AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

Our Thanks To The A. C. N. R.

The Red Cross completes its disaster relief work in this county next week. The workers have done a splendid job in the rehabilitating of Rowan county, building homes, supplying clothing and furniture as well as administering aid to the sick and injured as a result of the flood on the night of July fifth.

The next day representatives of the national chapter had arrived here to take over the work, and have remained on the job, both day and night since that time, doing everything possible to restore the people to their homes and to give them another start in life.

Many homes have been rebuilt and furnished throughout, many families have been supplied with clothing, food or medical care while dozens of homes have been repaired.

The work here has been done under the direction of Miss Helen J. Moses, who represents the national chapter, and she and her corps of workers have done a good job, going at the matter in a business-like manner. They have interviewed every person who was affected by the storm, and have gotten all information before any decision was made regarding their loss.

Morehead people, not only those affected by the flood, but the entire population surrounding are thankful to this organization and to the cities and towns surrounding us for their unselfish manner in which they came to our rescue.

Words cannot express our appreciation for their many acts of kindness. As next week is probably the last week that the Red Cross workers will be with us, we cannot let them go without first extending to them the thanks for the entire population of our city for their invaluable work, for the manner in which they have handled the entire affair and assure them Morehead will always contribute gladly to the efforts of the National Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Soil Erosion Can Be Overcome

Rowan county farms in the July flood area were, perhaps, more greatly damaged by loss of top-soil than in any other way.

Farmers who have followed the county agent's advice and have studied soil productivity will not have difficulty in restoring deficient nutrients. They will be able to make a success in spite of handicaps. But those farmers who have disregarded soil erosion will find this year and in years to come a decreasing crop return which inevitably leaves them in poorer circumstances.

The holding of the soil should be viewed as a trust, its value to be maintained or increased in the holding. So declares Prof. P. E. Karraker, agronomist of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, in a circular dealing with Kentucky soils. He tells in a simple way, how to properly manage Kentucky soils, and especially how to maintain and increase their productivity.

If you think you could use this circular, write the College of Agriculture.

In the final analysis a prosperous farming community is shown by its attractive homes, good barns, well-fed livestock and, even more truly, by a generous acreage of legumes and legume-grass sod crops.

Vacation Time

Traditionally July and August are the months of vacations. Millions of people now out of work say they have had too much vacation. What they want is some plan by which they will have fewer and shorter loafing times. However, the majority of the American people still have jobs. The two weeks or more which they spend on some trip or at some resting place is the high point of the year to them.

Some of them undertake to perform great and mighty stunts. The man who sits all day at a desk should remember that he is not doing much on that job to fit his muscles for a strenuous vacation. That is, unless he walks to and from his work daily, which is not the usual thing. If the day he gets to his resort he attempts to climb a high mountain or go around the golf links half a dozen times, something is likely to grunt inside of him. When that fellow returns, he may have that worn and haggard look that leads his friends to ask what hospital was visited.

Vacation gives people a chance to do what they want to. That is, so long as there is money available. You can get a very nice vacation nowadays without spending much money. It is fine to travel, but a lot of interesting things can be done without leaving the state.

Ever "Tommy" has learned to shake hands. He has not told me yet for he is too young to talk just by election time he will be able to call me "Daddy Senator."

My hat is in the ring. After November just write me at Frankfort.

Excuse me, I have to be getting busy with my campaign speeches so that I may show you good folks the light.

CARD OF THANKS

TO THE VOTERS OF THE 21st JUDICIAL DISTRICT:

I deeply appreciate the vote given me in the District by my supporters, and the nomination as Commonwealth's Attorney. To those who saw fit to exercise their rights as citizens and cast their votes for one of my opponents, I have a warm feeling, knowing you did so without malice to me, but through friendship to my opponents.

I pledge to all, in the event of election, a faithful and unbiased discharge of the duties of this office.
