Injunction Planned Against Annexation

West Morehead Resident Circulate Petition Opposing Incorporation

A petition, to be attached to an injunction in Rowan Circuit Court, is being circulated by West Morehead citizens protesting against incorporation into the city limits, it was learned today.

James C. Clay who has been employed as attorney for those opposing annexation, said today that the injunction would be filed shortly. It has not been determined when Judge D. B. Caudill will rule on the matter, but ten days must elapse between the filing of the injunction and the hearing.

The residents, opposing annexation, are expected to claim that the incorporation works not to the best interests nor the best interests of the city of Morehead. Reliable reports from the section incorporated indicate that sentiment on the matter is well divided.

Those favoring incorporation will probably point out to Judge Caudill that West Morehead directly joins the city limits without any intervening spaces where no buildings have not been constructed, that the annexation would furnish them with street lighting, sidewalks, fire and police protection and possible free mail delivery and that it is to their best interests and also to the advantage of Morehead to incorporate.

According to statutes read at city council meetings, prior to the incorporation, the decision of Judge D. B. Caudill will be final in the matter. In this particular case there is no appeal.

If West Morehead is incorporated probably the first utility to be affected citizens there will be natural gas, according to W. C. Ely, manager of the Municipal Gas System.

Grand Jury Gives Final Court Report

Ask That Work Be Done On Road From Farmers To Sharkey

The complete report of the Rowan County grand jury rendered at open court today is as follows: Hon. D. B. Caudill, Circuit Judge.

The Grand Jury for final report represent that we have been in session eight days and present in open court 42 indictments. We have devoted extra time to an investigation, on conditions generally and have the following recommendations to make:

First: That the jail which is now being constructed should be completed inside as well as out—by that we recommend that the County immediately file a request or project with the WPA whereby the jail will be completely torn out and of the new enclosure and new floors and cell blocks put in to go with the new outside walls.

Third: We further recommend that the State Police force be investigated as to the building of the laws and of their own association with persons of bad reputation and with special attention to the subject of sobriety.

Fourth: It has come to our attention that there is about to be erected some character of building on the northwest corner of the Court House square. This, to the mind of the Grand Jury, is a very objectionable thing to be done. We also find in the report of the Grand Jury of the March Term, 1938 protest was made. In view of the approach to the college campus and buildings, this would be a very unsightly and unnecessary obstruction and if a building is necessary, the taxpayers would be much better pleased to undergo the expense of buying a small corner lot for the purpose rather than to suffer the destruction and spoliation of our Court House square.

Fifth: There is a road between Sharkey and Farmers very much in need of repairs and we suggest that those in authority try to enter into WPA assistance for the purpose of improving this road.

Nothing further coming before the jury requiring our attention, we respectfully submit this as our final report with thanks to the Court and officers for their help during our sittings.

Respectfully submitted,
P. L. Alderman, Foreman.

Squirrel Season Opens In State Friday, July 1

Game Warden Bob Muters Points Out Violation Of Game Laws

The squirrel season will legally open in Kentucky July 1, Robert Muters, game warden, announced today, clarifying an issue which has been in doubt because of the manner in which a new law passed by the last legislature took effect. Information had been put out previously through the local press that the squirrel season would not open until the first of August.

Mr. Muters pointed out that the law limits for squirrels is six a day. Permits must be secured by the owner of the land on which the hunting is done.

The local department is planning an intensified effort to nab all persons violating the hunting laws during the season. Mr. Muters stated that squirrels are more plentiful in Rowan County this year than they have been for many seasons and that many hunters have little claim on killing the limit. All hunters approached by the warden will be asked to present their hunting licenses and will also be searched for possession of squirrels they have exceeded the legal limit.

Hereafter it was permissible to kill 12 squirrels each day.

Old Age Pensions Booming On Happy; Average In Ohio Is $23.04 While Kentuckians Receive Only $9.74, Statistical Report Discloses

Barkley Supporters Lay Claim To Every Congressional District

The Kentucky Senatorial campaign is decidedly warming up, with both Governor Chandler and Senator Barkley having officially opened their speechmaking.

The general sentiment of leading politicians throughout the State seems now to be that who will win, but just how big Senator Barkley's majority will be. Barkley leaders claim they will carry every Congressional District in Kentucky, and their claims at this time do not seem very far-fetched. There is no question but that Governor Chandler is in difficulty everywhere. He will lose the majority of the farm vote and the greater portion of the bar vote in Kentucky. With the up-standing voter Senator Barkley's main strength seems to be that the majority of Democrats can see no reason why they should support a man out of office who has reached heights never before achieved by a Kentuckian for the nation's capital in order to satisfy the personal ambition of one man.

Every since the campaign started Barkley justifying from every poll and method of judging public sentiment, has gained ground. Chandler leaders said two months ago, "This will change the Government or started his vigorous speaking and hand-shaking in every county. Every poll still shows Barkley leading by 2 to 1 or better.

So far, Senator Barkley has out-governed the Governor, Chandler's speeches, in which he says in one breath that is not against the President and in the next criticizes the President's administration, have gone over with the people. Rowan County over every county where Chandler has made a speech are that the Governor has lost ground.

Barkley adherents are making no bones about the fact that they will welcome Governor Chandler to return to Rowan County for they feel that it will be a help to their campaign.

Chandler supporters at the outset here claimed Rowan County by a 600 majority. Today if a vote were

Out-Hitting Hitler, Out-Muscling Mussolini, Out-Beating Huey Long

In the autumn of 1935 a man from Mt. Sterling came to Morehead as president of the Morehead State Teachers College. The citizens of the town, were at first dubious, but they agreed tacitly to give the man a chance to prove his worth, and with that aim in view, they withheld judgement.

