THIS IS MY FAREWELL COLUMN: By the time you read this I should be somewhere west of the Mississippi or right close by it, on my way to Iowa, where I will be investigating a newspaper for sale. It's practically every newspaper man's dream to sometime own his own newspaper. I believe this is my opportunity. Because of the nature of this deal, I am acting hurriedly in order to take advantage of it.

However, I am not leaving without regrets. I have had a great deal of enjoyment out of writing for the Independent readers. I believe that this newspaper has a great future and will continue to go forward as fast as it has in the past.

I dislike breaking many good friendships, some of them, the finest I have ever had. I dislike breaking relationships with Mr. Sample, my employer, my next boss, if there ever was one. I dislike leaving at all, but I believe my future lies in a field of my own.

Thank all of you who read my columns (especially as my own inclination). I appreciated the contributions of various persons who helped to build up this column. So be ready to see me at the home of W. H. Hinton, Bill Sample, and all of you.

SEEN THIS WEEK: EXECUTANT MOTHER quoting the walk while hubby jogs along with car at mall's pace, keeping her company, and every few steps he takes a peek at her.

WERE PICKING THE EAGLES to win over the Transy Engineers 20 to 0. That one point less than Time magazine's quoting the Ken Nelson—King Swopce election, which opines that Ken's chances are 20 to 1.

MOREHEAD SEEMS TO HAVE more than its share of news this year. If it isn't a murder one week, then it's a bank robbery, fire, flood or what-have-you.

CRACKERBARREL COMMENTS

(By Woody Hinton)

The only reason I ever left the farm was because that there was a lot of times I did not have anything to do, and if there was anything I hate is being idle. Just a rodder day back on the farm was started by a big old red rooster we had, the only rooster I ever knew to have a "Bass" voice. (I reckon roosters have voices.) Well, he would crow at the first sign of dawn and he would crow until I went to the barn. Well, I'd milk and throw down some hay, take the milk to the house, feed the cats and go back and stop the hogs, then I'd feed "Old Charley" and cut the wood, while "Mom" was getting breakfast I'd pick a few eggs. By that time breakfast would be ready and I would eat some cakes with sargum with a piece of side meat rolled in meal and fried, and to sarter taper off on. I would eat some home-made light bread and apple jelly with home churned yellow butter. By that time I would hurry and get "Old Charley" hooked up so we could get to plowing. I'd plow until the sun was overhead, then I'd go to the house, drink some bean soup, eat some cornpone with a middling and taper off with some more cornpone and honey and a few glasses of sweet milk out of the spring house. After that I'd feel a little full and work around the house fixing a chair or mending the coffee grinder, then I think how it would be to go to town, so I would cut my own hair, slip my Sunday britches on and go out to gather some eggs, so I could trade them for spending money or gasoline for the Model "T". Usually when I got to town gasoline was up two cents and eggs off three. But I always knew that when I got back home I did not have much to do but chop more wood, milk, feed, fix a lamp, stop the hogs, drink a bucket of cider, eat and go to bed.

Life was awfully dull, so I moved to town and went into the mill-

Three Outstanding Events Planned For MSTC Homecoming

Football Game With Eastern, "Speechless" Banquet, Dance On Program

A battle for the old "Hawg-Rifle," a "speechless" banquet and a dance feature the homecoming known "Topshatters" from Huntington, West Virginia, are the three out-standing events arranged for Morehead State College homecomers when they convene on the grounds of their alma mater October 28, in the school's sixteenth year.

Luster Oxley, president of the alumni association and an instructor in the Ashland City school system, has predicted that three and four hundred graduates will congregate in this quiet little college town for the day's festivities, many of whom will witness the battle between Ellis Johnson's powerful Eagles and Morehead's oldest rival—Richmond.

Things always seem to happen when East meets West, and Coach Rome Rankin is pointing toward removing the famed "Hawg-Rifle" from its three year resting place and take it back with him to Eastern.

Merchant - College Cooperation Pledge Renewed; Banquet

Mutual Problems Discussed By President Babb and Members

A forward step in the relationship between Morehead State Teachers College and the merchants of Morehead was taken at a banquet held in the college cafeteria last Thursday night.

President H. A. Babb who was invited to answer various questions of the club members explained the financial situation of the school and the willingness of the officials to cooperate with Morehead merchants. He indicated his pleasure at the formation of the club, saying that heretofore a mutual understanding was not easily secured because of the lack of a representative merchants organization. Questions of interest were discussed and a standing committee of three, Curt Bruce, Dave Caudill and Hartley Batson, was appointed by President Wm. Layne to represent the club in college-merchant problems.

