MASS FUNERAL SERVICES HELD

HUNDREDS MADE HOMELESS BY CLOUDBURST WEDNESDAY MORN

Death and destruction came to Rowan county early Wednesday morning when a smashing, irrevocable wall of water snuffed out the lives of 25 persons, made hundreds homeless and destroyed 2 million dollars worth of property.

Since no other persons have been reported as missing in the county, it is being assumed that the reported number of dead is complete.

In Breathitt county, which was flooded at the same time, scores were swept into the Kentucky river and the number drowned was still unknown Friday.

The flash flood, caused by a cloud burst near the Carter county line, came down the valley about 1:15 a. m. sweeping people, trees, livestock and human beings in its wake.

Many were caught in their crumbling houses like rats in a trap, others took to the trees. A few were able to swim to safety. Families were separated.

The roar of the torrent, the screams of the doomed and the terror stricken victims from the darkness will be forever remembered by those who witnessed the scene.

Wednesday morning Morehead was cut off from the outside world. The only road open was the Flemingsburg highway. A single telephone wire to Ashland was the only means of communication.

But as soon as the news reached neighboring communities, help from Legislators, private citizens, Boy Scouts, Red Cross, financial directors and many other organizations began to pour in.

Searching Parties Start Out

Searching parties were sent out for victims of the retention waters. They were dug out of mud, trees and wreckage. Many lives had been taken to the funeral homes and identified by lawful relatives.

By the afternoon steps of danger dispatched by Governor Chandler the CCC boys were patrolling the district and turning back the hundreds of sightseers.

Thursday, funeral services were held for the four Sparkman children. Merchants, home owners who still had homes, and farmers began the difficult work of cleaning up the ugly mess left by the flood.

Funeral Services Held Friday

Friday the majority of the funeral were held and rehabilitation work was being started.

The Red Cross set up headquarters in the city hall with Mrs. Bruce Wells, as head, until the arrival of national representatives from Washington who arrived Thursday.

Delivery of mail from the outside was resumed Thursday. The George Washingtons at six o'clock Thursday night was the first passenger train to get through after the flood.

PROFESSOR SPEAKS HERE

Dr. A. L. Cooke, professor of higher education at George Peabody, Nashville, Tennessee, spoke at convocation Friday morning.

Water Service Resumed

Water service was resumed Thursday afternoon and electric power Wednesday afternoon.

Refugees were taken to Morehead State Teachers College dormitories and the Morehead public school gymnasium. The college is also housing 25 highway patrol men and two doctors from the state board of health. W. H. Rice, college engineer, stayed up two nights getting the power plant ready to operate.

The flood swept away about two miles of C. and O. railway track, about a mile of it on each side of town, a small railway bridge and a highway bridge.

Morehead and other towns in the flood area were cut off by rail and highway after the cloudburst. Telephone and telegraph communication lines went out most of the day. Communication with the outside world was established at intervals from time to time, but was entirely haphazard.

The fire department, police and volunteers were recovering the bodies as the water receded.

The cloudburst struck shortly before midnight as residents of this community slept. Triplet creek soon was a seething torrent. It reached its peak by about 1 o'clock Tuesday morning.

At Cincinnati, W. C. Deveraux, United States meteorologist, reported heavy rains throughout Northern and Eastern Kentucky. The Licking river at Furness, he said, rose 19.8 feet in the 24 hours ending at 9 a. m.

Heavy rainfall reported was

Bates To Introduce Appropriation Bill For Flood Refugees

Eight District Congressman Joe E. Bates plans to introduce in the House of Representatives today, if possible, a bill appropriating money for immediate use in the susceptible flood district, according to a telephone conversation with residents here.

Congressman Bates said that all that was holding the introduction of the bill is to get an appropriation figure as to the amount of money that will be needed in the town of which Bates and Representative Crutcher represent.

Mr. Bates said he was sure that the bill could be put through Congress immediately. His office in Washington may be contacted either by letter, telegram or telephone at any time.

Disaster Loan Man Coming Here Monday

Congressman Joe Bates notified Postmaster W. E. Crutcher Friday that a representative from the Disaster Loan Corporation would be here Monday. Information is available at the post office, Crutcher said.

