FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.—Rebecca Gevedon of Ezel represented Morehead State University's Educational Talent Search Program at the National Council of Educational Opportunity Associations' (NCEOA) Seventh Annual National Student Leadership Congress in Washington, D.C., this summer. This program is held annually for high school students participating in the federally funded TRIO programs nationwide.

Gevedon said the experience has helped her get a better understanding of how our government operates. While in the nation's capitol, she joined other TRIO student representatives for a Mock Congress which she describes as "interesting to see." The 17-year-old participated in sponsoring a bill about financial aid. "It wasn't easy deciding who should get the money," she said.

During her trip, Gevedon stayed on the American University campus, rode the Metro to and from destinations and participated in workshops based on the program's theme of community service, diversity awareness and political awareness. While she was there five days, this did not allow enough free time to see everything.

"We had so many scheduled activities but I did meet a lot of new people," Gevedon said, noting that the program included attendees from Hawaii, Puerto Rico and an Indian reservation. Among those places she visited were the White House, the Capitol, Lincoln Memorial and Vietnam Memorial.

While on Capitol Hill, the Morgan County High School senior had the opportunity to visit with members of Congress. Sen. Mitch McConnell arranged for the Kentucky delegation to meet in his office conference room for discussion and photographs.

To encourage the young people to get involved, each delegate volunteered for a community service project. Gevedon spent her time at the Washington Home, a nursing care facility. Even though she has not yet decided on a career choice, she knows it will be doing something where she can "help people."

Graduating from high school is the next step for Gevedon who is working as a cashier in a local grocery store and waiting for school to start.

Gevedon, daughter of Danny and Janise Gevedon, was nominated to be a student representative to the conference by Hillary Lewis, a counselor with MSU's Talent Search Program. "She is a smart girl and this certainly will be an educational advantage for her," Lewis said.

MOREHEAD Ky.---Rick Kelley, musical entertainer and comedian, will appear at Morehead State University's Breckinridge Auditorium on Tuesday, Aug. 13, at 9:15 p.m.

The performance is free and open to the public.

Kelley combines Motown, rhythm and blues favorites, comedy and audience interaction to present what has been described as a "high-powered and fun-packed" evening. He has been voted the top single musical entertainer on college campuses four times, NACA Coffee House Entertainer of the Year in 1994, and Campus Activities Today's 1993 best male performer and 1995 best solo performer.

Recently three of Kelley's original recordings were included in separate "Red Shoe Diaries" episodes which airs on Showtime. Concert-goers may hear songs by such performers as Smokey Robinson, Wilson Pickett, Marvin Gaye and The Temptations when attending one of his shows.

Additional information is available by calling (606) 783-2071.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Power comes from many sources and some Morehead State University students are hoping the power of the sun will help them win the race.

Students in MSU's College of Science and Technology are building a solar electric vehicle for "Sunrayce 97" which will take place next June. During a 10 day period, the car must travel the approximately 1,200 miles from Indianapolis, Ind., to Colorado Springs, Colo.

Sunrayce 97, a biennial collegiate solar car race, is sponsored by the Department of Energy, General Motors Corporation and Electronic Data Systems to promote student interest in developing new technologies. MSU is the only Kentucky school entered in the race.

This is the first time the University has participated in such a venture, according to Rodney Stanley, associate professor of electricity/electronics and faculty adviser. "For this project, the students are putting into practical application all those theories they learned in the classroom."

This has been a non-stop project for the students since the proposal was accepted, Stanley said. "They designed the car, tested materials and worked on securing whatever is needed," he said.

In addition to following predetermined regulations for the actual car which has already been named "Miracle '99," students from several areas are lending their expertise. Looking at the terrain to be covered, design of the car to get the most from solar power and which materials will hold up best in the climate were among the considerations of the various majors. In addition, students in MSU's Department of Human Sciences will design uniforms for the driver and support team.

"The winner will be the car with the fastest time during the entire race," Stanley said. In past races, 45 miles per hour has been the average speed.

Actual building of the car, which began with a prototype, started during Summer I. While the qualifying race isn't until early next year, the students hope to have a showing on campus this fall and plan to host a booth at the State Fair.

