Burglars were caught in the act of relieving the Blue Moon Restaurant of its surplus cigarettes and beer on Monday night. They were caught by the watchfulness of Elwood Dillon and Milton Davis. The two boys according to reports had come down Main street from the bakery at a late hour and had paused in front of the Coxy building opposite the Blue Moon. Dillon, who is employed in the restaurant, glanced over and noticed a figure moving about inside the restaurant. Knowing that there was something wrong he started round the side to arouse Graydon Taubity, the proprietor. He caught the intruder who started to escape. Together he and Davis went with the boy who stated that he was from Louisiana to the car where he said his partner was. They found a quantity of cigarettes and beer that had been taken from the restaurant.

According to Mr. Mullins who was living there alone at the time of the fire, he was aroused by shouts from the neighbors and hurried into his clothes, but was unable because of the smoke to find a way to save any property. He stated that he had not had a fire in the house since early the morning before the fire, when he had cooked breakfast.

It is thought that the fire originated from defective wiring. The house was covered with insurance to the amount of $1500.00.

Rev. Moore Is Returned

Methodist Minister Granted One More Year Of Service By Conference Board

Rev. H. L. Moore, Pastor of the Morehead Methodist Church, was returned to this pastorate for another year at the Methodist Conference held in Lexington on Friday, Saturday and Sunday of last week. His return for an additional year, beyond the four years he has already served as pastor in this city, was in response to an urgent plea made by the citizens of this community.

Mr. Moore has already served in this city for four years, which ordinarily is the extent of service permitted by the rules of the Methodist Church. However, in exceptional cases, where there is a demand for his return, an exception is sometimes made and he is returned for an additional year. This was the case with Rev. Moore. Not only did the members of his own church ask that he be returned, but members of other churches, as well as more citizens of the community, expressed their desire in no uncertain terms. A petition bearing over four hundred names of citizens of Morehead was presented to the conference on Sunday, asking they return the Methodist minister to serve them for at least one more year. A copy of the Rowan County News, which carried an article expressing the sentiment of the people of the community, was presented and read with the petition.

In view of the urgent request which amounted almost to a demand, the conference accepted the petition and the News is glad to announce that Rev. Moore will be a part of the community for at least one more year.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN CLINIC TO BE HELD

County's Crippled Children To Attend Clinic At Mt. Sterling In Near Future.

Miss Marian Williamson, director Kentucky Crippled Children Commission, announces that the Commission will conduct a free diagnostic clinic for crippled children in seven counties on Thursday, September 16, in the First Christian Church, Mt. Sterling. The Commission administers a state and federal appropriation for the care of helpless crippled boys and girls under the age of 18 years and in the eleven years since its creation has treated nearly six thousand such cases. Counties for whose benefit the Mt. Sterling clinic is planned are Bath, Menifee, Montgomery, Powell, Morgan, Wolfe, and Rowan. Clinics have frequently been held in this section of the state and cases previously treated by the commission are urged to attend the Mt. Sterling clinic for the purpose of check-up on their present physical condition.

Health departments and clubs in the various counties are sponsoring the clinic and committees are being formed to provide transportation for cases that have no means of getting to the clinic. Dr. T. A. E. Evans agreed to serve as chairman in Rowan County.

J. J. Jennings Opens Campaign For Office

Speaks Of Candidacy At Meeting At Court House Monday; Has Good Crowd

J. J. Jennings opened his campaign for the election to the office of Representative from the Rowan-South District Monday afternoon at the court house in Morehead. Mr. Jennings spoke to a well filled circuit court room, discussing the campaign, his platform, and his objectives in asking the people for the office.

Mr. Jennings dwelt on the fact that he had been legally elected two years ago to the office and that he had been robbed of the office by a contest in which he was unseated. He stated that the will of the people had been defeated when the office was taken away from him, after the people of the district had fairly elected him to serve them. He asked that the wrong be righted by returning him to the office by an unquestionable majority.

He discussed his platform, emphasizing the main points as follows:

He stands for the payment of a $30.00 minimum pension to the aged.

He stands for the passage of a law to hold all school district trustees and municipal elections at some time separate from other county and state elections.

He is thoroughly in sympathy with and back of the Morehead State Teachers College.

Morehead School Under Direction Of Mrs. Ethel Ellington Gets Fine Start

The Consolidated schools of Rowan county opened Monday of this week, with what has proved to be the largest enrollment in history. Every school in the county has shown a decided increase in enrollment.