PARTIAL LIST OF HOMELESS PERSONS IS COMPILED—PATRICK

About 350 homeless and distressed persons are being taken care of by the Red Cross, in the Morehead public school building, court house and the college. Approximately one thousand more a day are being served to the refugees.

A partial list of homeless Rowan county persons, compiled by Miss Carol Patrick, has been made to acquaint their relatives and friends and the general public with their dire needs. The list is incomplete because the records were not completely filled out.

Among the homeless are the following:

REHABILITATION WORK STARTED; VARIOUS AGENCIES WILL HELP

Rehabilitation work in the flood-stricken area here is going forward quickly.

The American National Red Cross was made the official relief agency in Morehead today by Mayor Warren Lappin's proclamation. Headquarters are temporarily at the city hall.

Miss Helen News, Mrs. Alice E. Michael and Virginia Baskin, representatives of the American Red and Red Cross at Washington, D. C., have been assigned to Kentucky to take charge. Two of the boys will very likely work out of Morehead.

At a convocation of citizens called by Mayor Lappin Thursday, Joe Bates at Washington was called by telephone and requested that he obtain permission of the CCC authorities to let the CCC boys help ease the effects of the flood. Bates replied that he would see the "head man" and make this request immediately.

Disaster Loan Man Coming It is expected that a Disaster Loan representative from Washington will set up an office here shortly. Miss News said today that the Red Cross is taking care of emergency needs and as soon as possible will start to do rehabilitation work in such families as are fit. (Cont. on Page 4)

MAYOR LAPPIN'S PROCLAMATION

Appeal to the People of Morehead

The flood of July 3th was the greatest tragedy ever experienced by this community. The losses sustained in both life and property have aroused the sympathy of all.

However, sympathy is not enough. We have a problem of relief to meet. A large number of people are being fed, clothed and sheltered temporarily, but much remains to be done.

We are fortunate in having on hand the American Red Cross, an experienced relief agency with a trained staff of workers who are in position to apply our individual contributions for relief to the best possible use.

Therefore, with the idea in mind of coordinating all relief work, I do hereby declare the American Red Cross to be the official relief agency to deal with the problems of the individual sufferer. I ask all agencies and individuals to give it their complete support.

Furthermore, I appeal to all citizens of the community to be liberal as possible with their donations to the relief fund, which the Red Cross is authorized to raise. All funds so raised will be spent to alleviate suffering caused by this disaster and in restoring conditions to normal.

Signed: Warren C. Lappin, Mayor

$35,000 was the estimated loss to the J. F. Sparks Show as the rampaging flood waters covered their tents where all had been gaily a few hours before.

Flood Constitutes Problem Beyond Immediate Relief

The Louisville Times has written an apt editorial stressing the fact that the recent flood "reflects conditions, which, possibly might be remedied, to lessen danger to life and property." We agree with them.

The Louisville Times editorial:

In this metropolitan area with a population of about a half million less than a half dozen persons were drowned when the Ohio, draining many thousands of square miles of rain-soaked watersheds, became several miles wide and it was necessary to remove nearly half of the population from their homes.

In two county seats in Eastern Kentucky, combined population about 3,000, between 100 and 150 persons, apparently, were drowned between midnight and daylight by floods caused by local rains.

The flood in Breathitt and Rowan not only constitutes a major tragedy in the list of regional disasters of a decade, but also poses a problem beyond that of immediate relief.

A survey to determine what cities, towns and settlements in Eastern Kentucky are so situated that they are in danger of floods, and what steps might be taken in the interest of their safety seems in order.

In the meantime the task-in-hand is obvious. Loss of life was attended by destruction of crops, destruction of homes, creation of conditions dangerous to health of survivors, at scenes of tragedy.

Far more widely, seemingly, valley and hill-side farms were ravaged, spring and summer work made barren of possible results.

The proportions of the relief problem cannot be at once ascertained, but may be imagined upon a basis of a report that sixty-nine persons are reported missing at Keck, in Breathitt County, as a result of the flood in Frozen Creek, normally a minor stream.

