LOOK AHEAD

On an ancient Egyptian tablet unearthed by Archeologists was inscribed a lament declaring that the earth is degenerate, youth in despair and the world coming to an end.

As we go into another New Year let us practice the philosophy of a very wise man, the late President Eliot of Harvard, who believed that each man should have "a calm attitude of expectation of good."

The figures of wages and salaries paid to public servants, local, state and Federal employees, in 1936, have been compiled by the Civil Service Assembly. They come to the appalling total of $5,145,873,000, not including the persons on work relief.

That figure does not sound good to thoughtful taxpayers. They think any figure that is paid by the government is too high. They think any figure that is paid by the government is too high.

Solar System

Written by T. L. Dehart Route One, Morehead, Ky.

The solar system consists of the sun, which is the center, with Mercury, Venus, Earth, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune and Pluto, as planets revolving around it in nearly circular paths. All of these planets except Mercury and Venus have satellites revolving around them, or moons, which revolve around them. Besides these there are several asteroids, which like the planets, move in elliptical paths. Let us imagine the solar system as being suspended in space, held by the force of universal gravitation. The sun is in a great center globe, so vast as to overcome the attraction of all the other planets and force them to circle around him. Every member is flying with such perfect accuracy that they never come near the sun. As we stand at this time piece known, by appearing at the sun, where we can see these motions as they revolve. We look in every direction start out on this voyage to view them and consider their distance from the sun. Let us imagine that we are as far as sight can see, and we behold these planets, flying through space at different velocities. Let us fancy ourselves in a no oil of fuel and we are ready to turn the sun, their velocities, and the distance we shall travel at the rate of one million miles a day. Off we go. Thirty-six days and we shall arrive at Mercury, which

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Written Each Week By W. E. KAZER Pastor of The Baptist Church

Subject: Crucifixion For a Christian. Text: "I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance." (Mark 2:17) If my reader will take time to read the text from the Bible (Mark 2:13-22) he will find Jesus mingling with publicans and sinners, and will hear the Pharisees criticizing him. That is fourfold often in the life of Jesus. Jesus so reversed matters of religion that the Scribners of Pharisees did not know what to make of his teaching. Of course, Judaism had come to be more for the weightier matters of the law, love, justice, mercy, and that he was there to call sinners to repentance. "They that are whole need not a physician, but they that are sick." Hence, we find Jesus among sinners.

Next we come to Mars, about one hundred and forty-five million miles from the sun. Its motion in its orbit is about five miles per second. Its day is twenty-four hours and thirty-seven minutes long. It requires nearly two years to make the revolution around the sun and is four thousand two hundred miles in diameter. Its volume is fourteen hundredths that of the earth. Mars has two moons.

Now we have passed on to Jupiter. It revolves about the sun at a mean distance of about four hundred and eighty-three million miles. Its velocity through space is more than eight miles per second. It rotates upon its axis once in about ten hours. Its diameter is ninety thousand miles. Its volume is fourteen hundredths that of the earth. It is larger than all the other planets combined. Jupiter has four moons. It revolves around the sun in about twelve years.

On we go to Saturn. This was the most remote planet known to the ancients. It is 886,000,000 miles from the sun. It revolves around the sun in about twenty-nine and one half years. It moves in its orbit more than six miles per second. It has nine satellites or moons. Its diameter is 73,000 miles. Its volume is seven hundred times that of the earth, and its density is three fourths that of water.

And now we pass on to Uranus, which is about 1,782,000,000 miles and it requires about eight years to make a revolution around the sun at a rate of five miles per second. Its diameter is 31,000 miles, its density is that of water.

And now we pass on to Neptune. It revolves about the sun at a mean distance of 2,796,000,000 miles. Its year is equal nearly to 165 of ours. Its motion in its orbit is less than four miles per second. Its diameter is 37,000 miles. Its volume nearly one hundred times that of the earth. Its density is not well known, and the nature of its rotation. It has one moon.