The members approved a letter to the general manager of the Ashland Home Telephone Co. and to Kelly McNish for their cooperation so far in rendering a better telephone service. Hartley Batson gave a talk describing the efforts of Morehead residents in 1923 to have the college located here.

Several of the boys discussed the progress they are making on their various projects. Maurice Hall, last year's president, presided over the meeting. Many of the boys reported large yields from hybrid corn furnished them by the banks of Morehead. The highest yield was reported by Elmo Eppesheart, at most seventy bushels to the acre. The high point of the evening came when the Future Farmer games were conducted and the new members taken into the chapter.

The new officers took their places at the close of the meeting and each vowed to give the chapter the best of his club work. The members of the club invite the townspeople to attend the meetings making on the boys work. Parents of the boys, Supt. Roy Cornette and several other visitors attended.

Amy Irene Moore, Former Grads In Kentucky Journal

Moore Tells Of Days' Teaching Exercise At Breck

The October issue of the Kentucky School Journal contains three articles written by two former Morehead students, Everett Cooanougher and Virginia Dawson and by the seventh grade teacher of the training school.

Miss Amy Irene Moore tells of a day's experience in teaching at Breckinridge in "A Day in the Life of a Mathematics Supervisor." Miss Moore tells of beginning the day of an active part in letters and of her activity-filled day, which is often hampered by interruptions by college students. Her participation in music, the development of school morale, the college band and orchestra, serves as relaxation after a trying day of supervising, teaching, observing, advising, and jack-of-all-trades.

Mr. Cooanougher, who is now principal at the Washington high school, chose as his topic, "The Development of School Morale."

"The sum total of one's attitude towards a given enterprise may define morale in general," he wrote. "Our responsibilities as Rural Teachers" was Miss Dawson's title of the article in which she declared "the rural teacher must not place herself on pedestals but must work on the level of the poorest child." She says that there are many teachers in the rural schools today because it is their only chance for employment, and that the rural child is made to suffer from this neglect because their teaching is often of a poor type.

Morehead Should Be Fire Conscious

Last week, designated as "Fire Prevention Week," from October 8 to 14, has a two-fold purpose, namely to impress the public consciousness the enormous cost involved in the fire waste year after year, and secondly, to enlist the cooperation of all elements in a community in effecting an actual reduction of the fire waste, not only during Fire Prevention Week, but throughout the fifty-two weeks of the year.

Morehead citizens should be fire conscious. The city's loss from fire this year already probably is a hundred thousand dollars. That loss affects nearly everyone directly or indirectly.

Fire Prevention Week should be the occasion for as complete an inventory as possible of the community's exposure to the hazard of fire, as also the steps the citizens should take to reduce the hazard.

September Is Gone and Autumn Is Here

Here we are at the close of September; tomorrow is the last day of the month, and then three-fourths of this year will have passed into history!

Even this week we've had some quite warm days; but in spite of the weather, we know that summer is near its end; the calendar, the opening of schools, the cutting of corn, the harvesting of fruits, and many other things tell us so. As always, we protest that it was a short summer, and we wonder where the time went. As we look back, however, it was a mighty nice summer, with only three or four really hot days and nights.

As always, too, we shall revel in the glories of autumn, with its winery tang in the air, its hazy clouds, its cooler nights, and later on, its riot of colors. Fortunately for us in this section of the country, transition of the season is gradual. The change is aptly described in a little poem in the New York Herald-Tribune; its first stanza reads as follows:

If you asked me I'd say 't would be all the same

If fall or another summer came

At the end of this one; yet I sigh

Of seeing these last days rushing by.

This sentiment has a response with us all. We know four seasons in the year are essential, and that there is something in all of them to enjoy. So, while we lament that the days are rushing by, we bow to the inevitable and are resolved that we shall remember summer with pleasant reminiscence, the while we enjoy what autumn is sure to bring.—Russell Times.

What Kind Of Advertising Pays

Yeager and White, certified public accountants, recently completed a survey in Louisville, Ky., on advertising, going directly to the consumers to secure their reactions to the various forms of advertising.

Two questions were asked:

1. What kind of advertising influences you most in your buying?"

2. "Which of the various types of advertising do you find most objectionable?"