"There is still a lot of work to be done," said Brandy Horne, Paintsville senior graphic communications major who is responsible for public relations and fund raising efforts. "We are accepting volunteers to help."

For those who want to give more than their time, contributions may be made to the MSU Foundation, Inc., Horne added. Because the estimated cost of the project is more than $150,000, fundraising plans include allowing individuals to adopt a solar cell, complete with a certificate, for a minimum $30 donation.

Other students who are team leaders for "Miracle 99" are: John Pelfrey, West Liberty junior and industrial technology major; James Banks, Whitesburg sophomore graphics communication major; Shauna McFarland, Dover senior construction and mining major, and Michael Combs, Dwarf senior electricity and electronics major. Dr. Ronald Spangler, associate professor of graphic communications, also is an adviser for the project.

Additional information is available from Stanley at (606) 783-2427.

WEST LIBERTY, Ky.---“You know how when you’re little, people ask you what you want to be when you grow up?” asked Debi Horton. “When I was in the third grade, an American Indian artist visited our class. I don’t remember his name, but he did a painting with colored sand. Something went off in me, and I knew from that moment that I wanted to be an artist.”

No one who knows Debi Horton could ever doubt that an artist is what she has become. A versatile and talented visual artist in the media of pencil, charcoal, acrylics, oil, watercolor, papier mache, and tile, she is in demand as a teacher and guest artist for workshops and residencies. Not only is she a gifted artist in the traditional sense, she is also an artist at storytelling, an artist at humor, and an artist in the living of her own life.

Now, she has completed her first semester as a student at Morehead State University.

But none of it has been easy. “I had a horrible, horrible time in school,” she recalled. Because of undiagnosed dyslexia, “I felt ignorant and backward. I couldn’t do anything else the other kids could do, but I could do art.” High school art teacher Elise Patrick took an interest in Debi and made sure she stayed in school. “She was the only one who took an interest in me, except my mother, who kept at me with a big long stick,” laughed Debi. “And I want you to write that.”

Russell McClanahan, one of the charter Kentucky Heritage Artists, has provided her with much encouragement about her art work; she studied with him for four years. “I have supported myself since then as an artist,” she said, then quickly added, “and I about starved!”

She moved to West Liberty (where she still resides) in 1984, and began working in elementary art for the Morgan County Board of Education. She has been artist in residence at all of the elementary schools in the county and at Woodsbend Boys’ Camp, as well as in various schools in other nearby counties. She regularly conducts workshops for the local Foothills Artists and the Wolfe County Arts Association.

Yet many times she had been told, "You've GOT to go to college." She felt she could not, for she was basically unable to read. But because of situations in both her professional and her personal life, she knew it was time for a change.

Because of her learning disability, the Department of Vocational Rehabilitation offered her a college education if she would go. "It was the challenge of a lifetime," she stated. "I knew I'd be stupid not to go, but I was afraid."

She enrolled at MSU as a full-time student in the 1996 spring semester. She went to her first class on her 39th birthday. "I had convinced myself that I was on the road to success, then I walked into a classroom full of little teenagers with a professor 10 years younger than me. That was intimidating. I had to work hard to maintain my goal, but I made the Dean's list. My professors gave me that special attention that made it worthwhile."

The idea of taking English 101 (Composition I) filled her with trepidation. "I was very afraid of this," she said, yet the class provided her with a second epiphany.

"The first night," she said (at the Licking Valley Extended Campus Center in West Liberty), "the professor gave us a writing assignment about things in a book bag." She found when the class began to share their writing that she hadn't done at all what the other students had done. Instead of listing and describing the items in the book bag, she made up a story about them, which she felt ashamed to read. "When I finished, the teacher, Marta Tomes, stood up, pointed at me, and said, 'YOU are a writer!' Those words were powerful to me. They rang throughout my body for weeks."

Tomes encouraged her to submit a narrative piece she had written for a class assignment to Inscape, MSU's student literary magazine. It was accepted, and went on to win second place in the creative nonfiction category.

