pieces, highlights puppets, dolls and other action figures that range from 4" to 29" in height.

According to the photographic artist, he used a humorous approach to the subject matter while trying to provide an interesting group of tongue-and-cheek portraits of the various toys.

"I hope viewers will use their imagination and have a sense of humor. It's supposed to be amusing," Shindelbower said. "I enjoyed doing this show and tried to maintain all elements of the personality of the subjects while showing them in their natural settings."

While the portraits were all taken earlier this year, with most being photographed in the Morehead area, Shindelbower said the idea originated from a photography bookmaking course he took while a student at Ohio University in 1983.

Once the concept was formed, the photographer believes that watching television provided some reinforcement. "Influence came from the Duracell commercial, Saturday Night Live, the Muppet Show and programs of this type," he said.

For his portraits, Shindelbower used toys he has retained from his childhood as well as found items he bought at flea markets.

Shindelbower received a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in photography from Ohio University. He has worked as a custom color printer for Stone Photography in Lexington and a staff photographer for the Richmond Register newspaper.

A native of Madison County, Shindelbower is the son of Dan and Pauline Shindelbower of Richmond. He and his wife Suzanne live in Morehead.

The gallery hours are 8 a.m.-4 p.m., weekdays. There is no charge for viewing. Additional information is available by calling (606) 783-2766.

A DAY FOR SMILES

Morehead State University President Ronald G. Eaglin, left, Rowan County Judge Executive Clyde Thomas, and Kentucky Gov. Brereton Jones had a great deal to be smiling about last week. In a news conference held at MSU's Folk Art Center, the governor announced that the University was slated to receive $542,000 in federal funds to acquire and renovate the old Union Grocery Building into an expanded Folk Art Center. The project not only will preserve a historically significant structure, but also has the potential to increase tourism and economic development in the region. The project is linked to a city/county project to restore the old CSX Passenger Depot which also was funded. Thomas also serves as the chair of the Morehead/Rowan County Economic Development Council.

Sept. 28, 1993

MOREHEAD, Ky.---The establishment of Morehead State University's Folk Art Center as a major tourism draw came closer to reality with Gov. Brereton Jones' announcement of a $542,000 grant for the acquisition and renovation of the old Union Grocery building.

The funds are part of the state's share of federal enhancement dollars through the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act (ISTEA) of 1991 and represent 80 percent of the project cost. The remaining 20 percent ($135,600) will come from local support.

ISTEA funding for another community project complementing the Folk Art Center also was announced by the governor during a Sept. 23 news conference held on the current site of MSU's Folk Art Center. Accompanying the governor was Secretary of Education and Humanities Sherry Jelsma.

The Morehead/Rowan County Economic Development Council, Rowan County Fiscal Court, the Morehead/Rowan County Chamber of Commerce and the Tourism Commission will receive $80,000 to restore the old CSX Passenger Depot, built in 1904, to its original state. The depot not only will serve as a visitor and historical information center but also house the Chamber and Economic Development Council.

Located on First Street along the recently completed bypass, the two buildings which date back to the early 1900s will be the focal points of what MSU, city and county officials envision as the development of an area housing galleries, arts and crafts shops, and restaurants.

Once renovated, the former Union Grocery building will serve as a Folk Art Center, presenting folk art as an important expression of regional culture through both exhibitions and educational programs. The center will contribute to economic development through increased tourism in the region.

"It is vital that Eastern Kentucky build upon its own rich heritage and recognize the contributions to the arts both regionally and nationally, while reminding the people of Appalachia of their value," said MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin. "The Folk Art Center will serve to remind the people of Appalachia of their value, he added.

Commending the governor for his leadership and vision, Dr. Eaglin said that the center will not only preserve a rich culture, but also provide an economic outlet so needed in Eastern Kentucky.

"This could be the building block for a network of such centers which emphasize both the historical and cultural heritage of our people throughout Eastern Kentucky," the president said.

He added that he envisioned similar projects "throughout the highways and byways of Eastern Kentucky, creating a cultural trail where tourists can learn of our heritage and culture.