In May of 1936 that man was installed as president at a ceremony at which practically every man and woman in the community took part. It was an auspicious beginning of a "reign" that thus far has not turned out satisfactorily for either the community or the college. A reign that rapidly developed from a conciliatory attitude into the attitude of the dictator, the Hitler, the Mussolini, the Huey Long. In fact, before the summer of 1937 was over, students were referring to the man from Mt. Sterling, as Adolph Hitler, himself.

For the past two years the Morehead State Teachers College has been treated to a spectacle that is unsurpassed for absurdity in American history. The citizens of Morehead have been given an opportunity to learn just what it means to live in Germany, or in Italy or under the reign of Huey Long.

For the present administration at the Morehead State Teachers College has been "Out-Hitting Hitler, Out-Muscling Mussolini, Outbeating Huey Long."

Out-Hitting Hitler
This is free America, or so we like to believe. For two years we have been forced to observe a development that would put Adolph Hitler to shame. Hitler, has bent his enmity toward the destruction of the Jew. The present administration, with one object in view, has apparently sought to subject the Americans to their dictatorial rule.

In 1935 when the present president of the Morehead State Teachers College took over the reins of the College, there was a distinct attitude on the part of the faculty, the students and the towns people, of unstinted loyalty. The new administration had the well wishes of every man, woman and child in this community. They had hoped for a president big enough to be above petty politics, broad enough to vision an institution based on a sound educational foundation, a man capable of laying aside politics and of building on a solid foundation of educational integrity. They were not interested in his personal politics. They cared not whether he was a Democrat or a Republican. Their offer of cooperation was honest and hearty and unselfish. Their welcome was sincere. They were determined to give the new president a chance to make good.

All dictators are moral cowards. They fear themselves, fear their ability, fear for their power. They become dictators chiefly for the reason that they fear the citizens. Consequently they seek by force to curb that freedom which is ever a threat to their well-being.

The signs of this fear began to show themselves early. The "Board of Strategy" came into being. This one and that one, faculty members, students, business people were singled out as being against the administration. The Board of Strategy advised that they be gotten rid of, that they be curbed, that they be put out of business. The administration and for two years the effort to rig the Rowan County News out of business has been going on. Students have been advised "not to ride in the car of the editor of the News," because he is a despicable character. Oh, no, not by the president, but the advice was given none the less. The editor of the News was openly accused of causing three football players to leave college, "in order to tear up the football team." Why? The News had not at that time opposed the administration in any way. They had sought during that time period to cooperate with the college. Why then was it so important that the News be put out of business?

It is possible that the News might have uncovered some of the pensions, some of the gravy, some of the methods in use, to maintain the Man from Mt. Sterling at the head of the Morehead State Teachers College? Is it possible that the Board of Strategy recognized the danger in the blinding, the pitiless light of publicity? Be that as it may, the Rowan County News did not go out of business, nor will it go out.

Faculty members have apparently not been exempt from the activities of the Board of Strategy. Striking out, not boldly as becomes a man, but under cover, characters have been questioned, friendships have been ruined, the poison of suspicion has been inoculated into the very veins of the Morehead State Teachers College. Who has been incited?

It is possible that the Board of Strategy believed that by such methods they could cause the retirement of certain members of the faculty, who were considered to be in the way of the powers that be. Is it possible that the president of the College feared for his job to such an extent that the board felt it necessary to install suspicion and create dissension among the members of his own faculty?

Business men of the community, with but few exceptions have felt the iron hand of Hitler, hitting them in their most vital spot. The business men will recall the speech made by the then new president in which he stated that he had no patience with the idea of making the college into a merchandising mart, and promised them that he would personally guarantee that all such selling would stop and the business returned to the business men of Morehead. Has it stopped? Far from it and quite the opposite.

New lines have been put in. New merchandise has been purchased until the bustle place in Morehead from a merchandising viewpoint is the Morehead State Teachers College. Again Hitler was out-hitting.

The business men of Morehead have always been ready and not only willing but anxious to cooperate with the college. They have the right to expect the college to cooperate with them. Instead of cooperation, they have met competition and competition that is so marvellously unfair that there can be no excuse for it.

At the close of the last semester an affair was widely advertised that points the question. A large number of students were required to purchase four meal tickets during the last week, before they were allowed to take examinations or receive their credits. The students stated that they were unable to eat the food prepared in the cafeteria and therefore had eaten down town. Yet these students, any of them who were supplied with funds, were forced to buy tickets or else speaking of Out-Hitting Hitler, who could ask for more.

We seriously doubt the legality of the act which forced the students to buy these tickets. We certainly doubt the same logic that would prompt an act requiring any student, whether he lived in a hall or not, to buy something he did not want, or could not use, merely to make the cafeteria show a profit. To our mind there is but one way to conduct any business, and this should apply to the college cafeteria as well as to the Blue Moon, the Eagles Nest, Anon N' Andy, the Silver Key or the Leader. Serve food that the students can use, in a place that is subjected to the same rigorous inspection to which other public eating places are subjected, at prices that are as reasonable as students can obtain elsewhere, and the cafeteria will not run at a loss and there will be no need of forcing students to eat there.

We could go on, and on, but why? The point is that there are hundreds of instances that might be cited, of Hitlerian rampant.

Again in furtherance of that dictatorial attitude, whose very foundation is fear, the Board of Strategy has apparently evolved a political program, that strongly parodies of that bipartisanship the Governor has so strongly criticized. The President of the Morehead State Teachers College, who at one time ran for the nomination to the office of State Superintendent on the Republican Ticket, is muscling in on Democratic politics to such an extent that he is recognized as one of the Board of Strategy in the Chandler Campaign forces. To understand this it should be remembered that the Board of Strategy of which the president is a member, has promised to carry this section of Kentucky for the Chandler forces, in exchange for which they, so it is rumored have been promised to be maintained in the seats they occupy.