In her English assignments as well as in the writing she continues to do on her own, Debi searches through her past and writes about the experiences of her family members, to preserve the stories. Many relate humorous instances involving her grandfather Levi Brandenburg and her own childhood in Lee County.

Debi and her husband Scott Horton have four sons in their family. Scott's son Will Ramer is 17; Debi's son Trevor Combs is 16; and their sons Luther and Dylan Horton are six and four, respectively. Despite her new role as a student, she remains active in her church and in the Foothills Artists, of which she is a board member.

Through the years, Debi has learned to deal with her dyslexia, which is a learning disorder defined as the impairment of the ability to read. "When I was 24 or 25, I saw a TV program on dyslexia, and I had all the symptoms"--Debi has difficulty distinguishing right from left, the words often jump off the page in paisley patterns, and she has a tendency to read things backwards. "I can read 'ambulance' perfectly!" she laughed. And that is how she has always coped, with her ready sense of humor. Her reading skills are now much improved. She's found that wearing sunglasses while reading helps, as does avoiding certain fonts and colored paper.

Debi Horton still doesn't know what she wants to be when she grows up, but she's excited about the future. "Going back to school has opened a new window to the whole world," she says. "I know now that there's more to life than pushing a paint brush."

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Moving from the large city of Columbus, Ohio, to the small Eastern Kentucky town of Denver, 10 minutes outside Paintsville, was quite a change, but for Dee Burton, it was just the beginning. After years without a high school diploma, she earned a General Education Development (GED) certification, returned to college and is now ready to start her third semester at MSU's Big Sandy Extended Campus Center. These changes did not come easily for the single mother of two.

Burton wanted to set an example for her daughters, Michelle, now 18, and Beth, now 16, and work on improving her own life. She knew the only way to do that was to get an education. By hooking a coat hanger to her old black and white television and hanging it out a window, she was able to get KET so she could work on her GED. College was the next step.

Was she nervous? "Scared to death," she said. "I lived in a hollow, I was alone and I didn't have a car." With lots of support from friends and family, she enrolled at Prestonsburg Community College.

While a student at PCC, Burton met Dr. Margaret Lewis, director of the Big Sandy Center, when she was working at the Center during registration.

Dr. Lewis thought highly of Burton's work ethic and her eagerness to help. "I was very impressed," she said. "So I simply asked her when she was coming to Morehead State University," she added, laughing.

It was Dr. Lewis who helped persuade her to come to the center. Burton is now working on her Bachelor of Social Work degree. The advice she has for others going back to school after a few years is simple: "Just don't be afraid."

For the last year-and-a-half, Burton has been working as a workstudy at the center, including 35 hours a week during this summer. She hopes to continue to work in the fall while taking four classes. "The school is great; the instructors are great. It has really helped me come out of my shell."

Dr. Lewis continues to speak highly of Burton, saying people should look up to her. "I have the greatest admiration for her," she said. "She's an example, a role model, an inspirational story."

Burton believes her degree and workstudy will really help prepare her for the work force. Now, when asked what she thinks about her decision to go back to school, she said "it was the best choice I could have ever made."

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Roma Prindle, assistant professor of music at Morehead State University, has been chosen by the Kentucky Institute for International Studies (KIIS) to teach a five-week summer program in Salzburg, Austria, in 1997.

Among the classes scheduled to be taught are courses in vocal literature, opera performance, music history, theory, piano accompanying, chamber music and piano literature. The program also includes opportunities for students to attend concerts in Salzburg and Vienna.

According to Prindle, students do not have to be currently enrolled at a KIIS school in order to qualify for admission to the program. The program will allow students to receive credit towards undergraduate or graduate degrees which will transfer to the student's school.

The deadline for registration is Feb. 1, 1997. Additional information is available from Prindle at (606) 783-2481 or through E-mail at r.prindle@morehead-st.edu.

KIIS, a consortium formed by 12 Kentucky universities and colleges, coordinates study-abroad programs that allows students to examine various aspects of international cultures and gain opportunities for independent learning travel while abroad.

