Eighty Five Thousand Dollars In Old Claims To Be Refinanced Says Board

Eighty five thousand dollars in old claims will be financed shortly, according to County Superintendent Roy E. Corneette and the claims will be settled, in such a way as to save the county thousands of dollars, reduce interest rates from six to 4 1/2 per cent and provide for the orderly retirement of the debt over a period of thirty years.

That, briefly is the plan evolved by the County Board of Education and its creditors during the past few weeks. The plan which has met with the approval of the State Education department is now under way.

According to the refinancing program, all old bills for which claims have been allowed and vouchers issued will be settled at 50 cents on the dollar. As the claimants accept the offer, bonds will be issued for the amount, which is expected to be in the neighborhood of $15,000, thus cutting the indebtedness in half. As the rate of interest will also be reduced, the Board expects to save a considerable sum on this item as well.

The indebtedness of the County Board of Education dates back a number of years. The claims are all old claims, on many of which the Board has already been sued and on which judgments have already been issued. They cover teachers salary claims, loans and sundry other items.

The Board is anxious to have all old claims, which are recognized as valid, presented for settlement. They feel that, by following this method, they are serving those who hold the claims, by offering them cash settlement, and at the same time protecting the interests of the taxpayers, by saving them a considerable sum.

By spreading the payments out over a thirty year period, the Board feels that they will be able to take care of the indebtedness without making any additional tax levies, but rather by conserving enough out of the regular levy to take care of the bonds as they fall due.

The Eagles closed their 1937-38 basketball schedule last Saturday afternoon the curtain being rung down on a sad finale, as Western eliminated the Eagles from the K. I. A. C. tournament. Actually the Eagles season as a winner closed several weeks ago, when the team, after a hopeful start, became a consistent loser, dropping game after game as their effort to seek the cellar position.

The Eagles as a team were a far cry from the Eagles of last year, who topped the K. I. A. C. in the regular hoop season, went to the S. I. A. A. tournament and by a narrow margin of four points lost in the semifinals to Murray, in an overtime period.

Gives Heavy Sentences

Justice Pfeiffer stated that in one case of the sort that came before his court, he would, on first offense assess the lowest fine, giving the culprit an opportunity to get out of the way. In several other cases he does not believe in leniency and will assess the highest fine allowed.

On Tuesday a civil suit with a jury was tried before Judge Pfeiffer, that of Clarence W. Cobb, who brought suit against the Midland Baking Company, damages done to his car by one of the bakery trucks. The trial resulted in a verdict in favor of Mr. Cobb for damages totaling $300.00 and costs.

Civil Docket To Be Cleared

Light Felony Docket Expected To Give Attorneys Opportunity To Try Cases

No new cases have been docketed for trial at Morehead since the Rowan Circuit Court which is scheduled to open a three weeks term here Monday next week. The light felony docket remains the lightest of all time. Six or seven minor misdemeanor cases are up for appearance, although the docket has not yet made returns to the Circuit Court Clerk's office, said Mr. McKinney.

The lightness of the felony docket will give the attorneys ample time to try out the civil and equity docket, said Mr. McKinney. He added that there were a large number of important cases scheduled for trial and thought that the attorneys would grasp the opportunity to get as many of them cleared away as possible.

The important cases on the civil and the equity dockets are the following: Beiknapp Hardaway Company vs. Morehead Grocery Company.

Margaret Davis vs. Earl Gilson, Dr. B. H. Gilson and Julia Gilson, damages.

John Martin vs. South Eastern Greyhound Bus Lines. Cosmos Portland Cement Company, vs. W. E. Proctor.

On these the first two cases have been set for the seventh day of the term and the last two for the eighth day of the term.

Is Your Total Vote Climbing Higher?

