FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.— Three Morehead State University students participated in the 1994 Louisville/Lexington Design Charrette held in Louisville in mid-April.

Chris Miller, Lexington senior, Dawn Gooding, Mt. Sterling junior, and Diana Hubbard, Rutland, Vt., junior, had the opportunity for hands-on experience with a design project, according to Norma Jean Maguire, MSU associate professor of interior design.

The activity was an interactive involvement between students and professionals in the field. Professionals assisted the students in brainstorming and served as consultants, according to Miller, an interior design and theatre major.

The project was a dining and activity area in the Home of the Innocents in Louisville, which is a residence for those with disabilities. The task of the designers was to make the room more accessible for children.

"We split into groups and worked as a team to come up with solutions for this area," Miller said. "One priority was to keep it clear for games and children in wheelchairs," he added.

For the project, students from the University of Kentucky, Western Kentucky University, University of Louisville and MSU joined forces. The students were grouped with individuals from different schools so they could share professional knowledge and experiences.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Need a business loan so you can start your own business?

Morehead State University's Small Business Development Center will offer a "Presentation of the Small Business Loan Proposal" seminar which will discuss the type of information needed to put together a good loan package.

The seminar will be held on Thursday, May 12, beginning at 3 p.m. in the Downing Hall Conference Room on the MSU campus.

The program will cover the five c's in borrowing, documentation needed for a good loan package and making your presentation to investors.

There is no charge for attending, however, because of limited seating, reservations are necessary. Arrangements will be made for the disabled when requested in advance. The training program, partially funded by the U.S. Small Business Administration, is open to all individuals without regard to race, color, sex, creed or national origin.

The seminar is co-sponsored by MSU's College of Business, the Kentucky Cabinet for Economic Development Small Business Division, Buffalo Trace and Gateway Area Development Districts, Morehead-Rowan County and Mt. Sterling-Montgomery County Chambers of Commerce.

Additional information and registration are available by calling (606) 783-2895.

CRABBE ELEMENTARY STUDENTS AT MSU

More than 50 sixth graders from Crabbe Elementary School recently visited Morehead State University under the auspices of the Ashland Oil, Inc., program, "A Day on Campus." The program is designed to encourage students to think about college as an educational goal and to prepare themselves scholastically. The students toured campus, visited various academic departments and talked with MSU students and administrators before returning to school. At the start of the program, the students posed for an "official" photograph to mark the day. They were accompanied by Bryan Fleming, Pat Stambaugh and Jenny Walters, their teachers; Jenny Templeton, guidance counselor, and Geri Willis, director of the Ashland Family Resource Center.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--A graduate exhibit by Zoe Ann Davis Brewer of Buchanan will be on display in the Strider Gallery, Claypool-Young Art Building, May 9-20.

The gallery is open 8 a.m. until 4 p.m., weekdays. There is no charge for viewing.

A variety of works will be included in the exhibit. Several prints, with some incorporating wood cuts and etchings, will be shown as well as handmade paper. One large project done in Braille, which resulted from Brewer's two-year stint as an adult literacy tutor, will allow the viewer to enjoy the hands-on experience.

Originally from Ashland, the artist has done volunteer work with local school systems and numerous art organizations. She has served on the board of United Way of Louisa, Ashland Area Art Gallery and Lawrence County Library. She currently serves on the board of the First United Methodist Church of Ashland where she has taught Sunday school for six years.

Brewer, who is a May candidate for the Master of Arts degree from MSU, has written and published two children's books with the third book expected out this summer. She earned an undergraduate degree from MSU with a major in English and minor in history and receiving a teaching certificate. She later returned for additional education and majored in art.

She and her husband Walt live on a farm in Lawrence County. They are parents of two sons: Seth, who attends Mercersburg Academy in Mercersburg, Penn., and Adam, a student at Louisa Middle School.

Additional information on the exhibit is available by calling MSU's Department of Art at (606) 783-2766.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University will recognize scholastic achievement by students and faculty during its 10th annual Academic Awards Week, May 9-15.

Throughout the week, the colleges and various departments will recognize outstanding endeavors by their students. Capping off the activities will be the traditional Academic Awards Convocation at 2 p.m. Sunday, May 15.

Awards for excellence will be presented by many of the University's academic departments to their outstanding graduate and undergraduate students at the convocation.

In addition, students maintaining perfect grade point averages and graduating seniors in the Academic Honors Program will be recognized, along with the winner of the A. Frank Gallaher Memorial Music Performance Competition, Kenneth Meeker of Russellville, Ohio, who will perform.

The recipients of the University's most prestigious faculty honors--Distinguished Teacher, Distinguished Researcher and Distinguished Creative Production awards--also will be announced.

Established by the Alumni Association, the Distinguished Teacher Award recognizes an educator, selected by a faculty committee, as one whose contributions to the student educational experience are truly outstanding.

Created by MSU's Research and Creative Productions Committee, the Distinguished Researcher and Distinguished Creative Production awards are designed to recognize special achievements in research and creative productivity.

Dr. John C. Philley, executive vice president for Academic Affairs, will present the faculty awards. Outstanding student awards will be presented by Dr. Marc D. Glasser, dean of Graduate and Extended Campus Programs, and Dr. Judy Rogers, associate vice president for Academic Affairs and dean of Undergraduate Programs.

Lenore Womack, a Grayson senior, will be the student speaker. A dean's list student, she will graduate with honors on May 21. A philosophy major with an English minor, she has been accepted into the master's degree program in philosophy at Baylor University.

The daughter of Carl and Betty Womack, she holds an Honors Program Scholarship and the Ralph Woods Memorial Scholarship. Active in MSU's Academic Honors Program since her sophomore year, she currently is vice president of the Academic Honors Student Association and is the student representative to the Academic Honors Committee.

The East Carter High School graduate is a member of Phi Kappa Phi honor society, Cardinal Key and Delta Zeta social sorority. She also serves as a Student Alumni Ambassador.

Dr. George M. Luckey Jr., Academic Honors Program director and professor of philosophy, will preside at the convocation and MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin will congratulate the honorees. A reception will follow.

Other events are scheduled throughout the week in the Adron Doran University Center to honor outstanding achievement, including a noon luncheon on Monday, May 9, hosted by the Research and Creative Productions to recognize faculty and staff research and creative production efforts.