Muscling in and out-muscling Mussolini. To further the scheme he was appointed to the purgation board, a position for which he is reported to have failed to qualify after the attention of the people was called to it by an article in the Rowan County News. Frank Packer, the College president, so far forgetting his position as to enter into partisan politics, and partisan politics on the opposite side of the political fence.

Just this week he is reported to have solicited leading Democrats supporting Governor Chandler to attend the meeting at Paris Monday night and to have sat in on a Chandler Democratic meeting Sunday night.

Republicans as well as Democrats resent this political attitude on the part of a college president. If it is possible of maintaining the dignity of his position he is unfit to be a president. We recall two previous presidents, one a Republican and one a Democrat, neither of whom so far forgot himself as to indulge in petty-fogging political methods to retain their positions.

Yes, this vicious little circle. This Unholy Three, have been Out-hitting Hitler, Out-Muscling Mussolini, Out-Beating Huey Long. It is time for the citizens of Morehead to wake up. Kentucky is awoken to the situation, a situation that will result eventually in disaster to the only state institution in Eastern Kentucky.

There is one way in which to do this. Since this vicious little circle boasts that if Governor Chandler carries Rowan county and surrounding counties, they will be continued in their positions of vaunted power it is clear that a vote for Barkley is a vote against such continuation of waste and extravagance in the guise of economy. When you cast your vote remember this:

A vote for Barkley is a vote of endorsement for President Roosevelt. A vote for Chandler is a vote for Rabb, Simple, Lane. Choose your bet between them.

TODAY & TOMORROW
A world's coming into general use. It has never had occasion to be used until lately. The word is "billion." Nobody can really grasp the idea of a billion. It's beyond the imagination of most of us. We don't understand when we read that for or five billion dollars are spent for Relief or that the National Debt is close to 40 billions.

In America, a billion is ten thousand times ten thousand multiplied ten times. In Europe they call that amount a "million," and to them a billion means million millions. Our billion is big enough, though. If anyone had started to pick up sea shells at the rate of one a second when the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock, in December, 1620, and still kept at it day and night, he'd have a billion shells by next Christmas. Your front door has four times as many as you keep it wound, it will tick a billion times in about 80 years.

A billion dollars, a lot of money. It takes five billions a year to run the U. S. Government, outside of Relief and Recovery projects, which have cost us more than three billions a year since 1933.

PLUG
The Duke of Devonshire died recently. He would have been a great personage in his own right, even if he had not descended from one of the oldest families of British nobility. The family name of the Duke of Devonshire is Cavendish, and the name of the Duke's ancestor, Sir William Cavendish, who was one of Oliver Cromwell's aides, was imprinted on the front of a plug tobacco.

Sir William hit upon the simple, practical way of making it easy to use. He newly introduced a way by moistening tobacco leaves with molasses and pressing it into plugs. That was the origin of chewing tobacco, which came into wide use among Cromwell's soldiers in the English Civil War. Matches had not been invented and clay pipes were easily broken in the field, but plug tobacco could be carried easily, chewed if one had no pipe, sliced and rubbed for smoking purposes.

The popular kinds of smoking tobacco which we in America call "cut plug" are still known in England as "cut Cavendish," perpetuating the inventor's name.

idea of changing the Government's system of bookkeeping so that it will show Uncle Sam so deep "in the red." The idea is to set up a big trust to offset the expenditures and the public debt, as if Government were a business concern.

The proposed trust, which that scheme is that nobody can put an honest cash value on the things Uncle Sam has been spending so many billions for the expenditure. It's a good deal of fact-faciling of the general landscape, we've got a lot of new roads, bridges, battle ships, schoolhouses, and public buildings, but we couldn't realize on them if we wanted to. DOGS
St. Bernards are the dogs of the St. Bernard who will be grieved to learn that they have been banished from their Alpine haunts. In the Himalayas mountains will snowbound travelers crossing the dangerous mountain pass between Switzerland and Italy be rescued by these great beasts, trained to find them and lead them to the shelter of the hospice which the Brothers of St. Augustin have maintained for more than 900 years.

Innumerable lives have been saved by these dogs, but last Winter two of them attacked and killed a little girl who had become separated from her parents, and the order of banishment followed. Tunnels and improved modern transportation have made winter travel through the Alpine passes unnecessary, and in Summer the work of the St. Bernards dogs are trained is not needed.

So the picturesque and romantic St. Bernard dogs are on the way to Tibet, under escort of an aged brother of the order.

MARX
The early Socialists, Owen, Fourier and others, taught that there should be no class distinctions. Karl Marx, the German whose book "Das Kapital" is the Bible of modern Socialism, taught that there were two classes into which all mankind naturally divided, the laboring workers and the bourgeoisie. He taught, there was eternal and un-reconcilable war.

That, of course, is not true and never was true. But it has become Gospel Truth to hundreds of millions. On that false doctrine of the whole Communist movement has been founded. The Marx theory is held by many American workers. The International Workers of the World and the modern committee for Industrial Organization are based upon the Marx principle of class war.

The absurdity of the Marx doctrine was pointed out recently by Dr. Robert A. Millikan, one of the world's most famous scientists. He showed that instead of being enemies, Capital and Labor are dependent upon each other. In the modern industrial age Labor cannot function which only Capital can provide, and Capital cannot produce wealth without the cooperation of Labor. When both fully understand that, we can make progress.

Barkley Opens With Vigorous Campaigning

Returning to the style of stump speaking that won him fame as one of the nation's foremost campaigners and the name of being an "iron horse" among the ranks of political speakers, Senator Alben W. Barkley this week swung into the midst of the fight for re-nomination as United States Senator. The state high-way commission was organized when the federal government started pouring money into the state. We still have it with us, and it is busier than ever. In fact, I sometimes think that the title of "high-way commissioner" is a misnomer. He ought to be called the "commissioner of political fences."

