

Murray May Prove To Be Stumbling Block To Eagles Friday P. M.

Eagles Ruled As Underdogs In Game To Be Played At Thorobred Stable Friday

Murray State Teachers College, the only team to conquer the Eagles in their two years under the tutelage of New Deal Coach Johnson and Miller, is the next foe of Morehead's undefeated and united Blue and Gold.

Friday afternoon, November 12, the Eagles are scheduled to face the last big biggest obstacle in what will prove to be a most interesting and undecided season.

Taking to the road for the second time in as many weeks, the bruised and battered squad of what was once a proud and mighty Eagle will attempt to avenge a 14 to 7 shelling administered by the Thorobreds in the opening game of the 1936 campaign. On that occasion the Eagles did everything but give the game away.

Coaches Johnson and Miller refuse to comment on their team's chances against the Thorobreds.

The following article was sent from Murray, Kentucky.

After a week-end that saw the Murray Thorobreds taking a 10-0 victory from West Tennessee to maintain their SIAA A championship, Morehead eked out a victory over a much improved Tennessee Tech team to stay right in the Racehorses heels in the conference race, all eyes will be glued on the Thorobreds stadium, Friday afternoon, November 12, when the conference-leading Racehorses, tangled with an undefeated, united, and twice-scored upon Morehead team.

Should Morehead win Friday, it is very likely that the Eagles will annex their first SIAA championship, as Ellis Johnson's boys should be able to breeze through the rest of their schedule. The hand, Murray must meet their rivals, Western, the week following.

Denver Hall Wins Office By One Vote

Only Three Votes Cast In Constable Election In District Four; Hall Wins Race

Denver Hall was the winner in the most spectacular race in the election. Denver, who probably did not know that he was a candidate until the election was all over, was elected constable in District Number 4. He received a total of two (2) votes to win the race.

Three votes were cast in all the five precincts which comprise the district. Of these Frank Thompson, probably also an unwitting candidate, received a total of one (1) vote, while Mr. Hall was piling up his unprecedented majority of one (1) vote.

The three votes are as follows: In Brusly precinct, Mr. Hall home 2 votes and in Pine Grove, Mr. Thompson's home precinct, 1 vote.

Wilburn McNear Dies At Clearfield Home

Quietly Passes Away At Home In Swift Addition After Years Of Illness

Mr. Wilburn McNear quietly passed away November 4, 1937, at his home in the Swift addition after an illness of 16 years, being an invalid. He was taken to his home in September and remained in that condition until death. In talking to his friends he said he was ready to go. He was 77 years of age. Funeral services were conducted at their home by Rev. Henry Hall with burial in Clearfield cemetery. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Castella Adams McNear, one daughter, Mrs. Florence Hinker, one son, Mr. Earnie McNear of Ohio, they were very dear to the family, also his sister-in-law, Mrs. Alice Hill, and Mrs. Lucy McNear of Prestonsburg, Ky. Uncle Mib who was known has left a lot of friends who will miss him very sadly.

Injunction Against Rowan Circuit Court Board Reversed

Court Of Appeals Rules County Attorney Had No Authority To Bring Suit

Reversing a decision of the Rowan Circuit Court in issuing an injunction at the request of County Attorney W. E. Proctor, against the collection of taxes for the payment of bonds on the Consolidated School at Morehead, the Kentucky Court of Appeals ruled in a decisive opinion that the injunction which prevented the sheriff from collecting taxes and the county court clerk from certifying assessments was not valid.

The suit brought by Proctor claimed that too much money had already been collected for the purpose and that the money collected had been transferred to previous boards to other funds. He asked an injunction of the Rowan Circuit Court to prevent the certifying of the assessments by the County Court Clerk and the collection of the taxes by the sheriff. Mr. Proctor contended that the consolidated school administration which had used the money but other earlier administrations.

The case was not tried in court, but the injunction was granted. In appealing to the Court of Appeals, the merits of the case were not questioned. The appeal was made on the grounds of lack of jurisdiction on the part of Proctor, since the Fiscal Court had included the assessments in their budget. On this ground the decision of the Rowan Circuit Court was reversed and the sheriff ordered to proceed with the collection of the tax.

County Supervisor For Farm Security Administration Asks Farmers To Wait

County Farm Security Administration offices are receiving numerous applications from tenant farmers for loans to purchase family sized farms under 1 of the Bankhead-Jones farm tenancy act, but county officials are not yet ready to accept formal applications for this type of loan, says Clarence W. Cobb County Supervisor in charge of the Rural Rehabilitation program of the FSA in Rowan, Elliott, and Carter counties.