Morehead Public School under the principalship of Mrs. Ethel Ellington, enrolled 460 students in all grades up to Tuesday of this week, with a number of others expected to enroll during the next few days. The enrollment by grades on Tuesday was:

First grade, 36; second, 33; third, 32; fourth, 55; fifth, 37; sixth, 37; seventh, 30; eighth, 36; ninth, 47; tenth, 30; eleventh, 30; twelfth, 18. The Morehead school will operate as last year on the six-six plan, with the seventh, eighth and ninth grade as a junior high school.

Paul Gene Henry was elected to the position as teacher of the third grade, taking the place left vacant by Miss Cara Bruce who goes to Haldeman. Miss Bruce will take the place in the Haldeman school left vacant by the resignation of Mrs. Marie Howard.

Caudill Family To Hold Reunion

Will Meet At Fouch Grove Near Rodburn For All Day Meeting, Sept. 19

The first annual reunion of members and relatives of the Caudill family will be held at the John Fouch (Mountain Park) grove at Rodburn on Sunday, September 19, according to plans that are now being formulated. This is the first event of its kind to be held by the family in Rowan county and it is planned to make it a yearly affair.

All members of the family are requested to gather at the grove on that day, bringing baskets of food, for the big family dinner that will be held at noon. The day will be spent informally in visiting and renewing acquaintances. No set program will be arranged for this occasion. It is planned however to appear organized as that in the future the reunion will be a better planned and carried out affair.

It is emphasized that all members of the Caudill family and their dependents are especially requested to be present.

Eagles To Be Strong

With a full crew of candidates on hand, the Morehead Eagles go into the second week of training for their gridiron tussle with the University of Cincinnati, scheduled for the night of September 18 at Cincinnati. The game will mark the opening of the 1937 football schedule for both the University of Cincinnati and for the Eagles.

Prospect for a good team are unusually bright this year, according to Coaches Johnson and Miller who have the Eagles in charge. Only one man was lost from the last year's squad through graduation, Robert (Bushylog) Brasher. The hole left by Brasher will be a big one, as he was the outstanding line man in the state. However, Marzetti is expected to fill his shoes in good shape.

The Eagles have plenty of good line material and will be able to show up in this department. Their backs are as good as ever, and counting on an additional year's experience show up even better than last year.

While some of the candidates failed to report when "rehearsals" opened on September 1, they continued to appear ready for action as the week closed and at the start of practice Monday morning every candidate for the team was on hand.

The Eagles have suffered some minor casualties in the scrimmages of the past week, such as sprained shoulders, a sprained ankle and a Charlie horse or two, but these are all in the course of a dry work and are to be expected especially during the early drills while the boys are not in the best of shape. Coach Johnson believes most of them will be cured by the time the Cincinnati game rolls around, and the boys will be ready for action.

The Eagles themselves are in fine fettle and ready to go places and do things. This is particularly true so far as Cincinnati is concerned. The game will be the first on the Eagles schedule as it will be the first on the Cincinnati schedule so there is no means of counting. (Continued On Page Six)

Written Each Week By MABEL ALFREY County Attendance Officer

A CORRECTION

A mistake was made in the News a few weeks ago when an article appeared that we had a pie supper and ice cream social. We had the ice cream social but no pies. Besie Mae Birchfield, teacher.

ATTENDANCE OFFICERS

The Holy school children are divided into four divisions, because there are four different creeks meeting at one point. All of the children on one creek are racing against the others. There are two junior attendance officers appointed and they are on the alert to know why children are not in school. The losing sides will give the other side a party.

NEW IDEA IN PAINTING

A new coat of cream paint on the walls and ceiling of the Holy school makes it very attractive. The window frames and wainscoting has been painted dark brown. One of the borders using the dark brown paint. This is one of the most attractive rooms I have ever seen. The colors blend perfectly. The wains coating and stenciling adds beauty to the room.

HAS PIE SUPPER

The Mt. Hope School gave a pie supper August 13 for the purpose of purchasing school equipment. They are happy to report that it was a success and that they plan to use other materials of securing necessities in the future.

ATTENDANCE RACE

In the Mt. Hope School the attendance contest is progressing. Elwood Cornette is captain of the "Blues" and Ethel Brown is captain of the "Reds". At present the Reds are running slightly ahead of the Blues in attendance.

County Schools

Martin Berry will be resumed later in the year.

A new department under the supervision of Miss Mary Alice Calvert has also been opened. This is a home economics department, with courses in sewing and cooking being offered to a selective group. The room is being fitted up in the basement for this purpose, with the exception that the course will be built up to a full department in the future.