Students in the Caudill College of Humanities will be honored with an 11:30 a.m. luncheon on Tuesday, May 10; while the College of Science and Technology will recognize its students at a luncheon at 11:30 a.m. on Wednesday, May 11. Students in the College of Education and Behavioral Sciences will be honored at a 7:30 a.m. breakfast on Thursday, May 12, while the College of Business has scheduled a honors/scholarship dinner at 6:30 p.m. on Friday, May 13.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---An elementary school principal and a middle school teacher have been recognized for their professional achievements by the Morehead State University Chapter of Phi Delta Kappa.

Judy Parker Ramey, Clearfield Elementary School principal, received the 1994 Outstanding Administrator Award.

Daniel Reeder, sixth grade teacher at McNabb Middle School in Montgomery County, received the 1994 Outstanding Public School Teacher Award.

In her current position since 1990, Ramey began her career as a Chapter I reading teacher at Farmers and Clearfield Elementary Schools in the Rowan County school system in 1966. She also has served as an elementary counselor, coordinator for the MSU Tutor for ninth grade Chapter I students, and as guidance counselor at Rowan County Middle School.

Ramey earned her B.A. degree in secondary education from Morehead State majoring in physical education and minoring in English and biology. Other degrees and certifications from MSU include an M.A. degree in secondary education, guidance counselor, Rank I in supervision, and administration and supervision.

In his 21 years of teaching in elementary and middle schools, Reeder has taught gifted students, served as KET Liaison for McNabb Middle School, and is currently serving as sixth grade team leader. He earned Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts degrees from MSU.

He is known in the community for his efforts in promoting homeless awareness, a project he extended into the classroom. His students collected 35 large cartons of clothing for the homeless and participated in their delivery.

The chapter also awarded four scholarships to outstanding students pursuing teacher certification. The recipients were: Iris Combs, Mt. Sterling senior majoring in English and French; Rhoda Combs, Linefork junior education major with an emphasis on K-4 LBD and TMH; Charles Lyons, Owingsville senior and an industrial education major, and Joyce Lyons, Owingsville junior who is majoring in English.

The Awards Committee was chaired by Dr. Mary Anne Pollock, MSU associate professor of education. The Scholarship Committee was chaired by Sharla Fasko, school psychologist with the Rowan County school system.

BRING YOUR CHILD TO WORK DAY AT MSU

Morehead State University recently observed its first "Bring Your Child To Work Day," sponsored in conjunction with Rotary International, the Rowan County Board of Education and St. Claire Medical Center. Coordinated by Dr. Marion Boenheim, MSU's director of Human Resources, the day was designed to give youngsters in grades 6-8 an opportunity to learn about the workplace with some hands-on experiences. In addition to MSU employee family members, other students with particular career interests were hosted by mentors. Michael Harford, chair of MSU's Department of Management and Marketing, served as a host for Ella Goodpaster, enabling her to learn more about computers in the business world.

SPECIAL TO THE MOREHEAD NEWS

MSU OBSERVES 'BRING YOUR CHILD TO WORK DAY': A Picture Story

Morehead State University recently observed its first "Bring Your Child To Work Day," sponsored in conjunction with Rotary International, the Rowan County Board of Education and St. Claire Medical Center. Coordinated by Dr. Marion Boenheim, MSU's director of Human Resources, the day was designed to give youngsters in grades 6-8 an opportunity to learn about the workplace with some hands-on experiences. At MSU, the program drew 34 young people who were either family members of University employees or who had a particular interest in a higher education career. The students were welcomed by MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin and Dr. Judy Rogers, associate vice president for Academic Affairs; heard about career opportunities from Dr. Michael Hopper, MSU director of Career Planning and Placement, and spent time at their host's work station. At the end of the program, each student received a certificate of participation.

Cutlines:

- 1---Sarah Mincey, daughter of MSU Vice President for Student Life Mike Mincey, had the opportunity to help her dad sort through his paper work.
- 2---Dr. Mike Hopper, MSU director of Career Planning and Placement, talked with the students about career planning and provided insight into some career options opening up in the future.
- 3---Tom Sternal, chair of MSU's Department of Art, served as a mentor for Josh Cole, who has aspirations of being an artist. Here Sternal critiques one of Josh's drawings.
- 4---Adam Eldridge, nephew of Phyllis Dehart, a personnel assistant in MSU's Office of Human Resources, learned about photocopiers from his aunt.
- 5---For working parents, having lunch with their children isn't always possible, but "Bring Your Child To Work Day" made it possible. Here Vanessa Horton, administrative secretary, Office of Administration and Fiscal Services, and son Brad get soft drinks before having lunch together.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University's Veterinary Technology Program's full accreditation status has been extended through Dec. 31, 1995.

The certification was granted by the Committee on Veterinary Technician Education and Activities (CVTEA) following review of MSU's program.

"The program has been successful because of the dedication of our faculty, the work ethic of our students, and the clinical opportunities that are available because of the unique relationship between the University farm and the community," said Dr. Lee Tyner, coordinator of the program.

The Vet Tech program began as an associate degree offering at MSU in 1977 and has retained full accreditation status since that time. It is administered through the Department of Agricultural Science in the College of Science and Technology.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University students may have new sources to satisfy their craving for sweets in the near future.

The University's food service contractor, Professional Food Service Management (PFM), is planning to convert a former cafeteria in Breckinridge Hall into space for Dunkin' Donuts and Baskin-Robbins outlets during the upcoming 1994-95 school year.

"Our success with the Taco Bell and Burger King operations clearly demonstrates that the MSU community wants additional options in foods from nationally-franchised restaurants," said Greg Ennis, director of food services. "We are optimistic that doughnuts and ice cream will be just as popular," he added.

PFM proposed the new franchised outlets as part of its proposal for an extension of its contract with MSU to provide all on-campus food services. The firm recently concluded a five-year contract with the University.

In recent years, the cafeteria has been used as the site of a pre-school program. It was constructed during the 1965 expansions of the original Breckinridge building. That program will be relocated.