The answers were:

1. Theatre screen advertising is the poorest in rank.

2. Billboards and circulars are next poorest in rank.

3. Radio and direct mail are next in line.

4. Newspaper advertising was declared to be the most effective to the general public.

5. The survey found no direct sales resistant to newspaper advertising; newspaper advertising sold more than all other media combined.

6. Newspapers sell 56 per cent of all goods sold by advertising; all other media sell 44 per cent.

7. 64 out of every 100 women buy of every 100 women influenced from newspaper advertising; 51 out the same way.

8. Two out of every 100 women buy from circulars, while 10 out of every 100 object to circulars. One out of every 100 men buy from circulars and 10 object.

9. Thirty of every 100 women object to billboards and 42 out of every 100 object to theatre screen advertising.

All persons voting in the community elections will be required to execute a certificate of membership in the Rowan County Agricultural Conservation Association. This certificate will be provided at the time and place of the election meetings.

All officers selected in the elections are required to have qualified for payment in connection with the Agricultural Conservation Program in 1939.

In order to be eligible to hold any of these offices, nominees are also required to (1) derive a substantial part of their incomes directly from farming, (2) reside in the community and county from which elected, (3) not hold any elective Federal, State or major county office and neither have been nor become a candidate for such office, (4) not be an officer or employee of any political party or political organization, (5) not have been removed for cause from any office in connection with the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, and (6) not be a member of the State Agricultural Conservation Committee.

After community committeemen and delegates are elected, the county convention of delegates will be called for the purpose of electing members of the county committee for 1940. When these officers are elected, the duties of the community delegates will be terminated.

Instructions issued from the State A. A. A. office provide that any community committeeman may also be a delegate or alternate delegate to the county convention or may serve as an alternate county committeeman. A community committeeman or delegate may also be elected to the county committee, but in this event he must resign the community office. JOHNSON SCHOOL
The attendance of Johnson School has been excellent. Our enrollment is now 1170. The most of the pupils have not missed a day or have not been late to school.

The classes in general are interested in their work. The first grade has started making cut paper booklets. The second grade has completed a sundial in their study of time. The third and fourth grades are working on a large globe. The upper grades will make maps for this globe.

The school appreciates the new curtains which were bought by the school and made up by Mrs. Clarence Kidd. Some pictures and a flag are to be put up this week. These luxuries are made possible by the proceeds of our pie supper which amounted to $19.85.

ELLIOTTSVILLE

The boys of the Elliottsville school, with the help and supervision of Mr. Crosthwaite are building a walk from and to the building.

The teachers are busy, after school, visiting homes and some of them have almost finished.

Everyone is talking about the pie supper, that is to be held Wednesday, October 11. A large crowd is expected.

The first, second, and third grades are working on a program to be presented at the next meeting of the P. T. A. which will be held Wednesday, October 25th.

Each room is to select a grade mother who is to visit the room and help in any way that she can. The president will purchase a picture and the grade having the largest number of mothers present at the P. T. A. meeting will have the picture in its room until another grade has a larger number of mothers present. Then the picture goes to that room.

The division of the third grade in Mrs. Hogge's room is glad to welcome Evelyn Denver and Richard Early back to school. They have been absent for two weeks digging potatoes and gathering corn.

The father is an invalid, and the children have to do all the farm work.

The first, second, third and fourth grades went on a picnic Tuesday afternoon. All enjoyed a delicious picnic lunch of sandwiches, lemonade, cake and fruit. Committees were appointed for safety games and refreshments.

The children of the second grade in Mrs. Hogge's room had a two-ring circus last week. They brought toys from home, and had a jolly time making them perform. The children learned to recognize and spell the names of the animals.

FARMERS

Farmers' School News.—

Mr. Riddle and Desna Swim installed lights in the furnace room which will be a great help on dark days.

We have been conducting several useful experiments in general science. We have had only a day and one-half absence this week, and hope to have less in the weeks to follow.

SI Rogers and his Pine Fiddlers were to make a personal appearance at our school, but due to incompleteness of the gym, they were not able to make the appearance.

The grades six and seven whose teacher is Mr. Felfrey, went on a field trip Friday. The children wrote some poems about this. The names of the poems were: The Thrashers, by Eugene Gilkinson; The Birds, by Reva Lykins and The Noisy Teacher, by Marvin Lye. The Noisy Teacher was so good that we want you to read it to us.