One more week of bad weather gone by and in spite of the weather the candidates all turned in a very good account of themselves, and boosted their standings considerably. However due to the bad weather, the candidates have asked and we have granted them an opportunity to obtain the benefits of the second period for another week. So on Saturday night of this week, and until then ONLY candidates will be given the advantage of the special bonus votes offered for the second period. Get busy. Help yourself now, while the votes come big. Each period the regular votes drop. This is the best week of the second period. Make a big turn-in of subscriptions to the cash, and boost your votes up.

The following is the standing from last week.

High Light Of Tournament Expected To Be Friday Night Game

The plans for the District Basketball Tournament have been placed and play will open on Thursday night of this week with Middleman and Sandy Hook clash in the opening game of the Tourney. As a preliminary to the main contest, the Sandy Hook-Morehead Junior teams will meet in the opening game of the junior tourney, to be played on the same night between the four schools representing the district.

Friday night Sandy Hook Junior School Juniors will play the Breckinridge High School Junior team in the preliminary game, while the feature attraction of the tournament will follow when Breckinridge meets Morehead High in the evening final.

Winners of the Sandy Hook-Morehead games Saturday night in the final of the tournament.

The Fifth grade has established the fact definitely that either Morehead High or Breckinridge High will be eliminated. Friday night game will be the tie game for both of them to be the tie game tournament next week.

Actually, according to the schedule, the championship game will be played Friday night at Morehead meets Morehead, as the two Morehead teams are adjudged by the class of the tourney.

Pre-tourney dodge, played by the season's play, gives Breckinridge an edge over the Vikings. The season's record indicates that Breckinridge is much the stronger of the two.

However, Morehead High may spring a surprise on the old line of overcast days, and the old line of overcast days may play a part, which is a further way of saying that in basketball anything may happen.

The Kings, which will be the old line of overcast days, may play a part, which is a further way of saying that in basketball anything may happen.

5-Minute Biographies

Author of "How to Win Friends and Influence People."

CHARLES DICKENS
He Went To School For Only Four Years—Yet He Wrote Seventeen Immortal Novels

Ninety years ago a little book was published in London, a story to become immortal. Many people have called it "the greatest little book in the world." When it first appeared friends meeting each other on the Strand or Pall Mall asked, "Have you read it?" and the answer invariably was, "Yes, God Bless him, I have."

The day it was published a thousand copies were sold. Within a fortnight, the presses had dashed off fifteen thousand copies. Since then, it has been whirled into court less editions and has been translated into almost every language under heaven. A few years ago, J. P. Morgan, purchased the original manuscript for a fabulous price, and it now reposes among his other priceless treasures in that magnificent art gallery in New York City which he calls his library.

What is this world famous book? Charles Dickens' Christmas Carol. He wasn't paid a cent for that story. And his next eight stories and the family had nothing to eat; so every morning, Charles went to the pawnshop and sold some of the few remaining pieces of household furniture. He even had to sell his dearly beloved books—ten of them the only companions he had really ever known. In later years he said, when I sold my books, I thought my heart would break."

In later years, Dickens, the writer of his own childhood, by creating the unforgettable portrait of Oliver Twist holding out his empty porridge bowl and asking for more.

Dickens wrote vivid scenes of perfect domestic bliss. Yet his own marriage was a failure—a dismal tragic failure. He lived for twenty-three years, with a wife he didn't love. She bore him ten children. But year by year he misery deepened. He had the whole world fawning at his feet; but his own home was filled with heartbreak. Finally the misery became so sharp so poignant, that he could no longer endure it. So he did an unheard-of thing in those Victorian days, he published an announcement in his own magazine declaring that he and his wife had separated. Did he shoulder the blame himself? He did not. He tried to throw it all on her.

Dickens was the best-loved and most idealized man of his day. On his second visit to America, when he stood in line for hours, shivering in the wind, while waiting to buy tickets. In Brooklyn, people lighted bonfires and lay all night on mattresses in the street, risking frostbite and pneumonia for the privilege of paying three dollars, dollars ago to hear him talk. And when the tickets were sold out and hun-drede had to be turned away, his admirers actually started a riot.