Lastly, we pass on our journey to Pluto, which was discovered in 1930. This is the most remote planet now known. It has not been studied very much yet. There may be other planets still farther on for astronomers to search after. But we will stop here on our journey. We have now been out on this journey more than ten years, sailing at the rate of a million miles a day. We are now 37,200,000 miles from the sun. This distance is beyond all comprehension of the human mind. Nothing but the mind of the all-wise can comprehend it.

We look back over our path, we find that Mercury, Venus, Earth, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune and Pluto, are still there and have disappeared. Only Uranus and Neptune are in sight. Even the disk of the Sun is no longer visible. It appears only as a star. Its heat and light are both feeble, and unless Pluto has heat and light, it is very cold on Pluto, and we are in darkness. We look out at the stars, they seem so bright and so near, yet we never see them when we gazed on them from the earth. This vast distance that we have gone is beyond all comprehension of the human mind.

The Penhouse Murder

By Caleb Johnson

"You think you can clear him, Max?"

"I know it, Dan."

"Well, you've never let me down yet. I'll take a chance on your say-so."

"Then let me have a word with the house physician, before we start," said Michaels. "Doctor," he asked, as the medical man came in, "you observed the symptoms which Miss Lane exhibited when she recovered consciousness after her blood transfusion?"

"Yes."

"The you know of any drug, which could be administered in a small dose, hypodermically, which would produce a profound sleep for a period of five or six hours and cause the after-symptoms such as you observed?"

"Yes. Hyoscine might do it if the patient were especially susceptible."

"That's what is used in the so-

"Here, that doesn't tally with the phone company's record of no calls, interposed Inspector Flaherty.

"They've been known to make mistakes," observed Frazier. "Max has something up his sleeve. He'll tell us when he gets good and ready. Meantime I'm trying to figure it out."

"What about thought interference? Telepathy? You think she might have got her call across to him that way?"

"No, I don't stand for that," said Dan Flaherty. "There may be some thing in telepathy, but you can't prove it by the police nor a jury. Let me give a guess at what Max is driving at. Will you tell me if I get your theory right, Max?"

"Perhaps," replied Michaels, smiling.

"Well, then, it would work the way, the Inspector went on. The Lane dame could have taken that gun from the stuff. We haven't given much thought to that. Say she was afraid of Fizz—that's reasonable. He might have threatened her, if she took Archie into her of him.

"Now, there's been cases where nurses jabbing girls on the streets. We went out there last night. Now one of them bumps into her, see?"

In her eagerness Dan Flaherty was lapsing into the vernacular of his native Ninth Ward.

"No use asking why, there ain't no reason in what any nut like that does. They ain't all doped up when she gets into her apartment. Think a pin stuck her, and there's a pin in her dress—probably picked up in the taxi. Her maid goes out and she lies down and goes to sleep. I've heard of this going on. They know what's tonight but they can't remember any of it afterwards, see?"

"Now, she's dead to the world, but she isn't. Get me? Fizz comes along an' she lets him do what he wants an' she pulls the gun on him. He grabs for it an' it goes off an' she gets her arm an' she tussle. The gun drops, an' she grabs it an' lets him have it through the heart."

and self-possessed as he had been in the poker game the night before.

"Shall we sit down at the table?" he inquired, as the visitors shed their wraps. "Excuse me just a moment," he went on, as the four seated themselves. "I just want to date and sign some papers."

He picked up two long sheets of paper which were pinned on the table around which they had played the poker the night before. At the bottom of each sheet he affixed his signature.

"These might as well be witnessed," he said, turning one sheet face down over the other so that only the name he had written and a blank space beside it showed. Will get you gentlemen be good enough to sign as witnesses to my signature."

He passed his fountain pen across the table and each signed in turn. Then Henderson reversed the sheets and again witnessed his signature.

He took the papers back into his own hands and scribbled over them. One of them he passed across to Max Michaels.

"Will you be good enough to take charge of this for me, please?"

"Don't bother to read it now."

The other document he held in his own hands, looking from Michaels to Frazier and Flaherty as if uncertain as to into whose hands to place it.

Inspector Flaherty took advantage of the pause for a question which he had been fairly bursting to ask.