All allotments for tenants-land purchase loans in Kentucky, based on farm population and percentage of tenancy, are set at $350,000, not more than 100 or 125 families in the state can be brought under the program, says Mr. Cobb. The act authorizes doubling of the allotment next year and further increasing it the next year if Congress appropriates funds, but for the present fiscal year land purchase funds are sufficient only to establish patterns.

Applications for tenancy purchase loans should not be made to the county office until machinery has been set up for administering the program. The program will be initiated this year. Not less than five or more than 10 loans will be made in any county selected.

Dr. C. N. Maxey Dies In Lexington Hospital Thursday

Born In West Liberty. Had Practiced Profession Here For Eight Years

Dr. Clyde Nelson Maxey son of J. M. and Elizabeth Maxey was born January 21, 1883, quietly passed away November 4, 1937, at the Good Samaritan hospital in Lexington after an illness of several months. Dr. Maxey was born in Morgan county where he lived with his parents and attended school at West Liberty until he finished the grades, then went to Louisville where he entered school at the University. After graduating there he went to Cincinnati and entered a dental college. Graduating there, he started working at the dental trade in Cincinnati, and from there to Louisville. He left Louisville and started an office in Cleveland, Ohio where he worked for several years. Coming from there to Morehead in 1928, where he could be near his parents and where he worked as long as his health would permit. Funeral services were conducted at the home of his parents Saturday at 2:00 o'clock by Rev. T. Lyons and Rev. Monday. Burial was made at the Caudill cemetery. He leaves a very highly respected father and aged mother, one brother John, and an aged aunt, Mrs. Martha Ellington and other relatives and a host of friends. Dr. Clyde will be missed by all as he was kind and pleasant, ready to lend a helping hand. The funeral was beautiful. A big crowd attended the funeral from Morehead and other places.

Vote In Council Race

John Cecil, who ran alone on a city ticket after all the others had withdrawn from the race, received a complimentary vote of 178 in the city election held last week. Mr. Cecil was filed as a member of the Citizens ticket, but all others filed with him withdrew from the race. Mr. Cecil, however, refused to take his name off the ballot and, while defeated as he expected, he received a very fine vote.

Cecil Gets Complimentary Vote In Council Race

The vote in the city council race follows: Lappin for Mayor, 477; Lee Stearns for Police Judge, 474; N. E. Kennard, 454; Wm. Huggins, 464; Frank Evans, 446; S. P. Caudill, 441; E. D. Patton, 460; Austin Riddle, 447; John Cecil, 178.

Meeting Of Crippled Children's Society Postponed On Account Of Flood

The annual meeting of the Kentucky Society for Crippled Children, postponed last spring because of the flood, will be held Thursday, November 18, in the Lafayette Hotel, in Lexington.

The morning session beginning at 10:30 will include a report of the year's activities of the crippled children commission by Miss Marian Williamson. Director, practical suggestions as to how local chapters can best promote the work in their community by representatives of the Kenton and Campbell County Chapters of the Society, and of the Women's Auxiliary of the Good Samaritan Hospital, Lexington. Dr. A. T. McCormack, State Health Officer, will talk on the importance of the contribution made by county health departments to the care of crippled children.

The luncheon a 12:15 will feature addresses by Dr. Charles Scott, Liberty, Ohio; State University, Columbus, Ohio, who will talk on the prospect of Federal Legislation for the Education of Physically Handicapped Children, and Dr. Edward L. Campbell, Chicago, Illinois, who will discuss the Prevention of Crippling Deformities in Children.

Representatives of the various organizations of the state are urged to send representatives to this meeting. You see that your organization appears on the program. Please come and bring your friends.

The more we know about the work for crippled children and the more we know about the work we shall approach our objective, care, education and a useful life for every crippled boy and girl in Kentucky.

We want you to help make the Society's annual meeting a success.