The Dunkin' Donuts store is expected to have branch outlets at several convenience stores in Morehead and Rowan County.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Dr. Sylvester Kohut Jr., dean of the College of Education and Behavioral Sciences at Morehead State University since January 1991, has resigned to take a similar position at Seton Hall University.

His resignation is effective June 30, according to Dr. John C. Philley, MSU executive vice president for academic affairs. The University has begun the process of a national search for his successor, Dr. Philley said.

During Dr. Kohut's tenure as dean, the college saw increases in enrollment and in external funding of special projects and grants. Also partnerships and alliances designed to help implement KERA initiatives were established with school districts, education consortia and the state Department of Education.

Additionally, all MSU teacher education programs were fully reaccredited recently by the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education and the state Department of Education.

"We are appreciative for all of Dr. Kohut's efforts to enhance Morehead State's teacher education program and wish him well as he takes on this new role," said Dr. Philley.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.—Morehead State University will hold its 1994 Spring Commencement on Saturday, May 21, at 1:30 p.m. in the Academic-Athletic Center.

More than 900 undergraduate and graduate students are candidates for degrees to be conferred by MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin. The student speaker will be Lenore Womack of Grayson, a student in the Caudill College of Humanities and a candidate for the Bachelor of Arts degree with honors.

The daughter of Carl and Betty Womack, she is a philosophy major with a minor in English. A dean's list student at MSU, she has been accepted into Baylor University's graduate program in philosophy.

Active in MSU's Academic Honors Program since her sophomore year, Womack served as vice president of the Academic Honors Student Association and as the student representative to the Academic Honors Committee.

The East Carter High School graduate is a member of Phi Kappa Phi honor society, Cardinal Key and Delta Zeta social sorority. She also has been active in the Student Alumni Ambassadors.

Also to be honored will be a faculty and a staff member who are recipients of the University's Distinguished Service Awards, given to those exemplifying the highest ideals of citizenship and services.

Once the degrees have been awarded, the new alumni will be inducted into the MSU Alumni Association by its president, Louis M. "Sonny" Jones.

Dr. David Saxon, the 1993-94 Distinguished Teacher Award recipient, will serve as grand marshal, assisted by Dr. Frances Helphinstine, professor of English, and Dr. Paul McGhee, interim chair, Department of Elementary, Reading and Special Education.

May 16, 1994

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Three Morehead State University faculty members have been selected by their colleagues to receive the University's most prestigious faculty awards for their extraordinary achievements.

Dr. David J. Saxon, professor of biology, who has instilled the principles of scientific inquiry into the minds of countless students, was the recipient of the 1993-94 Distinguished Teacher Award established in 1964 by the MSU Alumni Association.

Dr. Brian C. Reeder, associate professor of biological and environmental sciences, who is internationally known for his work in wetland ecology, has earned the 1993-94 Distinguished Researcher Award, sponsored by the MSU Research and Creative Productions Committee and awarded annually since 1979.

Dr. Shirley Gish, associate professor of speech, whose extraordinary creative talents have enriched so many lives, was selected as the 1993-94 Distinguished Creative Production Award honoree.

The awards were announced at the University's tenth annual Academic Awards Convocation, held Sunday, May 15, in Button Auditorium. The event capped a weeklong tribute to scholastic achievement.

A faculty member since 1967, Dr. Saxon also serves as adviser for students in MSU's pre-medical program which, over the years, has enjoyed a higher than average student acceptance rate into medical school.

Describing Dr. Saxon as "an exceptional teacher," a colleague noted that he is a conscientious instructor who is always prepared for class and who constantly revises the course content to reflect the latest knowledge. "Dr. Saxon truly wants his students to succeed," he added.

Active in several professional organizations, Dr. Saxon also has received more than $28,000 in institutional research grants as well as an HEW Title VI in conjunction with another MSU researcher. His current research interest is platelets and factors associated with atherosclerosis.

Dr. Saxon is a frequent presenter at professional meetings and has authored or co-authored several articles for scientific journals.

A two-time graduate of Morehead State University, Dr. Saxon earned his Ph.D. degree from Southern Illinois University.

Dr. Reeder, who joined the MSU faculty in 1989, has gained the attention of his peers here and abroad for his study of wetland issues. Focusing on ecosystems modeling, he currently uses his expertise to address environmental problems of Eastern Kentucky Watersheds.

He has received approximately $140,000 from six externally-funded grants, including a National Science Foundation EPSCoR award.

Dr. Reeder has published 35 articles and abstracts in scholarly journals and has given more than a dozen presentations at professional meetings. His work has been cited many times in scientific literature. A member of several national and international scientific organizations, he also serves as a consultant.

Earning his Ph.D. degree in environmental biology from Ohio State University, he holds a master's degree from Marshall University and the bachelor's degree from Youngstown State University.

Dr. Gish is a multi-talented artist who is recognized nationally and regionally for her creativity. A member of the MSU faculty since 1989, she is a writer, performer, producer and director as well as a teacher.

She maintains an active schedule of oral interpretation and reader's theatre performances, adapting much of the material herself, and has developed several original scripts, producing some as videos. Her most recent work was "Me 'n Susie," a full-length play based on the life and community of Dr. C. Louise Caudill, which premiered last fall as a benefit for MSU's theatre program.

A finalist for the Kentucky Advocates for Higher Education's 1992 Acorn Award for outstanding teaching, she has been awarded three residency grants from the Helene Wurlitzer Foundation in Taos, N.M., for playwriting and two MSU Creative Arts Grants.

She holds a Ph.D. degree and master's degree from the University of Arizona and earned her bachelor's degree from the University of Minnesota.

The student speaker for the convocation was Lenore Womack, Grayson senior, who graduates this month with honors. A philosophy major with an English minor, she has been accepted into the master's degree program at Baylor University.

Outstanding graduate and undergraduate students from various academic departments also were honored during the convocation.

Named as recipients of Outstanding Graduate Student Awards by their departments were: Stephen Paxton of Catlettsburg, Masters of Business Administration Program; Melissa Noble of Mt. Sterling, Elementary, Reading and Special Education; Melissa Fannin of Ivel, Leadership and Secondary Education; Robert Needham of Morehead, Health, Physical Education and Recreation; Tamara Lea Hart of Owingsville, Psychology;

Betty Duke of Lexington, Sociology, Social Work and Criminology; Jennifer Hart of Olive Hill, Art; Laurie Silver of Morehead, Communications; Norbert Reynolds of Xenia, Ohio, Music, and Russell Crawford of Catlettsburg, Biological and Environmental Sciences.