The most recent mountain flood is the greatest in violence and in fatalities and property loss. It reflects conditions which, possibly, might be remedied, to lessen danger to life and property.

—The Louisville Times.

Newspaper Accuracy

"The newspapers always get things wrong," is a remark frequently made. Perhaps those who say that have just read 50 items in a newspaper, and have discovered an error in one of them. They overlook the 49 that were right, and are amused or disgusted by the one that was wrong.

Every error the newspaper makes is spread before the public for ridicule and censure. People usually see it, and it forms a subject of public conversation. If some man, clerk or editor with whom you are dealing makes an error, no one knows about it except he and you.

Newspaper people constantly travel all over town and tramp weary miles to verify doubtful items and avoid errors. Newspaper work is done hurriedly. Few newspapers have forces of editors and reporters so large that every item can be verified with the utmost care. If a reporter has a dozen assignments to cover in a morning, he has to go some rushing from one to the other. Perhaps he did not take pains enough in one instance, but very likely he was worrying for fear that someone else he needed to interview would leave his shop or home before he could be seen.

Many errors are caused by the carelessness of people who give the information. They told the wrong name, or accepted an unverified rumor as fact, and passed it on to the reporter.

The good newspaper man's ideal is strict accuracy, and he makes many sacrifices to attain it. Young folk who are beginning newspaper work should strive for accuracy above all else. They may have imagination, humor, and literary skill, but if they cannot report plain facts just as they are, the newspaper world will cast them off.

God, would it ever stop? Rain suddenly started to pour in sheets again—just like it had when I went to bed at 11 o'clock.

Back to the potoffice—the creel had been reached! The waters were receding. Slowly at first, then more rapidly.

It was now about 3:30 a. m. Somebody said the Buggess family was stranded in the second floor of their home across the tracks. An old lady was screaming in a house near the power plant. One of the workers was supposed to have stayed in there. He couldn't be found.

In the eddies. Every few minutes a bystander would report someone as missing—first a Mr. Johnson in a hotel on Railroad street. Then a truck driver by the name of Gorman from Flemingsburg.

But the waters were receding—saved. Last night it was a fire which routed us out of bed—to-night it was worse.

Daylight finally came and the waters receded from Main street. Wreckage could be seen in every direction on Railroad street.

Then, about 6 o'clock reports of the missing began to come in. At Rodburn, a woman and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Sparkman, were taken out of the trees. She was a pitiful sight. Her four young children had been swept away.

At the other end of Morehead, Clearfield was completely covered. Further down the road, water covered a wide expanse of the valley. There was no getting out of Morehead that way.

Farmers of course was sure to be flooded. The missing list was mounting. Would it ever end? Some said fifty—others a hundred. God only knows!

BAPTIST CHURCH TO HOLD VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL HERE

Ministers Kasee, Leeper, Martin Will Direct Activities

The Morehead Baptist Church will conduct its first Vacation Bible School July 23 to August 6th. As far as is known there has never been such a school conducted in Morehead. Pastor B. H. Kasee and Missionary L. E. Leeper of Haldeman conducted one at Elliottville and one at Haldeman this summer. It is reported that their efforts in this work have met with great success.

For some weeks the Baptist church has been planning the school for Morehead. L. W. Martin, General Missionary of the Southern Baptist Home Board, whose work lies mainly in the mountains, has been secured to be the General Superintendent of the school. Mr. Martin has had much experience in such work and the Morehead church is fortunate in having him. Mrs. Martin will also be with him in the school, and she, too, is an able and efficient worker.

Last night, following the quarterly business session of the church final plans were made for the school. Among those locally who will assist as leaders, teachers and helpers are: Roberts Bishop, Mrs. Milton Evans, Janet Judd, Nora Jayne, Mrs. C. O. Leach, Mrs. Wilford Wallz, Hazel Hicks, Mrs. H. C. Haggan, Mary Caldwell, Haggan, Mrs. O. F. Patrick, Mrs. B. H. Kasee, Clyde Smith, and many of the younger people who will act in the capacities of general helpers.