ARMISTICE DAY

Nineteen years ago, on November 11, 1918, the whole world was filled with rejoicing. The war was over. An armistice had been agreed upon between the Allied and Associated Armies and those of the Central European powers. Four years of bloody warfare, the most tragic and deadly in the world's history, had come to an end. More than eight and one-half million young men were killed in that great conflict. The Central Powers, Germany, Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey, sacrificed three and a third million youths on the Roumanian, Serbian, Belgian, Greek, Portuguese and Montenegrin, soil, altar of "The Allies, France, England, Russia, Italy, Japan, more than five million of their young manhood. The United States roster of soldiers killed ran to 126,000; Germany's losses were the largest, 1,773,700 killed or died of wounds or disease; Russia's were next in number, 1,700,000.

Add to the number killed the tremendous number of wounded, of men maimed "miserably" whose fate has never been certain, and there is a total of more than thirty-seven million of vigorous youth whose lives were lost or their physical bodies injured in that terrible four years of war. It is any wonder that among those who went through it there is a burning zeal for peace?

And yet today, only nineteen years later, we see the spectacle of a world again either at war or on the verge of war. We talked, back in those days, of a "war to end war." How foolish that sounds now! All the sacrifice of human lives has not taught the nations yet that war never settled anything.

EDUCATION NEVER ENDS

One of the wisest remarks we have read for a long time was made by a New York Judge the other day. "Only a clod speaks of his education in the past tense." In ruling that a trust fund established to "complete" the education of a boy should be continuous throughout the beneficiary's life, Surrogate Delehanty pointed out that education is an unending, a life-long process of development.

Education does not consist in filling a child's mind with knowledge. The discipline of formal study is merely laying the foundation of an education. The intelligent student brings away from school little more, at best, than an understanding of how knowledge may be acquired and from what sources. If he has been fortunate in his teachers, he will also have some comprehension of the relation of each kind of knowledge to all others.

So equipped, one's education may be said to begin after he has finished school or college and tries to apply the knowledge and methods he has been taught, to the practical affairs of life and the rest of his life. Education has never terminated in his textbooks. How well educated he finally becomes depends upon how well he succeeds in learning from his day-by-day experiences.

G-MEN AS HEROES

One of the most encouraging signs of the times is the interest developing among the boys everywhere in the exploits of the "G-Men." There has been a good deal of captious criticism leveled at the Federal Bureau of Investigation and its chief, J. Edgar Hoover, by politicians and others who think Mr. Hoover is getting too much publicity. But the net effect of all the publicity has been to substitute the law-enforcers for the law-breakers in the hero-worshipping minds of imaginative youngsters. And that is a distinct gain from every point of view.

Now the front pages and the movies no longer play up the deeds of the Dillingers but make the courageous adventures of their pursuers, the G-Men, fascinating to youthful imaginations. The boys don't want to be policemen, but they do want excitement, action. They are discovering that the exciting life of the lives of law enforcers, and in addition a degree of honor which the criminal lacks. It is all to the good, this wide spread interest in the G-Men and their exploits.

Great Star In Friday Show THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Written each week by Rev. B. H. Kasse, Pastor of Baptist Church. Subject: The Christian Minister In The Modern World, I Tim. 4: 1-5. Golden Text: "Neglect not the gift that is within thee." Tim. 4: 12. The Christian minister in the modern world is to be the same as the Christian minister in the ancient world. There are no new problems, for man has not changed in his nature. The same problems are clothed in new garments, but they are no more different than a man wearing a different suit of clothes. So, the problem is sin, and the remedy is the Saviour.

A preacher should watch himself and watch his teachings. He should not take up the false observations taught by many false teachers of that day. Paul reminds him that he should seek the inner spiritual meaning of life, so that he can be godly in spirit. That is, he should be a healthy, pure, clean in character, industrious, as well as to take the revelations of the deeper scriptures.

The preacher should have a clean life, a character above reproach. And then, added to this foundation of life, he should seek the inner spiritual meaning of life, so that he can be godly in spirit. That is, he should be a healthy, pure, clean in character, industrious, as well as to take the revelations of the deeper scriptures.

This Week in the Capital

The question which political lookers-on are asking, on the eve of the extra session of Congress, is whether any really important legislation will be enacted or whether the session will resolve itself into a general talk-fest, with the anti-lynching bill and matters of foreign policy holding the floor to the exclusion of the things for which the President called the Congress to gether. Opinion among experienced observers is about equally divided, which is another way of saying that considerable doubt exists as to the present influence of the President with Congress. It is certain that he can no longer obtain the passage of new laws by holding the floor. His only advantage is in his ability to bring the President's attention to the things for which he is fighting. The President's power is now in jeopardy. He must get into the picture and put his own stamp on the things for which he is fighting. He must get into the picture and put his own stamp on the things for which he is fighting.