Eleven inmates of the Eastern Kentucky Correctional Complex will take part in a special Morehead State University commencement program at the EKCC Chapel at 7 p.m. on Friday, May 20.

Three of the candidates completed their requirements for the Associate of Arts degree in December and the others finished this semester.

MSU has been offering college classes at EKCC since fall 1990 and this is the third group to graduate from this program.

EKCC officials have agreed to media coverage of this event with the following restrictions:

Names and, where feasible, social security numbers, of reporters and photographers must be received by EKCC's public information officer, Dan Hittepole, no later than 2 p.m. Thursday, May 19.

Media representatives will be subject to the same procedures as all visitors to the correctional complex and should arrive no later than 6 p.m. for briefing.

Any photographing of inmates will be at the discretion of EKCC officials.

All of the graduating inmates have agreed to be photographed and EKCC officials have signed releases from them. Although they have okayed being photographed, three candidates have declined to be interviewed by the media and the name of one of the participants will not be released as per his request.

NOTE: If you wish to cover this event and believe you can work within the restrictions, please call Dan Hittepole, EKCC public information officer, at (606) 743-2800, before 2 p.m. Thursday, May 19, and provide him the name(s) of your media representative(s).

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University will recognize a faculty member and a staff member at Spring Commencement on Saturday, May 21, as recipients of the University's Distinguished Service Awards.

The 1994 honorees are Mary Jo Netherton, associate professor of French, and Tim P. Rhodes, director of financial aid and scholarships.

The awards will be presented by MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin during the commencement ceremony which begins at 1:30 p.m. in the Academic-Athletic Center.

Noting that the service awards were established to recognize those who exemplify the highest ideals of citizenship and service, Dr. Eaglin said:

"We are exceedingly proud of the long record of service by Morehead State employees, for it impacts not only this University but the entire region we serve. Mary Jo Netherton and Tim Rhodes consistently have demonstrated their commitment to service, giving freely of their time to improve the quality of life for all of us."

With a teaching career that spans three decades, Netherton was recognized as last year's Distinguished Teacher; but she maintains an active role as a volunteer outside the campus classroom.

She is director of MSU's Eastern Kentucky Regional Foreign Language Festival, a volunteer French teacher for Rowan County's Elementary Division Gifted Education (EDGE) program, and has co-directed Rowan County Elementary Academic Days.

Adviser to MSU's Chapter of Chi Omega social sorority, she is a two-time recipient of the University's Greek Adviser of the Year Award for her work with the sorority. She also received the sorority's National Award for Excellence. During its recent 25th anniversary celebration, the MSU chapter endowed a $15,000 scholarship in her name.

In addition to her work with professional organizations in her discipline, Netherton is active at the local, state and national levels with the National Association of Anorexia Nervosa and Associated Disorders as well as with the National Anorexic Aid Society.

She earned her bachelor's degree from Western Kentucky University and holds master's degrees from MSU and the University of Kentucky.

Rhodes, the staff recipient, has been a member of the administrative staff since 1972, assuming a variety of roles related to student aid. Over the years, he has helped thousands of Eastern Kentucky students resolve financial roadblocks to their college degree.

The coordinator for an annual on-campus financial aid workshop for high school counselors, Rhodes has logged countless miles on the road to conduct evening and weekend financial aid workshops for parents and students. He also has been instrumental in securing external scholarship funds.

Active in national, regional and state professional organizations, he serves on the board of the MSU Foundation, Inc., and is a member of the University Expanded Council.

A Youth Soccer League and Little League coach, Rhodes is a member of the Gateway Area Development District's JOBS Council, which assists nontraditional students in preparing for and entering the workplace.

Since 1985, Rhodes has been an ordained minister and currently is pastor of the Elliottville Baptist Church which has more than 220 members and outreach programs to the Morehead Life Care Center, televised services as well as an active youth program.

A Menifee County native, Rhodes earned both his B.B.A. and M.B.A. degrees from MSU.

During the commencement ceremony, degrees will be conferred on more than 900 undergraduate and graduate students by Dr. Eaglin. The student speaker is Lenore Womack of Grayson, who will receive the Bachelor of Arts degree with honors.

WEST LIBERTY, Ky.---What better way for prison inmates to repay their debt to society than by educating themselves to become contributing members of society was the question posed Friday night (May 20) by one of those inmates.

Asking the question was Richard Daneault of Bellevue, the student speaker for a special commencement program held at the Eastern Kentucky Correctional Complex for the inmates and their families.

Daneault was one of 14 inmates of the Eastern Kentucky Correctional Complex who earned degrees this year from Morehead State University under a program offered there through the University's Licking Valley Extended Campus Center.

MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin, other MSU officials and faculty robed in traditional academic gowns, and state corrections officials were present for the ceremony.

In his commencement remarks, Daneault urged that convicted felons continue to be allowed the use of Pell Grants to fund their education. Congress currently is considering discontinuing this form of financial assistance to prison inmates.

Countering the argument that inmate use of federal funds deprives the underprivileged, he said that 75 percent of convicted felons come from broken homes and families at or below the poverty level.

Admitting that while the time for intervention is in the early stages of child development, Daneault said that adults still can change their lives.

"This is what the Pell Grant program offers us. It gives those of us, who so desire, the opportunity to advance our knowledge and enhance our chances of becoming productive members of society," he said.

It costs the state approximately $28,000 annually to house an inmate and that doesn't include the cost of supporting families if state assistance is needed, he told his audience.

Eight out of 10 parolees who didn't take advantage of educational opportunities while incarcerated become repeat offenders, according to Daneault. "On the other hand, only one in 10 of those who earned a college degree while incarcerated return to the penal system. This becomes a fairly solid argument for retaining the Pell Grant programs in correctional institutions," he said.

"Considering that 75 percent of convicted felons will one day be reintroduced to society, would it not be logical to reduce the recidivism rate from its current 60 to 80 percent to 10 percent or lower?," he asked. He added that educated parolees not only would become productive members of society, but also would be taxpayers instead of state dependents.