MOREHEAD, Ky. ---Like millions of others nationwide, Morehead State University students are gearing up for a new semester of classes and looking for opportunities to make new friends while learning something new.

Residence halls will open for upperclassmen on Wednesday, Aug. 14, at 8 a.m. with registration for the fall term set for Thursday and Friday, Aug. 15 and 16, from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. Students will be admitted to the tuition/fees paying area in the Crager Room, Adron Doran University Center based on classification and an alphabetical listing.

Registration also will be conducted at the University's extended campus centers during the same two days: Ashland, Aug. 15, 10 a.m.-7 p.m., and Aug. 16, 10 a.m.-4 p.m.; Big Sandy and Licking Valley as well as the Appalachian Graduate Consortium, Aug. 15, 8 a.m.-7 p.m. and Aug. 16, 8 a.m.-4 p.m.

Students may register for classes at Maysville, Mt. Sterling and Whitesburg on Aug. 15, from 5 to 7 p.m. only. In Jackson, the hours are 4 to 7 p.m. on Aug. 15 only.

All MSU classes, including evening and off-campus, begin on Monday, Aug. 19.

Entering freshmen will move into the residence halls on Monday, Aug. 12. On the agenda for the newcomers is an orientation program, entitled "First Steps to Success" which begins at 7 p.m. that day and continues through Wednesday, Aug. 14.

The program is designed to prepare new students for college life, according to Madonna Weathers, director of Student Development. During the three days, students will hear from several motivational speakers, complete an entrance survey, have their I.D. made and complete the business portion of the registration process.

Before hitting the textbooks, students may want to make new friends and renew old acquaintances at some fun events. The lineup includes: Aug. 12, College Carnival Challenge, Fields Lawn, 5-11 p.m.; Aug. 13, entertainer Rick Kelley, Button Auditorium, 8 p.m.; Aug. 14, Laser Storm, Button Drill Room, 4-10 p.m., and Aug. 14, comedian Wil, Button Auditorium, 9:15 p.m. The entertainment, which is free to MSU students with a valid I.D. card, will continue throughout the year with a variety of programs guaranteed to provide comic relief.

An annual event, the University-wide street dance and ice cream fest is slated for Sunday, Aug. 18, from 8 until 11 p.m.

All students will have the opportunity for cultural enrichment as the new year progresses. The Department of Music has scheduled numerous faculty and student recitals; the Department of Art and Kentucky Folk Art Center will offer exhibits, and theatre students have scheduled five performances for the coming year.

For the sports enthusiast, there are football, volleyball and men's and women's basketball games to be enjoyed from the sideline. If it's participation one desires, there are intramural sports that include billiards, badminton, softball, horseshoes and bowling.

Colleges also are a place to hone one's leadership skills. MSU offers fraternities and sororities, honor societies and the Student Government Association which are all looking for new members.

Students making a return visit to campus will see the newly-renovated Lappin Hall which is now open for classes, a new entrance area in the Camden-Carroll Library, and for the health conscious, a new Wellness Center will be opening in early September.

As the semester moves along, the University will host students' relatives at Family Weekend, Sept. 26-29, and former students for Homecoming, Oct. 25-27.

For those who would like to be a part of MSU's fall schedule and have not yet registered, MSU's Office of Admissions may be reached by calling toll-free 1-800-585-6781.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---The photography of David A. Gilmore and Daniel V. Overturf of Murphysboro, Ill., will be on display in the gallery, Claypool-Young Art Building, on the Morehead State University campus from Aug. 12-Sept. 27.

Gallery hours are 8 a.m. until 4 p.m., weekdays. There is no charge for viewing.

Art lovers will have an opportunity to meet the photographers at a reception on Thursday, Sept. 5, from 7 to 9 p.m. Earlier in the day, the University's guests will be discussing their work at a gallery talk at 3:30 p.m.

The exhibition will include photos from Gilmore's interest in cars. "All the people pictured are amateur builders who create their cars solely for their own passions."