BILLY SUNDAY

The Ballplayer Who Led a Million Souls Down The Sawdust Trail To Salvation

The most popular preacher in the history of the Christian pulpit was an ex-boxfighter and an ex-ballplayer: Billy Sunday.

Eighty million people—two-thirds of all the men, women and children in America—flocked to hear his rough and ready, rip-roaring message of sin and salvation.

I saw Billy Sunday many times. He was a fury, a human dynamo in trousers. I saw him thump his chest, tear off his coat, collar and tie, leap up on a chair, stand with one foot on the pulpit, and then fling himself on the floor in imitation of a ball player sliding into home plate. No body ever went to sleep listening to Billy Sunday. His sermons were as entertaining as a circus. He preached so strenuously that he carried a physical trainer with him and never a day passed that he didn't get a pumping and a rub-down.

Unlike most evangelists, Billy Sunday appealed mostly to men. He used to say "I am a cube of the rubes. The odor of the barnyard is on my eye. I have greased my hair with goose grease and blacked my boots with stove blackening. I have wiped my old proboscis with a gunny-sack towel. I have drunk coffee out of my saucer, and I have eaten with my knife and fork." He said "done it" when I should have said "done it" and I have said "I have seen" and I expect to go to heaven just the same."

We went into a saloon. It was Sunday afternoon and we got tanked up and went and sat down on a corner. Across the street a company of men and women were playing on instruments—horns, flutes and slide trombones—and the others were singing the gospel hymns that I used to hear in my mother's back in the old log cabin in Iowa, and I sobbed and sobbed. A young man stepped up and said, "We are going down to the Pacific Garden Mission. Won't you come down to the mission with us? I am sure you will enjoy it. You will hear drunkards tell how they were saved and girls tell how they have been saved from the red-light districts."

"I arose and said to the boys, 'I'm through. I am going to Jesus Christ. We've come to the parting of the ways' and I turned my back on them. Some of them laughed and some of them mocked me, but one dollar a month gave me the encouragement."

That is the way he described his own conversion.

The skeptics and scoffers used to accuse Billy Sunday of exploiting religious hunger for the mere sake of money. Yet the truth is, he gave up a salary of five hundred dollars a month as a ball player to work for the Y. M. C. A. For thirty-three dollars a month—and it was sometimes six months before he received even that!

I remember Billy Sunday when he came to New York in 1917. Never before or since has the town called Babylon on the Hudson seen such a frenzy of religious excitement. His arrival was heralded months in advance. At least twenty thousand prayer meetings were held in preparation for his coming.

During his stay in New York, Billy Sunday preached to a million and a quarter people, and nearly a hundred thousand sinners came forward and renounced their evil ways.

AUTORAILER

When railroads began to be built a little more than a century ago, the building of public highways stopped. The idea was that railroads would be for the use of anybody who wanted to run vehicles on them, so Federal and State governments have been building in land and cash in practice. It was found that a railroad couldn't be used as a public highway, and road building was resumed.

Now paved roads and the automobile have caused the practical railroads, but a ingenious Canadian inventor has made a vehicle called a "motorcar" which runs on rails or highways with equal ease. The autorailer is being tried out in regular service over a 90-mile stretch in the Milwaukee area. The first railroads ever built in Canada.

There are no branch rail lines where a vehicle could run alongside ways to pick up passengers or freight then on to carry them to the next town. It would be very useful. The motorcar is worth watching.

Many Time Tables

The experienced housekeeper has a definite routine she follows in her preparation. Many new cooks, however, have known the unhappiness of finding part of the meal cold or dried out before the rest is done enough to eat. This is where time tables prove their worth.

Young, freshly gathered vegetables will cook in less time than riper ones. Vegetables which have become wilted will take longer to cook than fresh, unwithered ones.

The size and shape of the vegetable enters into the problem, too. Small vegetables or large ones cut in small pieces will cook quicker than those left whole. The more surface exposed, the shorter the cooking period.

Most of the so-called "succulent" vegetables, if they are in prime condition, will cook in twenty to thirty minutes. Asparagus, new peas, green beans, and baby beets should be deliciously tender in this length of time. New-crooked corn is done in fifteen or twenty minutes. Spaghetti is tender almost as soon as it's not through. New cabbage will cook in twenty minutes. Chard and other greens require twenty to thirty minutes.