Barkley also struck at state administration of old age pensions, pointing out that he had voted to provide funds so that the aged needy could have a month's pension and that they are being denied them because of failure of the Chandler administration to

Senator Barkley's train got him into Louisville for an hour and a half hour on Saturday, and enthusiastic crowds at Elizabethtown, Upton and Gordville, cheering him on in his assault on Chandler. He scheduled him late for all engagements. He continued on his speaking tour Monday with addresses at Clark County, Tompkinsville and Bowling Green. His schedule through July 11 follows: June 28—Brownsville 10 a. m., Letchfield 2 p. m., Frankfort 7:30 p. m.; July 2—Hawesville 10 a. m., Hardinsburg 2 p. m., Middlesboro 7:30 p. m.; July 3—Scottsville 1:30 p. m., Frankfort 7:30 p. m.; July 4—Dixon 10 a. m., Providence 4:30 p. m., Madisonville 7:30 p. m.; July 5—Carrville 10 a. m., 30 a. m., Calloway county 1 p. m., Mayfield 2:30 p. m.; July 4—Sturgis 10 a. m., Central City 1 p. m., Owensboro 3 p. m., Louisville 10 a. m.; July 5—Shepherdsville 1 p. m., Taylorsville 3 p. m.; Lawrenceburg, Ky. 10 a. m.; Harrodsburg 2 p. m., Danville 7:30 p. m.; July 7—Harrodsburg 10 a. m., Bedford 3 p. m., Carrollton 7:30 p. m.; July 8—with President C. Roosevelt on special train; July 11—Hindman 10:30 a. m., Jackson 1:30 p. m., Campata 4 p. m., Irvin 7:30 p. m.

The great issue which the people of Kentucky are facing in this campaign is not the question of whether I have been elected or whether someone else has been all over the Commonwealth, to Mexico or down to Louisiana, he said. "The real issue is whether they men who are being made men who were then and are now in the government service. It is not a question of how much money I have drawn out of the treasury. Quite frankly, I have needed that money after campaigning at my own expense throughout Kentucky in behalf of Democratic nominees. I recall that in 1935 I gave up a trip to the Philippine Islands, with all expenses paid, to come to Kentucky and campaign for the Democratic nominees for state offices. And I want to remind you that no one ever assessed state employees to pay my train fares on these campaign trips. No state money was used to build workers about the state for my behalf or to take my supporters to political rallies, and no state employees have been used to staff my headquarters. No, those are not the real issues in this campaign. The real issue is the question of whether I have been voted to the Democratic party and to that matchless leader in the White House, President Franklin D. Roosevelt — and whether I have upheld and fought for the great program which has been pushed forward under his leadership.

"Perhaps I have been a controversial figure, if to cooperate with and follow the leadership of President Roosevelt places me in that category," Senator Barkley continued. "But if I had to choose between the coattails of President Roosevelt and the coattails of the American Liberty League, give me Franklin D. Roosevelt. I have stood for the ideals of the New Deal, I am standing for them now, and when I am returned to the United States Senate I will still be standing for them."

Senator Barkley pointed out that Kentucky has received over $60,000,000 for highway construction from the federal government in 20 years, as the result of legislation he sponsored, and thrust at political control of the state highway department, declaring: "The state highway commission was organized when the federal government started pouring money into the state. We still have it with us, and it is busier than ever. In fact, I sometimes think that the title of 'high-way commissioner' is a misnomer. He ought to be called the 'commissioner of political fences.'"

Barkley also struck at state administration of old age pensions, pointing out that he had voted to provide funds so that the aged needy could have a month's pension and that they are being denied them because of failure of the Chandler administration to

by S.S. Van Dine

"Just a moment, Weem,—have the same light? Vance put in, 'You're the better here, I understand.'"

"And your wife is the cook, I believe?"

"Yes, sir," Weem answered. "Everything was quiet until I went to sleep—didn't wake up till Mrs. Kenting rang for coffee around six."

"That's all, Weem."

"The butler shuffled away lackadaisically."

"I think," Vance said to Heath, "it was a good idea to get McLaughlin there. There's really nothing more to be done up here just now. Suppose we go down and find out what he can tell us."

"Right!" And the Sergeant started toward the door for Vance, Kasper, Markham, and myself.

Vance paused briefly just before reaching the door and glanced at the small writing-table at the front of the room on which the telephone stood. He regarded it conspicuously as he approached the door, and peered into them. He turned to the small wastepaper basket beside the table and bent over it.

When he rose he asked Mrs. Kenting: "Does your husband do his writing at this table?"

"Yes, always," the woman answered.

"But did he ever need any paste or mulligan?" Vance asked. "I don't see any here."

"Mrs. Kenting appeared still more puzzled. 'Why no. As a matter of fact, I don't believe there is any in the house. But why?'"

"I'm merely trying to locate the truth about everything, and I beg you forgive any questions which seem irrelevant to you."

"The woman made no reply, and Vance again went toward the door where Markham and Heath and I were waiting, and we all went out into the hall."

As we reached the narrow landing halfway down the stairs, Markham suddenly stopped, letting Heath proceed on his way. He took Vance by the arm, detaining him.

"See here, Vance," he said aggressively, but in a subdued tone. "This kidnaping don't strike me as being entirely on the level. And I don't believe you yourself think that it is."

"Oh, my Markham!" I deplored Vance. "Art thou a mind-reader?"

"Drop that," continued Markham angrily. "Either the kidnaping has no intention of harming young Kenting, or else—as Fleet suggests—this kidnaping is a 'chance affair' and kidnaped himself."

"What I want to know, is why you refused to offer your help?"