Elliotville Increased

Working in cramped quarters, due to the fact that the new school building is far from completed, the Elliotville consolidated school under the supervision of Miss Thelma Allen opened Monday. The enrollment on Monday was 136, and on Tuesday 148, with even more expected in the next few days.

The enrollment by grades: Primary and first grade, taught by Mrs. Elizabeth Lane, 30; second, third and fourth grades taught by Miss Grace Lewis, 38; fifth and sixth grades taught by Orville Carter, 23; seventh and eighth grades, taught by Miss Mabel Hackney, 25; ninth and tenth grades, taught by Miss Allen, 32.

Since the new building is not completed it has been necessary to open the school in the old building, which is a decided handicap to both teachers and pupils. The enrollment is already up to the high mark set last year, with prospects of a further increase. No figures were available on the enrollment of the schools at Haideman and Farmers, where Frank Laughlin and Austin Riddle are principals. However reports say that the enrollment of both schools is showing a decided increase over last year.

A dozen years ago, a little college girl in Missouri used to cry herself to sleep at night. In those days, she cried because she was lonesome. But today, excited crowds surge about her whenever she appears in public, and her face and name are known by countless millions of people on every continent washed by the seven seas.

A dozen years ago, this girl waited on the tables at Stephens College in order to pay for her board and she was so poor that she borrowed fifty cents now and then from the night watchman. She couldn't go out to a party even if she got an invitation, because she had nothing to wear but the cast-off clothing other girls had given her. Today she is one of the best-dressed women in Hollywood. Today her clothes are so smart, so chic, that she creates vogues, and her gown is eagerly copied by women all over the world. Dressmakers beg

Six years later, she decided to take a flyer in higher education. She enrolled as a student in Stephens College at Columbia, Missouri. Money she didn't have any more. As I have always said, she wore the cast-off clothes that the other girls gave her in order to get board and room. Some of the girls who snubbed and high-headed her in those days because she had to do work as a waitress now say "Joan Crawford! Oh, yes! I know her well. We are very dear friends. We used to go to college together."

Her burning ambition then was to become a dancer. So when she was offered a job dancing with a road show for twenty dollars a week, she grabbed it, and felt she was uptoeing on the edge of paradise. Two weeks later, the show closed. There was no money to pay salaries, and she was left broke and stranded in a strange town.

Did that kill her determination to go on the stage? Never! She borrowed money, got back to Kansas City, worked, saved her pennies, and boarded a Santa Fe train one morning headed for Chicago. After paying for her ticket she had only two dollars left. She was afraid to spend that—she missed a couple cent; then she came to New York and danced at the Winter Garden as a chorus girl. A movie scout for M. G. M. studied her dances in "The Passing Show." She had grace, rhythm, youth, personality and a beautiful pair of legs. He suggested that she take a screen test.

"What? The movies? Oh, no!" She aspired to be the Pavlova of Broadway. Finally, after much arguing, she condescended to take a screen test and was handed a ticket for Hollywood and a contract for seventy-five dollars a week. But Hollywood turned thumbs down on her name. Lucille LaSueur? Poetical—yes. But disastrous for a movie actress. Nobody could remember it or pronounce it. So a movie magazine staged a contest, offering prizes, and names came pouring in by the thousand in every mail. As a result of that contest "Lucille LaSueur" became Joan Crawford.

But she wouldn't far from being a star. She played bits, acting as an extra, doubled for Norma Shearer. And at night she danced; the Charleston, the Black Bottom, the St. Louis-lop. She wore out dozens of pairs of shoes in contests—and won prizes of loving cups.

She singled down to a routine of hard, serious study; French English and singing. She began to read, and for three years, she was constantly hungry. She rarely has anything for breakfast now except a glass of water flavored with a dash of orange juice. Often she touches nothing but a little buttermilk all day. She worked hard and began to be given better parts. In one picture, when her role called for an apache dance, she fell and broke her ankle. But she was so afraid she would lose the part that she had the doctor tape up her leg and foot, and continued with the picture.

Joan Crawford says that she herself is astonished at what has happened to her. She was born in poverty and now has every luxury that wealth can buy.

She was born without position and she is now surrounded by mobs to admirers wherever she goes. She was born without beauty—and is now one of the most beautiful women on the screen.

Hunters Asked To Be Careful

In order that the losses caused annually by forest fires burning on the Cumberland National Forest may be averted, R. F. Hemingway Forest Supervisor has requested that with the opening of the hunting season on September 1 all hunters be careful with fire while using the National Forest.