The lima beans of late summer need thirty or forty minutes for cooking. Sweet corn should be allowed to boil hard for eight minutes. Calculate fifteen or twenty minutes for sauteing summer squash and egg plant or forty minutes to an hour for baking.

GLASS

To Be Worn For two or three new fibers of finely-spun glass have been woven into fabrics for garments and draperies. It seems impossible but it is true. The material is made as tough and tough as cotton.

The latest type of spun glass is called "glass wool." It looks like cotton batting, but it is lighter and it is being used for heat insulation. It is so soft that it can be used economically to spread over garden paths and flower beds and flowers against frost. It comes in bales and unspun carpet, but it is so light that a child can easily pick up a bale and carry it home.

This new glass "wool" lets a little light through so that plants covered with it are green when uncovered in Spring. It does not harbor vermin and it is practically indestructible.

MACHINES

Create Jobs I have maintained for years that machines do not decrease employment but rather tend to create more jobs. I have seen that come about.

I am most familiar. Now the Machinery Institute, the result of a careful study, comes to the same conclusion.

Population in America has increased 75 percent since 1890, but factory employment is 83 percent higher than it was then. The working day is shorter, but the number of man-hours is nearly a third larger. This is due the institution reports, to the vast increase in production of all kinds of goods made possible only through machines.

It is not always true, however, that less labor is required per unit of goods produced. Machines may only increase production but also make improvements in quality possible, and in the automobile and some other industries the demand for better quality has actually resulted in the employment of more workers for each unit produced.

DRINKING

And Driving In the pre-prohibition days men who drank whiskey limited the safe rate to never to drive after today is toward bigger "shots," and that results in speedier intoxication. Drinking men love to boast that they can carry their liquor, but Dr. Rolfe N. Harger of Indiana University, who invented the chemical test for intoxication now widely used, says that most drinkers don't know when they are drunk.

A man may seem sober in speech actions and appearance, and still be too intoxicated to drive a car safely. Three ounces of whiskey, which is about three modern-style drinks is sufficient to fog the brain and make it unsafe to drive a car.

At the National Safety Conference it was the general agreement that liquor causes up to twenty percent of fatal accidents. The only safe rule is never to drive after drinking even as much as a glass of beer. Alcohol and gasoline make a murderous mixture.

GASOLINE

Unfairly Taxed When the state of Oregon hit upon the idea in 1919, of putting a tax on gasoline to provide funds for road building, a new way was shown for raising money for public improvements. Today the gasoline taxes collected by state and Federal governments run at the rate of one thousand million dollars a year.

If all of that billion dollars were used for the original purpose, highway improvement, the result in a safer and better roads would make

THE ROWAN COUNTY NEWS

THE PENTHOUSE MURDER

By Caleb Johnson

First, installment

In Elmer Henderson's hangout on top of the thirty-story Highgate Film Company's building on East Fifty-sixth Street near Fifth Avenue, four men were playing poker on a cold January night.

"This is a slow game," growled Dan Flaherty, "The chief inspector in charge of the homicide squad of the New York police force was taking one of his rare nights off, and he wanted his fun to come fast and furious. "Four-handed poker's no good. Isn't anyone else coming?"

"Fitz ought to be here any minute now," said Martin Frazier, the District Attorney's staff. "He's usually the first to arrive."

berty lift his eyebrow questioningly as he glanced quickly from the speaker to Frazier. "Miss Lane has been rather annoyed by his attentions. Of course, I can't speak for her, but that is the impression she gave me, quite distinctly, this afternoon. She was up here, having a voice test, and I took her home."

Archie Doane, the fourth man at the table, had colored deeply at Frazier's careless mention of the popular picture actress. Dan Flaherty's quick glance revealed to the Inspector that he was biting his lips and holding his head rigidly as if trying to control his voice.

"I'd be obliged gentlemen, if you would leave Miss Lane's name out of it," he said, as Henderson finished. "You will understand why when I tell you that she has promised to marry me."

"I'm sorry! exclaimed Frazier. "I had no idea. I hope you'll overlook my loose tongue, old man. You've won a prize, from all I hear, though I haven't the pleasure of the lady's acquaintance."

"Congratulations, Loone!" cried Henderson. "You'll make the handsome couple in pictures. Miss Lane is quite the most charming lady I have ever known. And one of the very few whose voice registers so well as her own face does."