Gilmore received his Master of Fine Arts degree in photography and a Bachelor of Arts degree in philosophy from Ohio University at Athens. A participant in more than 90 exhibitions and workshops, he is currently an associate professor in the Department of Cinema and Photography at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale

Overturf's work includes a series of studio shots as well as small town and rural locations. Shown in the photographs are scenes "created by objects left behind, casually placed or created after natural forces," following flooding of the Mississippi River and along the Ohio River.

Also an associate professor at SIUC, Overturf received his M.F.A. degree in printmaking and his B.A. degree in photography from Southern Illinois. He has participated in more than 45 exhibitions and has published magazine and journal articles.

Additional information on the exhibit is available from MSU's Department of Art at (606) 783-2766.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Illusionist Tom DeLuca will bring his show to Morehead State University's Button Auditorium on Wednesday, Aug. 21, at 9:15 p.m.

The performance is free and open to the public.

Described as a hypnotist and an "imaginist," DeLuca began his career in entertainment in an unusual fashion.

After earning a master's degree from Sangamon State University in Springfield, Ill., DeLuca started working as a therapist in psychology and appearing before local civic groups. A businessman, after seeing him perform, encouraged him to become a full-time entertainer.

From these beginnings, DeLuca moved through the nightclub scene and Chicago's Second City to the college circuit. His show, which mixes stand-up comedy with audience participation, is considered one of the most popular acts on the NACA circuit.

DeLuca was named College Entertainer of the Year by the National Association for Campus Activities (NACA). His campus visit is being sponsored by MSU's Student Government Association and Student Activities Council. Additional information is available by calling (606) 783-2071.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University has announced that Shannon Perry of Frenchburg is the first recipient of the Lindsay and Hazel Ellington Scholarship.

Perry, daughter of James Perry, is a 1996 graduate of Menifee County High School. She finished with a 3.87 grade point average which ranked her fourth in the graduating class of '96. At MSU, Perry plans to major in early elementary education with an emphasis in K-4 grades.

The Ellington Scholarship is available to those majoring in education or related fields. Freshman candidates must have graduated in the top 10 percent of their class while upperclassman must have maintained at least a 3.25 g.p.a. (on a 4.00 scale) at MSU. All candidates must be graduates of accredited high schools in Bath, Rowan or Menifee counties.

Valued at $500, the scholarship is a one-year award. Successful candidates may apply for reconsideration.

The scholarship was established by Arye Ellington Dethmers in memory of her parents. Dethmers, an MSU alumnus, is one of the newest members of the MSU Foundation board of trustees.

Applications and additional information on scholarship and grant programs are available from the Office of Admissions, MSU, Morehead, KY 40351-1689. The toll-free number is 1-800-585-MSU1 (6781).

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Getting physically fit is the plan at Morehead State University this fall as students, as well as faculty, staff and retirees schedule exercise time in their daily routine.

The University Wellness Center will formally open in early September and personnel have already been selected to provide leadership and guide newcomers along the path to success. Dr. Dayna Brown, associate professor of health, physical education and recreation, has assumed the additional responsibility of serving as the Center's director, with Jane Kelly, a former graduate assistant in exercise science, as the coordinator.

Dr. Brown, who owned her own fitness center for more than 10 years, is certified by the American College of Sports Medicine. She received an A.B. degree in physical education and health and Master of Arts in HPER from MSU and earned an Ed.D. degree in exercise physiology from the University of Kentucky.

A native of Fleming County, she and her husband William D. Brown, are parents of two sons: Rian, an MSU sophomore, and Justin, a junior at Fleming County High School.

Kelly, daughter of Lake and Martha Kelly of Flemingsburg, earned a bachelor's degree in advertising and public relations from MSU in 1994 and completed a master's degree in exercise science earlier this year. She has worked in cardiac rehabilitation at the Morehead Clinic and was employed at the Toyota Fitness Center in Georgetown.

"Jane's work experience, educational background and dedication to the standards in our profession will support our efforts to provide a professional, safe and enjoyable facility," said Dr. Brown. "She brings enthusiasm and a love for MSU which will be a tremendous asset to the opening of our new facility and wellness program."

