Irene Miller Writes Poem About Love Affair In Kentucky

(Editor's Note: Perhaps this poem is very timely due to the KKA meetings being held in Louisville next week. It should give a remarkable insight into the lives of a number of our people.)

A KENTUCKY LOVE AFFAIR

WHEREIN CUPID WAS RUINED

Down in the land of power and joy,

Where men are men,

Love found a home, a rural boy,

Whom a fair maiden "liquid" us.

Now just beyond his pocket

He found a girl at early morn.

As 'one' was running off a batch,

He spied sweet Henry Corn.

As he passed, this mountain rose, the look so purty that,

Young Oor blushed clean to his bones,

And upped his counsils plain.

Next day the blushing pair

found the preacher's stand,

He grizzled Pa he trails behind,

His blunderbus in hand.

They'll live up Pussim hold in

A dream house made of nuts,

As 'one' will sell (sidel) gain,

To do a score of traits.

The moral is for those who chance to grace our scenic glades,

They'll find it's better not to

at our sweet rural maid.

Irene Miller, Ashland, Ky.