The school will be open to pupils of any denomination or church preference. There will be no tuition fees, and every boy and girl between the ages of four and eighteen, or even above eighteen if any should desire to come, will be more than welcome, no matter what religious persuasion they may have.

The purpose of the school is to acquaint boys and girls with the Bible, to teach them the truths about salvation and service to God, to give them instruction in church music, the singing of hymns, to give them scripture memory work, Bible stories, and all such training as the church fosters.

There will be special speakers who will interest young people with scriptural talks; special music as well as general chorus singing; hand work suitable to instruction in Bible schools; and general recreational activities of interest to young people.

Pupils from Haldeman, Elliottville, Clearfield, Farmers, or any place else in the county are welcome if they can arrange transportation.

EYE-WITNESS ACCOUNT RELATED OF FLOOD'S DESCENT BY REPORTER

By STANLEY K. IVERSON

Morehead Independent Reporter
"Wake up, Stanley, Railroad street's flooded and people are drowning. They're crying for help."

It was my landlady, Mrs. Sue Fugate, awaking me at 1:45 o'clock this morning, to a helpless, stricken Morehead.

I got up and quickly dressed in the dark. The lights were out. I thought it was raining but when I looked out the window I realized that the sound I heard was a raging torrent, rushing madly down the valley.

Running outside I could hear the screams of men and women crying for help, four and five blocks away. It sounded like the end of the world.

Down the hill I rushed. I saw hundreds of persons at the bottom near the postoffice on Main street. If the water was that high, then my newspaper office was gone! The water stood waist high across the street and as far as I could see toward West Morehead.

"At the water's edge men cried, "Get a boat. We need help!" I ran to the telephone but Dr. I. Garred's boat was gone, Professor Haggan had left his in Farmers, the Hudgins boy's boat was already on the way.

I asked the operator for Lexington. All lines out of town were down. Goldie Hayes said,

I went back down to the waterfront on Carey avenue. Jesse Johnson, the barber, said he had been awakened just a few minutes before by a loud noise. Looking out of the window he saw a big wave of water. Calling for his wife and children, he led them through knee-deep water to safety.

Cries for help across the creek could be heard plainly, again and again. Why weren't there more boats? Why was everybody standing around? Then I found out—the current was too swift.

One boat fought the onrush of the waters for 10 minutes trying to cross the street to save Mrs. L. Jayne and daughter, Nola, who were up to their necks in water.

In front of Bishop's drug store, Billie Caudill, wearing only a pair of shorts, dripping blood from mouth and thigh, cried, "Iverson, so you want some news, eh? Well, look at this, I just swam two miles from Clearfield to get here. And I'm going back to help."

at Jackson, Ky., on the North Fork of the Kentucky river, where 3.75 inches fell.

Gov. A. B. Chandler at Frankfort, ordered state patrolmen and state highway emergency crews into the stricken county. The governor termed the flood "a terrible thing."

Tygart creek at Olive Hill flooded, covering 10 blocks of the residential section and all of the business section. Two to six feet of water was in the business section and damage was estimated at several thousands of dollars.

There was no loss of life at Olive Hill.

The Southern States Shows, a carnival appearing here July 4, had all concessions and rides flooded and firemen worked until 4 o'clock Tuesday morning moving their trailers and trucks. A school and church at nearby Gregoryville were reported washed away. Considerable water damage was reported at Grayson, the county seat of Carter county.

Farmers several miles west of here were completely cut off and Clearfield was feared to have suffered heavily. Rescuers were unable to cross the swift current to reach the community.

Water 10 Feet Deep
Water on Railroad street varied head's main thoroughfare, varied in depth from four to ten feet at the peak of the flood. Bill McClain, fireman at the State Teachers' College, estimated the water rose 10 to 15 feet in less than 30 minutes.

As soon as it was possible employees of the Kentucky Power and Light Company came into Morehead to help in the flood disaster.

Joe Locke with his construction crew, truck and equipment were here at 7:30 Wednesday morning. An immediate survey was made as to the necessary steps to take to restore electric service as quickly as possible which was shut off at 1:20 A. M. E. G. Laurie with his crew truck and equipment brought into Morehead substation transformers at 3:30 P. M. With the help of Bruce Irvin, Pat Patterson and other engineers these transformers were installed and service restored at 7 P. M.