"What do you mean about putting my men around this building?" he demanded. "I haven't posted any men here."

"Well, they were my men, interposed Michaels. "You see, I wasn't sure until I got this telegram said that it was a case for the police."

He drew from his pocket the yellow envelope which had been delivered to him at the hospital, and glanced significantly from it to Henderson.

"I had a message, too," said Henderson. "A long distance call from Pasadena. I still have it here. I take it your telegram is the same place?"

"That's correct," replied Max Michaels. "And I take it of the documents you have just signed is a confession?"

Henderson's eyes indicated surprise by the slightest of flutters. Then looked full at Max Michaels and the Inspector, while the other two stared from one to the other, perplexed and amazed.

"Yes," was Henderson's cool reply. "And the other is my last will and testament. It is a pleasure when one is beaten, to realize that one has yielded to superior brains."

"Suppose you let it lie three minutes, Henderson," said Michael as the inventor proffered the papers to interpose to Inspector Flaherty. "I appreciate your intention, but you have been beaten neither by superior brains nor by superior force unless you count the forces of Nature."

"It was not the Czar's armies, but the snow, that defeated Napoleon in Russia. It has beaten you, Henderson, but the snow. The snow that you did not know anything about, but had seen, had your experience with which to calculate upon its probability or to measure its ruinous effect upon your ingenious plots."

THIS WEEK AT THE NATIONAL CAPITOL

There is very decidedly a better feeling between Government and business, if by Government is meant Congress. How far that is true if by Government one means the President is uncertain. There have been numerous conferences lately in which the President has sat down with leaders of business and industry, the latter seeking to get some sort of a definite statement of policy which they could take to the President's lips, and the President, presumably asking from them the facts about business conditions and their ideas of the causes of the current slump.

Some of those who sat in on these conferences have reported that they never heard a President talked to face to face in the case of some of those present used in attributing to him the major blame for the business recession. Depression is not a political word to use in Washington these days. Out of all the conferences, however, the President himself emerged smiling, giving no sign of any influence which his visitor's pleas to let up on business may have had on him.

Smart political observers would believe that the failure of the White House to utter reassuring words at the recent recessions is part of a political strategy, which has cleverly in progress since the present slump first began to be visible. If the President can be successfully flattered to the public mind, upon "economic royalists," and along around the Royal primaries, when the mass of consumers have just begun to feel the pinch of the slowing down of factory production and increasing unemployment, a new big Government spending plan, estimated at a billion or more unexpected relief money, the effect upon the average voter will not be to do friendly toward Congressmen and Senators of either party who have refused to go along with the Administration or not, such a program would have the effect of strengthening the administration politically. And the growth of the spirit of independence in Congress has become so marked since last Fall that it is almost certain attention was paid to the repairing of many political fences.

he has just been having such friendly conferences. It is breaking to his young friends that he has just been picked because they are rich—and in the "heart" is still in the right place.

That is another view of the President's somewhat perplexed mission to maintain the present stand at the same time to reform program insisted upon by Congress. But Congress no longer responds to the call of the White House whip, and its own analyzing of the present situation and working out its own remedies.

Read Appointment Book

The appointment of Solicitor General Stanley Reed to the Supreme Court bench has met with approval in all quarters. There has been some mounting criticism among the young radicals that the President did not name one of those who had been called, but otherwise political circles have hailed the move as the best ever made to the High Court. Not a whisper has been heard of any man of promise is the sort of man of promise with his conscience by his personal point of view in his own mind. Reed has the task of applying the provisions of the Constitution to the Acts of Congress.

Washington gossip is already busy, one hopes premature, possible successors to Justice Garland. The ideal candidate is a great Liberal of the past, but one of the Supreme Bench, already as likely to create the next two vacancies in the Court as any physical condition. Chief Justice Brandeis, past me, is said to be considering his own retirement.

Water for scalding a hog barrel should be between 114 and 125 degrees. The ideal temperature is 142 degrees. This gives scald thirty gallons of water in a hog barrel.