"So that's how it is, eh?" said Dan Flaherty. "Well, boy, I wish you luck. I've never tried it myself, but I hear matrimony highly spoken of by those that have—some times. But I wish the rest would come, whoever's coming."

"Max Michaelis's coming," said Dan Flaherty. "Good news, the way he backed his busted flush just now and got away with it, was as good poker as I've ever seen. I'd have sworn he was holding a kicker with three, or had two big pair at the least."

"What does he do? Teach singing?" There must be money in it, if the way he fixed up here."

"He's an inventor," replied Frazier. "I thought I told you a while ago that you'd played poker with him once or twice and that he played a good game," said the inspector. "What does he invent?"

"His latest is a new way of making talking pictures," said Frazier. "Brings out the natural voice much better than anything yet, I understand. I don't pretend to know about those things, but they say the Highgate Film people paid him close to a million cash on account of royalties, and a salary of a hundred thousand a year to supervise the working of his device. He's got a laboratory back in the other room."

"That's what he meant by giving the Lane dame a voice test, then," grunted Dan Flaherty. "I thought he didn't look like a singer. Guess that skirt's all right, eh?" He glanced over his shoulder at Doane, still at the telephone.

"To Dan Flaherty's shrewd eyes, however, the actor seemed a little disturbed under his outward calm."

"Doesn't like it because Fritze was in?"

"Lane's friend's gone out too," he whispered to Frazier, as they all arose to greet the newcomers, Max Michaelis and his friend, a stock broker named Williams.

"Afraid I've got your rugs soiled," apologized the lawyer, as an "Where did you come from?" queried Michaelis, slipping out of his great coat. "Never have seen these fellows before."

"No. It may sound odd, but I was born and raised in southern California, and my only visits to the North and East have been in the Summer. I've only see snow at a distance on the mountain peaks," replied Henderson.

"Southern California, eh?" said Michaelis, moving over to the open fire. "Los Angeles? Oh, Pasadena. Haven't happen to know either Maxwell Everett, Joseph Everett, a lawyer, do you? Great friend of mine."

"Why, I've met Mr. Everett, though I don't say I know him well," Henderson answered. "Here, he's answered as his man came in with fresh glasses for the newcomers, "I don't suppose you gentlemen will object to a drink?"

"No!" said Williams, the stock broker, "Bro-Fret! Winter's here, a right. This would be a great night for a murder."

"Here that Dan?" said Michaelis, "What are you doing, taking a holiday on a night like this? It's a murder."

"Well, here's success to a crime," rejoined Flaherty, raising his hand glass. "I've never noticed the weather made much difference. "Success to crime," echoed Max Michaelis, glancing around the quarters, and accompanied his friend to the cabinet in which the telephone directories were used.

"Here is Stephen Fitzgerald, Plaza 004," said Henderson. "You Lane use your phone again?"

"Excuse me a minute," he said to the others, as Archie Doane began to whirl the telephone dial. "I'll be with you again right a second."

He crossed the foyer and went into another room.

"Nice little guy," Henderson, "the way he backed his busted flush just now and got away with it, was as good poker as I've ever seen. I'd have sworn he was holding a kicker with three, or had two big pair at the least."

A Message to the Voters of Rowan County

The election is over, and the turmoil has subsided. The results have shown in no uncertain language that I have won the office of County Judge of Rowan County and will be able to serve the people of this county for the next four years.

I wish to extend to every voter in Rowan County my heartfelt gratitude for their support in the recent election. I realize that I owe my election to a great mass of Democratic voters in the county, as well as to Republican voters, who were sincere in their belief that I could serve their interests in the next four years. They believed that my election would be to the best interests of the county and the citizens.

My Pledge

The election is over, that the pledges I made to the people of Rowan County during the campaign are still to be redeemed. We are citizens of the county, and we are all interested in the same things. We are primarily interested in the welfare and prosperity of the county. During the campaign I made certain pledges to the citizens of the county. It is my earnest intention to fulfill those pledges to the letter. I am interested in good roads and I intend to cooperate with the State Administration in carrying out a program that will insure good roads for every section of the county.

I am interested in economy, and I intend to the best of my ability to cooperate in bringing about an economical administration of the county affairs, and in giving Rowan County a business administration of which they may be justly proud.