Local employees were on continuous duty at all times. Frank Mazzy and George Jamison left their flooded homes in the interest of maintaining electric service. James Markwell attempted to get to the power plant but the current was too strong and he was washed down the stream several hundred feet before he lodged against a building, narrowly escaping death.

Harry Hutchens of the Safety department was in Morehead on Thursday.

These officials, engineers and service men of the company did everything "humanely" possible working night and day to restore electricity which was so badly needed.

Ted Sparkman, who four children are missing, said the force of the rushing torrents swept his house from its foundation.

"I grabbed my wife," Sparkman related, "and we ran to the door. The force of the water swept us into the torrent and we were sucked into the street. A few seconds later our house swept by and we were unable to do anything for our children. We could hear their cries as our house went by."

RED CROSS WORKER DESCRIBES DISTRESS OF FLOOD VICTIMS

By CAROL PATRICK,
Red Cross Worker

The Red Cross headquarters at the city hall has been as busy as a beehive since the rescue work started, outfitting the unfortunate, many with scarcely any clothes at all, and directing them where to sleep and eat.

Persons of every age and size have climbed the stairs to find at least a dress or a shirt to wear. Some came in borrowed clothing. One man crept in clothed only in overalls which he had found drifted onto a fence. Several have walked far in heavy coats clutched tightly around their bare bodies.

Barbecues are common, and stockings are definitely not on the list for "what the well-dressed" wears. I know of several persons who had nothing to wear to creep out of their hiding places.

One woman had to hurry back to take clothes to her husband who was hiding in a tree until she returned. Even the necessary undergarments are worn by very few.

More men and children, especially boys, are in dire need of clothing. Even the first change of clothes

Sparkman and his wife were rescued from a tree top at 6:30 a.m. by boatmen.

Rescuers said between 50 and 75 persons were taken from tree tops along the banks of the creek. Reports from all sections of Eastern Kentucky indicated the heavy rainfall had been general and that streams throughout the section were flooded.

Red Cross Called
Mayor Warren C. Lappin wired Arthur Gamble, WPA district director at Paintsville, 70 miles from here, asking "all WPA help available." He said "sanitary conditions worst possible."

The American Red Cross ordered Mrs. Sheridan Connally, field representative, from Lexington, Ky., into the flooded town to set up relief offices.

Follows Fire
The flood was the second calamity to strike Morehead within 24 hours. Early Tuesday morning fire of undetermined origin swept the thorough City hotel. There was no loss of life but 57 guests, mostly clad, were forced to flee and damage ran into thousands of dollars.

On what is known as "show lot" at Morehead, a carnival was stationed when the flood came. J. S. Sparks, manager, was counting receipts at about 1 a.m., and other employees were finishing setting everything in order. A roar of approaching water startled someone who gave the alarm. Seeing the water literally bounding up-ing could not be found for many. Children have had to wear their damp, mud-coated dresses for hours, and men shiver in soaked suits of mud and clothes.

The little Perry boy, who had miraculously escaped when his mother and sisters were washed away, was too young to answer the necessary questions when he appeared for a change to wear to the burial.

Few tears have been seen. There are only the dry-tears of real anguish. Some, who once had lived comfortably, hesitate to ask for help. Small is the number who ask for two changes of clothing. Only one or two cases are known who tried to get more than their share.

The huge pile of clothing given out at ten o'clock Wednesday night had vanished by the time I got back at eight the next morning. Everything, however, is needed, and clothing of every description has been distributed. About ten volunteer women, including a thirteen year old girl, are kept busy throughout the day, rendering aid to the distressed and homeless.

ward, the personnel took to trees, Mr. Sparks climbing a large cedar tree which was nearby. The raging flood forced them to remain aloft for several hours, but meantime the carnival was literally flattened to earth, at a loss of some $30,000.