Flushing the kitchen sink daily with boiling water will usually prevent clogging. It is especially desirable to flush the sink after the drain after the dishes are washed, thereby carrying down all grease.

Market Report

Almost 2 cents a bushel abrupt rise of the Chicago wheat market today resulted largely from an unexpected steep jump of wheat quotations at Liverpool.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1 1/8 to 1 1/2 above yesterday's finish, corn 1 1/8 to 3/8 up, oats unchanged to 1/4 in advance, rye showing 1 to 1 7/8 lift, and provisions 2 to 7c setback.

Tuesday's livestock trade was featured by moderate receipts and a 25 to 35c lower hog market. Top hogs dropped back to the $8.75 mark. Vealers opened steady but closed slow and weak; the day's extreme top $11.50 for choice hammy weights at steady rates, as compared with Monday's weak to lower trade.

Cattle—Receipts 150. There was a very limited offering in the cattle division Tuesday and the trade was rather slow. The few sales transacted figured mostly steady with Monday's steady to lower trade. There was still a rather restricted outlet for steers scaling over 800 pounds. However, lighter weight offerings moved dependably. Nothing grading strictly good or better was included; one yearling medium to good 707-pound part load.

steers made $7.50, odd head good baby heaves unsold and held around $8. A small lot lightweight steers made $7.25; sales on all weights steers and heifers ranged from $6 to $7. Several lots weighty steers sold from $6.60 to $7. No strictly good beef cows arrived, the practical limit $3.50, bulk common to medium $3.65 to $5; cutter grades bulking from $4.65, few shells down to $3.75. A few medium sausage bulks topped at $6.25; the bulk of quality to sell from $5.25 to $6.

Several pens of stock cattle moved to the County Tuesday. The bulk medium and good calves turned from $7.68, few steer calves up to $8.25. Southern stock heifers moved from $5.75 to $6.25, few up to $6.50.

FROM STOVE TO TABLE
A constant improvement in cooking and serving utensils is apparent in the innovations pictured above. With its heavy, bakelite, etc., may be heated and served direct from stove to table. A wire mesh unit in it permits warming or crisping of crackers and cereals as well as breads and pastries, without re-cooking them.

Baptist Workers

Byron C. S. Delanette, secretary of the Training Union work of the state.

In order to reach every worker in these district associations, the Baptist Sunday School Board is financing the transportation of one two or three automobiles from each association to bring these workers. Entertainment will be provided by the host church at Lexington.

There will be a morning session at ten o'clock, an afternoon and an evening session on Friday with the meeting adjourning at noon on Saturday.

It is expected the Pastor B. H. Kazee, Clyde Smith and several others from Morehead will attend this meeting.

Higgins Home Destroyed

a few years ago from Salversville, KY, for the purpose of educating his children. He purchased his home at that time and had equipped for insurance, but was unable to obtain protection. Thus he was without any insurance on either the home or the contents. The family saved only the clothing they had on at the time of the fire.

Auditors Report

available, $3,963.25, provided the entire tax list as set forth in the budget is collected. This is expected to take up all or the greater part of the entire sum, so that the county, as it now stands, has particularly no funds with which to carry on its necessary business and meet necessary obligations.

Of the total anticipated revenue from taxes and everything, $19,563.90, $3,963.25 has already been collected and spent. In addition to this $13,206.71 worth of warrants have been issued, in anticipation of the collections. Thus the balance uncollected and unspent is $1,600.76.

Feeling Fine!
The refreshing relief so many folks say they get by taking Black-Draught for constipation makes them comfortable about this feature, just if you're liable.
Black-Draught puts the digestive tract in better condition than any other drug, without ever causing a habit, and is safe for the most delicate.

County officials are getting together for the purpose of working out a plan, whereby they will be able to care for their obligations and at the same time carry on the business of the county without hindrance.