"I believe that with creativity and determination, we can develop tourist centers throughout Eastern Kentucky that will bring tour buses and regular tourists to learn of our culture and also to spend their dollars," the president said.

In addition to the two Rowan County projects, the governor also announced the approval of grants to Ashland for conversion of the old CSX Railroad Depot to a transportation center ($284,000); to the Mason County Fiscal Court for the restoration of the Albert Sidney Johnston House ($38,000); to Ewing for completion of the restoration of the Ewing railroad station ($32,000), and to the Bracken Fiscal Court for the acquisition of land for a roadside park and welcoming/visitors center ($52,000).

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University theatre students will kick off the fall semester with five performances of the Broadway comedy, "I Hate Hamlet."

Showtimes are Wednesday through Saturday, Oct. 6-9, at 8 p.m., and Sunday, Oct. 10, at 2 p.m. in Kibbey Theatre. Because of limited seating, reservations are necessary.

The play, written by Paul Rudnick, follows the efforts of the ghost of John Barrymore as it coaches a young actor to play the role of Hamlet, according to Dr. Travis Lockhart, director of theatre.

Appearing in the leading roles are L. Henry Dowell, Crab Orchard sophomore, as Barrymore, and Dan O'Neil, Mason, Ohio, junior, as Andrew.

The student-production will include James Phillips, Greenfield, Ohio, senior, as director; Will Ingham, Naples, Fla., senior, set designer, and Monica Taylor, Corydon, Ind., senior, costume designer.

Elizabeth Harris, Olive Hill senior, will design lights and Mary Whidden, Morehead senior, will be responsible for properties. Tom Brennan, Whitesburg junior, is sound designer, and George David McKee, Flemingsburg graduate student, is publicity director.

Tickets are $6 for adults, $2 for high school students, children and senior citizens, and free to MSU students with a valid I.D. card.

Additional information and reservations are available from the Theatre Box Office at (606) 783-2170.

WMKY PRESENTS 'BRASS AMERICA'

Each year the Great American Band Festival draws hundreds of brass band music fans to Danville to listen to sounds from yesteryear. Now WMKY 90.3 FM, public radio from Morehead State University's campus, will bring that music to its listeners each week on Sundays at 2 p.m., beginning Oct. 3. "Brass America" will be a 13-week series with highlights from the festivals of the past two years, featuring some of the most notable brass bands and musicians in America.

MOREHEAD, Ky.----WMKY 90.3 FM, public radio from Morehead State University's campus, has a treat in store for lovers of brass band music this fall.

WMKY will begin airing a 13-week series, "Brass America," on Sundays at 2 p.m., beginning Oct. 3. The series, featuring highlights from live recordings done at the 3rd and 4th annual Great American Brass Band Festivals in Danville, was the brainchild of WMKY staff member Paul Hitchcock.

"I believe that brass band music bridges the gap between all genres of music," said Hitchcock, WMKY music and traffic director. "The Great American Brass Band Festival is a cooperative effort among Centre College, the Danville Advocate and many Boyle County businesses.

"The festival has been featured on National Public Radio and KET. I saw MSU's involvement in producing this series as twofold," Hitchcock said.

"First it is an opportunity to expose our listeners to a unique style of music. And, secondly, it promotes a festival that recreates the old fashioned fun of weekend performances by a local brass band," Hitchcock said.

The series will feature such notable groups as the California-based Gold Rush Brass Band and Danville's own Advocate Brass Band with Dr. Earle Louder, MSU professor of music and internationally-known euphonium artist, along with renowned trumpeter Vince DeMartino. Also to be heard will be the Naperville Municipal Band, the Dallas Brass Band, the Bluegrass Brass Band and, one of the premier New Orleans groups, Dejan's Olympia Brass Band.

"A lot of the credit for this popular festival goes to George Foreman, director of Danville's Norton Center for the Arts," Hitchcock said. "Not only was the festival his idea, but he also is the conductor for the Advocate Brass Band."