"Some opponents of Pell Grants for inmates like to say that the program rewards us for negative behavior and claim that we should be paying our debt to society and not vice-versa," he said.

"But what better way is there to repay our debt to society than to take rehabilitation seriously and become contributing members to that society," he added.

Not all the graduates elected to take part in the ceremony and several participants declined to have their names released, according to EKCC officials.

Among those receiving Associate of Arts degrees, in addition to Daneault, were Steve Collins of Lexington, Martin Lewis of Louisville, Tim Loving of Indianapolis, Ind., Barry Metz of Newport, Kenneth Renn of LaGrange, David Rice of Cincinnati, Ohio (with distinction) and Samuel Sumner of Hazard. Three other members of the 1993-94 graduating class also earned their degrees with distinction.

MSU President Eaglin who conferred the degrees told the graduates that the University was proud of the program "which helps prepare you for a productive life once you leave here. We know that education has been the best path to rehabilitation," he said.

EKCC Warden Michael J. O'Dea welcomed the inmates families and other guests to the ceremony which was followed by a reception.

MSU has been offering college classes at EKCC since fall 1990 and this was the third class to graduate from the program.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---An 11-week intensive telemarketing effort has resulted in $100,941 in pledges to the Morehead State University Foundation, Inc., this spring.

"With 3,615 individual pledges, we expect to generate more than twice what we have with past phonathons," said Bill Redwine, acting director of Alumni Relations and Development.

"We have already received nearly half of the pledged funds and expect to see about an 85 percent fulfillment rate," Redwine said. Last year's campaign resulted in approximately $30,000 being raised.

The majority of the funds raised will go to the University's Fund for Progress, while some of the donors specified that their money go to special programs, such as scholarships.

In past years, according to Redwine, MSU's telemarketing efforts have been added to the duties of existing staff members. "Our success rate this year is largely due to the addition of a full-time person to coordinate this program," Redwine said.

Mindy Clark of Morehead, an MSU alumna, assumed the role of telemarketing coordinator earlier this year. She recruited and trained a pool of student callers, who telephoned Monday through Thursday evenings and on Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

Working as callers through the duration of the phonathon were: Katherine Armentrout of Beverly, W.Va., Caryn Blow of Xenia, Ohio, Eric Dickerson of Sandy Hook, Stephanie Dye of Flatwoods, Brenda Holderby of Salyersville;

Brandy Janell Jordan of Olive Hill, Keith Jones and La'Tonya Merriweather of Louisville, Kelsee Kappes and Garet Wells of Morehead, Christopher Lack of Clearfield, Mark Lilley and Billy Todd Whitaker of Cynthiana, Sharon Riley of Middletown, Ohio, Josh Smith of Florence, Melissa Stahl of Fort Thomas, and Melanie Stokely of Martin.

MOREHEAD, Ky.—Morehead State University's chapter of Chi Omega social sorority has endowed a scholarship in the name of an alumnus who continues to serve the chapter.

The announcement of the Mary Jo Martin Netherton Chi Omega Scholarship Endowment Fund was made at the chapter's recent 25th anniversary celebration.

Making the presentation to MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin at the anniversary banquet was Sue Bell Simpson of Milledgeville, Ga., who founded in 1967 what was to become MSU's Chi Omega chapter in May 1969.

Now endowed with more than $15,000, the scholarship campaign was launched in 1989. The MSU Epsilon Theta Chapter of Chi Omega was the first Greek organization at the University to initiate such an effort through the MSU Foundation, Inc.

"The members of the Epsilon Theta Chapter are to be commended for selecting this mechanism to honor one of their own," said Keith Kappes, MSU's vice president for university advancement and executive vice president of the MSU Foundation. "This endowment will provide access to higher education for students in years to come."

Netherton, an associate professor of French at MSU, serves as personnel adviser to the sorority and is a two-time recipient of the University's Greek Adviser of the Year Award for her work with the chapter. Her work with the sorority, which began in 1969, also earned her Chi Omega's National Award for Excellence.

In addition to her service to the sorority, Netherton maintains an active role at the local, state and national level as a presenter of educational programs on eating disorders. She also is involved in foreign languages enrichment programs for the public schools.

As a result of her commitment to service outside the classroom, Netherton is the 1994 faculty recipient of MSU's Distinguished Service Award.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University has scheduled five Summer Orientation, Advising and Registration (SOAR) programs to acquaint new students and their parents with the University's academic programs, student services and campus life in general.

SOAR sessions will be held on Friday, June 3; Wednesday, June 15; Friday, June 17; Wednesday, June 29, and Friday, July 1.

While the agenda for the day is informal, the activity will provide necessary information for potential students, according to Lamona Edwards, admissions counselor who is coordinating the day's schedule. "Students may receive academic advising and complete the registration process in one day," she said.

The programs, which will all follow the same format, will begin at 11:30 a.m. with registration on the lawn at Button. MSU representatives will welcome the group at 12:30 p.m. in Button Auditorium.

Parents and students will attend an overview of the registration process beginning at 1 p.m. Students will receive academic advising and register for the fall semester at 2 p.m. while parents will talk with University representatives about important issues and concerns.

Tours of the campus, which will run continuously from 2 to 4:30 p.m., will conclude the day's program.

Additional information and registration are available by calling MSU's Office of Admissions at (606) 783-2000 or 1-800-262-7474 in Kentucky and 1-800-354-2090 from adjoining states.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Dr. Marium T. Williams, director of Morehead State University's Clearinghouse for School Services, has been named teacher certification officer for the College of Education and Behavioral Sciences.

Announcement of her appointment was made by Dr. Sylvester Kohut Jr., dean of the college. In this new role, which she assumed earlier this spring, Dr. Williams will be assisted by Sue Vencill.

Dr. Williams, associate professor in the Department of Leadership and Secondary Education, will succeed Dr. Barbara Niemeyer, associate professor of education.

"We are delighted that Dr. Williams has agreed to assume these additional responsibilities," Dr. Kohut said. "She has an outstanding reputation as an educator and I am confident that our students will continue to benefit from her expertise."

