MRS. STEWART TALKS TO CLARK AUDIENCES

Founder of Moonlight Schools Delivers Two Addresses at Winchester in Illiteracy Campaign.

WINCHESTER, Ky., Dec. 4.—Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart spoke tonight at the opera house to an interested audience of Winchester and Clark County people in behalf of the campaign in Clark County for the eradication of illiteracy. Mrs. Stewart made a splendid address offering plans for the work, an dtelling of the methods employed in Rowan County, where illiteracy has been practically eliminated. She was introduced by Judge R. M. Stevenson, who paid her a high tribute. A number of attractive young women acted as ushers for the meeting. D. L. Pendleton presided and selections were pleasingly rendered by the Winchester Choral Society.

This afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, Mrs. Stewart addressed the teachers of the county at the courthouse and was heard with much interest. A number of other persons interested in the movement were also present. The colored teachers occupied seats at the speaker's left. Prof. E. F. Darnaby presented Mrs. Stewart in a brief introductory speech. She outlined practical plans for the work of teaching moonlight schools and called for volunteer teachers. Saturday a big automobile parade under the auspices of the Sewing Club will be a feature of the campaign.

A big cluster of yellow chrysanthemums was presented to Mrs. Stewart on behalf of some of her admirers by little Miss Kate Pendleton. All the county teachers except three and all the colored teachers volunteered for service. City Superintendent E. F. Darnaby pledged the help of the city schools.