Embalmers from neighboring towns who are assisting in taking care of the dead are:

Count 23 For Weather

Most people will be surprised to learn, on the authority of the Smithsonian Institution, that, if one wants to know what the weather will be, say this fall, there is basis for a pretty good guess if the weather records for 1916 are consulted. Infallibility isn't claimed for the system, but at least it is simple.

This twenty-three-year weather cycle hypothesis was first made public by Dr. Charles G. Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian, when he addressed the National Academy of Sciences with a certain amount of confidence that they constitute what may prove to be one of the most significant advances made up to this time in weather forecasting over long periods.

It appears from all this observation and checking up that there are periodicities in solar radiation, that these periodicities affect the weather and that, curiously enough, the periodicities move in a twenty-three year cycle.

Am I My Brother's Keeper?

To those of you who escaped the flash-flood—have you contributed to your distressed neighbor's relief? Several hundreds of good citizens are now without homes, food and clothing.

Are you going to let them go their way with only what the Red Cross can give them?

We have had a major catastrophe here. Many persons on the outside are contributing generously. Contributions from those not affected here have been coming in very slowly.

Mail your check to the American National Red Cross Headquarters, Morehead, or deliver it to the headquarters, located in the second floor of the Peoples Bank Building.

HOW FAR WILL HITLER GO IN HIS DEMANDS ON OPPRESSED POLAND

By PROF. EARL K. SENFF

A great many people today are wondering just how far Hitler will go in his demands on Poland.

Some authorities contend that Germany's volte face in regard to her former policy toward Danzig is merely the beginning of a gradual withdrawal of her strong, aggressive bluster; others believe that Hitler is waiting for a more opportune time to move. When I pause to consider the past coups of Hitler and also remember the fact that Poland has important minorities, I am convinced that these latter authorities are, in all probability, more likely to be correct. They have the long-time view.

The Polish minorities, in this present "lull" period, are not to be put aside lightly. There are 750,000 Germans, 3,500,000 Jews and 5,000,000 Ukrainians, to name the most important ones.

It seems logical to contend, in the light of these figures that a policy of watchful waiting will ultimately prove more beneficial to Germany.

This seems more likely when you also stop to consider England's recent show of force. This display of air-strength is probably done with a double motive. First, as a warning to the Fuhrer that England is at last prepared (at least to the point of refusing to be a party to another Munich pact).

Secondly, I feel that this display comes as a sort of figurative "pat on the back" for John Bull. It no doubt encourages him psychologically. And none of us would minimize the need for this—especially in the light of several recent vacillations of English foreign policy. Political considerations may possibly have justified France and Britain in throwing away the Czech funds and 20 divisions of troops at Munich, but I seriously doubt if they will so easily risk losing Poland's war machine.

What To Do About The Next Flood

What can be done about these flash-floods?

Three possibilities are enumerated—dams, alarms and moving. Dams, according to Sam M. Bailey, senior engineer of the Flood Control Division of the United States District Engineer's office at Louisville, in Sunday's Courier-Journal, are too expensive and not a perfect safeguard where families are scattered up and down the river bank.

The cost of putting up a protective rampart at every such danger spot would be prohibitive because there are thousands of them.

Some families and business firms in the flooded district are going to take the wisest course—moving to high ground, but for some it is too expensive and impossible.

The idea of having Paul Revere to alarm the community has merit, but it is not likely that it will be carried out. The Weather Bureau at Louisville suggests that each man in a river town contribute one night as a watchman during the summer to give the alarm. However, we're for it and we'll serve our turn.

Look Forward To The 1940 Fair

The announcement that the Rowan County School and Agricultural Fair has been dispensed with this year should not be cause for alarm. The fair is not going to be dropped for good. A bigger and better one will be held in 1940. There is no reason why the 1940 fair should not be doubly beneficial because of a year's lay-off.

TO OUR CUSTOMERS

It is an established fact that human effort is greatest in time of despair. Our hearts go out in sympathy to you and our neighbors for the loss sustained in this disastrous flood.

We are thankful that none of our merchandise was damaged by the flood. Even though there was only five inches of water in our store we were compelled to be closed, but we are happy to announce that we are now open for business.