"Really, I know, Markham," I said lightly, but with a certain seriousness, "you're a most admirable character, but you're far too naïve for this unscrupulous world. Be as you and your legal friend, Fleet, are quite wrong in your suppositions. I assure you, don't you know, that I am not sufficiently cruel to exte I false hopes to any one."

"What do you mean by that, Vance?"

"I wouldn't say as how it was suspicious as the time, although the idea passed through my mind. But there wasn't any cause to take action."

"Yes, Sergeant, a voice at the door, a very green color—pulled up on the side of the street just about six o'clock, and one of the guys got out and the other one took a look at the engine. I came across the street and gave the car the once-over. But everything seemed on the up-and-up, and I didn't bother 'em. Pretty soon the driver got in and the coupe drove away."

"I say, officer," put in Vance, "were both occupants of the coupe white men?"

"Sure they was, sir."

"And couldn't there have been a third man in the coupe?" Vance probed. "A smaller man, let us say, whom you didn't see—on his knees and hidden from view, perhaps?"

"Gosh!" muttered McLaughlin. "You think the three was three men in that car?"

"Really, McLaughlin, I don't know," Vance drawled. "It would seem a matter of fact, but I have heard three men in the car, I craved a small pussy-footed fellow by the officer, did you, by any chance, stumble upon a looking during your nocturnal circuit in these parts last night?"

"I saw a lad in that, what you mean, the man admitted 'I was leaning up against that maple tree in the garden out here. I don't think I was in the car, but I figured it was only being used to prune the tree, or something. There certainly wasn't any use in reporting a ladder in a gentleman's yard was there?"

"Oh no," Vance assured him in a friendly tone. "I'm going about reporting ladder—eh, what?"

"That ladder still in the yard, officer, only this morning it was resting against the house, under an open window."

"Honest to God!" McLaughlin's eyes grew bigger. "Hope it's not O.K. not to report it!"

"Oh, quiet," Vance encouraged him. "It wouldn't have done a particle of good anyway."

"Thanks awfully," he sauntered to the sofa and sat down lazily, stretching his legs out before him. It was obvious he had no other questions to put to the officer.

Heather straightened up. "That's all, McLaughlin. Much obliged for coming down. Go on home and hit the hay."

The officer saluted and turned. A moment later the door shut softly behind him.

"Well, Mr. Vance?" Heath asked, resting his weight against the desk.

"Oh, quiet," Vance encouraged him. "It wouldn't have done a particle of good anyway."

"Thanks awfully," he sauntered to the sofa and sat down lazily, stretching his legs out before him. It was obvious he had no other questions to put to the officer.

Heather straightened up. "That's all, McLaughlin. Much obliged for coming down. Go on home and hit the hay."

The officer saluted and turned. A moment later the door shut softly behind him.

"Well, Mr. Vance?" Heath asked, resting his weight against the desk.

"The criminal undertaking as you call it, need not necessarily have been prepared very far in advance," objected Markham. "Kasper would have had time to do his cutting and pasting when he returned from the case."

"Oh, no, I don't think so," Vance returned at once. "I took a good look at the desk and the wastepaper basket. No evidence whatever of such activity. Moreover, the Johnnie's phone call in the wee hours of the morning shows a certain amount of expectation on his part of getting the matter of his financial difficulties settled."

"Go on," said Markham.

"Very good," continued Vance. "Why should Kasper Kenting have taken three hours to change to street clothes after he had returned from his pleasant evening of desultory gambling? A few minutes would have sufficed. And another question: Why should he wait until bright daylight before going north? The darkness would have been infinitely safer and better suited to his purpose."

"How did you know he didn't go much earlier, before it was daylight?" demanded Markham.

"But, my dear fellow," exclaimed Vance, "the ladder was still leaning against the tree around dawn, when McLaughlin saw it, and there fore was not placed against the window until after sun-up."

"I see what you mean, Mr. Vance," Heath threw in eagerly. "And Mrs. Kenting herself told us that she heard some one in the room at six o'clock this morning."

"True, Sergeant, but that's not the important thing," Vance answered casually. "As a matter of fact, I don't think it was Kasper at all whom Mrs. Kenting says she heard her husband's voice at that hour this morning. And, by the way, Markham here's another question to be considered: Who was the commiserate?"

"Kasper's room," said Vance, "would certainly get his left that door unlocked if he passed any such action. And, speaking of the door, you remember the lady, opened it at six, right after hearing some one walking in the room in what she described as soft slippers. And don't forget that it is his heavy blucher shoes that are gone—not his slippers. Why, if the soft-footed person in the master bedroom was Kasper, did he wait till his wife knocked on the door and called to him before he made a precipitate getaway? He could have left at any time during the three hours after he had returned home from his high-walk on the stairs, or on the stairs, or on the stairs, or on the stairs."

"I'm afraid you'd lose your wager old dog."

"But all the evidence points—"

"Please, oh, please, Markham," implored Vance. "Must we necessarily lean wherever a finger points?"

"Damn it, Vance!" Markham returned angrily. "I want to know why you said what you did on the stairs, in the face of all the evidence to the contrary."

"Pardon me, Chief," put in Heath to Vance. "I didn't hear what Mr. Vance said to you on the stairs. I don't know what his ideas on the case are."

Markham looked at the Sergeant. "Mr. Vance doesn't believe that Kasper Kenting was a kidnaped man, does he?"

"Do you really think, Markham, that your plotting Kasper would have gone to the Jersey casino to indulge in a bit of gambling on the big night—that is to say, on the night he intended to carry out his plan to coup involve fifty thousand dollars?"

"And why not?"

"It's quite obvious this criminal plan was carefully prepared in advance. The note itself is sufficient evidence of this, with its letters and words painstakingly cut out and all neatly arranged on a piece of disguised paper."