A veteran public school administrator and teacher, Dr. Williams came to MSU in 1990 from Nicholas County Elementary School where she was co-principal. She became director of the clearinghouse when it was established in 1992.

With more than 30 years of experience as a teacher or administrator, Dr. Williams has taught at Maysville Community College, Midway Junior College, Kentucky State University, Paris High School and Carroll County Elementary School. She earned an Ed.D. degree from the University of Kentucky with a major in instruction and supervision and a M.A. degree from Memphis State University where she majored in English.

Dr. Williams has earned several certificates including Superintendent, Director of Pupil Personnel, Elementary and Secondary Principal, Supervisor of Instruction and Standard and Provisional Secondary Teacher's Certificates. She is a member of Kentucky Professors of Educational Administration, Phi Delta Kappa, Kentucky Association of Teacher Educators and numerous other professional organizations.

A frequent presenter on the impact of the Kentucky Education Reform Act, Dr. Williams also is a published author and serves as a consultant on the primary program for area school systems.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---A new sound from an ancient instrument was heard at Morehead State University's 1994 Spring Commencement Saturday (May 21) as the platform party was piped on and off the stage with the skirling tones of a bagpipe.

MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin told the crowd of nearly 7,000 who filled the Academic-Athletic Center that the bagpipe was symbolic of the heritage of the people of Eastern Kentucky who came from Scotland and Ireland.

Recalling that the bagpipe in the past had often signaled victory in battle, Dr. Eaglin said, "Its sound symbolizes today the victory and achievements of our graduates."

More than 750 of the approximately 960 undergraduate and graduate degree candidates were on hand for the ceremony along with their friends, families and other well wishers. At least 75 percent of the candidates were the first in their family to earn a college degree.

"Keep your chin above water," was the advice given to her classmates by the student speaker Lenore Womack of Grayson, who received the B.A. degree with honors.

Recalling that an aunt had dropped her head first into deep water when she was five to teach her how to swim, Womack compared college to that experience.

"College has challenged us to get our feet wet in the deep waters of learning," she said. "Some of us just dipped our toes, while others nearly drowned.

"Realizing where you've been and where you want to go, that's what learning is," she said. Urging the graduates not to forget who helped them learn to swim, she asked them to remember the faculty who "watched over us as we thrashed our way through deep water."

Noting that author Gurney Norman had described life as being similar to the journey of a river, Womack said that learning didn't end with graduation or with employment. "We can move on from creeks to lakes to oceans," she told her listeners. "We've learned to keep our heads above water."

The daughter of Carl and Betty Womack, she majored in philosophy with an English minor and has been accepted into graduate school at Baylor University.

Also presented by Dr. Eaglin during commencement were two MSU Distinguished Service Awards recognizing individuals who exemplify the highest ideals of service and citizenship. This year's recipients were Mary Jo Netherton, associate professor of French, and Tim P. Rhodes, director of financial aid and scholarships.

Following the conferring of degrees, MSU's newest alumni were inducted into the Alumni Association by Louis M. "Sonny" Jones, association president. The new graduates join more than 38,000 MSU alumni nationwide and abroad.

SOUNDS OF VICTORY

Morehead State University added a new sound to its 1994 Spring Commencement--the skirling strains of a Highlands bagpiper--to closer link the ceremony to the heritage of the Appalachian people of Eastern Kentucky. Wearing the tartan of the Ancient Sutherland clan, Ross Martin of Lexington piped the platform party on and off the stage. Recalling that the bagpipe in the past often signaled victory in battle, MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin told the crowd of nearly 7,000 that its "sound today symbolizes the victory and achievements of our graduates." Approximately 960 graduate and undergraduate students were candidates for degrees at commencement.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Pete Hitch, Morehead State University senior, placed fifth in the nation at the Intercollegiate Horse Show Association's 21st annual National Championship Show held recently at Texas A & M University.

According to Hitch, the Intercollegiate Horse Show Association has grown significantly since it was established in 1967. IHSA today encompasses 18 regions with 225 member colleges from 35 states and Canada, and represents more than 5,000 riders.

"Riders qualify for nationals through a point system. To participate at nationals in Advanced Stock Seat Equitation, which is the category I rode in, you must place first or second at the regional finals," he said.

Originally from Maryville, Tenn., Hitch is a member of MSU's Equestrian team. Before riding for MSU, he attended Middle Tennessee State University where he also rode and ranked nationally in 1992. Ironically, the 1992 national competition was held at Morehead State. "I was so impressed by the facilities, horses and program that I decided to transfer," he commented.

Hitch, the son of B.D. and Susan Hitch, said his parents were very supportive of his desire to transfer. "When I decided to go from MTSU to MSU they said if that's what you need to do then go. Anything I've wanted to do my parents have supported me. Whether they thought it was right or wrong, they knew I would learn from it either way," he said.

Some day in the future, Hitch, who is a psychology major and horsemanship minor, plans to open up a private psychology practice. "I want to get my Ph.D., but for now I will probably stay at MSU and work on my master's degree."

When asked why he was interested in a career as a psychologist, Hitch responded:

"I believe any goal can be attained by thinking things out. Some people haven't been taught this or had the family support that I've had. I want to help them learn how to cope with life and face their problems, as well as the future, with a smile."

POTENTIAL COURT STAR

During a recent visit to Morehead State University, Erika Bryan, a student at Warnock Elementary, competed in a free throw contest in Johnson Arena at MSU's Academic-Athletic Center. She was one of 30 WES students who took part in "A Day on Campus" program, sponsored by Ashland Oil, Inc., to encourage students to consider college as a goal and to begin preparing for it scholastically.

WARNOCK ELEMENTARY STUDENTS AT MSU

Thirty fourth and fifth graders from Warnock Elementary School recently visited Morehead State University under the auspices of the Ashland Oil, Inc., program, "A Day on Campus." The program is designed to encourage students to think about college as an educational goal and to prepare themselves scholastically. The students toured campus, visited various academic departments and talked with MSU students and administrators before returning to school. At the start of the program, the students posed for an "official" photograph to mark the day. They were accompanied by Donny Crooks, Donna Kouns, Kathy Dowdy, Joretta Greene, Linda Zornes and Kathy Collier.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Returning to school wasn't an easy choice for Cindy Wylie of Grayson, a non-traditional student at Morehead State University, but she is back with enthusiasm, motivated by the belief that education is her best foundation for building a career and reaching a dream.