The staff is currently in the process of scheduling and conducting physical assessments while waiting for the equipment to be installed, according to Dr. Brown. "After an assessment and completion of the enrollment packet, members will attend a half-hour orientation program to learn to use the equipment, then train at their leisure," she said.

(MORE)

An all adult facility, students may join at no additional charge. All faculty and staff members are eligible for membership at a predetermined charge based on salary. Spouses and retirees pay $60 per year.

"After an assessment, each member will receive an exercise prescription that is based on that assessment score, previous experience and individual goals," Brown added. "We are unique in that everyone who works out will be assessed and given a program," she said. For those already in an exercise program, the staff will offer suggestions to help each person achieve their goals or reach their achievement level.

There are incentives to encourage everyone to strive for a healthy lifestyle, Dr. Brown noted. The University has established an Employee Wellness Incentive Program that includes: placing dollars in a Flexible Spending Account for employees who improve on the second annual assessment test, and paying half of the next annual membership fee for participating in the Wellness Center on a regular basis for 100 days during the year.

In the planning stage since 1990, the new wellness facility will house an exercise area which will accommodate up to 35 individuals at one time, assessment lab, conference room and three offices. Equipment available will include: 16 Trotter selectorized strength training stations, treadmills, stair climbers, semi-recumbent bikes, Concept II rowers, transport and Biodex. Graduate assistants will assist individuals with their program free of charge to all members.

Phase II of the Wellness Center is scheduled for completion in early summer of 1997. Included in this phase will be a covered walking track, tennis courts, aerobic room and a classroom for wellness type activities.

The Center will be open Monday-Thursday, 7 a.m.-10 p.m.; Friday, 7 a.m.-6 p.m.; Saturday, 7:30 a.m.-noon, and Sunday, 4-10 p.m. Additional information is available by calling (606) 783-5282 or 783-2083.

OPEN HOUSE AT MSU'S SUPPORT SERVICES

Morehead State University's Office of Support Services (formerly Office of Purchasing) recently held an "Open House" to familiarize patrons with its new facilities at 606 West Main Street. Charlotte Dowdy, right, support services director, and her staff talked with more than 100 visitors that stopped by the gathering. Among the guests were Dr. Hilary O. Iwu, MSU associate professor of education, and his wife Michaelina, an MSU graduate student. Later this year, Support Services will make provisions for members of the public wishing to purchase property items declared surplus by MSU.

MOREHEAD, Ky.----Construction has started on a forty-foot bell tower on Morehead State University's campus which University officials anticipate will become a landmark for generations to come.

MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin will recommend that the Board of Regents name the tower for Lexington philanthropist Mrs. Lucille Caudill Little and her late husband W. Paul Little. "Mrs. Little, a native of Rowan County, has generously pledged to pay for most of the tower's construction costs," Dr. Eaglin said.

In 1994, MSU received a $1 million gift from Little, the largest from any individual in the University's history. "The idea for the bell tower grew out of discussions with Mrs. Little," Dr. Eaglin said. "She wanted a way to honor her husband and to instill in future generations what she describes as the essentials of life--justice, love, service and wisdom. These words will be inscribed on the tower," the president added.

The bell tower, to be located in front of Camden-Carroll Library adjacent to University Boulevard, is the first phase of a proposed redesign of the central campus which was severely damaged in the May 18, 1995, storm. "We envision four terraces coming down from the library with the tower on the first level," Dr. Eaglin said. Also proposed is an amphitheater below the tower between University Boulevard and University Street.

Contractor for the project is Pack's, Inc., of Morehead. The bell tower was designed by Joseph and Joseph Architects of Louisville, with C. Merrill Moter as principal architect. Joseph and Joseph is the firm which designed the original nine campus buildings which are now on the National Register of Historic Places.

"We are pleased that the bell tower, which will be constructed in red brick and limestone, will replicate the Collegiate Gothic architectural style of those earlier buildings," Dr. Eaglin said. "As we move into a second century of higher education in Rowan County, the bell tower project affords us an exciting opportunity to create a new landmark," he added.