First Period To Close

to take advantage of this offer, which closes definitely at that time and which will not be repeated. The campaign itself, which will decide the winners of the Ford, Chevrolet, Plymouth, the $200 in cash, the $75.00 in cash, the $50 in cash, and the estimated $500 in commissions, ends in April, but this first important period is sure to play a large part in determining the ultimate winners. The records reveal that all those now entered have been a little slow in getting started. Many of them still have only the 5,000 entry votes to their credit, and none have yet taken advantage of the extra vote offer.

A good lead for the grand prize could easily be taken today by some new, live, energetic worker, and the same opportunity is before any of those entered who can see the opportunity and make the most of it. Thousands of votes can be had for the asking.

The Prizes, the choice of a Ford, Plymouth, Chevrolet, $200 in cash, $75.00 in cash $50.00 in cash and the commissions are well worth any one's efforts. There are only a few more days left of this campaign and today hardly a candidate has started out with that dogged determination which guarantees success. The prizes are going to be given away in April. Just think of winning such a prize in so short a time. It's too good to pass up, yet many ambitious, energetic men and women are doing just that by not getting busy under the present large vote offer, and getting their votes while others lay away their time, thinking someone else more capable than themselves, and thinking others have a better opportunity to win than they have. All are on equal terms. Effort is the governing factor, and if anyone is willing to put forth a little effort on a proposition on which they positively cannot lose, they can own a new car, or will be rewarded with the cost in cash when the campaign comes to a close.

The News is still accepting entries in the campaign. If you want to earn more than you have ever earned in your life for the effort you put forth, turn to the advertisement in this issue, clip the coupons and start out today. The coupons together with thirteen subscriptions, will start you in the

Charley Chan Is Cozy Feature

It's "candid-camera night in Manhattan's gayest cabaret when Death writes the last entry in a night-club singer's diary and Charlie finds his grimmest mystery stalking the killer through the brightest spots of the Great White Way in his latest Twentieth Century Fox-film adventure, "Charlie Chan On Broadway," which opens Friday at the Cozy Theatre with Warner Oland again playing the keen Oriental sleuth.

America's greatest hobby since the advent of radio is a prominent baffling of crimes ever to confront the New York police, when chance snapshots of a hundred miniature-camera lenses at the scene of the crime provide Chan with the opening clues in his jigsaw-puzzle reconstruction of the double murder.

More hinder than help to the Chinese detective in his attempt to track down the killer in his self-appointed assistant, Keyne Luke, in the role of Chan's "number one son." Lee Chan's efforts to imitate his famous father and do a little independent sleuthing offer several amusing interludes in a mystery which belongs toward the transatlantic liner on which the pair are returning to New York after Chan's previous cases abroad.

Louise Henry, beautiful Broadway chorus girl, secretes a mysterious packet in the Chan's luggage which she tries to regain from their hotel room in New York. She is interrupted by Lee Chan, makes an excuse for her presence, and hurriedly off to the "Hottentot" Club, where "candid-camera night" is in progress and where she is murdered. The murder of a second person is discovered in Chan's own room when he returns to his hotel.

Harold Huber, in the role of police inspector, rounds up J. Edward Bromberg, Joan Marsh, Joan Woodbury, Donald Woods and Douglas Fowley, all of whom are under suspicion. A swift succession of events gives the alert, perceptive Chan a complete clue-picture of the entire affair, and in a snappy climax he unmask the murderer.

APPLE SAUCE IS BEST WHEN COOKED

Suggestions as to the cooking of apple sauce given by the home economics department of the Kentucky College of Articulture.

The secret of fine-flavored apple sauce is slow cooking to a point beyond the first indication of tenderness. For most apples a half hour is not too much if the heat is kept low. It is well to vary the kind of apple sauce served by adding lemon juice or spices such as cinnamon or cloves. Nutmeg should be added to apple sauce only if it is to be eaten at once, for it is likely to give a bitter flavor on standing. The texture may also be varied by serving (1) apples that have been cored, quartered and cooked with skins on and then put through a colander; (2) apples pared, cored, cut into thick slices and cooked without stirring until transparent in a covered pan in water that covers them three-fourths of the way; (3) apples that have been pared, cored, quartered, cooked in a small amount of water until tender and then smashed with a fork or spoon.