Hunting is permitted on the National Forest without charge. The same laws which govern hunting and fishing on private lands apply to National Forest lands.

One of the primary objectives in the establishment of a National Forest is the protection of fish and game. The fact that game is not more plentiful in Eastern Kentucky may be attributed to a large extent to the numerous forest fires which have destroyed both food and cover through the past years, said Supervisor Hemingway.

Offers Timber Forest Service

Invitations to private operators to bid on Government-owned timber are being sent out today, was the announcement made by R. F. Hemingway, Supervisor of the Cumberland National Forest.

Timber will be sold on an area of about 1440 acres located in Laurel County. Estimates made by Forest Service timber cruisers show that more than 5 million board feet of timber will be cut, including white oak and other species of oak, yellow poplar, pine and hemlock.

The successful bidder for the timber will be required to operate on the area in such a way as to assure the minimum of damage to the young growth now on the area, and the minimum of waste from the trees removed. Only those trees marked by a trained Forester are removed.

In making timber sales the U. S. Forest Service does not consider the value of the timber crop alone, but much careful planning is done to determine the effects of the removal of the timber on the recreational value, as well as the values for watershed protection, game propagation.

Timber sales on the National Forest will mean a direct return of money to the counties within the Forest. 25 per cent of the gross revenue derived from the sale will be returned to the State of Kentucky to be distributed among 17 counties in the forest, in proportion to the amount of Government-owned land in the counties for the improvement of roads and schools. In addition, 10 per cent of the money will be returned to the National Forest for the betterment of roads, making a total of 35 cents out of every dollar which is returned to Kentucky. The success of the program to protect the Cumberland National Forest from fires will largely determine the number and size of timber sales which can be made and in turn the amount of money which will be turned back to the State of Kentucky," said supervisor Hemingway.

Parking

A Bulletin recently issued by the National Board of Fire Underwriters points out that automobile parking on streets is becoming one of the greatest menaces to effective fire service. This is particularly true in business and manufacturing districts, and around apartment houses and theatres.

The hazards of parking are evident. Ladder and rescue work may be retarded because of the inability of equipment to get near a burning building. Hydrants may be obstructed, and alarm boxes hidden from view. Increased traffic congestion may prevent fire apparatus from getting through without long delays. The chance of traffic accidents is increased.

The smaller towns and cities of the nation should pay attention to this problem, as well as the metropolises. Indeed, in smaller towns double-parking and disregard of hydrant zones is usually more flagrant than in well-policed large cities. Many a fire that could have been quickly controlled had parked cars not hampered fire fighters, has developed into a major blaze.

The National Board suggests that city authorities and Chambers of Commerce consider the parking problem, study local conditions and formulate legislation. Some communities have found it necessary this week.

to completely ban parking in certain congested areas. Angle parking should never be permitted except on extremely wide streets, and double parking is a menace under any circumstance.

Teared Guns of Circle L

by Perry Westbrook

Starbuck had talked so fast and with so much pent-up anger, that he was breathless when he finished. George Arthur had begun prying about his office again, his thin lips pursed, his forehead wrinkled with agitated thought.

Things have been badly messed, he agreed jerkily. But of course, if the worst comes to the worst, we can stage a raid on the Circle L some night and clean up the whole nest.

Starbuck laughed scornfully. Yuh gone crazy too? he demanded. Yuh sound like it, talkin' that way. Lis, ten here, Arthur. Only a idiot un-derecimates his opponent. Slim Loyale is a scrapin' fool; he comes from that kind of stock.

Backin' him are three of the most dangerous men that ever swung a leg over a saddle. I'm referin' to Dakota Blue, Stony Sherdan an' Roy O'Brien. Wind them three up an' get em started, an' they're better than a dozen ordinary men. Steve Owens an' Charley Quinn are young cubs, but not afraid of any-thin' under the sun.

An' me, I'd rather trade wallops with a grizzly bear than mix it here about the nest. I want to do my part, 'cause I figured I was sidin' in with men who had some savvy an' brains. I found I was mistaken. I'll still play the game with yuh, as far as I can swing it. But I'm finishin' back an' sayin' nothin'. The finish is up to yuh an' Brockwell, damn him. He ain't played fair at all. He won't even leave the Vasco stage alone. In folks are beginnin' to look at me sorta outta the corner of their eyes. Because I ain't roundin' up the jaspers who are pullin' them hold-ups.