In addition to Mrs. Little's gift, the MSU Foundation, Inc., will provide some construction funds and the architect's fees, while the University will finance the site preparation costs and for equipping the tower with a programmable electronic carillon and clock system. Completion of the tower is anticipated before the end of the year.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---The 1996 graduating class from Morehead State University's Veterinary Technology Program achieved a 100 percent passage rate after taking the Veterinary Technician National Examination.

All 15 members of the class, who sat for the licensing exam in the early summer, earned passing scores, according to Dr. Lee Tyner, coordinator of the program. This summer the students are completing preceptorships, which is the final requirement prior to receiving their degrees.

"We are very proud of their accomplishment," Dr. Tyner said. "They now are qualified to be licensed as veterinary technicians in most states. A few states have some additional requirements," he added.

Completing the exam were: Ralph Adams of Salyersville, Brandi Bella of Danville, W.Va., Cynthia Broughman of Wurtland, Kristi Asher Chastain of Salem, Ind., Todd Dials of Warfield, Tabitha Evans of Huntington, W.Va., Heidi Gardner of Morehead, Tammy Hacker of Longwood, Fla., Judy Horsley of Paris, Cheri Lievanos of Versailles, Amy Loftus of Louisville, Georgi Perry of Morehead, Margaret Schoenstra of Louisa, Kimberly Spears of Feds Creek and Janet Studebaker of Pierceton, Ind.

Graduates of MSU's Veterinary Technology Program are qualified to assist in all areas of veterinary work. The coursework is designed to ensure adequate skills in clinical practice and laboratory testing in such areas as surgical assisting, anesthesia, radiology, clinical pathology and other veterinary medicine-related practices.

Graduates of the two-and-a-half year program earn the Associate of Applied Science degree.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Starting next year, city and county government, the health department, county school board and library board will divide at least $7,200 in new tax revenue because of the recent surplus property sale by Morehead State University.

The institution sold more than $833,000 worth of land in the city of Morehead and in rural Rowan County. The property included former faculty/staff housing units on McClure Circle, North Wilson Avenue and Fifth Street as well as a former mobile home park east of Morehead on U.S. 60.

Based on tax rates used for 1995 property taxes, the city will receive at least $1,100 each year on the city parcels and the county and other taxing agencies will split at least $6,200 annually.

"Actually, the new revenue could be higher by then as new owners make improvements to the various parcels, especially the houses on McClure Circle," said MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin. "Returning this real estate to the public tax rolls will be beneficial to everyone and that is one of the major reasons we are so pleased with the results of the sale."

MSU's net proceeds from the property sale, expected to be about $750,00, will be invested in the "Fund for Excellence" endowment. Interest earnings from the fund are used for enhancement of academic programs.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Jack Henson, a Morehead State University assistant professor of information science, will serve as interim chair of the Department of Information Sciences for the 1996-97 academic year.

Henson fills a vacancy created with the resignation of the former chair, Dr. Marvin Albin, who accepted an administrative post at Dakota State University, Sioux Falls, S.D.

"We appreciate the fact that Jack Henson is willing to accept this leadership role," said Dr. John C. Philley, MSU executive vice president for academic affairs. "He has more than 20 years of management experience to draw upon in this new administrative role."

Henson came to MSU in 1969 as director of the Adron Doran University Center and University Center Services and taught part-time for several years. In 1987, he joined the business faculty full-time.

He holds the B.A. degree from Arkansas State College, the B.S.E. degree and M.S.E. degree from Arkansas State University as well as the M.H.E. degree from MSU.

Prior to coming to MSU, Henson was assistant director of the Carl R. Reng Center at ASU. He is active in the National Business Educators Association and its southern and state affiliates as well as the International Society of Business Educators.

Henson is an associate with the state Department of Education's Region Seven Service Center and is one of MSU's state educators with the Kentucky Teacher Intern Program. He also is a frequent presenter at professional meetings.

A member of the Kentucky-West Virginia District of Optimist International, he is a past distinguished president of the Morehead Club and a past distinguished lieutenant governor of Zone I. Active in the Clearfield Baptist Church, he is a past president of the MSU Quarterback Club.