Additional information on WMKY's series, "Brass America," is available by calling Hitchcock at (606) 783-2001.

MOREHEAD, Ky.----If you find yourself constantly in a stressed out mode, you might want to consider attending an upcoming seminar on stress reduction.

Morehead State University will sponsor an American Institute of Banking two-hour seminar, "Turn the Corner on Stress," on Thursday, Oct. 7, in Breckinridge Auditorium, beginning at 6 p.m..

Designed for bank officers and business personnel, the seminar also is open to MSU faculty, staff and students. Conducting the session will be author Ted Dreier, who is known for his humorous, down-to-earth style. He maintains that while stress is inevitable, being stressed out is not.

Dreier has been a guest on more than 350 radio/television programs, answering questions dealing with stress and change. His book, "Take Your Life Off Hold," which was motivated by a major lifestyle change of his own, has received national attention.

The cost for the seminar is $35 for those registering in advance or $40 for those registering at the door. Registrations may be made by calling MSU's Small Business Development Center at (606) 783-2895.

The AIB is offering the seminar in conjunction with MSU and its College of Business, Department of Management and Marketing and SBDC.

Sept. 30, 1993

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University faculty and students will perform the arrangements of a well-known big band orchestra leader in a tribute concert on Wednesday, Oct. 6.

The MSU Department of Music will present a special program, "A Tribute to Clyde McCoy," under the direction of the late bandleader's nephew, Johnny McCoy, in Duncan Recital Hall, beginning at 8 p.m.

In a special ceremony at intermission, Johnny McCoy, acting on the family's behalf, will present the MSU Foundation with the band's library of original sheet music for all of the Clyde McCoy arrangements. Accepting the gift will be MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin.

The music scores will be used as an educational tool for students in the Department of Music. The actual materials, valued at more than $50,000, will be housed in the Camden-Carroll Library's Archives.

For more than five decades, McCoy reigned over ballrooms and concert halls. A native of Greenup County, he is best remembered for his own style of trumpet playing known as the "Wah-Wah" sound.

McCoy, who died in 1990, won national fame for his recording of "Sugar Blues" in 1935 which eventually sold more than 14 million copies and became one of the biggest hits of the era. In 1937, the Bennett Sisters joined his orchestra, and the group's lead singer later became McCoy's wife.

When the U.S. entered World War II, McCoy took his entire orchestra into the Special Service with the Navy. After the war, the big band regained its popularity in the ballroom which continued through the 1950s.

It was during the post-war period that McCoy's nephew Johnny joined the orchestra as a fellow trumpeter. Johnny, who now lives in Seffner, Fla., left his uncle's band in 1956, and was a jazz musician with other well-known groups, such as the Tommy Dorsey Band, before branching out on his own. The elder McCoy retired in the late '70s but continued to make cameo appearances with Johnny's orchestra until the mid-1980's.

Also making a guest appearance will be David Howe, current leader of the Octopus Octet. A recognized lead player in New York, he has toured with numerous artists like Chuck Mangione, Don Menza and Freddie Hubbard.

Playing the arrangements of the late Clyde McCoy will be several MSU students: John Wright, Tollesboro senior, and Cynthia Kegley, Morehead senior, on saxophone; Duane Gutzweiller, Mays Lick senior, Wes Flinn, Bedford, Ind., senior, and Ian Insko, Foster senior, on trombone, and Norbert Reynolds, Xenia, Ohio, graduate student, Justin Skorupa, Radford, Va., junior, and Robert Jordan, Xenia, Ohio, junior, on trumpet.

Faculty members participating in the band will include: Jay Flippin, associate professor, on piano; Ray Ross, assistant professor, on bass; David Anderson and Dr. Larry Blocher, associate professors, on saxophone, and Frank Oddis, associate professor, on drums.

Blocher and Kegley were students of Johnny McCoy when he was a high school band director in Greenville, Ohio.

Additional information is available from MSU's Department of Music at (606) 783-2473.