Due to the fact that we were compelled to be down most of last spring because of remodeling, we have an enormous line of dresses, shoes and other spring and summer merchandise that must be sacrificed. We know of no better time to present to our customers nationally known and nationally advertised lines of merchandise with interest and profits forgotten.

We are happy that we are able to offer to you these maximum values at minimum cost because it enables you to get the Best for Less and at the same time enables us to completely dispose of this new merchandise without having to hold it over until next year. This reason we request that you come into our store and see these values for yourself.

FISH AND GAME

By EARL MAY,
President of the Licking Valley
Fish and Game Club

Mr. May wrote an interesting article on fish while on a recent trip to Mammoth Cave, which we are pleased to publish:

Here at Mammoth Cave, Kentucky's most famous natural attraction, one finds several unusual forms of life. Of interest to all fishermen are the blind fish found in Echo River which is more than three hundred feet beneath the surface. These fish are rather small, hardly ever larger than a fish most minnows.

They are practically albinos, their color being pinkish. They have no apparent eyes. Generation after generation of this species have lived in total darkness and as a result was of no importance the eye gradually became smaller until now they are either gone entirely or covered with skin.

Water Temperature Stationary
The water in which they live is 54 degrees the year around. As they are not used to light and cold but running water, they soon died when brought to other surroundings, especially to different water temperatures.

Blind crawfish are also found in Echo River. As fish require food there are probably several other forms of life living in this underground stream. However, these small fish are very sluggish.

Albino Crickets
In this cave there is also an albino cricket. These crickets have unusually long antennas with which to feel their way around. It is said that upon removal from the cave they soon become brown.

Near the entrance of the cave there once lived millions of bats. Now since the continuous streams of tourists are always disturbing them, many of the bats have abandoned this entrance for quieter and more secluded caves. During the many hundreds of years the bats used the cave as a roosting place; they deposited huge quantities of droppings. The droppings are very high in nitrate and during the War of 1812 this deposit was mined and sold to munition makers to make powder.

The cave, it is said, was discovered in 1799 by a Houchins, who trailed a wounded bear to it. Hampden-Sydney College was founded six months before the Declaration of Independence was signed.

The Stanbyer

(Cont. from Page 1) formerly of Morehead, who took a ride (?) here Sunday to visit at his camp, said the line-up began at 10:30 a. m. and he got to the camp at 11:30 a. m. He and Jim Clay's residence on Flamingburg road to U. S. 68—no reflection on Jim's counting, because Jim very likely was enumerating the cars going the other way. Hermon Cooper said a line of cars were stationary at his residence for at least 45 minutes.

However, we may safely say there were 50,000 persons in town Sunday. Processing five persons to the average car of 14 feet in length, the automobiles if placed in one line bumper to bumper would approximately reach 25 miles. For those who guess 100,000, I figured (I may be wrong) it would take 50 miles of cars, bumper to bumper.

THE PAGES OF PICTURES and news columns printed about the flood would stack as high as the Empire State building if piled on top of each other. Besides picture in Kentucky newspapers by the thousands, there were thousands from all over the country carried pictures by the Associated Press, United Press, International News Service, International Sound Photo and very likely several others.

Wednesday night I talked to a Fox-Movietone cameraman who had just come from Chicago and taken six pictures of the water at Farmers and Bluegrass. He said he was leaving immediately for Cincinnati to have his film sent out of there by airplane to New York City. Thursday afternoon a Pathé-KKO newsreel cameraman took shots of the crowds in front of the Lane Funeral Home, the bridge washed out on U. S. 68, five miles east of Morehead and other scenes.

News of the disaster was sent to the AP at 3 a. m. just as the flood was going down. Of course, the number of pictures taken at the time had to be only a guess. A checkup was made at 8 a. m. and then the number started coming down. Not even then a large number of pictures were reported as missing. Who could have said at 10 a. m. the exact number of pictures drawn?

The estimate at that time was one which was carried in the evening papers Wednesday night. By the time the papers were out, local persons knew fairly accurately the number of drawings, although there still were some variations. But the important fact is that an estimate had to be made early in the morning and no one checked the missing and drawn counts together. But for this checking the estimate perhaps would have been several times as high as did appear in the newspapers.