Henson and his wife, Nancy, are the parents of a son, David.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Country music star Tracy Lawrence will headline a concert on Thursday, Oct. 3, at Morehead State University's Academic-Athletic Center. The concert, which begins at 8 p.m., also includes Tracy Byrd and newcomer Mila Mason.

Tickets will go on sale Tuesday, Sept. 3, at $20 for the general public and $15 for full-time MSU students. They are available at the following locations: Downtown Video in Mt. Sterling; County Market in Maysville; Martin's Department Store in Jackson and Morehead; MSU Extended Campus Centers in Ashland, Prestonsburg and West Liberty; Video Fantastic and Main Street Music in Morehead, and MSU's Adron Doran University Center. All seating is reserved.

Hailing from Foreman, Ark., Lawrence became a quick success upon his arrival to Nashville in 1991. His first two albums went platinum, spawned several number one hits, and earned him the 1993 Academy of Country Music's Top New Male Vocalist Award.

Since then, his five albums have sold more than five million copies and produced 11 chart-topping hits. His newest album, Time Marches On, is his first studio release in almost two years.

Byrd, a native of Vidor, Texas, also has produced several number one hits to go along with a platinum selling album. Mason, who is from Dawson Springs, Ky., plans to release her first album in early September.

The concert is sponsored by MSU's Student Government Association. Additional information is available by calling (606) 783-2071.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---A Morehead State University faculty member has received national recognition for his work at WMKY, member supported public radio from the MSU campus.

Dr. John Vincent Modaff, associate professor of speech and communications, was awarded Best News/Commentary in the radio division of the American Legion Auxiliary's 1996 "Heart of America" National Media Awards.

His commentary, "Why not install a B-chip," which aired originally on WMKY in March 1996, dealt with the absurdity of various state and federal laws and the need for what he called a "b-chip." The brain chip, according to Dr. Modaff, could provide much-needed common sense in humans and would be a technological improvement over the v-chip. The v-chip, now required in the manufacture of TV sets, assists parents in protecting children from programming they deem objectionable by providing the option to block the availability of certain channels.

"Heart of America" judges cited Dr. Modaff's grasp of the issues in making the award.

The "Heart of America" awards are designed to recognize "exceptional journalistic work which combines creativity with integrity," according to the American Legion Auxiliary.

Tom Lewis, WMKY news director said Dr. Modaff's work is an asset to the station, noting that his commentaries have aired for more than 255 consecutive weeks on the station. "Many of our listeners look forward to John's commentaries," Lewis said, noting that Dr. Modaff is one of several regular volunteer commentators who donate their time and talent to the station.

Pleased with the recognition, Dr. Modaff said, "The generous support of WMKY listeners makes a great honor like this possible."

Dr. Modaff joins journalists from ABC News, the San Francisco Examiner, Glamour Magazine and the Richmond Times-Dispatch in receiving the awards this year. Past recipients include journalists from Life Magazine, Newsweek, Family Circle, and National Public Radio.

WMKY 90.3 FM is an affiliate of National Public Radio (NPR) and Public Radio International (PRI), and features news and information programs, classical and adult alternative music, and specialty programming.

Aug. 31, 1996

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Two Morehead State University faculty members in the Department of Music will present a voice recital on Thursday, Sept. 12, at 8 p.m. in Duncan Recital Hall.

Dr. Ricky Little, baritone, and Roma Prindle, soprano, both assistant professors of music, will offer a program of scenes from Italian and American operas. They will be accompanied by Mary Ellen McNeill, staff accompanist in the department.

Now in his second year at MSU, Dr. Little teaches voice and singer's diction. Prindle joined the faculty in 1993 and teaches voice and directs the ensemble, OperaWorks.

The program will feature selections from Rossini's comic opera, "The Barber of Seville," including Figaro's aria, "Largo al factotum;" Rosina's cavatina, "Una voce poco fe;" the duet, "Dunque io son," and excerpts from Verdi's dramatic masterpiece, "Rigoletto." The program will conclude with a staged version of the farce "The Telephone," by Gian Carlo Menotti.

The concert is free and open to the public.

Additional information is available by calling MSU's Department of Music at (606) 783-2473.