True Confession Is Cozy Feature

When Carol Lombard and Fred MacMurray took their places before the cameras to start making their current film, "True Confession," they established some sort of modern Hollywood record as a team.

Not that teams are unknown in Hollywood. Even back as far as the old days of silent films, Norma Talmadge and Eugene O'Brien were known as the inevitable boy-and-girl duo. A little later came Dorothy Mackall and Jack Mullah. But in recent times, combinations which have that certain something which clicks well enough to make them cast in more than one picture together have been few and far between.

That's why Director Wesley Ruggles let out cheers over "True Confession," which opens Sunday at the City Theatre. For in this picture Miss Lombard and MacMurray team up together for the fourth time in co-starring roles, thereby establishing themselves as a full-fledged team.

Their first co-starring film was Paramount's "Hands Across the Table," released just about two years ago. The picture wasn't considered very "big," it was sweet entertainment the studio thought, but the star names weren't important enough to make the picture sensational. Without any fanfare or fireworks, "Hands Across the Table" was released. Then the fireworks, in the form of boxoffice returns, began. In no time at all, the picture had leaped to the very top of the picture class.

At last the studio officials feel that they have the perfect combination—the hilarious tale of a girl so determined to get her lawyer husband some business that she's willing to confess to a murder which she didn't commit—plus the two top-ranking light comedy stars in the business, who have shown that they make the perfect team which picture need and audiences want. And if you don't think that your combination's terrific, you don't know your Hollywood!

Less than two hundred years ago it was practically impossible to make an autopsy of any kind on the bodies of persons who died violent or natural deaths. Relatively refused requests of this character but now and then some doctor, would satisfy his curiosity and by some subterfuge make an autopsy, with the sole idea of learning the cause of death and the conditions various anatomical portions of the body involved, for the benefit of humanity. People suffering from peculiar or little known diseases finally came to the point of offering their bodies to doctors for scientific purposes. Many medical men secured such promises from patients and others purchased the right. Twenty years ago Baltimore V. Balmist was found to be suffering from a rare bone disease. A London hospital faculty agreed to pay him $100.00 a year for life provided he would remain to be, and is still living.

Today it is possible for physicians to determine by autopsies just whether the remains are those of the persons they are supposed to be, and what caused their deaths. Mankind has thus materially benefited.

John Paul Jones, the father of the American Navy, was buried one hundred years ago in a French cemetery, and the record of his interment lost. An autopsy revealed the cause of his death and showed some of his personal characteristics. Mummies, dead for more than 5000 years, have been examined by experts and the cause of their deaths specifically ascertained.

Time For House Dresses

I like to take advantage of this lull before gardening and cleaning and make house dresses or do the necessary shopping for them. The shirtwaist dress of 1938 are both practical and smart. They are easy to iron, too. From fine French chaille to sheer Irish dimity, in plain fabrics, in prints and stripes, these trim frocks fill an important place in every woman's wardrobe.

For The Garden

Don't neglect to plant some garden herbs. You can put them in your perennial border if you have no other place for them. Most nurserymen can supply plants if you prefer to garden that way. English thyme, rosemary, parsley, sage, and tarragon as well as many others are available as plants. Mexican bean pot owes its souvenirs to a judicious selection of herbs.

WHY PAVE STREETS WITH CONCRETE?

- 1 Every street demands a gritty, non-slip surface for the protection of motorists and pedestrians.
2 At night you need a pavement with high visibility.
3 Safety also calls for a pavement that is free from chuck holes, ruts and bumps... and stays that way with minimum maintenance.
4 You want a pavement that drains quickly... that is easily cleaned and stays clean... no depressions to catch dirt.
5 You want a pavement that makes the whole neighborhood look modern, prosperous, attractive.