We fixed one of them hold-ups once on an innocent man, Slim Loyale. But that game-ain't gonna get over a second time. Nope, I'm keepin' my coat tails in the clear from now on. Yuh can tell Brockwell that when Abe Fornachon clanked into her room. Mornin' Miss Mona, he drawed, his deep eyes flitting over her wistfully. I hear there was trouble about the trail last night.

Mona started up, her face white, her hands going to her throat. Slim! she gasped. Slim isn't—

Slim's all right, broke in Abe gently. Brockwell's crowd was layin' for him, but between him an' Roy O'Brien they foxed 'em. There was one casualty. Rango Deale got rook ed off by Roy Shore, there's bad trouble brewin'.

Mona nodded her eyes tragic. I've signed it plim up on this range, Abe, for a long time. Ever since they sent Slim to prison, I've felt that sinister cloud hanging above us all. I'm afraid, Abe—afraid!

Mona stared somberly out of the window. Don't go to losin' yore courage, Miss Mona. I admit there's a lot of polecats on this range, but there's quite a count of white men as well. I wouldn't worry too much was I yuh.

Still later that morning, almost noon, in fact a buckboard rattled up to the Dot H Dot, George Arthur, dressed in a voluminous linen dust coat and a narrow-brimmed Stetson, got out of it. There was a sharp nervous impatience in his eyes, his thin lips were set. Mona met him on the porch, murmuring a perfunctory greeting to the purpose of his visit.

Miss Hall, he rasped, are you prepared to settle the note I hold against your ranch.

Mona's heart sank. She shook her head. No, I'm not, Mr. Arthur, at least, not immediately. But with a little more time—

Arthur halted her with uplifted hand. Impossible, he snapped. I regret this of course, but conditions are such that I can extend you no further time. I shall have to fore-close immediately.

But you said—Mona was fencing rather frankly. Arthur cut her short again, with almost brutal directness.

What I may have said in the past has absolutely no bearing on the present, Miss Hall. Again I am sorry, but business exigencies force this step upon me. I am giving you ten days' notice. On the twentieth of this month I will take possession. Good day.

He was gone before Mona could collect her wits, leaving her feeling more desolately beaten than ever before in her life. It wasn't that the blow was entirely unexpected. Mona had known that the world would fall sometime, just as she had intimated to Slim Loyale. But she was human enough to have hung on to one last thread of hope that something might turn up to avert the foreclosure.

She turned wearily back to the house, her eyes dimming with tears her throat convulsed with sobs. Two hours later she hunted up Abe Fornachon. "Abe," she choked, "we're all done. The old Dot H Dot Ranch is about to change proprietors. Arthur is foreclosing on the twentieth.

"You'll have to tell the boys; I haven't the heart. Of course, if they want to gamble on Arthur retaining them after he takes over the place, the can. But I can't afford to keep them another day. I've just got about enough to pay them all off, including you. Oh, Abe, it hurts me so!"

She began to sob again, little choked sobs that set lines of grim, white frowning about Abe Fornachon's lips. He laid a big hand on her bowed shoulder. "Don't yuh worry sich 'n nooke again. Liza, he told her gently. "We'll make out.

Leonard S. Shore, National Labor Relations Board attorney, arrived in Morehead on Wednesday of this week, to conduct hearings for the purpose of gathering evidence to

Warner Oland, famous on the screen in his character of Charlie Chan, the infallible Chinese Sleuth created by Earl Derr Biggame, was talked into a bit of real-life detectiveing during the filming of his latest picture, and the results weren't up to his fictional part.

A large wooden box was delivered to Oland's dressing room on the Twentieth Century-Fox set where "Charlie Chan at the Olympics," at the Cozy Theatre Friday and Saturday, was being filmed. It had been mailed from Connecticut and was marked: "Fraigle. To be opened only by Warner Oland."

"Maybe it's an informal machine," cheerfully suggested H. Bruce Hornberstone, the director.

Someone else thought it had a sinister appearance, too, and the gate man wasn't sure but what he heard a ticking sound. They all agreed when Oland dumped it into a pan of water before opening.

Under the ripples the opened box revealed a plaster likeness of Charlie Chan, accompanied by a card of good wishes from a fan.

The water treatment did not modeled portly no harm, however, and Oland declares he will use it as the nucleus of a Hall of Fame.

A hearing on the case of employe-ees of the Lee Clay Products Com-pany, on charges growing out of a strike about the same time, has been set for September 9. It will be held at Mt. Sterling.