Cooperation Needed

I realize that I can not do this alone. To gain the most and to accomplish the results we want, will require the close cooperation of every citizen of the county. I ask for this close cooperation from every man, woman and child in the county, to the end that we may obtain the best for every section. It is my purpose to serve everyone in the entire county regardless of where he lives or what is his political affiliation, realizing as I do that the past election was not a victory for me, but a victory for the people, in which the Republican and Democrats shared alike.

With these thoughts in mind, I wish again to express to you, the Voters, my deepest appreciation for the support you gave me, and to pledge myself to spend the next four years in an effort to deserve that support and confidence.

formation that Max Michaelis and a friend were just getting into a taxi to come over.

"Mind if I use your phone again?" Henderson. "I'll just call up Miss Lane. She wasn't sure whether she would be going out to night or not; she expected a summons from a doctor or nurse or something like that."

"Surely. Help yourself," replied Henderson. "Give her my compliments, won't you?"

"Tell me about Michaelis," he went on, addressing Frazier. "I've heard something about him or know you. You see, he added, turning to Inspector Flaherty, this is really Frazier's property. I don't know how many people in New York—too busy in my laboratory too lately to make many friends. Doane and Fritz, of course—got to know them in my picture work. If it hadn't been for meeting Frazier, here, through Fritz, I wouldn't have had the pleasure of knowing you, for example."

"There isn't much to tell about Max Michaelis," said Frazier, except that he's the shrewdest lawyer in New York."

"That's saying a good deal. I should think, said Henderson, he's rather on the inside of things, isn't it?"

It by that you mean that he has the confidence of the District Attorney's office and the Police Department, I should say that he's very much on the inside. He's met Fritze bird, a criminal lawyer who is absolutely on the inside of a hundred thousand a year to supervise the working of his device. He's got a laboratory back in the other room."

"That's what he meant by giving the Lane dame a voice test, then," grunted Dan Flaherty. "I thought he didn't look like a singer. Guess that skirt's all right, eh?" He glanced over his shoulder at Doane, still at the telephone.

ing the Morehead engagement, and win this assignment also, if they expect to win their second championship in football in five years. Morehead dropped only one game last season, that to Murray 14-7, and has come through this season with their goal line crossed but twice. Ellis Johnson, is a part of the Morehead "new deal" in Athletics as he was brought there last season to take up a coaching assignment that was envied by their rise in the football world has few. Since he took over the Engles, been nothing short of phenomenal.

At the beginning of the '36 season, the mountaineers held a ranking of 63 in the Likens ratings. Now they are above 50 and still climbing. They will enter the Murray game determined to gain revenge for the only defeat they have suffered in two years of football, and a smacking 44-0 defeat at the hands of the Morehead basketball team last season in the semi-final round of the SIAA tournament.

The game should prove the best that will be played on the Murray field this season. About the only possible difference in the two teams is Murray's great reserve strength and Morehead's excellent punting, with the Johnsonmen almost as strong in reserve power.

ies in most precincts and overwhelmed Mr. Parker in Morehead and a number of other strongholds of Democracy.

Lester Caskey ran next to J. A. Lewis in the size of his majority over Lonnie Davis, winning the office of Coroner by a majority of 731.

Rowan county will have three Republicans and one Democratic magistrate, according to the returns from the election.

His Republican opponent, Mr. Eldridge in the Hogtown-Haldeman - Lewis district. Arthur Barber won over J. T. Evans in the Pine Grove District. The peculiar thing about that race was that Mr. Evans carried Plank, a Republican strong-hold by a large majority while Mr. Reed carried Cranston and Brushy, both of which went Democratic in the other races.

Mr. Reed won by a majority of seven votes after the last precinct was counted.

The county's outstanding vote of the race almost over took in the county. They were, according to the counters, more crossed ballots than ever before cast in an election. In Precinct Number One, which registers a Democratic majority of 22, there were but 15 straight Democratic ballots cast. This is a pretty fair example of the manner in which the ballots were crossed up. On the other hand, there were in most precincts a much larger number of straight Republican ballots cast. As in any other election, where there is a great deal of crossing, the majority party suffered by the cross. It is estimated that one-fourth of all the crosses vote straight tickets the other way, which would account for the defeat of the entire Democratic ticket.

Thus it was that Hubert Meredith, Democratic candidate for Attorney General lost the county by a majority of 26 votes. Mr. Meredith, however carried practically every Democratic precinct in the county. His vote was cut down by the unprecedented swap of votes throughout the county.