Concrete... and only concrete... completely meets all of these specifications. For complete pavement facts write to PORTLAND CEMENT ASSOCIATION 610 Merchants' Bank Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

However, the 1938 tobacco crop may be affected by the law if there is a 'dry' large crop produced during the coming season. If the crop is as large or larger than the 400,000, 000 pound crop of 1937 the marketing quota provision may go into affect before the opening of the Burley Markets next winter. This will also depend upon a referendum vote of farmers who produce tobacco in 1938. Two thirds of those who vote will need to vote for the quota provision or it will not be effective in the 1938 or 1939 crops. The referendum vote to be taken on March 12th applies to dark tobacco and cotton and does not apply to Burley tobacco. Not for years has there been a winter when everyone has been so busy with outdoor activities. Splendid, of course, but it does mean extra care of one's skin. The modern combination of steam-heated houses, high tension of present day living and outdoor sports, regardless of weather, has a tendency to dry out the skin and rob it of its moist freshness. Paper dryness, large pores, and fine lines about the eyes are apt to make themselves alarmingly evident. So today when you relax for your afternoon nap

Mrs. Johnson Dies At Sharkey Home

Mrs. Mary Johnson died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jennie Lawson at Sharkey, Ky., on Friday, February 25, at the age of 75 years. Burial was made in the Caudill Cemetery. Mrs. Johnson is survived by four sons and three daughters, as well as a large number of grand children.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Penix were Sunday guests of his father, W. W. Penix in Olympia, Sunday.

Mrs. Claude Hazelett and small son Claude Caudill, of Ashland were guests of Mrs. J. L. Nickell, last week.

Eagles Close Season

Eagles Oust Centre

Playing Friday afternoon in the tournament, at Richmond, the Eagles got away to a flying start and piled up a good lead in the first half. It looked like a walk away, but in the final half, Centre opened up or the Eagles let down, and the Colonels drew up within striking distance of the Morehead team. As game ended the Eagles found themselves eking out a slim victory by one point, 36-35.

There was no doubt in the minds of the fans as to the result of the Eagle-Western go, even before the whistle sounded to open the fray. Western had already defeated the Eagles twice by top-heavy scores, and were slated to do it again, coasting. The Eagles took the lead, but were unable to hold it and the Westerners, easily won, going away. That night, they went on to win their seventh straight K. I. A. C. crown, by defeating Murray in the finals.

Gives Heavy Sentences

(Continued From Page One) The judge was given an examining trial on Tuesday, and waiving examination, was released for appearance before the March Grand Jury, under bond of $1,000.00.

Examining trial in the case of Rutherford Hardin and Tackett, charged with breaking windows in the Peoples Hotel, was held Wednesday afternoon.

Baptist Church Work

(Continued From Page One) slightly over $300,000. Last Sunday $45.00 more came in. Friends outside the church are responding in a very generous manner with funds. It is felt by those in charge, that there is little doubt that the entire amount of $300.00 will be raised by the time the work is finished.

The pastor, Mr. Kazee, states that the church is not making a general solicitation of friends outside their membership, but that any help from those who feel impressed with the work the Baptist Church is trying to do will be highly appreciated.

Used Car Drive

(Continued From Page One) manufacturers have taken part. The campaign is timed at the outset of the spring selling season when both new and used cars usually begin to move in greatest volume. Mr. Macaulay said. It is aimed primarily at stimulating the disposal of used cars, rather than dealer hands. Once this is accomplished, a substantial increase in car manufacturing schedules and employment wage earners in the automobile factories is anticipated.

To support the campaign, Mr. Macaulay announced that manufacturers will spend $1,250,000 in newspaper, radio and outdoor advertising and in other promotional campaigns. Two thirds of the advertising budget will be spent in newspapers.