"I used to work in a sewing factory where I made minimum wage. Now that I'm back in school, I feel like I have a future and that I'm going some place," said Wylie.

Twenty years ago she had been a college student at Berea College, but after completing only two years there, Wylie left to get married.

For Wylie there were a few logistical hurdles to overcome when she decided to come back to school. Living approximately 55 miles from campus, she has to make the trip daily, leaving her two daughters, Orlena and Danette, and husband, Alfred, to fend for themselves.

Her husband and daughters are thrilled and excited that she has returned to school and, Wylie said, "They say I'm less grouchy, because I'm more relaxed."

According to Wylie, her priorities are based on the principle that your family must come first. She wants to be home when her girls get off the bus, because she believes her role as a wife and mother truly are her most important responsibilities.

When studying at home, Wylie takes breaks to spend time with her daughters and reserves a half hour before their bedtime to talk with them.

That caring nature is reflected in her choice of social work as her major. "I would like to work in a school with teens. They need someone they can relate to. I want to be a role model for my children and other students as well," she said.

"I have learned a lot about me since I've been back," she said. "Because I'm a lot happier with myself I feel like I can give more to my family and to other people. I've made friends and I enjoy my life."

Wylie said that going back to school has helped her physically, mentally, and emotionally. She had developed carpal tunnel syndrome, a nerve disorder caused by repetitious action in the wrists or hands.

As a result of this condition, she now wears wrist braces and receives federal funding from Vocational Rehabilitation to assist with her pursuit of a degree. "The government pays for my books and tuition. Without this help I would never have been able to return to school, so I am very grateful," she added sincerely.

Wylie credits Becky Walker, the director of the East Carter Youth Service Center for not only helping her locate the fiscal resources to enable her to enroll at MSU, but also for providing an incredible amount of moral support.

"I owe a lot of credit to so many people who have been supportive of my being back in school," Wylie said.

One of those people is Jacquelyn Scott, MSU non-traditional student counselor. Wylie remembered that when her car broke down, Scott allowed her to borrow hers until she and her husband were able to get the car running again.

Having just completed her first year as a student again, Wylie said that the biggest challenge she faced was learning how to study and take tests.

At the outset, she felt a little out of place as an older student, but Wylie found her instructors to be really helpful. "I realized early that I could talk with them and they were willing to give me the assistance I needed to succeed."

"The positive rewards of returning to school have far out weighed the negative," Wylie stated. "Now I'm on a campaign to try and get others to return to school. I've been encouraging people to come back. I've counseled friends and brought them applications."

In fact, when she's not in class, studying or spending time with her family, Wylie serves as a volunteer at the Youth Service Center.

"It's one way I can give back to the community," she said.

GRAYSON STUDENT SEES POSITIVE REWARDS OF SCHOOL

Cindy Wylie of Grayson, a non-traditional student at Morehead State University, believes that going back to school has helped her physically, mentally, and emotionally. Aside from leaving her two daughters and commuting to the campus every day, she said that the biggest challenge she faced was learning how to study and take tests.

MOREHEAD, Ky.—Ten Morehead State University faculty members have been awarded Summer Fellowships of $500 each to defray the costs of special projects.

"In addition to these fellowships, MSU awards grants for research and creative productions during the academic year in an effort to encourage the professional growth of our faculty," said Dr. John C. Phillely, MSU executive vice president for academic affairs.

"The fellowships are for summer projects which have the potential for contributing to the professional growth," he added.

MSU's 1994 Summer Fellows and their projects are:

Dr. Nancy Breaux, assistant professor of radio-television, for "Night Club Skin: A Portrait of Nancy King."

Dr. Andrew Glendening, assistant professor of music, for "The Reception of Trombone Passages and Their Extra-Musical Association in the Symphonies of Johannes Brahms."

Robert Hayes, associate professor of industrial education, for "Needs Assessment for Manufacturing Companies in Morehead State University Service Region."

Dr. Ishappa Hullur, associate professor of finance, for "Investment Tax Credit and Capital Formation."

Dr. Terry Irons, assistant professor of English, for "Verb Forms in Appalachian English."

Dr. Bruce Mattingly, professor of psychology, for "Role of Dopamine D<sub>3</sub> Receptors in the Development of Cocaine-Induced Behavioral Sensitization."

Dr. David Olson, assistant professor of psychology, for "Cognitive and Interpersonal Correlates of Hostility."

Nancy Peterson, assistant professor of English, for "Understanding the Stakes of Writing Curriculum Reform in Pre- and Post-Secondary Education."

Dr. James Smallwood, associate professor of industrial education, for "Investigation of Technology, Science and Math Integration Activities."

Steve Tirone, associate professor of art, for "Ceramic Shell Bronze Casting."

Proposals for Summer Research and Creative Productions Fellowships are solicited by MSU's Research and Creative Productions Committee, which reviews them under University guidelines and makes funding recommendations to the executive vice president for academic affairs.

Additional information on institutional grants may be obtained from the committee chair, Carole Morella, Office of Research, Grants and Contracts, 901 Ginger Hall.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.—The works of folk artist Minnie Adkins of Isonville will be exhibited in the Kentucky Folk Art Center on the Morehead State University campus, June 1-Sept. 15.

Adkins will receive the 1994 Appalachian Treasure Award at the Opening Reception of the University's Appalachian Celebration on Sunday, June 19, in the gallery, Claypool-Young Art Building. The reception will run from 6:30 until 8:30 p.m.

Also during the celebration, Adkins will give a free demonstration on Friday, June 24, from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. at the Folk Art Center. A reception honoring she and her husband Garland will run from 3 to 5 p.m.

Recognized nationally for her work, Adkins was the recipient of the Jane Morton Norton Award from Centre College earlier this year. In 1993, she received the first Award of Distinction to folk artists from the Folk Art Society of America and was presented the Eastern Kentucky Leadership Conference Award for Arts and Culture.