Three large bandana kerchiefs will make a smart sport blouse. Use one for the front, one on the back and the other for the short sleeves.

When a vegetable or a cereal burns during cooking, plunge into saucepan containing the food into a pan of cold water. It is good for a minute or two. Then shake the food into a fresh pan and finish cooking.

NEW YORK CITY... When you come to the New York World's Fair '39 this is what you'll see along the 2,000-foot esplanade, lined with more than 250 trees and hundreds of benches arranged along five miles containing five waterfalls and hundreds of fountains. The fountain shown sections to the left and right. It is said to be the most beautiful of the scale model above, striking keynote of the biggest of World's Expositions to open in May next year.

Once Doomed to Die For Want Of Ten Cents—He Lived To Tear Up One Million Dollar Contract

So far as I know, there is only one actor in America who ever tore up a contract worth a million dollars.

Who is he? Well, you ought to know. You have sung his songs, you have laughed at his jokes. He made the first full-length talking picture. And he also made the greatest box-office attraction that was ever created in Hollywood—a picture that earned twelve million dollars, an all-time record that has never been approached by any other film.

That picture was the Singing Fool, and the man who starred in it was Al Jolson—Al Jolson to you. Jolson once drew a salary of $31,250 a week and he drew it for more than six months without doing a day's work. That means he was paid almost a million dollars for doing absolutely nothing. To be sure, he was ready to perform; but his employers, United Artists, had no script ready to shoot just then; so he played golf and collected when he went to get it, he discovered that he had to pay ten cents for a bottle. He didn't have a dime—so to this day, he has never got the medicine.

He recovered without it, anyhow—and without the doctors. But he has never forgotten how it felt to be doomed to die because he didn't have ten cents. That is why he now spends twenty thousand dollars a year supporting free beds for poor people in a tuberculosis sanatorium in the Adirondacks at Saranac Lake. He has been doing this for eleven years; and he has never seen half of the people whose lives he has saved.

When Jolson first came to New York, he was penniless, and had to steal a ride from Washington. He was so unsophisticated that when he got to Newark, New Jersey, he thought he was in New York. When he finally got to New York, he slept on park benches and on trucks downed by the water front. For days he went hungry. The best he could hope for then was a chance to "jump for nickels" in some Bowery saloon. He saw the day when Broadway managers leaped at the chance of paying him ten dollars a minute.

Lee Schubert once remarked that there were only two legitimate actors in America who could go into any big town and fill a theatre on the strength of their names alone. One was Fred Stone, and the other was Al Jolson.

Once in A Lifetime

SALEMONT, Pa. — Jimmy Dykes, old White Sox pilot, always wanted to be a farmer. When the Volunteer Fire Department here made him an honorary member of the company, he lost no time in getting behind the wheel of "Betsy" the huge fire truck. Jimmy is said to be "chased" as a fire-fighter and fans are hoping he proves equally as "chase" when the Red start slugging next season.

MODERN WOMEN

EARLENE WHITE President of The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc.

Her great love for birds, which she studied whenever she had a free half hour or more, has resulted in a book by Mrs. Emma F. Byers, bearing the imprint of the Women's Press. Mrs. Byers is well known in the middle west and the east, having served in Omaha, Chicago, Minneapolis and New York with the Y. W. C. A. A few years ago she retired, since when she has been more than ever devoted to the study of her feathered friends. The small volume entitled "Out-of-Doors with Birds" is not intended as a bird guide but is meant to inspire readers to use their free time to study birds, which Mrs. Byers thinks is a fascinating and interesting way to spend leisure time. The book is particularly good for people who live in the city where parks offer excellent opportunities to learn about birds.

Internationally known Chinese women have organized in New York a relief association to air their country's war sufferers. Everything about the organization is volunteer and everything goes direct to Mm. Chiang Kai-shek in China. The leaders in this group are Mrs. Lin Tu Tsang, wife of the author of "My Country and My People"; Miss Maimai Sze, who played in "Lady Precious Stream," and is the daughter of Dr. Alfred