The Buccaneer Is Cozy Feature

A crucial but little-known chapter of American history is brought to life by Cecil B. DeMille in "The Buccaneer," opening Sunday and Monday. It is the story of a famous pirate king who was so notorious that the government put a price on his head, but who became one of the nation's outstanding heroes when he came to America's rescue in her darkest hour and helped Jackson turn the British away from the gates at New Orleans.

Frederic March is seen in the role of the pirate chief, Jean Lafitte, one of the most colorful characters who ever walked across the pages of American history. Lafitte was born in Bordeaux, France, at some unknown date before the French Revolution. His birthday has never been established although the late Huey Long of Louisiana declared one for him and made it a state holiday.

After serving for a time in Napoleon's armies, Lafitte moved to the New World to try his fortune. Gathering about him a band of ferocious outlaws from every corner of the world, he set up a pirate kingdom on the shores of the Gulf of Mexico but far from the thriving city of New Orleans.

From his port of "Barataria" he carried on piracy in a gentlemanly manner, preying mostly upon Spanish vessels and establishing a set rule that Americans ships go unmolested at all times.

Although the customs officials of the United States, irked by the superior bargains he offered New Orleans shoppers, put a price on his head, Lafitte, as can be seen clearly in "The Buccaneer," always maintained a deep affection for this, his adopted country.

In the closing year of the War of 1812, the prospects of the United States in its struggle with England looked black as pitch. Washington was burned, Napoleon defeated, New England about to withdraw from the Union. Although the British made Lafitte an attractive offer for his services, the pirate, General Jackson and placed himself and his resources at the disposal of the American army. He helped Jackson win the great Battle of New Orleans, and this removed forever the spectre of a British capture of the American West.

A Review Of Spring Fire Season

A review of the Spring Fire Season for 1938 shows a total of 40 man-caused fires on the Red River District of the Cumberland National Forest.

Of these, 21 were the result of debris burning, including man-made ground clearings, tobacco beds, sedge grass and brush burning. Eight were traced to smokers, 8 were of incendiary origin; one fire was caused by boys shooting firecrackers; 1 by a hunter; and 1 by a locomotive.

These forest fires were distributed as follows by counties: 23 in Rowan County, 8 in Powell County, 6 in Menifee County, 3 in Lewis County, 1 in Fleming County, and 1 in Bath County.

Most of the fires in Rowan County were the result of careless brush burners. It is interesting to note that four of the men who allowed fires to escape were new-comers, who evidently were not aware of the danger or were not versed in the proper methods of preventing the escape of brush fires. At least two of the fires were started by elderly men who did not have anyone to help them and could not check the fire when it escaped. Two brush fires escaped due to a sudden change in wind. Other brush burning fires were the result of thoughtless carelessness and indifference. It is hoped that everyone will cooperate to reduce the number of avoidable forest fires on the District. Make it your responsibility to avoid allowing fire to escape by new visits and use your influence to advise.

TO HELP HERE Kentucky's unemployed WPA laborers rejoiced today over a promise of a $10-a-month raise which, State Director George H. Goodman said, will add approximately $700,000 a month to the wages of the state's 62,000 relief clients.

Goodman said the increase would result from an order by President Roosevelt lifting Kentucky from the lowest to the middle WPA classification.

Lambert Acquitted On Foster Murder Count

The Commonwealth appealed an acquittal decision from County Court on a statutory offense against Audra Clark and a jury held that he was the father of the child in question and ordered him to pay its mother $5 each month until the child was 14 years of age. The case is unusual in that this is the first time the history of the court that the Commonwealth has appealed a case from lower court. The law stipulates that this is the only case in which a verdict of acquittal can be appealed by the State.

N. Y. A. Projects Are Aid To Workers

(Continued From Page One) over the fact that 12,000 youth had left projects. "This is an indication," the State Director said, "that many young people employed on NYA work projects are taking advantage of their training opportunities and are obtaining jobs in private industry."

Although the major objective of the National Youth Administration is to help underprivileged young people, the benefits accruing to the general public is a result of the program are not to be overlooked. Mr. Salyers pointed out in a section devoted to NYA physical accomplishments. NYA workers repaired and improved 2,100 school buildings, constructed 28,000 items of furniture for public agencies, made 245,000 garments for distribution to needy, constructed 30 buildings of furniture for public agencies, made 115,000 garments for distribution to needy, constructed 20 buildings, made 275 recreational improvements, repaired 175,000 books, served 400,000 school lunches, landscaped 425 school campuses, erected 738 street and safety signs, laid 190,000 square feet of sidewalk and performed various other types of work beneficial to Kentucky schools and communities.

Much Money Loaned To Rowan Farmers

(Continued From Page One) er to buy stock, tools and other equipment. The plan is to be more effective and, the advice he gets from County Supervisors in working out a better farm program has him ready to back what he has borrowed. When he has paid his farm he looks what he has bought.

Farm and home plans providing for production of food, feed, and seed needs, as well as a crop and livestock program that provides a maximum cash income without displacing the milk, have been worked out by each FSA borrower and his wife. The plan is to be supervised. Each plan is worked out to meet the individual farm's needs and the type of farm the family operates.

Mr. Cobb also has charge of the FSA program in Carter, and Elliott counties. Loans of $100,000 in these counties for the past three years were listed as follows: Carter, $697,000; collections $279,000; $418,000 in loans are repayable up to five years.

Mr. Cobb stated that these loans are being used to buy tractors, farm implements and equipment and items on credit in a majority of cases, these farmers are too happy in a chance to limit to better times to turn loose the runs of the ladder upon which they are climbing. Progress of farmers cooperating in the program a year or more indicates that such has increased his net worth, has more livestock and a better crop and feed program, while the home-maker has greatly increased the amount of food canned for the family and produced on the farm.