Training School Visits

(Continued From Page One) Kegley, Anna Mae Manning, Wilma Crostwalte, Betty Jean Evans, Mary H. Wood, Mary Evelyn Boyce, Joan Cecil, Doris Jean Back, Nanette Robinson, Frances Burns. This is the third time this year that the Rowan County News has been honored by the teachers in the schools of the county by being asked to demonstrate the work to the pupils of the schools. For the past ten years the teachers of the schools have been making use of the opportunity to give their pupils an insight in the working of one of the major industries by visits to the News plant.

District Tourney

(Continued From Page One) poor showing as one might imagine. They stand fifth in the conference standings, with eight wins and six defeats. Studying the record, it will be seen that the majority of their losses came in the early part of the season, when the team was rounding into form. Several of the losses were by narrow margins of one or two points.

Taking all this into consideration and the added fact that the tournament is being played on the home floor of the Vikings, there is always a chance, in basket ball, for an upset. In this case that is very probable just what it would be, if the Vikings should win.

The junior tournament is likely to provide some fire works, even more likely than the senior tournament. Each school has a fairly well balanced team in the junior ranks, and the little 'uns are expected to furnish a large part of the treat for the fans.

Two of the teams in the senior tournament will take part in the regional, the district champions and the runners-up.

Some fashion authorities are making skirts fifteen inches from the floor this spring. Formal clothes are long, just clearing the floor in the front and definitely touching in the back. Of course the best way to determine the length of your daytime clothes is to choose that which is most becoming to you. Full skirts should be a bit shorter than narrow ones, too, for the best effect.

LISTEN, GENTLEMEN,—If you like a fine American Whiskey, try Paul Jones. It's popular everywhere. MOREHEAD DISPENSARY.

THE CLANCY KIDS

Don't pay to take chances with that size mouth.

Jimmie Wallace

By Beulah Earle

"Listen kid—you ring the bell. I'm with you, see? You ask for the old man and flash that smile at the butler. Tell this Marion guy you hear he's going to build a special plane for Wallace to beat his own record. He likes publicity, and even if he hasn't thought of it, he'll probably go for it.

Instinct told the girl to give only her own name when the butler appeared and she gasped when the manufacturer presently appeared and ushered them into his library. For there, sat, Mont Wallace surrounded by a dozen beautiful women.

Monty came at once to Natalie's side.

"This," he told the manufacturer, "is the young lady, who wrote my story for me. You'd better tell her all, for she'll get it out of you any way."

The sleek, gray haired elderly man promised he would do that, and Jimmy set about at once posing the writer and the plane maker at the library desk.

"Wait," the photographer suddenly spoke. "Where's the woman interest?"

He turned to a gorgeous blond girl of remarkable beauty and demanded that she become a part of the picture.

In the introductions that followed, Natalie learned that this was the stunning daughter of the house, Sunny Marion.

"Her name is Soila," Marion explained, "but she turned out not to be the Sonia type and so we call her Sunny."

Natalie saw at once that the girl had eyes only for Mont Wallace, though she said little and treated the others with quiet courtesy. She was so dignified a creature that Natalie felt quick jealousy of her as though an instinct had warned her the fiercer could not resist her charms.

The story was much as Jimmy had guessed. Marion's company had seen the possibility of capitalizing on Mont's gift. Marion had taken the matter in hand for himself and had rushed agreement through. By good luck and Jimmy's expert hands, the two had another exclusive story but it was not a big smash. The business office would see publicity in it, but it meant big stiff later and they were in on the ground floor, he pointed out.

The two were hurrying back to the office in Jimmy's car.

"Boy did you see that little blonde go for Wallace," Jimmy rambled on. "She'll let him walk over her any minute now. What is there about these aviators?"

Natalie laughed in spite of herself. The boy was uncanny. He had missed nothing in that brief interview.

"I saw," she said. "She's only one of a couple of million women that will be dreaming about Mont Wallace for the next few weeks. It's really too bad for him. Nothing spoils a man so."

"You kind of go for him a little yourself, don't you, kid?"