Besides living a number of years in Dayton, Ohio, Adkins has spent most of her life in her native state and Elliott County. Her work may be found in galleries across the U.S. and some pieces are in the "Passionate Visions" comprehensive exhibit of Southern Folk Artists which originated at the New Orleans Museum of Art and is currently touring the country.

The Center, located at 119 W. University Blvd., is open 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m., weekdays. Additional information is available by calling 783-2204 or 783-2760.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--When you teach, you spend your life with the best part of the American population.

This is the major reason why Dr. Roger H. Jones, professor of art at Morehead State University, tells students they should consider teaching as a career.

He bases that observation on the nearly 40 years he has spent working with students. Nearly three decades of that time has been spent at MSU.

In less than three months, Dr. Jones will enter the world of semi-retirement where his teaching load will be cut in half.

"I guess I just wanted to bow out gradually," Dr. Jones said. After two years, he plans to quit teaching at the college level and do some of the things he's been "wanting to do and just has not had the time."

Of utmost importance on his list of things to do are directing tours to Mexico, writing a book and working on a degree in Spanish as a Donovan Scholar.

With a love for Mexico that goes back to pre-school days, Dr. Jones said he didn't get to see that country until after he graduated from college. Even though he has been to Cuba, Japan, Italy, Greece, Egypt, Ethiopia, Kenya, Spain, Portugal, Canada, England, Scotland and Wales, he still proclaims that Mexico is his favorite. "I love the country, its people, its food, its art and music," he said.

Drawing information from his extensive travels, Dr. Jones believes he would enjoy being a tour guide when he's retired. He has conducted several summer educational tours to Mexico, Great Britain and even the Worlds Fair when it was at Knoxville. He has already contacted Saga Tours, which caters to those over 50 years of age, and told the staff of his interest in serving as a guide, especially in Mexico.

And, just because he has always wanted to be proficient in Spanish, he would like to go back to college and get a degree in the language. "Oh, I speak it but only to a degree," he noted. While it isn't perfect, he has "never missed a meal" because of a language barrier.

While he has no plans of beginning a novel in the next few days, writing is something he has done for several years. He has written articles on education, travel, tropical birds and dolls. For some publications, such as Madame Alexander's Doll Review, Dr. Jones also has been a contributing photographer.

2-2-2-2-2

Throughout his teaching career, he has been involved in numerous professional organizations. While still a high school teacher, Dr. Jones was the youngest president of the Kentucky Education Association which had a membership of approximately 33,000 and president of the Kentucky Department of Classroom Teachers. Since coming to MSU, he has been president of KEA's Morehead Chapter. He also has served as president of the MSU chapter of Phi Delta Kappa and for six years was the group's area coordinator.

While chatting with the professor, it does not take long for one to realize that his true love is education. "I always wanted to be a teacher," he said. "I liked school so much, I didn't look at life without school."

Dr. Jones jokingly recalls how, after his graduation from Breathitt County High School, his mother chose a college for him. "She looked for one with a 'hard curriculum'," he said. She settled on Georgetown College and he stayed there until completing his degree. He believes that was a wise choice, because when he enrolled in the University of Kentucky to work on his master's degree, it "was like going back to high school" for him.

Because of his accomplishments since those early days, Dr. Jones was one of the first recipients of Georgetown College's top honors, the Alumni Award.

With a master's degree in hand, the young educator got a job teaching English at Estill County High School. For his next assignment, he returned to his alma mater to teach art, Spanish and journalism where he stayed for the 13 years.

It was while teaching at BCHS that he first visited Morehead State College, bringing students for the annual senior day. "I was really impressed. President (Adron) Doran knew every student in that student body of approximately 600," he said.

Getting to know Dr. Jones on those campus visitations, Dr. Doran soon offered the high school teacher a position at the college, working in school relations where he did recruiting and school visitations. It was like being part of a family, Dr. Jones recalled. Every day the faculty met at a "faculty table" in the cafeteria where they had a social hour and visited with others they had not seen all day.

"All the occasions were big events," Dr. Jones continued. "Everybody went to the retirement dinners." The camaraderie also was evident in the student population because they knew each other and were more interested in what others were doing, he said.

While persons with advanced degrees were scarce on the campus at that time, Dr. Jones was one of the first to start working on a doctoral degree. He "left with a handshake" to go to Indiana University with the idea he would have a job at MSU when he attained the degree.

During the regular school term, Dr. Jones always planned where he would go during the summer break.

(MORE)

3-3-3-3-3

He has traveled almost around the world, with the notable exception of Australia but plans to go there soon, possibly in the late winter months so he "can experience two summers in one year."

Besides traveling, Dr. Jones enjoys reading and doing crossword puzzles, while Paco, his small, green Brazilian parrot, rests on his shoulder. When he is fully retired, he plans to get another parrot—a bigger one that talks more than Paco.

The love for the colorful tropical birds led Dr. Jones to an extensive collection. Several varieties may be seen in photographs in his office and on the walls at his home. His admiration for the works of Walt Disney also attributed to an enormous collection of Snow White memorabilia.

To others around campus, Dr. Jones is noted for his drawings of the MSU eagle mascot. "At one time, I had the Eagle as a member of the Marching Band, with one playing every instrument," he said. He also has done program covers for various organizations, as well as being asked to design the University's presidential medallions.

Education has been an important factor in the life of Dr. Jones. Because he was encouraged by his parents—his father worked for the University of Kentucky as superintendent of agriculture at an experiment station in Quicksand and his mother taught at Lees College after their children were grown—he has adopted the "everyone should teach one" theory. He paid the educational expenses for his niece to go to college.

"It was important that she get a degree," he said. "Now, she will be able to make it no matter what." He credits education for the success in his family; his two sisters are teachers and his brother, who also has a doctorate, does extension work at the University of North Carolina.

When Dr. Jones was a high school teacher, his principal once told him: "You are brainwashing the students; they all want to be teachers—and they all want to go to Mexico." For students taking his art education classes today, the same may still be true.

MSU PROFESSOR PLANS FOR RETIREMENT

Dr. Roger H. Jones, professor of art at Morehead State University, has begun to plan for his retirement. He hopes to travel, possibly serving as a tour guide, and do those things he previously did not have time to do. One of his interests is tropical birds. Shown with Dr. Jones is Paco, his small, green Brazilian parrot.