IT'S NOT SAFE TO KEEP A "DATE" BOOK

In Circuit Court this week a young man was being tried on a statutory offense, a charge he had been acquitted on in lower court but which had been appealed by the Commonwealth to Circuit Court. It is the only acquittal that can be appealed by the Prosecuting Attorney and the first time that this procedure has been adopted in Rowan County.

Instead of employing a lawyer this young man plead his own case. In a memorandum book produced in open court he had set down what he said to be the month, day and year of every engagement that he had had with the young lady who brought the charges.

Inasmuch as this list of "dates" (not the word here but its meaning) was produced as evidence, Commonwealth Attorney Cliff Hamilton asked to examine the "little book."

Therein, Mr. Hamilton found a long list of young ladies names, addresses and telephone numbers, and the day, month and year that he had "dated" each.

The jury found him guilty. When this young man becomes as experienced as Seeing Things perhaps he will realize it never pays to jot anything down about a woman not that they aren't worth it sometimes.

ROWAN HAS MORE THAN HALF OF FIRES

Over half of all forest fires in the Cumberland National Park Area occur in Rowan County, according to a report from Central headquarters.

It is a situation of which we are not particularly proud. Officials of the park area admit that when the government first started buying this forest land that Rowan County's timber was in poorer shape than that any place else because of the ravages of fire.

In the last three years fires have been cut down fully 75 percent and damage now is less than 10 percent of what it used to be, due to efficient work on the part of forest rangers and the CCC camps.

However, it is deplorable that through carelessness and neglect our county still has more fires than all others.

IS PROSPERITY AHEAD FOR ROWAN?

It is reported that a use has been found for the clay mined in this county which has heretofore been discarded, to make soft bricks. If this be true hundreds of men may find employment in a new plant.

Pensions Booming On Gov. Chandler

When Governor Chandler comes to Rowan County he is going to have lots of things to explain to "happy" people.

To begin with he will find himself in hot water if he tries to alibi himself out of the fact that the State Legislature with its approval appropriated $240,000 more for the Murray State Teachers College for the next two years than they did for Morehead. He would have a hard time explaining this in view of the record which shows that from 1923 until he became Governor both schools received the same appropriation.

Governor Chandler would also have a hard time telling the people of Rowan County why it is that he has not built one square inch of road here since he has become Governor. Chandler might try to tell the people about the rural highways but he would run into another boomerang there. Every-where here the rural highway program is actually hurting the roads. Instead of helping them. The people know that there is no attempt being made to help the roads but there is every reason to see that people are being applied in order to get votes for Governor Chandler. It matters not how qualified one is or how badly he needs the work. It is a question of how many votes he can give the Governor if he gets the job.

The rural highway program, so far as Rowan County is concerned, has been the Governor's chance. Governor Chandler also might have a hard time explaining to the people here why it is that Rowan County paid off $200,000 during the two years immediately preceding his tenure of office, on the county debt but since that time the county has been unable to pay a cent. He might have a difficult time telling these people he has done a lot for them when they know better than he does what has been done for their interest.

The Governor is also running into difficulty throughout the State with his vehement claims of paying off 17 million dollars on the State debt. During that time he has collected more than 40 million dollars in taxes than did the previous administration in the same period. It is rather difficult in this case for him to explain the difference between 17 million and 40 million.

In each of his three speeches here when he was campaigning for Governor, Chandler promised that he would do away with the weed cutters as political patronage. He might try to explain why it is that he has so many weed cutters on the job now.

In 1935 Governor Chandler went all Kentucky siding people that if they would get together and elect him he would do it. He said, "I will do it for you." What does he mean by that? What does he mean by "I will do it for you?" What does he mean by "I will do it for you?"

The Governor might have a little explaining to do as to why he was against this in 1935 and for it in 1938. He might also have trouble in explaining why so many were put on when he became a candidate for Senator.

In 1933 Governor Chandler decried the assessment of State employees. Can he deny today that State employees are being assessed. Whereas then the assessment was 2 percent, now in many cases it runs as high as 25 percent.

Governor Chandler, if he pursues the same line of thought that he did in his campaign opening address at Hopkinsville will make a play for the W. P. A. vote with statements that W. P. A. employees are being paid less in Kentucky than in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. The point is ill taken and has resulted in another boomerang.

The Louisville Courier-Journal (which was a strong supporter of Governor Chandler in 1935) has this to say: "Before the campaign for Governor Barkley is likely to be telling the people that the Governor pays the men who work in the roads in Indiana, Illinois and Ohio."

Day laborers on Kentucky roads receive 20 and 35 cents an hour in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois they receive 50 cents an hour.

Someone might thoughtlessly as to compare what Governor Chandler pays the recipients of old age pensions with the payments in Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio. That would give the Governor some explaining to do. Barkley might make the point himself. He seemed to be thinking about the size of the Kentucky pensions when he spoke at Lexington, for he commented that the Federal Government had made provision for Kentucky recipients could get $30 maximums, instead of the $15 limit set by Governor Chandler.

"Kentucky persons receiving age grants now get a monthly average of $9.37. The average was $9.39 for February. Since last June the average has been $9.74.

"By comparison, the average monthly payment to recipients of old age pensions in Ohio is $23.04, in Indiana $18.12 and in Illinois $17.19."

Senator Barkley voted for a $30 pension. Chandler placed a maximum of $15 and is actually giving an average pension of $9.74. Even this will be cut down when thousands of new names are added this month in an effort to get them to vote for Governor Chandler.

Taking the Eighth district in parts it seems that the Governor has little chance for victory here. With Pierce Plummer, the highway commissioner, strongly behind him in Fleming County, the Governor has a good chance to carry it. The majority for either candidate there will be small for the tobacco farmer vote is favorable to Barkley.

