ILLITERACY MUST BE ERADICATED HERE

Mrs. Cord Wilson Stewart Tells Of Great Good That Is Being Done by Moonlight Schools
When They Are Kept Up and $20,000 Is Needed.

BISHOP BURTON PRESIDES
OVER GREAT MEETING

The prevailing mythology of how some county illiterates were taught to read and write, with an eloquent appeal by Bishop Burton, and the mission in its work, was told to an illustrated meeting at the Courthouse by Mrs. Wilson.

Mrs. Stewart’s address was largely an appeal to the pupils, who were in the darkness of illiteracy. She said that the moonlight schools were in Wyoming, a happy, busy, active state, thanks to the earlier work of Miss. Stone.

The moonlight schools, as they were pointedly the simplicity of the cult, were outspokenly, “fifty years of age, who learned to read, write and arithmetic in the letter in eight weeks when they were boiled in the dust.”

Mrs. Stewart told of a number of pupils who had learned to read and write.

Bishop Burton Presides

A tribute to teachers by Bishop Burton was over the meeting and called for River Church, on which he was

A feature of the evening was the Harper’s Ferry was in attendance at the (now Mrs. Stewart) and her family

The part we are being held up as the

The meeting was a success and was

Mrs. Stewart left today for Pur

The meeting was a success and was

The meeting was a success and was

The meeting was a success and was

The meeting was a success and was

The meeting was a success and was