Natalie, colored helplessly, turned nothing this amazing youth could not guess. She felt a surge of anger at him, but realized that anger was foolish.

"One of the two quillion," she parried. "Let it go at that."

"That afternoon on another assignment they passed Mont Wallace in the Marion girl's handsome car.

Natalie was surprised at the quick slash of pain her jealousy struck through her. "It was not possible that this one man, all the world held so terrifying a power to hurt her by actual action.

And yet the very sight of him, whom she had never seen until the day before, was enough to stir her and to see him in the innocent company of the little blonde beauty was exquisite torture.

Turning quickly to Jimmy Hale, Natalie covered her emotions with and Natalie's heart was too full for the effort at light banter. Mont's eyes came to hers at intervals in a manner that seemed more eloquent than his words. But the eyes mostly on the blushing blond girl with the ashy hair; and she knew that Sunny would find fuel there for the fire of her adoration.

As calmly as she could in the turmoil of her heart, Natalie tried to study the two. In fact, she included herself in the lesson and made a valiant effort to cast up the values that each of the three represented.

VERY LATEST

By Patricia Dow

she looked up to find the blonde Sunny Marion beckoning to her from the big machine she drove.

They sat across from each other in the town's one sporty restaurant, Sunny Marion and Natalie Wade. And they made a picture of contrast.

The daughter of the airplane maker had hair like white ash. She wore no hat, yet the vivid color of her fair complexion was unmarked by the sun. A light-weight white motor coat seemed to emphasize the rounded slimness of her figure.

Natalie had slipped her own small hat from her lustrous dark hair. For that first day at her work she had worn a linen suit of cream and brown. It set off the velvety ivory of her skin and seemed to deepen the color of her large, dark eyes.

She was vastly curious at this sudden attention from Sunny Marion. For the girl had offered not only a lift in her car but had pressed all upon her an invitation to dinner.

"I'm mad about writing," she was saying now. "I'd give anything to do newspaper work. Won't you tell me about it?"

Natalie laughed. She glanced at her small wrist watch, which the man agent had refused to take from her even for a fifteen-minute period.

"You are flattering," she said quickly. "Do you realize that, even if I were to take a job in the newspaper business only about twenty six hours? I haven't the first idea what it's all about."

She told this girl the story of what had happened.

"I read your story this afternoon," the girl told her, "and I was so splendidly interested in you that I could do so well as you have just begun."

"You mean about dining with Mr. Wallace?" Natalie responded. "I think I was just thrilled by everything and I didn't try to do it in newspaper style. I wrote it just as if I were writing to a friend whom I didn't know very intimately."

"And can anyone do that?"

Of course, but then there is another kind of newspaper writing. I made a mess of a piece like that. You're not this girl's kind of a lecturer on it and had to do it over."

They talked on. Natalie liked the lovely Sunny but she was shortly bored. The girl was only making conversation. She had no interest whatever in newswriting. She was mildly interested in Natalie's story. But there was something more than this behind the dinner invitation and the talk.

"I wonder," she heard the girl ask finally. "If I might go with you sometimes on assignments, I would love it and we could use my car."

"Why of course. Any time. That would be very grand for a reporter."

As she spoke Natalie saw a minute look of delight and annoyance cross the other girl's face. Something had happened which was both pleasing and displeasing to Sunny Marion and she had not been able to keep from revealing it.

A moment more and she knew what that something was, for Mont Wallace stood beside the table. He was smiling down at them. He was speaking to them both, asking if they might join them.

Natalie smiled in response but there was a secret meaning in her smile for she knew now why she had been given an invitation to dinner. This gleaming child was jealous of her. She had feared that Monty intended spending the evening with Natalie. She had planned to circumvent the invitation and she had made sure of success as far as she could.

Now Sunny was delighted to see the fiercer once more but chagrined to find that she must share him with this dark girl.

Natalie left most of the conversation at first to Mont and Sunny. The girl was quietly eager for talk