Governor Chandler is apparently stronger in Bath County than any other spot in the district. The old-line politicians there, practically all of them are either holding state jobs or have some member of the family on the state payroll, are for him. The farm vote in Bath County is rapidly leaving the Governor, however.

Chandler appears to be in fair shape in Greenup County. Both sides are claiming the county and it looks close.

In Carter County the lines are not fully drawn but Barkley appears to have the stronger vote.

Boyd County is almost certain to give Barkley an overwhelming majority. Aid Lawrence County to the Senator's column by almost two to one. Barkley has a decided edge in Mason County—Montgomery County is strongly pro-Barkley. Barkley is admittedly ahead in Elliott and Morgan Counties.

Chandler appears to be another strong spot in Harrison County. Barkley still holds a lead in another county that is almost sure to fall to Barkley by a large margin. In Boone County with over 2,000 Democrats, Barkley leaders claim they will receive 1,500 of those votes.

Barkley headquarters know that they are comfortably ahead. However, they are warning their campaign workers not to become overconfident. There will be a let up from what until Aug. 10, from either side.

THE KITCHEN—The kitchen in the modern home is, in many respects, the most important room in the house. This is especially true in cases where a servant is not employed and where the mistress of the house must attend the cooking, laundry work, and the many other domestic duties. In such instances the mistress must spend a large part of her time in the kitchen, hence this room should be made as convenient and attractive as possible. The kitchen should be reached by a separate entrance where tradesmen can deliver supplies and packages. If there is a basement there should be convenient access to the stairs.

Kitchen Devices—Devices for convenience and ease in performing the operations of the kitchen should be installed wherever possible. Electric ranges, refrigerators, dishwashers and other labor-saving machines should be thoughtfully considered. Ironing boards, apron closets, broom closets, tables, step-ladder chairs, cabinets for miscellaneous foods and spaces for all kitchen utensils can be attractively arranged. Good light should be provided and a pleasant outlook from the windows is most desirable.

A breakfast nook in the kitchen or directly connected with it, is a great step toward, and is convenient for simple meals. A kitchen should not be so large as to require a great deal of walking about by the one performing the cooking and serving meals. It is important to install a great many electric outlets, for new devices are being invented rapidly.

MARY ROBERTS RINEHART She Wrote Mystery Stories—So The Ghosts Decided To Move Right In

Millions of people have read the stories of Mary Roberts Rinehart. She has written forty-four books and thousands of pages of magazine fiction; yet she started writing when she was the mother of three babies—not because she cared about fame, but because she was driven frantic by debts.

The first story she ever sold brought thirty-four dollars; but editors are glad to pay thirty-four thousand dollars now for one of her serials. She is one of the most highly paid authors in America and also one of the most prolific; yet she says that "writing is sheer, grinding drudgery."

She once sold big bundles of her stories to the movies for seventy-five dollars a bundle. But later on she refused an offer of fifty thousand dollars a year to go to Hollywood and write stories for the screen.

Mrs. Rinehart was tortured by an apparently unending siege of operations. That she kept right on writing—in beds and wheel chairs and in hospitals.

Mary Roberts Rinehart has often remarked that, if she hadn't had so much illness to keep her in bed, she would never have written so many works.

Then suddenly, with the swift-ness of a tornado she was overwhelmed by a financial catastrophe. It was the old, old story. Wall Street. Too many stocks. That morning a panic everything lost in a day.

Then, one evening, Doctor Rinehart came home from a sick call and told her a strange story; a patient of his had lost his memory and imagined himself a young man again. He thought his wife was a strange woman and he laughed when he was told that the children running about the house were his own.

The case fascinated Mrs. Rinehart; so she sat down that very night, wrote it into a short story

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Written Each Week By B. H. KAZEE Pastor Of The Baptist Church

SUBJECT: JOSHUA: A CHOICE OF LOYALTIES. 12:6, 24:14-21. GOLDEN TEXT: "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord." Josh. 24:15.

Last Sunday we finished the Book of Mark. We will study this quarter the Book of Joshua. We begin with the words of the Lord to Israel: "Moses my servant is dead; now therefore, arise go over this Jordan" etc. If my reader will follow this first chapter through the such verses he will find great promises made to Israel through Joshua, the son of Nun. The complete possession of the Promised Land is promised here. The end of all their long journey is made sure to them in this great promise.

The Promised Land is not necessarily a type of Heaven, as is so often said. It is a type of fellowship with God in this world, looking forward to complete possession in Heaven. But remember, before we possess this land we must conquer many giants who oppose us.

The book of Joshua is a record of this great work of conquering the enemies of the territory of the land which the Lord gave to Abraham and to Israel. Possessing the land is what every Christian should, be doing all the time. This is not working for salvation; it is working out the salvation which we already have; that is, possessing his blessing really.

The exhortation in chapter 24, which is linked with this lesson, gives us an impressive moment after the conquest of the land has been finished. Joshua shows them how they have conquered through the power of God; how nothing has come to them except through His power. Now, he says: "You have every reason to serve God. There is no reason at all for you considering any other God. So put away the gods which your father worshipped on the other side of Jordan. (Some had worshipped idols). Serve ye the Lord." He put the challenge straight to the heart.

"There is no need to hesitate about a decision," he said. "If it seems evil to you to serve the Lord, then make up your mind. Get on one side or the other, and choose this day whom you will serve." That is, if God hasn't done enough to show you He deserves the fullest allegiance of your life, then you can't ever appreciate His blessings. Then, he added, with solemn choice, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

If every house in Rowan county could come to a similar decision, this county would become a light-house to the entire world, rather than to be so steeped in sin and ignorance as to have less than ten people out of every hundred showing up at any church at all. But no man can enthroned God in His home until he has entrusted God in his heart. The call is to choose this day whom we will serve. If the new Christians in this county really took a definite stand for Christ, great things would take place for God.
